MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Nemesis.

Nemesis is lame, but she is of colossal stature, and sometimes, while her sword is not yet unsheathed, she stretches out her huge left arm and grasps her victim. The mighty hand is invisible, but the victim totters under the dire clutch.—George Eliot.

Thrust Upon Him.

"How did stupid old Boresome ever get a reputation for wit?"

"He was once interviewed by a brilliant young reporter."—Minneapolis Journal.

CLOTHES AND CONDUCT.

Addison could not write his best unless he was well dressed.

Every man and every woman feels the influence of clothes and appearance upon conduct.

Indeed, in a millennium of free clothes of the latest fashion we shall all be archangels.

You have heard of the lonely man in the Australian bush who always put on evening dress for dinner, so that he might remember he was a gentleman.

Put a naughty girl into her best Sunday clothes, and she will behave quite nicely. Put a blackguard into khaki and he will be a hero. Put an omnibus conductor into uniform and he will live up to his clothes.

You have to understand human nature mighty well to know that other people aren't any bigger fools than you are.—N. Y. Press.

HE WENT ON CRUTCHES

All Medicines Failed Until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured His Rheumatism.

"Some years ago," says Mr. W. H. Clark, a printer, living at 612 Buchanan street, Topeka, Kans., "I had a bad attack of rheumatism and could not seem to get over it. All sorts of medicines failed to do me any good and my trouble kept getting worse. My feet were so swollen that I could not wear shoes and I had to go on crutches. The pain was terrible.

"One day I was setting the type of an article for the paper telling what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for a man afflicted as I was and I was so impressed with it that I determined to give the medicine a trial. For a year my rheumatism had been growing worse, but after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I began to improve. The pain and swelling all disappeared and I can truthfully say that I haven't felt better in the past twenty years than I do right now. I could name, off hand, a half-dozen people who have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at my suggestion and who have received good results from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be safe and harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic, nor anything to cause a drug habit. They do not act on the bowels but they actually make new blood and strengthen the nerves.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism because they make rich, red blood and no man or woman can have healthy blood and rheumatism at the same time. They have also cured many cases of anæmia, neuralgia, sciatica, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and other diseases that have not yielded to ordinary treatment.

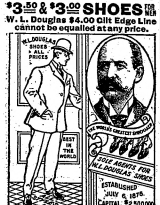
All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

MAKE EVERY DAY COUNT—
no matter how bad the weather. You cannot afford to be without a TOWER'S WATERPROOF OILED SUIT OR SLICKER
When you buy look for the SIGN OF THE FISH
TOWER'S FISH BRAND
A J TOWER CO. BOSTON U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO LTD TORONTO CAN.

SICK HEADACHE
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3.50 & $3.00 SHOES FOR MEN
W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.



W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES ALL PRICES
BEST IN THE WORLD
THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOEMAKER
SOLE AGENTS FOR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES
ESTABLISHED JULY 6, 1876.
CAPITAL $2,500,000

W. L. DOUGLAS MAKES & SELLS MORE MEN'S $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY OTHER MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD.
$10,000 REWARD to anyone who can disprove this statement.
If I could take you into my three large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you the infinite care with which every pair of shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe.
W. L. Douglas Strong Made Shoes for Men, $2.50, $2.00. Boys' School & Dress Shoes, $2.50, $2, $1.75, $1.50
CAUTION.—Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes. Take no substitute. None genuine without his name and price stamped on bottom.
Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.
Write for Illustrated Catalog.
W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

A LAND OF OPPORTUNITIES.

Inducements Held Out by Western Canada Are Powerful.

A recent number of the Winnipeg (Manitoba) Free Press contains an excellent article on the prospects in Western Canada, a portion of which we are pleased to reproduce.

The agents of the Canadian Government, located at different centres in the States, will be pleased to give any further information as to rates, and how to reach these lands.

"Just now there is a keener interest than ever before on the part of the outside world, in regard to the claims of the Canadian West as a field of settlement. At no previous time has there been such a rush of immigration, and the amount of information distributed broadcast is unprecedentedly great.

"In the majority of the States of the Union and in Great Britain the opportunities for home-making and achieving of even a modest competence are at the best limited. Moreover, according to the social and industrial conditions prevalent in those communities, the future holds out no promise of better things. It is not strange, then, that energetic young men should turn their eyes to Canada's great wheat belt, where every man can pursue fortune without the hindrance of any discouraging handicap.

"The inducements held out by Western Canada are powerful and made manifest by the great movement now in progress. That the prospects are considerably more than reasonably certain is borne out by the history of the country and its residents. The promise of gain is powerful, but when added to it there is the prospect of a corresponding social and civil elevation, it should prove irresistible to young men of a particularly desirable class for any new country.

"The Canadian West is alive with opportunities for the young man who aims at becoming more than a mere atom in the civil and national fabric. Some of the eager young fellows who arrive on the prairies daily are destined to become more than merely prosperous farmers. In the near future great municipal and provincial development will be in the hands of the people. The stepping stone to both financial prosperity and civil prominence is, and will be, the farm. For every professional opening there are hundreds of agricultural openings. The Canadian prairies are teeming with opportunities for the honest and industrious of all classes, but they are specially inviting to the ambitious young man who seeks a field for the energy and ability which he feels inherent within him. The familiar cry of "Back to the soil!" is more than a vain soundng phrase when applied to Western Canada."

Merciless.

He—I go to bed at night with gloves on to keep my hands soft.

She—And do you wear your hat, too?—Illustrated Bits.

Garfield Tea, the herb laxative, is better than drugs and strong cathartics; it cures.

ONE UNVIOLATED RULE.

Club Servitor Had Seen Them All Broken Into Bits, Save That One.

A certain club, the name of which need not be mentioned, has strict regulations against gambling, relates the American Spectator.

A quartette of club members decided to break the rule by a game of poker for small stakes, so they adjourned to one of the small rooms and told an old servant to bring a pack of cards.

When he brought them one of the members asked: "John, I suppose it would be something utterly new in this club if we were to do such a thing as play for money with these cards?"

The negro scratched his head and deliberated, finally answering: "Boss, I'se been wiv dis club a long time, and I'se seen many things."

"Yes, but what have you seen?"

"I've seen ebry rule of dis club vi'lated 'ceptin' one."

"What is that one?"

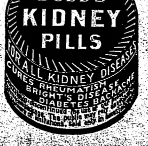
"De rule 'gainst gibbin' tips to de servants."

Locating the Blame.

"My dear," said the trusting wife, "I don't think your rules of economy are any good."

"You don't?" asked the fond husband.

"No," she replied, bending anew over the column of figures in her beautifully bound expense book. "You told me the way to save money was not to buy things—that thus we would save the amount the goods would have cost us. So I have been careful to set down the exact price of everything I have wanted to buy but felt I could not afford. I find, in adding it up, it amounts to $535, but I only have $4.37 in cash on hand. There must be something wrong with your theory.—Stray Stories.

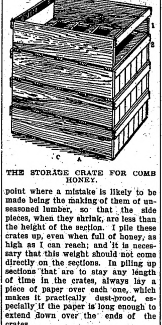


POULTRY AND BEES

STORAGE CRATES.

Convenient Arrangement by Which Comb Honey Can Be Safely Kept in Small Space.

The engraving shows a pile of storage crates filled with sections except the top one, which is empty, the better to show the construction. The engraving is a little faulty in that the tops of the sections in the filled crate nearest the top do not show as they should, through the open bottoms of the empty crate. These crates are made of any cheap lumber, the only point where a mistake is likely to be made being the making of them of unseasoned lumber, so that the side pieces, when they shrink, are less than the height of the section. I pile these crates up, even when full of honey, as high as I can reach; and it is necessary that this weight should not come directly on the sections. In piling up sections that are to stay any length of time in the crates, always lay a piece of paper over each one, which makes it practically dust-proof, especially if the paper is long enough to extend down over the ends of the crates.



THE STORAGE CRATE FOR COMB HONEY.

Pile your honey in a hot, dry place, cautions the editor of Gleanings in Bee Culture. If there is any suspicion of coolness or dampness about it, do not put the honey near the floor or in a corner. Have it at least a foot from the floor, and where the air can circulate freely all around it.

EFFECTIVE DUST BATH.

Clean Dust Mixed with Fine Ashes and Sulphur Enjoyed by Hens.

As to mites, I do not believe that I have any in my houses, says a New Jersey poultryman. I use preventative remedies, spraying the houses and painting underside of roosts and roost rests with crude carbolic solution, also fumigating with sulphur and whitewashing, using the sulphur once a month and whitewashing about four times a year. The above I have found sufficient for my purpose. I believe the mites are very difficult to get rid of once they get a foothold in a house, and a house infested with them will need very thorough cleaning and spraying, being very particular to get the spray into all cracks and crevices. As to chicken lice, I keep the houses supplied with dust baths, using clean dust mixed with fine ashes and sulphur. When I had a small number of fowls, it was an easy matter to inspect each individual, and dust them with insect powder, but this involves entirely too much labor where a large number of fowls are kept; so now I rely on dust baths mixed as above, I am not aware that I have ever lost any poultry from lice or mites and believe if the above plan is faithfully followed the trouble will be reduced to a minimum.—Farmer's Review.

GOOD SHELL MATERIAL.

Where Production of Eggs Is Large Much Lime Must Be Provided.

A great many of our people forget that the modern hen produces several times as many eggs as the ancient hen that was the progenitor of the one we now have. That hen laid 30 or 40 eggs a year and had no trouble to find the lime in the natural food. But it is a very different matter when a domestic fowl must produce good shell material out of her food for two hundred eggs during the year. The modern hen probably eats no more lime in her food; therefore the farmer that does not provide important supplies of lime will have trouble with his flock. The eggs will have thin shells, and there will be many soft shelled, eggs which will be a temptation to the poultry to begin egg eating. It is easy enough to furnish the material if one does not forget. The professional poultry man never forgets; but the farmer does, because poultry with him is merely a side issue.

Curing Roup.

Several homemade remedies failed to cure the roup so I tried swabbing the chicken's throats with turpentine. I used a feather dipped in turpentine and followed it by giving a teaspoon of goose oil. Since then I have not lost a chicken.

Sulphur for the Hens.

A little sulphur in the hens' feed occasionally is a benefit, but don't put it on the sitting hens or those that have chicks. If it gets into the chicks' eyes it will make them blind.

He Wasn't Certain.

At Fortress Monroe, Va., one day about a year ago, a man, accompanied by two ladies, approached a soldier who, with a gun on his shoulder, was pacing to and fro near the entrance. The warrior's appearance indicated that he was new to the service.

"Can you tell us," asked one of the visitors, addressing the recruit, "where Jeff Davis was imprisoned here?"

"Yonder's the ga-a-ar-d house," he replied, jerking a thumb over his shoulder, "but I dunno whether they've still got him shut up or not."—Chicago Record-Herald.

So Homelike.

Some one said to Brother Williams: "They have a balloon fad now, and you can go up and cool off in the clouds."

"Yes, suh," he replied. "En dar's so much thunder en lightnin' up dar, I reckon lots er 'um will feel lak' dey wuz right at home—'specially de married folks!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Young Men and Mechanics Wanted for the Navy.

Young men between the ages of 17 and 25 are enlisted as apprentice seamen. Electricians, machinists, plumbers and fitters, coppersmiths, boilermakers, shipwrights (carpenters), yeomen (clerks), firemen, musicians, cooks, etc., between the ages of 21 and 35, hospital apprentices 18 to 25. Pay $16 to $70 a month, according to rating. Good opportunity for advancement. No expenses for board, lodging, medicine and medical attendance. Clothing amounting to $45 free on first enlistment. Term of enlistment four years. Retirement after 30 years' service on three-fourths pay. Must be American citizens of good character and physically sound. Address Navy Recruiting Station, Post Office building, Minneapolis, Minn., or Post Office Building, St. Paul, Minn.

"White Disease" in Africa.

Sir Harry Johnston, the famous explorer, once escaped from a very tight corner in Africa by a queer stratagem. A score or two of murderous natives had surrounded his tent, into which, before rushing it, they sent an envoy. The envoy was told the smallpox was in camp, and a wretched Albino was sent out as the awful example. In five minutes the scared tribesmen had vanished. As Sir Harry well knew, they feared the "white disease" more than all the inventions of Maxim.

LIMB RAW AS PIECE OF BEEF.

Suffered for Three Years with Itching Humor—Cruiser Newark U. S. N. Man Cured—Speedy Cure by Cuticura.

"I suffered with humor for about three years off and on. I finally saw a doctor and he gave me remedies that did me no good, so I tried Cuticura when my limb below the knee to the ankle was as raw as a piece of beef. All I used was the Cuticura Soap and the Ointment. I bathed with Cuticura Soap every day, and used about six or seven boxes of Cuticura Ointment. I was thoroughly cured of the humor in three weeks, and haven't been affected with it since. I use no other Soap than Cuticura now. H. J. Myers, U. S. N., U. S. S. Newark, New York, July 8, 1905."

No Pretense.

"So you want to work?"

"Please don't misunderstand me. I don't want to work, but I've got to."—Philadelphia Ledger.

FITS, St. Vitus Dance and all Nervous Diseases permanently cured by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for Free $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ld., 931 and 933 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa

The fact that a man is all puffed up with pride will not mitigate the jar when he takes his fall.

Write Garfield Tea Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., for sample of Garfield Tea. Mild laxative.

Light-weight men always think they are heavy-weight thinkers.

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increases in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Miss Ruby Mushrush
Mrs. Alice Berryhill

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the organs or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

The following letters cannot fail to bring hope to despairing women.

Miss Ruby Mushrush, of East Chicago, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been a great sufferer with irregular periods and female trouble, and about three months ago the doctor, after using the X-Ray on me, said I had an abcess and would have to have an operation. My mother wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and it not only saved me from an operation but made me entirely well."

Mrs. Alice Berryhill, of 313 Boyce Street, Chattanooga, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Three years ago life looked dark to me. I had ulceration and inflammation of the female organs and was in a serious condition.

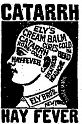
"My health was completely broken down and the doctor told me that if I was not operated upon I would die within six months. I told him I would have no operation but would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He tried to influence me against it but I sent for the medicine that same day and began to use it faithfully. Within five days I felt relief but was not entirely cured until I used it for some time.

"Your medicine is certainly fine. I have induced several friends and neighbors to take it and I know more than a dozen who had female troubles and who to-day are as well and strong as I am from using your Vegetable Compound."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

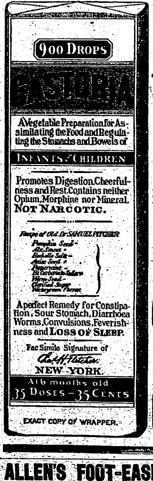


A Positive CURE CATARRH
Ely's Cream Balm
is quickly absorbed.
Gives Relief at Once.
It cleanses, soothes heals and protects the diseased membrane. It cures Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts., at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size 10 cts. by mail.
Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
HAY FEVER

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

A. N. K.—G (1906—21) 2127.

$20. AND LESS
From St. Louis and Kansas City to all points Southwest via M. K. & T. R'y, June 15th and 19th. Tickets good 30 days returning with stopovers in both directions.
To Dallas, Ft. Worth, Waco, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Laredo and intermediate points $20
To Elpaso and intermediate points $26.50
To Kansas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma and northern Texas points, one fare plus $2.00, but no rate higher than $20
Correspondingly low rates from all points: From Chicago, $25; from St. Paul, $27.50; from Omaha and Council Bluffs, $22.50.
Write for full particulars.
W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger and Ticket Agent
ST. LOUIS, MO.
W. P. LINDSAY,
376 Robert Street, St. Paul, Minn.
MKT
"SOUTHWEST"



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

YOU CANNOT CURE
all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.
But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with
Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic
which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.
Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.
Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

PLUMBING SCHOOL
WE TEACH YOU THE PLUMBING TRADE. Pays best wages, insures steady work, makes you independent. Write today. PLUMBING SCHOOL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE
A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.
DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.
This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.
For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

PATENTS
Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.
MILO B. STEVENS & CO.
909 14th St., Washington, D. C.
Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.
PENSIONS

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1906. NO. 9.

NEWS OF A WEEK TERSELY OUTLINED

A SUMMARY OF THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENTS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

TOLD IN CONDENSED FORM

Complete Review of Happenings of Greatest Interest from All Parts of the Globe—The Latest Foreign Information.

GRAFT AND REBATES.

Sensational charges of attempted bribery and trifling with the grand jury to drive competitors from business are made against the Standard Oil company at the interstate commerce commission investigation at Cleveland.

The interstate commission in Pennsylvania railroad inquiry finds one mine was sold because it could get no cars and another got but one car in 23 days.

President Cassatt's assistant, W. A. Patton, confessed he owned $307,000 in coal stock which cost him nothing.

Members of half a dozen large business firms admitted at Kansas City, in the trial in the federal court of George H. Crosby, the Burlington traffic manager, George L. Thomas, the New York freight broker, and the latter's clerk, L. B. Taggart, that they had received thousands of dollars in commissions from "unknown sources." All of the firms had hired Thomas to attend to the shipping of their goods from the Atlantic seaboard, but none of the witnesses would say the money had come from Thomas.

Witnesses in the Crosby rebate trial in Kansas City admit receiving 40 per cent. rebates.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

The omnibus bill authorizing additional aids to navigation in the lighthouse establishments was passed by the house of representatives.

Senator Knox gave notice of an amendment to raise the diplomatic post at Constantinople to an embassy. Under the regulations of the porte only ambassadors are permitted to seek audience with the sultan.

Senator Patterson said, in reply to Senator Bacon, that but for the contract labor law, immigrant laborers would be brought into the country to take the places of the striking coal miners, and expressed apprehension that people allowed to enter as farm laborers would turn to other occupations which give more continued employment and better wages.

The senate passed the bill making stricter regulations on immigration.

The senate threatens to hold up Panama appropriations for any canal save one of sea-level type.

The senate passed the bill relieving denatured alcohol from the internal revenue tax.

The senate granted lands for cemetery purposes to the Odd Fellows of Ekalaka, Montana.

The senate authorized the construction of a dam across the Mississippi river in Morris county, Minnesota.

The senate authorized the construction of piers and wharves in Porto Rican harbors under the supervision of the secretary of war.

MISCELLANEOUS.

In accordance with a proclamation of the president opening to settlement and entry 1,000,000 acres of the Crow Indian reservation in Montana, the commissioner of the general land office announced that a registration of applicants will be held at Miles City and Billings, Mont., and at Sheridan, Wyo., commencing June 14 and ending June 28, 1906. The drawings will be held at Billings commencing July 2.

The four principal owners in the failed Teis Smith bank of Pekin, Ill., were indicted under 125 counts each by the Tazewell county grand jury.

The executive board of the Ohio Mine Workers closed its session at Columbus without any definite steps for a restoration of peace in the mining regions having been taken.

Lawrence university defeated Hamlin university in a debate at Appleton on the ship subsidy question. Lawrence upheld the affirmative side of the proposition.

A committee of Republican members of the Delaware legislature petitioned Gov. Lea to call the general assembly into extraordinary session for the purpose of electing a United States senator to fill the existing vacancy.

The treasurer of Falls City, Neb., has filed a petition in bankruptcy, admitting a $10,000 shortage in city funds, with which he paid business debts.

The charges for automobile hire during the first two weeks following the 'Frisco fire is likely to develop into a scandal. There are not more than 1,000 machines in San Francisco and all of them could be bought for the amount charged for the hire of half the number.

Henry G. Goll, former cashier of the First National bank of Milwaukee, serving a ten-years' sentence in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, was assigned to work in the identification bureau. Frank G. Bigelow, former president of the bank, works in the same department.

Postmaster General Cortelyou has directed the establishment of a rural free delivery service in the Island of Guam.

Rev. Jacob Schmeister, a widely known pioneer clergyman, died at Burlington, Ia., aged 79 years.

Telegrams of condolence from all parts of the world were received by the family of the late Henrik Ibsen.

William M. Groff, of Philadelphia, was killed in an automobile accident at Coignieres, France, on the road between Rambouillet and Versailles.

Chairman Manson of the Democratic central committee of Wisconsin, has sent out his call for the state convention, to be held in Milwaukee June 27, for the purpose of perfecting the party organization and formulating a platform.

Insurance Commissioner Host, of Wisconsin, wired from Columbus, Ga., to friends in Milwaukee a denial of the charge made by associates of Secretary of State Houser that he (Host) had accepted a $10,000 policy in the Northwestern Life Insurance company as a gift.

At Rosedale, Kan., a crowd attempted to lynch Munroe Talvers, a negro, who had been found under the bed of a white woman. Before he strangled the negro was cut down by the police.

Numerous points in Missouri, Kansas and Indian territory report a soaking rain, breaking a drought of from three to six weeks and doing incalculable benefit to crops.

Frank Gotch defeated Tom Jenkins for the championship of America at catch-as-catch-can wrestling at Kansas City. Gotch won the first and third falls.

At the opening session of the forty-eighth annual gathering of the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church of North America at Richmond, Ind., Dr. John K. McClurkin, of Pittsburg, Pa., was chosen moderator.

Hon. L. S. Coffin, of Fort Dodge, was nominated for governor by the Prohibitionists of Iowa in convention at Des Moines.

In a wreck of a work train on the Wanawha & West Virginia railroad, Fireman Elmer James was scalded to death and Engineer B. L. Bickle fatally injured. Lewis Wolhouse, Charles Dickers and 14 others were injured.

The Association of French Policyholders of the Equitable Life Assurance company has decided to participate in the International conference to be held at Vienna.

Arthur Davis, who killed Hazel Reed at Springfield, O., was caught at Clarksburg, Ross county. He admitted his guilt and said jealousy was the motive.

George Younger, a negro, who shot and killed John Rector, of Columbus, Miss., while the latter, as a member of a posse, was endeavoring to effect the negro's arrest, was taken from the jail by a mob and lynched.

Alonzo Parks, carrier on rural mail route No. 1, out of Buena Vista, Tenn., was found unconscious and dying by the roadside, shot in the head. The mail sack had been rifled.

Albert de Luze, the French champion at Bordeaux, defeated Jay Gould, of Lakewood, N. J., at tennis, 8-6.

Miss May Sutton, af Pasadena, Cal., sailed from New York on the Oceania to defend her holdings of the English national lawn tennis championship.

It is estimated that 2,000 veterans were in the parade at Galesburg, Ill., which was the feature of the G. A. R. encampment, department of Illinois.

The national convention of the United Brethren Women's Missionary board held a memorial service at McKinley's tomb. An immense bouquet of carnations was deposited on the late president's casket.

The Anglo-Cuban treaty shorn of features objected to by the United States was reported to the senate at Havana.

The convention of the National Association of Railway Claim Agents adjourned to meet in Norfolk, Va., next year.

A verdict of suicide was rendered by the jury in the inquest into the death by a pistol shot wound of Charles L. Spier at his home at St. George, Staten Island, on the morning of Monday, May 7.

H. F. B. Lynch, Liberal, moved in the house of commons that parliament consider that further reforms in Macedonia are urgently required in the interest alike of the Christian and the Mohammedan population.

The czar refused the douma's demand for full amnesty for political crimes. He refused to pardon bomb throwers and assassins.

The appointment of Komura as Japanese ambassador at London is declared a snub to England.

Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatist and poet, died at Christiania, aged 78.

The local contest at Decatur, Ill., instituted to prevent the union of the Cumberland Presbyterian church with the Presbyterian church, has been decided in favor of the unionists.

Judge Smith McPherson, of Iowa, sitting in place of Judge John F. Phillips, at Kansas City, overruled the demurror of the Burlington railway indictments against that company, and it must go to trial.

Archbishop Messmer startled the Wisconsin Antisaloon league by the statement that intoxicants, used moderately, are no worse than ice cream.

The first legal victory in the fight between the warring factions of Zion went to adherents of Dowie. Judge Landis declared his investigators found no evidence of misappropriation of funds, that the assets exceed all liabilities, and that no receiver will be appointed.

The Presbyterian general assembly at Des Moines knocked out all authority for the book of forms and services.

The seventh annual meeting of the Illinois Congress of Mothers convened at Springfield. Gov. Deneen delivered the address of welcome.

A resolution was adopted by the annual conference of the Structural Building Trades Alliance of America, asking the local unions to urge their members against the use of alcoholic liquors.

The two rural guards who killed three of their comrades in a quarrel at Las Mangas, Cuba, May 17, surrendered to the authorities at Candelaria.

Goaded by jealousy, John Stewart, of Eveleth, Minn., shot his wife dead. The woman had left her husband.

Consequent on a petty dispute over the reception of Jacob Schiff, the American banker, the Japanese government has issued a regulation forbidding the Korean imperial household to entertain foreign guests without first consulting the Japanese resident general.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Illinois Library association convened at Springfield.

A decision of Judge Warren W. Hole in common pleas court, holds the penal section of the Ohio state banking acts to be constitutional.

An underground Chinese colony, similar to that which once existed in San Francisco, has been discovered in Seattle.

P. J. Farrell, member of parliament, will ask that American companies maintain a cash balance in Great Britain equal to one-third of value of policies issued.

At the semiannual meeting of the executive committee of the National Life Underwriters' association at New York, it was decided that the next annual convention shall be held in St. Louis on October 23, 24 and 25.

Alarmed over the prospect of a differential passenger rate war, members of the Trunk Line association and the Central Traffic association held a meeting in New York at which the entire dispute was finally adjusted.

Excitement over having caught a big fish was the cause of Barney and Henry Lehman, 18 and 13 years old, at St. Cloud, Minn., losing their lives in Mahew lake. The boat was capsized.

Francisco Elizado, of Laredo, Tex., stabbed to death his 15-year-old stepdaughter because she wished to marry against his will and then plunged the knife into his heart.

The American Red Cross received $30,000 from the Japanese Red Cross for the relief of San Francisco. This brings the Japanese Red Cross contributions to $80,000.

The Missouri supreme court upheld the lower court's decision in imposing death sentence on Edward Boteman, negro, convicted of having criminally assaulted Myrtle Digby, a white girl.

W. H. Stuart, the American vice consul, was shot and killed from ambush near his country place at Batum. The assassin escaped. Mr. Stuart was a British subject and one of the largest ship owners and exporters of Batum.

A noraml increase in the lumber industry of the United States is reported by the census bureau. Capital invested, $517,224,128, in increase of 29 per cent.; total value of products, $700,264,939, an increase of 26 per cent.

The Chilean government has accepted the invitation of the president to participate in the naval and marine exposition in Hampton roads next year, commemorative of the tercentennial of the settlement of Jamestown.

Charles H. Graves, American minister to both Sweden and Norway, has been selected to represent the president as a special envoy at the coronation of King Haakon at Christiania June 23.

Richard T. Greener, late commercial agent at Vladivostok, has received the order of the Double Dragon Third Class from the Chinese emperor for services rendered distressed Chinese subjects during the late war.

The supreme court rendered a decision in the case of Senator Ralph Burton, of Kansas, affirming the decision of the United States circuit court for the Eastern district of Missouri, by which Burton was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the jail of Iron county, Mo., required to pay a fine of $2,500 and deprived of the right to hereafter hold office under the government.

At a dinner by the New York Civic Federation Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor made an attack on corporations to which August Belmont, who was also a guest at the dinner, made a spirited reply.

POLITICAL AGENT KILLED.

Industrial Savings Bank at Warsaw Attacked by Band of Armed Anarchists.

Vitebsk, Russia.—M. Belkine, political agent and director of Vitebsk tobacco factory, was killed for political reasons. The assassin escaped.

Warsaw, Poland.—A brief but bloody encounter took place here at the Industrial Savings bank, which was attacked by a band of anarchists. The latter, with revolvers in their hands, ordered the clerks and customers present to hold up their hands. The chief clerk promptly drew a revolver and fired at the intruders. This was the signal for a brisk fusilade, during which two customers, five clerks and one of the anarchists were wounded. The anarchists then escaped, carrying off their wounded.

Suspect Foul Play.

Bismarck, N. D.—The register of the local land office has received a letter from R. C. Burlingane, a business man of Brophy, calling attention to the fact that John Kuchner, who failed to appear before the register to answer to a contest for his claim is still missing, and Burlingane says he believes the man has met with foul play.

Burlingane had interested himself in the young man, and when he failed to put in an appearance, he wrote to Hazel to make inquiry about him. A Mr. Black, for whom Kuchner worked all winter, said he had left there March 26 with a team and wagon which he had bought with his savings, and $300 which he had saved to improve his farm.

Black said he supposed Kuchner was on his claim. No trace, however, has been found of the missing man, and Black has offered a reward for information concerning him.

Hissed and Egged.

Duluth, Minn.—A serious riot was narrowly averted at the Lyceum theater, the leading playhouse here, during the opening scene of the "Story of the Reformation; or, the Life of Luther." Hisses from the "family circle" greeted the stereoptican pictures of Luther, a shower of eggs from the top gallery broke against the screen, two women fainted, people left the theater in crowds, and a riot was only averted by the efforts of the house managers and the police. Three young men in the gallery were arrested.

Attacks Grain Inspection.

Washington.—During the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill, Senator McCumber attacked the grain inspection service of Minneapolis and said that the North Dakota farmers suffered the loss of millions of dollars by having their wheat graded as an inferior quality. He advocated a national inspection system.

Senator Clapp defended the Minnesota inspectors, but Senator McCumber said he could prove his statements, and quoted a decision of Judge Sanborn to sustain charges of corruption against the inspetors.

Dived from Flyer.

Harvey, N. D.—While a westbound passenger train was speeding along at 50 miles an hour, a passenger named Samuel Adams, who was leaning out of the window, lost his balance and pitched headforemost down an embankment into a ditch of water. The train was stopped and backed, and Adams was found sitting on the edge of the ditch but little injured. Beyond a slight scalp wound, he showed no ill effects from his perilous dive, and boarded the train and continued his journey to this place.

Earthquake.

Lead, S. D.—Reports have been received here regarding a serious storm which swept over Sundance and vicinity. In the town of Sundance itself a distinct earthquake shock was felt by many of the inhabitants, but no damage resulted. In the outlying districts a severe cyclone swept over a large section completely destroying one farm house and a barn of a neighboring ranch. The storm came up in the vicinity of Bear Lake and made its way northwest.

Burned to Death.

New Munich, Minn.—Agnes Sands a nineteen-year-old girl was burned to death attempting to hasten the fire with kerosene. She poured kerosene onto the smouldering coals. There was a flash and the can containing the oil exploded throwing the burning fluid over the young woman. Instantly she was all in flames and ran out of doors. She fell unconscious on the ground and soon died.

Blew the Safe.

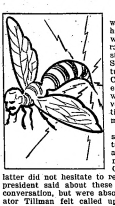
Helena, Mon.—Burglars broke into the Co-operative store at Great Falls blew open she safe but secured only a few dollars in cash. They are believed to belong to an expert gang that has been operating in Montana for several months.

Found Dead.

Rio, Wis.—Ray Rockwell, fifteen years of age, of Chicago was found dead beside the railroad track two miles east of here by section men.

GOSSIP FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

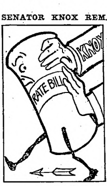
The Sting of the Ex-Senatorial Wasp—Senator from Pennsylvania Brings That State Much Honor.



WASHINGTON.—Ex-Senator Chandler, "the wasp of the Senate," as he was formerly known, has managed to get into his natural element, which is hot water. He mixed in the railroad rate legislation as an intermediary between the strenuous President Roosevelt and the vitriolic Senator Tillman, of South Carolina. The opportunity to have some fun was too great for Mr. Chandler to let pass. President Roosevelt, as everybody who has come in personal contact with him knows, is impetuous and in private conversation speaks his mind very freely and sometimes extravagantly about those with whom he may have a difference of opinion.

On the rate bill the president had some strong differences and to Senator Chandler he talked very freely about Senators Spooner, Knox and Foraker. It so happened that two of these men, Spooner and Foraker, have been in Mr. Chandler's bad books for some years and the latter did not hesitate to report to Senator Tillman some things which the president said about these senators that sounded rather harsh in private conversation, but were absolutely offensive when delivered in public. Senator Tillman felt called upon to make a statement on the floor of the senate giving his version of the negotiations that had been in progress between the president and the Democrats through Mr. Chandler, the intermediary. In that statement he quoted what Senator Chandler had said that the president had said about Knox, Spooner and Foraker.

SENATOR KNOX REMAINS COOL.



Senator Knox, one of the trio named by ex-Senator Chandler as having been criticised by the president, refused to get excited over the report as he said that the president knew him too well and knew his desire to enact constitutional legislation too well ever to have charged him even in private with having a purpose to defeat the bill. Mr. Knox is one of the well-tried friends of President Roosevelt who can talk to the latter like a "Dutch uncle," and the president takes his lecture in good part. It is remembered that a year or two ago a fulsome magazine article was published by a well-known writer in which the present Secretary Root was lauded to the skies and President Roosevelt quoted as saying that Mr. Root could fill any position in the cabinet and would make a better secretary of state than Mr. Hay or a better attorney general than Mr. Knox.

This article caused some comment and the friends of Mr. Knox were inclined to be offended, especially as it was shortly after the attorney general's successful credit to the administration. The president got worried over the article, and as Mr. Knox did not go to the White House for several days the president sent for him, and in an embarrassed sort of way denied that there had been any warrant for the quotation attributed to him in the magazine article. "Oh, Mr. President," said Mr. Knox, "I never gave that matter a second thought, because I knew that you were not fool enough to make such a remark." The president, who is apt to be carried away by the enthusiasm of the moment, and who doubtless had spoken in most laudatory terms of Mr. Root, saw the point of his attorney general's remark at once.

During the early days of the railroad rate fight Senator Knox had occasion more than once to remind the president that as chief executive he had nothing to do with legislation so long as it was being considered in congress. Some of the hints he dropped bore fruit and saved the president from greater embarrassment than the latter experienced during the progress of the bill through the senate.

THE "GOLD-DUST TWINS."

Two new members in the senate are getting a large share of credit for securing a sane and constitutional measure through that body. These are Senators Knox, of Pennsylvania, and Crane, of Massachusetts. Mr. Knox has taken high place in the senate during his first term because of the reputation he had when he entered that body. His advice has been sought and his opinion respected far beyond that which is accorded to new members. He has made but one set speech, but his interruptions have been frequent and always on some vital point in the rate bill. Mr. Crane entered the same time that Mr. Knox did and brought with him the reputation of being a superb organizer.

When it seemed imperative that an amendment should be made to the rate bill to make it constitutional in the judgment of the majority of lawyers in the senate, Mr. Knox was given the task of convincing his colleagues that the amendment was necessary. To Mr. Crane was given the task of lining up the senators for this amendment. The two men worked together and were about the busiest members in that body. They are both small men physically, and as they were seen together so much they were dubbed by some of their colleagues the "Gold Dust Twins of the Senate."

Senator Knox's prominence in his first term and the high position that has been accorded him, has brought unusual honor to his state of Pennsylvania so that there is strong talk of making him governor of that state. He will not listen to such a suggestion, as he does not care for a busy political life, but many of his friends are urging him to accept a nomination, believing that he would give such an ideal administration as governor as to force him to the forefront as a presidential candidate in 1908. Secretary Shaw, of the treasury department, who is himself a candidate for the presidency, stated the other day that if Pennsylvania elected an exceptionally able man for governor this year that man would be a formidable dark horse in the presidential race.

EFFICACY PLUS PRAYER

Ethel, one of New Hampshire's seven-year-old daughters, is devoted to the birds. She was enraged at her older brother, whose keenest enjoyment seemed to be to trap them. She pleaded with him and scolded him, but all to no effect. So Ethel took a new tack.

When prayer time came the other evening her mother heard this final petition added to those which dealt directly with the spiritual and material welfare of the family: "An', dear God, please smash all Willie's nasty traps, for Jesus sake, amen."

"Ethel, dear," said mother, seriously, "do you really think that last is a nice thing to ask God to do? Do you expect Him to do such a thing as that?"

Ethel smiled beamingly, and answered: "Oh, that'll be all right, muzzer. Jes' before I comed upstairs I smashed 'em, all my own self."—Lippincott's.

PHYSIOLOGICAL FACT.

A person's eyes are out of line in two cases out of five, and one eye is stronger than the other in seven persons out of ten. The right is also, as a rule, higher than the left. Only one person in 15 has perfect eyes, the largest percentage of defects prevailing among fair-haired people. The smallest vibration of sound can be distinguished better with one ear than with both. The nails of two fingers never grow with the same rapidity, that of the middle finger growing the fastest, while that of the thumb grows slowest. In 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is shorter than the right.

His One Failing.

"There's one thing I don't like about Jones."

"What is it?"

"Why, the infernal, half-witted, illiterate slob is always calling somebody names."—Judge.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Eastern part of this county should send at least one delagate from each towship to that Convention at Red Lake Falls next Wednesday. It is usaly a thankless task to go as a delegate to one of these conventions and a bill of expense and loss of time to the ones that attend, but we hope to see a good representation from this end of the county preasent.

It seems to be a difficult task for some of the candidates for Republican nomination for governor to keep their hands off and not try to pack county conventions in their interest, but they understand that the people and party will not stand for that kind of work this year The candidate that makes any attempt to pack any convention will promtly be given his knock out drops and the party will pass over his carcass to nominate their candidate for governor and elect him in November.

The County Commissioners are to meet on the 11th of this month to act on the petition for the removel of the county seat from Red Lake Falls te Thief River Falls, and there has been a general invitation extended to all legal voters to come down andjoin a "rag chewing match". It is safe to say that there will not be a very big turn out by the farmers, but that they will let the City people make expenses, and they will help pay them.

Kindling the Fire.

If one insists on using kerosene as a fire kindler, better pour a pint or so into an old tin pail and stand as many corncobs in it as the pail will hold overnight. The cobs will be thoroughly saturated by morning and are not so dangerous to use.

Scratched Varnish.

When the varnished furniture becomes scratched the spots should be gone over with a camel's hair brush and shellac varnish until they disappear. Nothing should be allowed to touch the places until the application is thoroughly dry.

Lamp Wicks.

To insure a good light wicks must be changed often, as they soon become clogged and do not permit the free passage of the oil.

Soaking wicks in vinegar twenty-four hours before placing in lamp insures a clear flame.

Dandruff Remedy.

Forty-eight grains of resorcin, one-fourth of an ounce of glycerin, diluted alcohol to fill a two ounce bottle. Apply to the roots of the hair by means of a medicine dropper or a small brush, and rub in well with the finger tips.

To Clean Plush Frames.

When plush photograph frames become faded and spoiled they may be freshened up with salt. Sprinkle the salt thickly over the plush, rub well with a soft brush, let it stand for fifteen minutes and then brush off.

Hemming Tablecloths.

When hemming a new tablecloth if the edges are slightly dampened with warm water in which some soap has been dissolved they will be soft and much easier to work on when dry.

A Cooking Hint.

To have one's kitchen free from smoke or odor when frying griddle-cakes try adding one teaspoonful of melted lard to the batter and do not grease the griddle.

Sweeping.

"I was just telling my daughter," said Mrs. Naggers, "that it's a shame of her to play the piano on Sunday." "Huh!" exclaimed Mrs. Peppery. "Why Sunday especially?"

BOATS AND BOATS.

Rhoda, Minn.,
May, 28th., 1906.

To Whom It Concerns:

I am pleased to inform all the shareholders of the Red Lake River Transportation Company, and others interested, that I am now in correspondence with a Boat Compangy, that are ready and willing to build us a boat at once, and I will have on hand an estimate of what the boat will cost, and sketches of different designs to choose from, this I will have ready for cousiration at our next general meeting to be held at Kratka, June 9th., at 1 o'clock p. m. sharp. Therefore it would be well for all the sharedolders to be prepared with the required amount of money needed for the amount of shares subscribed, so that the money can be turned over to Treasurer, at this meeting. This will save a good deal of time, and expense in canvassing for the money lateron. Therefore, I earnestly request that all shareholders will promptly respond with their money, at this meeting. Have also made arrangements to have the By-Laws printed, and if nothing happens, we will have them ready for destribution at this meeting. We therefore, again urge and request that every shareholder be present, in order to see that judgement is used, and justice is done in the selection of a boat, so meet up and be a "comin" and strike while the iron is hot. Co-Operation, means business and success. Let every man living along the Red Lake River, and make it a point to be present at this meeting.

Yours Respectfully.
W. A. Swanson, Sec'y.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. 23, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H.E. No. 647, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication

Fist Pub. June 1st 1906.

Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May. 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of intention to make final proof on their respective claims before the register and receiver of the U.S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July. 20, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E. No. 933, Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906,

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H.E. No. 601 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S, Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th, 1906 viz:

Peter A. Kolstad,

H.E. No. 694 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rognes, and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Just Like Himself.

He—If I tried to kiss you would you call for help? She—Would you need it? —Smart Set.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 4th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Apr. 24th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on June 5th, 1906 viz:

Ingeborg J. Landsem

H.E. No. 910 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Twp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Johnsrud, Joseph Johnson, Nils Grue, all of Erie, Minnesota and Inga Boen, of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson, of Radell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May, 4th. 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. Apr. 24th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on June 5th. 1906. viz:

Knut O. Solheim

H.E. No. 792, Red Lake Series, for the E.½, S.W.¼, Lots 6, & 7, Sec. 6, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Haakon Trones, Ole Langle, Tollof Nestland and Sam Knutson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub May 4th 1906.

Depatment of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Apr. 30, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on June 21, 1906, viz

John Poloni,

HE. No. 553 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 2 4, S.W. ¼, N.W. ¼, Sec. 28, and Lots 11, 12, Sec. 29 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred Eve, William G. Hunt, Patrick Sullivan, Wallace Grace all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register,

Notice for Publication

First Pub. May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on June 21, 1906 viz:

Wallace Grace.

H.E. No. 1021 Red Lake Series for the N.E. ¼, Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz:

Alfred Eve, Patrick Sullivan, Andrew M. Johnson, William G. Hunt, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Publication May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on June 21, 1906, viz:

Hermen M.J. Lillo.

H. E. No. 583 Red Lake Series for the S.E.¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous reesidence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Nels Fore, Oscar Lillo, Ole Legreid, Knut Lindtvedt, all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 6th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H.E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Soren Hermanson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn.

—R. J. Montague, Register.

Eyeglasses and Romance.

It is curious to observe that even the greatest realists do not venture to bestow eyeglasses on their heroines. It is rather odd, too, seeing how many charming women do in real life wear them and are not debarred by them from the most dramatic careers and the most poignant emotions, but while the modern novelist has bestowed eyeglasses on everybody else he has not yet had the hardihood to put them on the nose of his heroine. Why?—Mrs. John Lane in London Outlook.

J. K. Wood,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May. 4, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. Apr. 25th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on June 4th, 1906 viz:

Ober S. Oberson

H.E. no. 923, Red Lake Series, for the Lot 10 Sec. 2, Lots 9, 10, N.E.¼ S.E.¼, Sec. 3, Lot 1, Sec. 11, Twp. 153, N. R. 40. W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ek Jarness, of Radny Minn., Dick Collestron, Ole Howard, of High Landing, Minn., and Oluf Ramstad, of Thief River Falls Minn

R.J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906 viz:

Harry G. Dobner.

H. E. No. 519 Red Lake Series, for the S.E.¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. George Tupper, of Brunkeberg Minn. Morgan Vaughan, of Germantown Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 3rd, 1906, viz:

Peter T. Quam.

H.E. No. 983 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 19 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Iver A. Tasa, Iver Johnson, of Radell Minn. Torger T. Torgerson, of Lillo Minn.,

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. Apr. 27 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 20th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on June 15, 1906 viz:

Knut Olson.

H.E. No. 1051, Red Lake Series, for the SE¼ Sec. 5 Tp. 152 N R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thor O. Moen, Oscar Nestland, Charles Swanson, William A. Swanson, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 4th. 1906.

Department of the Interior.- Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 25th 1906.

Notice is hereby given, that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on June 20th 1906, viz:

Christopher Larson.

H.E. No. 1134 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hansen, Andrew J. Anderson, Carl J. Anderson all of Erie Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906. viz:

George Tupper.

H.E. No. 768 Red Lake Series, for the N. E.¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. Charles Newberry, Harry Dobner, Cordilos Douglas of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnsota on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

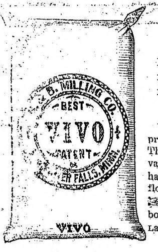
Thomas A. Tasa.

H.E. No. 985 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Iver A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Radell Minn. Torger Elton of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.



VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

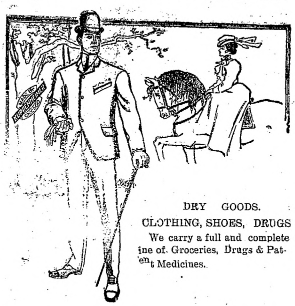
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——

J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.
PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.
John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.
A full and complete line of groceries.
Best brands of flour, at lowest market price.
.... .00............
Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radueskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster. Sec. 20 T. 153 R. 40.

* * * * *

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Man wanted for grubbing, inquire at this office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Get your seed at Rhoda, all kinds of garden seed on hand.

Come and see us when yor are ready to prove up on your land.

Hans Hommy of Erie is taking in the sights at Thief River Falls this week.

Stephen Singer the Rhoda hustler was transacting business here Tuesday.

Jerry O'Brien is helping Walt McAndrees this week, breaking and seeding flax.

Miss Mary Rustad was a passenger on the Flyer Tuesday en rout to Thief River Falls.

Bring your wool to the Singer store and they will pay you the highest market price for it.

Singer Bros, shipped their first lot of cream to Thief River Falls Tuesday, by the Flyer boat.

Henry Peterson has hired out to Singer Bros. as the regular toter for their store goods from here to Rhoda.

Elmer Eve returned from his Thief River Falls visit, Monday, and is again at the Devil business at this office.

Oluf Snoback is down at his old home in Eden township this week after some more parts to his ditching machine.

Even J. Sund, has stopped working for others and will get 5 acres ready for breaking on his own land this season.

Mrs. Oluf Snoback made a trip to Thief River Falls last week to consult a physician about some stomach trouble.

Tuesdays night heavy rain storm has again flooded the country, and placed the roads in nearly an impassiable condition.

Our carpenters were compelled to stop work Wednesday until the arrival of the Dan Patch boat with an other supply of lumber

Rev. E.A. Mostue preached in the English and Norwegin language at the Rhoda school house on last Sunday, to a fair sized congregation.

P. Sullivan is breaking on the Wallace Grace farm this week, and will seed it to flax so Grace will have his first crop in the 11 towns this season.

P.R. Rustad, of this township was a passenger down the river on Wednesdays Flyer, on his way to Grand Forks to consult Dr. Engstad about his health.

Farmers, who are going to do fencing this spring should call on E. B. Laneger, at Plummer Pioneer Hardware Store, for all kinds of fencing. Will make prices right.

Tom Sullivan and his daughter, Josie returned from Dakota Tuesday. Mr. Sullivan was delayed about three weeks by the serious illness of his wife who is being treated for an absess on her side by a specialist.

Captain Haney of the Dan Patch, had the pleasure of bringing a newly married couple up the river to their new home in the town of Kratka, on Tuesday last. Mr. and Mrs Chris Weme having returned home after their marriage by that rout. It was not much of a pleasure trip, as Tuesdays storm compelled Mr. Haney to tie up the boat for the night at Nelsons landing. The fair bride made no complaint over the unfavorable weather and the party arrived home Wednesday morning safe and sound, for although the "Dan" is not a wedding excursion boat, it is a safe boat to start out over lifes matrimonial sea in.

Thomas Jacobson went down to Thief River Falls in a row boat Sunday afternoon.

Smea Peterson of Highlanding seems to be a very busy man now days doctoring plow lays, coulters, and grub hoes.

Mrs Walt McAndrees visited with friends and relatives at St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. Returning home Monday on the Red Lake Flyer.

If the cream shipping proves to be a success there will certainly be a big increase in the recieps of the Thief River Falls creamery, as there is a large number of cows along this river that have plenty to eat and should dish up a big supply of cream.

JULY 4th,

There will be a Celebration held at Sunbeam Landing on July 4th, and prepnations are being made to have a pleasant and sociable gathering of the new settlers on the 11 towns, who do not feel able to go long distances to celebrate the ever Glourious 4th.

Arrangements have been made to have gasoline excursion boats run every hour from here to Priest Point on July 4th. so any one enjoying a boat ride on the river can have plenty of that kind of pleasure.

A large bowery will be built and a grand bowery dance will be had during the afternoon and evening.

A good program is being prepared for the forenoon, reading of Declaration of Independance and oration.

A splendid program of sports will be prepared for the afternoon entertainment announcement of which will be made later.

TO THE LEGAL VOTERS OF THE COUNTY OF RED LAKE, STATE OF MINNESOTA,

Notice is hereby given, that a meeting of the Board of County Commissioners of the of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, will be held at the Court house in the City of Red Lake Falls in said county, on the 11th day of June, A.D 1906, at 1 o,clock in the afternoon of said day to consider and act upon a petition now on file in the office of the Auditor of said County, signed by 2,006 of the legal voters of said County, praying that the County seat of said County be changed from the city of Red Lake Falls to the City of Thief River Falls in said County, at which time and place any legal voter of said County may appear in person or by counsel and be heard.

This meeting is called pursuant to an order and judgment of the District Court in and for the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, Minn., By Daniel Shaw Chairman

CREAM WANTED.

We are now prepared to buy all your cream delivered at our store at the higest market price. Cream tested and weighed here, and you can also get your pay for it each week if desired. Give it a trial and we will assure you a fair treatment.

Singer Bros.,
Rhoda, Minn.,

WANTED: Men in each state to travel, post signs, advertise and leave samples of our goods. Salery $75,00 per month. $3,00 per day for expences.

Kuhlman Company.—Dept. S.
Atlas Block, Chicago

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Simple Way of Filling Pillows Without Loss of Feathers.

Select the pillows that are to be opened and with a large needle and coarse linen thread baste about one inch from the end of a pillow, commencing at the edge. Gradually slant to the required distance. Then slant out again at the other end, so that when the seam is opened your feathers are all still in the pillow. After ripping as far as the bastings go sew the opening of the other in like manner. Rip the second one the same as the first. Now pull out the bastings of both pillows, which releases the feathers, then work the feathers from one end into the other by pushing them through from the outside.

When all are transferred replace the basting in the pillow containing the feathers. Then separate them. Now you have your pillow filled and no feathers lost. Turn the edges in and sew up by over and over hand stitch, or run the end across by machine, and there you are. Pull out the basting.

Blanching Nuts.

The blanching of nuts is a process often thought difficult because not understood. The nuts should be covered with boiling water and should be allowed to stand for ten minutes, where they will keep hot, but not cook. Then drain them, plunge them into cold water and chill them. A knife must be used with English walnuts because of their serrated surface. Pistachio nuts are hard to blanch, and the water in which they soak needs to actually boil while they are in it, although they must not cook.

A Toilet Vinegar.

When the first warm weather gives the skin that disagreeably oily look a milk vinegar diluted with a little water and applied night and morning is efficacious.

Take of alcohol fifteen grams, tincture of benzoin fifteen grams and strong white vinegar fifteen grams. Mix and let stand for a week, then press through filtering paper.

Care of Linen.

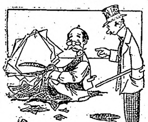
The preservation of linen depends largely on the care taken in washing as well as in the mending of each article in daily use as soon as a worn piece makes its appearance.

In warm, sunny weather the linen cupboard or drawers should be emptied and their contents exposed occasionally to the influence of the air and sun.

Soiled Photographs.

Photographs that have become soiled or that are mounted on cards the edges of which are broken may be soaked off by placing them in water. This cleans them, but does not injure them in the least, and after drying thoroughly between blotters they may be mounted again on new cards.

He Was Not to Blame.



"Are my clothes ready?"

"Not yet."

"But you said you would finish them if you worked all night."

"I know, but I didn't work all night."

A Remarkable Bridge.

Among the many odd nooks and corners and crannies of the auld Emerald Isle is Carrick-a-rede, on the Great Northern railroad of Ireland. It is an isolated rock, separated from the mainland by a chasm sixty feet wide and more than eighty feet deep, and it is at this place that the salmon are intercepted in their retreat to the rivers. A rude bridge of ropes is thrown across which remains during the fishing season, and this bridge, which is protected by a single rope rail, swings about in the most uncomfortable manner, often rendering it a dangerous feat in stormy weather save to the natives, who cross it with the utmost indifference. The name is derived from "Carrig-a-rambadh" (the rock in the road) on account of the intercepting of the salmon. Near by on the west side of the island is a cavern in which have been found the bones of horse, ox, deer, sheep, goat, badger, otter, water rat and of several kinds of birds.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Dobson—What became of that man who had twenty-seven medals for saving people from drowning? Dock Worker—He fell in one day when he had them all on, and the weight of 'em sunk him.

Only an Episode.

Mary—Uncle Ned, what's a honeymoon? Bachelor Uncle—The time between the marriage and the divorce.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, 8.30 a. m. on Tuesday Thurday and Saturday, and also arrives at 3 p. m. on the same day.

Notice for Publication

First Publication June 1st 1906.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1906 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E.no. 324 Red Lake Series, for the S.E.¼ Sec. 13 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Oresen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hunstad, of Kuchnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before he register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July 20th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E.no. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn. William.G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 4th, 1906

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. Apr. 28 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on June 20th 1906 viz;

Andrew J. Anderson.

H,E. No. 1130 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 153 N. R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hanson, Carl J. Anderson, Christopher Larson, all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bennie P. Rustad,

H,E. No. 901, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole G. Skieland, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th., 1906, viz:

Ole O. Stromme.

H,E. No. 521, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Tp. 154 N. R 40 W

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Albert Arntz, Anton Raker, of Brunkeberg, Minn. Morgan Vaugen, Peter Braemmann, of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May, 21st. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906, viz:

Albert Arntz.

H.E. No. 528, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Ole P. Stromme, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn., and Morgan Vaughan, and Peter Rrachmann, of Germantown, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

Just Help Himself.

He—If I tried to kiss you would you call for help? She—Would you need it?—Smart Set.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.
Dealers,
In Groceries, flour,
FEED & DRY GOODS
We also carry A FULL LINE OF
BOOTS, & SHOES, DRUGS, ETC. HARD AND TINWARE.
Highest market price
PAID FOR YOUR
BUTTER & Eggs.
Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

Why Pay Cash
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $[illegible].00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES [illegible]
STOVES and RANGES [illegible]
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE
Of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES,
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE
FURNITURE From $6.25 up.
We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to [illegible] people in all parts of the [illegible] other manufacturer will let [illegible] goods for years while slowly [illegible] for them.
[illegible] for Information and Free Catalogue
THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories
51-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., [illegible]

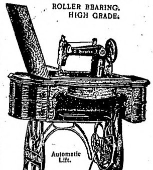
Liquid Metal Polish.

Take eight ounces of Spanish whiting, which must be perfectly free from grit, and put in one quart of gasoline. Shake up the whiting and gasoline thoroughly. You will notice the whiting settles immediately, leaving the liquid as clear as water. To remedy this and, further, to make it a better polishing agent, add to each quart of the mixture thirty-two drops of oleic acid—no more, no less. Shake again, and the whiting will not settle. Apply to gold, silver, nickel, brass, glass or any kind of metallic surface with a piece of cotton flannel, rubbing well. Polish with a piece of same cloth.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Waterproofing Dress Goods.

One of the most important processes used for waterproofing dress materials is on the lines of the old alumina process. In this case the factor used is rosin dissolved in a large bulk of petroleum spirit. The fabrics to be proofed are passed through a bath of this solution and dried to drive off the solvent. Following this, the goods are treated by pressing with hot polished metal rollers. This last process melts the small quantity of rosin which is deposited on the cloth and leaves each single fiber with an exceedingly thin film of rosin on it.

The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Charity.

She—I'm glad we went. It was an excellent performance—and for such a charitable purpose. Her Husband—Yes, indeed! We all feel a thrill of satisfaction when we do something for charity and get the worth of our money at the same time.—London Tit-Bits.

Hitched.

Bills—You made a funny break in congratulating the bride's father instead of the groom. Wills—No, I didn't. I've a daughter, too, and I know what they cost.—Chicago Journal.

IN CONSTANT AGONY.

A West Virginian's Awful Distress Through Kidney Troubles.

W. L. Jackson, merchant, of Parkersburg, W. Va., says: "Driving about in bad weather brought kidney troubles on me, and I suffered twenty years with sharp, cramping pains in the back and urinary disorders. I often had to get up a dozen times at night to urinate. Retention set in, and I was obliged to use the catheter. I took to my bed, and the doctors failing to help, began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The urine soon came freely again, and the pain gradually disappeared. I have been cured eight years, and though over 70, am as active as a boy."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

ALMOST A CATASTROPHE.

Exuberance of Love Spasmodically Manifested Results in Mortification.

She was seated in the gloaming, a happy smile on her pretty, pensive face, when her elderly aunt entered. Then, as she looked upon the kind old face, a feeling rushed upon her that she must share her wonderful news with somebody—she must let someone into the secret which till then had been the sole possession of herself and Harold. She sprang up and flung her arms about her aunt's neck.

"Oh, auntie," she cried impulsively, "you do love me, don't you? Kiss me, auntie, and tell me you do—kiss me!"

But only an alarming gurgle came from the old lady for a moment. Then she said, gasping indignantly:

"Kiss you, if you ain't careful I'll shake the life out of you. You very nearly made me swallow my teeth!"

He Didn't Rise.

"Indeed," the lecturer went on in a quizzical way, "I believe I am justified in asserting that nine women out of 10 practically propose to the men they become engaged to. As a test, I would ask all married men in the audience whose wives virtually popped the question to them to arise."

There was a subdued rustle in the auditorium, and in the dense silence that ensued could be heard sibilant feminine whispers in concert, "Just you dare to stand up."—Judge.

Bum Restaurant.

"Paw, what's that orchestra playing here for?"

"Money, Tommy. They couldn't possibly be playing for the kind of meal they would get here."—Chicago Tribune.

Generates Electricity in the Human Body.

Rubbing a piece of amber with a woolen rag generates electricity proven by the fact that it will pick up pieces of paper and cotton fibre.

The same thing can be done with a rubber comb and a few other mineral or vegetable substances.

Max R. Zaegel, Ph. G.

It has been the aim of scientists for years to find some liquid preparation which, when applied to the human body, would penetrate first through the skin, then through the muscles and finally to the very bone.

Electricity to be subsequently generated through friction with the hands, it being a well recognized fact that electricity so generated and applied, would strengthen the nerves, remove inflammation and ease all pain.

Max R. Zaegel, a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, established as a chemist in Sheboygan, Wis., for the last 23 years, has discovered this long sought secret.

It consists of a mixture of vegetable and mineral oils forming an amber colored liquid of pleasant odor and taste which, when used as directed, restores vitality and strength and gives prompt relief to all pain.

Applied to cuts, sores, burns and bruises it heals, owing to the fact that no pus or matter can form in any wound where this electric oil is used.

If you have rheumatism, piles, pain in back or catarrh, write Mr. Zaegel and he will be pleased to mail you a sample bottle of this wonderful electric oil free.

State the nature of your complaint and address your letter to Max R. Zaegel, 170 Main St., Sheboygan, Wis.

It is free now, so do not fail to write to-day.

The Marriage of Muggsy

By W. H. ALBURN

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

So it happened that Muggsy and Mary Ann the waitress became engaged. Muggsy was to borrow some money from a friend, and get a job, and be married.

Now, it is hard for a burglarious loafer to get a job. It is harder still for him to borrow money. But after five days of tramping the streets and visiting mills and factories, and striking old friends intermittently for pecuniary aid, he obtained the promise of work in a foundry, to begin the following Monday, and a former "pal" lent him $10 to begin housekeeping with. So he was to be married on Sunday.

It was Saturday night, and Mary Ann's fiance was strolling through the streets, restless and happy. To-morrow he would be married. It seemed impossible, and yet there could be no doubt of it.

Muggsy found himself staring vacantly into a shop window. The shop was closed, for it was late; and the lights in the windows were dim. There were three gilded balls over the door.

Then Muggsy's gaze fell upon a tray of rings in the window, and he started. The awful truth flashed upon him. When people get married they use wedding rings! And he had forgotten the ring.

There was an old shoe lying in the street. In a moment he had seized the shoe, rested it on the glass above the crack, inserted his left elbow in the shoe, closed his fist and struck it a powerful blow with his right hand.

He took only one ring; once he would have taken the whole tray. He was triumphant, but he was in danger. He ran quickly down the street to a passageway he knew of, leading to an alley and thence to another street, where he would be safe.

But suddenly a blue uniform loomed up, and an excited voice ordered the fugitive to stop. A pistol shot added force to the command. Muggsy was frightened: He darted into the passageway, the patrolman after him in full chase. A fence had been built there since last he came that way, and he was cornered.

Muggsy was a man of peace. The game was up, and he surrendered. When the turnkey searched him at the police station he still had the ring. It went into an envelope marked "Exhibit A."

There was a big docket in police court on Monday morning. An endless line of "drunks" shuffled out of the reeking "bull pen" and stood, nervously expectant, before the bench where the magnanimous Judge O'Rourke dispensed fines and imprisonment for the protection of society.

"Well, well!" ejaculated his honor, with a broad grin. "Not very cheerful this morning, Muggsy. What is it now, Mooney?"

"Burglary and larceny, your honor—at 'is old tricks—smashed a jewelry window an' copped a ring—a weddin' ring, too." The court officer smiled indulgently and the prosecuting attorney inspected the ring, while the clerk read the affidavit, and the spectators craned forward with interest—for the prisoner had many acquaintances present.

The proof was too easy. The prosecutor yawned, and held up the ring for the inspection of the court.

"Why didn't you take the rest?" he asked. "This ain't worth much, and there was a whole trayful."

"I didn't need any more," muttered Muggsy.

"Didn't need any more?" repeated the prosecutor, while the court attaches and police reporters showed signs of interest. "Then you confess to the theft?" he shrewdly added.

"Naw, I don't confess not'in'."

"Needed a wedding ring, did you, Muggsy?" queried his honor, with a smile that lit up the court-room.

"That reminds me," remarked Lieut. O'Hara. "We found a marriage license in his clothes—Exhibit B over there. It's got his name on, too, only he says it's for a cousin as has the same name as he has, an' was to be married yesterday. I wonder—" and while he was wondering, a light suffused his massive face.

Meanwhile a reporter was inspecting the marriage license. He was a tall, lean scribe, with a lazy, far-away look, and wore an eternal stogie in his mouth. He leaned over to the judge.

"The girl's name is Mary Ann Evans," he said. "Maybe she's here. She'd make a good witness."

Now, his honor had great respect for this particular reporter. Besides, he was under obligation to him for certain unnamed favors.

"Have you any witnesses?" he asked the prisoner.

"Me? Naw."

The judge handed the license to the court officer.

"Is Mary Ann Evans here present?" roared Mooney.

Muggsy jerked himself erect, his square jaw set, his eyes flashing, and his fists clenched.

"Stop, that, Mr. Officer!" he cried.

Mooney started back, and the courtroom stared in astonished silence.

"I don't want that there name mentioned in this d—d p'lice court!" the prisoner gasped.

The judge's bland smile had congealed. The reporter critically poised his stogie and emitted a low, thoughtful whistle.

Then the spell was broken by a commotion beyond the railing among the spectators, and a little figure with carroty hair and freckled face almost hidden beneath a faded shawl darted past the officer at the gate and stepped to the judge's bench. A young lad about to follow her was denied admittance.

Muggsy was abashed. His figure slumped back to its normal posture, and again he gazed at the floor.

"P-please, sir, I'm here," faltered the figure under the shawl, while a pair of greenish-yellow eyes roved back and forth between judge and prisoner.

"Are you Mary Ann Evans?" asked his honor.

"Y-yes, sir. An' I came here this mornin' because Jimmy—that's my brother—seen in the paper that Muggsy was arrested, an' he said they'd try him this mornin.' An' I thought mebbe I could—do sumpin'—fer 'im." Further elucidation was interrupted by the necessity for stopping a flow of tears with one corner of her shawl.

"Is it this man, or his cousin, that you were going to marry?" asked the judge.

Mary Ann checked an impulse to answer, and looked to the prisoner for guidance. Muggsy's eyes slowly rose from the floor, met hers, and read their honest appeal. That look shamed the duplicity out of him. He stepped nearer the judge, while the little group narrowed around the affianced pair, and he addressed the judge in a voice firm, but low, so that the curiosity-mongers beyond the railing might not hear.

"I'll tell ye the truth, yer honor," he said, "an' it'll be the first time I ever told it to ye. I lied w'en I said the license was fer me cousin, an' I lied about breakin' the windy by accident. This little girl had promised to marry me, yer honor, an' the weddin' was to 'a' been yesterday. An' w'en I happened to think how I didn't have no ring, an' how I needed one, and didn't have no money to buy one, nor not'in', w'y I don't know how it was, yer honor, but I just couldn't help fergittin' I'd reformed, an' gittin' a ring the best way I could. An' now I s'pose I got to go to the Works again, an' I don't care much, fer I don't s'pose Mary Ann'll have anything to do with me now—fer she's a decent, respectable girl, yer honor, an' not like me. Only, I don't know what she'll do, on account of bein' out of a job, an' nobody to take care of her. But it's all up now, an' you might as well give me the sentence right away, yer honor; fer there can't be no weddin', an' my job's lost, an' it's no use, I guess, tryin' to be decent."

"What job's that?" asked the prosecutor. The suggestion of Muggsy at work, following close upon the revelation of Muggsy in love, staggered him.

Thereupon the prisoner filled in the details of the story. His narrative was supplemented by the testimony of a policeman who recognized Mary Ann and had known her father.

"Are you still willing to marry him?" asked the judge, curiously.

"Why, of course!" and Mary Ann stared at him in surprise. "I know he'll never do such a thing again. An' I guess I can git along somehow till he gits out, an' gits another job."

"Well, in view of the circumstances, I won't make it so long as I otherwise would," began the judge, as he resumed his judicial air. "It will be—"

But the reportorial face had suddenly approached his honor's ear, and there was a quiet little conference, in which the prosecutor presently joined.

"It will be—ahem!"—resumed his honor, when the heads separated—"three months and costs." He paused, impressively. "And, in view of certain extenuating circumstances—the workhouse sentence is suspended during good behavior, and the fine to be paid at the convenience of the prisoner."

Muggsy stared stupidly.

"Go on!" said Mooney, nudging him good-naturedly. "No, not that way," as the prisoner started back toward the "bull pen." "Out here, with your girl. You're free, as long as you behave yourself. See?"

Muggsy saw, and with a radiant smile overspread his ugly face as he grasped Mary Ann's hand, and they turned away, too happy for speech.

"Wait a minute," whispered the tall reporter. "Your job?"

The smile faded.

"It was mighty hard to git, and now I've lost it," Muggsy faltered. "I was to report fer work this mornin'."

"Won't you sign this, judge?" asked the scribe.

His honor took from him the sheet of official court paper and read:

Foreman of the —— Foundry: The presence of Mr. Maguire has been required at an important trial this morning. He informs me that as a result of rendering the court this service he may lose the employment you have promised him. Allow me to request that his enforced absence may not deprive a deserving man of the means of earning a livelihood for himself and family.

The genial smile broke out again, and the judge signed the letter. When he handed it to Muggsy there was a bank note folded in it.

"You can pay this back some time, if you feel like it," he said. "Now, get married; and then report for work, and give the boss this paper. It'll be all right. Mr. Jones!"

An old colored minister, who haunted the police courts and rescued the black sheep of his flock from frequent trouble, arose and bowed with rheumatic dignity.

"Take this couple into my private office and tie them up," ordered the judge.

The bridal pair followed the aged pastor from the courtroom amid a roar of applause, and the court officer called the next case.

NEWS OF MINNESOTA.

Cream Inspection.

Minneapolis.—Systematic inspection of cream shipped into the Twin Cities and other central points has been started by the state dairy and food department. Commissioner E. K. Slater has detailed Inspector H. J. Credicott to the work.

The inspection is another step in the general movement for the improvement of the quality of Minnesota butter. Competition in the past prevented the creameries from refusing bad cream, which has been instrumental in keeping the quality down. When a cream buyer received a can of cream which he knew would be injurious to the quality of his butter he could not refuse it for fear of losing trade to some other house. The farmers' creameries were up against it almost as bad, for if they refused to buy from dairymen who had bad cream or milk they would at once quit selling to that creamery and ship to the central plants. When the farmer was paid as much for dirty cream as for the clean and pure product, there was not much incentive to improvement.

Kings at the Fair.

Hamline.—The 'King of the Pacers' and the "King of Trotters," the two fastest stallions of their respective classes in the world—Dan Patch and Cresceus—are to appear together on Monday, Sept. 3, the opening day of the next Minnesota State Fair.

Papers were signed recently by M. W. Savage, owner of the two great horses, and C. M. Griggs and E. W. Randall on behalf of the Minnesota State Agricultural society, which assure this event for the fair. Negotiations had been going on for some time; their satisfactory conclusion makes certain a track event which has never been equalled at any time or place in the world. Either one of these great horses alone would suffice to create unbounded interest; both together will be a sight which few people will see in a lifetime.

A total of $65,644.50 is offered this year in premiums and purses by the Minnesota State Agricultural Society. This is the largest amount hung up by any state fair in the country.

Child Labor.

Winona, Minn.—Unless there is a marked decrease in the employment of child labor in the factories of Winona when Deputy Labor Commissioner F. E. Hoffmann calls here next fall there will be some pretty stiff prosecutions. When he was here about a year ago, although it was in vacation, he found hardly a child under age employed in Winona. On the inspection which he completed today he found thirteen in one place, nine in another and different numbers in various other places. No arrests were made this time, but a definite warning was given and promises made that all children under age would be discharged. Mr. Hoffmann says he will prosecute every violator of the law he finds on his next visit. In all other respects he is able to make a very favorable report on the factory conditions in Winona.

Count Completed.

St. Paul.—The first accurate figures on the number of men Minnesota contributed to the Civil war were completed by C. J. Humason, record clerk in the adjutant general's department. He gives the number as 22,018, which is about 2,000 less than the figures that have been published heretofore. In going through the records he found many that were enlisted in more than one company and thus duplicated. The former editions of "Minnesota in the Civil and Indian Wars" gave about 23,000. This number he has reduced to 21,198, but to this he has added 820 names which have heretofore never been published in the records.

New Equipment.

St. Paul.—New equipment worth $50,000 has been secured for one of the two Minnesota national guard batteries by Adjt. Gen. F. B. Wood from the department at Washington. Whether Battery A at St. Paul or Battery B at Minneapolis will get the new guns will depend upon which makes the best showing on inspection. In either case both will benefit, as the one that gets the new equipment will turn over most of its present equipment to the other battery. Gen. Wood tried to secure a new battery for each of them, but he could secure only one, with a promise that the other would be given in a few months.

News Notes.

St. Peter.—A site has been selected for the new nurses' dormitory, which will be erected this summer on the grounds of the St. Peter state hospital for the insane.

Washington.—Levi J. Clayton was appointed postmaster at Hatfield, Pipestone county, vice J. H. Weiner, resigned.

St. Peter.—Andrew Carnegie promises a liberal donation to Gustavus Adolphus college.

White Bear.—The Yacht club's regatta committee announces the racing schedule for the season.

Duluth.—The Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road has a crew of surveyors running a line from Virginia, the present southern terminal of the road, to Duluth. The surveyors have reached Duluth and entered the city in the vicinity of Lincoln Park in the West end.

Detroit.—Ole C. Larson, the incumbent, Charles S. Palmer of Evergreen and Pat O'Neill of Burlington have filed for the republican nomination for sheriff.

Minneapolis.—More than 1,700 pupils will be graduated from the high and grade schools of Minneapolis next June.

Minneapolis.—Eben S. Martin was awarded a verdict of $15,000 as damages for injuries to mind and body sustained in the St. Paul wreck of Chicago Great Western and Soo trains last October.

Mankato.—Two Madison Lake fishermen paid fines for catching more than twenty-five crappies each yesterday, that being the limit of certain game fish in one day's angling. Their joint catch was fifty-two, or two more than the law allows.

NO KOWTOWING FOR HIM.

Hotel Man Who Was Not to Be Overawed by Dignitaries of State.

They tell this one on former Gov. George Hoadly of Ohio:

Once upon a time, in the midst of a campaign, Mr. Hoadly was to deliver a speech at a little town in the great and glorious Buckeye State. When he reached the one hotel the town boasted he walked up to the register and wrote his name. The proprietor-head-porter-steward-headwaiter-depot-runner was behind the desk in his shirt sleeves, his hat on the back of his head, and a cigar stump held between his teeth. When the visitor had put down his John Hancock, the factotum turned the register around, read without the flicker of an eyelid the name there written, wrote "10" beside it with a lead pencil, and said:

"You kin jest take yer grip right up that stairway there an' back down the hall clean to th' end. Yer room's right on th' left hand side of th' hall, in th' corner—number 10."

With considerable astonishment and not a little injured dignity Ohio's chief executive pointed to his name, smiled faintly, and said:

"I am George Hoadly."

"Yep; I notice," said the rustic without turning a hair. "An' yer room's right there at th' end of th' hall—number 10. Can't miss it."

With more hauteur, and almost quivering with outraged importance, the guest said impressively:

"I am George Hoadly, governor of the state of Ohio!"

Turning, then, with a look of exasperated impatience on his face, the hotel man exclaimed:

"Well, what d'ye expect me t' do—kiss ye?"—Judge.

TORTURED WITH ECZEMA.

Tremendous Itching Over Whole Body—Scratched Until Bled—Wonderful Cure by Cuticura.

"Last year I suffered with a tremendous itching on my back, which grew worse and worse, until it spread over the whole body, and only my face and hands were free. For four months or so I suffered torments, and I had to scratch, scratch, scratch, until I bled. At night when I went to bed things got worse, and I had at times to get up and scratch my body all over, until I was as sore as could be, and until I suffered excruciating pains. They told me that I was suffering from eczema. Then I made up my mind that I would use the Cuticura Remedies. I used them according to instructions, and very soon indeed I was greatly relieved. I continued until well, and now I am ready to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one. Mrs. Mary Metzger, Sweetwater, Okla., June 28, 1905."

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE.

There are ladies' smoking cars on English railways.

Alligator, a popular native dish in India, tastes like veal.

The wood used in the best pianos has been seasoned 40 years.

Those who reach 30 in good health are likely, statistics show, to last to 73.

Over 200,000 pounds of human hair, valued at $500,000, is sold annually in Paris.

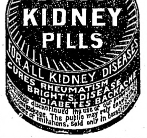
The majority of criminals can draw and paint. That is why artists can rarely get credit.

In many parts of Switzerland the government buries the dead, supplying coffins and undertaker free of cost.

Her Legal Status.

The Dominine—Are you your mother's little darling?

Baby Ethel—Only half the time. You see the court decided that papa was to have me for six months every year.—The Wasp.



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.

MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 300 14th St., Washington, D. C.
Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

PENSIONS

PATENTS 48-page book FREE, highest references.

FITZGERALD & CO., Box K, Washington, D. C.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

A WOMAN'S ORDEAL

DREADS DOCTOR'S QUESTIONS

Thousands Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and Receive Valuable Advice Absolutely Confidential and Free

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions in regard to her private ills, even when those questions are asked by her family physician, and many continue to suffer rather than submit to examinations which so many physicians propose in order to intelligently treat the disease; and this is the reason why so many physicians fail to cure female disease.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen

This is also the reason why thousands upon thousands of women are corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can confide every detail of their illness, and from her great knowledge, obtained from years of experience in treating female ills, Mrs. Pinkham can advise sick women more wisely than the local physician.

Read how Mrs. Pinkham helped Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Ia. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude in words. Before I wrote to you telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady, and spent lots of money in medicines besides, but it all failed to do me any good. I had female trouble and would daily have fainting spells, backache, bearing-down pains, and my monthly periods were very irregular and finally ceased. I wrote to you for your advice and received a letter full of instructions just what to do, and also commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I have been restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day."

Mountains of proof establish the fact that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for restoring women's health.

MKT

Travel Right to Oklahoma

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas R'y has recently inaugurated additional daily train for Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Cleveland, Bartlesville, Coffeyville, etc. With this added service the M. K. & T. R'y is the logical line between St. Louis and Kansas City and all principal points in Oklahoma.

Change of cars is one of the greatest inconveniences of travel. You don't have to change cars if you travel via the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway. Through trains (over its own rails) run between St. Louis and Kansas City and Oklahoma City, Dallas, Ft. Worth, San Antonio and Galveston. All through trains have Chair Cars and Pullman Sleepers.

How to Go

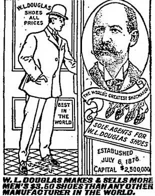
When you have occasion to travel, use the same discrimination in buying a ticket that you would in buying anything else. Assure yourself in advance of what you may expect in the way of comfort and convenience en route. If there is any information you want about a prospective trip, write me. I will gladly give you the information. Address

W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger Agent, M. K. & T. R'y
St. Louis, Missouri
W. P. LINDSAY.
376 Robert Street, St. Paul, Minn.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$3.50 & $3.00 SHOES FOR MEN

W. L. Douglas $4.00 Gilt Edge Line cannot be equalled at any price.



W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES ALL PRICES
BEST IN THE WORLD
THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOEMAKER
SOLE AGENTS FOR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES
ESTABLISHED JULY 6, 1876
CAPITAL $2,500,000

W. L. DOUGLAS MAKES & SELLS MORE MEN'S $3.50 SHOES THAN ANY OTHER MANUFACTURER IN THE WORLD.

$10,000 REWARD to anyone who can disprove this statement.

If I could take you into my three large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you the infinite care with which every pair of shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe.

W. L. Douglas Strong Made Shoes for Men, $2.50, $2.00. Boys' School & Dress Shoes, $2.50, $2, $1.75, $1.50

CAUTION.—Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes. Take no substitute. None genuine without his name and price stamped on bottom. Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy. Write for Illustrated Catalog.

W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

A. N. K.—G (1906—22) 2128.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1906. NO. 10.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

1906			JUNE			1906
SUN.	MON.	TUE.	WED.	THU.	FRI.	SAT.
○	☾	●	☽		1	2
3	4	5	6	7	8	9
10	11	12	13	14	15	16
17	18	19	20	21	22	23
24	25	26	27	28	29	30

A WEEK'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

RECORD OF MOST INTERESTING EVENTS TOLD IN BRIEFEST MANNER POSSIBLE.

HOME AND FOREIGN ITEMS

Information Gathered from All Quarters of the Civilized World and Prepared for the Perusal of the Busy Man.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

That Reed Smoot is not entitled to his seat in the United States senate as a senator from Utah was the decision of the senate committee on privileges and elections, declared by a vote of 7 to 5.

Negotiations looking toward a compromise on the meat inspection bill were knocked sky high at a conference at the White House between President Roosevelt and his close advisers on the measure. The administration will insist on the Beveridge bill, or a measure containing all its essential features.

The sundry civil appropriation bill is the largest sundry civil bill ever reported, carrying $94,346,573, of which $25,460,991 is for work on the Panama canal. The amount carried is $11,070,003, less than the estimates from the various departments. The canal appropriation is to be reimbursed to the treasury from the proceeds of the sale of canal bonds, whcih have been authorized to the aggregate amount of $130,000,000.

Representative Sulzer, of New York, introduced a resolution calling upon the president, "if not incompatible with the public interest," to send to the house at his earliest convenience the reports of Charles P. Neill and James B. Reynolds "in connection with their investigation of the meat 'trust,' the stockyards and the meat packing houses of Chicago, and other places.

Chairman Dolliver, of the senate committee on education and labor will report favorably a bill authorizing the secretary of commerce and labor to report upon the industrial, social, moral, educational and physical condition of women and child workers.

The senate committee on education and labor considered Senator La Follette's bill to limit the hours of service of railroad employes. It limits continuous employment to 16 hours, except in cases where casualties compel trainmen to remain longer on duty.

Senator Daniel reported from the senate committee on industrial expositions his bill appropriating $375,000 for the Jamestown tercentennial exposition to be held on the shores of Hampton Roads.

President Roosevelt decided to make public the report of Prof. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, and James B. Reynolds, of New York, concerning the conditions of the meat packing establishments as they found them on an inquiry instituted by the president, primarily for his own information.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The shooting of an American by a Mexican policeman precipitated a race war at the mines of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company in Mexico which resulted in the killing of 45 men. The extermination of the American miners is the avowed object of the Mexicans, who precipitated the trouble under the guise of a strike for higher wages.

Representative Robert Adams, of Philadelphia, commits suicide at Washington because of financial troubles.

Gov. Pardee, of California, has issued a proclamation convening a special session of the state legislature to assemble Saturday next.

At the annual meeting of the Kansas City live stock exchange a resolution was adopted advocating "a reasonable and practicable inspection of packing house products," and that the packers should not be required to pay for such inspection.

At Louisberg, Cape Breton, three men were drowned in the wreck of the schooner Thetis.

Rumors of a meeting of Emperor William of Germany and King Haakon of Norway at Christiania after the coronation of the latter next month are without foundation.

A fire at South Boston, Va., entailed a loss estimated between $250,000 and $300,000. A lighted cigarette or match thrown into a stabble started the fire.

An accident at the Magdalena mine, near Texacellentec, state of Mexico, which caused the death of 12 miners, among them Erasmus Chaverere, mine manager. The men were suffocated by smoke and gas.

Sixteen men charged with participating in the lynching of John V. Johnson, at Wadesboro, N. C., were held in bonds of $5,000 each for trial.

At the final session of the meeting of the American Surgical association, at Cincinnati, Dr. Dudley P. Allen, of Cleveland, the retiring secretary, was elected president.

The business men of Windber, Pa., held a meeting and decided to ask Organizer Ginter, of the Mine Workers' association, to leave town. He disappeared and has not been seen since.

Emperor Francis Joseph has invited the chiefs of the German and Russian staffs to attend the Austrian army maneuvers in Silesia during the month of September.

Outfielder Harry Vinson, of the Chicago American league team, has been signed by Manager Carr, of the Indianapolis American association.

Malcolm R. Patterson, of Memphis, representative in congress from the Tenth district, was nominated for governor of Tennessee by the state Democratic convention.

Gen. Vicente Gomez is trying to induce President Castro to resume charge of the government in Venezuela and is threatening to call congress together and accept Castro's resignation at once if he persists in declining to resume the duties of president.

Business maintains wholesome progress and mercantile collections improve. A good gain is noted in comparison with the corresponding period of any previous year.

Merchants of Smithfield, O., who hauled groceries to the homes of the Plum Run strikers which are on company houses are not allowed to deliver the goods.

Racial warfare between the Armenians and Tartars has recommenced. Several Armenians have been killed in the district of Djevanahnski.

The Windber coal strike which has been the cause of bloodshed is over.

Five persons were killed and eaten by savage dogs on the Labrador coast the past winter. The dogs, which have largely interbred with wolves, have frequently killed people heretofore.

Fraternal societies are not liable as regular life insurance companies according to a ruling by the Missouri supreme court. Mary Westerman sued the Knights of Pythias for $5,236 for the death of her husband. The lodge refused to pay because Westerman failed to make a payment.

George W. Silste, general manager of the Butte Miner, died of Bright's disease, aged 49 years.

The Madrid police arrested an elegantly dressed Englishman, who gave his name as Robert Hamilton, as he was boarding a train, as the person nearest to fitting the description of the author of the outrage; but a lengthy interrogation of the prisoner gave no satisfactory results.

A bomb of terrific power was hurled at the king of Spain, Alfonso XIII., and his queen, Victoria, as they were returning from the church at Madrid, where the marriage ceremony was performed. The royal couple escaped injury, but 16 other persons were killed and many were injured.

Pendennis White, a millionaire banker and lumberman, was killed and Edwin A. Bell and Richard B. Lyman, stock brokers, were injured in a collision between an automobile and a trolley car at Buffalo.

Ambassador Reid gave a farewell luncheon at London to Robert C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph and Cable company. Andrew Carnegie was among the guests.

The French cabinet decided to introduce in parliament a general amnesty bill, covering persons convicted of participation in the recent strikes and church inventory disturbances and in the anti-military movement.

A heavy wind and rain storm passed over central Kentucky, doing much damage. Telephone lines were broken, destroying the connections with outlying points. Trees and fences were blown down and many buildings were damaged.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the tri-State Grain Dealers' convention and country grain men generally met in Minneapolis. South Dakota was well represented. The association is composed of country grain dealers of Minensota and South Dakota principally.

W. E. Flentje, postmaster of Cape Girardeau, Mo., a brick manufacturer and merchant, was nominated for railroad and warehouse commissioner by the Republican state convention. J. U. White, of Brookfield, was nominated for superintenednt of schools.

Twelve persons were wounded at Cienfuegos, Cuba, by the premature explosion of fireworks at the celebration of King Alfonso's wedding.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Prestige won the Victor stakes at the Long Champs races.

The engagement is announced of Bertha Krupp, owner of the Krupp works, at Essen, to Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, secretary of the Prussian legation at the Vatican.

Negotiations are pending between Ecuador and the United States for the establishment of joint quarantine regulations for the canal zone and Guayaquil which will lessen the danger of the transmission of yellow fever.

Austria has extended indefinitely the provisional commercial arrangements with Servia.

Ohio state university won the Big Six" intercollegiate track meet held at Columbus, with a total of 75 points.

The Panama canal commission has sent a special agent to Spain to engage laborers to work on the canal.

At Newburg, Ind., lightning struck a large barn where a number of children who were attending a Sunday school picnic had gathered during a severe storm. Malvin Greer, aged 12, was instantly killed and five children were injured.

Members of the different standing committees at Springfield, Ill., of the German Baptist Brethren elected F. S. Sanger, of South Bend, Ind., moderator. It was arranged to construct a $30,000 building as an annex to the publishing plant of the Gospel Messenger in Elgin, Ill.

Thirteen alleged members of the mob which lynched John V. Johnson at Wadesboro, N. C., are in jail at that place charged with murder.

Many thousands of Norwegians filed past the catafalque at Christiania on which lay the body of Henrik Ibsen, poet and dramatist.

District Judge Raper, Nebraska, refused Charles M. Chamberlain a new trial and sentenced him to the penitentiary for five years. Chamberlain was convicted of wrecking the Chamberlain bank of Tecumseh.

Memorial day the president delivered a patriotic oration in the beautiful grounds of the naval hospital at Portsmouth, Va., and directly afterward unveiled a handsome marble shaft erected by the army and navy union in the cemetery adjoining the hospital grounds to the memory of its fallen comrades.

The congregation of the propaganda has decided to propose to the pope the appointment of Rev. William J. Foley of Tusket Wedge, N. S., to be archbishop of Halifax.

Edward J. Berwind, president of the Berwind-White Coal Mining company, sailed for New York from Cherbourg on the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

Charles Pushingsky and William Dominick, two farmers of West Hills, L. I., are dead as a result of drinking wood alcohol.

C. W. Young of Summerland, B. C., committed suicide by shooting himself on the beach at Park Point, Minn. Mr. Young was for ten years cashier for the Rat Portage Lumber company at Kenora. Ont.

Most of the Filipino students in America who are in agricultural colleges, and many of those in normal schools, will go to work on farms. Those who are studying law will go into law offices, and many others will go into shops and factories. A number of the engineering students are trying to get places in surveying parties sent out by the United States geological survey.

A man who is supposed to be John J. Foster of Jersey City, N. J., committed suicide in the county jail at Louisville, Ky., by hanging. He had been arrested on charges of forgery.

A man believed to be J. J. Oakes was found on the railroad tracks near Ingleside, W. Va. The head was entirely severed from the body. The inference is that he was murdered.

Seiches swept up both rivers at Racine, Wis., and, as a result, the pontoon bridge crossing the river at Main street was badly damaged. The water remained stationery for about 30 seconds and then rapidly receded, becoming normal.

The Presbyterian general assembly before adjourning named a committee of seven to cooperate with other English-speaking denominations in North America to secure a uniform version of the Bible.

Harry Samuel Simons of Illinois and Franklin Everhart of Pennsylvania were convicted of fraud at London and sentenced to imprisonment, the former for two years and the latter for 18 months.

The French cabinet is meeting twice daily to decide on the programme for presentation at the opening of parliament. A deficit of approximately $52,000,000 is shown in the budget and a method to meet this is being discussed.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York appealed to the British courts for an order restraining the North British and Mercantile company and D. C. Haldeman from using the lists compiled by the Mutual in canvassing policyholders.

Twenty-two perished when the British steamer Lismore went ashore at Santa Maria, Chili.

The excursion steamer Vima capsized at Riga, Russia, causing 15 deaths.

MEAT INSPECTION IS DECLARED A FARCE

How Diseased Cattle Are Killed and Sold for Food by Chicago Packers—Story of Horrors Revealed by New York Lawyer.

New York.—Dr. J. [illegible] Milnes, of Chicago, [illegible]

[illegible]

"I was transferred from Wichita to Waterloo, Ia., August 10, 1903, and proceeded to install a method of inspection which consisted of marking with a slash on the leg the tubercular hogs. When I insisted upon the viscera being set aside for examination it was said that was trying to 'do' my predecessor. The packers would kill a couple from each lot in making up a drove for the killing, and when a hog was condemned the remainder of that lot were placed in the feed pen until a carload had been assembled, when they were loaded and shipped to Chicago. In Chicago they were all sold.

Make Complaint to Salmon.

"Failing in their efforts to induce me to relax my inspection, the packers finally made complaints to Mr. Salmon, the head of the bureau of animal industry, who detailed Dr. Morris Wooden, of the Chicago force, to visit Waterloo and look into my methods. He made careful examination of 42 hogs that had been condemned, but held under orders from Washington. Dr. Salmon's explanation of this procedure was a desire to have methods all over the country uniform with those of Chicago.

"According to Chicago methods, Dr. Wooden decided to condemn to lard and grease tanks 76 per cent. of the whole number. On the following morning Dr. Wooden came to the office and proceeded to revise his previous decision, going over his notes, with a result that, instead of the 76 per cent. condemned to the tanks, 44 per cent. was condemned. These hogs were then 'tanked,' and the rest went for meat.

"I was instructed by letter from Washington to conform to Dr. Wooden's methods in November, 1903.

"In Chicago I was first detailed to inspect hogs at the Armour plant, the room being nicknamed 'the penitentiary' on account of its long hours and heavy work. The negligence of inspectors at this place was astonishing, the inspectors coming and going at such hours as they saw fit, and many hogs passing without examination.

Slaughtering of "Crips."

"I found that many injured hogs, called 'crips' and 'slows,' were killed after regular hours and without any inspection whatever at the time of killing. The hogs when seen in the morning were ready for market, the heads, glands and viscera being removed, thus making detection of disease entirely impossible. There were days when the entire force was excused from duty, yet hundreds of hogs were killed.

"When I was transferred to another house I found the conditions the same. The regulations require that condemned carcasses be secured by lock and key in inspectors' charge. In this place they were left unlocked.

"All sheep butchered were labeled 'U. S. Inspected' without being inspected at all [illegible]

"After nearly five months' experience such as this I felt it my duty to call Dr. Salmon's attention to the conditions. I asked for an interview, and it was refused, and a few months later my career ended with my removal for 'insubordination and conduct tending to the demoralization of the meat inspection service.'"

A Sensational Charge.

The following is an extract from the report of Thomas H. McKee, of [illegible]

[illegible]

Horrors Corroborated.

[illegible] independently against both the Beveridge amendment and the submission of the Neill-Reynolds report to congress. Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill and Special Agent James B. Reynolds have seen this McKee report in condensed form, and have approved its findings in every essential feature.

This means, beyond doubt, that the Neill-Reynolds report, which congress and the American public are impatiently awaiting, will be along the identical lines boldly drawn here without fear or favor. This is the first publication of the McKee report, whose author spent 12 days, seven of them incognito, probing into the Packingtown horrors.

Sent by Publishers.

Mr. McKee was sent to Chicago by the publishers of the powerful expose novel written by Upton Sinclair. Their acceptance of the novel was contingent upon what this New York lawyer discovered in and reported of Packingtown.

Since they began drafting their report, Commissioners Neill and Reynolds have been in communication with Attorney McKee and have admitted, in Washington, that his disclosures are by no means overdrawn.

Among the packing houses Attorney McKee explored were Swift's, Armour's, Libby, McNeil & Libby's, Nelson Morris' and the Standard's.

People throughout the entire country have been stirred by the horrible charges against the packers and are anxiously awaiting the publication of the full report of Messrs. Neill and Reynolds. Letters to senators and congressmen urging them to use their influence would aid to secure early publicity of the important document.

Says Inspection Is Farce.

Kansas City, Mo.—"Government inspection of meat is a farce so far as the home consumer is concerned," said Dr. W. P. Cutler, present city food inspector and for several years a government bacteriologist and inspector in the Kansas City packing houses.

"I have taken diseased meats bearing the government stamp from wagons," he declared. "I have stood six hours alongside one carcass in a Kansas City packing house when that plant was running here to be sure that the carcass reached the proper tank.

"One day in another packing house I and one of my 'taggers' were going through a line of hogs in the 'export side.' We found a trichinae carcass. 'Put it over on the American side,' said the tagger, and over it went. There is no law requiring trichinae inspection for home trade.

"That's how government inspection works. What does a plumber or steamfitter know about tuberculosis? You'll find them inspecting cattle and meat."

Diseased Cattle Found.

Racine, Wis., May 31.—Tuberculosis has been discovered in many herds of cattle in the town of Caledonia. State Veterinary Surgeon Roberts, of Madison, has been making close investigation, and as a result one herd of 32 cattle has been condemned. They were taken to Milwaukee, where they were killed. Several other herds, including about 150 cows, are being examined, and many of them have been found to be suffering with the disease.

NEWS OF MINNESOTA.

Unveiled.

Decoration Day this year was a memorable one at the university as it was selected as the day on which the Student Soldiers memorial monument [illegible] The monument has been placed on a small mound on the open field [illegible] just across the street from [illegible] and faces the main entrance to the armory. Just across the street is a large cannon captured by the United States troops during the war with Spain.

The unveiling was performed with considerable ceremony and full military honors. Ex-Gov. Samuel Van Sant of the monument committee made the presentation speech and as he did so the life-sized statue of a fighting soldier was unveiled by a small child, the friend of one of the former university soldiers.

The statue is of bronze, the work of Mrs. Theo. Alice Ruggles-Kitson. It represents a young soldier of the republic holding his gun in readiness and standing erect with blouse open at the top and campaign hat shading the watchful eyes.

Mangled to Death.

Minneapolis.—Martin Steverson, thirty-one years old, residing at 2436 Thirteenth avenue south, Minneapolis, was caught in the belting of a stone crusher and slowly crushed to death. He was bending down, working about the machine, when his clothing caught on it and his body was whirled through the air and carried into the gearing of the machine where it was slowly mangled.

His fellow workers attempted to rescue him from the terrible death, but before they reached his body, traveling rapidly toward the gearing of the machine, a part of his clothes was already drawing his body into the gearing.

His body was badly crushed before the machinery was stopped and his body removed. He died a short time after he was taken from the machine. Steverson was married and leaves three children.

The Fern Is Ready.

Duluth.—The two large Hotchkiss guns belonging to the U. S. S. Fern, which were in the armory during the winter, have been mounted on the deck of the vessel, which is now in dry dock undergoing repairs. When she emerges next week, it is said that [illegible] excellent fighting trim.

It has not yet been decided when the first cruise and naval practice will begin. Commander Guy Eaton is in Washington, but is expected to return next week and it is said that soon after the first cruise will be made.

In the next two months it is expected the training will be of the most strenuous character, in anticipation of the naval maneuvers on Lake Michigan in August, which will be participated in by the naval militia of Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

At the Big Fair.

Hamline.—Work on the enormous addition to the state fair grand stand was commenced this week and will be pushed rapidly to completion. This improvement was decided upon at a meeting of the board some time ago and it will be the only important permanent work besides the live stock amphitheater which will be undertaken this season.

The new bleachers will be 300 feet long and 60 feet in width and will extend east from the present end of the grand stand toward the site of the old club house. They will be built in massive style and will be planned to accommodate 5,000 people. This will bring the total capacity of the grand stand up to about 20,000—much the largest in the country.

Sanatorium.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has signed the act authorizing the transfer of a small tract of land near Leach Lake to the state of Minnesota for a sanatorium for the treatment of consumption. The area of land is small, about forty acres, and the state is required to pay $1.25 per acre for it. As it is within the limits of the land which may be overflowed from the Leech Lake reservoir, the act provides that the federal government shall not be liable for damages for such overflow.

Loans.

St. Paul—Loans aggregating nearly $200,000 were aproved by the state investment board. During the last few weeks many applications for loans have been coming in. They come from school districts planning to build, from towns that will make improvements during the summer and from counties for ditch purposes.

The money available for loaning in the permanent school fund amount at present to about $150,000, which is less than the amount of loans approved.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Plans for the new Y. M. C. A. building are adopted.

St. Paul—The St. Paul Rod and Gun club tournament is a success.

Matahmeda—A shortstop golf tournament is held at the Town andCountry club.

St. Paul—St. Paul girl is released from training school, judge ruling it is no crime to be under sixteen years of age.

Minneapolis—A. McEwen, alleged slayer of Frank O. Grain, in Minneapolis, is a former lieutenant in the British service.

St. Paul—Miss Annie Skon, 1256 Payne avenue, is chosen as queen of the Payne avenue carnival.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Historical Society

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1906. NO. 10.

1906			JUNE			1906
SUN.	MON.	TUE.	WED.	THU.	FRI.	SAT.
🌕	🌗	🌑	🌓		1	2
3	4	5	6	7	8	9
10	11	12	13	14	15	16
17	18	19	20	21	22	23
24	25	26	27	28	29	30

A WEEK'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

RECORD OF MOST INTERESTING EVENTS TOLD IN BRIEFEST MANNER POSSIBLE.

HOME AND FOREIGN ITEMS

Information Gathered from All Quarters of the Civilized World and Prepared for the Perusal of the Busy Man.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

That Reed Smoot is not entitled to his seat in the United States senate as a senator from Utah was the decision of the senate committee on privileges and elections, declared by a vote of 7 to 5.

Negotiations looking toward a compromise on the meat inspection bill were knocked sky high at a conference at the White House between President Roosevelt and his close advisers on the measure. The administration will insist on the Beveridge bill, or a measure containing all its essential features.

The sundry civil appropriation bill is the largest sundry civil bill ever reported, carrying $94,346,573, of which $25,460,991 is for work on the Panama canal. The amount carried is $11,070,003, less than the estimates from the various departments. The canal appropriation is to be reimbursed to the treasury from the proceeds of the sale of canal bonds, whcih have been authorized to the aggregate amount of $130,000,000.

Representative Sulzer, of New York, introduced a resolution calling upon the president, "if not incompatible with the public interest," to send to the house at his earliest convenience the reports of Charles P. Neill and James B. Reynolds "in connection with their investigation of the meat 'trust,' the stockyards and the meat packing houses of Chicago, and other places.

Chairman Dolliver, of the senate committee on education and labor will report favorably a bill autherizing the secretary of commerce and labor to report upon the industrial, social, moral, educational and physical condition of women and child workers.

The senate committee on education and labor considered Senator La Follette's bill to limit the hours of service of railroad employes. It limits continuous employment to 16 hours, except in cases where casualties compel trainmen to remain longer on duty.

Senator Daniel reported from the senate committee on industrial expositions his bill appropriating $375,000 for the Jamestown tercentennial exposition to be held on the shores of Hampton Roads.

President Roosevelt decided to make public the report of Prof. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, and James B. Reynolds, of New York, concerning the conditions of the meat packing establishments as they found them on an inquiry instituted by the president, primarily for his own information.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The shooting of an American by a Mexican policeman precipitated a race war at the mines of the Cananea Consolidated Copper company in Mexico which resulted in the killing of 45 men. The extermination of the American miners is the avowed object of the Mexicans, who precipitated the trouble under the guise of a strike for higher wages.

Representative Robert Adams, of Philadelphia, commits suicide at Washington because of financial troubles.

Gov. Pardee, of California, has issued a proclamation convening a special session of the state legislature to assemble Saturday next.

At the annual meeting of the Kansas City live stock exchange a resolution was adopted advocating "a reasonable and practidable inspection of packing house products," and that the packers should not be required to pay for such inspection.

At Louisberg, Cape Breton, three men were drowned in the wreck of the schooner Thetis.

Rumors of a meeting of Emperor William of Germany and King Haakon of Norway at Christiania after the coronation of the latter next month are without foundation.

A fire at South Boston, Va., entailed a loss estimated between $250,000 and $300,000. A lighted cigarette or match thrown into a stabble started the fire.

An accident at the Magdalena mine, near Texacellentec, state of Mexico, which caused the death of 12 miners, among them Erasmus Chaverere, mine manager. The men were suffocated by smoke and gas.

Sixteen men charged with participating in the lynching of John V. Johnson, at Wadesboro, N. C., were held in bonds of $5,000 each for trial.

At the final session of the meeting of the American Surgical association, at Cincinnati, Dr. Dudley P. Allen, of Cleveland, the retiring secretary, was elected president.

The business men of Windber, Pa., held a meeting and decided to ask Organizer Ginter, of the Mine Workers' association, to leave town. He disappeared and has not been seen since.

Emperor Francis Joseph has invited the chiefs of the German and Russian staffs to attend the Austrian army maneuvers in Silesia during tne month of September.

Outfielder Harry Vinson, of the Chicago American league team, has been signed by Manager Carr, of the Indianapolis American association.

Malcolm R. Patterson, of Memphis, representative in congress from the Tenth district, was nominated for governor of Tennessee by the state Democratic convention.

Gen. Vicente Gomez is trying to induce President Castro to resume charge of the government in Venezuela and is threatening to call congress together and accept Castro's resignation at once if he persists in declining to resume the duties of president.

Business maintains wholesome progress and mercantile collections improve. A good gain is noted in comparison with the corresponding period of any previous year.

Merchants of Smithfield, O., who hauled groceries to the homes of the Plum Run strikers which are on company houses are not allowed to deliver the goods.

Racial warfare between the Armenians and Tartars has recommenced. Several Armenians have been killed in the district of Djevanahnski.

The Windber coal strike which has been the cause of bloodshed is over. Five persons were killed and eaten by savage dogs on the Labrador coast the past winter. The dogs, which have largely interbred with wolves, have frequently killed people heretofore.

Fraternal societies are not liable as regular life insurance companies according to a ruling by the Missouri supreme court. Mary Westerman sued the Knights of Pythias for $5,236 for the death of her husband. The lodge refused to pay because Westerman failed to make a payment.

George W. Silste, general manager of the Butte Miner, died of Bright's disease, aged 49 years.

The Madrid police arrested an elegantly dressed Englishman, who gave his name as Robert Hamilton, as he was boarding a train, as the person nearest to fitting the description of the author of the outrage; but a lengthy interrogation of the prisoner gave no satisfactory results.

A bomb of terrific power was hurled at the king of Spain, Alfonso XIII., and his queen, Victoria, as they were returning from the church at Madrid, where the marriage ceremony was performed. The royal couple escaped injury, but 16 other persons were killed and many were injured.

Pendennis White, a millionaire banker and lumberman, was killed and Edwin A. Bell and Richard B. Lyman, stock brokers, were injured in a collision between an automobile and a trolley car at Buffalo.

Ambassador Reid gave a farewell luncheon at London to Robert C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph and Cable company. Andrew Carnegie was among the guests.

The French cabinet decided to introduce in parliament a general amnesty bill, covering persons convicted of participation in the recent strikes and church inventory disturbances and in the anti-military movement.

A heavy wind and rain storm passed over central Kentucky, doing much damage. Telephone lines were broken, destroying the connections with outlying points. Trees and fences were blown down and many buildings were damaged.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the tri-State Grain Dealers' convention and country grain men generally met in Minneapolis. South Dakota was well represented. The association is composed of country grain dealers of Minensota and South Dakota principally.

W. E. Flentje, postmaster of Cape Girardeau, Mo., a brick manufacturer and merchant, was nominated for railroad and warehouse commissioner by the Republican state convention. J. U. White, of Brookfield, was nominated for superintenednt of schools.

Twelve persons were wounded at Cienfuegos, Cuba, by the premature explosion of fireworks at the celebration of King Alfonso's wedding.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Prestige won the Victor stakes at the Long Champs races.

The engagement is announced of Bertha Krupp, owner of the Krupp works, at Essen, to Gustav von Dehlen und Halbach, secretary of the Prussian legation at the Vatican.

Negotiations are pending between Ecuador and the United States for the establishment of joint quarantine regulations for the canal zone and Guayaquil which will lessen the danger of the transmission of yellow fever.

Austria has extended indefinitely the provisional commercial arrangements with Seryia.

Ohio state university won the Big Six" intercollegiate track meet held at Columbus, with a total of 75 points.

The Panama canal commission has sent a special agent to Spain to engage laborers to work on the canal.

At Newburg, Ind., lightning struck a large barn where a number of children who were attending a Sunday school picnic had gathered during a severe storm. Malvin Greer, aged 12, was instantly killed and five children were injured.

Members of the different standing committees at Springfield, Ill., of the German Baptist Brethren elected F. S. Sanger, of South Bend, Ind., moderator. It was arranged to construct a $30,000 building as an annex to the publishing plant of the Gospel Messenger in Elgin, Ill.

Thirteen alleged members of the mob which lynched John V. Johnson at Wadesboro, N. C., are in jail at that place charged with murder.

Many thousands of Norwegians filed past the catafalque at Christiania on which lay the body of Henrik Ibsen, depoet and dramatist.

District Judge Raper, Nebraska, refused Charles M. Chamberlain a new trial and sentenced him to the penitentiary for five years. Chamberlain was convicted of wrecking the Chamberlain bank of Tecumseh.

Memorial day the president delivered a patriotic oration in the beautiful grounds of the naval hospital at Portsmouth, Va., and directly afterward unveiled a handsome marble shaft erected by the army and navy union in the cemetery adjoining the hospital grounds to the memory of its fallen comrades.

The congregation of the propaganda has decided to propose to the pope the appointment of Rev. William J. Foley of Tusket Wedge, N. S., to be archbishop of Halifax.

Edward J. Berwind, president of the Berwind-White Coal Mining company, sailed for New York from Cherbourg on the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

Charles Pushingsky and William Dominick, two farmers of West Hills, L. I., are dead as a result of drinking wood alcohol.

C. W. Young of Summerland, B. C., committed suicide by shooting himself on the beach at Park Point, Minn. Mr. Young was for ten years cashier for the Rat Portage Lumber company at Kenora. Ont.

Most of the Filipino students in America who are in agricultural colleges, and many of those in normal schools, will go to work on farms. Those who are studying law will go into law offices, and many others will go into shops and factories. A number of the engineering students are trying to get places in surveying parties sent out by the United States geological survey.

A man who is supposed to be John J. Foster of Jersey City, N. J., committed suicide in the county jail at Louisville, Ky., by hanging. He had been arrested on charges of forgery.

A man believed to be J. J. Oakes was found on the railroad tracks near Ingleside, W. Va. The head was entirely severed from the body. The inference is that he was murdered.

Seiches swept up both rivers at Racine, Wis., and, as a result, the pontoon bridge crossing the river at Main street was badly damaged. The water remained stationery for about 30 seconds and then rapidly receded, becoming normal.

The Presbyterian general assembly before adjourning named a committee of seven to cooperate with other English-speaking denominations in North America to secure a uniform version of the Bible.

Harry Samuel Simons of Illinois and Franklin Everhart of Pennsylvania were convicted of fraud at London and sentenced to imprisonment, the former for two years and the latter for 18 months.

The French cabinet is meeting twice daily to decide on the programme for presentation at the opening of parliament. A deficit of approximately $52,000,000 is shown in the budget and a method to meet this is being discussed.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York appealed to the British courts for an order restraining the North British and Mercantile company and D. C. Haldeman from using the lists compiled by the Mutual in canvassing policyholders.

Twenty-two perished when the British steamer Lismore went ashore at Santa Maria, Chili.

The excursion steamer Vima capsized at Riga, Russia, causing 15 deaths.

MEAT INSPECTION IS DECLARED A FARCE

How Diseased Cattle Are Killed and Sold for Food by Chicago Packers—Stockyard Horrors Revealed by New York Lawyer.

New York.—Dr. J. C. Milnes, of Chicago, who was for ten years a meat inspector stationed in packing plants in that city, declared that cattle afflicted with "lumpy jaw" or plainly suffering from other diseases which rendered them unfit for food were bought by the packers' agents, who bargained for them and usually got them at a price which enabled the packers to realize a large profit on the transaction.

"If it is necessary to give any credentials," Dr. Milnes said, "I may say that I was appointed meat inspector in October, 1896. I was first on duty in Kansas City, in the plant of Armour & Co. I was subsequently with the Fowler company, the Joseph Smart company and the Jacob Dold company. I had entire charge of the stockyards in Kansas City.

Buying of Diseased Stock.

"Every buyer for the trust is under orders to purchase as many diseased cattle and hogs as he chooses, but to buy at the lowest possible price, so that if the animals do not pass the government inspectors the loss will be minimized. If these cattle and hogs pass the inspectors and are sold to the consumer, the profit is proportionately large.

"Let me explain here that 'lumpy jaw' is a disease which cannot be communicated to man and does not spread to other parts of the animal. I would not hesitate to eat meat from an animal with 'lumpy jaw' if it was otherwise healthy and well nourished. It is in the tuberculosis cattle and hogs that danger lies, and it is only through the most rigid inspection of meat after it gets into the killing-room that this danger can be met. It is the laxity of inspection service that is responsible for many of the conditions which have been described recently.

"I was transferred from Wichita to Waterloo, Ia., August 10, 1903, and proceeded to install a method of inspection which consisted of marking with a slash on the leg the tubercular hogs. When I insisted upon the viscera being set aside for examination it was said that was trying to 'do' my predecessor. The packers would kill a couple from each lot in making up a drove for the killing, and when a hog was condemned the remainder of that lot were placed in the feed pen until a carload had been assembled, when they were loaded and shipped to Chicago. In Chicago they were all sold.

Make Complaint to Salmon.

"Failing in their efforts to induce me to relax my inspection, the packers finally made complaints to Mr. Salmon, the head of the bureau of animal industry, who detailed Dr. Morris Wooden, of the Chicago force, to visit Waterloo and look into my methods. He made careful examination of 42 hogs that had been condemned, but held under orders from Washington. Dr. Salmon's explanation of this procedure was a desire to have methods all over the country uniform with these of Chicago.

"According to Chicago methods, Dr. Wooden decided to condemn to lard and grease tanks 76 per cent. of the whole number. On the following morning Dr. Wooden came to the office and proceeded to revise his previous decision, going over his notes, with a result that, instead of the 76 per cent. condemned to the tanks, 44 per cent. was condemned. These hogs were then 'tanked,' and the rest went for meat.

"I was instructed by letter from Washington to conform to Dr. Wooden's methods in November, 1903.

"In Chicago I was first detailed to inspect hogs at the Armour plant, the room being nicknamed 'the penitentiary' on account of its long hours and heavy work. The negligence of inspectors at this place was astonishing, the inspectors coming and going at such hours as they saw fit, and many hogs passing without examination.

Slaughtering of "Crips."

"I found that many injured hogs, called 'crips' and 'slows,' were killed after regular hours and without any inspection whatever at the time of killing. The hogs when seen in the morning were ready for market, the heads, glands and viscera being removed, thus making detection of disease entirely impossible. There were days when the entire force was excused from duty, yet hundreds of hogs were killed.

"When I was transferred to another house I found the conditions the same. The regulations require that condemned carcasses be secured by lock and key in inspectors' charge. In this place they were left unlocked.

"All sheep butchered were labeled 'U. S. Inspected' without being inspected at all. In one abattoir the sheep inspector put in the entire time studying medicine in a little office almost a block away.

"After nearly five months' experience such as this I felt it my duty to call Dr. Salmon's attention to the conditions. I asked for an interview, and it was refused, and a few months later my career ended with my removal for 'insubordination and conduct tending to the demoralization of the meat inspection service.'"

A Sensational Charge.

The following is an extract from the report of Thomas E. McKee, of conditions in the Chicago stock yards:

"The place where the sausage casings are prepared is dark, damp and unventilated. The odor was so foul that my lungs refused to receive it for several minutes after my entrance into the room. About 25 men were at work on machines which turned the entrails inside out and washed them. No fresh entrails could have emitted the odors present, and I assumed that the material being worked upon was being assisted by the effluvia of all the offal which had passed that way since ancient times."

"Jungle" Horrors Corroborated.

This astounding paragraph from many other equally sensational ones in a report rendered by Attorney Thomas H. McKee, 111 Broadway, in corroboration of "The Jungle," explains why the beef trust is battling so desperately against both the Beveridge amendment and the submission of the Neill-Reynolds report to congress. Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill and Special Agent James B. Reynolds have seen this McKee report in condensed form, and have approved its findings in every essential feature.

This means, beyond doubt, that the Neill-Reynolds report, which congress and the American public are impatiently awaiting, will be along the identical lines boldly drawn here without fear or favor. This is the first publication of the McKee report, whose author spent 12 days, seven of them incognito, probing into the Packingtown horrors.

Sent by Publishers.

Mr. McKee was sent to Chicago by the publishers of the powerful expose novel written by Upton Sinclair. Their acceptance of the novel was contingent upon what this New York lawyer discovered in and reported of Packingtown.

Since they began drafting their report, Commissioners Neill and Reynolds have been in communication with Attorney McKee and have admitted, in Washington, that his disclosures are by no means overdrawn.

Among the packing houses Attorney McKee explored were Swift's, Armour's, Libby, McNeil & Libby's, Nelson Morris' and the Standard's.

People throughout the entire country have been stirred by the horrible charges against the packers and are anxiously awaiting the publication of the full report of Messrs. Neill and Reynolds. Letters to senators and congressmen urging them to use their influence would aid to secure early publicity of the important document.

Says Inspection Is Farce.

Kansas City, Mo.—"Government inspection of meat is a farce so far as the home consumer is concerned," said Dr. W. P. Cutler, present city food inspector and for several years a government bacteriologist and inspector in the Kansas City packing houses.

"I have taken diseased meats bearing the government stamp from wagons," he declared. "I have stood six hours alongside one carcass in a Kansas City packing house when that plant was running here to be sure that the carcass reached the proper tank.

"One day in another packing house I and one of my 'taggers' were going through a line of hogs in the 'export side.' We found a trichinae carcass. 'Put it over on the American side,' said the tagger, and over it went. There is no law requiring trichinae inspection for home trade.

"That's how government inspection works. What does a plumber or steamfitter know about tuberculosis? You'll find them inspecting cattle and meat."

Diseased Cattle Found.

Racine, Wis., May 31.—Tuberculosis has been discovered in many herds of cattle in the town of Caledonia. State Veterinary Surgeon Roberts, of Madison, has been making close investigation, and as a result one herd of 32 cattle has been condemned. They were taken to Milwaukee, where they were killed. Several other herds, including about 150 cows, are being examined, and many of them have been found to be suffering with the disease.

NEWS OF MINNESOTA.

Unveiled.

Decoration Day this year was a memorable one at the university, as it was selected as the day on which the Student Soldiers memorial monument be unveiled.

The monument has been placed on a small mound on the open drill ground just across the street from the university armory, and faces the main entrance to the armory. Just across the street is a large cannon captured by the United States troops during the war with Spain.

The unveiling was performed with considerable ceremony and full military honors. Ex-Gov. Samuel Van Sant of the monument committee made the presentation speech and as he did so the life sized statue of a fighting volunteer was unveiled by a small child, the friend of one of the former university soldiers.

The statue is of bronze, the work of Mrs. Theo. Alice Ruggles-Kitson. It represents a young soldier of the republic holding his gun in readiness and standing erect with blouse open at the top and campaign hat shading the watchful eyes.

Mangled to Death.

Minneapolis.—Martin Steverson, thirty-one years old, residing at 2436 Thirteenth avenue south, Minneapolis, was caught in the belting of a stone crusher and slowly crushed to death. He was bending down, working about the machine, when his clothing caught on it and his body was whirled through the air and carried into the gearing of the machine where it was slowly mangled.

His fellow workers attempted to rescue him from the terrible death, but before they reached his body, traveling rapidly toward the gearing of the machine, a part of his clothes was already drawing his body into the gearing.

His body was badly crushed before the machinery was stopped and his body removed. He died a short time after he was taken from the machine. Steverson was married and leaves three children.

The Fern Is Ready.

Duluth.—The two large Hotchkiss guns belonging to the U. S. S. Fern, which were in the armory during the winter, have been mounted on the deck of the vessel, which is now in dry dock undergoing repairs. When she emerges next week and it is said that soon excellent fighting trim.

It has not yet been decided when the first cruise and naval practice will begin. Commander Guy Eaton is in Washington, but is expected to return next week and it is said that soon after the first cruise will be made.

In the next two months it is expected the training will be of the most strenuous character, in anticipation of the naval maneuvers on Lake Michigan in August, which will be participated in by the naval militia of Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

At the Big Fair.

Hamline.—Work on the enormous addition to the state fair grand stand was commenced this week and will be pushed rapidly to completion. This improvement was decided upon at a meeting of the board some time ago and it will be the only important permanent work besides the live stock amphitheater which will be undertaken this season.

The new bleachers will be 300 feet long and 60 feet in width and will extend east from the present end of the grand stand toward the site of the old club house. They will be built in massive style and will be planned to accommodate 5,000 people. This will bring the total capacity of the grand stand up to about 20,000—much the largest in the country.

Sanatorium.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has signed the act authorizing the transfer of a small tract of land near Leach Lake to the state of Minnesota for a sanatorium for the treatment of consumption. The area of land is small, about forty acres, and the state is required to pay $1.25 per acre for it. As it is within the limits of the land which may be overflowed from the Leech Lake reservoir, the act provides that the federal government shall not be liable for damages for such overflow.

Loans.

St. Paul—Loans aggregating nearly $200,000 were aproved by the state investment board. During the last few weeks many applications for loans have been coming in. They come from school districts planning to build, from towns that will make improvements during the summer and from counties for ditch purposes.

The money available for loaning in the permanent school fund amount at present to about $150,000, which is less than the amount of loans approved.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Plans for the new Y. M. C. A. building are adopted.

St. Paul—The St. Paul Rod and Gun club tournament is a success.

Matahmeda—A shortstop golf tournament is held at the Town and Country club.

St. Paul—St. Paul girl is released from training school, judge ruling it is no crime to be under sixteen years of age.

Minneapolis—A. McEwen, alleged slayer of Frank O. Grain, in Minneapolis, is a former lieutenant in the British service.

St. Paul—Miss Annie Skon, 1256 Payne avenue, is chosen as queen of the Payne avenue carnival.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. C. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at unbeam, Red Lake County
nnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per r in advance. If not paid in vance $1.50

ntered as Second-class matter August 30,
, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn.
ler the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

A.L. Cole seems to be gaining ound quite rapidly in the norrn part of the state and he y land the nomination at Dul- next week, and if he does we l have a governor that every ublican living in the northern t of the state that favors inage must support.

Thirteen is said to be an un- ky number and we wonder if reputation will be sustained the Republican State Conven n at Duluth. It falls on June and it is not impossible that man nominated for governor y prove unlucky. He will e to take his chance on the doo and all the candidates willing.—Plummer Pioneer.

Our friends down in Deer Park still in a "jungle" about that rlasting bridge. It is the y bridge across the Clearwa- river in the township and re was quite a little contrib- d by outside parties to help m to get one crossing on the er, that they could cross h safty, but it seems that in- ad of being a benefit it has set whole town by the ears, and are of the opinion they will left alone in the future by tsiders and allowed to build ir own bridges or swim.

What will Wm. Jennings Bryan when he returns from his trip und the world and finds that ring his absence his political nder has been worked into tutes by President Roosevelt l the Republican party? Will join the Republicans, or get up ne new schemes? Most likely will paint word pictures of deplorable condition of ropean labor classes and ege that to prevent American oor from retrogression it will necessary to place Democrats control, notwithstanding the t that Republican statutes ve enabled the laborers of the ited States to live far better an their European competitors.

THE RAILROAD RATE BILL.

Now that the railroad rate bill about to become a law through e persistency of President osevelt, it is interesting to te the concurrence of promin t railway officials. President ssatt, of the Pennsylvania ilroad, made the following atement:

"I have for several years be- ved that the national govern ent, through the interstate mmerce commission, ought to in a position to fix railroad tes whenever the rates estab shed by the railroads them- lyes are found, after complaint d hearing, to be unreasonable; ovided, of course, that there all be the right of appeal to e courts.

"Experience has shown that oser relationship and mutuality f interests are necessary to revent the covert and destruct- e warfare between American ilroads which produced the cret rate and rebate system.

"It is only right, therefore at the public should have the eans of protection against even remote danger suggested in the creased power developed by is wholesale and, from every andpoint, necessary spirit of lliance.

The rumor is going the rounds here that the town board of Deer park are not complying with resolutions passed at the organization meeting of our town held on May 22nd, of last year, now we will say in answer to this.

The only resolution passed (which some of our residents seems to think, was a decission passed by majority vote) was a motion to this effect that the first county bridge to be constructed across the Clear Water river to be located on section 33 on the forty line or as near thereto as possible Now there was no provisions made for any road, leading up to said bridge, at this meeting our voters will evidently remember that the above was only a motion, and recorded as such, and there was no request of this kind inserted on the notices posted by the county auditor, and there was no balloting done to this effect at this meeting which the law would in that case require, therefor this motion is voide, as far as the legality of this resolution is concerned, and the town board is not to be blamed for notcomplying with the request made in this motion. Before the town board has any right to do any kind of road work on the towns expense there will have to be a petition taking up, declaring this quarter line a public road, leading up to the bridge, until this is done, our town board has no power to act on no right to expand any of the towns funds, unless it is on sect ion lines or duly declared public roads. Hope this explanation will satisfy matters for the time being at least.

Yours Respectfully,
W.A. Swanson.
Town clerk Deer Park

He Wore the Robe.

A story is told of the late Dr. Peddie, a Scotch minister, to whom his congregation had presented a pulpit robe. He had never worn a robe, and, after acknowledging the gift, he said he would wait in the vestry five minutes after service to hear any objectors to the innovation. Nobody appeared but one old lady, who, on being asked what her objections were, answered that she had read the epistles of St. Paul and could not find any reference to the apostle wearing a gown. "What epistle did you read?" asked the doctor. "From Romans to Hebrews," answered the old lady. "Well, Janet," said her minister, "I have read from Romans to Hebrew also, and I could never find any reference to the apostle wearing the breeks. What would you think if you saw me going into the pulpit without breeks?" Needless to say, the old lady departed satisfied with the explanation.

Evolution of the Needle.

Sewing needles of bone, stone, glass and bronze antedate all historic records, but those of iron, brass and steel are comparatively modern. Bone and glass needles have been found in Egyptian tombs that are known to be over 4,000 years old, and similar domestic instruments of bronze and copper have been found in the mounds and burial caves of Europe and America which are believed to be much older than those found with the Nile mummies. The needle first appeared in its present form in European countries in the year 1410, but the art of making them was kept a secret for upward of 150 years after the date last given. In the year 1680 they were first made in the American colonies, but at what point is a mooted question among the historians.

Walt Whitman.

Of the days when Walt Whitman was a nurse in the hospitals of the civil war a biographer of the poet says: "He would often come into the wards carrying wild flowers newly picked and strewing them over the beds like a herald of the summer. Well did he know that they were messengers of life to the sick, words to them from the earth-mother of men. And then as he left of a night after going his last round and kissing many a young, pale, bearded face in fulfillment of his own written injunctions he would hear the boys calling: 'Walt, Walt, Walt! Come again, come again!'"

Hindoo Idols.

Several weeks ago I was in an Indian village and peeped inside the chief Hindoo temple. To my great surprise I saw the portrait of a famous London beauty, nicely framed, calmly looking down at the idol beneath it. The lady, I am sure, never dreamed that she would be worshiped in this way.—Lucknow Letter to London Mail.

Volubie.

"Have you seen Professor Gabbleton, the scientist, lately?"

"Yes; I listened to him for more than an hour at the club last night."

"Indeed! What was he talking about?"

"He didn't say."—Puck.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906
Department of the Interior.
Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 30, Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson, of Radell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub May 4th 1906
Depatment of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Apr. 20, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before he Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office t Crookston, Minn., on June 21, 1906, viz

John Poloni.

HE. No. 553 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 2 4. S.W. ¼, N.W. ¼ Sec. 28, and Lots 11, 12, Sec. 29 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred Eye, William G. Hunt, Patrick Sullivan; Wallace Grace all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

Notice for Publication

First Pub, May 4th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on June 21, 1906 viz:

Wallace Grace.

H E. No. 1021 Red Lake Series for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

Alfred Eye, Patrick Sullivan, Andrew M. Johnson, William G. Hunt, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 4th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on June 21, 1906 viz:

Hermen M.J. Lillo,

H. E. No. 583 Red Lake Series for the S.E.¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 152 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Nels Fore, Oscar Lillo, Ole Legvold, Knut Lindtvedt, all of Lillo Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1st 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H.E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series, for the S.W.¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N. R 39 W

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Anton Knutson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior.
Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S, Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th, 1906 viz:

Peter A. Kolstad,

H.E.No. 694 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼. Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rognes, and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H.E. No. 691 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivavation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. 23, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H. E. No. 647, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 13th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906 viz:

Harry G. Dobner.

H. E. No. 519 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. George Tupper, of Brunkeberg Minn. Morgan Vaughan, of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 3rd, 1906, viz:

Peter T. Quam.

H.E. No. 983 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 19 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Iver A. Tasa, Iver Johnson, of Radell Minn, Torger T. Torgerson, of Lillo Minn.,

R. J. Montague, register,

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. Apr. 27 1906,
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 20th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on June 15, 1906 viz:

Knut Olson.

H.E. No. 1051, Red Lake Series, for the SE¼ Sec. 5 Tp. 152 N R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thor O. Moen, Oscar Nestland, Charles Swanson, William A. Swanson all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 4th. 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on June 20th 1906, viz;

Christopher Larson.

H.E. No. 1134 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec, 8 Tp, 153 N. R. 39 W,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hanson, Andrew J. Anderson, Carl J. Anderson all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 18th 1906.
Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of, the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn.. on July 6th 1906. viz:

George Tupper.

H.E. No. 708 Red Lake Series, for the N. E.¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. Charles Newberry. Harry Dobner, Cordilos Douglas of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnsota on July 3rd. 1906 viz;

Thomas A. Tasa.

H.E.No. 985 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Iver A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Radell Minn. Torger Elton, of Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

Fist Pub. June 1st 1906.
Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May, 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settlers have filed notice of intention to make final proof on their respective claims before the register and receiver of the U.S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July 20, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E. No. 988, Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Ways of the Ostrich.

An ostrich never goes straight to its nest, but always approaches it with many windings and detours, in order, if possible, to conceal the locality from observation.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

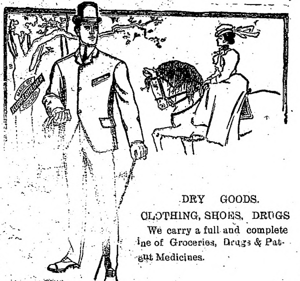
THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.
PLUMMER, ... MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.... .00............

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST-OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster, Sec. 20 T. 153 R. 40.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Man wanted for grubbing, inquire at this office.

A. Eve is transacting business at Thief River Falls this week.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Get your seed at Rhoda, all kinds of garden seed on hand.

Come and see us when yor are ready to prove up on your land.

The new school house will be ready for the district, by July 1st.

Jerry O,Brien left for Thief River Falls on a buiness trip last Tuesday.

Oluf Snoback, returned home Tuesday, after long absence in Eden township.

Peter Meline who has been taking in the drive, at Deer River returned home last Monday.

Mrs. Peter Miline, left for a brief visit with her folks near Fosston the past week.

Bring your wool to the Singer store and they will pay you the highest market price for it.

Mr. and Mrs E..V Carlson, of Deer Park are visiting friends and relatives in Hill River this week.

Another heavy rain today will surly brighten up the years crop which is now in a splendid condition.

The wheat that was seeded on last years breaking is looking extra good in this locality, showing good strong land.

M.E. Hyland, and Hans Quam of Rhoda, were passengers on the Red Lake Flyer for Thief River Falls Wednesday.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Why not take your wife, and family, and have them see over a thousand pieces of fireworks, that will be displayed here in the eve ning of the coming fourth of July.

The Robecke boys, and Phillip Bryant, came up on the Dan Patch boat Monday last, on a fishing tour, the boys are camping in a tent at Henry Arnts place.

The new blacksmith shop at Rhoda is now complete, and its proprietor is now ready to do anything in that line of work and wooden work also.

Farmers, who are going to do fencing this spring should call on E. B. Laneger, at Plummer Pioneer Hardware Store, for all kinds of fencing. Will make prices right.

Ole Vattendahl returned home from Little Oak, Wednesday, wherefrom he rafted down enough lumber to build his ferry boat, across the Red Lake river, at his place.

W.G. Hunt left for Thief River and Red Lake Falls on Monday morning, on a business trip and took in the Republican County Convention at Red Lake Falls, as a delegate from the town of Highlanding.

Rev. E.A. Mostue, will hold religious services at the Rhoda school house on Sunday June 10, in the english language at 11 o'clock a.m., also will hold services in the Norwegin language at 11 45 a.m. all are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fuller, of Rochester Minn. came up last Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Walt McAndrees, Mrs. Fuller being a sister of Mrs. McAndrees. They will go from here to Pembina N.D. where Mr. Fuller has some business interests to look after.

JULY 4th,

There will be one of the best programs of sports for boys in the afternoon at Sunbeam, that will be seen in Red Lake County.

Be sure to be on hand boys and see the fun.

Basket picnic dinner under the shade trees beside the flowing river at Sunbeam July 4th.

Plenty of ice cream and lemonade at Sunbeam July 4th at prices within the reach of all.

CREAM WANTED.

We are now prepared to buy all your cream delivered at our store at the higest market price. Cream tested and weighed here, and you can also get your pay for it each week if desired. Give it a trial and we will assure you a fair treatment.

Singer Bros.,
Rhoda, Minn.,

WANTED: Men in each state to travel, post signs, advertise and leave samples of our goods. Salery $75,00 per month. $3,00 per day for expences.

Kuhlman Company.—Dept. S.
Atlas Block, Chicago

MONEY TO LOAN

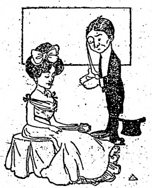
I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

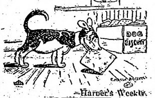
Pertinent Inquiry.



Sappy—I—aw—have an idea, doncher know, and—

Gladys—Excuse me, but are you quite certain of your ability to distinguish between ideas and wheels?

"A Square Meal."



—Harper's Weekly.

Liquid Metal Polish.

Take eight ounces of Spanish whiting, which must be perfectly free from grit, and put in one quart of gasoline. Shake up the whiting and gasoline thoroughly. You will notice the whiting settles immediately, leaving the liquid as clear as water. To remedy this and, further, to make it a better polishing agent, add to each quart of the mixture thirty-two drops of oleic acid—no more, no less. Shake again, and the whiting will not settle. Apply to gold, silver, nickel, brass, glass or any kind of metallic surface with a piece of cotton flannel, rubbing well. Polish with a piece of same cloth.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Waterproofing Dress Goods.

One of the most important processes used for waterproofing dress materials is on the lines of the old alumina process. In this case the factor used is rosin dissolved in a large bulk of petroleum spirit. The fabrics to be proceeded are passed through a bath of this solution and dried to drive off the solvent. Following this, the goods are treated by pressing with hot polished metal rollers. This last process melts the small quantity of rosin which is deposited on the cloth and leaves each single fiber with an exceedingly thin film of rosin on it.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Dobson—What became of that man who had twenty-seven medals for saving people from drowning? Dock Worker—He fell in one day when he had them all on, and the weight of 'em sunk him.

Only an Episode.

Mary—Uncle Ned, what's a honeymoon? Bachelor Uncle—The time between the marriage and the divorce.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Just as you are pleased at finding faults you are displeased at finding perfection.—Lavater.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Sense of Justice Displayed by a Governor's Grandson.

The small grandson of Governor Cummins of Iowa, a handsome and precocious child, has displayed an early and inherent conception of justice, which is illustrated by the following incident:

The boy is not permitted to eat doughnuts, but when visiting in the kitchen of a neighboring relative the cook presented him with one of these delicacies and he proceeded to eat it with perfect enjoyment.

No suspicion of his indulgence reached the ears of his family, and all would have gone well had not an overpowering sense of his obligations mastered the culprit. Curious investigations were the natural outcome when he said his usual prayer that night and then hesitatingly added this brief but incriminating petition:

"And—and please bless Aunt Cora's hired girl."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Souvenirs.

A visitor calling on an Irishman who had the credit of being a lively heckler at political meetings said, "What's that, Mike, that you have in the glass case?"

"Oh, that's the brick I got agin' my head at the last election."

"Oh! And what's that little flower on the top of it for?"

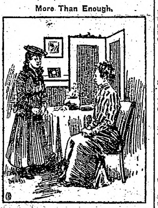
"That's the flower from the grave of the man who threw it."—London News.

Not Daunted.

"You will understand, sir," Dr. Price-Price began, "that I cannot undertake to cure your case without a diagnosis."

"That's all right," interrupted Nuritch haughtily. "I s'pose that's the medical word for 'fee in advance.' Name yer figger!"—Philadelphia Press.

More Than Enough.



"I fear you have not had enough experience."

"Not 'ad 'nuff experience? W'y, I've 'ad ten places in the last month."—London Tatler.

Almost an Insult.

"That suit you have on," said the chap who always talks whether he has anything to say or not, "is a dead ringer for one my brother has."

"Huh!" growled the fussy man. "What do you take me for—a clothes ringer?"—Houston Post.

Naturally.

Gunner—Yes, he is a champion golf player, and so is the girl he is going to marry. Not only that, the minister who will perform the ceremony is very fond of the game.

Guyer—Ah, I suppose he will be pleased to link them together.—Chicago News.

Bound to Crop Out.

"Yes, I believe I did say you were always lying about yourself."

"I'll have you to understand, sir, that I am not used to this kind of talk. I'm a gentleman, sir."

"There you go. Can't keep from it, can you?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Time to Get Busy.

Her Husband—I thought you were going to visit your mother?

His Wife—And so I am.

Her Husband—Well, you had better begin to pack your trunk at once. The train leaves in forty-eight hours.—Detroit Tribune.

Fixing the Blame.

"Do you believe in hoodoos?" asked the superstitious person.

"Well," answered the man who had failed to make good in a dozen different enterprises, "I've got to preserve my self respect, you know."—Detroit Free Press.

Immune.

"Young man," said the friendly adviser, "whatever you do, avoid debt."

"I guess that's what I'll have to do," was the answer, "unless my credit gets better."—Washington Star.

Not Always a Lobster.

"Do not judge a man too hastily when he gets into hot water," remarked the observer of events and things. "Others besides lobsters get in hot water."—Yonkers Statesman.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, 8.30 a. m. on Tuesday Thurday and Saturday, and also arrives at 3 p. m. on the same day.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication June 1st 1906.

Department of The Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1906 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E. No. 324 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Ovesen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hanstad, of Kuehnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.

Departmemt of the Interior, Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before he register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July 20th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. No. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn. William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 4th. 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. Apr. 28 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on June 20th 1906 viz;

Andrew J. Anderson.

H.E. No. 1130 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 153 N. R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hanson, Carl J. Anderson, Christopher Larson, all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bonnie P. Rustad,

H.E. No. 001, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole G. Skierland, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st 1906,

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th., 1906, viz:

Ole O. Stromme.

H.E. No. 521, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W

He names the following witinesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Albert Arntz, Anton Raker, of Brunkeberg, Minn. Morgan Vaugen, Peter Brachmann, of Germantown Minn.

R. . MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

Frst Pub. May 25th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May, 21st. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906. viz:

Albert Arntz.

H.E. No. 528, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Ole P. Stromme, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn. and Morgan Vaughan, and Peter Brachmann, of Germantown, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

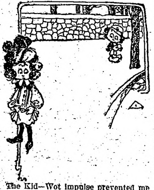
Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.
DeAlers,
In Groceries, flour,
FEED & DRY GOODs
We also carry A FULL LINE OF
BOOTS, & SHOES, DRUGS, ETC. HARD AND TINWARE.
Highest market price
PAID FOR YOUR
BUttER & Eggs.
Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Why Pay Cash
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $10.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE
Of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES,
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE
FURNITURE From $6.25 up.
We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.
Write for Information and Free Catalogue
THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
51-63 Randolph St, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A

A Fatal Symptom.



The Kid—Wot impulse prevented me from soakin' her wit' dis ole tomater? Kin it be I'm fallin' in love?—New York World.

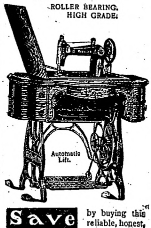
A Sad Feature.

Jack—Engagement is off, eh? Has she sent him back the ring? Tom—No; that's what's bothering him. He owes money on that ring.—New York Press.

Wouldn't Miss It.

Maid—Are you at home to Mrs. Toney, mum? She's at the door. Mistress—I am if she has a new hat on—not otherwise.—Exchange.

The "Redgeton"
SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.
STRONGEST GUARANTEE.
National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Charity.

She—I'm glad we went. It was an excellent performance—and for such a charitable purpose. Her Husband—Yes, indeed! We all feel a thrill of satisfaction when we do something for charity and get the worth of our money at the same time.—London Tit-Bits.

Intended.

Bills—You made a funny break in congratulating the bride's father instead of the groom. Wills—No, I didn't. I've a daughter, too, and I know what they cost.—Chicago Journal.

FAINTING SPELLS

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the Remedy Which Actually Makes New Blood.

Anæmia makes the patient short of breath so that there is often a sense of suffocation, sometimes there is a cough and the sufferer seems to be going into consumption, at others there is a murmur of the heart and heart disease is feared. In the following case severe fainting spells were an alarming symptom resulting from "too little blood."

Mrs. George Forrester, of 7 Curtis street, Watertown, N.Y., says: "Some time ago I took a heavy cold and it left me in a very weak condition. I became worse and worse until finally I had anæmia. I lost flesh and appetite, had no color and was subject to fainting spells. Sometimes they would attack me suddenly and I would fall to the floor with hardly any warning.

"I had one of our best physicians, but after he had been attending me about a month without any improvement in my condition, I decided to see what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills would do.

"The pills were well known to me for, about two years before, members of my family had taken them with the best results. I soon found that the pills were just what I needed for I soon began to notice an improvement. After I had taken them a while longer I was entirely cured, and we all believe in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and recommend them highly."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They do that one thing and they do it well. Impoverished blood is deficient in red corpuscles. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increase the number of these red corpuscles and in this way send health and strength to every tissue.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co.. Schenectady, N. Y.

PADEREWSKI'S BELLBOY.

Musical Youth Made a Hit with the Great Pianist by Playing His "Minuet."

Rosamond Johnson, of Cole & Johnson, composers of that once popular song, "Under the Bamboo Tree," once held a position as bellboy in Young's hotel in Boston. This place, says Success Magazine, he once nearly lost, through taking the liberty of playing Paderewski's "Minuet" for the great pianist. Paderewski, who was staying at that hotel, had rung for a bellboy, and young Johnson answered the call.

Being so fond of music, he made bold to ask the great composer and pianist to play the "Minuet" for him. Paderewski could not understand English then, and the boy thought from his gesticulations that he wished him to play it. So he sat down at the piano and commenced playing. Paderewski's manager happened to enter the room just then, and, enraged at the bellboy's presumption, threw him out of the room and went directly to the management and had him discharged.

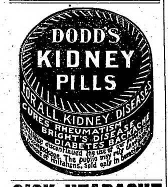
As soon as he learned what had been done, Paderewski, who had been pleased with the lad's playing, sent for the manager of the hotel and had Johnson reinstated in his position.

Willing to Oblige.

"Give me the city hall, please," said the lady to the conductor of the street car.

"I should be glad to do so, madam," replied the conductor, who was a new man and had been greatly impressed by the rules of the company, which insisted upon employes being courteous and obliging. "I should, indeed, be glad to do so, but the lady over there with the green feather in her hat asked for the city hall before you got on the car. Is there any other building that would suit you just as well?"—Detroit Free Press.

It's a queer fact that the higher a man rises the less chance he has of being above suspicion.—Puck.



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

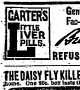
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.



MARSTON'S PROPOSAL

By MARGARET WESTRUP

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Sheila was perplexed. She rested her elbows on the table among the loose sheets of manuscript, and her chin in her hands and, staring out at the gray sky, tried to think how a young man should propose.

Suddenly she had an idea.

Being by nature as Irish as her name and eyes, she was impulsive, and choosing a clean sheet of paper, she dashed off the following letter:

"Dear Marston: How does a young man propose at all? In a letter, mind! No getting off with glances and half-words. I want a letter from an ordinary nice young Englishman, my hero, to my heroine, asking her to marry him. My imagination evidently fails to supply a correct letter, for the editor of 'The Crescent' (oh, Marston, think of me appearing in 'The Crescent')—well, he writes that he likes a short story of mine very much, and he thinks the plot original, but that I fail in depicting the hero's love for the heroine, more especially in the letter he writes to her to ask her to marry him.

"Now, I have an inspiration, Marston; could you write a proposal for me? Just as you think you would write to anyone you wanted to marry. You see, you're a man, and would know what to say, at any rate, better than I should; so you will help me, won't you? Yours,

"SHEILA DESMOND."

She posted it then and there.

The next afternoon when she returned to the rooms she shared with a fellow-writer she found his answer waiting for her. She pounced on it delightedly.

It ran thus:

"My Dear Sheila: After all I'm going to write it. I've tried so often to say it, and I never can screw up my courage. I want to ask you if you'll be my wife. I know you've never thought of me like that, and you're heaps too good for me, but I love you so I'd have to make you happy. I'd give my whole life to that. Won't you try and care for me a little, dear? You're just the world to me—everything's meaningless without you.

"Forgive me if I've startled you, dear. I'm but a clumsy brute, anyway."

"MARSTON HUGHES.

Marian, her friend, looked up from her letters first.

"Well," she said, "will it do?"

Sheila's head was still down, bent over the sheet of smudged note-paper.

"Yes," she said, slowly, "it will do. I must write and thank him this evening."

That evening Sheila dashed off a note:

"Dear Marston: Thanks for letter. I'm quite sorry for you—you do it so well! But it will do beautifully for the hero in my story. I could never have written one like it myself. I did not know you had so much eloquence. I'm sure it'll be compensation for your trouble when you see your letter in 'Molly, the Maid,' in 'The Crescent!' Yours sincerely,

"SHEILA DESMOND."

* * * * *

Sheila flung down her pen with an impatient sigh.

"Can't you get on?" Marian asked, sympathetically.

"No, Marian; will you come and see me when I'm in the workhouse?"

"Yes, dear, and bring you a bun in a paper bag."

"Aren't you mixing me up with the bears at the zoo?"

Marian eyed her thoughtfully.

"It's a pity you don't try to get on with that other story—'Molly, the Maid,'" she said. "You know the editor of 'The Crescent' will forget you. It's over three weeks since he sent your story back for you to alter."

"I think I'll go out," said Sheila, inconsequently.

Marian's eyebrows rose a little. She glanced out at the thin drizzle of rain falling from heavy gray skies.

"Beautiful day for a walk," she said.

Sheila went forth into the drizzle, a slim gray figure, and proceeded to try and walk herself into a suitable frame of mind. She shared Central Park with a workman for awhile, then even he went away, and apparently she had the park to herself.

Then she saw a tall figure approaching.

As he drew near he raised his hat.

"Oh, so you are back, Marston!" she cried, gayly. "Will you hold my umbrella while I shake hands with you?"

"I wouldn't think of troubling you."

There was a little pause of horror. Her face, pink as a rosebud from the damp air, was raised to his, like a child's who had been chidden for an unknown fault. But Sheila was not a child, so she smiled a stiff little smile and—

"It is a nuisance," she agreed, indifferently. "Isn't it a horrible day?"

"Yes."

There was a pause.

"Have you been in town long?" she asked.

"About three weeks."

"Then you have had your fill of this damp, close weather," she said, and, nodding her pretty head, she walked on.

Marston Hughes stood and watched the slim figure disappear into the gray mist.

That night in bed Sheila buried her head deep into her pillow and "Oh," she cried, "if I were in love a hundred times over I would never give up my old friends! Never, never!"

* * * * *

"I wonder why Marston Hughes never comes here now?" Marian said, thoughtfully.

Marian was trying at times.

But the white face opposite her smiled bravely on.

"Oh, he's a bad bhoy entirely, and 'tis the truth I'm telling you. For hasn't he gone and forgotten his ould friends, while he's afther courtin' the maid he loves?"

Once she met him in the street. It was a miserable foggy evening and she was coming home from an unsuccessful visit to an editorial sanctum.

"You've no business to be out in this fog alone!" he said, brusquely.

"I am on my way home," she said, coldly.

He said nothing. She remembered that he was always more prone to act than to talk. Anyway the next moment she found herself in a cab, with him beside her.

When he spoke his voice was harsh. "What have you been doing to yourself?" he said.

"N-nothing."

"I suppose you are overworking and under-eating. It's absurd. You're tired to death."

"My things—haven't had much luck lately," she said.

"All editors are fools," the energy of his tones brought an odd sense of comfort to her.

"Sometimes it's the contributors," she said, with a little laugh.

"Not in your case," with firm conviction.

"I'd bow, only it's so dark."

She talked on gayly, and then suddenly they were almost there. She gave a little breathles gasp: "Marston, why haven't you been to see me?"

Why didn't he answer? Oh, why had she said it? Yet it didn't seem much to do for old friendship's sake.

"I couldn't," he said, quietly.

* * * * *

The unhealthy close weather had changed; there was frost in the mornings now.

"It is bitterly cold out. Mind you put your thick things on," said Marian one morning as she hurried away.

Soon after Sheila slipped into her thick coat obediently. Marston had once approved of it; he had said the manliness of it on her was delightful.

She put her hand absently into one of the pockets, and drew out an envelope. Looking down at it the dreaminess in her eyes slowly gave place to a bewildered wonder. It was addressed in her own writing to Marston Hughes!

Slowly, with cold fingers that trembled and fumbled aggravatingly, she opened the envelope and took out the sheet of paper inside.

"Dear Marston," she read, "how does a young man propose at all?"

Suddenly she gave a little strangled sort of cry—a sob and laugh mingled in it. She sat down suddenly on the nearest chair; she trembled so that the sheet of note-paper shook in her hand. Then with a rush the joy and color came back to her face; she rose unsteadily and, going across to her writing-table, she unlocked a drawer and, taking from it a piece of note-paper scrawled over with thick smudgy writing, went back to her chair and read it through.

"It's mine," she whispered; "mine—all mine." She gave a little happy soft laugh and, leaning back, rested her cheek against the paper.

Then she dashed off an incoherent note:

"I want to see you at once. Oh, I am so sorry. Please come, Marston—do come at once.

"SHEILA."

He came about half-past three.

"You wanted to see me?" he said.

The cold courtesy of his tone braced her. When she answered her voice was as steady as his.

"I want to explain something," she said.

"Yes?"

There was a pause.

"I—you see—the editor of 'The Crescent'—he—he—I mean I sent a short story to him and he liked it, but—he—he said—"

She stopped and drew a deep breath.

"He said—my hero's love-making—was not real—and—and—specially—the—the letter he wrote—proposing—"

Across the silence this time his words cut sharply.

"I hope I helped you there."

Suddenly her fortitude gave way. A despairing little cry broke from her: "Oh, Marston, you're making it so hard for me!"

He was beside her in a moment. He took her hands in his.

"I'm sorry," he said, remorsefully; "come and sit down."

He settled her gently into a chair, put a cushion behind her head, then spoke softly:

"Now tell me, Sheila."

"I wrote to you—I asked you to write—see, here is the letter."

He took it and read it through, then glanced back to the date.

"Go on," he said. "You didn't post this. Why?"

His face was as white as hers now.

"I thought I had. I took it to the post—it was in my pocket—I—I remember now that there was a circular too—I was in a hurry—I went to the wrong pocket—I didn't notice in the dusk—"

"Sheila," he came close, his voice was hoarse, "you thought my letter was in answer to yours?"

"Yes."

"Then, Sheila, you didn't know mine was real?"

She shook her head.

He took her hands. "Then will you answer it now?"

And so she answered it for the second time.

DISFIGURING SKIN HUMOR.

Impossible to Get Employment, as Face and Body Were Covered with Sores—Cured by Cuticura.

"Since the year 1894 I have been troubled with a very bad case of eczema which I have spent hundreds of dollars trying to cure, and I went to the hospital, but they failed to cure me, and it was getting worse all the time. Five weeks ago my wife bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap, and I am pleased to say that I am now completely cured and well. It was impossible for me to get employment, as my face, head and body were covered with it. The eczema first appeared on the top of my head, and it had worked all the way around down the back of my neck and around to my throat, down my body and around the hips. It itched so I would be obliged to scratch it, and the flesh was raw. I am now all well, and I will be pleased to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all persons who wish a speedy and permanent cure of skin diseases. Thomas M. Rossiter, 290 Prospect Street, East Orange, N. J., Mar. 30, 1905."

THEN HE FELT STREAKED.

Hubby Was Too Obliging When There Wasn't Any Occasion for It.

A gentleman and his wife were sitting in one of the front rows in a theater. On the floor the man saw a large hat-pin with an amber head. The Chicago Daily News tells what he did with it.

Looking about him, he saw that two women and their escorts had just sat down. To one of the women he presented the pin. A shake of the head indicated that he had made a mistake.

Then he tried two ladies across the aisle. They seemed to be interested. The pin was a curiosity, and its amber of a unique carving. They hesitated, but handed the pin back.

Desperately, he began the search anew. Two ladies unattended seemed likely owners. To them also he showed the pin. They took it and enjoyed its pattern.

Just then the man felt a tug on his sleeve. It was his wife, and she remarked, "Why are you showing my hat-pin to strangers?"

Blushing, he went over to the ladies, who were still looking at the pin, and explained.

"It's my wife's pin," he said, but in such consciously guilty accents that the women handed it back with doubting smiles.

SCINTILLATIONS.

Double dealing ends in divided dividends.

Our seeking always secures His sending.

As soon as a nation becomes heartless its case is hopeless.

Codfish culture is never complete until conscience is killed.

Every time you put out any new life some old leaves drop off.

Slander is bad breath; its evidence applies only to its source.—Ram's Horn.

Nothing Alarming.

Next Door Neighbor—I was about to say—what's that terrible racket upstairs? Is somebody having a fit?

Mrs. Hewjams—No. That's John. He's rehearsing the speech he is going to deliver to-morrow before the Universal Peace society.—Chicago Tribune.

Only One Luxury at a Time.

Piggmus—I'm glad it is good form not to wear a watch with a dress suit.

Dismukes—Why?

"Because I never have both at the same time."—American Spectator.

Opportunity only knocks once; after that our friends do it.—Puck.

PERHAPS IT CURED HIM.

Maybe the Wife Had Been Out, Maybe Not, the Effect Was the Same.

Capt. Mark Casto was being congratulated on his gift of $1,500 from the Carnegie here fund for bravery in the wreck of the Cherokee, relates the New York Tribune.

"The gift was unexpected," said Capt. Casto with a modest smile. "It was as unexpected, though by no means as unpleasant, as the retort that a wife made to her husband when he came home at three o'clock in the morning.

"The man came home very quietly. In fact, he took off his shoes on the front doorstep. Then he unlocked the door and went cautiously and slowly upstairs on his tiptoe, holding his breath.

"But light was streaming through the keyhole of the door of the bed room. With a sigh he paused. Then he opened the door and entered.

"His wife stood by the bureau fully dressed.

"'I didn't expect you'd be sitting up for me, my dear,' he said.

"'I haven't been,' she said. 'I just came in myself.'"

Young Men and Mechanics Wanted for the Navy.

Young men between the ages of 17 and 25 are enlisted as apprentice seamen. Electricians, machinists, plumbers and fitters, coppersmiths, boilermakers, shipwrights (carpenters), yeomen (clerks), firemen, musicians, cooks, etc., between the ages of 21 and 35, hospital apprentices 18 to 25. Pay $16 to $70 a month, according to rating. Good opportunity for advancement. No expenses for board, lodging, medicine and medical attendance. Clothing amounting to $45 free on first enlistment. Term of enlistment four years. Retirement after 30 years' service on three-fourths pay. Must be American citizens of good character and physically sound. Address Navy Recruiting Station, Post Office building, Minneapolis, Minn., or Post Office Building, St. Paul, Minn.

Only Wanted a Square Deal.

"Prisoner," said the judge, "stand up. Have you anything to say why judgment of the court should not be pronounced against you?"

"I'd like to say, your honor," answered the prisoner, "that I hope you will not allow your mind to be prejudiced against me by the poor defense my lawyer put up for me. I'll take it as a great favor if your honor will just give me the sentence I'd have got if I had pleaded guilty in the first place."—Chicago Tribune.

He Pitied Them.

A little boy was on his first country excursion, relates the Brooklyn Citizen. Some birds were flying high overhead, and his hostess, a young woman, said:

"Look up, Tommy. See the pretty birds flying through the air."

Tommy looked up quickly, and then he said in a compassionate tone:

"Poor little fellers! They ain't got no cages, have they?"—Detroit Free Press.

Troubles of Spring Days.

These are the days when the old hen gets in her work assisting the radishes to come up; when the house dog begins a system of excavating in the flower beds and when the neighbor's old cow walks leisurely across the freshly prepared lawn. — Chapman (Kan.) Outlook.

FITS, St. Vitus Dance and all Nervous Diseases permanently cured by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for Free $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ld., 931 and 933 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa

Don't think that a man is slouchy because he doesn't wear fine clothes. Perhaps he has a family of daughters.

A CRITICAL PERIOD

INTELLIGENT WOMEN PREPARE

Dangers and Pain of This Critical Period Avoided by the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs A.E.G.Hyland

How many women realize that the most critical period in a woman's existence is the change of life, and that the anxiety felt by women as this time draws near is not without reason?

If her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy or congestion of any organ, it is at this time likely to become active and, with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden.

At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to begin their destructive work. Such warning symptoms as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, dizziness, headache, dread of impending evil, sounds in the ears, timidity, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life when woman's great change may be expected.

We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the world's greatest remedy for women at this trying period.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism, and builds up the weakened nervous system as no other medicine can.

Mrs. A. E. G. Hyland, of Chestertown, Md., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham, says:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had been suffering with a displacement for years and was passing through the change of life. I had a good deal of soreness, dizzy spells, headaches, and was very nervous. I wrote you for advice and commenced treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as you directed, and I am happy to say that all those distressing symptoms left me, and I have passed safely through the change of life a well woman."

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful to ailing women.

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

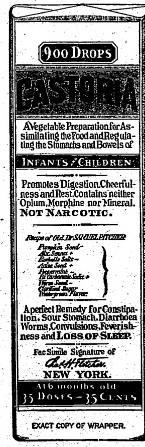
Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

PLUMBING SCHOOL

WE TEACH YOU THE PLUMBING TRADE. Pays best wages, insures steady work, makes you independent. Write today. PLUMBING SCHOOL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

PATENTS

Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." (Established 1864.)

MILO B. STEVENS & CO. [illegible] 14th St., Washington, D. C.

PENSIONS

Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1906. NO. 11.

IN AND ABOUT THE METROPOLIS

Sleeping in the Parks Rather Hard on These Places--Not Exactly the Beginning of Socialism.

NEW YORK.—The metropolis is fairly along in its outdoor period of the year, and whether any considerable proportion of 4,000,000 people live outdoors or in is a matter of great pictorial significance. The aspect of the city changes wonderfully.

Also the outdoor period brings with it many problems. The department of health sits up night over new questions—they are always new, old as they are. Those having a care for street encumbrances are hard pressed. Officials assigned to prevent the crowding of fire-escapes with things that fire-escapes were not built to hold are on their rounds of inspection. Possibly more laws are broken in summer than in winter, and more officials are out of town or are tired in summer than at other times.

New York police justices continue in an increasing degree to temper the wind to the shorn lamb. Hucksters, peddlers and beggars are leniently dealt with.

Just now the police are much puzzled by the new ruling of Magistrate Crane and others. The other day a man was arrested for sleeping in the park and for being definitely disrespectful to the grass and bushes. The magistrate discharged him.

"The parks belong to the people," he said.

This scene has been repeated. Last summer in the height of the worst hot spell New York ever had the rules as to public places were temporarily suspended. Possibly they will never again be as rigid as they were. The thousands of people who took up their beds and went to sleep in Central park found it a pleasant experience, though it was said by the commissioner to be rough on the park.

This year those who may choose to sleep in the park, or in minor squares, are not likely to be severely punished for doing so, nor is there likely to be a very severe discrimination between those who leave a room to try the park grass and those who are simply tramps and have no other place. If it comes to the pinch the new socialistic spirit may give the tramp particular benefit of the doubt.

A TELEPHONE SYSTEM THAT WILL HAVE NO "LEAKS."

The fight over the telephone question, one that is costing both the holders of the present system and the advocates of the new one a great deal of money by way of advertising, is still on and seems a good way from settlement. It is the same contest that has been taken up in many parts of the country.

After all New York is very conservative—to put the case mildly. A new thing is not certain of having its first chance in the metropolis. Most of its experiments are with "sure things."

Speaking of telephone reminds me of the new switchboard which is likely to be revolutionary, since it will accomplish no less a feat than shutting the telephone out of the conversation.

In the new switchboard wires and plugs are so arranged that when the operator has connected the subscriber with the number he wants the conversation is to be heard by the two parties in interest and by them only. If the telephone girl sought to listen she must break the connection.

The value of this secret telephone system in the case of big institutions in Wall street and out of Wall street, which have their own "Central," will be apparent. Neither the central office nor the local switchboard central is taken into any secrets. Thus a message may be inviolate in its secrecy beyond either the present telephone system or the telegraph system, both of which are notoriously subject to "leaks."

THE ATHLETIC EVIL AND EXERCISE FOR THE WORKING GIRL.

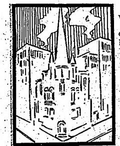
While New York has been whooping it up for Martin Sheridan, the mighty cop who hurled the discus to victory at the Olympic games, and for some of his fellow members of the American team —a large number of them Irish, by the way—some of the athletic incidents at Vassar and other girls' colleges have been provoking discussion here, especially in view of the remarks on athletics for girls made by Mayor Van Dyck, principal of the Woodward high school, Cincinnati, O. Vassar has never regarded bloomers as improper. In fact it had begun to appear that no one remained would condemn the "gym" costume so often commented upon as an ideal costume for women, leaving athletics out of the question. The protest comes from Mount Holyoke, from Smith, from Wellesley, that the good athlete is not a bad student, that some of the cleverest athletic girls are some of the cleverest students.

Naturally the girl students themselves are ready to protest. Martha Gardiner, of Vassar, for example, insists that her healthy interest in athletics helped rather than hindered her with her studies, that she broke the hurdle record without losing flesh or "points." The same is true of Dorothy Clarke, who broke the record in the running high jump.

Only a few girls, as only a few men, have the opportunity for specializing in athletics, but all alike are interested in a kind of life very different from that led by the average wage-earning girl in the metropolis.

Who will suggest a really practicable remedy?

THE PARKHURST CHURCH, OLD—NEW.



Another New York landmark is to go, and will begin going in a few days. It will be a little harder to recognize Madison Square without the old Madison Square Presbyterian church, better known to New Yorkers and to sightseers as Parkhurst's church. The valuable corner occupied by the edifice in which so many pungent words have been spoken by the American Isaiah, was wanted by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company whose stately building occupies all the remainder of the block. By an arrangement with the church society the company built a new church on the opposite corner, facing the square as does the old church.

This new church, now complete, is a remarkable example of the modern tendency in church architecture. It is a complete return to the Greek temple style, without spire, turret or tower. A beautiful series of columns occupy the Fourth avenue front. On the Twenty-fourth street side are reading rooms, Sunday school rooms, etc. Altogether the new church may be regarded as a happy addition to the city's best architectural types, although the conservatives are ready to say that it doesn't look so much like a church as the old home does.

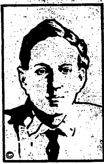
Dr. Parkhurst himself has sailed for Europe and his pulpit is now occupied by his assistant, Rev. Dr. Montgomery. Dr. Parkhurst, after a brief sojourn in Wales, will go to his summer home in Switzerland. He is accompanied by Mrs. Parkhurst.

The doctor's departure coincides with the announcement of a new vice crusade for this city. There was a time when this energetic preacher was in the forefront of any such movement that was really to accomplish something.

OWEN LANGDON.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

UPTON SINCLAIR, AUTHOR OF "THE JUNGLE"



There is no more widely-talked-of book today than this recent instance in the "literature of exposure," "The Jungle," the book which has led to a government investigation of conditions in the Chicago stockyards. And of course people are asking many questions about the author.

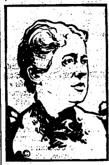
It seems unnecessary to mention that "The Jungle" is not Upton Sinclair's first book—one does not learn to write like that in a day. But it is the first one of his books that has made a tremendous sensation. We have hazy remembrance "The Journal of Arthur Stirling" received comment as an unusual production, but "The Jungle" has made everybody start, has amazed, disgusted, aroused—interested. Upton Sinclair is known, will not soon be forgotten.

Upton Sinclair is young and strenuous, we may class him with Frank Norris in the devotion of tremendous youthful energy to art, to an ideal. "The Jungle" was not written easily, facilely, but in the sweat of brow, in travail and pain. In reading the author's own account of how the book was worked out, one is reminded of Joseph Conrad's "Youth"—Youth that dares and struggles and attains. Youth often makes mistakes, but it is Youth that dares and struggles and attains.

Upton Sinclair is only 28 years old. Baltimore is his birthplace. He was graduated at the College of the City of New York, and studied at Columbia university. Once it would have seemed a far cry from university to Packingtown, but the university man of the present exalts the real, aims at seeing life first hand—this the day of original research rather than bookishness. To write "The Jungle" the author had to steep himself in Packingtown (horrible phrase!), dwell in the thick of the smells and degradation, find entrance to the many corners not open to that strange public that counts it tourist duty to make a tour of the places where creatures are killed and turned into meat. It was socialist friends that obtained Mr. Sinclair to entrance to the forbidden corners, and we may mention that Mr. Sinclair is vice president of the Intercollegiate Socialist society.

Sinclair books previous to "The Jungle," are "Springtime and Harvest," "King Midas," "The Journal of Arthur Stirling," "Prince Hagen, a Phantasy," "Manasses, a Novel of the War," "Our Bourgeoise Literature," "The Industrial Republic Series."

A POPULAR WOMAN WRITER

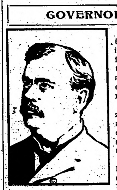


Margaret Sangster is a household name, familiar to mother and daughter, affectionately regarded the country across. The regard may be of a different quality from that felt for Louise Alcott—whose place perhaps will never be filled—but it is sincere and, as we said, general. Her latest book, "Radiant Motherhood," will but add to the audience and popularity.

For many years Mrs. Sangster has been sending forth her words of cheery, sensible counsel to girls and women, and not a whit of the cheeriness and sound good sense has abated with time. At the age of 68 years, in ripe experience and one of those that "keep at day the joy of dawn," Margaret Sangster continues in harness, energy and spirit still youthful.

Margaret Sangster was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., married at 20, and began contributing to the periodicals when quite young. For awhile she was associate editor of Hearth and Home, for several years member of the editorial staff of the Christian at Work and Christian Intelligencer. She acted as postmistress for Harper's Young People, since 1894 has been staff contributor of the Christian Herald and since 1889 of the Ladies' Home Journal. From 1889-99 Mrs. Sangster held the responsible position of editor of Harper's Bazar. Her pen is a prolific one; besides contributions to periodicals and the writing of numberless newspaper articles, Margaret Sangster is the author of several books.

GOVERNOR OF THE CANAL ZONE

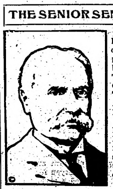


Secretary Taft has instructed Gov. Magoon that armed interference may be called into play in suppression of any revolutionary movements in Panama interfering with progress of work on the Panama canal. It is to be hoped, for the sake of avoidance of heated debate as well as in the interests of peace, that such interference will not be necessary.

Gov. Magoon, who is governor of the canal zone, has had considerable experience in Panama affairs. He previously served as a member of the canal commission, and in addition to his duties as governor represents our country as minister to Panama.

Gov. Magoon hails from the west. He was born in Minnesota, attended the high school at Owatonna, Minn., and continued his studies at the University of Nebraska. In 1882 he was admitted to the bar, and at once began the practice of law. He was judge advocate of the Nebraska National Guard, and later we find him at Washington law officer of the bureau of insular affairs in the department of war. In 1904 he was made general counsel of the isthmian canal commission; since May 25 of last year has held the post of governor of the canal zone; in July was appointed American minister to Panama.

THE SENIOR SENATOR FROM RHODE ISLAND



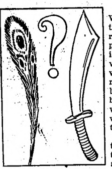
Piteous tales come to our ears of men in the limelight that shrink from publicity, public observance of their every move and act. There is poor old John Rockefeller afraid to go to Europe because he has to go by boat—which is so public. Then there is Senator Aldrich whom the "exposers" have been after lately with might and main. Then think of being the daughter of Senator Aldrich and daughter-in-law of Rockefeller—as is Mrs. John Rockefeller, Jr.

But it is the father who is our theme, and let us to consideration of the senior senator from Rhode Island—whom David Graham Phillips mildly names the organizer of the treason of the senate. That Mr. Aldrich is a power in the senate there is no disputing; he is chairman of the chief committee—finance; he also sits in the powerful interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Aldrich began life as clerk in a grocery store. He still is in the grocery business—wholesale—now has a lot of money. He has always been actively interested in politics, long been prominent both in state and national politics. As leader his qualities have brought him to the fore; he rarely takes part in debate. Back in 1869 (from 1869-75) he was member of the Providence (R. I.) common council, for a couple of years served as its president. Next he progresses to the Rhode Island general assembly, becomes speaker of the state house of representatives. In 1876 he is elected to the federal house of representatives, reelected in 1880, but resigns to take a seat in the senate. He has been in the senate 25 years.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Wu Ting Fang Booked for Retirement --Aided Us at Time of the Boxer Troubles--Good Salad Story.



WASHINGTON.—There is much regret felt in Washington over the news that comes from Peking that former Minister Wu Ting-fang is about to retire from public life and participation in oriental politics. Mr. Wu's efforts to introduce modern ideas in the government of China have not been very successful and he is now on a journey to visit the tombs of his father's, preparatory to retiring on his fortune at Shanghai. There have been strong hopes among Mr. Wu's old friends here that this shrewd, forceful Chinese statesman would be able to engraft some of the modern western ideas upon the conservatism of the Celestial Kingdom.

The departure of Minister Wu from Washington is still well remembered. He had been a particularly conspicuous figure in diplomatic circles and had made a place that none of his predecessors had ever been able to reach. He had adapted himself to American ways and manners and only remained a Chinaman in religion and dress. It looked as though Mr. Wu was having everything his own way and that he was establishing a bond between the two governments that was bound to result to the benefit of both.

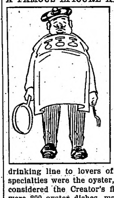
The minister, who had become extremely popular in a social way and whose face was the most familiar of any foreigner's in official circles, did not know when that summons came whether he was to be decorated with a peacock feather or to have his head lopped off his shoulders at the crooking of the finger of the queen dowager. He did not question the order, but obeyed.

FORMER MINISTER WU TING-FANG MANY-SIDED CHARACTER.

Mr. Wu was a many-sided character and excited both confidence and distrust during his stay in Washington as the representative of China. There were many diplomats who were disposed to regard with suspicion every move made by the Chinaman and especially to look askance upon his cultivation of Americans. There were some officials in our government who had a similar feeling. But away up in the highest ranks of the administration, with the late President McKinley and the late Secretary of State John Hay, Mr. Wu was received with confidence. Mr. Hay was very fond of this brilliant oriental and never had cause to regret placing trust in him.

One of the most interesting chapters in the history of the Boxer troubles in 1900 was the faithfulness of Mr. Wu and the manner in which he made good all promises. When weeks had passed without a word from Minister Conger at Peking, and when the very worst was expected, Minister Wu went to the state department and quietly informed Mr. Hay that he would undertake to get a message through to Minister Conger and get a reply. Some other government officials advised against trusting the Chinaman with such a message, but Mr. Hay replied that he believed in Mr. Wu and was willing to trust him. The message was written and given to Mr. Wu, and within a week a reply was received, though the same channels, from Minister Conger, written in code and bearing every evidence of authenticity, all of which was afterwards proven to be absolutely correct.

A FAMOUS EPICURE AND FAMOUS RESTAURANT.



Next in interest to the "passing of Wu" to old Washingtonians is the passing of George Washington Harvey, one of the most famous epicures and restaurant keepers this city ever knew. The name of Harvey is cotemporary with that of the late John Chamberlain, prince of hosts and entertainers and bon vivant of international reputation. Harvey's has been known for 50 years as the one place in Washington where the best of sea food could always be relied upon. It was he that made "steamed oysters" famous the country through. His broiled lobster and diamond back terrapin were no less noted and strangers in the capital city never felt that their visit was complete without taking a meal at Harvey's famous restaurant.

Harvey has sold out his business and has retired. He is a little short and very fat old man, who for 50 years has catered in the eating and drinking line to lovers of good victuals. He has often said that his three specialties were the oyster, the canvas back duck and the terrapin. These he considered the Creator's finest gifts to mankind. On his bill of fare there were 200 oyster dishes, many of which could not be duplicated in any other place. It was the height of bliss for Harvey to be given an order to prepare a good dinner for some of his congenial spirits. He would select the oysters, grown in his own special beds in the Chesapeake, then he would pick a diamond back terrapin which now sell for $100 a dozen and finally would pick out the canvas back duck. With these three dishes George Harvey would construct a banquet that would make Lucullus' mouth water.

There was nobody in Washington in Harvey's time who was a better judge of terrapin than he. No one could impose upon him the Pennsylvania terrapin that are as plentiful as snapping turtles. He would have none but the real article, the diamond back from Maryland waters.

A LANDLORD OF THE GOOD OLD KIND.

Harvey was an old-fashioned landlord who liked to wander among his guests at the table and see that they were well cared for. He was an artist in the preparation of sauces and often he would waddle up to a guest and drop into the latter's plate a spoonful of some ingredient in order to give just the right touch to the sauce. When terrapin was being cooked he always stood by and saw that the dressing was just right and then, if he knew the people who were to eat the toothsome dish, he would bring out some of his old rare wine that he kept just for his friends.

Like John Chamberlain of blessed gastronomical memory, Harvey numbered among the patrons of his restaurant the most noted men in public life for the last half century. In his early days he and Thomas Nast, the great cartoonist, formed the Canvas Back club and gave some notable feasts. Roscoe Conkling, James G. Blaine, the late President Harrison, Blackburn, of Kentucky, and a host of other well-known public men, were glad to stretch their legs under George Harvey's table.

Harvey went to Paris a few years ago and, someone sounding his praises as an expert in making a salad dressing, two French epicures, who believed themselves masters of that art, challenged the Washingtonian to a contest. The challenge was accepted and the contest came off in a restaurant. After each one had mixed his dressing Harvey took a small leather case out of his pocket, picked out a little bottle and let a drop or two of colorless liquid fall on the salad. The judges decided in favor of his dressing as they maintained that the last ingredients gave it an indefinable aroma. When Harvey was asked by his friends afterwards what he had dropped into the salad, he said: "Nothing but a little plain water out of the pump. I knew the Frenchmen were imaginative and I thought I would appeal to them. Apparently I did."

EIGHT MINERS DIE FROM WHITE DAMP

DEADLY VAPOR ACCUMULATES IN MONTANA SHAFT FOLLOWING FIRE.

Men Who Descended to Rescue Companions Made Prisoners by Flames Are Brought to Surface Martyrs to Heroism.

Anaconda, Mont., June 8.—One of the most serious accidents in the history of coal mining in Montana has occurred in the mines of the Northern Pacific at Rocky Fork, near Red Lodge, Carbon county.

Eight men are dead, all victims of the deadly white damp that filled the corridors of the mine after the fire which started Wednesday. Their bodies have been recovered, but the story of the work of rescue parties is a tale of unexcelled bravery and heroic self-sacrifice.

Of the dead, two were members of one of the parties that entered the mine in the effort to reach the men known to be there. The dead:

Terrance Fleming.
William Bailey.
Mike Gabriage.
Thomas Skelley.
Al McFate.
Matt Reikka.
Roy Carey.
Joe Bracey.

Carey and Bracey were of the rescue party.

Aged Woman Drops Dead.

As Bailey's body was brought up his aged mother, who was at the pit mouth, dropped dead from the shock.

J. Balyard and Thomas Atherton were taken out alive, but are in a critical condition.

The fire which caused the trouble started in incline No. 6 Wednesday. This was believed to be under control, after a long, hard fight. At 7:30 Thursday morning the rescue party started down No. 6 incline, proceeding cautiously, as it was found that there were still traces of the fire. When they reached a depth of 1,200 feet all were overcome. Seven managed to struggle back to whire they could be reached.

Victims of Cyclones.

St. Paul, Minn., June 8.—Six dead, many seriously injured and thousands of dollars' worth of property blown away, briefly summarizes the effects of the storms which Wednesday devastated sections of Minnesota and Wisconsin. There were two separate storms, one in southern Minnesota and western Wisconsin, and one in the northern part of Minnesota, which also swept over into Wisconsin. The dead are:

Near Stoddard, Wis., Halvor J. Halvorson.

Near Caledonia, Minn., Mrs. Peter Meyers and two children.

Near North Branch, Minn., Mr. Engdahl, Sr., and Andrew H. Olson, the latter killed by lightning.

Fortunately the storms did not strike any large town, but the devastation wrought in the rich farming country through which they passed is said to be something awful. Substantial brick and frame dwellings and barns were literally blown into fragments and scattered for hundreds of yards around the country.

Sunrise, Minn., a little town of 800 inhabitants, fears for the safety of which were expressed on account of lack of communication, escaped uninjured. The storm devastated the country about three miles from the village, wrecking many houses and injuring a number of people. The large new frame house of William Stevens was blown to kindling wood and Stevens and his wife seriously but not fatally hurt.

The tornado then turned into the direction of the farm of M. W. Deming, and destroyed every building on the place. His wife and nine children took refuge in the root cellar and escaped.

After passing Sunrise, the storm struck northeasterly into Wisconsin, going through a heavily timbered section. A road 100 feet wide was cut through the timber as far as the St. Croix river.

There was considerable damage done to sawmill property near Nevers, Wis., but no lives were lost.

Bad Storm in Iowa.

Decorah, Ia., June 8.—Between four and five o'clock Wednesday a tornado passed a section of Winneshelk county doing much damage and injuring a number of people.

Within a radius of a few miles of Locust, a post office 12 miles north not less than $50,000 damage has resulted.

At Edward Thorson's, the barn and residence were destroyed and all the people in the house were injured. The youngest son was buried in the ruins of the house and when rescued was found to be in a serious condition.

At Kittie Sorenson's the barn and windmill were blown away.

On the farm tenanted by Eldine Ellingson, the house, two barns and outbuildings were demolished.

Mrs. Carrie Luros and Puis Larson each lost a barn and D. T. Manning's residence was blown away.

Tornado Kills Laborer.

Plainwell, Mich., June 8.—Sweeping a path one mile and a quarter wide for a distance of three miles Thursday night a tornado that struck the villages of Martin and Montoith, respectively six miles and four miles north of here, killed William West, a farm laborer, aged 54, seriously injured several others and did much damage to stock and farm buildings and uprooted a number of large orchards.

JOHN C. NEW DEAD OF DROPSY

HAD HELD MANY POSITIONS OF HONOR AND TRUST.

Was United States Treasurer, Assistant Secretary of Treasury and Consul General to London.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5.—John C. New died Monday afternoon at 5:10 of dropsy. Around his bedside were his wife, his son, Harry S. New, vice chairman of the national Republican committee, and his daughter, Mrs. Ernest H. Burford, of this city. Another daughter, Mrs. W. R. McKean, Jr., is on route here from her home at Omaha, Neb.

Mr. New had been sick for nearly a year. He was born in 1831 at Vernon, Ind. He was educated at Bethany college, Va., and studied law in the office of former Gov. Wallace, of Indiana. He served a term as clerk of Marion county, and was appointed by Gov. Oliver P. Morton, Indiana's war governor, quartermaster genral during the civil war. He served a term in the state senate and entered the banking business. In 1875 President Grant appointed him United States treasurer, which position here signed the following year when he bought the Indianapolis Journal, of which he was proprietor for many years. He was chairman of the Indiana Republican committee during the campaign of 1876, and in 1882 President Arthur appointed him assistant secretary of the treasury. He resigned this position in 1884, when, as state chairman, he took charge of the campaign in Indiana. He was the personal political manager of Benjamin Harrison, and when Mr. Harrison was nominated for the presidency in 1888 Mr. New was appointed consul-general at London. At this time he transferred his interests in the Indianapolis Journal to his son, Harry S. New, now vice chairman of the Republican national committee. Mr. New was prominent in the Republican national convention at Minneapolis in 1892 which renominated Gen. Harrison for the presidency. Mr. New devoted the last ten years of his life to his property interests in this city.

SENATOR BURTON RESIGNS

Foster Dwight Coburn Is Tendered Appointment by Gov. Hoch, of Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., June 5.—Foster Dwight Coburn, the widely known agriculturist, was appointed United States senator by Gov. E. W. Hoch late Monday afternoon to succeed J. Ralph Burton, who resigned Monday morning. Mr. Coburn has not definitely accepted the appointment. Mr. Coburn was not a candidate for the appointment, nor has he been a candidate for the election to the senate seat to be filled by the legislature next year. Mr. Coburn was born in Jefferson county, Wisconsin, in 1846. He served in two Illinois regiments during the civil war and settled in Kansas in 1867. He has served for the past 16 years as secretary of the Kansas state board of agriculture, and is well known all over the world for his agricultural reports. Mr. Coburn's home is in Kansas City, Kan. He was a commissioner of live stock exhibits at the St. Louis exposition in 1904.

Work of Supreme Court.

Washington, June 7.—A review of the business of the supreme court of the United States for the term 1905-06, which has just closed, shows that 463 cases, or 61 more than in the previous term, were disposed of. Four hundred and eighty-eight cases were added during the term and 305 cases are still in the docket. For the first time in 35 years the court reached cases in the regular call within 11 months of the date of filing.

Death Caused by Shock.

St. Louis, June 7.—Heart disease caused the death Wednesday of Theodore Bruere, president of the St. Charles Savings bank, but his friends declare that the shock suffered by Bruere when he discovered that the bank's funds had been embezzled by Cashier Anton Mispagel was indirectly the cause of death. Mispagel was recently convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

Would Bar Women from Working.

London, June 8.—The seventeenth miners' international congress at its session Wednesday adopted motions demanding the passage of laws totally prohibiting the employment of women in the mining industry, the employment of children under 14 years of age, and the employment of boys under 16 in underground work. These motions were supported by the American delegates.

Business Houses Burned.

Ashley, O., June 7.—Fire that broke out in the Knights of Pythias hall in the Dugan block early Wednesday morning, was not extinguished until three business houses had been destroyed and three badly damaged, causing a total loss of $50,000. Only the most heroic work on the part of the volunteer fire department saved the entire business section of the town from being wiped out.

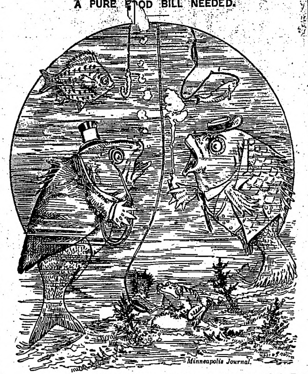
Ohio Bank Closed.

Zanesville, O., June 7.—The Farmers and Merchants' Savings bank, in Roseville, Muskitgum county, closed its doors Tuesday. It is said that the depositors will be paid in full. No statement is given out as to the cause of the closing, or of the assets.

Senator Crane to Wed.

Washington, June 7.—The engagement of Senator W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, and Miss Josephine P. Boardman, of this city, is announced.

A PURE FOOD BILL NEEDED.



Minneapolis Journal.

The Bass—It's a Blamed Shame Congress Don't Pass That Pure Food Bill. You Can't Get a Frog Now-a-Days Without Fishhooks in Him.

The Crappy—And Minnows Are Just as Bad.

STATION AGENT IS ALSO COAL SELLER

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD EMPLOYE AT MILTON, PA., ADMITS GRAFT JOB.

Witness Before Interstate Commerce Body Vindicates Ex-President Thomson — Hint at Trial for Cassatt.

Philadelphia, June 9.—W. G. Spangler, local agent of the Pennsylvania railroad at Milton, Pa., was the first witness before the interstate commerce commission Friday. Spangler testified that in addition to his duties as railroad agent he also acted as sales agent for the Keystone Coal and Coke company. He said that the greater portion of the coal tonnage for Milton had been shipped over the line to the Reading company until he became sales agent for the coal company, when the Pennsylvania's tonnage was increased about 1,000 tons monthly. He was made sales agent after a conference with Robert K. Cassatt, and his appointment was made with the knowledge and consent of H. B. Lincoln, division superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad at Milton. He received a commission of 2½ cents a ton from the Keystone Coal and Coke company.

Milton is a manufacturing town and most of the bituminous coal used by the factories came from the Beech Creek district, on the lines of the New York Central railroad. The Keystone Coal and Coke company's operations are located in the Gronsburg district on the Pennsylvania railroad line.

Former President Vindicated.

J. McLellan, of Blairsville, Pa., the first witness at the afternoon session of the interstate commerce hearing, who appeared voluntarily, said he came to Philadelphia to vindicate former President Frank Thomson, of the Pennsylvania railroad. McLellan said that while he was in the employ of the railroad company he had been offered a "block of stock" by Capt. Alfred Hicks, who was about to organize a mining company. Witness said he wrote to Mr. Thomson asking his advice in the matter, and that Mr. Thomson had advised him "not to take the stock," that "honor is worth more than all the stock you can acquire." McLellan produced Mr. Thomson's letter, which was dated June 13, 1894. Previous witnesses before the commission testified that Mr. Thomson sanctioned the acceptance of gifts to employes of coal companies.

Joseph K. Aikens, chief clerk to the superintendent of the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania railroad, was dismissed Friday by direction of President Cassatt. In his testimony Thursday before the interstate commerce commission Aikens said that while his salary had averaged between $30 and $126 per month, he owned nearly $75,000 worth of coal stock. He admitted having received checks from coal companies and also gifts from company stores.

When President Cassatt's statement that he is willing to be summoned before the interstate commerce commission was shown to Commissioners Cockrell and Clements they issued a statement in which they said:

"There is nothing that stands in the way of Mr. Cassatt making any statement he may desire to make before the commission at any time. If his presence is called for by invitation or any other way we suppose he would come under the immunity clause."

President Cassatt's statement says that he awaits the call of the commission, to which he will be glad to respond promptly. He explains he informed the commission of his intention to go to Europe, and suggested that they call him, if they so desired, before he went.

GORMAN IS LAID TO REST

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD OVER LATE MARYLAND SENATOR.

Vice President Fairbanks Among Many Prominent Persons in Attendance.

Washington, May 8.—With simplicity and complete absence of ostentation, in accordance with his expressed wish, the funeral services of the late Senator Arthur Pue Gorman, of Maryland, took place in this city Thursday at 11 o'clock from his late residence. Before the services began many prominent men, including Vice President Fairbanks and nearly all of Senator Gorman's closest political associates in Maryland, as well as colleagues from the senate and house, in addition to members of the congressional committees, were afforded an opportunity to view the body. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, among them being a large wreath of water lilies and ferns from President Roosevelt, an immense wreath and orchids, lilies of the valley, roses and other flowers from the senate, and a large wreath of red roses from Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia.

Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of the New York avenue Presbyterian church, which Senator Gorman attended, officiated. The service, which was brief, consisting of Scriptural reading, an impressive address, a prayer by Rev. Frederick D. Powers, pastor of the Vermont avenue Christian church, and benediction by Dr. Radcliffe, was held in the presence of about 100 persons, including relatives, the committees of congress, Vice President Fairbanks, Gov. Warfield of Maryland, and 14 active and honorary pallbearers chosen from among Senator Gorman's political friends in Maryland.

The body was placed in a vault in Oak Hill cemetery temporarily. The services at the vault consisted of prayer and the committal.

INDIANA MINE STRIKE ENDS

Operators Are Said to Have Yielded to Demands of Men for Scale of 1903.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 8.—An agreement which will end the coal strike which has been on in the Eleventh U. M. W. A. district since April 1, was reached by the scale committee of the Indiana miners and operators at a session held Thursday afternoon.

Details of the understanding reached have not been made public, but it is understood the men get the 1903 scale which they demanded when they went out. On their side, it is stated they agree to some changes in mining conditions to which the operators objected.

Leading operators and miners when asked if there was any likelihood of the agreement meeting with opposition in the convention, said that in past joint conventions a case had not been known where the scale committee reported an agreement that was not accepted and it is regarded as certain that the same action will be taken this time.

INDIANA INDORSES BRYAN.

Nebraska Man Is Choice of Democratic Convention for President in 1903.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 8.—Democrats of Indiana in convention Thursday adopted a platform strongly indorsing William J. Bryan for the presidency and selected a state ticket as follows:

For secretary of state, James F. Cox, Columbus; for auditor of state, Marion Bailey, Liseon; treasurer of state, John Isenbarger, North Manchester; for attorney general, Walter J. Lotz, Muncie; for clerk of supreme court, Bert New, North Vernon; fur superintendent of public instruction, Robert J. Hailey, Monroe county; for state geologist, Edward Barrett, Hendricks county; for state statistician, David M. Curry, Sullivan county.

PACKING HOUSES ARE CLEANING UP

PRESIDENT SENDS REPORT TO CHAIRMAN OF HOUSE COMMITTEE.

Confidential Agent of Executive Tells of Improvements Being Made in the Workrooms of the Big Plants at the Stockyards.

Washington, June 9.—In response to a request from the house committee on agriculture, President Roosevelt Friday forwarded to Representative Wadsworth, the chairman of that committee, the report made to him by a committee of the department of agriculture regarding conditions in the Chicago meat packing houses. Accompanying the report was a letter from the president, in which he points out that there is no conflict in substance between the Neill-Reynolds report and that of the agricultural department experts.

The president quotes a letter received from a most competent and trustworthy witness in Chicago, to the effect that the packing house proprietors are manifesting almost "a humorous haste to clean up, repave and even to plan for future changes." New toilet rooms are being provided, with additional dressing rooms and clean towels. The report says that "the haste towards reform would have been amusing if it were not so nearly tragic."

Following is the text of the letter of the president to Chairman Wadsworth:

Text of President's Letter.

"In accordance with your request I send you herewith the two reports of inspection by the committee appointed by the department of agriculture of April 5 and 13. This committee had already been appointed when I notified the secretary that I desired that such a commission should be appointed in order to make the investigation. Subsequent complaints to me and the consideration of complaints already made showed that the charges were not only against the packing houses, but also to a certain extent reflected upon the action of the government inspectors, and I came to the conclusion that it was best to have an investigation by outside individuals who could not be charged with being in any way interested in the matter.

"Some of the ground traversed by Messrs. Neill ond Reynolds is not touched upon in the report of the committee of the agricultural department. As to the ground covered in common by the reports of the two investigating committees, there is no conflict in substance as to the important matters.

"To show the immediate and extraordinary change for the better which the mere fact of their investigation is already bringing about in the condition of the packing houses in Chicago, it is only necessary to instance the following portions of a letter received from a most competent and trustworthy witness in Chicago:

Awakening of Packingtown.

"'On Monday I began a tour of all the great packing houses—going first to Libby's, then to Swift's.

"'Tuesday, all the morning discussed changes that ought to be made and caught a glimpse of the awakening at Armour's. In the afternoon visited the plant with the superintendent.

"'Wednesday I rested and contemplated the "awakening of Packing town." It is miraculaus. Thursday did Nelson Morris, with the superintendent. * * * Nelson Morris has done much to make things better. By the time the next inspecting party arrives they will have still more new lavatories, toilet rooms, dressing rooms, etc. Cuspidors everywhere, and signs prohibiting spitting. In most, the awakening seemed to come by force from without. There was the slightest indication that the "still small voice" was at work also.

Notices Improvements.

"'On every hand there was indication of an almost humorous haste to clean up, repave and even to plan for future changes. Brand new toilet rooms, new dressing rooms, new towels, etc., etc.

"'Swift's and Armour's were both so cleaned up that I was compelled to cheer them on their way, by expressing my pleasure at the changes. The sausage girls were moved upstairs, where they could get sun and light, they to have dressing rooms, etc. I asked for showers and lockers for the casing workers at Armour's, and got a promise that they would put them in.

"'The canning and stuffing room, chip beef and beef extract at Armour's seemed really quite good. In all of these rooms the girls work.

"'At Libby's the girls are to be put into a blue calico uniform, which they will buy at half price. They are putting in toilet rooms which they say are temporary, and that when the building is remodeled they will have these put in a better place.

"'The haste towards reform would have been amusing if it were not so nearly tragic.

"'They tried to win my help on the ground that loss of foreign trade would mean hardship for the workers in my neighborhood, and I must say I do share this fear, but I cannot see the wisdom of my coming out publicly and saying that I saw indications of an awakening, for I want the changes to be radical and peramnent, even though we all have to suffer for the present.'"

GOLF YARN BY LONGWORTH

And a Kansas Story in Return by an Enthusiast at the Game.

Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, is a golf enthusiast who plays a good game, and Victor Murdock, of Kansas, a golf enthusiast who plays a very indifferent game, when swapping stories in the house cloakroom the other day, says the Washington correspondent of the Kansas City Times.

"The most remarkable golfer I ever knew," said Representative Longworth, "was a man out in Cincinnati, who had a passion for the game, but who complicated that fervor with an appetite for Scotch highballs that was the wonder of Ohio.

"His theory was that there should be a drink server on every tee, and he worked it by means of an army of caddies. One afternoon he came in and announced that he had renounced the game.

"'What's the matter, Jim?' said a friend.

"'Oh,' he said, wearily, 'it's no use. I give it up. Whenever I can see the ball I can't hit it; and whenever I can hit it I can't see it.'"

Mr. Murdock told this one:

"Out in my town Judge Dale, of the district bench, is about the best golfer in our club. One day he had a case on trial in which several small boys had been subpoenaed as witnesses. Addressing a bright youth of about 12 summers, Judge Dale solemnly inquired: 'My boy, do you understand the nature of an oath?'

"'Oh, yes, sir,' quickly replied the youth. 'I often caddied for you, sir.'"

SPORTS OF CHILDREN.

Skipping rope is a childish pastime of ancient origin. In place of a rope, a vine stripped of leaves was originally used.

The childish amusement of riding a cane is of great antiquity. It was practiced by the children of Greece and ancient Rome.

The game of hide and seek is another youthful pastime of ancient origin. It came from Europe about the beginning of the seventeenth century.

The spinning of tops, a favorite amusement among children in the spring, also came from the Greeks. Records show that this kind of fun was in vogue at the time of Vergil.

Leap-frog is mentioned in the works of both Shakespeare and Johnson. It has been played by children from early times, and is still a favorite game with boys.

The flying kite derived its name from its originally being made to resemble that species of bird called a kite. The amusement of kite flying is about two centuries old in Europe. Probably it originated in China, where, so records tell, the practice of flying kites is very ancient.

Nothin' Doin'.

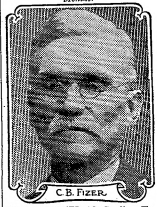
"Want 'ny ice?"
"It's fresh?"
"Yep."
"Bring me up a two-cent chunk."
"Where 're ye at?"
"Six floor, back."
"Gee awp!"—Judge.

"She is going to marry him to reform him." "Why don't she reform him first?" "Oh! he'd have too much sense to get married then."

Enthusiasm won't carry you very far without backing.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.



MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past.

"Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Pe-ru-na for Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time.

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin.

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time.

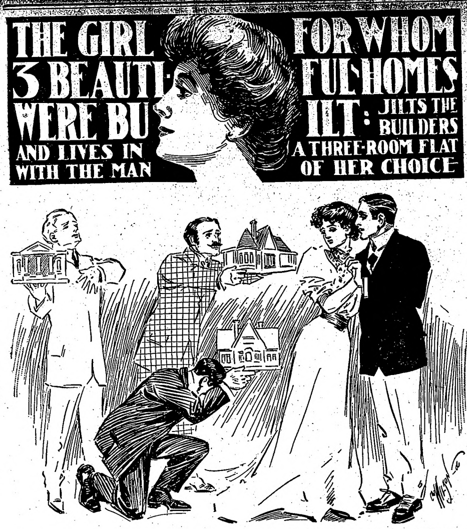
"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna.'

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE GIRL FOR WHOM 3 BEAUTIFUL HOMES WERE BUILT: JILTS THE BUILDERS AND LIVES IN A THREE-ROOM FLAT WITH THE MAN OF HER CHOICE



Brooklyn.—There are three new, beautiful houses in Brooklyn that bear "For Sale" signs in their windows. There are three disconsolate young architects who built these houses, but who never go near them. And in a little three-room flat in the Flatbush district Mr. and Mrs. Clive Stevenson are happy.

It was for Mrs. Clive Stevenson that the three homes were built—or rather for Miss Helen Strain. Or rather, to be exact, one was built for Mrs. Henry L. Ryder, another for Mrs. Noble T. Shaw, and yet another for Mrs. M. L. Pettingill. But then Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Strain, Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Pettingill are all the same person. She was Miss Strain, she became Mrs. Stevenson, and the three architects who built the three houses expected her to become Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Pettingill.

Was a Spoiled Beauty.

Miss Strain was a beauty, and Mrs. Stevenson is a beauty, and she would have been a beauty if she had become Mrs. Ryder, Mrs. Shaw or Mrs. Pettingill. And, being a beauty, she was spoiled, although a few months ago it would have been hard to convince Stevenson, Ryder, Shaw or Pettingill that she was spoiled—or anything else than the personification of perfection in femininity—and Stevenson still believes she is perfect. She is now 22 years old, tall, slender, graceful, and as pretty as a girl may be.

She was the daughter of Benjamin Strain—he signs it Benj.—who is a contractor and builder living on Eastern parkway. Her mother died when the girl was small. She was raised by her father, assisted by housekeepers, who bowed down before Miss Strain, and the father granted her every desire. She was a sweet tempered, good natured, merry, lovable girl—especially lovable—as is proved by the experiences of Stevenson, Ryder, Shaw and Pettingill; but, having had her own way all her life, she continued to have it.

"Bossed the Ranch."

She was sent, when 17 years of age, to an exclusive school in New York, and two years later she returned to her father's house "finished," as far as education was concerned. She knew but few of the girls of the neighborhood, and her friends were chiefly among her father's friends and business associates whom she met at the house. She presided over her father's establishment, lavished her allowance on dress, and "bossed the ranch," as she expressed it.

It happened that one of her chief delights was to ride with her father in his light runabout while he visited the houses he was building, and in this way she impressed her image upon scores of hearts in many parts of Brooklyn. Her father, who still regarded her as "his baby," and forgot that she had grown up and become a beautiful young woman, was puzzled because so many of the young architects and builders that he met in a business way came dropping into his house in the evenings to talk over unimportant matters of business with him, and then promptly forgot why they had come and turned the music at the piano while Miss Strain played.

And among those that came were Noble T. Shaw, Henry L. Ryder and Myron L. Pettingill—all fair to good looking, and all young contractors who were getting a foothold, and who, through their business dealings with Benj. Strain, had met and fallen in love with his daughter.

It wasn't long before even Benjamin Strain realized that the young men did not come to talk business, and he dropped out of sight or went into the library to smoke his pipe when they called, instead of discussing materials, specifications and labor with them.

During last summer Miss Strain went to her father's summer home down Long island, and it was druing her stay there that she received three proposals. Each of the young men knew of the intentions of the others, and they were vastly jealous of each other, but the girl showed no preference.

Her answer to the proposals was unique. She did not refuse or accept any of them. She simply stated that she admired and esteemed them all, that she loved no one, and that she intended to marry the one of them that built the prettiest and best home for her. She stated that on May 1, 1906, she would inspect the home offered to her by her lovers, and if satisfied with the arrangements, the decorations, the general surroundings, and the architectural beauties of one house above the others she would accept it—and its owner.

Got Busy at Once.

She wanted a home, and she stipulated that the cost of the home, exclusive of the lot and furnishings should not exceed $7,000, and that the total cost should be less than $10,000, and that not more than half of the cost price should be secured by mortgage.

Building operations in Brooklyn immediately boomed. Shaw purchased a lot on Utica avenue, near Eastern parkway; Ryder bought land in Prospect park south; and Pettingill, who owned a lot near Bedford park, at once broke ground.

The three young architects burned midnight electric lights drawing the plans and specifications, creating ideal homes, and each pushed the work on his house as rapidly as possible. There was much figuring of costs, much planning for convenience, beauty and utility to create a harmonious whole—for each hoped that the girl would fall in love with his house.

Pettingill elected to build an eight room brick and stone house, with a wide stone front porch facing the lawn, and harmonizing with the quiet, shaded street. His entire idea was for comfort and utility without waste of space. He devoted more time to the kitchen than to anything else, and it was ideal, with an inserted ice box, capable of being filled from the outside, with excellent laundry facilities. The depth of his walls gave opportunity for cozy window seats in the bedrooms.

As for Ryder, he erected a cottage looking house, half of cement, with wide porches and many nooks and angles. It was set down among the trees and was surrounded by large grounds, and at the rear was a tiny building for an automobile. It had a wide open fireplace in the library. The library, reception hall, and the dining room were done in dark oak, the dining room having leaded windows, opening out upon a trellised veranda overlooking the lawn. He furnished it in mission style. And all the five bedrooms were in white woodwork, the floors hardwood, and the walls in the favorite colors of his bride to be—for whom he looked over the house he considered her as good as won. He did not see how any girl could resist it.

Shaw adapted his house to the neighborhood, and erected a pretentious place of the modified colonial style. His dining room and library arrangements were much like those of Ryder. He added a den for himself, and, with much forethought, set aside one of the large upstairs rooms as a nursery. He built a big inclosed porch at the second story rear, surrounded by a five foot wall, wired in, as an outdoor bedroom for summer use, and he put the servants' rooms in the garret.

Outsider Won Bride.

The houses were finished and furnished early in April, and Shaw, Pettingill and Ryder awaited anxiously for the test. Each called on Miss Strain and arranged to drive her to what each hoped would be her new home. Ryder was to call at ten a. m., Shaw at two p. m., and Pettingill at five p. m.

They called. They grew impatient. They called again.

It was not until the next day that they learned that Miss Strain had gone to New York early in the morning and married Clive Stevenson, a handsome young electrical engineer just out of scientific school. Then they were angry. Also Benj. Strain was angry. He was so angry he told the young couple to shift for themselves when they sought his blessing, and he was angrier when Stevenson took him at his word and departed with his bride. And he grew still angrier when, after waiting a week, he discovered that his daughter and his son-in-law were keeping house in three rooms in Flatbush.

He sought them, asked them to forgive him, and offered to buy anyone of the three houses that Mrs. Stevenson would select, but Stevenson told him he could support his wife.

So the young couple are living in a three room flat, while the three beautiful new homes constructed specially for honeymoons are vacant.

HORSE LEAPS OVER GO-CART

Mother Faints While Animal Clears Child at a Bound Without Hurting It.

Atlantic City, N. J.—A hair-raising escape from death by the infant daughter of Miles Barnett, a contractor, and the remarkable instinct of a runaway horse were the thrilling features of a runaway on the West side, where the rampant animal, seemingly about to trample the child, leaped completely over the go-cart, leaving the baby unscathed.

The horse took fright at an automobile, broke away from the vehicle it was drawing and dashed madly through a thoroughfare crowded with wagons. Mrs. Barnett did not see the animal until it was almost upon her. Unable to draw her baby carriage away, she fell fainting to the sidewalk.

Jacob Kumpf, a butcher, bravely leaped in front of the horse and attempted to swerve it to one side. While the effort cost him serious injuries, as he was knocked down, it undoubtedly caused the horse to take a leap over the carriage, in which the little girl, unmindful of the danger, was clapping her hands at the excitement.

Duel to Death in a Canoe.

Fort William, Ont.—W. A. Thompson and Isadore Bouchard, while in a canoe on Helen lake, half a mile from shore, engaged in a combat, capsizing the craft. They then climbed to the top of the upturned canoe and engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle lasting nearly 30 minutes, when, their strength spent, they slipped into the water and sank.

Fearfully Good.

Some men do right only because they are afraid to do something else.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

BOILING SPRING DISCOVERED IN BOTTOM OF PRIOR LAKE.

New Amphitheater at State Fair Grounds—Bass Ponds Being Prepared by Fish Commission.

Prior Lake—A boiling spring in the bed of Prior lake, not far from the Grainwood summer resort, has been discovered. When described as "boiling" reference is made to the turbulent state of the surface water of the lake where it bubbles up rather than to the temperature.

The spring is about 500 feet from the shore. Up to two years ago, until the cycle of wet years recommenced in Minnesota, that part of Prior lake where it is located was not covered with water, but now there is water there to a depth of about twelve feet. The spring water can be seen issuing from the bottom of the lake and rising upward to the surface as a straight, white shaft, seemingly a foot in diameter. At the top the surface of the lake bubbles up to a height of a foot or so.

Horses at the Fair.

Hamline—One of the divisions of the Minnesota state fair which will profit this year by the erection of the new amphitheater will be that devoted to horses. The amphitheater will give exceptional opportunities for the display of the horses while being judged; there will be admirable facilities for comparison, and whatever the weather may be the owners of the animals will be sure of a large and appreciative audience.

Every detail of the department is being worked out carefully by G. W. Patterson of Worthington, who is superintendent. Under his advice the premium list for horses was carefully revised and is now the largest and finest group of prize offers ever made by any fair in the world. A total of $5,317 is found in the list of premiums divided among the standard strains and classes of saddle, harness, trotting and draft horses as well as ponies and jacks.

Bass Culture.

St. Paul—The state game and fish commission has taken the matter of propagating black bass in large numbers in Minnesota. The commission has been preparing bass ponds at an expense of almost $15,000 at the Glenwood hatchery for this purpose.

These ponds will be the best equipped in the United States for the propagation of this species of fish. These ponds are about completed after several months' work and the members of the commission left today to inspect them.

It is the intention of the commission to stock the ponds before the 1st of August if possible. After a few months, bass will be almost as plentiful as pike or trout in the streams of Minnesota, according to a member of the commission.

Carleton Wins.

Northfield, Minn.—The silver cups won by Carleton college in the intercollegiate tennis tournament were presented in chapel. Professor Chaney handed the cups to Sidney Kenyon and Claude Krause for transfer to the trophy case.

The cups are presented for the college winning in a series of double and single matches. The competing colleges were arranged in two groups. Shattuck, St. Olaf and Carleton were members of one group, Hamline, St. Thomas and Macalester constituted the other. Carleton defeated all comers and took the championship.

Much Wheat.

Minneapolis—Chicago is steadily losing ground as a wheat center, while Minneapolis and Kansas City are gaining immensely. Of a total crop of spring and winter wheat in grain-producing territory regarded as competitive ground, of 253,441,319 bushels in 1905, Chicago received, in round figures, 20,600,000 bushels, Minneapolis 65,500,000 and Kansas City 8,200,000, while last year, out of a total crop of 397,000,000 in the same territory, Chicago received less than 27,000,000 bushels, Minneapolis more than 92,000,000, and Kansas City more than 40,000,000.

Ship is Safe.

Duluth—The stranded steamer Mataafa is safe in the sheltered harbor at last, and the northeasters can have no more terrors for her. The boat was released at 11:05 in the morning, and twenty-five minutes later she was alongside the schooner Manila inside Park Point. The weather was pleasant, and hundreds of people thronged the shore watching the wrecking operations and expecting every minute to see the vessel released from the sand cradle that had been her bed since Nov. 28, when nine sailors lost their lives in the terrible storm.

News Notes.

St. Cloud—The opening meeting of the annual conference of the Minnesota Seventh Day Adventists was held last evening in the large city of tents which is being occupied by the delegates and members of the church from all over the state.

Beltrami—Owing to the fact that F. C. Johnson, editor of the Beltrami Graphic, took upon himself the signing of a warrant for the arrest of Louis Gilsoul, who last Tuesday evening tried to shoot up Beltrami and incidentally fired a load of shot into the face of J. Cantey, a negro barber, the Beltrami editor is threatened with death.

Ada—The pupils who received diplomas at the Ada high school were Isabel Brattland, Minnie Brattland, Verna Ahlers, Charlotte Barnes, Charles Andrews, Lambert Prigge and Paul Oustad.

White Bear—The Bald Eagle residents will ask the grand jury to investigate the cutting of a waterway at White Bear Lake.

St. Paul—By a special ruling from the attorney general, County Treasurer Henry C. Hanke has been ordered to pay over to the state treasurer the $10,500 inheritance tax that has been collected in Hennepin county since the law went into effect.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

St. Paul—The state revenue fund has a balance of nearly $400,000.

St. Paul—The St. Thomas college students may organize a lacrosse team.

St. Paul—The park board will have a deficit of $7,000 in its improvement fund.

Minneapolis—Fire damaged the roof of the boiler room at the Northwestern hospital.

Minneapolis—The Northern Pacific crop report notes generally favorable conditions.

St. Paul—The auctioneer drops dead at the opening sale held in the new live stock pavilion.

St. Paul—Mrs. A. A. White, 644 Summit avenue, is probably fatally injured during a runaway.

St. Paul—The St. Thomas college Alumni association holds its annual meeting and banquet.

Ada—Peter Steen of Fossum was found dead by the roadside. His bicycle was by his side.

Aurora—Frank Kechovar, a young Austrian miner, was killed in the skip pit of the Mohawk mine.

St. Peter—An appropriation of $1,200 is to be made by the city council to remodel and rebuild the fire station.

St. Paul—It is estimated by railroad men that 1,200 to 1,500 women came to the city last week on account of the biennial.

St. Paul—Lightning came near taking the lives of the entire family of Peter D. Hughes, 2801 Pleasant avenue, when his house was struck.

Sparta—The trustees of the township of Missabe Mountain have employed an architect to draw up plans for the erection of an $8,000 town hall.

Duluth—Joseph Milner, a miner employed at the Cincinnati mine, near Biwabik, was burned to death, and his companion, Anthony Grimick, had a narrow escape.

Minneapolis—A. B. Mailen was taken to the city hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his right breast. The right lung is pierced and it is feared that he cannot recover.

Ada—Peter Steen of Fossum was found dead by the roadside. His bicycle was by his side, but it was not ascertained whether death was caused by a fall or by disease.

Minneapolis—James S. Lane, who at one time represented the Second ward in the city council, died suddenly while walking in the yard at his home 625 Eighth avenue southeast.

Mendota—A landslide has wiped out part of the road into St. Paul, near the Happy Hollow bridge. A strip of the road has slipped into a gully and it will take $2,500 to repair the damage.

St. Paul—Governor Johnson offered a reward of $300 for the capture of Harry Spencer, the St. Paul restaurant man, who recently shot his wife in the streets of Minneapolis and escaped.

St. Paul—The state treasurer received from the board of control $14,265.21 for twine receipts at the state prison during the last month and $7,988.19 for other receipts at the prison.

North Branch—Thomas H. Horton filed with the secretary of state for the nomination for representative from the Forty-fifth district, composed of Isanti, Anoka, Mille Lacs and Sherburne counties.

Minneapolis—Beaufort Brey, 2 years old, son of William Brey, 3301 Sheridan avenue N, was drowned in the cellar of a vacant house at 3330 Sheridan avenue N, while playing with an older friend.

South St. Paul—The new sale pavilion at the Union stock yards was opened. It will open for visitors at 10 o'clock and the sale will start at 1 o'clock. The building recently was completed at a cost of $20,000.

Winona—At a meeting of Winona Commercial Travelers the delegates who will attend the convention, to be held in Albert Lea this week, were instructed to work to secure the convention of the order for 1907 for Winona.

St. Paul—E. T. Young, attorney general, commenced suit against the Duluth & Northern road for $3,906.66, and against the Minnesota & Northern Wisconsin road for $3,557.91. These suits are to collect the 1905 gross earnings tax at 4 per cent.

Mankato—Rev. S. F. Kerfoot, corresponding secretary of the Minnesota conference claimant's endowment fund of the Methodist Episcopal church, has succeeded in raising $35,000 of the $50,000 that he was commissioned by the last conference to raise.

Mankato—The fame of Mankato's model fire station has become more than state wide. Mayor Taylor has just received a letter from the chief of the San Jose, Cal., department in which he asks that plans and specifications of the building be sent there.

St. Peter—One of the most important Scandinavian festivals to be held in this part of the state this summer will take place in St. Peter June 30, when the Swedish Y. M. C. A. chorus, under the leadership of Hugo Lindquist of Stockholm, one of the greatest musicians of Europe, will appear in the auditorium at Gustavus Adolphus college.

St. Cloud—If the Carnegie hero commission has any spare medals it might do worse than send one of them to William Christie, who plunged headlong into a swirling eddy of the Mississippi and rescued twelve-year-old Albert Ley from drowning. Had it not been for the fact that another man came to his assistance Christie also would have lost his life.

Rushford—Marshal O'Connors of Houston arrested a man whom he considers either a criminal or a lunatic. Friday night a barn at La Crescent was burned to the ground by some unknown fire fiend. Two other barns have been burned. The man arrested is suspected.

St. Paul—The statement of the treasurer of the fund contributed by Knights of Pythias to the relief of Pythian sufferers in California shows the receipts up to May 31 of $68,000. Of the fifty-five grand domains contributing to this amount, Minnesota stands twelfth in the list, with a contribution of $1,677.25.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fire in Portland, Ore., caused a loss of $100,000.

In spite of official denials, rumors of ill health of the pope have been confirmed.

A fierce storm at San Lucar, Spain, caused the death of ten persons and injury to eight.

O. J. Norby, Dennis S. McGinn and John Shea were drowned at Bass Lake, Minn., by the capsizing of their boat.

Brooding over the loss of a lawsuit, Miss Bertie Martin, of Fort Worth, Tex., shot herself and died instantly.

Tony Giuseppe and Giovanni Lugi were killed by lightning at Gardner's railroad camp, near Blue Sulphur, W. Va.

The duke of Almodavar, minister for foreign affairs of Spain, who has been ill for some time, has suffered a relapse.

Mrs. Wm. Robertson, wife of a Terre Haute, Ind., glass blower, shot and killed her husband because he was beating her.

A plot to establish a Boer republic in Portuguese Angolo, Africa, has resulted in the authorities taking steps to nip the scheme.

Gabriel Battalie, a negro, aged 18, was hanged in King George county, Va., while the militia guarded him to prevent lynching.

At Mount Carbon, Fayette county, W. Va., William Johnston killed his wife, a bride of a few weeks. He tried suicide, but failed.

John Miller and Bernard King were arrested at Bluefield, W. Va., on a charge of counterfeiting. They had $1,550 in spurious coins.

Jonas Thornton, 35, was killed by lightning at his home near Port Washington, O. His wife and child were rendered unconscious.

Frederick Lang, the murderer of his niece, Katie Gordon, at Bonhamton, N. J., April 30, when he became angry at her refusal to wed him, has been captured.

A Texas & Pacific switch engine at Fort Worth, Tex., ran over and killed Y. R. Poleski and Marsina Prodisovick. The men were walking on the track.

John W. Foster, former national secretary of state, has been appointed by the Chinese government as its representative at the coming Hague peace conference.

Two cowboys, M. H. Cook and Homer Lampton, in Crockett county, Tex., were bitten by a mad skunk while aslepe. They rode 100 miles to secure treatment.

Democratic senators at Washington have decided to elect Senator J. C. S. Blackborn of Kentucky chairman of the party caucus to succeed the late Senator Gorman.

The senate committee on Cuban relations has decided to reopen the post office case of Major Ester G. Rathbone of Ohio, against whom charges were made by Gen. Wood in Cuba.

The controversy over the education bill in England has led to a proposition that the government send 50 elementary teachers to America this summer for a six weeks' study of the educational methods in vogue here.

Deneen Names Flag Day.

Springfield, Ill., June 9.—Gov. Deneen Friday issued a proclamation designating Thursday, June 14, as Flag day. The proclamation urges citizens in general to display from business houses and homes the flag of the country.

Names Successor to Gorman.

Baltimore, Md.—Gov. Warfield has field has appointed William Pinkney Whyte, the noted lawyer and former governor and United States senator, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of United States Senator Gorman.

Resumes Relations with Servia.

London, June 8.—Great Britain has decided to resume diplomatic relations with Servia, and J. B. Whitehead, chancellor of the embassy at Berlin, will be appointed minister to Belgrade.

Alcohol Bill Signed.

Washington, June 9.—The president Friday signed the denatured alcohol bill.

THE MARKETS.

New York, June 9.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@	5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@	7 00
Sheep	4 00	@	6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 30	@	4 60
WHEAT—July	89	@	89⅝
September	87¼	@	87¾
CORN—September	55⅝	@	56
RYE—No. 2 Western	67¾	@	68
BUTTER	14	@	19½
CHEESE	9½	@	10½
EGGS	19½	@	20

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 50	@	6 00
Common to Good Steers	4 50	@	5 50
Yearlings	4 50	@	5 25
Bulls, Common to Choice	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Calves	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 50	@	6 60
Heavy Packing	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Heavy Mixed	6 45	@	6 52½
BUTTER—Creamery	14	@	22½
Dairy	12½	@	19
EGGS—Fresh	12	@	14½
LIVE POULTRY	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
POTATOES	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
WHEAT—Strong, July	82½	@	[illegible]
September	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Corn—Strong, July	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Oats—Firm, July	[illegible]	@	[illegible]
Rye, May	[illegible]	@	[illegible]

MILWAUKEE.

GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 85½	@	86
July	84½	@	[illegible]
Corn, July	51¼	@	51⅞
Oats, Standard	38½	@	38¾
Rye, No. 1	65½	@	66

KANSAS CITY.

GRAIN—Wheat, May	$ 76½	@	76⅞
September	75¾	@	75⅞
Corn, July	47⅛	@	47⅜
Oats, No. 2 White	36	@	37

ST. LOUIS.

CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 25	@	6 00
Texas Steers	3 00	@	4 75
HOGS—Packers	6 00	@	[illegible]
Butchers	6 40	@	6 50
SHEEP—Natives	4 00	@	[illegible]

OMAHA.

CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25	@	5 50
Stockers and Feeders	3 00	@	4 50
Cows and Heifers	3 00	@	4 50
HOGS—Heavy	6 37½	@	6 42½
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00	@	6 15

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30. 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

This campaign will demonstrate to the people that the primary election law is the best for the nomination of state as well as county officials.

Our Deer Park corespondent touches up the transportation service on the Red Lake river this week, as to whether he is right, or wrong, we leave the patrons of the service to judge.

Now that the legislative campaign is about to open it would be well for candidates, for the legislature to come right down flat footed and say who they are favoring for United States senator. If they favor Hon. Knute Nelson to suceed himself, they are O.K. in this neck of the woods, but we want to know it before they get our votes, as the people of the eleven townships know who are their friends. Nelson in the senate and Steenerson in Congress, just about fills the bill up in this direction at the present time.

Some men and some newspapers go along through life and scarcely ever offend anybody, for the reason that they never express an opinion of their own on any subject. Such men and newspapers are of little or no use to the state or the community as neither can do their duty without offending some one.–McIntosh Times.

The trouble with them men and newspapers are that they have discovered their opinion does not amount to anything, and they have granted the world the charity of silence.

There seems to be a disponition on the part of the older settled portions of the county to ignore the eastern, or newly settled part. This feeling crops out at every opportunity they have to tell the kids to stand back, and let the old men manage the affairs. This feeling predominates in all their gatherings and notwithstanding the ill feeling that exists between Thief River and Red Lake Falls on the county seat fight they are united on this one question to treat the newly settled portion of the county with contempt, when it comes to any favors to be granted, and the only way for the eleven towns to do to get their fair rights is to get united and present a solid front to their opponents.

THEY INSTRUCTED.

Before this issue goes to press the republican party will have placed in nomination, at Duluth their candidate for the next governor of the state of Minnesota, Red Lake county sent an instructed delegation for A.D. Stephens to that convention, and we refused to go as one of them.

Not because we were particulary opposed to Stephens, but because we have bitterly opposed any instructed delegates from this or any other county to a republican convention this year and we felt that we could not go down to Duluth as an instructed delegate and leave THE SUNBEAM up here fighting for an uninstructed delegation, and if there has been a mistake made that will result disasterously to the party in this state we feel that we are not responisible for it. It does not make any difference, who the party nominates we shall get right into line and support them as we did two years ago, as we shall support the nominees of the party that we believe in the principles of.

DEER PARK.

From our Correspondent.

Mr. M. E. Hyland, and Mr. M. Kolski, took in the sights of Thief River Falls, and also enjoyed a boat ride on the famous Flyer, last week.

There is conderable of complaint as to the management of the boats now running on the river, and especially so on account of the careless handling of the gasoline, by the men in charge of the boat. Restrictions will have to made in this respect at once, or complaint will be made to the proper officials.

The assessor is now making his rounds, and the next in sight will be the road boss.

Crops look splendid here, and we are all looking for a "bumper" crop in the fall.

T. G. Rome, from Grit, is busy clearing up his meadow on his homestead here, at present.

Mosquitos and horse flies, are a little behind the times this season, somehow.

Editor Hunt, has the most advanced garden that we have seen this year. Can it be on account of the "rays" of the Sunbeam?

One ride on the Red Lake Flyer, now means one share in the Farmer Boat, and one round trip on the Dan Patch, means shares without number, and two trips round on either, means "hurrah" for the Farmers new Red Lake River Transportation Boat, that we are pushing along the best we can.

Nobody Was There.

To take the census of the British empire is a matter of difficulty in certain districts. A native official was ordered to take a census of what was known to be a populous village in Uganda. He returned with the report that there was no population, the explanation being that the inhabitants had fled on hearing of his approach. More precise instructions were given to him, and he paid another visit to the village. The result of his inquiry was given thus in the tabulated form: Number of huts, 257; inhabitants, men over eighteen years of age, 0; men under eighteen years of age, 0; women, 0; children, 0; total, 0.

Luxury In Bottles.

One of the many little signs of the growing luxury of the times is to be seen in the drug stores nowadays where there is kept in stock a supply of bottles for the ordinary run of household remedies with cut glass stoppers and the names of the drugs either ground on the glass or having a regular druggist's label of gilt on a white ground. These bottles are fairly expensive, for ones of pint size cost about a dollar, and from that figure they run down to 50 cents. It is another sign of the times that one of the regular labels kept in stock on these bottles is "peroxide."—New York Press.

Modest Oyama.

Self depreciation seems to be a common virtue of military heroes in Japan. In his parting address to his officers on the breaking up of the Manchurian army Marshal Oyama says, "That I, in spite of my defective ability, have been enabled to avoid any signal failure must be primarily ascribed to the loyalty and fidelity of the officers and soldiers under my command." Surely modesty could go no farther.

The House of Commons.

It was customary at one time when any important measure was under discussion to call the names of all members of the house of commons, with a view to securing a full attendance. Although a motion has been made for it, however, a call of the house has not been known since 1836, and consequently the custom has fallen into desuetude.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Dobson—What became of that man who had twenty-seven medals for saving people from drowning? Dock Worker—He fell in one day when he had them all on, and the weight of 'em sunk him.

Only an Episode.

Mary—Uncle Ned, what's a honeymoon? Bachelor Uncle—The time between the marriage and the divorce.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series: for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 152 N. R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land. viz:

Thomas A. Tasa. Peter T. Quam. Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Apr. 30. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on June 21, 1906, viz

John Poloni.

HE. No. 553 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 2 4 S.W. ¼, N.W. ¼, Sec. 28, and Lots 11, 12, Sec. 29 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Alfred Eve, William G. Hunt. Patrick Sullivan, Wallace Grace all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

Notice for Publication

First Pub. May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on June 21, 1906 viz:

Wallace Grace.

H-E. No. 1021 Red Lake Series for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

Alfred Eve. Patrick Sullivan, Andrew M. Johnson, William G. Hunt, all of Sunbeam Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 27th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on June 21, 1906. viz:

Hermen M.J. Lillo.

H. E. No. 583 Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 152 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous reesidence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Nels Fore. Oscar Lillo. Ole Legvold, Knut Lindtvedt, all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H.E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series. for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Anton Knutson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th, 1906 viz:

Peter A. Kolstad,

H.E.No. 694 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N, R. 40 W,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H.E. No. 691 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H. E. No. 547, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

J. K. WOOD,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906 viz:

Harry G. Dobner.

H. E. No. 519 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp. Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. George Tupper, of Brunkeberg Minn. Morgan Vaughan, of Germantown Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn, May 18th 1906,

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 3rd, 1906, viz:

Peter T. Quam.

H.E. No. 983 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 10 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Iver A. Tasa, Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn, Torger T. Torgerson, of Lillo Minn.,

R. J. Montague, Register,

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam June 15 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 26 1906 viz:

Lars K. Vindlos.

H.E. No. 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3. 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 13 Sec. 22 Twp 153 N R.41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmund K. Vindlos, Ole Brelland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 4th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Apr. 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on June 20th 1906, viz;

Christopher Larson.

H.E. No. 1134 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hanson, Andrew J. Anderson, Carl J. Anderson all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register,

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on July 6th 1906. viz:

George Tupper.

H.E. No. 768 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. Charles Newberry. Harry Dobner, Cordilos Douglas of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 3rd, 1906 viz;

Thomas A. Tasa.

H.E.No. 985 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Iver A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Rudell Minn. Torger Elton, of Lillo Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

Notice for Publication

Fist Pub. June 1st 1906.

Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May, 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July. 20th, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E. No. 833, Red Lake Series. for the N.E. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

"English as She Is Spoke."

Dumley—Do you take your breakfast downtown? Quibble—Yes, but I eat it at home.—Boston Transcript.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders.

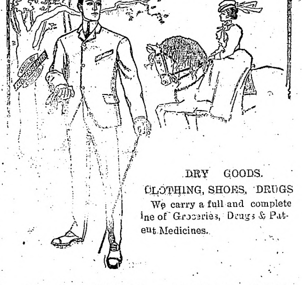
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.......00............

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster. Sec. 20 T. 153 R.40.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Come and see us when yor are ready to prove up on yonr land.

John Sullivan returned from Crystal N.D. Monday.

If you want to enjoy a good celebration come to Sunbeam July 4th.

Miss Auguste Kuehnel of Kuehnel, made this office a pleasant call Tuesday.

Our school house is rapidly nearing completation, where oh where is the bell and flag?

D.N. Winton passed up the river in his gasoline launch Monday to the outlet, returning Tuesday.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

John Bergland of Crookston was up here this week looking for an opportunity to get some of the Highlanding realestate.

Road overseer Julius Halverson is doing some good road work, in this district this week patching up some of the worst places.

Misses Katherine and Amanda Dunn came up on the Red Lake Flyer Friday evening to spend their school vacation with their parents.

Mrs. A.W. Shosten and Mrs. Thomas Jacobson, returned home from a few days shopping tour at Thief River Falls on the Saturdays Flyer.

George Singer, John Polbrook, and Edward Singer of Deer Park township were up on a fishing trip here Sunday and made us a pleasant visit

The eleven towns is fortunate in secureing a good physician to visit this locality weekly, read the announcement of Dr. Hoagland in another colum.

Farmers, who are going to do fencing this spring should call on E. B. Laneger, at Plummer, Pioneer Hardware Store, for all kinds of fencing. Will make prices right.

Lucin Payne, a brother and Archie McCorquvdale brothern law of Mrs. A.W. Shosten, came up from Redwood Falls to visit her last week, returning home Wednesday.

Knut Olson, Thore Moen, and Chas. Swanson of Deer Park township took Wednesdays Flyer down the river on their way to Crookston where Mr. Olson makes final proof on his land today.

THE SUNBEAM subscription list took a big jump forward the past week, for which we extend our thanks to one and all, and will endeavor to give the new as well as the old subscribers full value for their money.

Traveling salesman for P.M. Marks, celebrated remedies from Fosston, were taking orders for goods of the local Merchants at Kratka, Rhoda, and Highlanding yesterday. It is safe to say they took good large orders, as the people want these remedies and are bound to have them. and if they can't buy them of their local merchants they will send to Fosston and get them.

A monster moose passed through the township last Tuesday afternoon. He was first observed by Wallace Grace, while at work on the school building and went from there to the residence of Mr. Hammerstine passing between the house and barn. Mr. Hammerstine says he could have killed him with an ax he was so close to him, but did not want to violate the game law.

The Red Lake River Transportation Co. will hold a social and business meeting at Sunbeam Sunday June 24th at 1 o'clock p.m.

DR. C.C. HOUGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

FROM GULLY.

We had our first Norwegin celebration here on June 7th.

Bolstad and Mello have purchased the Woodman hall and put in a general store, so Gully has two stores now.

The Rainbow base ball nine from Winsor defeated our local team here on June 7th but as the score keeper gave out we are unable to give the score.

Nels N. Bolstad has purchased the building that belonged to the The Sunbeam office and has moved it to the Bolstad location to fit up for a residence.

We had a grand ball on June 7th at the Woodmans hall, with music by the celebrated Larson Bros. string band.

Both the American and Norwegin flags floated here on June 7th, for altho we do honor the country of our birth we also honor the country of our adoption.

JULY 4th,

Thomas Germo, our popular county attorney will deliver the 4th of July oration at Sunbeam.

Oscar Sween the popular musician of Thief River Falls with three assistants will furnisn the music for the bowery dance at Sunbeam July 4th, If you want to dance after good music you may be sure youwill get it when Oscar has charge of furnishing it.

There will be a good program of sports for the afternoon here July 4th, which will be published in full next week.

An egge race for girls under 16 will be one of the afternoon sports here July 4th.

There will be plenty of row boats provided for those who desire to take a row on the beautiful Red Lake river, at Sunbeam July 4th, and gasoline excursion boats for those who do not want to row.

CREAM WANTED.

We are now prepared to buy all your cream delivered at our store at the higest market price. Cream tested and weighed here, and you can also get your pay for it each week if desired. Give it a trial and we will assure you a fair treatment.

Singer Bros.,
Rhoda, Minn.,

WANTED: Men in each state to travel, post signs, advertise and leave samples of our goods. Salery $75,00 per month. $3,00 per day for expences.

Kuhlman Company.—Dept. S.
Atlas Block, Chicago

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8.30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc, within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

WHEN HE QUAILED.

An old soldier is a mighty privileged person sometimes. And nowhere is this more clearly shown than at the Home theater. Out there if an old boy doesn't like the show he gets up and leaves. Not long ago "Richard III." was given at the home to an audience of varied and mingled emotions. One old man had followed the play breathlessly until it came to Richard's famous haunted dream. As the specters began to file out behind the bed the old man leaned forward and gasped, "Good Lord, look at the ghosts!" and, grabbing his cane in his hand, he beat a hasty retreat. He had stayed by Richard through all of his wickedness, had hissed him when he had killed his relatives by squads and bunches, had gripped his chair hard to keep from going down and laying him out when he had ordered the murder of the princes—but this last was too much. When the ghosts appeared the man who had faced the cannons turned and fled.—Leavenworth Times.

Tree 6,200 Years Old.

The distinction of being the oldest living thing undoubtedly belongs to one of the giant trees, and many attempts to locate it and determine its age have been made. A century ago De Candolle found two yews, one at Fortingal, in Perthshire, and one at Hedsor, in Bucks, that were estimated to be respectively 2,500 and 3,240 years old. Both are still flourishing, and the older tree has a trunk twenty-seven feet in circumference. A gigantic baobab in Central America, with a trunk twenty-nine feet through, was thought by Humboldt to be not less than 5,150 years old. Mexican botanists believe that they have now discovered a life span even greater than this, and from the annual rings a cypress of Chapultepec, whose trunk is 118 feet in circumference, is assigned an age of about 6,200 years.

No Petit Larceny In England.

America still distinguishes between grand and petit larceny. In England the distinction, which has existed since Edward I.'s time, was abolished in 1827, and again—to make sure presumably—in the larceny act of 1861. If the property stolen did not exceed twelvepence in value it was petit larceny, and the punishment was whipping or imprisonment. If the property was valued at more than twelvepence the larceny was grand and the offense capital. In America today the valuation boundary between the two kinds of larceny varies from state to state, the manner of the theft also being taken into account in some instances. In New York the limit is $25.—London Chronicle.

Liquid Metal Polish.

Take eight ounces of Spanish whiting, which must be perfectly free from grit, and put in one quart of gasoline. Shake up the whiting and gasoline thoroughly. You will notice the whiting settles immediately, leaving the liquid as clear as water. To remedy this and, further, to make it a better polishing agent, add to each quart of the mixture thirty-two drops of oleic acid—no more, no less. Shake again, and the whiting will not settle. Apply to gold, silver, nickel, brass, glass or any kind of metallic surface with a piece of cotton flannel, rubbing well. Polish with a piece of same cloth.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Waterproofing Dress Goods.

One of the most important processes used for waterproofing dress materials is on the lines of the old alumina process. In this case the factor used is rosin dissolved in a large bulk of petroleum spirit. The fabrics to be proofed are passed through a bath of this solution and dried to drive off the solvent. Following this, the goods are treated by pressing with hot polished metal rollers. This last process melts the small quantity of rosin which is deposited on the cloth and leaves each single fiber with an exceedingly thin film of rosin on it.

Sweeping.

"I was just telling my daughter," said Mrs. Nexdore, "that it's a shame of her to play the piano on Sunday."

"Huh!" exclaimed Mrs. Peppery, "Why Sunday especially?"

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 3, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 23 Twp. 154, N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster, Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication June 1st 1906.
Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1906 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Oregen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hunstad, of Kuehnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July 20th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. no. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn., William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 4th, 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. Apr, 28 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on June 20th 1906 viz:

Andrew J. Anderson.

H.E. No. 1130 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 153 N. R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Hans H. Fjeld, Andrew W. Hanson, Carl J. Anderson, Christopher Larson, all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bonnie P. Rustad,

H.E. No. 901, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole G. Skierland, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th., 1906, viz:

Ole O. Stromme.

H.E. no. 521, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Albert Arntz, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn. Morgan Vaugen, Peter Brachmann, of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

Frst Pub. May 25th 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May, 21st. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906. viz:

Albert Arntz.

H.E. no. 528, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole P. Stromme, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn., and Morgan Vaughan, and Peter Brachmann, of Germantown, Minn.,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

A Sad Feature.

Jack—Engagement is off, eh? Has she sent him back the ring? Tom—No; that's what's bothering him. He owes money on that ring.—New York Press.

Wouldn't Miss It.

Maid—Are you at home to Mrs. Toney, mum? She's at the door. Mistress—I am if she has a new hat on—not otherwise.—Exchange.

COME TO SUNBEAM JULY 4,

THE FIRST STATE BANK OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS,

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
Northland
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Roots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE.

Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Why Pay Cash

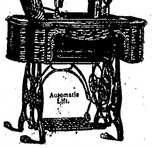
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $17.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES, TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to reliable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for Information and Free Catalogue
THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories
61-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

The "Redgeton"

SEWING MACHINE.
ROLLER BEARING.
HIGH GRADE.



Automatic Lift.

Save Money by buying this reliable, honest, high grade sewing machine.

STRONGEST GUARANTEE.

National Sewing Machine Co.
BELVIDERE, ILLINOIS.

Charity.

She—I'm glad we went. It was an excellent performance—and for such a charitable purpose. Her Husband—Yes, indeed! We all feel a thrill of satisfaction when we do something for charity and get the worth of our money at the same time.—London Tit-Bits.

Intended.

Bills—You made a funny break in congratulating the bride's father instead of the groom. Wills—No, I didn't. I've a daughter, too, and I know what they cost.—Chicago Journal.

A Pessimist.

"Don't be too anxious to get a husband," said the wise matron. "Don't go around hunting for one."

"Think I should sit down and wait for one, eh?" replied the maiden.

"Yes, for you'll sit up and wait for one often enough after you've got him."

Quite Natural.

Husband—What did you think when you heard the chandelier fall last night? Wife—Why, I thought you had been detained on business again, and were getting upstairs as quietly as you could.

THE IDEAL LADY

By Kathleen Whitenbury Gilbert

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The station was crowded. The outgoing train had not a vacant seat; distracted ladies flew from door to door, tearing them open, and before even looking to see if the car contained an empty place, flying impatiently to the next. There were, of course, the usual number of persons to whom it was a necessity that this particular train should not be missed, and who preferred to stand to being left lamenting on the platform.

Among these the catching of this train meant much to a tall, slender, brown-eyed girl, who jumped with agility upon the platform almost as the train started. Entering the car, she opened a book and stood with an expression of determination to stand or die.

She had not closed the door behind her before she had recognized in a seat near her a youth who had often given up his seat for her before. She had not read a word of her book before he had risen, with a cheerful smile, and pointed to his vacant place.

In course of time the other passengers alighted one by one, and these two found themselves almost alone.

It was a glorious autumn evening, about six o'clock. She sat in her corner, her head bent over her book, the vivid colors of the setting sun turning her brown hair into red gold. He sat in the corner opposite, his eyes riveted on her. She had taken off her gloves and her slim white fingers clasped her book; she sat so that her face was three-quarters towards him, her head bent, and her simple cotton gown falling gracefully about her.

Unaware of his intent scrutiny, she started in surprise when, suddenly moving to the seat opposite her, he spoke:

"I beg your pardon—but would you think it very queer of me if I asked you to let me draw you? Just now, as you sit there?"

She raised her eyes and looked at him. She had considered him a mere everyday young man, but now she could see a sensitive, dreamy expression in his eyes and around his mouth, that stamped him an artist. She was so surprised that she could say nothing and he went on:

"I really wouldn't be a bother to you, you see—and you don't know what it would mean to me."

He had already whipped out notebook and pencil, and his long fingers twitched as though anxious to begin.

She looked at him with a chilly smile. "It's a very odd thing to ask," she began icily.

"You know I need not have said anything at all about it. But I did not like to do that—it would have seemed like stealing."

There was something so astonishing in this shy boy becoming bold that the girl laughed in spite of herself.

"Very well," she said, and dropping her eyes on her book, apparently gave it her whole attention as before.

But the book might have been upside down for all she could make of it. The words danced about in front of her, and the sentences jumbled themselves together. It was with the greatest exertion of will power that she kept her eyes lowered at all. She longed to see what those clever looking fingers would make of her.

At last her station was reached.

"Oh—don't—" came in a voice of such heart-breaking appeal, as she prepared to depart.

"This is my station; I am going," she said, as the train began to slacken speed.

"Oh, no. Not just yet," he cried, with a ring of despair in his voice.

Endeavoring to feel angry, the girl looked up at him once more. She would never have thought his face capable of such expression and power. While she looked she hesitated; the train had stopped. She still sat on.

They say that he—or she—who hesitates is lost; the whistle shrieked, the train gave a jerk and began to glide away. She gave a sigh, a burning flush spread over her face and she sank back ashamed into her corner. He drew on almost savagely, covering page after page of the notebook with the rough ideas.

It was not until the next station was reached and he opened the door and stepped out to assist her, that he spoke:

"I shall never forget what you have done for me to-day," he said. "I only hope you will forgive me."

When next they met, some long months after, they stood side by side before a picture—the picture. It was at a soiree given at a private view of a certain art exhibition, and the young artist, from where he stood hungrily watching the different effects his work had on the more or less casual spectators, had suddenly turned his head to the door and seen her come in. She had walked straight to his end of the gallery, and stood motionless before the picture.

He came to her side, and with something like an apology for speaking on his face, began:

"Excuse me—but I knew, I felt you would come this evening."

She colored slightly, and gave him a little, distant bow.

Then she looked at the picture.

There was the flaming sunset, just as she remembered it, with its vivid reds lighting up the face of a girl sitting by a window, a book held in her two white hands. There was a simplicity about the pose and dressing of the picture that might easily cause it to be passed by as a mere excellent piece of detail work, unless one looked long at the face of the girl. Then one could see she had just raised her eyes, with her lips parted to speak. She seemed to meet the gaze of each person with a wondering yet half haughty expression. There was a mysterious, nameless fascination in the beautiful brown eyes, in which lay the reason for the whole picture.

"Do you like her?" asked the young artist, eagerly.

"Not as a portrait of myself," the girl answered.

"Oh, why not?"

"You have used too much of the ideal lady you were thinking of," she answered, "and too little of the flesh and blood me."

He looked from one to the other critically, then said, bluntly:

"I see what you mean; all the same I don't think so. That is you to me."

They stood before the picture a few minutes longer, then he said: "There are some gems of miniatures in the little room over there; will you come and see them?"

She looked around; her family had wandered away, so she figuratively snapped her fingers at the prudent, prim self who wanted to make her listen to the voice of Mrs. Grundy, and took his proffered arm.

They went to this room, but they took very little notice of the "gems." He pushed a chair forward, and she obediently sat in it.

"I really feel I ought to say something about the very unusualness of my proceeding, that day last year," he said; "only I don't know where to begin."

"Oh, it's all done now," she said, hurriedly. "It cannot be helped."

"It was an irresistible impulse to draw you—" he began.

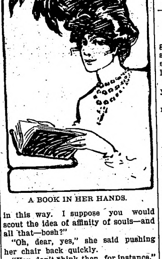
"Oh! but that's not me," she said, firmly. "I really make no pretensions of being that girl. She is far too beautiful, too wierdly beautiful," she finished, frankly. "I don't quite understand it," she added, reflectively; "there is a mystery in that face, something that I believe will haunt me till I know the meaning. Will you explain it to me?"

"It is unexplainable," he answered, quietly.

"It was a great liberty to take with my face," she said, laughing rather hysterically, "putting riddles into my eyes, which generally I am afraid, speak things all too clearly."

Presently he looked up at her with something of the boyish expression once more on his face.

"It is a curious thing," he said musingly, "our being thrown together in this way. I suppose you would scout the idea of affinity of souls—and all that—bosh?"



A BOOK IN HER HANDS.

"Oh, dear, yes," she said pushing her chair back quickly.

"You don't think then, for instance," he went on solemnly, "that we two—might end in—in—"

She rose hurriedly, not trusting the expression on the earnest boyish face, nor indeed the somewhat rapid beating of her own heart.

"Good gracious no," she said sternly, "why, we have never been introduced."

There was a second's pause. Then he held out his arm.

"Will you allow me to take you back to the other room, just while I go and fetch one of the reception committee?"

And before she realized what he was doing, he left her for a moment returning with a flurried looking gentleman with a white badge in his coat, who, after audibly asking both their names said politely:

"Miss Dennison—may I present Mr. Richard Orme to you?" and vanished.

Animal Hospital in India.

There is an animal hospital at Lodepur, near Calcutta, where there are usually about 1,000 animals under treatment—horses, oxen, mules, elephants, dogs, and even sheep—all comfortably housed and looked after by a staff of 80 native "nurses," under the orders of a British veterinary surgeon.

All Over.

Hubby—I don't see why you shouldn't exert yourself to make me happy.

Wifey—Why, of all things! You know you told me when I accepted you that I had made you the happiest man on earth. What is the use of my trying to improve on that?—Stray Stories.

Andean Climbers.

In the Andes a curious effect is noted by travelers. There is an inn half-way up the direct route where ascenders and descenders frequently meet, the former half perished with increasing cold, the latter overwhelmed by increasing heat.

Tongue with Every Course.

Mrs. Marmaduke Brown was entertaining some ladies at a select five-o'clock tea, and her little son Jacky, who had been exceptionally well-behaved, was in high feather.

"Ma," he said, as cake was being handed round, "may I have some tongue, please?"

"There isn't any tongue, Jacky."

"That's funny!" said Jacky. "I heard pa say there would be lots of it."—Tit-Bits.

Understood the Case.

Customer—I want to get some old-fashioned pumpkin-pie cans—about two feet long, you know, and a foot wide, and two inches deep, with square corners.

Dealer—Yes, sir. I believe we have a few left. Going to have some old-fashioned pumpkin pies, eh?"

"Yes, siree."

"You are lucky. It isn't every man who has a great-grandmother living, and in good health."—N. Y. Weekly.

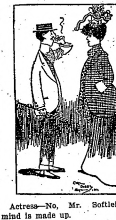
Help at Hand.

The low-browed party with a pistol in one hand paused in front of the pedestrian.

"I'm goin' to hold youse up," he said.

"T-that's real k-kind of you, I'm sure," answered the pedestrian. "I h-had a sinking s-sensation when I saw you a-approaching."—Chicago Daily News.

HIS REVENGE.



Actress—No, Mr. Softleigh, my mind is made up.

Bertie—I'm not surprised, Miss Footlights. I know your face generally is.

A Fear.

Mendacity the world doth range.
Men welcome its endeavor.
Though truth than fiction is more strange,
It isn't near so clever.
—Washington Star.

Ambiguous.

Ethel (who is not famous for her good looks)—I don't see why you should call Miss Whitmore plain. I'm sure I only wish I were half as good-looking as she is.

Fred—You are, Ethel—you know you are.

And Ethel is wondering whether he meant to compliment her.—Tit-Bits.

He Wouldn't.

Ma Twaddles—Tommy, how many times have I told you to stop that racket? Now, don't let me speak to you again.

Tommy Twaddles—I wouldn't if I knew how to stop you, ma.—Cleveland Leader.

No Increase.

"Didn't I tell you last week that I did not want you to call on my daughter any more?"

"Yes, sir; and I'm not."

"You're not? Why—er—er—"

"No, sir; I'm not. I was calling seven nights a week then."—Tit-Bits.

That Youngster Again.

"Come, dear," said his mother, pointing to the silvery crescent in the sky, "and look at it. It's the same old moon."

"'Tain't, nuther," he said, still sulking. "This one's broke!"—Chicago Tribune.

Peek-a-Boo.

"My life," said the beautiful girl, "is an open book; I conceal nothing from the world."

"That's so," replied her father, sizing up her new shirt waist, "but don't you think you ought to?"—Houston Post.

Engagement Ring.

Jack—Yes, I had a terrible battle with Katherine's heart before she finally accepted me.

Joe—You don't say! How is she now?"

Jack—Oh, she is still in the ring.—Chicago Daily News.

Not a Fan.

"Bliggins doesn't take any interest in baseball."

"How do you know?"

"He says he never allows himself to become angry or excited."—Washington Star.

Have You Noticed It?

"Did you ever notice it?"

"What?"

"When you can't meet your bills you can't help meeting your creditors."—Houston Post.

Propriety.

"But why do you think you ought to be accompanied by a chaperon?"

"One of my former husbands is to be there," replied the pretty grass widow.—Chicago Record-Herald.

OF AID TO HOSTESS

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

Appropriate Quotations for a Farewell Dinner—At a Bride Shower—A Character Party—Portrait Contest.

Quotations for a Farewell Dinner.

Here are some appropriate quotations for use at a dinner given in honor of a guest who is about to depart upon a long journey:

"Though lost to sight, to memory
dear."

"Absence breaks slender ties, but rivets strong ones."

"I count myself in nothing else so happy,
As in a soul remembering my good friends."

"Where e'er I roam, whatever realms
to see,
My heart, untraveled, fondly turns to thee."

"Farewell; a word that must be, and hath been;
A sound that makes us linger; yet—
farewell."
"Though the deep between us rolls,
Friendship shall unite our souls;
Still in fancy's rich domain
Often we shall meet again."

"What shall I do with all the days and hours
That must be counted ere I see thy face?"

The place cards may be painted with a bunch of for-get-me-nots, or tie a spray of artificial ones onto it with a bit of "true blue" ribbon.

A correspondent asks for an entertainment for a linen "shower" and a luncheon menu.

Make cards in shape of a heart out of pink cardboard, punch a hole and tie pink pencils on them. Next write the transposed letters of the words of the articles in a bride's trousseau like this: "hseos," rskit," etc. Transposed these letters become "shoes" and "skirt." Allow 20 minutes for this contest. Then for the "shower" I should hide the packages all over the rooms and make the bride-elect hunt for them to music, played "loud" and "soft."

This will make no end of fun and as each package is opened when found, it will take some time and provide ample entertainment. If the donors write an appropriate quotation it will add much to the enjoyment of all.

Here is a seasonable menu: Strawberries served with hulls around a mound of powdered sugar, fried chicken, new potatoes in cream, sprinkled with parsley; asparagus on toast, tomato and shrimp salad with cheese wafers, cherry ice and small cakes, with the usual accompaniments of olives, nuts and bon-bons.

A reader who signs herself "An Old Subscriber" requests some form of amusement for a large evening party of young people.

Personally, I think there is no form of amusement equal to a costume party, whether dancing is indulged in or not. Anything that all can participate in is sure to be successful. Make it a character party and award prizes for the two best costumes. If each person keeps secret what they are to represent the affair will be much more interesting.

A Portrait Contest.

A hostess noted for her originality sent out invitations on red cardboard, written up and down the page "a la Chinese," having the usual date and hour and also "portrait contest" in one corner. When the guests arrived each one was presented with the figure of a man in conventional dress, but with no face. On the back was written the name of a man whose features were to be portrayed. Pencils were furnished and a half hour was allotted for the task. Each artist was to keep his subject a secret.

When time was called the creations were pinned up for the edification of the company, who were to guess the originals and put them down in their catalogues. Then the hostess read the list of people who were supposed to have been drawn and the result was most amusing. The artist who had made the best likenesess of the subject was awarded a prize, and to the one who rightly guessed the most portraits a second prize was given.

A chafing dish supper was served, and for place cards there were tiny palettes with a little brush. The whole affair afforded the keenest amusement.

MADAME MERRI.

Girl with Freckles.

One pint of rose water, one-half ounce of pulverized borax, one ounce of strained lemon juice. Use this lotion freely after being exposed to the sun. Never use soap and water on the face just before going out of doors or directly after coming in, since this practice is a fine freckle-encourager.

A Wrinkled Forehead.

Massage across the wrinkle, not directly in the crease. Rub up and down across the wrinkle every time. Use a good skin food.

For Dry Hair.

When brushing the hair use a few drops of pure olive oil.

EYES AND EYEBROWS.

Upon What Soulful Beauty of the Eye Is Dependent and Upon What the Physical Beauty.

If you think there is no power in a woman's eye, ask any husband and he will tell you that there's more meaning in a quick glance of disapproval than in all the works of the philosophers. Ask the lover and he will tell you that a woman's eye holds in its depths a mysterious and sweet wonder—that one look would mean misery to him, while a tender glance would open up the gates of paradise. A woman's heart shines forth in a look. Lips may frame false words, but the eye can never deceive, writes Mme. Qui Vive. If anger and hatred and revenge are a part of one's character the eyes are hard and steely. If one has tenderness in one's soul, affection and sympathy in one's thoughts, then the eyes are soft, lovable and radiant with the light of human kindness.

No argument is needed to prove the importance of beautiful eyes. Look into the eyes of your friend and read the message they give out. Gaze into the eyes of a wondering little child, and what do you see there?

PERFECT EYES AND BROWS.

Beautiful eyes will glorify the plainest face. Without beauty of these soul windows, the face cannot be perfect.

The physical beauty of the eye depends more upon its size and elongation than upon the color. If it is not well set in the head or if the eye is small and cold, no color can make it beautiful. The white of the eye, the sclerotic, should be quite clear and of a violet-white, rather than bluish.

The cornea is sometimes spoken of as the "white of the eye," but it is a tough, colorless, highly polished surface, as transparent as crystal, through which the iris and pupil are seen. It is inserted in the sclerotic as a watch crystal is inserted into its case. The brightness of the eye depends upon the perfection of the cornea's essential qualities, and perfect vision upon its normal curvature.

Nothing in the world can change or alter the color of the eyes. The color is deepened or intensified by emotions, and a joyous frame of mind is the greatest thing in the world to make a soul window shine up and be sparkling. The use of belladonna to brighten the eyes cannot be too strongly condemned, and feminine vanity should never take one to such extreme methods of beautifying. The practice is invariably followed by injury to the most delicate organ of the human body.

USE THE BATH BAG.

How to Prepare and the Beneficial Effects—A Word About Daily Beautifying.

Wise women wonder why their sisters do not more generally use the invaluable bath bag. They are made by filling a thick muslin or thin calico bag with two-thirds of bran or oatmeal, bits of soap, and orris root, just to give a sweet savor. Let this soak in the water before entering the bath, and make a splendid lather all over the skin; if you use this only two or three times a week it will make the body smooth.

But each bag is good for only twice using; once sour it does more harm than good. It is a great secret in most toilet preparations to use them while fresh. There is a most delightful cream which works veritable wonders if employed as soon as it is made, and never after it has been mixed more than a week or so. Blanch for the purpose four ounces of sweet almonds and pound them till they are quite smooth, add the yolks of three eggs, and mix with fresh milk or cream; boil as you would a custard, stirring all the time, and remove as soon as it thickens; then add the perfume you prefer. Seal while hot.

Every night before retiring is the best time for devoting just a little while to the care of the complexion and hands. Ten minutes can be spared and no more should be taken. It would else be time wasted. We cannot give our energy and hours to beauty work when so many more useful pursuits invite attention. Apply any inexpensive, harmless cold cream to the face and neck to remove the grime of the day, wipe with a soft old cloth, and wash with pure unscented soap, using the hands instead of a wash cloth. Rinse with an abundance of warm water and a dash of cold water, and apply a fine white cream for the night.

Use a Cream.

You must never massage the face without using some kind of cream. If you do not use the cream you break the tissues of the skin and cause wrinkles. But it is not necessary to use much of the cream. A very little on the ends of the fingers is sufficient. Make the movements light and in a circular motion, always up, never down.

BITS FOR BACHELORS.

Many men think themselves self-made who are really marriage-made.

The man who avoids matrimony on account of the cares of wedded life rivals the wiseacre who secured himself against corns by having his legs amputated.

Don't marry for beauty alone. Socrates called beauty "a short-lived tyranny," and Theophrastus pronounced it "a silent cheat." The man who marries for beauty alone is as silly as the man who would buy a house because it had fine flowers in the front garden.

It is in life as it is with a kite; it will not fly very high until it has a string tying it down. And so the man who is tied down by half a dozen responsibilities and their mother will make a higher and stronger fight than the bachelor who, having nothing to keep him steady, is always floundering in the mud.

Every man has his trade. The bookkeeper can't juggle cannon balls any more than the juggler can balance a set of books.

IN STRICT CONFIDENCE.

Women Obtain Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Help.

She Has Guided Thousands to Health.—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Mrs. Alice Berryhill.

Mrs Alice Berryhill

It is a great satisfaction for a woman to feel that she can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only.

Many thousands of cases of female diseases come before Mrs. Pinkham every year, some personally, others by mail. Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence of women, and every testimonial letter published is done so with the written consent or request of the writer, in order that other sick women may be benefited as she has been.

Mrs. Alice Berryhill, of 313 Boyce Street, Chattanooga, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Three years ago life looked dark to me. I had ulceration and inflammation of the female organs and was in a serious condition.

"My health was completely broken down and the doctor told me that if I was not operated upon I would die within six months. I told him I would have no operation but would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He tried to influence me against it but I sent for the medicine that same day and began to use it faithfully. Within five days I felt relief but was not entirely cured until I used it for some time.

"Your medicine is certainly fine. I have induced several friends and neighbors to take it and I know more than a dozen who had female troubles and who to-day are as well and strong as I am from using your Vegetable Compound."

Just as surely as Mrs. Berryhill was cured, will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman suffering from any form of female ills.

If you are sick write Mrs. Pinkham for advice. It is free and always helpful.

Libby's Food Products

enable you to enjoy your meals without having to spend half your time between them over a hot cook-stove.

All the cooking is done in Libby's kitchen—a kitchen as clean and neat as your own, and there's nothing for you to do but enjoy the result.

Libby's Products are selected meats, cooked by cooks who know how, and only the good parts packed.

For a quick and delicious lunch any time, in doors or out, try Libby's Melrose Pate—with Libby's Camp Sauce.

Booklet free, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Write

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Libby's Melrose Pate

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.
MILO B. STEVENS & CO.
806 14th St., Washington, D. C.
PENSIONS
Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

PATENTS 48-page book FREE, highest references.
FITZGERALD & CO., Box K, Washington, D. C.

TORTURED WITH ECZEMA.

Tremendous Itching Over Whole Body —Scratched Until Bled—Wonderful Cure by Cuticura.

"Last year I suffered with a tremendous itching on my back, which grew worse and worse, until it spread over the whole body, and only my face and hands were free. For four months or so I suffered torments, and I had to scratch, scratch, scratch, until I bled. At night when I went to bed things got worse, and I had at times to get up and scratch my body all over, until I was as sore as could be, and until I suffered excruciating pains. They told me that I was suffering from eczema. Then I made up my mind that I would use the Cuticura Remedies. I used them according to instructions, and very soon indeed I was greatly relieved. I continued until well, and now I am ready to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one. Mrs. Mary Metzger, Sweetwater, Okla., June 28, 1905."

ODD EATING CUSTOMS.

Brazilians never eat when they drink, nor drink when they eat; and the Tartars continually persist in pulling a guest by the ear until he drinks.

Maldive islanders retire to the darkest part of the houses and hang curtains about them, so that none of their fellowmen may see them at their meal.

When they desire to show a mark of great esteem, the negroes of Ardra drink from the same cup at the same time, and the King of Loango used to eat and drink in two separate houses.

The Philippine islander will not eat a meal alone. Whenever a Filipnio finds himself without a companion with whom to share his meal, he will abstain from eating until he has found one.

A strange custom prevails in Kamchtaka, where a man who wishes to entertain a guest invites him into a cabin, which is heated to an excessive temperature, and then presses him with food until he is in a state of torpor. Instances of men dying at these orgies have been known.

The Tahitians, though a naturally sociable race, dine separately. Even the man and his wife do not eat togehter. Each member of the family has his own food-basket. They take their places about five yards apart, and then, turning their backs to each other, dine amid a profound silence.

DIAMOND DEALER'S MISTAKE

One of His Own Gems, But He Failed to Recognize the Sparkler.

"Will you please examine this diamond," said a man who had stepped into a jeweler's shop, "and tell me what you think of it? If it is a good stone, I think I will buy it."

The jeweler took the gem, which was unset, and looked at it critically for a moment. Then in a confidential tone he said:

"Well, to tell you the truth, that isn't a very good stone. It hasn't much fire, it is badly cut, and there is something here very much like a flaw." Then he held the diamond under a microscope and examined it carefully, finally observing: "No, it isn't exactly a flaw, but I shouldn't call it a perpect stone. Now, if you want something really fine, here—"

"Excuse me," the other man interrupted. "I don't think I'll buy a diamond to-day. This is a diamond that one of your assistants let me take Saturday on approval. I deposited $40 on it. Please let me have my money, and we will declare the deal off."

The Only Good.

"Father, why do these automobiles puff out so much smoke behind?"

"Stupid! So the policeman can't see the number!"—Meggendorfer Blatter.

BUILDING FOOD

To Bring the Babies Around.

When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food to bring it around again.

"My little baby boy fifteen months old had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die.

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got some and for a few days gave him just the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well.

"That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my girl came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster the boy is now, but he didn't look anything like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centers and brain. A well-fed brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

HORTICULTURE

MARKING AN ORCHARD.

How Rapid Work May Be Done with an Old Wheel and Money Saved.

The diagram below shows wheel for laying out ground for orchard that I have used for some years. The drawing shows for itself how made; two boards 10 feet long, 1x4, put together as shown, with wheel at one end, and wide enough apart at the other for a man to stand inside, and draw it. An old wheelbarrow wheel is what I use.

THE MARKER FOR ORCHARD.

When you have your ground, say 10 acres more or less, ready, establish base lines, writes a Michigan orchardist to the Rural New Yorker. Then draw this wheel from one tree point to one on opposite side of field back and forth, until marked one way. Then mark the field the other way, and at the point where the wheel marks cross is the place for a tree. The hole is to be dug there, and the tree is to be set on a line each way with the mark. Not a stake need be set except to go by in marking. One man can work ground for 1,000 trees in eight hours, and the trees will be in perfect line each way. Any man who can follow the line of two stakes can do the marking. A variation of a man's body from side to side does not affect the wheel 8 or 10 feet back, and the wheel mark is so unlike any other mark that there is no danger of losing the line. In setting 1,400 peach trees I saved at least $10 by this method, beside having every tree exactly in line.

FIGHTING CANKER WORMS.

Interesting Experiment by Prof. Slingerland at Cornell University.

The class taking advanced work in economic entomology at Cornell, N. Y., made an interesting experiment, writes Prof. Slingerland in the Cornell Countryman.

For several years a group of large elm trees about a mile from the university campus have been nearly defoliated by hordes of spring cankerworm caterpillars. These little measuring-worms hatch in May from eggs laid on the bark by moths that emerge in March and April from pupae in the soil beneath the trees.

The male moths have well-developed wings and fly readily, but the females are wingless and are thus obliged to crawl up the trees and deposit their eggs on the bark of the branches. The ascent is always made at night. Various devices, such as sticky bands, and wire, tin or stiff paper barriers, have been used on the trunks of trees to prevent the ascent of the wingless female moths.

Recently a fly-paper manufacturer has made a tree-tanglefoot mixture, and with a liberal sample furnished by the firm, several of the infested elm trees were treated. One tree was more than two feet in diameter and the bark was very rough. It took several pounds of the tanglefoot to make a complete band six or eight inches wide around the trunk, several feet from the ground. The application was made on March 15, just before the moths began "running" up the trees.

Great masses of the wingless female moths were found March 31 on the lower edge of the sticky band, and thousands of flying males were caught all over the band. A few females were able to get over the band where dead males had formed narrow bridges across the tanglefoot. Several pints or many thousands of the females were caught and killed by the band on this one large tree. As each female may lay 200 or more eggs, the tree was relieved from feeding hundreds of thousands of canker-worms in May. The experiment was thus a striking success and has furnished a valuable object lesson."

Yes, and it should furnish a useful object lesson to the farmer. The spring spring canker-worm often attacks other trees besides elms—apple trees, for instance. If the tanglefoot preparation is not readily obtainable, other sticky substances may be used. Tar, printers' ink, thick molasses, bird-lime, or bands of fly-paper, are all more or less useful for the purpose.

If fly-paper is used, remember that it should be at least five inches wide, and must fit close to the bark. On rough-bark trees, the bark must either be scraped smooth where the band is to go, or all depressions must be filled with clay or putty, so as to make a smooth surface on which to fasten the sticky band.

Coddling moth: This is the pest that causes wormy apples. As soon as the blossoms fall, spray the trees with the Bordeaux-arsenate mixture. Repeat in ten days. Now don't delay. The work must be done right after the falling of the blossoms.—Prairie Farmer.

Head your trees low so that you won't have to call out the fire department with the extension ladder when you go to spray your orchard.

MAKING THE ORCHARD PAY

It Is Only as the Trees Are Properly Trimmed, Sprayed and Nurtured.

What should be done with an old orchard? It looks as though the answer could be easily made. Either cut down or spray, if profit is desired. In this case there would be some useful timber for the stove or factory, in the other there may be a neglected opportunity for profit.

Here is the experience of one man: He rented an orchard which had been neglected for many years. After two years it gave a profit, which continued to increase for some time. The trees were no better than many others which are now looked upon as of no value. As a result of spraying, pruning and fertilizing there are now fine apples to show for the labor, yielded by an orchard more than 60 years old.

But it must be admitted that it is not every orchard that can be made productive. Half-dead trees, poor varieties and unsuited localities are factors to be considered. A good top cannot be grown on a rotten trunk, old trees are not profitably grafted, neither will a barren or a cold, wet soil produce a valuable orchard. There are many considerations which make it advisable to cut down the trees as the best solution of the orchard problem in some instances.

So much has been said about the San Jose scale that mention of the subject is likely to cause a feeling of weariness. Nevertheless, it has come to stay, so the sooner that is recognized the better. Currants, gooseberries, and some other small fruits are attacked by it as well as the orchards. But if all these were blotted out the scale would still remain, as it has taken to some of the forest trees and shrubs. However, there is consolation in knowing that it is comparatively harmless when it takes to the woods, and there would be little cause for complaint if it would only stay there. It can exist on many wild trees, but it is now claimed that it does not increase in numbers unless in a favorable place, which is, unfortunately, on some cultivated fruit.

But the scale is not so difficult to control as was once supposed. The lime and sulphur solution is a panacea for the evil, but as the scale will hide in crevices where the spray does not reach it, there are almost certain to be some of the insects left after the most careful application, so that extermination is not to be expected at present. One thorough spraying a year will keep the insect from being injurious, and will also clear the trees from several of the fungi.

"I did not spray this spring," remarked a man last year who had extensive orchards under his management. "The trees did not blossom much this spring. There would not be fruit enough anyhow to pay for the material, so we thought it poor economy to spend more than it was worth in trying to save it."

Was there economy in not spraying? What is the other side of the question? The fruit destroying insects and fungi do not always depend alone upon one kind of food for a living. Investigation has shown that many of them, perhaps all, are capable of subsisting on something besides fruit.

The apple scab does not depend upon the apple, can get along quite well without it, in fact, so long as there is green bark. There is reason to think that the codling moth lays three-fourths of her eggs upon leaves, and that the larvae can develop there if no apple is within reach. How far this may apply in regard to other insects and diseases is a matter for conjecture, but certain it is that the pests do not seem to be starved out when fruit is lacking. The curculio is around in full numbers when there is a large crop of plums, though there may have been none the year before, and the various kinds of rot are on hand, regardless of last season's deficiency.

All things considered, declares the Prairie Farmer, it would seem like poor economy to neglect spraying. When there is fruit spraying is needed to protect it, and when there is none spraying is useful to insure the next year's crop. It is the stitch in time which may save more than nine for the future.

PLANTING RASPBERRIES.

Method by Which the Work of Setting Out Can Be Rapidly Completed.

The cut shows a method for the rapid "setting out" of raspberry and blackberry canes. Select land that had a hoed crop the year before. Plow, manure and thoroughly cultivate. Then run straight furrows (about six feet apart for raspberries, and eight feet for blackberries) across the field to be planted, and set the canes in the furrows as shown in the cut. A one-horse plow can turn the soil back to the canes, which can then be straightened up, and the ground be smoothed with a hand hoe.

Shut Out American Vines.

The canton of Geneva, Switzerland, has forbidden the importation of rooted American grapevines, whether grafted or not; scions will be permitted entry, after passing inspection. This prohibition is due to fear of phylloxera. Geneva has 4,600 acres of grapevines; the adjoining Canton de Vaud, with 17,000 acres of grapes, also prohibits American grapevines.

Cut out and burn all black knots on plum or cherry trees. Then tell your neighbor to do the same.

SEVEN YEARS AGO

A Rochester Chemist Found a Singularly Effective Medicine.

William A. Franklin, of the Franklin & Palmer Chemical Co., Rochester, N. Y., writes:

"Seven years ago I was suffering very much through the failure of the kidneys to eliminate the uric acid from my system. My back was very lame and ached if I overexerted myself in the least degree. At times I was weighed down with a feeling of languor and depression and suffered continually from annoying irregularities of the kidney secretions. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I found prompt relief from the aching and lameness in my back, and by the time I had taken three boxes I was cured of all irregularities."

Sold by all dealers; 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

TOLD OF THE TOTS.

The father of four-year-old Bessie is a traveling man, and during his absence recently a new baby arrived. Upon his return home a few days later Bessie met him at the door and exclaimed: "Oh, papa, you can't guess who was born while you were away!"

Little eight-year-old Ida, attracted by its bright binding, selected from the library a copy of Pope's "Essay of Man" to read. After a diligent effort to understand it she replaced the book, saying to her mother: "It may be easy on man, but it's hard on children."

"Noah's wife," said a boy in an examination, "was called Joan of Arc." "Water," wrote another, "is composed of two gases, oxygen and combrigen." "Lava," replied a third youth, "is what the barber puts on your face." "A blizzard," insisted another child, "is the inside of a fowl."

A schoolboy in the fifth grade scratched his head for a long time before attempting to "compare the animals of North America with those of Europe." At last, in his desire to say something, he wrote: "The animals of North America are not as large as those of Europe, but they get there just the same."

The mother of a six-year-old youngster was mending a rip in his pants while he sat bare-legged on the floor impatiently waiting for her to finish the job. He had been unusually quiet for a minute, and the maternal ancestor asked:

"What are you thinking of, my son?"

"I was thinking what a nice clagrette picture I'd make."

One on the Doctor.

Lawyer—I say, doctor, why are you always running us lawyers down?

Doctor (dryly)—Well, your profession doesn't make angels of men, does it?

"Why, no; you certainly have the advantage of us there, doctor."—Illustrated Bits.

"Say, I came to this dance without an invitation." "So did I. How did you work it!" "Nobody stopped me. How did you?" "Same way. My wife's giving the dance."

Stranger (to the beggar's son)—"How long has your father been blind?" Boy—"Every day from eight in the morning until six at night."

THE CADDY'S COMMENT.

One That Was Not Very Complimentary to a Professional Player.

Walter J. Travis, the golfer, set up his ball, and then made half a dozen swishes at the short grass with the driver, relates the New York Tribune.

"I am not in good form," he said, "I am playing like a broker we had here last week.

"This broker played once around, making a dreadful exhibition of himself. Of this, though, he was not aware. He was doing pretty well for him.

"The man's caddy was an unusually quiet, stolid lad, a boy with a freckled face quite devoid of expression.

"And since the caddy never once laughed or sneered at his bad play, the broker took a fancy to him. And he said at the end of the round, in the hope of getting a compliment:

"'I have been traveling for the last six months. I am quite out of practice. That is why I am in such bad form to-day.'

"The caddy replied, calmly:

"'Then ye've played before, have ye, sir?'"

PROFIT POINTERS.

Nobody wants an over-anxious man. He gets on one's nerves.

Did you ever know a "tricky" man to make a permanent success?

Matter is composed of atoms. Businesses are built up by attention to details.

Business is not necessarily hard work. Make it good fun, and you'll do more.

Not the Only Hot Place.

"The most serious objection I have to dying," said the Bostonian, "is that I shall have to leave Boston."

"Aw, don't worry about that," said the Chicagoan; "Boston ain't the only hot place."—The Bohemian.

Behind the Times.

"Janie is so mortified at her husband's illness that she won't tell anyone what is the matter with him."

"What disease has he?"

"Old-fashioned consumption."—N. Y. Times.

When society, as distinct from law, begins to punish the moral offenses of the rich as it does those of the poor, the problem will be a long way toward solution.—Detroit News.

DIETARY DICTA.

Dinner should be of a lighter nature in summer than in winter.

A quart of wheat contains more nutriment than a bushel of cucumbers.

There is a happy mean between eating everything and being squeamish.

Two pounds of potatoes contain as much nutriment as 18 pounds of turnips.

Light soups, light desserts and light meals should have the preference in warm weather.

Vegetables and fruits are to be used most generously at that season of the year in which they naturally mature.

Beginning the dinner with soup is the very best way to get the whole system in condition for assimilating a hearty meal.

No Trick at All.

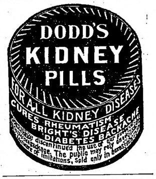
Canby Dunn—Do you take any stock in the story that a man engraved the entire alphabet on the head of a pin?"

Y. Knott—Certainly. He could have engraved the ten commandments on it. It was a coupling pin. Ring off.—Chicago Tribune.

Her Favorite Play.

"What is your favorite play?" asked the girl who quotes Shakespeare. "Well," answered the youth with long hair, "I believe I like to see a man knock the ball over the left field fence as well as anything."—Montreal Star.

The girl who waits for a man to come along and make love to her after the manner of a novel hero will remain single to the end of the chapter.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM
BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE
DIABETES

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

A. N. K.—G (1906—24) 2130.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
Bears The Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE
A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.
DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.
This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.
For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

THE ONLY ONE

There is only One Genuine- Syrup of Figs,

The Genuine is Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

The full name of the company, California Fig Syrup Co., is printed on the front of every package of the genuine.

The Genuine- Syrup of Figs- is for Sale, in Original Packages Only, by Reliable Druggists Everywhere

Knowing the above will enable one to avoid the fraudulent imitations made by piratical concerns and sometimes offered by unreliable dealers. The imitations are known to act injuriously and should therefore be declined.

Buy the genuine always if you wish to get its beneficial effects. It cleanses the system gently yet effectually, dispels colds and headaches when bilious or constipated, prevents fevers and acts best on the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels, when a laxative remedy is needed by men, women or children. Many millions know of its beneficial effects from actual use and of their own personal knowledge. It is the laxative remedy of the well-informed.

Always buy the Genuine- Syrup of Figs
MANUFACTURED BY THE
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
Louisville, Ky. San Francisco, Cal. New York, N.Y.
PRICE FIFTY CENTS PER BOTTLE

HORRORS IN CHICAGO'S PACKING INDUSTRY REPORTED IN THE NEILL-REYNOLDS REPORT TO PRESIDENT

Charges of Upton Sinclair in "The Jungle" are Substatianted by the Investigating Committee of the Government—President Sends a Special Message to Congress and Recommends Passage of Beveridge Amendment to Agricultural Bill.

Washington, June 4.—The Senate and House of Representatives: I transmit herewith the report of Mr. James Bronson Reynolds and Commissioner Charles P. Neill, the special committee whom I appointed to investigate into the conditions in the stock yards of Chicago and report thereon to me. This report is of a preliminary nature. I submit it to you now because it shows the urgent need of immediate action by the congress in the direction of providing a drastic and thoroughgoing inspection by the federal government of all stock yards and packing houses and of their products, so far as the latter enter into interstate or foreign commerce. The conditions shown by even this short inspection to exist in the Chicago stock yards are revolting. It is imperatively necessary in the interest of health and of decency that they should be radically changed. Under the existing law it is wholly impossible to secure satisfactory results.

Orders Further Investigation.

When my attention was first directed to this matter an investigation was made under the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture. When the preliminary statements of this investigation were brought to my attention they showed such defects in the law and such wholly unexpected conditions that I deemed it best to have a further immediate investigation by men not connected with the bureau, and accordingly appointed Messrs. Reynolds and Neill. It was impossible under the existing law that satisfactory work should be done by the bureau of animal industry. I am now, however, examining the way in which the work actually was done.

Before I had received the report of Messrs. Reynolds and Neill I had directed that labels placed upon any package of meat food products should state only that the carcass of the animal from which the meat was taken had been inspected at the time of slaughter. If inspection of meat food products at all stages of preparation is not secured by the passage of the legislation recommended I shall feel compelled to order that inspection labels and certificates on canned products shall not be used hereafter.

Packing Houses Unreasonably Dirty.

The report shows that the stock yards and packing houses are not kept even reasonably clean, and that the method of handling and preparing food products is uncleanly and dangerous to health. Under existing law the national government has no power to enforce inspection of the many forms of prepared meat food products that are daily going from the packing houses into interstate commerce. Owing to an inadequate appropriation the department of agriculture is not even able to place inspectors in all establishments desiring them. The present law prohibits the shipment of uninspected meat to foreign countries, but there is no provision forbidding the shipment of uninspected meats in interstate commerce, and thus the avenues of interstate commerce are left open to traffic in diseased or spoiled meats. If, as has been alleged on seemingly good authority further evils exist, such as the improper use of chemicals and dyes, the government lacks power to remedy them. A law is needed which will enable the inspectors of the general government to inspect and supervise from the hoof to the can the preparation of the meat food product. The evil seems to be much less in the sale of dressed carcasses than in the sale of canned and other prepared products; and very much less as regards products sent abroad than as regards these used at home.

In my judgment the expense of the inspection should be paid by a fee levied on each animal slaughtered. If this is not done, the whole purpose of the law can at any time be defeated through an insufficient appropriation; and whenever there was no particular public interest in the subject it would be not only easy but natural thus to make the appropriation insufficient. If it were not for this consideration I should favor the government paying for the inspection.

The alarm expressed in certain quarters concerning this feature should be allayed by a realization of the fact that in no case, under such a law, will the cost of inspection exceed eight cents per head.

I call special attention to the fact that this report is preliminary, and that the investigation is still unfinished. It is not yet possible to report on the alleged abuses in the use of deleterious chemical compounds in connection with canning and preserving meat products, nor on the alleged doctoring in this fashion of tainted meat and of products returned to the packers as having grown unsalable or unusable from age or from other reasons. Grave allegations are made in reference to abuses of this nature.

Let me repeat that under the present law there is practically no method of stopping these abuses if they should be discovered to exist. Legislation is needed in order to prevent the possibility of all abuses in the future. If no legislation is passed, then the excellent results accomplished by the work of this special committee will endure only so long as the memory of the committee's work is fresh, and a recrudescence of the abuses is absolutely certain.

Passage of Law Urged.

I urge the immediate enactment into law of provisions which will enable the department of agriculture adequately to inspect the meat and meat food products entering into interstate commerce and to supervise the methods of preparing the same, and to prescribe the sanitary conditions under which the work shall be performed. I therefore commend to your favorable consideration and urge the enactment of substantially the provisions known as senate amendment No. 29 to the act making appropriations for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, as passed by the senate, this amendment being commonly known as the Beveridge amendment.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The White House, June 4, 1906.

THE REPORT.

Text o the Document Submitted by the Investigator.

The President: As directed by you, we investigated the conditions in the principal establishments in Chicago in the slaughter of cattle, sheep and hogs and the preparation of dressed meat and meat food products. Two and a half weeks were spent in the investigation in Chicago, and during this time we went through the principal packing houses in the stock yards district, together with a few of the smaller ones. A day was spent by Mr. Reynolds in New York city in the investigation of several of its leading slaughter houses. During our investigation statements of conditions and practices in the packing houses, together with affidavits and documentary evidence, were offered us from numerous sources. Most of these were rejected as being far from proving the facts alleged and as being beyond the possibility of verification by us. We have made no statement as a fact in the report here presented that was not verified by our personal examination. Certain matters which we were unable to verify while in Chicago are still under investigation. The following is therefore submitted as a partial report touching these practices and conditions which we found most common, and not confined to a single house or class of houses. A more detailed report would contain many specific instances of defects found in particular houses.

Condition of the Yards.

Before entering the buildings we noted the condition of the yards themselves as shown in the pavement, pens, viaducts and platforms. The pavement is mostly of brick, the bricks laid with deep grooves between them, which inevitably fill with manure and refuse. Such pavement cannot be properly cleaned and is slimy and malodorous when wet, yielding clouds of ill-smelling dust when dry. The pens are generally uncovered except those for sheep; these latetr are paved and covered. The viaducts and platforms are of wood. Calves, sheep and hogs that have died en route are thrown out upon the platforms where cars are unloaded. On a single platform on one occasion we counted 15 dead hogs, on the next ten dead hogs. The only excuse given for delay in removal was that so often heard—the expense.

Buildings.

Material.—The interior finish of most of the buildings is of wood; the partition walls, supports and rafters are of wood, uncovered by plaster or cement. The flooring in some instances is of brick or cement, but usually of wood. In many of the rooms where water is used freely the floors are soaked and slimy.

Lighting.—The buildings have been constructd with little regard to either light or ventilation. The workrooms, as a rule, are very poorly lighted. A few rooms at the top of the buildings are well lighted because they cannot escape the light, but most of the rooms are so dark as to make artificial light necessary at times. Many inside rooms where food is prepared are without windows, deprived of sunlight and without direct communication with the outside air. They may be best described as vaults in which the air rarely changes. Other rooms which open to the outer air are so large, the windows so clouded by dirt, and the walls and ceilings so dark and dingy that natural light only penetrates 20 or 30 feet from the windows, thus making artificial light in portions of even these outside rooms necessary. These dark and dingy rooms are naturally not kept suitably clean.

Ventilation.—Systematic ventilation of the workrooms is not found in any of the establishments we visited. In a few instances electric fans mitigate the stifling air, but usually the workers toil without relief in a humid atmosphere heavy with the odors of rotten wood, decayed meats, stinking offal and entrails.

Equipment.—The work tables upon which the meat is handled, the floor carts on which it is carried about, and the tubs and other receptacles into which it is thrown are generally of wood. In all the places visited but a single porcelain-lined receptacle was seen. Tables covered with sheet iron, iron carts, and iron tubs are being introduced into the better establishments, but no establishment visited has as yet abandoned the extensive use of wooden tables and wooden receptacles. These wooden receptacles are frequently found water soaked, only half cleansed, and with meat scraps and grease accumulations adhering to their sides, and collecting dirt. This is largely true of meat racks and meat conveyors of every sort, which were in nearly all cases inadequately cleansed, and grease and meat scraps were found adhering to them, even after they had been washed and returned to service.

Sanitary Conveniences. — Nothing shows more strikingly the general indifference to matters of cleanliness and sanitation than do the privies for both men and women. The prevailing type is made by cutting off a section of the workroom by a thin wooden partition rising to within a few feet of the ceiling. These privies usually ventilate into the workroom, though a few are found with a window opening into the outer air. Many are located in the inside corners of the work room, and thus have no outside opening whatever. They are furnished with a row of seats, generally without even side partitions. These rooms are sometimes used as cloakrooms by the employes. Lunch rooms constructed in the same manner, by boarding off a section of the workroom, often adjoin the privies, the odors of which add to the general insanitary state of the atmosphere.

Abominable as the above-named conditions are, the one that affects most directly and seriously the cleanliness of the food products is the frequent absence of any lavatory provisions in the privies. Washing sinks are either not furnished at all or are small and dirty. Neither are towels, soap or toilet paper provided. Men and women return directly from these places to plunge their unwashed hands into the meat to be converted into such food products as sausages, drief beef, and other compounds. Some of the privies are situated at a long distance from the workrooms, and men relieve themselves on the killing floors or in a corner of the workrooms. Hence, in some cases the fumes of the urine swell the sum of nauseating odors arising from the dirty blood-soaked, rotting wooden floors, fruitful culture beds for the disease germs of men and animals.

New Buildings.—It is stated that many of the unsanitary conditions are due to the fact that these buildings are old and have been built by piecemeal, and that in the newer buildings, being erected from time to time, the defects of the earlier structures are being remedied. This contention is not borne out by the facts. One of the large plants erected within recent years has most of the defects of the older buildings. It is true that three large model buildings have been erected, but one is an office building, while the other two contain only cooling, storage and sales rooms. No model building for the preparation of food products has been built in the stock yards of Chicago.

Treatment of Meats.

Uncleanliness in Handling Products.—An absence of cleanliness was also found everywhere in the handling of meat being prepared for the various meat-food products. After killing, carcasses are well washed, and up to the time they reach the cooling room are handled in a fairly sanitary and cleanly manner. The parts that leave the cooling room for treatment in bulk are also handled with regard to cleanliness, but the parts that are sent from the cooling room to those departments of the packing houses in which various forms of meat products are prepared are handled with no regard whatever for cleanliness. In some of the largest establishments sides that are sent to what is known as the boning room are thrown in a heap upon the floor. The workers climb over these heaps of meat, select the pieces they wish, and frequently throw them down upon the dirty floor beside their working bench. Even in cutting the meat upon the bench, the work is usually held pressed against their aprons, and these aprons were, as a rule, indescribably filthy. They were made in most cases of leather or of rough sacking and bore long accumulated grease and dirt. In only a few places were suitable oilcloth aprons worn. Moreover, men were seen to climb from the floor and stand, with shoes dirty with the refuse of the floors, on the tables upon which the meat was handled. They were seen at the lunch hour sitting on the tables on the spot on which the meat product was handled, and all this under the very eye of the superintendent of the room, showing that this was the common practice.

Meat scraps were also found being shoveled into receptacles from dirty floors where they were left to lie until again shoveled into barrels or into machines for chopping. These floors, it must be noted, were in most cases damp and soggy, in dark, ill-ventilated rooms, and the employes in utter ignorance of cleanliness or danger to health expectorated at will upon them. In a word, we saw meat shoveled from filthy wooden floors, piled on tables rarely washed, pushed from room to room in rotten box-carts, in all of which processes it was in the way of gathering dirt, splinters, floor filth and the expectoration of tuberculous and other diseased workers. Where comment was made to floor superintendents about these matters, it was always the reply that this meat would afterwards be cooked, and that this sterilization would prevent any danger from its use. Even this, it may be pointed out in passing, is not wholly true. A very considerable portion of the meat so handled is sent out as smoked products and in the form of sausages, which are prepared to be eaten without being cooked.

A particularly glaring instance of uncleanliness was found in a room where the best grade of sausage was being prepared for export. It was made from carefully selected meats, and was being prepared to be eaten uncooked. In this case the employe carted the chopped-up meat across a room in a barrow, the handles of which were filthy with grease. The meat was then thrown out upon tables, and the employe climbed upon the table, handled the meat with his unwashed hands, knelt with his dirty apron and trousers in contact with the meat he was spreading out, and, after he had finished his operation, again took hold of the dirty handles of the wheelbarrow, went back for another load, and repeated this process indefinitely. Inquiry developed the fact that there was no water in this room at all, and the only method the man adopted for cleaning his hands was to rub them against his dirty apron or on his still filthier trousers.

As an extreme example of the entire disregard on the part of employes of any notion of cleanliness in handling dressed meat, we saw a hog that had just been killed, cleaned, washed, and started on its way to the cooling room fall from the sliding rail to a dirty wooden floor and slide part way into a filthy men's privy. It was picked up by two employes, placed upon a truck, carried into the cooling room and hung up with other carcasses, no effort being made to clean it.

Treatment of Meat After Inspection.—The radical defect in the present system of inspection is that it does not go far enough. It is confined at present by law to passing on the healthfulness of animals at the time of killing; but the meat that is used in sausage and in the various forms of canned products and other prepared meat foods goes through many processes, in all of which there is possibility of contamination through insanitary handling, and further danger through the use of chemicals. During all these processes of preparation there is no government inspection and no assurance whatever that these meat-food products are wholesome and fit for food—despite the fact that all these products, when sent out, bear a label stating they have been passed upon by government inspectors.

As to the investigation of the alleged use of dyes, preservatives, or chemicals in the preparation of cured meats, sausages, and canned goods we are not yet prepared to report. We did look into the matter of sanitary handling of the meats being prepared for the various food products. The results of our observations have already been partly given. Other instances of how products may be made up, and still secure the stamp of government inspection are here given. In one well-known establishment we came upon fresh meat being shoveled into barrels and a regular proportion being added of stale scraps that had lain on a dirty floor in the corner of a room for some days previous. In another establishment, equally well known, a long table was noted covered with several hundred pounds of cooked scraps of beef and other meats. Some of these meat scraps were dry, leathery, and unfit to be eaten; and in the heap were found pieces of pigskin, and even some bits of rope strands and other rubbish. Inquiry evoked the frank admission from the man in charge that this was to be ground up and used in making "potted ham."

All of these canned products bear labels of which the following is a sample:

ABATTOR NO. —.

The contents of this package have been inspected according to the act of Congress of March 3, 1891.

QUALITY GUARANTEED.

The phraseology of these labels is wholly unwarranted. The government inspectors pass only upon the healthfulness of the animal at the time of killing. They know nothing of the processes through which the meat has passed since this inspection. They do not know what else may have been placed in the cans in addition to "inspected meat." As a matter of fact, they know nothing about the "contents" of the can upon which the packers place these labels—do not even know that it contains what it purports to contain. The legend "Quality Guaranteed" immediately following the statement as to government inspection is wholly unjustifiable. It deceives and is plainly designed to deceive the average purchaser, who naturally infers from the label that the government guarantees the contents of the can to be what it purports to be.

In another establishment piles of sausages and dry moldy canned meats, admittedly several years old, were found, which the superintendent stated to us would be tanked and converted into grease. The disposition to be made of this was wholly optional with the superintendents or representatives of the packers, as the government does not concern itself with the disposition of meats after they have passed inspection on the killing floor. It might all be treated with chemicals, mixed with other meats, turned out in any form of meat product desired, and yet the packages or receptacles in which it was to be shipped out to the public would be marked with a label that their contents had been "government inspected." Is it not alleged here that such use was to be made of this stuff. The case is pointed out as one showing the glaring opportunity for the misuse of a label bearing the name and the implied guaranty of the United States government.

Another instance of abuse in the use of the labels came to our notice. In two different establishments great stocks of old canned goods were being put through a washing process to remove the old labels. They were then subjected to sufficient heat to "liven up" the contents—to use the phrase of the room superintendent. After this, fresh labels, with the government name on them, were to be placed upon the cans, and they were to be sent out bearing all the evidence of being a freshly put up product. In one of these instances, by the admission of the superintendent, the stock thus being relabeled was over two years old. In the other case the superintendent evaded a statement of how old the goods were.

Treatment of Employes.

The lack of consideration for the health and comfort of the laborers in the Chicago stock yards seems to be a direct consequence of the system of administration that prevails. The various departments are under the direct control of superintendents who claim to use full authority in dealing with the employes and who seem to ignore all considerations except those of the account book. Under this system proper care of the products and of the health and comfort of the employes is impossible, and the consumer suffers in consequence. The insanitary conditions in which the laborers work and the feverish pace which they are forced to maintain inevitably affect their health. Physicians state that tuberculosis is disproportionately prevalent in the stock yards, and the victims of this disease expectorate on the spongy wooden floors of the dark workrooms, from which falling scraps of meat are later shoveled up to be converted into food products.

Even the ordinary decencies of life are completely ignored. In practically all cases the doors of the toilet rooms open directly into the working rooms, the privies of men and women frequently adjoin, and the entrances are sometimes no more than a foot or two apart. In other cases there are no privies for women in the rooms in which they work, and to reach the nearest it is necessary to go up or down a couple of flights of stairs. In one noticeable instance the privy for the women working in several adjoining rooms was in a room in which men chiefly were employed, and every girl going to use this had to pass by the working places of dozens of male operatives and enter the privy the door of which was not six feet from the working place of one of the men operatives. As previously noted, in the privies for men and women alike there are no partitions, but simply a long row of open seats. Rest rooms, where tired women workers might go for a short rest, were found as rare exceptions, and in some establishments women are even placed in charge of privies chiefly for the purpose, it was stated, to see that the girls did not absent themselves too long from their work under the excuse of visiting them. In some instances what was called a rest room was simply one end of the privy partitioned off by a six-foot partition from the remaining inclosure. A few girls were found using this, not only as a rest room, but as the only available place in which to sit to eat their luncheon.

Much of the work in connection with the handling of meat has to be carried on in rooms of a low temperature, but even here a callous disregard was everywhere seen for the comfort of those who worked in these rooms. Girls and women were found in rooms registering a temperature of 38 degrees F. without any ventilation whatever, depending entirely upon artificial light. The floors were wet and soggy, and in some cases covered with water, so that the girls had to stand in boxes of sawdust as a protection for their feet. In a few cases even drippings from the refrigerator rooms above trickled through the ceiling upon the heads of the workers and upon the food products being prepared. A very slight expense would have furnished drier floors and protected them against the tricklings from the ceiling. It was asserted by the superintendent of these rooms that this low temperature was essential to the proper keeping of the meat; but precisely similar work was found in other establishments carried on in rooms kept at a fair temperature. In many cases girls of 16, 17 and 18 years stand ten hours a day at work, much of which could be carried on while sitting down.

The neglect on the part of their employers to recognize or provide for the requirements of cleanliness and decency of the employes must have an influence that cannot be exaggerated in lowering the morals and discouraging cleanliness on the part of the workers employed in the packing houses. The whole situation as we saw it in these huge establishments tends necessarily and inevitably to the moral degradation of thousands of workers, who are forced to spend their working hours under conditions that are entirely unnecessary and unpardonable, and which are a constant menace not only to their own health, but to the health of those who use the food products prepared by them.

Government Inspection.

We observed carefully the inspection before slaughter, the inspection after slaughter on the killing beds, the more minute examination of animals tagged on the killing floors, and the microscopic examination for trichinosis.

Inspection Before Slaughter. — Inspection before slaughter appears to have little value in most cases. That undue advantage of this inspection is taken by outside parties is charged, and opportunities for such are abundant, but no specific evidence was presented to us. That this unimportant and superficial examination should be compulsory under the present law, whereas the more scientific examination after slaughter is only permissive, indicates a serious defect in the law.

Inspection After Slaughter.—Inspection after slaughter appears to be carefully and conscientiously made. The government veterinarians maintain that it is adequate, insisting that a passing examination of certain glands, of the viscera, and of the general condition of the carcass is sufficient to enable an expert, engaged constantly on this work, to detect at once the presence of disease, or of abnormal conditions. On the slightest indication of disease or abnormal conditions the carcass is tagged and set aside for a later and more careful examination. There should, however, be more precautions taken to insure that the instruments used must be kept antiseptically clean.

Microscopic Examination.—The microscopic examination of hogs to be exported to Germany appears to be made with great care, and it may fairly be asked why the same inspection is not made of hogs killed for the American market. The statement that ham, pork and sausage that are frequently eaten raw in Germany, are not so used in America, is not strictly true. Large numbers of our foreign-born population eat ham and pork comparatively raw, and hence need the protection; and, further, much of this pork goes into sausage to be eaten without being cooked.

Number of Inspectors.—The present number of inspectors is certainly inadequate, as the secretary of agriculture has often complained. We noted that some large establishments had an obviously insufficient force. A few small concerns have no inspectors at all, and may sell uninspected meat wherever they please in the United States.

Legislation.

1. Examination before slaughter is of minor importance and should be permissive instead of mandatory. Examination after slaughter is of supreme importance and should be compulsory.

2. Goats, now exempt from inspection, intended for foreign or interstate commerce, should be included in the list subject to the inspection of the bureau of animal industry, and should be equally controlled by the regulations of the secretary of agriculture.

3. The examination of all meat products intended for interstate commerce at any stage of their care or treatment should be consigned to the bureau of animal industry, and no mark or sign declaring that inspection has been made by government officials should be allowed on any can, box, or other receptacle or parcel containing food products unless the same has been subject to government inspection at any and every stage of the process of preparation, and all such labels should contain the date of issuance, and it should be a misdemeanor to erase, alter or destroy any such labels. Meat products, and canned, preserved, or pickled meats, when sent from any packing or canning establishment, if returned to the same, should be subject to such further inspection, regulation, and isolation from other meat products as the secretary of agriculture may prescribe.

4. Power should be given to the secretary of agriculture to make rules and regulations regarding the sanitation and construction of all buildings used or intended to be used for the care of food products for interstate or foreign trade, and to make such regulation as he may deem necessary to otherwise protect the cleanliness and wholesomeness of animal products, prepared and sold for foreign and interstate commerce.

5. It should be forbidden to any person, firm, or corporation to transport or offer for transportation from one state to another any meat or meat food products not inspected and labeled.

General Suggestions.—1. The number of inspectors should be largely increased, so that special assignments may be made for night inspection, for the examination of animals at the platforms of stock yards, for the following of dead animals to their alleged destination, and for other special work.

2. Special government inspection should be carried on continuously to prevent violations of the law and general abuses in the trade, and to secure evidence when necessary.

3. A careful study of the standards of inspection in other countries should be made, and the results of the study should be published and circulated for the public information.

4. Consideration should be given to the question of specific labeling of all carcasses sold as fresh meat, which, upon examination after slaughter, show signs of disease, but are still deemed suitable for food.

JAMES BRONSON REYNOLDS.
CHAS. P. NEILL.
Washington, D. C., June 2, 1906.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 22, 1906. NO. 12.

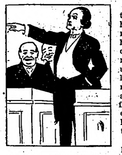
LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

For Years Senator Gorman Leader on Democratic Side--Place Difficult to Fill--Practical Joke of "Dave" Culberson.

WASHINGTON.—A wide gap was made in the Democratic ranks in the senate when Arthur Pue Gorman, of Maryland, died a few days ago. There have been few more forceful characters among the Democrats in that body. He grew up with the senate; knew all its traditions and regarded it as the greatest legislative body in the world. For many years Mr. Gorman was the real, as well as titular, leader on the Democratic side of the senate. It was his genius that thought out political schemes and it was his management that secured for the Democrats the most there was in the situation. His place will be difficult to fill, as there are few men of his temperament and sagacity now on the minority side of the senate.

Mr. Gorman was almost born to the senate, as he first took service there at the age of 13. His rise from the humblest position in the senate, that of page, to the highest, that of leader of his party on the floor, is another illustration of the possibilities ahead of young America. He always had an ambition to be a senator even when he scurried around the chamber as a little page running errands for the senators. He was a protege of Stephen A. Douglass and learned his first political lessons from that distinguished man. By attention to his duties Mr. Gorman in 14 years that he was employed by the senate, became in turn a messenger and assistant bookkeeper, assistant postmaster and then postmaster of the senate.

THE CULBERSONS, FATHER AND SON.



Senator Culberson inherits his phlegmatic temperament from his father, the late judge or as he was better known "Dave," Culberson who for more than a score of years was a member of the house from Texas. Old man Culberson was one of the rich and rare characters in the house, a man of great ability but averse to exercising it unless absolutely pushed into a contest. In his later years of service he was regarded as the nestor of young Democrats in the house and they all went to "Uncle Dave" for advice which he freely gave. The old man, however, was an inveterate practical joker and some of the young fellows had cause to repent following his advice at times.

A few years ago a young man came to the house from Alabama named Jesse Stallings. He was very anxious to make a name for himself by some fine oratorical effort on the floor. He asked Mr. Culberson to give him some suggestions and let him know when it was advisable for him to "butt in," as it were, in debate. One day Gen. Bingham, of Philadelphia, was in charge of a big appropriation bill in which there were some strong provisions in the interest of the old soldiers. Culberson called Stallings to his seat and said:

"There's your chance, Jesse. You hear Bingham talking about the old soldier? You just ask him what right he has to do so. Why he kept a grocery store in Philadelphia during the war and never smelled powder?"

This was Stallings' opportunity, and as soon as he got recognition he startled the house by addressing Gen. Bingham thus: "What right have you to champion the old soldier? You who never smelled powder except as you sold it over a store counter? Let some man who has been to the front take up their cause——."

Here the house burst into a roar of laughter and Gen. Bingham, who was laughing louder than anyone else, walked over to Stallings with the congressional directory in his hand and pointed to his splendid war record as he said: "Somebody has been putting up a job on you, Stallings."

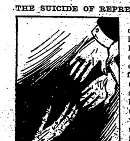
FLOODING CONGRESS WITH PETITIONS.

PRICE $333
PETITION

When John Quincy Adams retired from the presidency and took up service in the house of representatives one of his greatest achievements was to preserve to the people the right of petition. There was a disposition on the part of some members of congress to shut off this right, but through the efforts of Mr. Adams the privilege was retained and has been enjoyed ever since. Mr. Adams little thought at the time he was fighting for this right it would in the future be lightly regarded and used really as a franchise for a business enterprise. There has been established right here in Washington agencies that undertake to flood congress with petitions on almost any subject. They send out letters to parties interested in public measures and offer "to circularize the country by letter or wire" for so much money.

Speaker Cannon probably receives more petitions than any other man, not excepting the president. Appeals are made to him as the one potent factor in legislation. When these machine-made petitions come pouring in "Uncle Joe" scarcely gives them a thought, but when a letter or a telegram bearing the stamp of individuality reaches him he is sure to give it his consideration. The telegram form of petition is overworked also, and when 200 or 300 couched in exactly the same language reach the speaker from different portions of the country he knows at once that they have been inspired from the same source and are probably paid for by one man. This destroys their efficacy.

THE SUICIDE OF REPRESENTATIVE ADAMS.



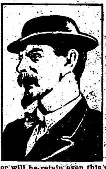
The recent suicide of Representative Adams, of Pennsylvania, is the first instance, so far as is known, of a member of the house taking his own life. A few years ago Representative Chickering, of New York, was found lifeless on the sidewalk outside a hotel in New York city having fallen from his bedroom window. It was always a doubt whether he fell by accident or threw himself out with suicidal intent. There was no doubt, however, about "Bertie" Adams' act and it stands unique in the history of congress. Away back in war times Senator Lane, of Kansas, committed suicide during a recess of congress, but aside from his case and that of Mr. Adams there is no authentic record of any other member of either house having taken his own life.

The deliberation with which Mr. Adams went about his suicide is still the wonder of his associates in Washington. He was the last man on earth who would have been suspected of contemplating such an act. He was the last man also who anybody would have thought had the nerve to decide upon this act before hand. His whole life here in Washington had been of such a butterfly character and so at odds with the gruesome idea of shooting his brains out, that the first report of his suicide could scarcely be credited. It was not believed he had the courage to fire a bullet into his head.

In the opinion of Speaker Cannon and many who knew Mr. Adams his suicide was an extraordinary courageous thing to do. He had exhausted all there was in life, was a bankrupt and was slated for defeat in seeking a renomination and was threatened with cancer. He had nobody dependent upon him and nothing evidently to live for; so that he was not shirking any responsibilities in shuffling off this mortal coil. Looking at it in this way, his friends consider that their old associate displayed real courage in taking himself out of the way.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

THE MAD KING OF BAVARIA



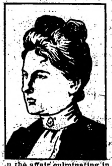
Pathetic indeed is the figure of the mad king of Bavaria, whose subjects still show him loyalty. Every year the Bavarians celebrate his birthday—a celebration that recently took place—while confined in the Castle Furstenried the monarch recks little of loyal people, of crown or kingdom.

Otto I. is the title the king of Bavaria has claim to, but it is Luitpold, the uncle, that rules, that has always ruled. You remember Otto's brother, Ludwig of Bavaria, died insane, back in 1886, and though Otto was called his brother's successor, he really never ruled, for at the time of his brother's tragic death he himself was mentally unsound. The year of his "succession" his uncle, Luitpold, was appointed prince regent, and has since continued to wield the sceptre.

Brought again to public notice by his birthday celebration, the public inquiries how fares it with royal person in his castle madhouse. The reply comes that the king is failing, that not much longer will he retain even this shadowy hold on life. He is now 58 years old. Little is left of the old handsome Otto—Ludwig and Otto were counted among the handsomest of the German princes—to-day those permitted to see Bavaria's king look upon a man with unwholesome pallor, a man grown gray and stout. All kinds of subterfuges have to be employed to tempt the mad king out-of-doors for any exercise, he refuses to eat at regular hours, sits long motionless and speechless. Once he was sent to hold converse with unseen birds, and sing them songs of wonderful beauty; but that was long ago, he is silent now.

The members of the royal house of Bavaria are descendants of the ancient counts of Wittelsbach. The student of hereditary points to mad Ludwig tle is left of the old handsome Otto—Ludwig and Otto were counted among pathos.

ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST HEIRESSES

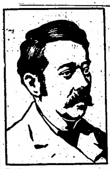


Bertha Krupp, a young girl who has authority over more than a hundred thousand people, and enjoys (?) an income of $5,000,000 a year, is engaged to be married. The scandal that darkened her father's last days was reported to have embittered and saddened the heiress to such an extent she has become a recluse, foresworn to a single life, would refuse all offers of marriage, all overtures. But time, which blurs all things, has worked its changes, and we now hear the announcement of the engagement of the heiress to the enormous Krupp properties. The fortunate man is Gustav von Behlen und Halbach, secretary of the Prussian legation at the Vatican.

Mayhap the kaiser, who can accomplish most difficult feats, had a hand in changing Miss Bertha Krupp's attitude toward matrimony. Miss Krupp is a ward of the kaiser's, and considered a favorite with his imperial majesty. He often visits her castle, doubtless as guardian has had no small part in the affair culminating in the formal engagement.

No queen living wields the power that does this girl of 20, who practically owns the city of Essen, who has 115,000 people dependent upon her, and who in the Krupp works alone owns property worth more than $40,000,000. This German girl dwells like some feudal princess, has hundreds of retainers and a thousand soldiers for her protection. But though surrounded by much pomp and show, the queen of it all is really a very simple person and a tireless worker. She feels to the full the responsibility of her position as head of such an army as that connected with the Krupp works, and looks personally after the welfare of these people. She goes about on a bicycle visiting club and hospital, home for the aged, home for children, schools and churches; a young mistress that has won the respect and affection of those amid whom she dwells. Let us trust that Gustav von Behlen und Halbach will prove a worthy mate for the earnest young woman.

NOVELIST AND SIMON-PURE SOCIALIST



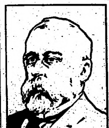
We speak of the English writer H. G. Wells, the man whom popular fancy pictures as producing only such thrilling tales as "The War of the Worlds, the Invisible Man," etc. But one should consider Mr. Wells also as socialist and man of hope in a day of indifference and pessimism. It is refreshing in this materialistic, faithless age to read the words: "I have come to believe in certain other things in the coherency and purpose in the world and in the greatness of human destiny. Worlds may freeze and suns may perish, but there stirs something within us now that can never die again."

And in this age we like it that Mr. Wells should write—"for the deliverance of all our blood and speech from those fouler things than chattel slavery, child adolescent labor." Mr. Wells is a member of the famous London Fabian society, the most important socialistic society in England, and recently censured the society in a paper on "The Faults of the Fabians." He thinks the Fabians are neglecting their main work of propaganda.

As an article in Current Literature says, Mr. Wells is the least insular of Englishmen, world-wide in his interests and sympathies. Son of a professional cricketer, as a boy H. G. Wells was apprenticed to a shop keeper; but, naturally studious, ambition led him to seek an education. At the Royal College of Science, London, he proved himself a brilliant pupil, and at the University of London obtained the degree of bachelor of science, with special honors in zoology and geology. Mr. Wells believes that scientific education is the best sort of training for literary work "Criticism is the essence of science, and the critical habit of mind is essential to artistic performance." Mr. Wells' tales that some one refers to as scientific romances, have made him famous.

He has recently made a short visit to the United States, on the quest of material for social studies. . .

THE PRESIDENT OF THE DOUMA



Another long Russian name for the American public to battle with, another Russian about whom this public should know a few facts.

The name is full long—Sergei Andreivich Mouromtseff. A man who has struggled and fallen back as those have had to struggle and fall back in Russia who labored for better things for the people. But now we see the struggling not altogether futile, find the Russian douma and Mouromtseff president thereof.

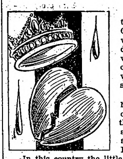
Prof. Mouromtseff was born in St. Petersburg in 1850, the son of a noble family. He was educated in the law department of Moscow university in 1874, attracted the attention of the legal world and won a fellowship in the university by a dissertation on "Conservatism in Roman Jurisprudence." Several of his legal dissertations, published while an instructor in the university, have become standard. He soon rose to a full professorship at the university.

But his activity in politics worked against him and he was forced to give up educational work, began the practice of law and the editing of the Legal Messenger. Again political activity brought him ill reward. The censor prohibited his paper, the minister of the interior closed the Moscow Juridical society of which Prof. Mouromtseff had been elected president.

So zealous was Mouromtseff in the crusade for freedom that several times he was called to preside over the national zemstvo congresses. He was member of the famous delegation which presented the zemstvoites address to the emperor after the inauguration of the De Witte ministry; was the head of the deputation of the constitutional Democratic committee which came to St. Petersburg at the request of Witte to attemp to arrange a working agreement between the government and the constitutional Democratic party. The eminent qualities shown by Mouromtseff at the national zemstvo congresses led to his supplanting the leader Petrunkeovitch as candidate for leader of the douma.

IN AND ABOUT THE METROPOLIS

Trouble Seems to Have Drawn the Goulds Closer Together--Midnight Street Circles of Children--The Turbine Ships.



NEW YORK.—The return to this country of the Countess de Castellane, who was Miss Anna Gould, will revive the distressing scandal and divorce struggle which Paris has about finished discussing. As usual the people who know least will have the most pronounced opinions. Of course Count Boni, who has been pictured as a viper and other things, will come in for a fresh storm of abuse.

The count himself, for reasons of his own, has been saying nothing. The French idea of the obligations of a gentleman forbid some things if they do not forbid certain others. There has been a persistent effort to get "the count's side of the story." It is not likely to be told—not by Count Boni if his friends are to be believed.

In this country the little countess has many friends, and perhaps much-discouraged America will not look so bad to her in the hour of her distress. like many another American girl who went away in festival splendor, like the petite star of a pretty opera, she comes back in a tragic half light.

One good thing has come out of the Castellane catastrophe. The Gould family seems to have been drawn together by the little sister's distress as it has not been drawn together by any other circumstance in its history. The George Goulds, Howard Goulds, Edwin Goulds and sister Helen, are, I understand, a more harmonious group than they have been in years. If wedding bells could not call them into a happy circle—the wives of brothers do not always like each other—the touch of trouble has at least softened some of the asferities of the past.

CONCERNING THE CHIN OF A WOMAN.

It appears—I speak with the authority of Paris as well as that of New York—that women's chins are going to be very important this summer.

Why?

Not merely, I may say at once, because it may be a balking chin, or because it may be firm and effect the fate of nations.

No, it will be important because dresses are to be cut low in the neck. You MUST have a good neck this summer—and they spell it with capitals.

One expert says that the exactly right chin should be "something like the point of an egg." There are a variety of descriptions of the right chin, but especially and particularly a chin must not be two chins—it must not be double.

Since it is still fashionable to be young it is necessary not to bear signs of age. If you have these signs you must take steps to remove them. The inference is that you must take hurried steps or the chin will get ahead of you. Massage is advised—commanded. You must rub off your double chin or have it rubbed off for you. It costs a good deal of money to have a chin rubbed off in New York and women of moderate means are frequently advised by the beauty experts to do their own rubbing—heavy work if you are to follow the formula. The treatment to be effective must be hearty—the flesh must be pounded as well as rubbed until the puffy superfluous flesh has disappeared.

Even beauty must be earned in a season when gowns are cut low in the neck.

GETTING THE CHILDREN TO BED IN GOOD SEASON.

Dr. Maxwell, superintendent of public instruction, has raised a cry of protest concerning New York's underslept children.

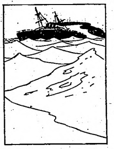
"I wish," he said in a talk the other night, "we could find a way of getting the children of New York to sleep more. We all admit that they should have from ten to 12 hours sleep, but so long as parents permit their children to roam the streets until midnight, what is to be done? Go into the tenement house districts any night when the weather permits and you will see the streets swarming with children until midnight."

With these conditions prevailing Dr. Maxwell asks whether it is fair to blame the infirmities of the children on the school work. He admits all the danger of underfeeding and wrong feeding, but insists that undersleeping is a primary danger which should be everywhere realized and everywhere combatted.

New Yorkers who are not in a position to know are asking whether it is true that children do roam the streets until midnight. Those who are in a position to know have but one comment. It is quite true that thousands upon thousands of New York children on any warm evening are in the streets until midnight. I have frequently seen them playing games at eleven o'clock—tots under five in the groups—and there is no novelty in the midnight street circle of children of the tenderest years.

New York well slept would be a healthier, honester town.

BOATS BIG AND LITTLE FILL THE HARBORS.



One hears a good deal of boat talk in New York. The theme may be the newest ocean going skyscraper, or the newest 18-foot launch with a new fangled "Vicker." There is plenty of water, plenty of harbors.

Few people know that New York city is made up of 100 islands. This sounds like Venice or Holland until you come to look at the disparity between the size of Manhattan and some of the other islands. However, for the pleasure cruiser the little islands of the sound, the river and the ocean front mean much in range of investigation and adventure.

A tremendous fleet of small boats has been liberated by the inviting early summer weather. Now comes also the tragedy of wreck and drowning. The young couple nearly lost on the sound in the storm of last week represent a typical case.

News of bigger boats continues to be interesting. Lewis Nixon's new ocean terror that is to destroy those other terrors, the submarine boats, is not yet launched, but work on it is successfully advancing.

In a short time the Metropolitan Steamship company will launch two new turbine ships to ply between New York and Boston. They are to be called "Yale" and "Harvard," and they are two of the first three turbines to be built in this country. It looks as if the turbine idea, long scouted as extravagant and impracticable, had come to stay. The truth is that the turbine idea has been wonderfully developed since its introduction. Out of the primitive spiral theory has grown a beautifully complex mechanism possessing advantages of the very highest significance. The dreadful throb of the fast sea going ships, frequently remarked as a promoter of seasickness, will disappear with the even motion of the turbine, and the smoothness of the turbine will likewise greatly reduce the danging arising from the racking of machinery.

History repeats itself. When Ericcson displayed his screw propeller to the British admiralty on the Thames, the device was greatly admired, but the admiralty shook its head.

"It goes," said the admiralty, "but of course a boat with the power in the stern can never be steered in the stern."

And so Ericson brought his screw propeller back to the Yankees and the United States got the credit of launching the invention.

OWEN LANGDON.

WREAK VENGEANCE ON ANARCHIST JEW

BOMB THROWER CALLS DOWN WRATH OF RUSSIANS ON CO-RELIGIONISTS.

Missile Thrown Into Rank of Corpus Christi Procession Stirs Ire of Marchers, Who Start Indiscriminate Attack on Semites at Bialystok.

Bialystok, Russia, June 15.—A Jewish anarchist threw a bomb among the Corpus Christi procession which was in progress here Thursday, and killed or wounded many persons.

In consequence the Christians attacked and massacred the Jews and demolished their shops.

Hundreds of persons were killed or wounded.

The bomb was thrown from the balcony of a house in Alexandrov street.

A Russian clergyman named Fedoroff was among those killed by the explosion.

Immediately after the explosion Jews began to fire with revolvers from the windows of the house into the crowd. Soldiers surrounded the house and fired two volleys into the windows.

Attack Jewish Stores.

Meanwhile the enraged Christians attacked the Jewish stores in Alexandrov and Suraz streets, demolishing the fixtures and windows and throwing the goods into the gutters and beating and murdering the Jews.

A crowd of Jews fled to the railroad station, pursued by the mob, which killed many of them.

Three Jews were thrown from second story windows of the railroad station building.

The Jews are fleeing from Bialystok to the neighboring forests and mobs are pursuing them.

Detachments of dragoons have been sent out to protect the Jews.

Jews arriving here on railway trains have been dragged out of the cars and many of them have been murdered. Troops have cleared the railway station.

Pillage and Murder.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—The latest dispatches from Bialystok report a situation of the utmost gravity. The anti-Jewish outbreak there was still raging, fighting was in progress in the streets; the firing was continuous; the best stores in the city had been sacked, and many persons were dead or wounded. Figures, however, were not given, and probably the casualties are not known in Bialystok, owing to the continuance of the disorders.

The signal for the outbreak, which apparently was deliberately planned, perhaps as a counter stroke for the murder of Chief of Police Derkatchoff on June 10, which was attributed to Jewish bundists, is given as the explosion of a bomb during a religious procession. This was followed by revolver fusillades in several quarters of the city.

Police Are Inactive.

The police are said not to have attempted to interfere in the early stages of the riot.

The Jews, who number three-fourths of the population of the city, offered the best resistance possible, many of them being armed, but were unable to prevent the pillaging of their homes and places of business.

Several members of parliament received messages from Jewish correspondents at Bialystok declaring that the police apparently had given over the Hebrew population to slaughter and pillage. These correspondents urged that the only hope was in an appeal to the ministers of the interior to interfere in their behalf. A delegation of deputies immediatedly called at the headquarters of the police department where they were informed that all measures possible had been taken to stop excesses and restore order.

INSURANCE MEN INDICTED.

Forgery and Perjury Charged to Two Former Vice Presidents of Mutual Life.

New York, June 13.—Indictments for forgery and perjury against Dr. Walter G. Gillette, and for forgery and filing false statements against Robert A. Granniss, both former vice presidents of the Mutual Life Insurance company, were returned Monday by the special grand jury which has been investigating insurance affairs for the past six weeks.

Six indictments were found against Dr. Gillette, five for forgery in the third degree, and one for perjury. Mr. Granniss was indicted for forgery and for making false statements to the insurance department, the latter being a misdemeanor.

The forgery indictments against Dr. Gillette are based upon alleged fake entries in the books of the company and the perjury charge grows out of his testimony before the grand jury.

The forgery indictment against Granniss is based upon alleged false entries upon the annual report of the Mutual for 1904 to the insurance department. It is alleged that the sum of $1,044,058.23, the net profits of the company for 1904, was not noted in that report, but was concealed by Mr. Granniss. The misdemeanor charge of making false statements grows out of the filing of the alleged false report to the insurance department.

Heavy Loss on Silk Worms.

Tokio, June 15.—Owing to untimely low temperatures agriculture has suffered further heavy damage. The loss on silk worms in the Gifu district is estimated at $500,000.

BARES KENTUCKY MURDERS

CURTIS JETT CONFESSES KILLING J. B. MARCUM.

Lays Bare Assassinations That Occurred During Breathitt County Reign of Terror.

Louisville, Ky., June 14.—The confession of Curtis Jett, which gives the details of the assassination of James B. Marcum and James Cockrill, and also throws new light on the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox, the three crimes having been committed during the reign of feudalism in Breathitt county, has been made public. The confession is authorized by Jett's attorneys.

Jett says he, John Smith and John Abner, killed James Cockrill; that Robert Deaton went after Abner and Smith to aid in the murder, and that Elbert Hargis, James Hargis, Ed Callahan, Jesse Spicer and Bill Britton are the men who formed the conspiracy.

Starting out with these statements, he enters extensively into details of the murder and lays bare every feature of the conspiracy and the events before and after the murder.

He then confessed to the murder of James Marcum, which, he says, was at the instance of James Hargis and Ed Callahan, declaring that the pistol with which he did the shooting was furnished him by Callahan for the purpose. He says B. J. Ewen told the truth about the killing.

Jett's statement in regard to the assassination of Dr. Cox is little less sensational than his assertion in regard to the other murders.

He says he was at the jail and heard three shots, after which the telephone rang. He went to Alex Hargis' house, and Hargis asked what the shooting was. Jett continued the story in these words:

"I said I didn't know, and Uncle Alex said: 'Let's go down and see if Jim or any of them are hurt.' Uncle Alex stopped at Jim's garden fence. I guess he was afraid to run it, but I was fearless and didn't care, you know, and I went into the yard, and in the shadow of the smokehouse, moon as bright as day, I shall never forget it, stood Ed Callahan, Jim Hargis, Bill Britton, Jess Spicer and Elbert Hargis, with two shotguns; I saw no pistols."

Jett closes his confession by saying that he has told the "plain truth, nothing more and nothing less." He relieves Alex Hargis of any complicity in the Cockrill and Marcum murders, saying: "He is an innocent man."

NEW TEMPLE FREE OF DEBT

Two-Million Dollar Structure Dedicated by Christian Scientists at Boston.

Boston, June 12.—One of the most remarkable religious demonstrations ever witnessed in New England occurred Sunday, when the new $2,000,000 Christian Science temple in the Back Bay district was dedicated. From every state in the union, and from all parts of the world came members of that faith to be present at the dedicatory services. It was estimated that more than 40,000 Christian Scientists were in the city.

Six services were held to accommodate the vast throngs, but even then there were thousands who were unable to gain admission to the temple. The seating capacity of the new edifice exceeds 5,000 and at each service hundreds stood in the aisles and in the rear of the church.

The new temple, which is entirely free from debt, is one of the most imposing structures in Boston, and is said to be the largest church in New England. Christian Scientists all over the world have aided in its construction, and it is intended as a tribute to Mrs. Eddy, in recognition of her labors for her church.

The new temple, which is entirely free from debt, is one of the most imposing structures in Boston, and is said to be the largest church in New England.

UNCLE OF PRESIDENT DEAD

One of the Leaders in Fight on the Tweed Gang Dies at Sayville, L. I.

Sayville, L. I., June 15.—Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the president, died here Thursday. He had been ill for several months.

Robert Bornwell Roosevelt was born in New York August 7, 1829. He was admitted to the bar in 1857, and practiced law for 20 years, but inheriting a fortune, retired from practice.

Mr. Roosevelt was a Democrat in politics, and for many years prominent in the councils of his party, both in the state and nation. He served as an alderman of New York for several years, and was a member of congress in 1873-5. He was a leader in the fight against the notorious Tweed ring in New York politics. In 1888 Mr. Roosevelt was made American minister to the Netherlands. He was treasurer of the Democratic national committee at the time of Cleveland's second election. He was a delegate to many Democratic conventions, state and national.

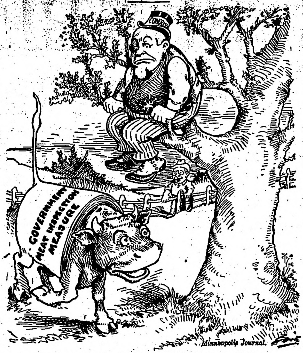
Labor Official Released.

Winfield, Kan., June 14.—A. E. Ireland, formerly a national vice president of the American Federation of Labor, has been released from the county jail, having completed a sentence of six months for assaulting a non-union machinist during the Santa Fe machinists' strike.

Tucker Is Electrocuted.

Charlestown, Mass., June 13.—Charles L. Tucker was electrocuted late Monday night for the murder of Mabel Page.

A BULL THAT SHOULD BE TAKEN BY THE HORNS.



Can It Be That the Gentleman Is Afraid of the Subject?

EXPOSES DEFECTS IN INSPECTION BILL

PRESIDENT SAYS COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE DOES NOT PROTECT PEOPLE.

Almost Every Change in Measure Is for the Worse, It Being So Framed as to Minimize Chance of Rooting Out Evils.

Washington, June 16. — Chairman Wadsworth of the house committee on agriculture Friday night made public the correspondence between President Roosevelt and himself regarding the meat inspection bill prepared by the committee.

The president in his letter says that almost every change in the house amendment was for the worse as compared with the senate amendment, and, in his judgment, so framed as to minimize the chance of rooting out the evils of the packing business.

In his reply, Mr. Wadsworth declares the president is "very, very wrong" in his estimate of the committee's bill, calls attention to provisions in the bill and concludes with an expression of regret that the president should feel justified, by innuendo at least, in impugning the sincerity and the competency of a committee of the house of representatives. "You have no warrant for it," says Mr. Wadsworth, in closing.

The president's letter to Mr. Wadsworth follows:

Analyzes Changes.

"I have gone over your bill very carefully. I am sorry to say the more closely I investigate your proposed substitute the worse I find it. Almost every change is one for the worse. There seems to be one point in which it is possible that the amendment is even worse than the original amendment if, as seems likely, there is no provision for making plants accessible at all hours to the inspectors. In any event, I am sorry to have to say that this strikes me as an amendment which, no matter how unintentionally, is framed so as to minimize the chance of rooting out the evil in the packing business.

Hampers Work of Officials.

Doubtless it suits the packers, who object to a thoroughgoing inspection, much better than the senate amendment, and I have no doubt that not only the packers, but their allies in business and those stock-growers who are influenced by them, would prefer it. But I am convinced it would in the long run be a heavy blow to the honest stock-raiser and the honest packer to adopt these provisions rather than the far better ones contained in the senate amendment; for, as compared with the senate amendment this proposed amendment would hamper in the most grossly improper fashion the secretary of agriculture in doing the work which you have appointed him to do.

Would Point Out Defects.

If the bill should go through in the form that the majority of your committee proposes, it might be that I should sign it as working a certain slight improvement over the present law; but, if so, I should accompany it by a memorandum explicitly stating how grave the defects were, and I cannot even promise to sign it, because the provisions (about the courts, as well as about other matters) are so bad that, in my opinion, if they had been deliberately designed to prevent the remedying of the evils complained of they could not have been worse."

Monument to Confederate Dead.

Madison, Wis., June 16.—A monument to confederate soldiers who died here as prisoners of war in 1862 was unveiled Friday afternoon by the Grand Army post, the Women's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans. The unveiling was under the auspices of the Daughters of the Confederacy. Interesting letters from southern governors were read.

MUST NOT SOLICIT REBATES

MILWAUKEE CONCERN PERPETUALLY ENJOINED.

Railroad Companies Are Also Included in Order by Judge Seaman, of the Federal Court.

Milwaukee, June 12.—A formal decree was entered Monday by United States Circuit Court Judge W. H. Seaman in the so-called rebate case, instituted by the government against the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company, the Pere Marquette Railroad company, the Erie Railroad company, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad company, the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad company, the Wisconsin Central Railroad company and the Pabst Brewing company, in which a decision was handed down by the United States circuit court about a week ago.

As far as the Pabst Brewing company is concerned, the suit is dismissed on its merits and an injunction will not be issued against it.

The decree is sweeping in its nature and restrains and perpetually enjoins the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company, its agents and representatives from in any way soliciting, accepting or receiving, and the defendant railroad companies from paying or giving any rebates or concessions whatever. It enjoins them from carrying or transporting in interstate or foreign commerce any freight or property whatever pursuant to any agreement or arrangement whereby less rates are given than those given in the official tariffs published pursuant to acts of congress, whether such diminutions of rates be made under guise of commissions or otherwise.

It is ordered that an injunction issue against the defendants pursuant to this decree, and the plaintiff recover the costs and disbursements in the action.

NAME COLE FOR GOVERNOR

Minnesota Republicans Indorse Senator Nelson and the National Administration.

Duluth, Minn., June 14.—The Republican state convention Wednesday nominated a complete state ticket as follows: Governor, A. L. Cole, Walker; lieutenant governor, A. O. Eberhart, Mankato; treasurer, C. C. Dinehart, Slayton; attorney general, E. T. Young, Appleton; secretary of state, Julius Schmahl, Redwood Falls; auditor; S. G. Iverson, Rushford; clerk of supreme court, C. A. Pidgeon, Buffalo; railroad commissioner, C. F. Staples, West St. Paul.

The convention indorsed United States Senator Knute Nelson for reelection. This indorsement with a Republican legislature is practically equivalent to Senator Nelson's reelection.

The platform gives an enthusiastic indorsement of the present national Republican administration; approves the Panama canal; protection to American labor and industries; the gold money standard; legislation against the adulteration of food; election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; a two-cent railroad fare; abolition of free passes and a readjustment of freight rates.

Fireman Severely Burned.

Topeka, Kan., June 16.—Six members of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway fire department here were severely burned Friday by the explosion of a steel tank of oil in the freight yards. Two of them, Gus Miller and Guy Luddington, cannot recover. The two latter were literally roasted. Flesh dropped from their bodies while they were being rushed to the hospital.

Innocent Man Refuses Pardon.

Guthrie, Okla., June 15.—Al. Karpster, who is serving a life term in the Kansas state penitentiary for the murder of Martin Julian a year ago, but who has been proven to be an innocent man by the dying confession of Byron Cole, near Enid, last week, will not accept a pardon, but will ask that his name be cleared of the crime by a retrial.

PACKERS SCORED BY CONGRESSMEN

MEN WHO HAVE MADE MILLIONS IN MEAT BUSINESS ARE FLAYED IN HOUSE.

While Disapproving President's Method of Exposing the Evil, Members Express No Sympathy for Men Who Traffic at Risk of Human Life.

Washington, June 13.—An echo of the Neill-Reynolds report on the packing houses of Chicago was heard Tuesday in the house when Mr. Mondell (Wyo.) in a speech precipitated discussion of the whole question of government inspection.

Mr. Mondell observed that the house of commons in England Monday had under consideration the subject of American meat products which, he said, called attention to the far-reaching and disastrous effect of the present agitation, but to what he declared to be an unfortunate misconception of the facts and of the nature and character of criticisms made officially or unofficially of packing house methods. Mr. Mondell said:

"I consider it most unfortunate for the great packing and cattle industries; for the peace of mind of our people; for our good name abroad, that it should have been deemed necessary to place before the country in a manner calculated to magnify their contents certain reports which bear on their faces the stamp of hypercritical criticism, if not visionary bias."

Mr. Slayden (Tex.) condemned the methods used in placing the Neill-Reynolds report before the public. "For days," he said, "the country has been disturbed over the revelations made by a special commission of the filthy condition of Chicago slaughter houses.

"This exposure of what I do not doubt was an almost criminal state of indecency had to come some time, and I hope will result in good.

Should Protect Consumers.

"The consumer is entitled to protection. He pays big round prices and ought to get good, clean, wholesome food for his money.

"I am not speaking a word of sympathy for the packers. Whatever of offense there is, has come from them, and while they may lose millions by the agitation they will have millions left, most of it sweated from the brow of the cattle producers, who finally have to 'pay the shot.'

"So far as the report is concerned, all the harm has been done already that can be done. We are now concerned for the remedy. The facts ought to be known at once. Another and an impartial committee of investigation should be sent to Chicago at once to investigate and report. The prosperity and the comfort of too many people are tied up in the matter to let it drag. I do not know how far under the restraints of the constitution congress can go in the regulation of this great business, but I do know that somewhere in the federal union, in the state of Illinois, or in the city of Chicago, or in other cities, a power must be found which can and will compel the packers to do business in a way that will restore the confidence of consumers, or the distress among ranchmen and farmers, which is now acute, will become chronic and may precipitate a panic in the whole business world. The remedy must be quickly found and rigidly applied."

Mr. Ames (Mass.) followed in a defense of the president and in favor of the packers paying the cost of inspection.

No Sympathy for Packers.

"I have no sympathy whatever for the packers who deliberately brought this storm of righteous indignation against their methods and upon themselves, and I have the greatest sympathy for the executive who, to rectify a crying evil, was forced, much against his desires and earnestapepal, to make public the report that he well knew would reap a whirlwind of horror and reproach for one of our greatest industries."

Speaking of the packers and the hue and cry they have raised, Mr. Ames said:

"Not content with the shameless acquisition of countless fortunes from tainted sources, safe in their belief of their own immunity, arrogant in their escape from the processes of courts, violators of our laws against illegal combinations, spreaders of the white plague, slaughterers of humanity—in order to save a paltry two millions—by threats of lowering the price of cattle, they would drive their very victims to their own defense and risk, yes, bring ruin to every cattle raiser in the land. To provide that the government should pay the cost of inspection would be to completely nullify the purpose of the bill.

"We are agreed that a great wrong has been perpetrated upon humanity, that a great hardship has rightly or wrongly been placed on large and varied industrial and agricultural interests; we are agreed that all meats should be properly inspected and that the wrong done and damage caused can be remedied none too quickly. Then cease trying to emasculate the Beveridge bill, and in the justice of right and equity and power, in the interest of the struggling, toiling humanity of men overweak from incessant labor, of the women and children of to-day, and in the memory of the countless throng that passed away of a yesterday, in the clutch of the great white plague, insist upon a complete and rigidly enforced inspection by making the packers pay the cost thereof."

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Cure the Kidneys and the Pain Will Never Return.

Only one way to cure an aching back. Cure the cause, the kidneys. Thousands tell of cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills. John C. Coleman, a prominent merchant of Swainsboro, Ga., says: "For several years my kidneys were affected, and my back ached day and night. I was languid, nervous and lame in the morning. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me right away, and the great relief that followed has been permanent."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

"HE RAN FOR LAWYER."

But There Was a Doubt as to Whether He Had Ever Caught the Office.

A man from Pennsylvania went to Vineland on a business errand. The town was strange to him, and he was unacquainted with the man (a lawyer) he had gone to see. The directions he received were so indefinite that he found himself on the elge of the town without having come to the house he sought. Then he met an old negro and asked the way of him and learned that the house lay about a quarter of a mile farther down the road.

"The man I want to see is a lawyer," he said to the old man. "Is this Mr. Dash down the road a lawyer?"

"He ain't no lawyer that I ever heard tell of," answered the negro.

"You're sure?"

The old negro scratched his head in deep thought. Then a gleam of remembrance lighted his eye.

"Now I think of it, boss," he said, "'pears like I do recollect he ran for lawyer one time."

Marconi Anticipated.

An Egyptologist and an Assyriologist were disputing about the relative advancement of the two ancient peoples whom they were studying.

"Why, sir," cried the Egyptologist, "we find remains of wires in Egypt, which prove they understood electricity!"

"Pshaw!" answered the Assyriologist, "we don't find any wires in Assyria, and that shows that they understood wireless telegraphy!' — Stray Stories.

Suggesting Safe Course.

McFibb—That fellow Huskie called me a liar!

Newitt—Yes?

"Yes. What would you do about it?"

"Well, if I were you, I'd make it a point always to tell the truth when he's around.—Catholic Standard.

Still Spiteful.

Her—Yes, she married him to spite another girl.

Him—But why did she divorce him?

"So he could marry the other girl, and thus spite her some more."—Chicago Daily News.

If a girl really has beautiful arms she is naturally well qualified to learn to play the harp.—Somerville Journal.

"Be Pleasant Every Morning Until Ten O'clock; the Rest of the Day Will Take Care of Itself."

This is one of the best little sermons we know. Have you ever stopped to think that the morning is the time when your temper is usually ruffled, and have you ever stopped to think that the cause of bad temper in the morning is nearly always because your stomach has not been working properly during the night? It has contained a lot of indigestible substances that form gas and makes you have dreams. It breaks up your rest and you wake up in the morning tired, instead of refreshed, as nature intended you should.

Our grand sires required no admonition to "Be pleasant every morning until 10 o'clock; the rest of the day will take care of itself," for they digested their food and woke up full of life and energy ready for the day's duties, and this was because they lived on simple foods instead of highly seasoned palatable concoctions, which contain no nourishment. Nature gave us milk, wheat and eggs, and on these foods a person can live indefinitely, but if the milk is skimmed, and if the outside of the wheat is taken off the kernel, and if the lime, the salt, and the iron, which is in the outer part of the wheat berry, if these are all removed, you have simply starch alone; the starch goes into the stomach and becomes sugar.

Do you know that a person would starve to death on plain white bread and water? Do you know that he could live indefinitely on whole wheat bread or on whole wheat food and water? These interesting facts are all set forth in a book called "Back to Nature," which tells about proper living and gives recipes for meals of the simple kind—the kind that makes you strong and well; the kind that makes you "Pleasant every morning until 10 o'clock." This book is published at a great expense, but it is given free to every reader of this paper. It is an advertisement of "EGG-O-SEE," the great food—which is made from whole wheat, which is baked and predigested and is all ready to serve from the package you buy at your grocers. You get more life and energy from a 10-cent package of EGG-O-SEE than you will get from a thousand dollars' worth of white bread. This is no idle claim. It is a scientific fact. We want to tell about this simple food question, so write us and say "Please send me a copy of your book 'Back to Nature,'" and the book will be sent you at once without charge. Address EGG-O-SEE CO., No. 10 First Street, Quincy, Ill.

REPUBLICANS NAME CANDIDATES

THE CONVENTION AT DULUTH WAS HARMONIOUS AND ENTHUSIASTIC.

Jacobson had a Strong Lead on the First Ballot but on the Third a Stampede Started and Cole of Walker was Named for Governor.

GOVERNOR—A. L. COLE, of Walker.

LIEUT. GOV.—A. O. EBERHART of Mankato.

TREASURER—C. C. DINEHART, of Slayton.

ATT'Y GEN.—E. T. YOUNG, of Appleton.

SEC'Y STATE—J. A. SCHMAHL, of Redwood.

AUDITOR—S. G. IVERSON, Rushford.

CLERK SUPREME COURT—C. A. PIDGEON, of Buffalo.

RAILROAD COM'R—C. F. STAPLES, of West St. Paul.

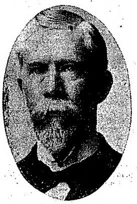
Duluth, June 14.—Conde Hamlin. chairman of the state central committee, at 10:45 a. m yesterday, brought down his gavel that called the convention to order. He introduced E. L. Miller of Duluth, who made a breezy address of welcome. Senator Thorpe of Willmar nominated W. W. Sivright of Hutchinson for chairman, and he was chosen. George T. Simpson of Winona was made secretary. John T, Jones of Minneapolis and James Duffy of Red Lake, assistant secretaries.

Albert L. Cole of Walker was nominated for governor at 1:20 p. m. on the third formal ballot.

On the first ballot Jacobson had 378, Cole 23[illegible], Lord 124, Block 106 and the balence scattering.

The second ballot showed no material change.

Hennepin county started the union of forces by throwing eighty-six votes to Cole. Other changes down the list gave Cole the total of [illegible]67 when the roll call was finished.



A. L. Cole.

Then came the stampede. Blue Earth county started it by changing its vote, formerly scattered, and giving it to Cole solid. County after county swung in line with great confusion.

The Jacobson men started a counter stampede but could only get his vote up to 408, while the following counties changed their votes to Cole; Becker, Brown, Clearwater, Dakota, Le Sueur, Mower, Polk, Red Lake. Roseau, Wabasha and half of Sibley.

When the ballots closed there was five minutes of intense excitement until the tellers footed the votes.

When the announcement showed Cole with five more votes than enough the anti-Jacobson forces went wild. After a demonstration lasting several minutes order was restored and the motion was made to appoint a committee to notify Cole of his nomination. R. B. Brower, Dar Reese and General Wilson were appointed.

The convention then took a recess until 3 o'clock.

The election of lieutenant governor was first on the call for actual business of the afternoon session of the convention. A. O. Eberhart of Mankato was nominated on the first ballot.

The nomination for secretary of state brought out only five of the dozen candidates who were in the field a month before.

E. A. Nelson, of Hallock, Julins A. Schmahl, of Redwood Falls, Capt. James Hunter, of Faribault, J. J. Lomen, of Ada and Swan Molander of Kanabec county.

The first ballot failed to secure an election for any one of the candidates. On the second ballot Schmahl was nominated.

Mr. Todd of Slayton was first on the floor when the time came for nominations for treasurer, and the gentleman from Murray placed in nomination the name of Clarence C. Dinehart. P. C. Koerner and Louis Vogel, together with Mr. Bentz of Fairmont, were placed in nomination, and from the first it was seen that Mr. Dinehart was easily the leader. When the votes were counted it was found that Mr. Dinehart had received 786 votes, while Koerner had 219, Vogel 84 and Bentz 10.

Ed T. Young for attorney general and Charles F. Staples for railroad and warehouse commissioner had no opposition whatever and were nominated by acclamation.

Cole's victory robbed the Iverson-Halden fight of the interest which it promised to arouse. The north was so elated at landing the head of ticket that Halden was quite forgotten except by Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties, all of which gave him a majority of their delegations.

The country stood by Iverson; and it is the country delegates and them alone he has to thank for his signal victory.

Out of the 1,089 ballots cast Iverson secured 695, against 394 for Halden.

George P. Wilson of Minneapolis moved the indorsement of Senator Knute Nelson for re-election. There was not an opposing voice, and the indorsement was seconded by a number of counties before Chairman Sivright declared the indorsements closed.

There is no plank in the platform of the republican state party advocating the extension of the primary law to nominating state officers. An attempt was made on the floor of the convention to raise the issue but the delegates were not in the mood and the question was summarily squelched without debate.

The Platform.

The Republican Party of Minnesota in state convention assembled, adopts the following declaration of principles:

We approve and support the distinctive and progressive policies of the present national Republican administration as exemplified in the messages, the acts and the achievements of Theodore Roosevelt, and we hereby endorse his consistent efforts to enforce the laws against trusts, monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade.

We approve the action of the national administration with respect to the Panama canal, as its construction will prove of the greatest utility in furtherance of commerce and the world's advancement.

We believe in free and open competition in all industries as the surest road to the development of our country and our resources, and the protection of private and individual rights.

The offices of President Roosevelt in effecting the cessation of hostilities between Russia and Japan, not only reflects great honor upon this country, but will also exert a powerful influence in maintaining the world's peace.

The Republican party of Minnesota reaffirms the policy of protection to American labor and American industry.

It recognizes the fact that no human wisdom can frame a tariff measure adapted to all time and conditions, and that the schedules must from time to time be revised and we believe that the time is now ripe for revision.

We recognize the necessity of co-operation in order to meet new conditions in the industrial world and to compete successfully for the world's markets, but the combinations which stifle competition, limit production, control prices or unduly increase profits or values and especially when the prices of the necessaries of life are raised. are opposed to public policy and should be repressed. We favor legislation, national and state, to prevent such abuses, and secure to every citizen a square deal.

The Republican party now stands where it has always stood in favor of the gold standard as the best basis for a firm and stable currency, thereby insuring a safe, reliable medium of exchange.

The adulteration of foods is a crime against the people and we therefore recommend such legislation as will properly safeguard the people against such evils and the vigorous prosecution of all offenders.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

We believe that the same beneficent policy ever advocated by the Republican party in recognition of the services of the old soldiers, should be maintained.

We express again our confidence in the sterling character, distinguished ability and invaluable public services of the Honorable Knute Nelson and the Honorable Moses E. Clapp, senators from this state. During their entire congressional career, they have reflected honor upon the state and nation. We hereby nominate Honorable Knute Nelson to succeed himself.

The public services of our representatives in the lower house of congress are hereby commended.

We cannot view, without concern, the continued exodus from the older counties and the gradual decrease of rural population and many of them without any corresponding advantage to the vast and fertile territory in our state still unsettled, and we, therefore, pledge the Republican party to the adoption of a vigorous and systematic policy of state development.

We hereby pledge ourselves to further promote the development of our landed resources by providing for a comprehensive system of drainage of the state lands and a more effective exploration of their mineral resources and the proper safeguarding of the rights of the state in its mineral lands.

The policy of the Republican party in advancing the industrial interests of the state is witnessed by legislation regulating the inspection of grain, the establishment of a twine plant, the protection of the farming and dairying interests, the drainage of state lands, the encouragement of immigration, the protection of our forests, the education of our youth and the care of the wards of the state.

We favor the tax amendment, to be voted on at the next election and we urge the next legislature to revise and improve our tax laws so that all property will contribute its just share to local and state expeditures.

We favor a reduction in passenger fares to 2 cents per mile, the abolition of the free pass evil, the abolition of discrimination and favoritism in the furnishing and hauling of cars and such a readjustment of freight rates and charges as will afford to every producer, shipper and consumer the impartial services of these public highways.

We recognize the value of forestry for this state and recommend legislation to promote reforestation of waste non-agricultural lands, wherever practicable.

We recommend, most heartily, the proposition to commemorate in 1908 the semicentennial of Minnesota's admission into the Union.

We heartily approve the amendment to the state constitution passed by the last legislature, the purpose of which is to permit market gardeners and farmers to sell or peddle their produce to consumers.

In view of the fact that some other states have established state printing offices, we recommend an investigation by the legislature of the question whether or not the state of Minnesota shall adopt the policy of doing its own printing.

We favor such laws as will secure better results in the expenditure of road funds and we favor the proposed constitutional amendment increasing aid for highways.

We are in favor of all just measures tending to the advancement of the cause of temperance, morality and good government.

GOPHER GOSSIP.

St. Paul—The St. Paul-Chicago railway lines start rate war.

Minneapolis—The supreme court hands down decisions in sixteen cases.

Hamline—Twenty young men graduate from Luther seminary.

St. Paul—The assembly passes the voting machine resolution.

Minneapolis—The first state butter contest of the year is the best yet held.

St. Paul—Seven veteran policemen are to be retired on pensions.

St. Paul—The state supreme court has sustained the decision of Judge C. L. Smith of the municipal court of Minneapolis, in which he found Fred Hoyle guilty of maintaining a gambling house on Sixth street S.

Minneapolis—Morris Sif, the 6-year old boy who was killed by a streetcar while running away from his father, died at the city hospital.

Kensington—As the result of a special election this village will have fire protection of some kind, and will receive estimates and suggestions of various systems from those who may be interested.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

HORSEMEN ARE REMINDED TO FILE ENTRIES FOR RACES.

Bees Cause Trouble—Floods Do Considerable Damage—Cattle Inspection Established—Watchman Saves Train—Brief Notes.

Time Is Limited.

Sec. E. W. Randall of the Minnesota State Fair wishes to call the attention of horsemen to the fact that only three weeks remain in which to file entries for the races for the state fair of '06. The entries close positively on Monday July 2. Blanks, conditions and full information of any kind may be obtained from Mr. Randall. This year the Minnesota fair has outdone itself offering a total of $33,050 in purses. No other fair comes anywhere near this offering. And horsemen know that they will get their money as soon as the races are over and that the conditions and conduct of the races will be absolutely fair.

The tracks have been put in excellent condition this spring and there are none better in the country. A large amount of work has been done on the half-mile track, filling a low place and resurfacing, so that it is now as good as the best. In addition a 34-stall barn is being put up especially for running horses.

Bees Make Trouble.

Minneapolis—A swarm of bees, getting into a freight car at the Minneapolis transfer, caused the state railroad and warehouse commission considerable difficulty.

J. P. Howard of Hammond, Wabasha county, last Thursday shipped his household goods, several head of stock, some bee hives and several hundred bees, all loaded in one car, from that place to Shell Lake, over the Milwaukee road. Mr. Howard, not hearing from the consignment, called upon the railroad and warehouse commissioners. It was then discovered that the livestock sanitary board tried to inspect the stock which was in the car, but were prevented from dong so for three days by the bees, which had broken loose. As a result, when the livestock board could get in the car, the stock was in such a condition on account of the bee activity, that they could not be inspected.

Water Causes Damage.

Mankato—Floods in the Minnesota river, caused by the recent heavy rains are doing considerable damage to the roadways. The river is wearing away its banks just north of St. Peter and threatens to destroy the wagon road leading to Ottawa and Le Sueur. The condition is considered so serious that the Omaha road, which follows the river, is sparing no expence in its efforts to strengthen the banks at the weak spots and prevent the further encroachment of the waters.

A stretch of turnpike nearly half a mile in length is affected by the flood, and as it lies within a few rods of the new St. Peter-Ottawa short line of the Omaha, it is feared that the railroad embankment may be damaged.

Inspection.

South St. Paul—The state live stock sanitary board will establish regular inspection of dairy and breeding cattle at this point. At present there is no veterinarian of the board stationed at the stock yards, the inspectors of the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture doing the inspecting.

Secretary S. H. Ward, of the live stock sanitary board has issued notice to the commission firms of South St. Paul that after June 18, the regulations requiring the testing of dairy and breeding cattle coming from other states and sold to Minnesota persons must be strictly observed.

Saved the Train.

Mankato—The North-Western line has a sinkhole at a point between Judson and Cambria, where 100 feet of the tract suddenly dropped twenty-five feet. A watchman noticed the break and flagged the night train before it reached the place. A strange feature of the occurrence is that only a short time before the tract dropped, two heavy freight trains passed over. It is believed that the quicksand that the tract was built on slipped into the Minnesota river, which is close by. The road has a force of men at work filling the hole, and trains are making the circuit on the old tract via St. Peter.

Donkey Makes Trouble.

St. Peter—A burro's braying is the basis for an unusual action that has been commenced in Cordova township. Louis Wilfert is the agrieved person, and he has lodged a complaint against a neighbor, Samuel McMillen, for keeping in his possession a burro that is a public nuisance. Wilfert declares that the swan song of the long-eared animal is a source of great annoyance, and he has asked the courts to compel McMillen to dispose of the burro or else cultivate its voice.

News Notes.

Alexandria—The body of a man identified by the clothing as Louis Emil Larson, has been found hanging to a small elm tree in the woods north of Nelson.

Hamline—The state university board of regents has borrowed about $34,000 from a Minneapolis bank to tide the institution over from thirty to sixty days.

Hanley Falls—A telephone company with a capital stock of $10,000 was organized by the citizens here yesterday, to be known as the Hanley Falls Telephone Company.

Chatfield—John Pavelka killed himself with a shotgun yesterday while despondent over ill health. He was 80 and lived alone near the outskirts of West Chatfield.

Minneapolis—Julius Heffner and Alexander McEwen have been indicted, charged with killing Frank O. Grain in a disorderly house. They are accused, in the true bills, with manslaughter in the first degree.

Minneapolis—Louis Peterson, a laborer employed on the work of widening the Washington avenue bridge, fell from the east end of the bridge to the ground, thiry feet below, and was seriously injured.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Ellen Terry, the actress, will tour the United States beginning next January.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tresch, 51 years old, was choked to death at Peru, Ind., by a burglar.

The New York plate glass war is at an end and the former rates will be restored July 1.

Secretary Root will sail for Brazil July 4 to take part in the Pan-American conference.

The United States is negotiating with Ecuador for quarantine rules to prevent yellow fever.

The next biennial convention of the Knights and Ladies of Security in 1908 will be held in Philadelphia.

H. O. Houghton, of the publishing firm of Houghton, Miffin & Co., died suddenly at Cambridge, Mass.

W. S. Umbarger, a Kansas City (Mo.) politician and livestock dealer, committed suicide on account of ill health.

Capt. S. C. Bull, of the Sixth (Inniskillings) dragoons, was killed and other officers wounded by natives at Tantab, Egypt.

The Rev. Charles Scadding, rector of a Protestant Episcopal church at La Grange, Ill., was elected bishop of the diocese of Oregon.

James E. Hargis, of Jackson county, Kentucky, charged with complicity in the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox, has procured bail in the sum of $15,000.

The Rev. Suilker Koster of Hull, Ia., was read out of the Reformed church in America, the synod having found the minister guilty of a sharp horse-trading deal.

Army records for 1905 establish Abraham Hill, sergeant in the Twenty-fourth United States infantry, to be the best shot in the army. His general average was 86.33.

W. H. Timlin, of Milwaukee, justice-elect of the Wisconsin supreme court, declared at Ripon college commencement that millionaires should not be eilgible for the United States senate.

Threats have been made to procure the indictment in Chicago by the federal grand jury of George J. Grammer, New York Central official, for alleged rebating to the Standard Oil company.

Foreign commerce of the United States has amounted to $1,786,000,000 in exports and $1,225,000,000 in imports for the fiscal year which ends this month. This will exceed all previous years.

The Chicago & Northwestern railroad will graze sheep in Wisconsin counties while they are in transit from the western ranches to Chicago, chargin seven cents additional for the expense.

The engagement is announced of Armar Sanderson, son of James Edward Sanderson, M. P., for Armagh, north, to Miss Archbold of New York, the daughter of John D. Archbold, the Standard Oil man.

Sergt. Frederick Linse, Thirteenth infantry, has been acquitted of the charge of murdering a negro prisoner in the Philippines. It was shown that the negro attacked Linse while the latter was on guard duty.

SOUTHWEST STRIKE ENDS.

Coal Miners in Arkansas, Missouri and Indian Territory Resume Operations.

Fort, Smith, Ark., June 16.—The tellers completed the count here Friday of the referendum vote on the Kansas City agreement, reached last week between the soft coal operators and miners of the southwest. The agreement, affecting Kansas, Indian Territory and Missouri, was carried by 1,400, a majority of about two-thirds. The Kansas miners had previously favored the agreement. This, therefore, ends the strike in the southwest, and the miners are expected to return to work next Monday.

Death of a Publisher.

Cambridge, Mass., June 16.—H. O. Houghton, of the publishing firm of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., died suddenly at his home here.

THE MARKETS.

New York, June 16.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@ 7 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 30	@ 4 60
WHEAT—July	89¼	@ 89⅞
September	88¼	@ 88½
CORN—September	58⅝	@ 58⅞
RYE—No. 2 Western	68	@ 68½
BUTTER	15	@ 20
CHEESE	9½	@ 10
EGGS	19½	@ 20
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 50	@ 6 05
Common to Good Steers	4 50	@ 5 50
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 50
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 35	@ 4 25
Calves	3 50	@ 7 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 37½	@ 6 47½
Heavy Packing	6 20	@ 6 35
Heavy Mixed	6 35	@ 6 50
BUTTER—Creamery	19½	@ 22
Dairy	13	@ 17½
EGGS—Fresh	14	@ 18
LIVE POULTRY	9	@ 18
POTATOES (bu.)	40	@ 65
WHEAT, July	82⅝	@ 83⅛
WHEAT—July	82⅞	@ 83⅜
September	82¾	@ 83⅝
Corn, July	52¾	@ 53⅜
Oats, July	40	@ 41½
Rye, May	58	@ 60
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 86½	@ 87½
July	81⅞	@ 82⅜
Corn, July	53⅛	@ 53⅞
Oats, Standard	41	@ 42
Rye, No. 1	65½	@ 66
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, July	$ 75½	@ 75⅝
September	75	@ 75⅛
Corn, July	50	@ 50⅛
Oats, No. 2 White	40	@ 40½
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 5 85
Texas Steers	2 00	@ 4 45
HOGS—Packers	5 75	@ 6 65
Butchers	6 40	@ 6 55
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 6 00
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25	@ 5 50
Stockers and Feeders	3 00	@ 4 25
Cows and Heifers	3 00	@ 4 40
HOGS—Heavy	6 35	@ 6 42½
SHEEP—Wethers	5 50	@ 6 15

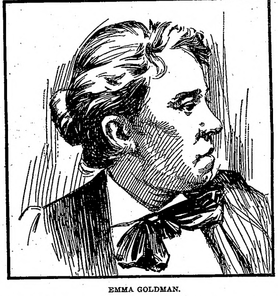
ANARCHY, EARLY EXPRESSIONS AND SPREAD THEREOF

Proudhon's Essay and Definitions of Various Groups of Theories—Outrages in Different Lands—Countries Giving Refuge.

Recently there have been offered evidences of general activity among the anarchists of the world. The attempt to assassinate the king and queen of Spain on their wedding day and the score of deaths and many injuries resulting from the bomb throwing in this attempt; the open rejoicing of anarchists in Paterson, N. J., over the Madrid assassination; the arrest of a Pole in Portland, Ore., with the discovery of a plot to kill President Roosevelt; in Rome the police finding several bombs when raiding a meeting of anarchists.

As there are socialists and socialists, so are there anarchists and anarchists. Not all anarchists are bomb throwers and assassins, nor believers in these methods of bringing about change in the social order. The word anarchy was first used in its French form by Proudhon in 1840, in an essay entitled "What Is Property?" Since, the word has come into very wide use. Some of the theories it designates are ancient—"the best of them formulated in definite language by Proudhon and his personal followers."

The International gives us four definitions of anarchy, four different groups of theories. The first may be called idealistic anarchy; and this the theory, anarchy the result of absolute individualism in thought as well as in social activity. Next we have Proudhon's theory—which he himself regarded as impracticable—anarchy an economic and social system whereby the individual should be free to produce what he pleased, get the full product of his labor, and under no compulsion of social regulation or law in any of his economic relations to his fellows. The third definition—anarchy represents a communistic organization of individuals in society having perfect freedom and equality between themselves as in the production and consumption of goods, and offering a combined resistance to all existing forms of social order, law and government. And now we come to the fourth, to the popular concept of anarchy, chaos and violence—anarchy comprises all attempts to destroy the existing social order without any reference to any theory of reconstruction, and by the use of any means, fair or foul, by which individuals or authority, may be destroyed. In this last class are grouped the "ultra-radicals, who are the uncompromising enemies of public order and decency, who plan murders and reckless public calamities. They are the fanatics who have been most in evidence in recent years."



EMMA GOLDMAN.

The Russian agitator Bakunin (1814-1876) about the time of the appearance of Proudhon's "What is Property?" was becoming prominent as one holding radical social views; in 1848 was in the very center of the revolutionary movement with which all Europe was then convulsed. He became more and more radical in views and utterances; and his views were widely disseminated.

The terrorists are the last word in anarchists, those that shout from the housetop: "Save humanity by blood and steel and poison." To this class belonged Most; belongs Emma Goldman, sometimes styled the "High Priestess of Anarchy in America;" the one whose writings are said to have influenced Czolgosz to assassinate President McKinley. Goldman is a Russian, was educated in Germany, has lived the greater part of her life in America. Her family was orthodox, but she early showed radical tendencies and says that the hanging of the Chicago anarchists in 1888 converted her to anarchism.

The United States has been the scene of two anarchist outbreaks: the Chicago Haymarket tragedy, May 4, 1886, when a bomb was thrown, killing seven policemen and wounding 27 others; the assasination of President McKinley, September 6, 1901. England has been singularly free from anarchist violence, the nearest approach the Trafalgar square riot November 13, 1887. France, Spain and Italy have suffered severely.

One writer declares it was France that made anarchy possible, anarchy the legitimate child of the revolution. "The revolution it was that first discovered the grandeur of cowardice, that first saw in the severed head of a girl the symbol of freedom and patriotism."

Italy, a country where the knife so quickly atones for wrongs both great and trifling, is most productive of anarchists. Salvatore Cortesi, writing in the Independent, informs us that the serious "work" of Italian anarchy began in 1894 with the murder of President Carnot by an Italian anarchist. Then followed quickly other "work" by the Italians. Lega fired at Crispi, Acciarite tried to stab King Humbert, Angiolille shot dead the Spanish premier, Lucheni assassinated the empress of Austria, and Bresci killed King Humbert. Cortesi lays the blame of these on the Italian's habit of taking vengeance in his own hand—in spite of a naturally gentle spirit—his hereditary leaning toward secret societies, and the exciting influence of the writings of Reclus, Krapotkin, Proudhon, Emma Goldman, and others.

In Spain from the first the anarchist movement found devoted disciples. In 1871 some Catalan workmen announced themselves as Collecti-vist anarchists, perhaps the first example of the use of the name by an association. Bakunin and the Italian inciter Malatesta exercised powerful influence upon Spaniards inclined to revolutionary views, as time went on the anarchist tendency grew more and more pronounced in Spain. Spanish anarchists have shown an unusual cohesion, similar to that of a well organized secret society, and because of their practical measures Spain has become the real center of the international propaganda of anarchy. But here, as elsewhere, there are various groups, not all terrorists.

London is harbor for anarchists from various lands, and rumor has it they have a pact with the British secret police, so long as the British royal family is immune from anarchist attacks they not to be molested. It appears that at least an agreement exists among the anarchists themselves not to molest British royalty as long as anarchists are allowed freedom of access to England and are not subjected to persecution while therein. Immediately after the bomb throwing in Madrid the other day, the cry went abroad that the assassination plot had been hatched in London, and no small protest was raised against the freedom given the "reds" in that great city. The Scotland Yard authorities held it very doubtful the Madrid crime originated in London; but had Alfonso's bride fallen a victim, freedom of access and residence in London would probably have been curtailed, the anarchists have lost their long-enjoyed refuge in Great Britain.

In the United States and Switzerland, as well as in England, anarchists have found refuge. These are the three most democratic nations of the world, and have hesitated to put restraints on freedom of speech. Now statesmen of these nations are considering if the time has not come when action should be taken to limit anarchistic utterances and assemblages. Andrew White, one of the foremost diplomats of this country, recently declared: "There is only one way in which the outrages of the anarchists can be cured. Their organization is world wide, therefore it must be met by an organization of a similar character. Three presidents of the United States have fallen before assassins in the present generation, and it must be patent to every one that something must be done to curb this law defying body."

HENRY THAYER.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1,50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Harmony and victory, is the watch word of the republican party this year.

Judging from the McIntosh Times, it will be up to Senator Knute Nelson to make a speech at that place during the campaign.

Governor Johnson will undoubtly put up a big fight for re-election, but he will find out that this is an off year, for the democratic party in Minnesota.

There is one cetainty and that is, that Hennepin county is in line for the Republican nominee for governor this year, and they have the votes to give him a big lift toward his election.

When the chilly winds from the northeast begin to strike you on the night of the primary election in September, if you are a candidate for office you may say I am glad I went out to Sunbeam and met so many of them people on the 4th of July.

The tax payers are the real suffers in the county seat removal fight, as in evidenced by all bills of expenses being presented to the county board of Commissioners for allowance, and payment by the County. We shall have some more to say about this later on as we Eleven towners have a right to kick, for that is about the only right we do have, as it is taxation without representation, so far as we are concerned.

The record of Hon. A L. Cole, the republican nominee for Governor, ought to and will make him a popular candidate. He has been a persistent and active worker for good roads, drainage immigration and state improvement. Minnesota needs just such a man for governor who will help to drain and advertise the state and make us all proud of our home' the state of Minnesota. -St. Hilaire Spectator.

The County Commissioner decided that the petition to call an election for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake to Thief River Falls was legal and ordered an election to be held, but Court Commissioner Toupin served an injunction on the county auditor restraining him from calling an election and the matter will be carried to supreme court and some of the old professional Polk county supreme court "jugglers" may be called into the deal and if they are no one can guess what the desicion of his honor will be.

The readers of the Red Lake Falls Gazette and Thief River Falls News, find a diversity of opinion about the candidancy of L.C. Simons for state senator, but then them two papers like to be of opposite opinions; on all questions in order to be in good shape for the county seat war, which the politicions will set the newspapers of the two cities at as soon as the lawyers get through with it, but the trouble is the lawyers wont turn the matter over until they have completely exusted the boodle sack of both places and then they will let the newspapers fight for their health and principles.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

The Republican party will present the following ticket to the voters of the state of Minnesota at the November Election,

For Governor—A.L. Cole.

Lieutenant Governor—A.O. Eberhardt

State Auditor—S.G. Iverson

Treasurer—Clarence C. Dinehart

Secretary of State—Julius H. Schmahl

Clerk Supreme Court—C.A. Pidgeon

Attorney General—Edward T. Young

R.R. and Warehouse Commissioner—C.F. Staples

Associate Chief Justice Start, to succeed himself.

The ticket as a whole is a strong one and will no doubt be elected by an old time republican majority in November.

WHY THE LEFT EAR?

Everybody puts the telephone receiver to the left ear. No one in using the telephone ever listens with the right ear. It is always the left.

"Do we hear better with the left ear? Is that why we always use it in telephoning?" a man asked.

"No," the pretty telephone girl replied. "But the receiver, you see, is hung on the left side of the phone; hence you have to use the left ear in talking unless you want to inconvenience yourself.

"But why is it hung on the left side?" she went on. "Was it hung there originally because the left ear had been found acuter than the right? Ah, no. The receiver was hung at the left so that the left hand could easily manage it. The right hand in the early days of telephoning had all it could do to turn the crank—around and around and around—ding-a-ling-a-ling-a-ling—don't you remember?

"Now the right hand is idle in telephoning. Therefore for any one desiring it it would be possible to hold the receiver to the right ear. The companies should take this fact into consideration, and they should hang the receiver not on the left or right of the instrument, but directly in front of it. Then we could use in telephoning whichever ear we preferred to."—Exchange.

A Wonderful Feat of Endurance.

All the automobile endurance contests are thrown into the shade by the remarkable performance of Emil Bouhours, of Paris, who rode a bicycle 815 miles and 291 yards in twenty-four hours, at the remarkable average rate of thirty-four miles an hour. When one considers the delay and stops entailed in such a race it means that for hours the rider must have been pedaling his bicycle at the rate of fifty miles an hour and sometimes even faster than that. The old record for the time was 634 miles and 57 yards, or about seven hours slower than Bouhours' record. It is true that Bouhours was paced by a motor cycle, but he rode without a wind shield, and for a large part of the time he made his own pace. The weather was intensely cold and seriously affected Bouhours in the last four hours of his riding. He says that under better weather and pacing conditions he would be able to cover 1,000 miles in twenty-four hours.—Leslie's Weekly.

Side Lights on the French Census.

France does not take its censuses as seriously as this country, though some Parisian wits are now paying fines for the gayety of their answers to the enumerators' queries. Some towns and villages set about swelling their population. Marseilles and Lyons were jealous about the second place among French cities. Whether they padded the returns or not does not appear; but Cassoulet-sur-Lot, a little town in the south, was anxious to bring its population up to 20,000, so that its magistrates could have their salaries increased by $125. As only a few score of people were wanted, the affair was comparatively easy. Cassoulet jail was made the workhouse of a whole district, but entry was obligatory, not permissive, for all the tramps in the neighborhood. This drafting of citizens was successful!

Parsee Burial Customs.

A Bombay correspondent, writing of the burial customs of the Parsees, says: "The approach of that transition we call death is a signal for the relatives to leave the presence of the dying one, the priest alone remaining to whisper Zend-Avesta precepts into his ear. He in turn passes out of the room and admits a dog, who is trained to gaze steadily into the face of the dying one. A dog is accounted the only living creature that can terrorize the evil spirits, so the 'sag-did,' or 'dog stare,' is the last sight the Parsee has on earth. No human shadow must intervene; otherwise the guardian virtue of the dog's gaze is annulled."

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series. for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 152 N. R.39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 22,1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H·E. No. 805, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O. Larson. Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, Minn. Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H.E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series. for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Anton Knutson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication May 25th,1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th. 1906 viz:

Peter A. Kolstad.

H.E.No. 694 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens. and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th,1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th. 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H.E. No. 591 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H.E. No. 547, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th., 1906, viz:

Ole O. Stromme.

H.E. No.521, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Albert Arntz, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn. Morgan Vaugen, Peter Brachmann, of Germantown Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

A Conundrum For Cannon.

Speaker Cannon has received hundreds of telegrams from Oklahoma expressing the opinion of hundreds of people about him. This one, however, which he declares is the most remarkable inquiry ever propounded to an American statesman, he proposes to frame, "Shall Oklahoma, the gem of hope, be sacrificed on the Shylock of Despair?"—New York Times.

J. K. Wood,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, &

Civil Engineer.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906 viz:

Harry G. Dobner.

H. E. No. 519 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp. Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. George Tupper, of Brunkeberg Minn. Morgan Vaughan, of Germantown Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 3rd, 1906, viz:

Peter T. Quam.

H.E. No. 983 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 19 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Iver A. Tasa, Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Torgerson, of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 26 1906 viz:

Lars K. Vindlos.

H.E. No. 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 13 Sec. 22 Twp 153 N R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmund K. Vindlos, Ole Breiland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May, 21st. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota. at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th. 1906. viz:

Albert Arntz.

H.E. No.528, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Ole P. Stromme, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn., and Morgan Vaughan, and Peter Brachmann, of Germantown, Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906. viz:

George Tupper.

H.E. No. 768 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 154.N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. Charles Newberry, Harry Dobner, Cordilos Douglas of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 3rd, 1906 viz;

Thomas A. Tasa.

H.E.No. 985 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Iver A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Rudell Minn. Torger Elton, of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July. 20th, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E. No. 933, Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

"English as She Is Spoke."

Dumley—Do you take your breakfast downtown? Quibble—Yes, but I eat it at home.—Boston Transcript.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest marke price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, :: :: MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price.

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

Miss A. Kuehnel, Prop., and postmaster. Sec, 29 T, 153 R.40.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Come to Sunbeam July 4th.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Fosston will celebrate July 4th in the good old style.

Sigrud Vattendahl is now driving the mail from here to Lillo.

Chas. Swanson returned from the Mississippi drive near Bemidji Wednesday.

Wild strawberries are begining to get ripe, and there will be a big crop of them this season.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Thomas Sullivan is rushing brushing and grubbing on his homestead, and will soon have 20 acres ready for the plow.

The rains of the past few days have placed the roads in the old fashioned condition that we have been used to for the past year.

Mrs. A.W Shosten has commenced proceedings to probate the estate of her husband who accidently shot himself last March.

Herman and Oscar Lillo, and Mr. Smith passed by this way Monday, on their way to Thief River Falls, and made this office a call.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon O'Toole took Wednesdays boat to Thief River Falls, where Mrs O'Toole will consult a doctor regarding her health.

The little Dan Patch freight boat, under the management of Captain Fred Haug is tugging a large amount of freight up the river now days.

John S. King the sage of Meadows has taken unto himself a second wife in the person of Miss Mary E. Nelson of Leaon Minn. We extend congralulations.

Farmers, who are going to do fencing this spring should call on E. B. Laneger, at Plummer Pioneer Hardware Store, for all kinds of fencing. Will make prices right.

The Red Lake Flyer passenger boat makes regular trips now from Thief River Falls to Little Oak, going up on Monday and Thursday, down on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

P. Sullivan, A. Eve, and Wallace Grace took the row boat rout to Thief River Falls, Tuesday, on their way to Crookston, where the latter made final proof before the U.S. Land office yesterday.

The dead head steam pick up boat Ebehart passed by here yesterday on their way up river where they will commence their seasons work of picking up water soaked logs that have sunk in the lake and river.

Singer Bros. are contemplating the erection of a branch store at Sunbeam, as the trade of the country seems to demand it. They will fully decide the matter the first of next month. The boys are hustlers and we hope to see them locate here, and believe it would be a good paying investment for them.

Ole T. Olson came up from Eden Township, last Saturday, and on Tuesday, him and Oluf Snoback, moved their ditching outfit to the town of Kratka, where they have a large contract for ditching for James Kilen, and others. It was to be regrefed that the ditcher was compelled to leave this locality to get employment, but as the settlers around here are going to continue to make their residence here they will ditch and improve the country later.

NEWS FROM GULLY.

George Kronschnable the Gully merchant is blowing himself for advertiseing his store in The Thirteen Towns, and thereby hangs a tale. When Kronschnable and Bolstad had a live newspaper located at Gully, they were to poor to advertise, or in other words they got afraid the paper would make to much money, and did all that was in their power to hinder, annoy, and damage the paper in its business, notwithstanding the paper was drawing thousands of dollars business to them every year. But they were not satisfied to attend to their store business and allow the paper to attend to theirs, but attempted to dictate the policy of the paper, and failing to do that they did all in their power to kill it, even to the extent of ordering the paper to move their building off their land, well the paper moved and now they are looking for the trade that it brought them by advertising in a paper 20 miles away for they didn't miss the water till the well went dry.

DR. C.C. HOUGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

JULY 4th,

The following program of sports will be seen at Sunbeam July 4th, log rolling contest on the Red Lake River, tug of war. Deer Park V.S Highlanding, potatoe races, egg races, three-legged races, foot races, boys whirling race, climbing greased pole, wheelbarrow race, foot race for boys and men.

The excursion boat Dan Patch will leave Sunbeam for Priest Point at 6 a.m. and will leave Priest point for Sunbeam at 8 a.m arrive at Sunbeam at 9. 30 a.m.

Then they will make regular excursions trips from Sunbeam to Highlanding during the day.

No intoxicateing liquors will be allowed to be sold or in any way disposed of on the grounds at Sunbeam July 4th as this is entended to be a celebration, where you can bring your wife and children and allow them a days pleasure, and while you may visit a saloon yourself you do not take your wife and children with you.

One boat load of lumber for the 4th of July bowery arrived Monday and the balance will be here this week.

CREAM WANTED.

We are now prepared to buy all your cream delivered at our store at the higest market price. Cream tested and weighed here, and you can also get your pay for it each week if desired. Give it a trial and we will assure you a fair treatment.

Singer Bros.,
Rhoda, Minn.,

Disappointment on Both Sides.

"You said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station," complained the victim. "To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"And I'm disappointed in you," replied the agent. "I thought you were a very rapid walker."—Philadelphia Press.

The Frosted Hand.

"Yes, and after she refused me she waved her hand in farewell."

"Sort of cold wave, wasn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind is like one who illuminates the outside of his [illegible] within in the dark.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Ready Wit Is an Advantage In This Jolly Game.

"What is my thought like?" is a good game, even if it is not particularly new.

Begin by asking each player in turn, "What is my thought like?" to which he must answer the first thing that comes to his mind, but it must be different from the answer given by the others.

You must keep a list of all the answers, and then, having announced what your thought really was, ask each player to tell you in what way your thought resembles the thing he gave in his answer.

For instance:

You ask, "What is my thought like?"

No. 1 replies, "Like a stove."

No. 2 replies, "Like a book," etc.

You then announce: "My thought was myself. Now, how am I like a stove?"

No. 1 replies, "Because you often go out."

You ask No. 2, "How am I like a book?"

No. 2 replies, "Because you are well read," etc.

This game is great fun.

What Is a Handkerchief?

The word "handkerchief" is a very queer one. A "kerchief" is a covering for the head, being made up of the words "cur," to cover, and "chef," the head. A handkerchief therefore is a covering for the head carried in the hand. A pocket handkerchief is still more inconsistent, for that word really means a head covering carried in the hand and kept in the pocket at the same time. There are lots of such inconsistencies in our language, and it is not to be wondered at that foreigners find it very hard to master.

Nonsense Rhyme.

Why not have a nonsense rhyme game some day? Give four players sheets of paper and pencils and offer a prize for the best nonsense rhyme composed in so many minutes.

You know how they go, as, for instance:

There was a young man of Bridgeport,
Who sat on the stove just for sport,
And, though he was burned,
No lesson he learned,
This eccentric young man from Bridgeport.

The Bloom on Fruit.

How many boys and girls know why plums, grapes and other fruits of that kind have bloom on them? Of course you know that the bloom is the whitish coating that a mere touch will rub off, leaving the dark skin of the fruit in view. This is a provision of nature for the protection and preservation of the fruit. It prevents dampness from accumulating on it and thus keeps it from decaying.

Where Boys Can't Smoke.

Among the countries which prohibit smoking by boys are Japan, where no person under twenty is allowed to smoke; Austria, Germany, Russia and Norway. Several British colonies have also passed laws against juvenile smoking, and there is every prospect of Great Britain following suit before long.

A Hard Road to Travel.

Teacher—What is the meaning of "crisis?"

Tommy—A turning point.

Teacher—Correct. Now write a sentence containing the word.

After some hesitation Tommy wrote, "They came to a crisis in the road."

King Edward's Horses.

King Edward's horses are all specially trained. Even in moderating their speed they undergo lessons. They are taught to trot, and trot with apparent spirit, but to put no more speed into it than if they were going at a walk.

Beyond Reason.

There be two individuals who cannot be reasoned with—a girl in love and a man who is determined to run for an office—New Orleans Picayune.

Love is never afraid of overwork.—Chicago Tribune.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 3, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series. for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown-Minn. Charles Schuster. Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication June 1st 1906.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1906 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E. No. 324 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:—

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Ovesen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hunstad, of Kuehnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston, Minn., on July 20th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. No. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn., William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bonnie P. Rustad,

H.E. No. 901, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole G. [illegible] of [illegible] Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

McCALL PATTERNS
10 AND 15
NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE
50¢ YEAR
INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

There are more McCall Patterns sold in the United States than of any other make of patterns. This is on account of their style, accuracy and simplicity.

McCall's Magazine (The Queen of Fashion) has more subscribers than any other Ladies' Magazine. One year's subscription (12 numbers) costs 50 cents. Latest number, 5 cents. Every subscriber gets a McCall Pattern Free. Subscribe today.

Lady Agents Wanted. Handsome premiums or liberal cash commission. Pattern Catalogue (of 600 designs) and Premium Catalogue (showing 400 premiums) sent free. Address THE McCALL CO., New York

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on real estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

A Remarkable Bridge.

Among the many odd nooks and corners and crannies of the auld Emerald Isle is Carrick-a-rede, on the Great Northern railroad of Ireland. It is an isolated rock, separated from the mainland by a chasm sixty feet wide and more than eighty feet deep, and it is at this place that the salmon are intercepted in their retreat to the rivers. A rude bridge of ropes is thrown across, which remains during the fishing season, and this bridge, which is protected by a single rope rail, swings about in the most uncomfortable manner, often rendering it a dangerous feat in stormy weather save to the natives, who cross it with the utmost indifference. The name is derived from "Carrig-a-ramhadh" (the rock in the road) on account of the intercepting of the salmon. Near by on the west side of the island is a cavern in which have been found the bones of horse, ox, deer, sheep, goat, badger, otter, water rat and of several kinds of birds.

A Sad Feature.

Jack—Engagement is off, eh? Has she sent him back the ring? Tom—No; that's what's bothering him. He owes money on that ring.—New York Press.

Wouldn't Miss It.

Maid—Are you at home to Mrs. Tofty, mum? She's at the door. Mistress—I am if she has a new hat on—[illegible]

SUNBEAM JULY 4,

Oration by,

Thomas Germo,

COUNTY ATTORNEY, Reading of Decleration of Independence.

Singing of Patriotatic Songs, will be heard in the forenoon, and big program of sports in the afternoon. Basket picnic dinner under the beautiful shade trees at Sunbeam. Grad Bowery dance, afternoon and evening. GRAND DISPLAY OF FIRE WORKS.

Excursion boats will run on the river all day.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE

Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MEN'S Northland
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE.

Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Anxious.

"I hear that your wife has run away from you?"

"Yes. I've offered a reward for her capture, dead or alive."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars alive and a thousand dollars dead."—Judge.

Why Pay Cash

WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $10.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE of all kinds at 90 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES, TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the factory to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to desirable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for information. It's Free. Catalogue.

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
51-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Why Mr. Grub-Worm Goes on His Back

By ANNE VIRGINIA CULBERSTON

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

One day the children had gone down to the little cabin of Aunt 'Phrony, and on this occasion she chose to tell them about certain happenings in the affairs of Mis' 'Possum and Mr. Grub-worm.

"Dey was both of 'em mighty fat folks," she began, "an', like lots er fat folks, dey wuz right lazy. Dey ain' go nowhere's dey ain' hatter go; jest mosey round a li'l to git der vittles, an' stay home de rest er de time, w'ile other creeturs dey all time trapesin' an' trollopin' up an' down de kyountry to see w'at dey kin see, an' hear w'at dey kin hear, an' do w'at dey kin do. Mis' 'Possum she stay in a holler tree an' snooge de time erway, an' Mister Grubwa'am he snuggle down jes' beneaf de top er de groun' an' dream 'bout de time he gwine turn into a beetle an' live on top er de groun'."

"Oh, Aunt 'Phrony, do grub-worms turn into beetles?" asked one of the children incredulously.

"Yes, sir! dat dey does! Dish yer one w'at I tell 'bout he lie low underneath de earth until May er June, an' den come out an' turn inter one deze yer pooty green an' brown beetles what dey calls 'June beetles,' de kine chillen ketches an' sets ter junin'."

Of course the children wanted to know what "juning" was.

"Lawd! Lawd!" she said, "I done 'spose all chillen knowed how ter june a bug. W'y, you jes' takes de beetle an' ties a string to 'im, an' holes onter de end of it an' lets 'im fly, an' den he hums an' he buzzes an' he zoon', an' dat's w'at dey calls junin'.

AUNT 'PHRONY.

"Now, den, lemme start again. I done tole you dat Mister Grub-wu'm an' Mis' 'Possum was both of 'em fat an lazy, an' like ter stay home. But dey'z mighty fond er knowin' w'at gwine on in de worl', an' w'en other creeturs go ter de kyouncil ter tend ter de 'fairs er de kyountry, deze yer stay-at-homes ain' gin 'em no peace w'en dey git back, pesterin' 'em wid queschins 'bout w'at went on at de kyouncil.

"One time some er de creeturs wuz gwine by fum de meetin', an' Mis' 'Possum she stan' in her do' an' hail 'em, an' ax 'em fer ter come in an' set a w'ile. Dey sez, 'Scuse we-all, ma'am, we 'bleeged fer ter be gittin' on,' an' dey sez ter one another behin' der hans': 'Lawd! Lawd! le's we make haste an' git outen dis, er dat woman nab us an' nail us ter de cheers all night.'

"Mis' 'Possum she say, sez she, 'Gemmen, I ain' gwine take no fer a ornser. You-all mus' be plumb frazzle out wid yo' walk. You mus' come in an' take off yo' shoes an' res' yo' hoofs an' den lemme gin you a plate er 'simmons an' a glass er buttermilk. Now-you year me, I ain' gwine let you off.'

"De vittles fetched 'em, like dey alluz do wid men-folks, an' in dey camed. Mis' Possum she axed 'em queschins 'bout who wuz dar, an' w'at dey do, an' w'at dey wear, an' w'at dey have ter eat, an' w'at laws been pass', until dey wuz fair wile. Dey git so wo' out an' aggervex dat w'en she go outen de room fer ter fetch de 'simmons an' de buttermilk dey go to collogin' toge'er an' fix up a li'l joke on her. W'en she come back she sot down de plates an' de glasses, an' patt her hans on her hips, an' stood watchin' 'em eat, talkin' at 'em all de time.

"'Dellaws,' she say, 'y'all ain' gin me no news wuf talkin' 'bout. Is dat all you kin 'member er de doins?'

"Den one un 'em he wink at de res', an' he say, he do, 'Law bless yo' soul, Mis' 'Possum, I nigh mos' fergit ter tell you dat de kyouncil done pass a law dat all animals mus' pervide derse'fs wid a pouch so's's dey kin kyar' der chillen roun' wid 'em.'

"'Fer de lan's sake!' sez she, 'how I gwine git me any pouch ter kya' roun' wid me.'

"'Nuver you mine,' dey sez, 'we bring you de hide, an' all you gotter do be ter make de pouch.'

"So dat's w'at dey do, an' Mis' 'Possum she 'uz strukken wid de notion dat hit save her de trouble er kyar'yin' de bag on her arm ef she jes' take an' sew hit on her body instid, so, sho's yo' bawn, she tuck an' sewed hit on her own hide, right in front, an' dar whar she been kyar'yin' it ever sence.

"The other creeturs raise a big hoot w'en dey see her gwine roun' like dat, de only one 'mongs 'em all w'at kyar der young-uns dat-a-way. Mis' 'Possum don' care. She say: 'Gemmen, de joke's on me dis time. But sho! 'tain't bodder me. You done me a mighty good turn; dis heap better dan gwine roun' totin' my chillen with my mouf, de way some er you-all hatter do w'en you wanster tote yo'n.'

"An' ter dis day she take her chillen eve'ywhar she go, even w'en she go out ter rob a hen-roos'. Sometimes she lays down on de groun' in de sun, an' dey walks outer de pockit an' climbs all over her, an' squats down, an' hangs on by curlin' der long tails roun' de hya'r on her body. I done seed a dozen un 'em ta onct jes' settin' all over der mammy, hangin' on by der tails.

"Atter de creeturs lef' Mis' 'Possum, dey g'long li'l ways an' meet up wid Mister Grub-wu'm, an' he turnt to an' 'gun ter pussecoot 'em jes' like she been doin'. Dey git natchelly wo' out wid 'im, so dey go off a piece an' confabulate tege'er. 'Now ain' dis jes' too much!' dey sez. 'W'y 'n't dis man go ter de kyouncil an' use his own eyes an' years? Mis'able lazybones!' One un 'em say ter the others: 'Jes' leave dis man ter me.'

"Den he go back, an' he say ter Mister Grub-wu'm, 'Brer Grub, we-all done fergit ter tell you de kyouncil done pass' a law dat all animals mus' crawl on der backs. Dey say we bin gwine roun' wid ow' eyes on de groun' long 'nuff, an' now we mus' turn over an' look up in de worl'.'

"'Umph!' sez de Grub-wu'm, sezee, 'dat suit me to er gnat's bristle, kase I don't reckon folks gwine 'spec' me ter git 'roun' fas' ef I hatter to travel on my back. I kin take hit easy den, sho'-nuff. Stan' outen de way, you-all; yer goes!' An' wid dat he roll over on de groun' an' try ter crawl. Mighty hard wuk! He wrassel an' he tussel an' he tug, but he ain' make no headways. 'Whew! dish yer make me tired, sho'-'nuff!' sezee. 'I gwine turn me over an' do de ole way; dat good 'nuff fer me. Mighty easy ter set up in de high seats an' gin orders. I wish all de folks what send orders hatter try 'em on themselves fo' dey kin pass inter laws.'

"He try ter turn back on his stummick, but bless yo' soul, dar wa'n't no turn to 'im. He huff an' he puff, an' he fuss an' he cuss, but 'twan't no use. De creeturs dey stood by an' snickered, an' aigged 'im on, an' let on ter try an' he'p. Las' dey kain't stan' hit no longer, an' dey bus' out laughin' an' sez, 'Heyo, Mister Grub, we done got you fix' dis time. Reckon you won't go pesterin' we-all no mo' wid queschins 'bout de kyouncil. You hatter travel all de way dar on yo' back atter dis ef you wanter know w'at gwine on; you kain't 'pend on we-all no mo'. So 'long, ole man.'

"Sence den ole Grub-wu'm been doin' all his walkin' on he back, an' he been at it so long now dat he done got right spry. Sometimes atter a haivy rain he comes up through de top er de groun', and' you kin see 'im jes' mo'n scootin' roun' on he back.

"Now, dat's all de tales you gwine git outen me dis day. I is plumb wo' out, same 'z de creeturs wuz, wid queschins;" and the old woman folded her hands and closed her eyes and pretended to be fast asleep, seeing which her little auditors stole softly away on tip-toe for fear of waking her.

WORDS IN OKLAHOMA'S NAME

Belief That It Was Taken from Comanche Tongue Refuted by Student of Indian Lore.

Oklahoma City, Ok.—The Rev. J. S. Murrow, of Atoka, who is a deep student of Indian lore and an authority on such matters, refutes the statement made recently by the Indian Leader that "Oklahoma" is a Comanche Indian word meaning "land of the fair god."

He asserts that it is a Choctaw word and means simply "red people," the Indian word "okla," meaning people, and "homma" meaning red. In joining the two words one m is omitted. The name was given to Wright, chief executive of the Choctaw Nation in 1866, when the United States government negotiated with all of the Five Tribes to effect a treaty.

At that time the present boundary of Oklahoma and Indian Territory was outlined, and it was proposed to erect a regular territorial form of government with a view of finally making it a state to be controlled by the Indians. But the Indians themselves did not consent to that part of the proposition.

When the matter of a name for new territory was mentioned by the secretary of the interior to the assembled Indian governors, Mr. Wright spoke instantly and said: "Call it Oklahoma." "What does that mean?" asked the secretary. "It means 'red people,'" answered Governor Wright, and the matter was settled.

Later Indian Territory was separated from the Oklahoma, and now the original boundaries are to be restored with the name as given by Governor Wright of the Choctaws, and the original state as contemplated will soon take its place in the sisterhood, though in this new state the Indians will not be the controlling element, as they might have been had they acted as the Government desired in 1866.

Remarkable Citizen.

All the people of Lempster, N. H., doff their hats and make straight his path when William Welch travels in the street. And well they might accord this mark of respect to William Welch, for in all its staid environs Lempster has no greater citizen than this man, who at 106 years of age is undoubtedly the oldest veteran of the civil war and the oldest Mason of the United States.

A Correct Diagnosis.

George—Eh? You got engaged last night, Gus, my old, my dear friend, tell me how you did it.

Gus—Really, I hardly know myself. Couldn't help it. Just like falling downstairs. I was on the edge of a proposal, she gave me a push, and there I was engaged.

"Well, I haven't had any such experience. Every time I try to start, my knees knock together, and my teeth chatter, and my tongue cleaves to the roof of my mouth. I've tried a dozen times to pop the question to Miss De Pink, and slumped every time."

"And did she let you slump?"

"Yes."

"You are courting the wrong girl."—N. Y. Weekly.

Fishing for a Compliment.

"She said you were fishing for a compliment the last time you were up at her house, but that you didn't get it."

"Why, I don't recall having said anything that she could have construed that way."

"Well, she says you did."

"Did she say what it was?"

"Yes; she said that you asked her if she considered monkeys intelligent."—Houston Post.

An Unsympathetic Description.

'What has your boy been studying?" asked the neighbor.

"Well, fur one thing," answered Farmer Corntossel, "he's been studying botany."

"What is botany?"

"Botany is what teaches a man the names of a whole lot of things he hasn't sense enough to raise."—Washington Star.

An Impression.

"I'm kind o' discouraged 'bout that new boarder," said Mrs. Corntossel.

"Cheer up," answered the farmer. "There ain't no use o' tryin' to suit him. He's one o' those fellers that write political articles for the magazines."—Washington Star.

Mamma Responsible.

"Papa," said the darling daughter of the household, "how did you propose marriage to mamma?"

"Don't ask me," answered the old man. "I can't remember a thing about it. Go and ask your mother. She managed the whole affair."—Tit-Bits.

Filial Affection.

Tommy Twaddles—Oh, I don't want to go to school!

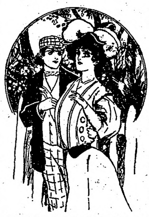
Pa Twaddles—But don't you want a decent education?

Tommy T. (ingratiatingly)—No, pa, I'd rather grow up to be just like you.—Cleveland Leader.

Why They Are Watery.

Who fixes up his stocks and bonds,
To take the rabble in,
Infuses water, this to make
Them nice to dabble in.
—Puck.

HIGH MEN'S MEANS.



The Maid—You should speak to papa first. Surely you don't expect him to make the advances, do you?

The Hopeful Swain—Well, if he doesn't, I don't see how we're going to get married.

Necessary.

Will—I hear Tom is going touring in his motor-car. Is he familiar with the route?

Jack—I should say he was. Why, he knows just where every repair shop is.—Cassell's Journal.

High Art.

"She's the picture of health, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed. And painted by one who knows the business. She's an artist, that woman."—Cleveland Leader.

No Change.

Knicker—If wishes were horses beggars would ride.

Bocker—Not much; they would walk home after the race as usual.—N. Y. Sun.

Improved.

He—Suppose you think you improved me when you married me?

She—Why, yes, I do. You haven't written any of that soft poetry since I married you!—Yonkers Statesman.

The Beginning of the End.

First Cigarette Holder—And they—er—married and lived happily ever after, I suppose?

Second Cigarette Holder—Yes, after the divorce!

Voracity.

Angler—Do the fish bite around here?

Native—Bite? Say, stranger, we have to muzzle 'em so they won't chaw up the innercent bystander.—N. Y. Sun.

The Ball Player and the Umpire.

The pantomime appears to be
Expressive of a mood severe.
It's well we're close enough to see
But just too far away to hear.
—Washington Star.

PERPLEXED HOSTESS

SOME SUGGESTIONS THAT MAY PROVE OF HELP.

The First Year Comes the Cotton Wedding—May Be Made a Gay Affair—Some Astrological Lore.

The "Cotton" Wedding.

One year of wedded life brings the "Cotton" anniversary, and it may be made a most attractive affair. So soon after the original ceremony it will probably not be a difficult matter to arrange for a reunion of the bridal party, and this alone will make the occasion a memorable one. Send the invitations on squares of fine cotton cloth written with indelible ink.

Decorate the rooms with vines, plants and branches. Over these put a quantity of fluffy cotton flakes. Portieres and window drapes are effective made from strips of white cotton. If cards are to be the amusement, "Hearts' 'is a good game, and there are so many articles in the shape of hearts which will make appropriate souvenirs and prizes. The dining-room table may be covered with thin layers of cotton instead of a linen cover. At each place put a cotton snowball tied with ribbon, the name card tucked under the bow. Inside the ball put a tiny souvenir. The center-piece should be a jardiniere wrapped with cotton and filled with the kind of flowers that were used at the event of a year ago.

There should be a wedding cake containing a ring, piece of money and a thimble; all young people know the meaning of these symbols, and there will be a jolly time when the bride cuts the cake. Have the ice cream frozen in balls, tied with ribbons of spun sugar candy of the color used at the original wedding supper.

The gifts to be given the happy pair are, of course, limited to articles made from cotton. One little bride of a year rejoiced in a generous cotton crepe kimona and the groom in a pair of pajamas. These were given by the bridal party and were sent in a huge packing box which was delivered during the party. Opening this box caused much merriment, as on each successive wrapping there was written a clever little rhyme.

Your Fortune in Each Month.

Here is a bit of astrological lore which may be of use to a hostess in amusing a crowd of young people. Ask the birth month of each; the following little table gives the answers. The entertaining feature of these so-called fortunes is in how far they generally are from the real characteristics of the person whom they are supposed to portray.

January—A maiden born in this month will be a prudent housekeeper, good tempered, but inclined to be melancholy.

February—Humane and affectionate; a tender parent.

March—A chatter box, fickle, stormy and of a quarrelsome nature.

April—Pretty, dainty, inconsistent and not studious.

May—Handsome in person, contented and happy in spirit.

June—Gay, impetuous and will marry early.

July—Fair to look on, but sulky in temper and jealous.

August—Amiable, practical and will make a wealthy marriage.

September—Discreet, affable and a favorite with every one.

October.— Pretty, coquettish and oftentimes unhappy without a cause.

November—Liberal, kind and pleasant and thoughtful of others.

December—Well proportioned, gay, fond of novelty and inclined to be extravagant.

MADAME MERRI.

CONCERNING GLOVES.

A Pretty Design for Evening Glove, Afternoon and Evening Lengths —White Ones in Fashion.

A PRETTY DESIGN.—One of the prettiest styles of elbow-gloves yet shown is delicately shaded at the top an almost imperceptible mauve, with a slightly-embossed and indefinitely-traced pattern upon it of lilies of the valley or ivy leaves. Bas-relief patterns of the same indefinite and picturesque, nature appear on the upper arm of white gloves, shaded a faint shell-pink or a faint sea-green.

STYLES TO WEAR.—Except for mourning wear, white gloves are worn upon all smart occasions. For evening wear the glove must rise beyond the elbow and meet the short evening sleeve more than half-way up to the shoulder. For day wear the gloves are slightly shorter, and need not rise higher than the elbow, for, although day gowns are worn with short sleeves this season, they are of necessity longer than those worn in the evening.

CLEANING WHITE KID.—You can clean white kid gloves at home by this process: Place the glove in a small basin, and pour over just enough benzoline to cover, set a plate over the basin, so as to prevent the spirit evaporating, and let the glove soak for five minutes. Have a thick cloth ready on the table and a piece of clean flannel, take the glove out of the basin, let it drip a little, set it on the cloth, and wipe it with the flannel, changing the surface constantly as it is soiled. The glove must not be rubbed too hard or the surface will be spoiled. When the glove is quite clean, blow into it to inflate it and hang in the shade in a draught.

The Stout Woman.

Eat less and cut out all sweets. Drink nothing with your meals.

FASHIONABLE EYEBROWS.

To-Day Liking Is for Delicately Penciled Brows Rather Than Heavy Ones of Former Days.

Fashions in eyebrows change and the eyebrow of to-day is not the eyebrow of yesterday. The latest brow is delicate and slightly uplifted. There is in it the almost querulous expression which one notes in the portraits of the old-time beauties.

The worst eyebrows in the world from the standpoint of beauty are the heavy furry eyebrows. Yet there was a time when even these were considered pretty.

When queens reigned in Russia the big black eyebrow was the thing, and the beauties of those days used to pencil the brows heavily to make them dark and threatening. In those days it was considered a mark of aristocracy to have a heavy line running across the forehead—a heavy black furry line.

Until very lately women pencilled their brows, and the eyebrow pencil is, of course, a necessity on the stage. In private life it is considered objectionable.

Nowadays a woman's eyebrows should be natural. They must be slightly curved, soft and fine, and the hair must be lustrous and satiny. They must not be too long nor must they be rough.

There is a beauty doctor in London who works upon the eyebrows without the electric needle. If they are too heavy or too long, too bushy over the eyes, or straggling, he pulls out the hairs with tweezers and immediately paints the spot with weak ammonia. It must be done carefully, because ammonia kills the hair.

Here are the latest eyebrow rules:

The eyebrows should be lifted as high as possible without wrinkling the forehead.

The brows should be slightly darker than the hair, but should not be penciled. It is allowable to stain them, but never to use the pencil.

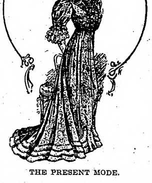
Knitting the brows should be avoided; it is unbecoming, it makes the brows look heavy and ugly, and it makes wrinkles between the eyes and over the nose.

SMART AFTERNOON DRESS

A Charming and Picturesque Costume This, One of the Prettiest That Have Appeared.

This is a very charming dress in Empire style; it has a plain, short bodice, to which the skirt is set in gathers. The foot is trimmed with three shaped flounces put on with curved ends terminating each side the center front.

The bolero is a little full on the bust, the fulness being gathered into the strap that goes all round the edge. It is ornamented with two buttons. From under the fronts of bolero come the fronts of a vest of broche fastened by buttons. The puffed elbow sleeves are finished by two hemstitched cambric frills, and are ornamented with buttons.



THE PRESENT MODE.

Materials required for the dress: Eight yards 46 inches wide, one-half yard brocade for vest, nine small buttons, eight larger size, two yards lining silk, six yards frilling.

INCLINED TO FRECKLE.

Victim Can Only Hope to Keep Them Faded and She Should Take Careful Precautions.

The best the girl with freckles can hope to do is to keep them faded, that they do not show so much; she cannot remove them; if she take the skin off the new skin is soon very much worse than the old, being so tender that it is the more easily affected by the rays of light.

A very present help in keeping freckles faded out is to always wear a yellow veil; there is something in the chemical change in the rays passing through the yellow chiffon that keeps them from affecting the cuticle. And another help is to plaster her face with cold cream and powder beneath the veil when going into the light and heat out of doors in summer.

Then she should not wash with soap, but use the bran bags and almond meal instead. She should avoid the direct rays of the sun and also not go into a strong wind without protecting the skin, and she will find it better to wear a sunbonnet or a "poke" bonnet, with a veil closely tied down when out of doors.

Modish Buttons.

The most modish buttons on custom or tailormade are wooden molds covered with cloth the same as the suit.

INTERESTING LETTER

WRITTEN BY A NOTABLE WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg of Denver, Color Bearer of the Woman's Relief Corps, Sends Thanks to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. Sarah Kellogg

The following letter was written by Mrs. Kellogg, of 1628 Lincoln Ave., Denver, Col., to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For five years I was troubled with a tumor, which kept growing, causing me intense agony and great mental depression. I was unable to attend to my house work, and life became a burden to me. I was confined for days to my bed, lost my appetite, my courage and all hope.

"I could not bear to think of an operation, and in my distress I tried every remedy which I thought would be of any use to me, and reading of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to sick women decided to give it a trial. I felt so discouraged that I had little hope of recovery, and when I began to feel better, after the second week, thought it only meant temporary relief; but to my great surprise I found that I kept gaining, while the tumor lessened in size.

"The Compound continued to build up my general health and the tumor seemed to be absorbed, until, in seven months, the tumor was entirely gone and I a well woman. I am so thankful for my recovery that I ask you to publish my letter in newspapers, so other women may know of the wonderful curative powers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease has been advising sick women free of charge. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

GOTHAM GRIST.

In New York city there is one policeman to each 459 persons.

New York's cemeteries, with their 8,155 acres of land, are sufficient for the burial of the city's dead; at the present death rate, for 150 years.

Since Peter Minuit, in 1626, bought Manhattan island from the Indians for $24 in merchandise, there has been a daily average of 39 persons arriving in the territory now known as New York city.

If the sewers of New York city were placed end to end in a straight line they would reach from here to Pike's Peak, 1,710 miles, and the paved streets of the city would make a road along one side of them all the way.

If the wind that blew over New York city in one week recently should continue its way, at its average velocity, it would make the circuit of the earth and be back there the last week in August, for it moved at the rate of nine miles an hour.

Different Kinds.

"A man in politics should have lots of friends, shouldn't he?"

"It depends," answered Senator Sorghum, "on whether they are friends who want to do something for you or who want you to do something for them."—Washington Star.

Innovation in Oregon.

Some palefaces recently from the east have been putting up fly screen doors to their houses. The next thing we know we will be having flies on the bay.—North Bend Harbor.

The mind is a storehouse, but it needn't necessarily be a junk shop.

TONIC TREATMENT

Weak Stomach and Sick Headache Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, others loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

A weak stomach needs a digestive tonic and that there is no better tonic for this purpose than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the statement of Mr. A. C. Merrill, a mining man, of Oneals, Calif., a veteran of Battalion C, Third U. S. Regular Infantry.

"I had never been well since I left the army," he says, "always having had trouble with my stomach, which was weak. I was run down and debilitated. Could keep nothing on my stomach, and at times had sick headache so bad that I did not care whether I lived or died. My stomach refused to retain even liquid food and I almost despaired of getting well as I had tried so many kinds of medicine without relief. Then I was bitten by a rattlesnake and that laid me up from work entirely for a year, six months of which I spent in bed.

"One day a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I began taking them. They cured me when all other medicine had failed. I have recommended the pills to a great many, for during my recovery every one asked me what was helping me so and I told them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I cannot speak too highly of them."

If you want good health you must have good blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box, six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

CHILD'S AWFUL SKIN HUMOR.

Screamed with Pain—Suffering Nearly Broke Parent's Heart—Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

"I wish to inform you that Cuticura Remedies have put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot, and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep. One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial. I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

TOLD OF THE TITLED.

The sultan of Turkey is a great collector of canaries.

Lord Tweedmouth, first lord of the British admiralty, is an assiduous collector of old china.

President Diaz returned the other day from a hunting trip with three mountain cats and 17 deer. Mexico's president is only 76.

Prince Khilkoff, formerly minister of railroads in Russia, and builder of the Trans-Siberian road, intends to make a tour of inspection of the railroads of this country.

Frederick VIII., king of Denmark, is said to be in the habit of inviting editors of leading political organs to visit the castle to discuss the different political issues of the day.

Prince Kotchoweff, a Russian, has been ordered by the Berlin courts to pay $780 a year for life to a waiter whom he assaulted during the Russo-Japanese war in a Dresden hotel.

King Alfonso of Spain is devoted to the pleasures of the table, and keeps a cook up until four in the morning. Five meals are served in the 24 hours at the Escurial palace.

Sir Edward Clarke, the brilliant member of parliament who is making his presence felt by denouncing the idea of a tax on meat or corn, started as a jeweler's assistant in his father's store.

In appointing his son, Lord Bruce, as his private secretary, the earl of Elgin only followed the example of the late William E. Gladstone, who, when he became prime minister in 1880, appointed Herbert Gladstone, then a young man of 20, to a similar position.

The duke of Norfolk is a man of simple tastes, and yet he is the possessor of the most extravagant costume in England. The uniform which he wears as earl marshal represents an outlay of over $1,500 exclusive of jewels. Seventeen thousand yards of embroidery are worked into the coat in gold lace until but little of the original cloth is to be seen. His grace feels more at home in his old clothes.

Lloyd George, now a member of the British cabinet, was addressing a meeting in Wales, and his chairman said: "I haff to introduce you to the member of Carnarvon boroughs. He has come here to reply to what the bishop of St. Asaph said the other night about Welsh disestablishment. In my opinion, gentlemen, the bishop of St. Asaph is one of the biggest liars in creation; but he hass his match in Lloyd George."

Too Much So.

"Why do you call that ferocious bulldog of your 'Icy?'"

"Because when he once attaches himself to a person he clings to one so."—Baltimore American.

Most of us at times feel the need of a post-graduate course in the school of experience.

KNOWS NOW

Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case for a Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day.

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.

"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.

"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients. "There's a reason."

A remarkable little book, "The Road to Wellville," can be found in pkgs.

POULTRY AND BEES

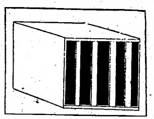
THE NEST AND THE COOP.

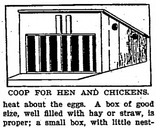
It Is a Mistake to Overcrowd the Former, and to Have the Latter Too Small.

Do not over-crowd the nest with eggs under the broody hen. Nine eggs well covered are far better than will be a greater number badly covered. If there are too many eggs under the hen, she cannot keep them all evenly warm, so a bad hatch is the outcome of her three weeks of constant attention to the nest of eggs. Small hens will cover nine, medium-sized 11 to 13; some are equal to covering 15 to advantage. If any of her nest of eggs are not fully covered by the hen, she either has too many in the nest or the nest is too flat in construction.



A BOX COOP.

The proper nest for the sitting hen should be made in a box not less than 14 to 18 inches square, so as to have plenty of room about the hen. This will preclude the chance of outside atmospheric conditions and changes working against a successful hatch. If the box is too small, the eggs must of necessity lie close to the side and bottom of the box. The small amount of nesting material lends little assistance to the hen in the way of holding the heat about the eggs. A box of good size, well filled with hay or straw, is proper; a small box, with little nesting material, highly improper.



COOP FOR HEN AND CHICKENS.

The barrel nest, so often spoken of as the most satisfactory, gains its reputation largely from its size. When laid on its side and leveled up with stone, brick or earth, and filled up about one-third full of straw, a barrel provides a generous-sized nesting-place for turkeys or hens. If planted one-third underground on end, a hole cut in one side, and the bottom for a roof, this provides an ideal nesting-place for either, and being partly underground and well filled with straw, insures a certain protection from changeable influences. Have the nest of straw above the ground level, and the nest will be dry during the very wet period.

A barrel cut in two makes splendid nest boxes for inside use during the most severe weather. Large, commodious nests of straw can be built in these, so that the hen can nestle down to the top level of the barrel, yet have plenty of nest material under and about her to help her keep the eggs warm by holding the heat about them and warding off outside influences. The same nest is splendid for all kinds of weather; being warm, roomy, comfortable and airy, it is the ideal nest for success. We have seen the nest, hen and 13 eggs all forced into a box scarcely large enough for the hen without the other necessary accompaniments.

When the chicks are hatched, the same rule applies—the coop for the hen and chicks cannot be too large; those used are much too small. There should be plenty of room within the coop for the hen to move about, stand erect, flap her wings and exercise. usually she must stretch her head through the slats to stretch her neck, the coop being so narrow and confined that she can scarcely turn about, which is cruelly detrimental to the hen and her brood. Provide plenty of floor space and space overhead for the hen, and both she and the chicks will do better than will either if housed in confined coops.

A box two feet square, or larger, covered with tar paper, with slats in front, is recommended by the Country Gentleman and will provide a cheap and useful board coop. If the box is double this size, it will be more useful, as it will do for a roosting-place for the half-grown chicks and a colony coop during the entire season, furnishing comfortable quarters and protection from the damp. The more attractive these coops are made, even though of plain construction, the more creditable will they be to the place.

Good Points of Ducks.

Ducks do not have cholera, roup or gapes, and hawks do not bother them. They will lay as many eggs as hens, and they hatch better and more uniformly. All this, says Farm Journal, is in their favor.

Want Early Breakfast.

The hens want their breakfasts as soon as they get off the roost. Their old millstones are grinding all night, and the grist is all ground out before daylight.

THE FIRST TWO MONTHS.

How the Chick Should Be Fed and Handled During This Critical Period.

We use cracked wheat or a chick feed compounded of wheat, corn stock peas, millet and oats, but our main feed is cracked wheat, as we raise it on the farm. We feed beef scraps from the beginning. We do not feed any bread crumbs, cornmeal bread or rolled oats. We feed oats in with the other feeds. We feed grit from the beginning. Our method is to put our chicks in the brooder and scatter coarse sand on the floor, the first day, then use chaff from the barn floor with all the seeds in the chaff, and scatter our feed on the floor, and make the chicks scratch for it. We have a small hopper with beef scraps in it, and they help themselves whenever they want to. We also have skimmed milk before them all the time, also fresh water, and we have the best of success. We lose but a few, and those few are the weak ones, which in time will die anyway. The greatest mistake in feeding little chicks, says the correspondent of the Farmers' Review, is the feeding of soft foods. We have been there, and we know whereof we write. We feed everything on the dry feed system, using no mash of any kind from the time they are hatched until maturity.

LOUSY HENS.

They Are Liable to Become Unproductive—Use of Lard to Combat Evil.

Lice on hens are frequently the cause of the birds becoming unproductive. If hens are neglected and have not access to a dust bath they will be unable to fight the insects successfully. They can protect themselves but little by their beaks. A hen that is overrun with lice, says the Farmers' Review, will permit the wings and feathers to droop in a way that makes a novice think she is sick from some disease. It is well to examine hens having that appearance, and if the lice are found use lard on them. The lard should be applied in the places in which the lice congregate, which are at the base of the wing feathers, at the base of the long tail feathers, on top of the head and under the wings. Apply the grease, but do not apply it all over the bird.

THE FARM RANGE.

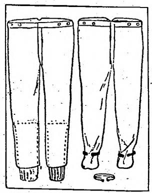
It Simplifies the Keeping of Chickens, and Reduces Cost of Egg Production.

On the farm there is no better way of handling hens than by giving them a free range during as much of the season as possible. If the hen houses are at some distance from the house, the fowls will not become a nuisance if they are given free range. It is said that hens and gardens do not go together, but that, says the Farmers' Review, is only in case the fowls are turned into the gardens when the plants are just coming up or when the fruit is ripening that may be eaten by the fowls. The farmer has an immense advantage in being able to raise fowls without keeping them confined. They thus keep healthy and find a large part of their own food. This greatly reduces the cost of producing eggs on the farm.

TROUSERS BEE PROOF.

How They Can Be Prepared by the Use of Bottoms of Old Pair.

If you don't want to be bothered by bees crawling up the inside of your trousers have the good wife cut the bottoms off the legs of an old pair and sew them in below the knees, letting them hang about three inches below the bottom of the trousers legs, says R. D. Chappell, Tuscola county, Michigan, in Gleanings in Bee Culture. Tuck the false legs inside your socks and let the pants legs hang outside. This plan will keep the bees out, and also keep dust and dirt from soiling the underclothes, when working in a dusty place. Try it; you will be more than pleased with the results.



PROTECTING LEGS FROM BEES.

POULTRY POINTS.

In making a floor for the poultry house use matched lumber if wood is to be used. It will cost more, but will be worth more.

Keep the chicks in small flocks. The greater the number of chicks in a flock the greater the chances for the spread of disease.

Incubators do not increase the danger of fires in the building in which they are placed any more than would a lamp.

The number of poultry farms is increasing. The hen pays a high interest on the capital invested in her.

ODD BITS OF INFORMATION.

The Hawaiians are the world's best swimmers.

A frog cannot breathe with its mouth open.

Japanese children are taught to write with both hands.

An elephant will carry a load of 5,000 pounds with ease.

Quakers are very healthy; their average longevity being 61 years.

The English school of water-color painting is the best in the world.

The turbot lays 12,000,000 eggs a year—11,999,800 more than the best hen.

A certain jail in Mexico consists of an oak tree with chain and staple attachment.

Dried currants, fed regularly to horses, give them phenomenal strength and endurance.

At Quito, the only city directly on the equator, the sun rises and sets always at the same hour—six o'clock.

The Russians have the best teeth—an excellence which they impute tto the regular chewing of sunflower seed.

In Spain a physician gets five cents a visit from a working man and 20 cents a visit from an aristocrat. He is supposed to tend the poor for nothing.

GIRLS WANTED.

Wanted in a family of three people, three girls—competent cook, house maid and chamber maid. Preferably friends or acquaintances who will work harmoniously and for the interest of the house. Must be thoroughly reliable and trustworthy and give good testimonials from former employers. House has every convenience; maids' rooms large, pleasant and opening together. Wages $25 per month with a yearly increase to the right girls and two weeks' vacation to each girl. All of present maids in my employ from three to ten years. Full particulars on application. Address Mrs. Geo. A. Joslyn, Omaha, Neb.

ORACULAR OBSERVATIONS.

Many a good resolution quickly runs down at the heel.

A pretty girl can teach a man most anything but good common sense.

It pays to look a mule in the face when you have anything to say to him.

About half of the things bought on credit would not be bought if cash were demanded.

Have you noticed that the bottom of a cup of joy that runs over is seldom far from the top?

It's a good deal better to think poetry than to write it, and better to write it than to print it.

Music for Neighbors.

"I've got to practice on the piano five hours a day," said the disconsolate small girl.

"What for?"

"'Cause mother and father don't like our new neighbors." — Washington Star.

To Launder China Silk Waists.

China silk waists launder nicely. Remove any spots with benzine. Then wash in warm soap suds, rubbing between the hands; rinse through several waters. Use Ivory Soap and do not rub the soap on the fabric. Wring as dry as possible, wrap in a sheet and when partially dry iron on the wrong side.

ELEANOR R. PARKER.

Bad Effect of Athletics.

"This man," explained the hospital doctor, "is the victim of athletics."

"Ah, overtrained, I suppose."

"No, he never trained a bit. The fellow who hit him had, though."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Physical Impossibility.

The House Cat—You're getting fat and apoplectic. I can see your finish.

The Pug Dog (making an effort to turn his head, but giving up)—That's more than I can do, anyhow.—Chicago Tribune.

FITS, St. Vitus Dance and all Nervous Diseases permanently cured by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for Free $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ld., 931 and 933 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa

Hard to Shut Up.

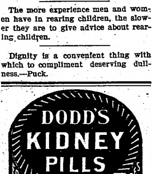
"Putting a parrot in a strong cage," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "doesn't shut the bird up altogether."—Yonkers Statesman.

"As near as I kin make de difference out," said Uncle Eben, "it's dis way. De speculations dat wins is investments, an' dem dat loses is gamblin'."—Washington Star.

A man and wife shouldn't take themselves too seriously. There's such a thing as falling out by sheer force of gravity.—Puck.

The more experience men and women have in rearing children, the slower they are to give advice about rearing children.

Dignity is a convenient thing with which to compliment deserving dullness.—Puck.



TRY IT FREE If you are ill and all out of sorts, run down, irritable, cross, nervous and despondent; if your stomach is out of order and your appetite gone, your liver inactive, congested and sore—your digestion impaired and bowels irregular, if you feel just completely tired out, have headaches, rheumatism, backaches or catarrh, will increase your appetite, aid digestion and by so doing restore vitality and strength to both body and mind.

Zaegel's Swedish Essence

This medicine acts directly on the stomach and through this organ regulates the heart, bowels, liver and kidneys.

In the south it has been found to cure and prevent malaria and all kinds of fevers.

ZAEGEL'S SWEDISH ESSENCE A LIFE PRESERVER
TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

It is not a patent or secret remedy, but a combination of roots and herbs, the names of which are on every package.

Nature's remedy for constipation, rheumatism, backache and catarrh.

If you doubt this, you can test its curative virtue for yourself at absolutely no expense.

Send your name and address, describing your ailment, and we will mail you, under plain wrapper, securely sealed, a trial bottle FREE.

It is free now, so don't fail to write to-day to M. R. Zaegel & Co., 190 Main Street, Sheboygan, Wis.

Dere aint goner be no leavins'

Make your boy's food tasty—Mother—for it has to do some big things. It has to make flesh, blood, bone and muscle and supply boundless Energy. Remember, the boy of today is the man of tomorrow.

Don't injure him physically and mentally with indigestible meats, pastries, rich puddings, etc., that act as a drain on his nervous energy.

But feed him plenty of

EGG-O-SEE 10¢

all there is in wheat—and he'll be your heart's joy—strong, healthy, bright, smart and quick at his studies. You won't have to coax him to eat it either, Mother, for its delicious rich flavor when eaten with cream and sugar is just what he craves most for.

Egg-O-See keeps the blood cool and is the ideal summer food.

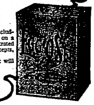
Give him some tomorrow—"there won't be no leavin's."
Prepared under conditions of scrupulous cleanliness.
Every grocer in the country sells EGG-O-SEE—the whole wheat cereal. If your grocer has not received his supply, mail us 10 cents and his name (15 cents west of the Rocky Mountains) and we will send you a package of EGG-O-SEE and a copy of the book, "-back to nature."

FREE "-back to nature" book

Our 32-page book, "-back to nature," outlines a plan of right living, including menus for 7 days and recipes for preparing the necessary dishes, based on a whole wheat diet, with suggestions for bathing, eating and exercise, illustrated from life, exceedingly simple and attractive. By following the precepts, abounding and vigorous health is sure to result.

Published to sell at 25 cents a copy, this handsomely illustrated book will be mailed FREE to anyone who writes, as long as this edition lasts. Address

EGG-O-SEE CEREAL COMPANY
No. 10 First Street Quincy, Illinois



WINCHESTER

CARTRIDGES

For Rifles, Revolvers and Pistols.

Winchester cartridges in all calibers from .22 to .50, shoot where you aim when the trigger is pulled. They are always accurate, reliable and uniform.

Shoot Them and You'll Shoot Well.

Always Buy Winchester Make.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE
A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.
DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.
This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.
For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

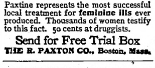
PLUMBING SCHOOL
WE TEACH YOU THE PLUMBING TRADE. Pays best wages, insures steady work, makes you independent. Write today. PLUMBING SCHOOL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.
MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 906 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit. PENSIONS

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES
In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by A. N. KELLOGG NEWSPAPER CO., 73 W. Adams St., Chicago

YOU CANNOT
CURE
all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.
But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with
Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic
which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.
Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.
Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.



WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W. K. LaCrosse, Wis.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE QUEEN OF MOONSHINERS PUZZLES U. S. OFFICIALS

Authorities Feel They Must Have Recourse to Strenuous Action to Restrain Betsy Simms.

YOUNG, FEARLESS, AND IDOL OF OUTLAWS

In Prison for Dealing in Whisky That Had Paid No Revenue, She Severely Cuts Jailer in Attempt to Escape—Three Indictments Now Against Her.

Much as has been written of the ways and doings of the mountaineers of North Carolina, any person at all familiar with the lives of the inhabitants of that romantic region cannot but feel that the half has not been told.

Loyal to a degree that holds life worth nothing if a friend can be served, an enemy punished or a traitor put to death, the mountaineer is typical of a state of existence the world has long outgrown.

The average man of more sedate temperament and cooler blood leaves the avenging of his wrongs to courts of law and the judgment of his fellows, but in the mountains each man is a court of law unto himself, and is not satisfied with the slow methods of justice with which other communities are conversant.

It has been found a matter of monumental difficulty to impress upon these people that there is wrong in the making of "moonshine" whisky. To them the product of the corn they grow is theirs, whether it is converted into the staff of life or the delectable liquid of the worm and still. The efforts of the "Revnooers" to put a stop to the distilling of the juice of the corn necessarily, therefore, are not looked upon with favor, and conflicts with the officers of the law are frequent. Just now the federal officials have a complication to deal with which is more than usually knotty.

"Queen" Now in Jail.

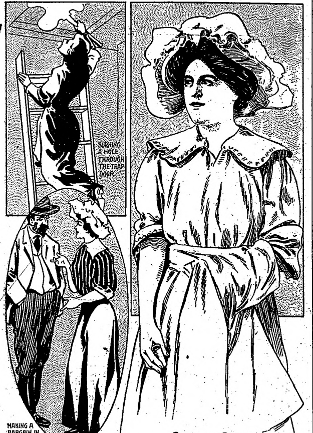
"The best looking gal in the mountains!" Betsy Sims, "Queen of the Moonshiners," is languishing in the big and lonesome jail at Columbus, the high-up little mountain town which is the county seat of Polk, one of the smallest and most isolated of the North Carolina counties. What to do with her is the problem puzzling the authorities.

Betsy, though only 22, is as daring and well versed a woman, both in the ways of making whisky and of selling it, as one could find in that wild country, even in a full day's ride, and she is as pretty as she is adroit and daring, with a killing pair of eyes, bright and well-filled cheeks and hair which defies conventionalities, Betsy has cut no little figure in Polk county since she was 16, for even at that early age she began her work as a seller of contraband whisky. She made herself such a figure, in fact, that even the older moonshiners began to look up to her and in their rude way to idolize the plucky girl, who had been bred all her life to think the selling of whisky was an act of the very best sort, and that the "revnooers" were a race of people who deserved only death and who were sent out as oppressors of the people. Such is the faith which is literally the backbone of Betsy's point of view, and that of her moonshiner companions, who make corn whisky in the shaded and well-hidden hollows in the mountains, through which run streams whose waters are always just cool enough to give the distillery worms the right touch.

Capture of Betsy.

Betsy has year by year become more and more daring, and more beautiful. A few months ago she became extremely bold in her sales of whisky, going to and from the stills, sometimes alone, and sometimes with male companions. Finally the state authorities decided it was time to stop her, so they sent three deputy sheriffs for Betsy. The deputies had the good fortune to find her, on foot, and very near the South Carolina line, which she knows perfectly well. When she saw the three deputies coming, she knew they were not her friends, and made a bold dash for the line. As a sprinter she is a success, and her running was like that of the Grecian girls who competed in the ancient Olympian games. The deputies did not stop to admire, however, but gave chase and dashed across the state line, coming up with and taking hold of the stout and charming Betsy about a hundred yards over in South Carolina.

Betsy was nearly out of breath from the run, but had voice enough left to give a signal, which brought out of the thick bushes near by five tough-looking moonshiners, any one of whom was ready and willing to die for Betsy any time. Betsy had a good-sized revolver slung about her waist, and very poorly concealed by a checked apron, but her moonshine friends made no concealment whatever of the pistols which they had in hand, and while they fingered these, they parleyed with the detaining deputies, letting them understand that they were willing to pay cash for Betsy's appearance in "co't," and that they were "willin' to put up $25 in greenbacks if Betsy could be sot free now and 'pear at C'lumbus next term."



BURNING A HOLE THROUGH THE TRAP DOOR
MAKING A BARGAIN IN MOONSHINE.

BETSY SIMS

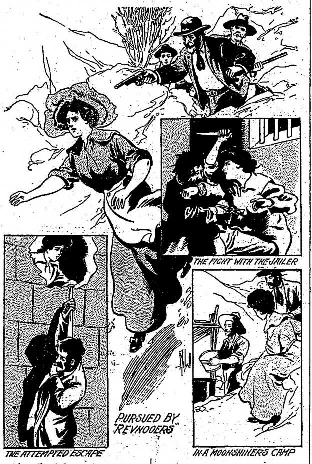
Deputies Made Terms.

The deputies thought it wise to temporize, and decided to take the cash, which the moonshiners gallantly put up, and Betsy retired with them, looking back archly at the officers, her charming eyes sparkling with defiance and the roses in her cheeks deepening until they were like peonies. Her face was framed in a pink sunbonnet of the type which is worn on week days by all the mountain girls.

Betsy did not let her daring and her adventures end with her capture, but the very next day her moonshine friends showed up with $150, they having sold a horse for that sum. There was a "big meetin'" not far away, and it was thought it would be a good time to buy an extra lot of whisky, and so it came about that then and during the remainder of the month of April Betsy sold nine barrels of the stuff, some of it in Polk county, some in Rutherford, and some over the line in South Carolina. But, although she kept in touch with her business all the while, she showed up at the term of Polk county superior court the second week in May, escorted always by a party of her moonshiner friends. She wore a different dress and a different hat on each of three days, this being the most important event in her existence to date.

Got Cases Continued.

There were three indictments against her, but she contrived, on one plea or another, and by means of a tremendous lot of swearing by moonshiner friends, to get the case continued, always putting up a cash bond for appearance. She thus invested $200. Then the attention of the judge was directed more particularly toward her, and he found the extent of her work and the damage she was doing in parts of two states, in her open violations of the law. She must have felt in the very air that something was wrong, for when the judge took his seat on the morning of the fourth day Betsy failed to show up. The judge issued a bench warrant for her, and she was found at the home of a moonshiner not far from the little town, brought back and tried, and the judge decided to make an example of the bold young creature by sending her to jail at Columbus for four months.



Astonished the Moonshiners.

The moonshiners were simply paralyzed by the sentence, for some of them thought that Betsy bore a charmed life, so to speak, and one of them, in an outburst of admiration, had said on the third day that she would "come clar," and that "no jedge an' no jury can tech her, in my min'." But Betsy had not quite reached the limit of her resources. The jail at Columbus is an old-fashioned barn of a structure, three stories high and of brick, and is generally slimly tenanted. It happened that when Betsy first entered its walls a man was there on his way to the penitentiary to serve 12 months for the practice of the gentle art of manslaughter, he having in some kind of mix-up slain a fellow-mountaineer with a knife, and "gittin' off light," as the other side of the case put it. Betsy was put on the second floor of the jail, this prisoner whose name is Chalmers, being on the floor above. A rather rude flight of steps leads from the second to the third floors, through a well-locked trap-door of wood.

How She Broke Jail.

The weather was cool, and there was a fire in Betsy's room. She did not feel equal to the task of getting out of jail unaided, so she sought the companionship of Chalmers. They talked to each other, commonplace while the jailer was anywhere within hearing, but business when he was out of the way, the business being the best means of getting out. Betsy was the more resourceful of the two, and so, taking a "chunk of fire," she went up the stairway and set fire to the trap-door, Chalmers descended. He and Betsy, after passing the compliments of the day, for they were acquainted, decided on the mode of action, and then Chalmers fell to work to make a hole through the side of the jail, while Betsy made a rope out of blankets and bedding, and ararnged such goods and chattels as she had with her in shape for quick removal. Chalmers, with true gallantry, decided that it was best for him to go through the hole first, thus testing the latter, and, incidentally, the rope below. Out he got and flitted away.

Nearly Vanquishes Jailer.

Betsy was going, too, but as she was half-way through the hole she felt the rude hands of the jailer upon her, and was hauled back into the room. This aroused her fighting instinct to the limit, and like a lioness she sprang upon the jailer, who had a bad quarter of an hour, for not only was Betsy a good wrestler, but a star hair-puller and scratcher. Not satisfied with these accomplishments, she whipped out a knife and cut the jailer five times. He was compelled to knock her down and then to tie her. burning a hole therein, through which

The matter was at once reported to the judge, who ordered that she be placed in the strongest cell and closely watched, and at the next term of court she will be indicted for an assault with intent to kill, not to speak of another indictment for attempt to escape. Some of her moonshiner friends have in a quiet way made threats that she will not stay in jail long, but the county authorities say they can hold her.

Betsy's exploit in the jail has given her an added importance and value among her associates.

Poor Marksmen in Mexico.

A recent unfortunate occurrence in army circles in Mexico indicates that marksmanship may be still further developed to advantage. It seems that a common soldier attacked a fellow soldier with a razor. A general mix-up resulted and a lieutenant ran to the scene. Fortunately he was armed with a pistol. He drew it and fired at the malcontent, but, as it happened, missed him altogether and killed an innocent bugler who was looking on. This only made the affair livelier, and at last one strong fellow pinioned the ruffian. Thereupon a sentinel, who had caught on from his post, fired away, and hit in the breast the brave man who had the ugly one down.

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK

Pretty Picture of Congeniality Between Animal Instinct and Human Reason.

Broadway was very interesting to the tenderfoot from the west, but she hadn't expected to find such a demonstrative new friend there as she ran across recently. On one of the busiest corners, where the crossing is as dangerous and as difficult as any mountain pass was in the old days, she was walking into the jaws of death with the fearlessness and confidence of ignorance. She was snatched almost impatiently from the passing dangers by a mounted policeman, who, by the way, wasn't mounted at the time. His horse, a fine, spirited specimen of the equine race, was patiently standing at the corner by the curb, watching the passing throng and his master. Said master hurriedly thrust the dazed tenderfoot to the sidewalk out of harm's way. She bumped into the horse. Both were surprised, and both begged pardon in their own ways. The girl said, rapturously:

"Oh, you beauty!"

The horse whinnied softly, as if she were an old and beloved friend, rubbing his nose against her sleeve. Then the girl started across the street once more. When she was half way over she felt a light touch on her shoulder and at the same time heard several men laughing. In surprise, she looked to see what could be happening. There stood the policeman's beautiful steed, looking pleadingly at her. The next instant she had that horse's head in her arms and her face against his glossy head, tears of pleasure in her eyes. Around this odd pair flowed the stream of traffic, for this was a busy center, but many people stopped to see the strange sight. The next instant the gruff officer had brusquely called to the horse, and when the horse failed to come to his call he quite rudely grasped the rein and took the horse away from the tableau, which immediately dissolved as the girl went her way with moist eyes, a happy smile and a longing in her heart for her beloved home in the far west and the horse she loved so well.

Friendly Critic.

First Street Arab—Say, I wuz t' de t'eater las' night.

Second Street Arab—Wot wuz doin' on de boards?

First S. A.—Dere wuz a play called "As Yer Like It," by a guy nam'd Shakebeer, or sumthin' like dat.

Second S. A.—Wuz it enny good?

First S. A.—Wuz it? Say, de catch-as-catch-can wrestlin' match in one uv de acts wuz de best ever.—Chicago Daily News.

The Last Rake-Off.

Retiring Statesman (preparing to leave his office for the last time)—Let me see, John, have the railroads paid up?

Secretary—Yes, sir.

Retiring Statesman—Has the meat trust settled their bit?

Secretary—Yes, sir.

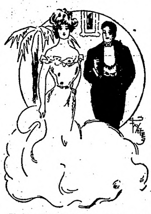
Retiring Statesman—And all those other trusts and corporations, have they squared

Secretary—Yes, sir.

Retiring Statesman—Well, I guess that is all. I haven't forgotten anything, have I?

Secretary—You haven't sold your testomonial to the medicine companies yet, sir.—Puck.

SAME ULTIMATE RESULTS.



Gladys—Yes; Dolly has eaten scarcely anything since her father said she couldn't marry Ferdy Poorchap.

Tom—Indeed, she must begin to feel as if she was really married to Ferdy, then.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Another Version.

The wealth by some men grabbed and kept
Was not attained by any right;
But they, while honest people slept,
Were stealing from them in the night.
—Judge.

Ready for Business.

Customer—A friend of mine has a big diamond which he wants to sell.

Dealer—Big tiamonds cost money. I puy von last week, und I bay dree tousand tollars. Is your friend a bank president, eh?

"No; he's a hotel clerk. What will you give?"

"Haluf a toller."—N. Y. Weekly.

Dense.

"She said I was the best thing going."

"When was that?"

"Last evening at her house."

"At what time?"

"At about 11:30, I guess. Why, do—oh, gee whiz! That was a hint for me to be going and I never tumbled!"
—Houston Post.

Throwing Off Suspicion.

She (as they entered the ball-room again)—Now, for your own sake, look cheerful, so they won't know I have rejected you.

He—I wish I could, but I can't.

She (generously)—Well, I'll look as unhappy as I can, and they'll think I have accepted you.—Tit-Bits.

His Opinion.

"What," asked the chronic bore, who had just dropped in for the purpose of exercising his chin, "in your opinion, does this country need most at the present time?"

"A sure enough fool killer," answered the busy man, as he winked at the office boy.—Chicago Daily News.

Economical.

Tom—Now that your engagement is broken off, may I inquire if you are going to make Miss Jaye send back your letters?

George—Most certainly. I took a lot of trouble with those letters; they are worth using again!—Cassell's Journal.

Unselfish.

The Girl—You said you'd do anything for my sake.

The Man—I would.

The Girl—Will you quit drinking for my sake?

The Man—Yes. I'll drink hereafter for my own sake.—Cleveland Leader.

Martial Devotion.

Elderly Aunt—Your husband carries life insurance, of course?

Young Wife—For himself? No, indeed! He thinks so much of me, though, that he has had my life insured for $10,000. Isn't that thoughtful of him?—Chicago Tribune.

Among the Has-Beens.

"The pitchers seem to have cut out the spit-ball this year," remarked the Chicago girl in the grand stand.

"Yes," rejoined her Boston cousin, "the saliva sphere has been expatriated."—Chicago Daily News.

How They Do It.

Gyer—In Georgia the convicts are made to mend the evil ways of other men.

Myer—How's that?

Gyer—They are put to work repairing the roads.—Chicago Daily News.

A Warning.

The poet awakened with a shuddering scream.

"What is it?" cried his wife; "what is it?"

"A terrible dream," he said. "I spent an hour last evening writing a poem about the glory of the good old times, and I dreamed just now that by some magical influence I had been set back some 80 years. No telephone, no telegraph, no gas, no electric light, no plumbing in the house—no modern convenience whatever!"

"But that needn't have frightened you," said his wife, soothingly.

"That wasn't the worst of it. There were no magazines to which to sell poems about the good old times."—Judge.

His Complaint.

"It has been proven," said the magistrate, "that you struck your wife, and—"

"Say, judge," interrupted the defendant, "I stood her bossin' as long as I could."

"That doesn't excuse you. She is the weaker vessel, and—"

"Weaker vessel, eh? Then why does she carry so much sail?"—Philadelphia Press.

Not What He Meant.

Mr. Courtenay (flatteringly)—I had the blues awfully when I came here to-night, Miss Fisher, but they are all gone now. You are as good as medicine.

Miss Fisher's Little Brother—Yes; father himself says she'll be a drug in the market if she doesn't catch some fellow soon.—Tit-Bits.

His Finish.

"Scadsby showed a good deal of promise when he was a young chap," remarked the man who was revisiting the town of his youth. "How did he come out?"

"Never amounted to anything," said Old Resident, "after he was elected 'the most popular man in the town.'"
—Detroit Free Press.

A Serious Breach.

Intimate Friend—What was the breach of senatorial courtesy of which you accused Senator Graball?

Senator Grafton (fiercely)—Why, the scoundrel approached the interests I represent and offered to work for 25 per cent. less legal expenses than they're paying me!—Puck.

Love's Labor Lost.

Fred—George put in three whole months worrying over which of two girls he would choose for his wife.

Joe—Well, what was the result?

Fred—When he finally got ready to propose he discovered that neither of them would have him.—Chicago Daily News.

When Hope Was Dead.

He had managed it at last.

"Will you marry me, sweetest?" he murmured in faltering accents.

"Well," she said, "to tell you the truth, Reginald, after all this time, I was beginning to wonder myself."

They wondered on.

Chance for Him.

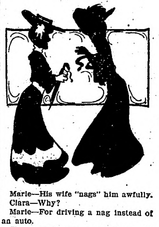
Gotrox (dolefully)—I hear you are going to marry Mr. Goodwin. Is there any truth in the report?

Miss DeSweet—I should say not—er—unless he should suddenly fall heir to a fortune and then ask me.—Chicago Daily News.

This Would Help Some.

This world would be a pleasant place
If cunningly all men might learn
To make their salaries keep pace
With what their wives pretend they earn.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

LEADING TOPIC.



Marie—His wife "nags" him awfully.

Clara—Why?

Marie—For driving a nag instead of an auto.

Clara—Well, she certainly hasn't horse sense.—Chicago Daily News.

Wasted Sweetness.

"Nature never makes anything in vain," said the moralist.

"I suppose not," answered Col. Stillwell of Kentucky, "but it kinds of puzzles me to see a handsome bed of mint growing in a prohibition township."—Washington Star.

Proof.

"He'l be a rich man one of these days."

"He doesn't think so."

"How do you know?"

"Because he is in favor of an income tax."—Houston Post.

Real Economy.

"My wife is very economical."

"In what way?"

"Well, she wears laced instead of buttoned shoes on account of the saving it effects in hairpins."—Cleveland Leader.

Outclassed.

How insignificant is man
When Nature's work we note;
How doth the mighty earthquake dwarf
The fool that rocks the boat.
—N. Y. Sun.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1906. NO. 13.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

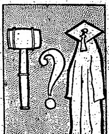
Senator Whyte's Return to the Senate—Former Colleagues—A Tempting Professorship—Friendship of Bryan and Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—There are three octogenarians in the United States senate now. Senator William Pinckney Whyte of Maryland, stands with Senators Pettus and Morgan, of Alabama. He is in his eighty-second year, just about the same age as Mr. Morgan, but is as vigorous as men of half his age and is by far the spryest of the group of senators who have passed the three score years and ten mark. His rapid step gives promise of an ability to run a foot race. His form is as straight as a cedar and he would easily be taken for a man just in the prime of life.

To him it was an interesting experience when he stepped up to the vice president's desk a few days ago and took again the oath of an office from which he had retired just a quarter of a century ago last March. He was a good deal affected as he looked out over the senate chamber and thought of the group of men who sat in those seats when he was one of their colleagues. Only three men who were in the senate when he retired saw him take the oath of office. These were Senators Allison, of Iowa, Teller, of Colorado, and Morgan, of Alabama. Two of these, Senators Allison and Morgan, have been in continuous service since Mr. Whyte retired in 1881 and the other, Senator Teller, was only out of the senate three years during which time he was secretary of the interior under President Arthur.

Mr. Whyte retired from the senate at the beginning of the Forty-sixth congress at which time there were in the senate such men as John A. Logan, Roscoe Conkling, John J. Ingalls, James G. Blaine, George Frisble Hoar, William Wisdom, Davis, of West Virginia, Cockrell, of Missouri, Garland, Vorhees, Zeb Vance, Hill and Brown, of Georgia, Bayard, of Delaware, Lamar, of Mississippi, Vest, of Missouri and Hampton of South Carolina.

ONE OF THE MOST FINISHED SCHOLARS IN PUBLIC LIFE.

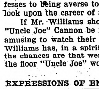


It is barely possible that the house will shortly lose one of its most interesting characters and one of its ablest members. John Sharp Williams, the minority leader on the floor, has under consideration the proffer of a professorship in the University of Virginia. He has been asked to take the chair of political history in that celebrated institution of learning. This offer is very attractive to Mr. Williams as he is a graduate of that university and is one of the most finished scholars in public life. Political history would be well treated at his hands for he is thoroughly posted on the subject and has himself had a hand in the making of considerable political history in the United States.

Mr. Williams is divided in his wishes as the public service has grown very enjoyyable to him, particularly since his party has repeatedly honored him by making him their leader on the floor of the house. If the Democrats should elect a majority in the next house of representatives Mr. Williams would undoubtedly be the leading candidate for the speakership., although he would have many rivals, as the Democratic side would furnish a number of ambitious gentlemen who would be willing to wield the gavel. Mr. Williams confesses to being averse to the strenuous life and this characteristic leads him to look upon the career of a university professor with considerable favor.

If Mr. Williams should remain in the house and be elected speaker and "Uncle Joe" Cannon be reelected to the house, as he is sure to be, it would be amusing to watch their behavior as their positions would be exactly reversed. Williams has, in a spirit of fun, given Mr. Cannon a good deal of trouble and the chances are that were he to be speaker and Cannon be minority leader on the floor "Uncle Joe" would return the favor with interest.

EXPRESSIONS OF ENTHUSIASM FOR BRYAN.

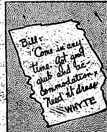


Political circles in this city have all been stirred up recently by the revival of the talk of William Jennings Bryan as a candidate for the presidency in 1908. Mr. Bryan served two terms in congress away back in the early 90's and while in Washington he made a vast number of warm friends and intense admirers. The recrudescence of his boom for the presidency has brought great pleasure and satisfaction to these old friends and they have seen to it that the mention of his name has received the greatest enthusiasm. It has been noted that during the last few weeks in the house whenever a Democratic orator would mention the name of Bryan the applause would be instantaneous and enthusistic. There are a few Hearst enthusiasts among the Democrats in the house and to these the mention of Bryan has not been particularly grateful.

There is a warm sympathy and freindship between Mr. Bryan and President Roosevelt. They have many things in common and have advocated similar great economic principles. At a Gridiron club dinner a little more than a year ago these two distinguished men were guests and it is still an interesting reminiscence to those who attended that banquet to recall the way Roosevelt and Bryan threw bouquets at each other.

One of the interesting features of present political speculation is that if Bryan is nominated by the Democrats in 1908 Mr. Roosevelt must be renominated by the Republicans, if the latter hope to win the election. It is claimed that these two men stand for virtually the same principles and Roosevelt's popularity will be needed to keep up the Republican hopes. It would be a contest largely of personal popularity of the two candidates if, as the general impression is, their principles do not differ very widely.

MARYLAND'S "GRAND OLD MAN" MOST INTERESTING.



Bill:
"Come in any time. Got good grub and accommodations. Need at dress
WHYTE

Senator Whyte is a most interesting character and has earned the title of Maryland's "Grand Old Man." He has a beautiful country estate called the "Roost" on the Gunpowder river in eastern Maryland. He is very fond of outdoor life and while he attributes his activity and excellent health at his advanced age to an abstemious life, very largely, he also gives credit to outdoor living.

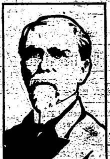
"I get plenty of fresh air," said the senator speaking of his excellent health the other day. "Nearly every afternoon I go for a drive, whether I am in town or in the country. We stay in the country from June to November and I drive all through the beautiful valleys in that section. We live informally at our house in the country as well as in town. There are always seats at the table for those who may drop in. At one meal we may have five, and 16 at the next. I never write a note to any of our friends on gilt edged paper inviting them to dinner; we just like for them to come."

When the senator first came to the senate it was in 1867 during reconstruction days, and a number of the southern states looked to him as their representative. "I was the senator from Virginia, he says, "and I was also the senator from Georgia. At least that is what they used to call me and the people from both states used to write to me about matters they wanted attended to. It was in the reconstruction period and it was alleged that these two states were not entitled to senators. Some of the other southern states had carpet bag representatives, but for a while I looked after Georgia and Virginia as well as Maryland."

The new senator will have about 18 months to serve before the Maryland legislature meets and elects his successor.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

"OLD ALFALFA," WHO DIDN'T WANT TOGA

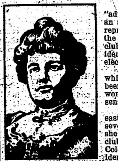


Foster Dwight Coburn is another name for "Old Alfalfa." Foster Dwight Coburn rather astonished people when he declined the opportunity to take the seat in the senate relinquished by Joseph Burton. He gave as reason that he liked the work in which he was engaged very considerably better than mixing up with politics and politicians.

This work is that of state secretary of the board of agriculture, and incidentally proclaiming to the world at large the greatness, present and coming, of the state of Kansas. "Old Alfalfa" believes heart and soul in Kansas, believes heart and soul in agriculture. Farmer and stockraiser himself, he has written voluminously on agricultural subjects and has done a great deal to promote agriculture—about 20 volumes have been published by the state of Kansas. Among the subjects dealt with by Mr. Coburn are "Alfalfa," "Swine Husbandry," "The Beef Steer and His Sister," "Cow Culture," "The Plow, Cow and Steer," "The Modern Sheep," "The Horse Useful," "Corn and the Sorghums," "Pork Production," "Modern Dairying," "Railroads and Agriculture," "Agriculture and Home Making." For about six years he was editor of the Kansas City Live-Stock Indicator; has served several times as regent of the State Agricultural college, been president and vice president of the board of regents. At important fairs and expositions Mr. Coburn has been expert judge of livestock, was chief of the department of livestock at the Louisiana exposition.

Many men struggle for a seat in the United States senate, Mr. Coburn is the rare instance of a man who had the senatorship thrust upon him. But other political honors had come his way and been rejected, and it seemed no difficult thing to let the latter go by. "Old Alfalfa" might have been governor, congressman, secretary of the national department of agriculture; but he preferred residence in Kansas and direct labors with the Kansas farmer.

PRESIDENT GENERAL FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS



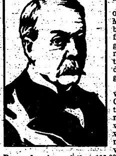
Some persons considered Mrs. Decker a little too "advanced," a little too zealous in advocacy of woman suffrage and various "woman" questions, fitly to represent the large body of women included under the head of the General Federation of Women's clubs; but when the time came for choice of the president for the federation Mrs. Decker was unaimously elected.

Mrs. Decker was reelected, we should have said, which means previous administration must have been a success. She is described as a typical western woman, generous, broad-minded, of much common sense.

But, like many western folk, she was born back east. Holyoke, Mass., was her birthplace, she spent several years of her life on Long Island. Since 1887 she has lived in Denver. Mrs. Decker is a leading club woman of the country, has been president of the Colorado federation and has served both as vice president and president of the general federation. She is noted for her direct speech, her forceful way of presenting a subject, quite as much as for being an ardent suffragist.

Probably Mrs. Decker's reelection means not that suffrage has become more popular among women, but that the president's personality has proved so charming her popularity continues irrespective of positive views and utterances. For the newly elected president is reputed a woman also of much magnetism and charm, qualities that spell popularity.

ALEXANDER J. CASSATT



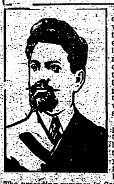
The Pennsylvania railroad system is a big system, Alexander J. Cassatt the biggest man that has been at the head of this system.

After a lifetime devoted to railroad enterprises, on approaching the three-score-year-and-ten period, Mr. Cassatt suddenly finds himself brought up short by the suddenly-come-to-fashion "investigation;" finds the air full of tales of big graft and petty graft in connection with officials and affairs of the road which stands at the head of the railway system of America. Not ours the place to enter into discussion of the graft charges, but to present a glimpse of the big railroad man.

A. J. Cassatt has absolute control over a railway system with 17,000 miles of tracks. President Cassatt is reported as being in closer touch with the details of this great system than any other railroad president with the particular system over which he is head, Frederick Boyd Stevenson, in a vivid presentation of the man and his accomplishments, says the minutia of every department of the vast system is an open book to the president of the Pennsylvania, and that 100,000 trained men do his bidding.

Mr. Cassatt has risen from an obscure position in railroading, but is not an instance of a very poor lad that has climbed to dizzy heights. His father was well-to-do, the son accompanied the father to Europe and for a while studied at Heidelberg. On his return home he took a course in the Polytechnic institute at Troy, and from that school was graduated as a civil engineer. After locating a railroad in Georgia he entered the employ of the Pennsylvania company as a rodman in the engineering department. He climbed steadily. In course of time we find him occupying the post of vice president, a position he unexpectedly resigned and for 17 years, though continuing as a director in the company, devoted himself to various outside interests; travel, the development of his great stock farm, to active outdoor life. But in 1899 he was persuaded to accept the presidency of the Pennsylvania railroad, and immediately set to work with tremendous energy and bold aggressiveness to make the system what it has become. To him belongs much of the credit of the magnificent Union station at Washington, the four-tracking of the main line of the Pennsylvania, the use of the river tunnels as means of entrance and exit at New York, the expenditures of vast sums in improving the roads. It was Cassatt that introduced the system of retiring an employe on a pension at the age of 70 years.

MAYOR EUGENE E. SCHMITZ



The mayor of San Francisco rose to his great emergency with great ability, and to-day far and wide are sung the praises of Mayor Schmitz. When the tremendous disaster befell the city by the Golden Gate, Mayor Schmitz proved himself a born leader; the municipal government in ruins, he immediately saw to the organization of a new government that should meet the needs of the distressed people, appointed a citizens' committee of 50, with ex-Mayor Phelan at its head; issued a proclamation directing the people as to precautions they must follow for the common safety, and warning that drastic measures would be taken with anyone caught in any outrage.

It was four years ago Eugene Schmitz came to public notice as a union labor mayor; the election to the mayor's seat of an active member of the labor unions, marking something new in the history of the great cities of the United States. The young man was without experience in political office, the opposition to the labor unions' candidate had waged war with much energy and bitterness. The preceding summer in San Francisco had been marked by a most disastrous labor war, Eugene Schmitz' election was an emphatic labor victory.

The nomination of Eugene Schmits came as a surprise, hitherto he had been practically unknown save as an enthusiastic member of the musician's union, leader of the orchestra in a popular theater. He was elected over the lawyer-banker candidate of the Democrats and over the regular Republican nominee.

Mayor Schmitz is not quite so German as his name would suggest, is of Irish-German extraction and is a native of California.

IN AND ABOUT THE METROPOLIS

Mr. Bryan's Standing in New York—Senseless Extravagance—The "Seventies" the "Sportiest Proposition" To-Day.

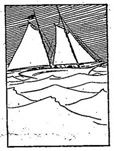
NY
BRYAN'S BOOM

NEW YORK.—When big Tim Sullivan, second lord and first power in Tammany, suddenly announced that Mr. Bryan was in his opinion the safe, sane and conservative Democratic candidate for the presidency, politicians knew that there was a "hen on." Bryan never ran any too well in New York state or city. And Bryan men in the west have never thought very much of the support rendered Mr. Bryan in the city—though it was really the farmers up-state who overwhelmed the Nebraska statesman in New York.

All is different now. So far as New York is concerned, the sudden turning to Mr. Bryan, which will reach a climax of enthusiasm in the reception in honor of his return, means mainly fear of Hearst. Hearst is still an unknown quantity. He had more votes for mayor last fall than any other candidate, if they could only have been counted; but they were not all votes for Hearst. Some were votes against Tammany hall; and Mayor McClellan has since won friends every day by standing out stoutly against the Hall. Some were votes against the general financial ills of the community, "muckraker" votes, and the feeling of resentment that called them forth has if anything grown. Hearst will gain in one direction and lose in another. How will the balance be struck? At any rate, his foes as well as his friends are perfectly ready for a show down. He did not want to run for mayor, but was forced into the fight. He does want to run for governor, has said that he is willing, and there is nothing to prevent.

There is no doubt whatever that Bryan stands stronger in New York than he ever did before. Mr. Hearst has announced that he is for Bryan, of course, but he isn't for Dave Francis and Tom Taggart and all that crowd; quite a few of the original Bryan men in the metropolis take the same attitude but, after all is said, New York is no longer "the enemy's country" to Mr. Bryan.

THE DARING YOUNG MEN OF THE DAY.



You would think that the auto would nearly kill yachting, yet never before were fleets bigger or more beautiful assembled in the first weeks of the season. And this is no riddle at all. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the extent to which New York is becoming a city of senseless extravagance. The possession of $10,000 worth of automobile does not excuse even a young man of society from the possession also of a yacht or at least a motor-boat capable of immense speed. The same young fellow may be one week knocking out a fellow player's eye at polo; the next week running his auto a few hundred miles at 50 miles an hour through the most chickeny and doggy roads he can select, with consequent slaughter, and the next holding the wheel of a "seventy" in a driving yacht race that makes any man aloft a bad risk for insurance. In fact, the seventies are the "sportiest proposition" in America to-day. A sloop 70 feet on the water line but of modern model with immense overhangs fore and aft carries more canvas than an early America's cup racer did on 90 feet of water line. It is one model racing, too; all the seventies are alike in mould and trim and spars. It is only a question of skill, luck and "carrying on" sail. And nobody who comes into the game after half a lifetime at a desk would dream of taking the chances that the half dozen young men brought up in the idleness of great wealth take without a thought. Accidents are frequent. At the other end of the yachting game is the little "Corinthian" sloop or knockabout sailed by her owner unaided; and he is just as welcome on the big cruises. The great steam yachts with their floating hotel comforts are hardly more than unofficial tenders to the racing craft. A few of these cost half a million dollars or so each, and the cost of a season's sport, which the elderly owner frequently has not time to enjoy, is enormous. The custom grows, however, both with yachtsmen and autoists, of using yacht or auto to come in to business every morning from a country house 20 to 40 miles away. It makes the rivers and the public highways alike risky for slow people along toward "opening time" in Wall street.

MORGAN'S MUSEUM AND PUBLIC INTEREST IN ART.

The papers have chronicled the completion of J. P. Morgan's private art museum, of which I gave a preliminary account when it was begun two years ago. It stands on Thirty-sixth street behind Mr. Morgan's own house on Madison avenue, and beyond it is the residence of Mrs. Satterlee, his daughter.

The matter is of public importance because of the statements and counter statements that Mr. Morgan has bought the almost priceless collections of the late Rudolph Kann, in London, for the public museum where all may see them. In any event it is expected that most of Mr. Morgan's art treasures will become public property at his death. He is already the chief benefactor of the Metropolitan, not even excepting the Rogers bequest of some $6,000,000.

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, of Boston, thought to evade the art tariff by opening her house to public admission as a museum; after trying it for a time she shut the house and paid the duty. The lady sniffs significantly when allusion is made in her presence to public interest in art. It exists nevertheless—among our Italian immigrants.

EFFORT TO SAVE ELEPHANTS.

Travelers from Africa are urging the governments of Europe to take steps to preserve the elephants in their respective colonies and spheres of influence. In India the government controls the forests and the laws are strict. When elephants are dangerous, permits are issued for hunting the "vagabonds" or bad elephants, and when they are killed all permits are revoked. In Siam all elephants belong to the crown, and are never killed. Every five years there is a government inspection of them, all white elephants are sent to the prince royal, and the domestic stock is increased by careful selection from the general herd. The elephant there is appreciated as a laborer and a domestic servant; but in Africa thousands are killed every year for their ivory, which is whiter, harder and more esteemed than that of the Asiatic elephant.

Foxy Groom.

A man in Paris who had an ugly wife bribed his groom to run away with her, so that he could get a divorce. The groom did so, but took with him all the woman's jewels and several thousand dollars of the husband's money.

Question for Question.

He (cautiously)—Would you say yes if I asked you to marry me?

She (also cautiously)—Would you ask me to marry you if you thought I would say yes?"—Cassell's Journal.

Hollow Lead Soldiers.

By a secret method a London firm is able to make hollow lead soldiers. This greatly reduces the cost of production, and the trade in these toys, which once belonged almost exclusively to Germany, is now rapidly increasing in England. The weight of the hollow soldier is one-third of the solid.

"Heigho!"

Simple Maiden—I wonder why love is always represented as a child?

Artful Man—Because it never reaches the years of discretion.

LECTURES ON FOOD BEFORE THE HOUSE

CONGRESSMAN MANN PRODUCES EVIDENCE OF IMPURITY IN MANY ARTICLES.

Old Tom Gin Sans Any of the Ingredients of the Genuine, Pepper Berries from Tapioca and Glucose Honey Are Shown.

Washington, June 22.—The space in front of the speaker's desk of the house Thursday resembled a small section of a delicatessen store and a corner grocery, with cereals, jams, jellies, tins of peas, tomatoes, corn, bottles of whisky and wine, imported sausage, brandied cherries and other edibles and drinkables scattered over two tables. To complete the picture there were a standard scales with weights, a graduate and a funnel for the purpose of demonstrating the contention of the majority of the committee in interstate and foreign commerce, that a pure food bill is necessary for the protection of the people.

The house went into committee of the whole, with Mr. Carter (N. Y.) in the chair, for the consideration of the pure food bill, Mr. Mann, beginning the discussion.

Mr. Mann said the delay in taking up the bill was due to the unwritten law of the house that appropriation bills, conference reports and other privileged matters had priority.

Information for People.

Mr. Mann then contrasted the features of the senate and house bills remarking that it was not the aim of the house committee on interstate legislation as to what the people should eat or drink, but to call attention to what they are eating and drinking.

"Medicines now on the market advertised in the strongest term to cure the opium habit," said Mr. Mann, "show on investigation enough opium to develop the opium habit."

Most of the goods are not adulterated, according to Mr. Mann, and since the pure food agitation which began a number of years ago there has been a decided reduction in adulterations. "Yet," said Mr. Mann, "everywhere the honest manufacturer or dealer goes, he is met by sharp and keen competition from adulterations or short weights."

Calling the attention of the house to the action of the proprietary association in still insisting on the passage of the Heyburn bill, he said the association was afraid to come out in the open and fight.

He read a letter from the German-American extract works in which they told how to make all kinds of liquors. They were especially interested, he said, in their Old Tom Gin extracts which give the exact taste of the original article. Then to still further interest the house he said that this firm claims to make any kind of liquor out of ethyl alcohol with no liquor in it.

Substitute for Pepper.

Black pepper, he said, is a fruitful source of adulteration, the filler being sold in five-ton weights, according to a letter which Mr. Mann read. Pepper berries, he said, were made out of tapioca colored with lampblack.

"The coffee that we drink, mocha and java," said Mr. Mann, "is generally adulterated with Brazil coffee and ground coffee with sawdust and even bread crumbs."

Taking his position behind the tables, Mr. Mann began a rapid explanation of every article there.

Mr. Stevens, of Minnesota, assisted Mr. Mann and handed the several articles to him. "Is he a regular pharmacist?" asked Mr. Gaines, of Tennessee, speaking of Mr. Mann. Bowing gracefully, Mr. Mann replied that "the gentleman from Illinois has borne the title of doctor for many years. He had demonstrated his right to lecture before the university of the house." Taking up a bottle of bright colored cherries marked "Marischino cherries," he explained that the cherries had been picked green; that they were then bleached and colored with analine dye and, holding up a bright colored bit of cloth, he said "this cloth was dyed with the same dye."

"What are these cherries for?" asked a member.

"I understand they are used one at a time in a well known drink," replied Mr. Mann amid laughter, some of the members recognizing the cocktail which goes with the cherry.

Honey from Glucose.

Holding up a bottle with a light colored liquid in it, Mr. Mann said it was honey, "yet it never saw a hive, much less a comb. It is fresh from the glucose factory."

Freezin, he said, was a powder sold to preserve meat like cold storage. He admitted that it might keep meats from spoiling, but it was most injurious to health, being composed of sulphite of soda and red coal tar dye.

A fine grade of olive oil used by the Union League club of Philadelphia turned out to be cotton seed oil with an adulterant.

Taking up the subject of canned tomatoes, Mr. Mann held up three cans, each being of different weight and yet all bought for three pounds.

"The department stores of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Washington, and the mail order houses sell the short weight cans," said Mr. Mann, which was received with applause. Mr. Mann said he was not engaged in an onslaught on the canning interests of the country, but he insisted that standard cans ought to be full weight and the consumers were entitled to that consideration.

TO PROSECUTE OIL TRUST

ATTORNEY GENERAL MOODY IS TO CONDUCT CASES.

Suits to Be Brought for Violation of Laws Regulating Interstate Trade and Other Unlawful Acts.

Washington, June 23.—Formal announcement of the purpose of the government to prosecute the Standard Oil company was made Friday by Attorney General Moody. It appears from his statement that the proceedings in the first instance will be had under the terms of the Elkins law, which prohibits rebates in interstate commerce. The attorney general's statement follows:

"After full consideration of all the information now available, including the report of the commissioner of corporations and the evidence taken by the interstate commerce commission, I have reached the conclusion that criminal proceedings against the Standard Oil company should be begun in certain cases where there appears to have been a violation of the laws regulating interstate commerce and prohibiting rebates and other unlawful discriminations. Accordingly such proceedings will be begun at once in the appropriate judicial districts.

"These cases are regarded and will be treated as of importance, as it seems clear that in so far as the Standard Oil company has obtained monopolistic control of interstate trade, that control has been in large degree made possible by discriminations in transportation rates or facilities, the discrimination being in some cases in violation of law and in other cases though injurious to the public welfare, not in violation of law, and therefore subject only to such correction as may be afforded by the railway rate legislation now pending in congress.

"I shall continue the investigation of the affairs of the Standard Oil compad and of such complaints as have been or may be brought to the attention of this department, with the view of ascertaining whether or not there has been any violation of the anti-trust act or of any other federal law."

DIRECT VOTE BILL IS LOST

Measure Providing for Popular Selection of Senators Is Defeated in the House.

Washington, June 21.—Mr. Norris, of Nebraska, led a losing fight Wednesday in the house on the joint resolution amending the constitution of the United States providing for the election and term of office of members of congress. The first section of the resolution provided for the election of senators by the direct vote of the people, the second extending the terms of representatives to four years.

Democrats and Republicans were mixed up when the vote was taken, the resolution being defeated by a vote of 89 to 86, two-thirds not having voted in its favor.

BADGER INDUSTRY REPORT

Substantial Increase in Manufactures of Wisconsin for 1904 Compared with 1900.

Washington, June 21.—A substantial increase in the manufactures of Wisconsin is shown in a preliminary summary issued by the census bureau for the calendar year 1904, as compared with 1900. The number of establishments was 8,553, increase 9 per cent.; capital invested, $416,447,051, increase 46 per cent.; average number of wage earners, 151,391, increase 10 per cent.; wages $71,471.85, increase 28 per cent.; value of products, $411,139,681, increase 26 per cent.

STATE LOSES HALF MILLION

Nebraska Supreme Court Decision Bars Recovery on Alleged Defalcation of Treasurer.

Lincoln, Neb., June 21.—By a decision of the Nebraska supreme court Wednesday the last chance of the state of Nebraska to recover $500,000, the amount of the defalcation of former State Treasurer Joseph S. Bartley, has gone. On the ground that the bill of exceptions in the case was not properly certified to the supreme court, the exceptions were quashed. Bartley was in office from 1893 to 1896.

Wisconsin Manufacturer Dies.

Oshkosh, Wis., June 20.—Robert McMillen, one of the prominent and wealthy manufacturers of Oshkosh, died at his home after a long illness of lung trouble. He was president of the R. McMillen Company, of Oshkosh, a sash and door concern, and also vice president of the Fox River Paper company, of Appleton. His father was the late Robert McMillen, who was a pioneer lumberman of this city.

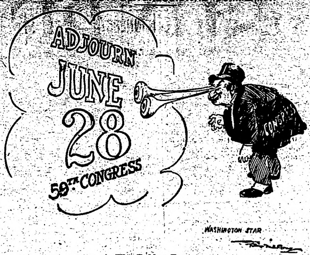
New Zealand Premier Buried.

Wellington, N. Z., June 22.—The funeral of Premier Seddon, who died suddenly June 10 on the steamer Owestry Grange, took place here Thursday and was a striking demonstration of public grief. An enormous number of people followed the hearse on foot to the grave, through streets packed with spectators from all parts of the colony. The day was observed as a general holiday throughout New Zealand.

Ohio Coal Strike Settled.

Columbus, O., June 20.—After two months of idleness an agreement has been reached between the Ohio miners and operators and the 35,000 men, involved have been ordered back to work. Oprations in all districts of the state will be resumed not later than Wednesday.

THE LATEST CONGRESSIONAL COMPLAINT.



The Rubber Eye.

RIGID MEAT BILL IS FAVORED BY SENATE

MAY INSIST ON ENTIRE BEVERIDGE MEASURE IN OPPOSITION TO HOUSE.

Demand of Stockmen for Immediate Passage of Measure Guaranteeing Thorough Inspection Aids Senators in Their Contention.

Washington, June 22.—Unless the house gives in on the meat-inspection bill and agrees to assess the cost of inspection on the packers and to provide that the date of federal inspection shall be stamped on the meat-product packages the session of congress may be indefinitely prolonged. This is the opinion of Senator Beveridge, author of the original meat bill, who has sounded his colleagues in the senate. Although the president has approved the present house substitute, the senate seem disposed to go further and insist that the provisions of the whole Beveridge bill as originally drawn shall be put back in the bill.

Senate Has Upper Hand.

To all appearances the senate has the whip hand in the controversy and if it is insistent it is expected to carry the day. There is a hue and cry from the stockmen for the immediate passage of a rigid bill and members of the house will be in an embarrassing position in the face of an election if they oppose the senate too long. What Speaker Cannon and the house committee on agriculture will do if confronted by the senate amendments has not been divulged.

Lock Type for Canal.

Washington, June 22.—The lock type for the Panama canal won in the senate Thursday by a vote of 36 to 31. Consideration of the bill was taken up soon after the body was called to order and several senators spoke on the measure.

The debate was closed by Senator Kittredge in advocacy of the sea level plan. In reply to the objection to that type of canal, he quoted a number of engineers to the effect that it could be completed within 10 or 12 years, not more than two or three years in excess of the time required for a lock canal. When the time arrived for taking the vote Senator Hopkins offered his substitute, providing for a lock canal. Senator Kittredge moved to lay the substitute on the table, but the motion was lost, 31 to 36. The substitute was then agreed to without division. It is as follows:

"That a lock canal be constructed across the Isthmus of Panama, connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, of the general type proposed by the minority of the board of consulting engineers, created by order of the president, dated June 24, 1905, in pursuance of an act entitled 'An act to provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans,' approved June 28, 1902."

ROADS WIN AGAINST STATE

Judgments for Alleged Incorrect Reporting of Gross Earnings Is Set Aside by Supreme Court.

Madison, Wis., June 22.—The supreme court Thursday set aside the decision of the lower court which entered a judgment of $10,000 against each of four railroads for alleged incorrect reporting of gross earnings as charged by Railroad Commissioner Thomas.

The Wisconsin inheritance tax law was sustained. It imposes a tax upon every transfer of property, real or personal, lying within the jurisdiction of the state made either by will of the interstate laws of the state, or in contemplation of the death of the owner and to take effect after his death.

Bribery Charge Dismissed.

Macon, Mo., June 22.—Circuit Attorney Sager, of St. Louis, has dismissed the charge of bribery against T. E. Albright, former member of the St. Louis house of delegates, who was acquitted early Thursday after the trial on a charge of perjury.

Actor Commits Suicide.

New York, June 20.—Benjamin Howard, an actor, committed suicide in Riverside park. Beside the body was a vial containing poison.

HEAVY FINES FOR REBATING

FREIGHT BROKER AND CLERK GET PRISON TERMS.

Action of Judge McPherson at Kansas City Satisfies Prosecutor Who Conducted the Cases.

Kansas City, Mo., June 23.—A. S. Van Valkenburgh, United States district attorney for the western district of Missouri, who has directed for the government the suits in the seven rebate cases that were concluded here Friday, when Judge Smith McPherson pronounced sentence upon the defendants, said, after court had adjourned:

"I am entirely satisfied with the judgments. The results are of enormous benefit to society. As far as the rulings of a trial court may be effectual, the following propositions have been established:

"That the conspiracy statute applies to the combined efforts of individuals, seeking by device and indirect methods, to evade the interstate commerce law.

"That congress has jurisdiction over our foreign commerce, as conducted within the limits of our own territory; and has enacted laws which provide a remedy against favoritism and unjust discrimination.

"That export as well as other tariffs must be filed with the interstate commerce commission and maintained.

"Neither shippers nor carriers can by contract among themselves render the provisions of the law imoperative."

Especial stress was laid by both court and attorneys for the defendants in the cases of George L. Thomas, the New York freight broker, and his chief clerk, L. B. Taggart. Judge O. M. Spencer, speaking particularly for these two defendants, said that while they were charged under the conspiracy statute, they were tried under the Elkins law.

"It is a question," said he, "whether these men should have been convicted on the charge of conspiracy at all under the evidence. Only shippers can receive, only carriers can give, rebates under the law."

Judge McPherson, in dealing with Thomas and Taggart, was very positive in his statement that they had secured and paid rebates to various merchants, and he scored vigorously both the defendants and these merchants.

Judge McPherson passed sentence on the defendants as follows:

Swift & Co., $15,000; Cudahy Packing company, $15,000; Armour Packing company, $15,000; Nelson Morris & Co., $15,000; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway, $15,000; George L. Thomas, New York, fined $6,000 and four months in the penitentiary; L. B. Taggart, New York, fined $4,000 and sentenced to three months in the penitentiary.

Appeals were filed in each case and a stay of execution was granted until June 29 so they may be perfected. Before sentence was passed in the cases motions for new trials were made and overruled.

POWER TO REFUSE LICENSE

Illinois Supreme Court Holds Discretion Lies with Municipalities and Reverses Case.

Springfield, Ill., June 22.—In an opinion handed down Thursday by the supreme court in the case of Henry Raben against Mayor Carter H. Harrison, it is held that municipal officers have the discretionary powers which they may use in granting or refusing a saloon license unless expressly restricted by the language of the ordinance.

The superior court of Cook county allowed a writ of mandamus directing the granting of a saloon license to Raben, so that he could conduct a dramshop on the property adjoining the Lyman Trumbull school. The appellate court affirmed the awarding of the writ of mandamus. The supreme court reverses both opinions and remands the case to the superior court of Cook county with directions to dismiss the petition for mandamus.

Death of Iowa Pioneer.

Grand Rapids, Ia., June 20.—Charles Weare, formerly consul at Vera Cruz and Aix la Chappelle, died here Tuesday 78 years old. He was a pioneer in this section, and was a prominent Republican politician.

Canadian Church Burned.

Hamilton, Ont., June 22.—The interior of the new Central Presbyterian church was completely destroyed by fire Thursday. Loss, $50,000.

BRYAN ON ISSUES OF NEXT CAMPAIGN

DECLARES PRIVATE MONOPOLY IS INDEFENSIBLE AND INTOLERABLE.

Says Trusts Can No More Be Controlled Than Burglars, Consequently They Should Be Wiped Out of Existence by Law.

Trondhjem, June 22.—William Jennings Bryan, who arrived here Thursday to witness the coronation of King Haakon VII., talked freely in the evening of the political situation in the United States.

In his conversation Mr. Bryan practically outlined his platform for 1908. He said:

"The next election will decide whether America is to swallow the trusts or the trusts swallow America."

"My position is that a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. That was in the Democratic platform in 1900, a similar plank was incorporated in the platform of 1904, and it is the only tenable position.

Cannot Control Trusts.

"There is some talk of controlling the trusts. You might as well talk of controlling burglary. We do not say men shall only steal a little bit, or in some particular way, but they shall not steal at all.

"So of private monopolies. It is not sufficient to control them or to regulate them. They must be absolutely, totally destroyed.

"Corporations should be controlled and regulated, but private monopolies must be exterminated, root and branch.

"Now, you may call that a radical doctrine, yet it is more conservative to apply this remedy now than to wait until predatory wealth has, by its lawlessness, brought odium on legitimate accumulations. What used to be called radical is now called conservative, because the people have been investigating. The doctrine has not changed, but public sentiment has been making progress."

Predicts Party Success.

It was suggested to Mr. Bryan that some of the recent dispatches from the United States described his views as more conservative than the trend of prevailing agitation.

"I am not responsible for the phrases used in regard to me," he replied, "but I am responsible for my position on public questions. That position ought to be well known."

Mr. Bryan was asked what he thought of the prospects for Democratic success in 1908.

"Democrats always are going to win two years in advance," he replied with a smile. When pressed for an opinion he said he did not care to venture any prophecy.

To Visit Australia.

Mr. Bryan declined to state his personal plans and ambitions more than to say he expected to arrive in New York in the latter part of August. He also announced that he is planning to go to Australia for three months after the November election.

While in Trondhjem Mr. Bryan is the guest of Charles H. Graves, United States minister to Sweden, whom he accompanied from Stockholm. On the way here Mr. Bryan met the president of the Norwegian storthing on the train and engaged him in a long conversation. He met a number of foreign nobles here. He expects to have an interview with King Haakon and will then leave for a trip to North cape.

HORRIFIED AT MASSACRES

Senate and House Adopt Joint Resolution Expressing Sympathy for the Jewish People.

Washington, June 22.—The senate Friday adopted the following resolution: "That the people of the United States are horrified by the reports of the massacre of Hebrews in Russia on account of their race and religion and that those bereaved thereby have the hearty sympathy of the people of this country."

The joint resolution was presented in the house and adopted.

It does not now seem likely that the United States government will be able to take any steps which will afford relief to persecuted Jews in Russia. Since the recent massacre the administration has been considering requests that this government do something to relieve the conditions of the unfortunate Jews, but the president has not been able to devise any plan whereby he can render assistance and the same is true of state department officials.

INTERSTATE HEARINGS END

Commission Adjourns Until Fall to Put Report in Shape for Congressional Action.

Washington, June 23.—The last of the hearings for the present by the interstate commerce commission in connection with its investigation into the relations of the railroads with coal and oil traffic was held here Friday and marked the practical completion of the inquiry as regards the eastern bituminous fields. The hearings will be resumed in the fall, the commission in the meantime preparing its report on the facts developed for the consideration of congress.

Call for Bank Statement.

Washington, June 21.—The comptroller of the currency Wednesday issued a call for the condition of national banks at the close of business on Monday, June 18.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

St. Paul—Minnesota Christian Missionary society meets in this city.

St. Paul—Graduates of College of Law hold annual dinner at Commercial club.

St. Paul—Saengerfest association plans elaborate lighting scheme for auditorium.

Stillwater—James T. Teare, convicted of arson, is sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Minneapolis—Brewster man loses his voice suddenly, and in a few days it returns just as suddenly.

Balaton—A farmers' company has secured a site for an elevator and will start work upon it at once.

Mankato—Gen. Gustaf Widell forwarded his resignation as a member of Gov. Johnson's military staff.

Minneapolis—The state game and fish commission may decide to exterminate the herons and cormorants.

South St. Paul—St. Paul jobbers inspect the South St. Paul packing plant and find it a model of cleanliness.

Mankato—Louis Mulligan, convicted of petit larceny, has been sentenced to three months in the county jail.

St. Paul—A man believed to be O. H. Anderson of Stillwater is killed by falling from a cliff on Dayton's Bluff.

Minneapolis—The use of English in religious instruction is urged at the United Norwegian Lutheran conference.

St. Paul—A fire in the Ryan building causes $500,000 loss and thirty-seven firemen are overcome by heat and smoke.

Lake City—Gov. Johnson was at camp reviewing the First regiment of the Minnesota National guard, which is in camp there.

St. Paul—South St. Paul health officer says St. Paul health department employes have been dumping dead horses into the river.

Rochester—The cabbage fly has become a menace to the cabbage crop in this county, and the plants have only a fair start at that.

Winona—Mrs. S. E. Coleman, for eleven years matron of the Normal home and Morey hall, has resigned to retire from work.

Excelsior—The seventeenth annual convention of the Minnesota State Bankers' association opened with 450 delegates in attendance.

Cannon Falls—Mammoth posters are out announcing that Cannon Falls, "the most patriotic city in America," will celebrate the Fourth.

Mrs. Lena Miller, thirty-seven years old, living at 147 Thirteenth avenue northeast, fell dead while clearing away the supper dishes.

Fosston—William Helbrich attempted to commit suicide, by cutting his throat, but it is thought that the doctors will pull him through.

St. Peter—E. C. Ollerman, a veteran commercial traveler, whose home is in this city, was injured, perhaps fatally, in a runaway accident.

Hibbing—By a fall of ore in the Webb mine Louis Killander, aged 40, and Albin Belle, aged 22, both Austrians, were smothered to death.

Minneapolis—Edward Brown of Waterloo, Iowa, fell down the river bank near the Tenth avenue bridge and narrowly escaped death by drowning.

Sparta—As the result of a stout fisherman being suddenly taken with vertigo, four men had narrow escapes from drowning in Cedar Island lake.

St. Paul—The United Norwegian Lutherans suggest shortening the school year to eight months, leaving one month for religious instruction.

St. Cloud—Operation of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern tracks between Minneapolis and St. Cloud as a joint double track will begin July 1.

Battle Lake—At the special school election the proposed $15,000 bond issue was defeated by 80 majority. Only about 200 out of 300 votes were polled.

Owatonna—Members of the local Grand Army post are agitating the proposition of taking the Owatonna Military band with them to the encampment in Minneapolis in August.

Mankato—Frank E. Anderson had a narrow escape from death in a fire which destroyed his residence early yesterday morning. Anderson was asleep in a room on the second floor.

Zumbrota—Captain F. G. Wilcox has resigned his position with Company D, Third regiment M. N. G., stationed in this place. His successor will be elected before the company goes into camp.

Crookston—Albert Runge, aged 40, with a family residing at Madison, Minn., was struck by a freight at Hixon this afternoon and probably fatally injured. He was brought to a hospital here.

Owatonna—At a special meeting of the hospital board last night the contract for building the new addition to the city hospital was awarded to Hammel Brothers & Anderson of this city for $7,545.

Virginia—Edward Lozo, a young man employed as brakeman at the Wacootah mine, near Virginia, was perhaps fatally injured while coupling dump cars. He was caught between the bumpers.

Montgomery—Joseph Sadek, who owns a farm on the banks of Lake Greenleaf, has turned a portion of it into a park, built a large pavilion and placed several good boats on the lake in which there is an abundance of fish.

Winona—The Winona District Epworth league convention, held at Spring Valley, turned down an invitation to meet in Winona in 1907, voting instead to go to Austin.

Milaca—The general merchandise store of Sjoberg & Billings at Bock, five miles east of here, was robbed. The burglars secured $22 cash and some merchandise. There is no clue to the thieves.

Winona—The big summer school at the normal in this city is opening up much better than was expected. About five hundred teachers and others from the southeastern part of this state are enrolled as students.

THE RAILROAD RATE BILL

Synopsis of the Important Provisions of the New Law.

The Term Common Carriers Includes Railroads, Express Companies, Sleeping Car Companies and Pipe Lines—Passes May Be Issued to Railroad Employes—Authority of Commission to Fix Rates.

Washington.—The following is a synopsis of the important sections of the railroad rate bill.

Section one makes the law apply to corporations or persons engaged in the transportation of oil or other commodities, except water, by pipe line, to those engaged in transportation of passengers or property by railroad or partly by railroad and partly by water, between states.

"Common Carriers" Defined.

The term common carrier is described as follows:

The term "common carrier," as used in this act, shall include express companies and sleeping car companies. The term "railroad," as used in this act, shall include all bridges and ferries used or operated in connection with any railroad, and also all the road in use by any corporation operating a railroad, whether owned or operated under a contract, agrement or lease, and shall also include all switches, spurs, tracks, and terminal facilities of every kind used or necessary in the transportation of the persons or property designated herein.

All charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property as aforesaid, or in connection therewith, shall be just and reasonable; and every unjust and unreasonable charge for such service or any part thereof is prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

What Passes May Be Issued.

The section relative to the issuing of railway passes is as follows:

A. No carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall hereafter, directly or indirectly, issue or give any interstaate free ticket, free pass or free transportation for passengers, except to its officers, agents, employes, surgeons, physicians, actual and bona fide attorneys, and members of their immediate families; to ministers of religion, local and traveling secretaries of Young Men's Christian associations, inmates of hospitals and charitable and eleemosynary institutions; to indigent, destitute and homeless persons, and to such persons when transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and the necessary agents employed in such transportation; to inmates of the national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers and of soldiers' and sailors' homes, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, under arrangements with boards of managers, and female nurses that served during the civil war; to ex-union soldiers and sailors and ex-confederate soldiers; and to owners and caretakers of livestock when traveling with such stock or when going to point of shipment or returning from point of delivery.

Exceptions to the Rule.

Provided, that this provision shall not be construed to prohibit the interchange of passes for the officers, agents and employes of carriers, and members of their immediate families, nor to prohibit any carrier from carrying passengers free with the object of providing relief in cases of general epidemic, pestilence or other calamitous visitations, nor prevent such carrier from giving free or reduced transportation to laborers transported to any place for the purpose of supplying any demand for labor at such place.

Cannot Own Coal Mines.

All common carriers are prohibited from transporting from one state to another any article manufactured, mined or produced by the carrier or under its authority, and owned wholly or in part by the carrier; except that pipe lines operated by oil companies may transport their own commodities as well as those offered for transportation by competitors.

Section 2 amends section 6 of the present law so as to make it obligatory on the part of carriers to file with the commission and keep open to the public schedules showing all rates, fares and charges between different points on its own route and points on other routes, when a through rate is made, and no change should be made in these rates without giving 30 days' notice of change. It also provides for the filing of all contracts and agreements between different lines.

Penalties Are Provided.

The penalties provided for violation of these rates are as follows:

That section 1 of the act entitled "An act to further regulate comemrce with foreign nations and among the states," approved February 19, 1903, be amended so as to read as follows:

The willful failure upon the part of any carrier subject to said acts to file and publish the tariffs or rates and charges as required by said acts, or strictly to observe such tariffs until changed according to law, shall be a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof the corporation offending shall be subject to a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $20,000 for each offense; and it shall be unlawful for any person, persons or corporation to offer, grant or give, or to solicit, accept or receive any rebate, concession or discrimination in respect to the transportation of any property in interstate or foreign commerce by any common carrier subject to said act to regulate commerce and the acts amendatory thereto whereby any such property shall by any device whatever be transported at a less rate than that named in the tariffs published and filed by such carrier, as is required by said act to regulate commerce and the acts amendatory thereto, or whereby any other advantage is given or discrimination is practiced.

Every person or corporation who shall offer, grant or give, or solicit, accept, or receive any such rebates, concession, or discrimination shall be deemed guilty or a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $20,000: Provided, that any person, or any officer or director of any corporation subject to the provisions of this act, or the act to regulate commerce and the acts amendatory thereof, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, agent or person acting for or employed by any such corporation, who shall be convicted as aforesaid, shall, in addition to fine herein provided for, be liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of not exceeding two years, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. Every violation of this section shall be prosecuted in any court of the United States having jurisdiction of crimes within the district in which such violation was committed, or through which the transportation may have been conducted; and whenever the offense is begun in one jurisdiction and completed in another it may be dealt with, inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either jurisdiction in the same manner as if the offense had been actually and wholly committed therein.

Authorized to Fix Rates.

Section 15 authorizes the interstate commerce commission to fix rates as follows:

Sec. 4. That section 15 of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 15. That the commission is authorized and empowered, and it shall be its duty, whenever, after full hearing upon a complaint made as provided in section 13 of this act, or upon complaint of any common carrier, it shall be of the opinion that any of the rates, or charges whatsoever, demanded, charged, or collected by any common carrier or carriers, subject to the provisions of this act, for the transportation of persons or property as defined in the first section of this act, or that any regulations or practices whatsoever of such carrier or carriers affecting such rates, are unjust or unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial, or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this act, to determine and prescribe what will be the just and reasonable rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged; and what regulation or practice in respect to such transportation is just, fair and reasonable to be thereafter followed; and to make an order that the carrier shall cease and desist from such violation, to the extent to which the commission find the same to exist, and shall not thereafter publish, demand, or collect any rate or charge for such transportation in excess of the maximum rate or charge so prescribed, and shall conform to the regulation or practice so prescribed. All orders of the commission, except orders for the payment of money, shall take effect within such reasonable time, not less than 3 0days, and shall continue in force for such period of time, not exceeding two years, as shall be prescribed in the order of the commission, unless the same shall be suspended or modified or set aside by the commission or be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Any person, corporation, or company who shall deliver property for interstate transportation to any common carrier, subject to the provisions of this act, or for whom, as consignor or consignee, any such carrier shall transport property from one state, territory, or district of the United States to any other state, territory or district of the United States or foreign country, who shall knowingly and willfully, by employe, agent, officer or otherwise, directly or indirectly, by or through any means or device whatsoever, receive or accept from such common carrier any sum of money, or any other valuable consideration, as a rebate or offset against the regular charges for transportation of such property, as fixed by the schedules of rates provided for in this act, shall be deemed guilty of a fraud, which is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction within the district where such offense was committed, in addition to any other penalties provided by this act, be subjected to a fine equal to three times the sum of money so received or accepted, and three times the value of any other consideration so received or accepted, to be ascertained by the trial court; and in the trial for such offense, all such rebates or other considerations so received or accepted for a period of six years prior to the commencement of the action may be considered, and the said fine shall be three times the total amount of money or three times the total value of such considerations so received or accepted, as the case may be: Provided, that the foregoing penalties shall net apply to rebates or considerations received prior to the passage and approval of this act.

In addition to the above the commission is empowered to make joint rates.

Orders of the Commission.

Any carrier, any officer, representative, or agent of a carrier, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, or agent of either of them, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey any order made under the provisions of section 15 of this act, shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $5,000 for each offense. Every distinct violation shall be a separate offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense.

Provision for Court Review.

The court-review provision of the bill is as follows:

If any carrier fails or neglects to obey any order of the commission, other than for the payment of money, while the same is in effect, any party injured thereby, or the commission in its own name, may apply to the circuit court in the district where such carrier has its principal operating office, or in which the violation or disobedience of such order shall happen, for an enforcement of such order. Such application shall be by petition, which shall state the substance of the order and the respect in which the carrier has failed of obedience, and shall be served upon the carrier in such manner as the court may direct, and the court shall prosecute such inquiries and make such investigations, through such means as it shall deem needful in the ascertainment of the facts at issue or which may arise upon the hearing of such petition. If, upon such hearing as the court may determine to be necessary, it appears that the order was lawfully made and duly served, and that the carrier is in disobedience of the same, the court shall enforce obedience to such order by a writ of injunction, or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such carrier, its officers, agents or representatives, from further disobedience of such order, or to enjoin upon it, or them, obedience to the same; and in the enforcement of such process the court shall have those powers ordinarily exercised by it in compelling obedience to its writs of injunction and mandamus.

From any action upon such petition on appeal shall lie by either party to the supreme court of the United States, and in such court the case shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes, but such appeal shall not vacate or suspend the order appealed from.

The so-called Allison provision provides that all cases for the annulling of a rate as made by the commission should be brought in the district where the carrier against whom such order of requirement may have been made has its principal office.

Other provisions of the bill provide that the commission shall be empowered to require annual reports from all common carriers, and providing that such reports shall be of the fullest character; giving the commission at all times access to the books of common carriers; heavy penalties are enjoined for false entries in accounts. A fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for a term of two years, or both, is decreed for any examiner who shall wrongly divulge information acquired through examinations of accounts. Circuit and district courts are to have jurisdiction to issue writs of mandamus compelling common carriers to obey the orders of the commission. Bills of lading are to be issued by any common carrier accepting goods for transportation, making railroad companies liable for loss or damage done in transit over their or any other line. The commission is empowered to employ special agents or examiners with full powers.

This act takes effect and is in force from and after its passage.

The interstate commerce commission will consist of seven members, who shall draw salaries of $10,000 per annum each.

Not So Foolish.

"I can't understand why men drink whisky," she said. "Does it quench thirst?"

"Of course not," he replied. "If it did they wouldn't be foolish enough to drink it."—Chicago Daily News.

Neutralized.

He—Gracious! Did you notice the terrible smell that automobile made that went by a little whole ago?

She—No, dear; I was peeling onions for dinner then.—Yonkers Statesman.

Unfortunate.

First Merchant—Well, cheer up, old duck! You never know your luck.

Second Ditto—That's a fact, I don't believe I've ever seen mine.

First Merchant — Always out, I s'pose?

Head on a Pivot.

"The trouble is she's too fond of talking behind her back."

"Behind whose back?"

"Her own. She's a regular rubberneck."—Philadelphia Press.

Explanation.

Myer—Your friend Cutter always speaks well of everybody.

Gyer—Mere force of habit.

Myer—How's that?

Gyer—He used to carve epitaphs on tombstones.—Chicago Daily News.

Certainly Took It.

Redd—How did the horse take the hurdle to-day?

Greene—All right. He took it about 20 yards with him.—Yonkers Statesman.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

MILK COMPETITION WILL BE A FEATURE AT STATE FAIR.

Capitol Threatened with Fire—Boats Come Up River to Minneapolis —To Discourage Wolf Farming.

Milk Contest.

Hamline—One of the interesting features of the display of dairy cattle at the coming Minnesota state fair will be the special competition for milking Short Horns under the auspices of the American Short Horn Breeders' association. This is the first time that a milk competition has been carried on at the Minnesota fair and it will attract much attention from farmers, breeders, dairymen and creamery managers.

The association makes the following provisions for the competition: All cows competing in any class in which this association offers all or part of the premiums shall be clean milked out to the satisfaction of the superintendent at 6 p. m. on the evening previous to the show.

On the first morning of the show all cows are to be milked in the ring in the presence of the judge, who shall also see each animal's milk weighed and this shall be done for three consecutive days, morning and evening, at hours to be fixed by the superintendent, and any animal that does not yield up to the following standard, when milked in the ring, shall not be awarded a premium.

Cows, three years old, or over, not less than 22 lbs. of milk if she has calved within three calendar months of the first day of the show; 17 lbs. of milk if she has calved more than three calendar months before the first day of the show.

Cows under three years old, not less than 16 lbs. of milk if she has calved within three calendar months of the first day of the show; 13 lbs. of milk if she has calved more than three calendar months before the first day of the show.

The premiums are as follows in the two classes:

First premium, $100; second, $60; third, $40.

First premium, $100; second, $60; third, $60.

Fire in New Capital.

The new state capital building was threatened with fire. A few minutes after Charles Truax, the night watchman, went to work at 6 o'clock in the evening, he saw smoke coming from the basement of the building. The superintendent and electrician were called from their homes, but the fire could not be located for some time. Finally flames burst from a window on the west side and then an alarm was sent in.

Two Minneapolis fire companies responded and the fire was found in the file room of the Historical society. The flames were running through the racks of newspapers and other documents, and burning them on the outer edges. The flames were extinguished after an hour's work. The damage is unknown, as the records have no value except for their antiquity. How the fire started is a mystery, but it is thought to have been caused by electric wires.

Head of Navigation.

Minneapolis—For the first time in many years, a large steamship passed up the river under the Lake St. bridge to the government dam. It was the United States steamship McKenzie, an old sidewheeler of the earlier type, and was about 125 feet long.

A large crowd, attracted by the novelty, gathered on the bridge and watched it as it made its way slowly but surely up the stream. On board was a large group of visitors. It seemed to have no difficulty in navigating, and followed rather closely to the St. Paul shore.

When it reached the dam, it turned around and proceeded down stream almost immediately.

Wolf Farming.

Winona—With the view to discouraging wolf "farming," if it is being carried on in Winona county, the county board has reduced the bounty paid for cub wolves, and has increased the bounty paid for old wolves. Instead of adding $4 to the $1 allowed by the state for cubs, the county adds only $1, making the total bounty for cubs $2. On the other hand, the board has decided to add $2.50 to the $7.50 allowed by the state for old wolves, making a total of $10. It is thought that with ten paid for old wolves a greater effort will be made to kill these pests, and of course in this way stop the breeding.

Whitney Resigns.

St. Paul—F. I. Whitney, traffic passenger manager of the Great Northern, has tendered his resignation to become effective July 1. As soon as Mr. Whitney severs his connection with the road he will travel and take advantage of a chance to rest. Mr. Whitney then will probably give his attention to the Schurmeier Wagon company of St. Paul, as he is known to have an interest in the company. His successor with the Great Northern has not yet been announced.

News Notes.

St. Paul—Two young men are drowned in St. Paul lakes.

St. Paul—The Belle Plaine team is defeated 10 to 3 by the Lennons.

Minneapolis—The St. Paul-Winnipeg regatta will be held July 13 and 14.

Tower—Heart failure caused the death of W. H. Champaigne yesterday morning as he was walking toward a claim owned by him on the southwestern limits of the village.

Battle Lake—Over 2,000 people attended the services of the Free church. In the forenoon Rev. Johan Mattson, Madelia, Minn., preached the mission sermon, and collections for the home and Madagascar missions aggregated $400.

Winona—The store of Max A. Conrad, containing a stock of fur goods valued at $75,000, was badly damaged by fire this morning. Insurance of $28,000 will cover the loss.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Col. O. H. Ernst, corps of engineers, was placed on the retired list with the rank of brigadier general.

The Kohala ditch, costing $500,000, has been opened in Hawaii and much arid land will be reclaimed.

Peter Copeni, eight years old, saved two-year-old Margerie Haines from drowning at Hoboken, N. Y.

Charles E. Tripler, of liquid air fame, died at Liberty, N. Y. He was born in New York in 1849.

The Childrens' Unbased Jacket Makers' union of New York has struck, 5,000 operatives being affected.

Demetrias Schilizzi, a member of the London stock exchange, committed suicide because of domestic worries.

The Crow reservation is rapidly filling up with "sooners," or prospective settlers, from the middle western states.

Employes on the Panama canal have raised money with which to defray the cost of a Fourth of July celebration at Panama.

A strike of 7,000 shingle weavers has been called in the state of Washington. The trouble had its origin in the mills at Ballard.

The Illinois grand lodge committee of Knights of Pythias visited Bloomington to inspect a site for a home for aged and orphans.

Four men will divide a reward of $1,000 for recovering a diamond ring valued at $20,000, the property of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

A sheriff seized the Pacific & Idaho Northern railway to satisfy the demands of L. C. Van Riper, who claims to be a majority stockholder.

One man was killed and others injured at a fire which destroyed the amusement hall in connection with an insane asylum at Middleton, Conn.

The Pacific mail steamer Korea left San Francisco, Cal., for the orient and carried 500 destitute Chinese whose passage was paid by the Chinese government.

Eight Danish sailors lost their lives by the collision of the schooner Bertha with the Dutch tank steamer American, bound out from the coast of Dover, Eng.

It was announced that Brown university has $312,000 with which to build a John Hay memorial library, and of this amount Andrew Carnegie gave $150,000.

Alexander Johnson, secretary of the national conference of charities and corrections in New York advocated the segregation and education of degenerates by the state.

Eleven fire insurance companies who will not extend time to San Francisco policyholders for establishing proof of loss have been threatened with banishment from the state.

William P. Allin, who was nominated as prohibition candidate for state treasurer of Illinois, is a grandson of the founder of Bloomington, Ill. He is a farmer.

"I have no political aspirations whatever," said Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, when asked concerning the report that he desires to enter the United States senate from Nevada.

The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences will present a portrait of President Roosevelt to the emperor of Germany in acknowledgment of a portrait of the emperor, presented by him to the institute.

MURDERER IVENS IS HANGED

Slayer of Church Choir Singer at Chicago Expiates His Crime on the Gallows.

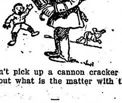
Chicago, June 23.—Richard G. Ivens paid the law's penalty for the murder of Mrs. Bessie Hollister in the county jail Friday. The drop on the scaffold fell at 11:03 o'clock. With the words of the Episcopal service ringing in his ears and with the bearing a stoic, Ivens was sprung to his death.

Ivens was the coolest person in the jail when he stepped onto the death trap. He said no final word from the scaffold, his last message having been written to his mother just before the death march was begun.

THE MARKETS.

		New York, June 23.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@ 7 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 35	@ 4 65
WHEAT—July	90⅛	@ 90⅝
September	89	@ 89⅛
CORN—September	57¾	@ 58⅛
RYE—No. 2 Western	68	@ 68½
BUTTER	15	@ 20
CHEESE	9½	@ 10
EGGS	19½	@ 20
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 50	@ 6 05
Common to Good Steers	4 40	@ 5 50
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 35
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 10
Calves	3 50	@ 6 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 45	@ 6 52½
Heavy Packing	6 30	@ 6 40
Heavy Mixed	6 40	@ 6 55
BUTTER—Creamery	19½	@ 22
Dairy	14	@ 17½
EGGS—Fresh	14	@ 18
LIVE POULTRY	9	@ 18
POTATOES (bu.)	50	@ 68
WHEAT—July	82⅝	@ 83⅛
September	83½	@ 84⅛
Corn, September	52⅛	@ 52½
Oats, September	35⅛	@ 36⅛
Rye, May	58	@ 60
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 86½	@ 87¼
September	83⅛	@ 83¾
Corn, September	51⅛	@ 52
Oats, Standard	39	@ 39¾
Rye, No. 1	65	@ 66
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, July	$ 75¼	@ 75⅜
September	75⅛	@ 75⅜
Corn, July	48⅝	@ 48⅞
Oats, No. 2 White	40	@ 41
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 00	@ 5 85
Texas Steers	3 00	@ 4 50
HOGS—Packers	5 90	@ 6 50
Butchers	6 40	@ 6 55
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 6 00
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25	@ 5 50
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 25
Cows and Heifers	3 00	@ 4 50
HOGS—Heavy	6 30	@ 6 40
SHEEP—Wethers	5 50	@ 6 15

Don'ts for the Fourth

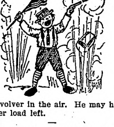


Don't pick up a cannon cracker to find out what is the matter with the fuse.

Don't take your wife and baby buggy riding behind a nervous horse.

Don't try to dissuade the boys from setting them off in bunches. They'll go quicker that way.

Don't assault the fool who shoots his revolver in the air. He may have another load left.



Don't go on an excursion if you have a happy home.

Don't put a cannon cracker under your grandmother's chair. She may have money to leave.

Don't forget the fire department's telephone number.

Don't forget, if you have no children, that the people who have them are a good deal more anxious than you are to have it all over and done with.

PLEASED JOHN ADAMS.

Early Celebration of the Fourth in Philadelphia Described in Statesman's Letter.

Noise and fireworks, parades and display and even liquor set their mark upon the anniversary of the nation's birth while the nation was still very young and the tory was yet abroad in the land. A picturesque description of the first annual celebration of the nation's birthday, 1777, when the United States was a year old, is that by John Adams in a letter to his daughter, written from Philadelphia. "Yesterday being the anniversary of American independence," he says, "we celebrated here with a festivity and ceremony befitting the occasion. I went on board the Delaware with the president and several of the marine committee, soon after which we were saluted with a discharge of 13 guns, which was followed by 13 others from each of the armed vessels on the river. The wharves and shores were all lined with a vast concourse of people all shouting and huzzaing."

After the presidential party had come ashore there followed, according to Mr. Adams' letter, a "good dinner and good cheer." And there was "fine music from the band of Hessians taken at Trenton and continual volleys between every toast from a company of soldiers drawn up in Second street." Then came a parade of the companies and regiments. Of the evening celebration he writes: "I was out walking about the streets for a little fresh air and exercise and was surprised to find that the whole city had lighted up their candles at the windows. I think it was the most splendid illumination I ever saw." And again: "I had forgot the ringing of the bells all day and evening and the bonfires in the streets and the fireworks let off."

However, the national independence was first celebrated July 8, 1776, four days after the signing of the Declaration, according to Marshall, "on a warm sunshine morning," in the yard of the statehouse (at Philadelphia) "where, in the presence of a great concourse of people, the Declaration of Independence was read by John Nixon. The company declared their approbation by their repeated huzzas. The king's arms were taken down in the courtroom, after which we went to the commons, where the same was proclaimed at each of the five battalions. Fine starlight, pleasant evening. There were bonfires, ringing bells and other demonstrations of joy."

One day later, July 9, the declaration was celebrated at New York in a manner directed by Washington. After this each recurring July 4 was observed by the army. In 1777 it was celebrated by a "feu de joie" (volley) and every soldier was given an extra gill of rum. In 1779 the day brought joy to wrongdoers in the army. All prisoners under sentence of death were granted pardons by Washington and released from confinement.

Must Be.

"I guess my office boy's grandmother is really dead."

"What makes you think so?"

"He asked to get off yesterday to go to the ball game."—Houston Post.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1,00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1,50.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

We hope prospective candidates for primary election honors will not get the impression that they have bought and own a newspaper, because they subscribed for it and publish their political announcement in it.

We believe that a nomination for office in this county, on the republican ticket means election this year as we have confidence that H E. Ives as chairman of the Republican county committee will exert himself to carry the ticket through to victory with out the loss of a man, and when Harry exerts himself there is something going to drop.

Congressman Steenerson has secured the favorable recomendation of the committee on his drainage bill, which means that the government is going to aid the settiers living on the reservation lands to drain them. While the bill may not pass at this session owing to th shortness of time it will be sure of passage next winter, and yet you occasionly find man up in this district who says Steenerson is not the proper man to represent them in congress, but such people had ought to be excused for their ignorance.

If the people of this legislative district desire to be represented by a man of the people, what is the matter with D.P. O'Niell, of Thief River Falls? Mr. O'Neill has had legislative experience, having served two terms in the house a number of years ago, and the best recommendation that can be given to him is to say that while he was a member of the legislature he stood for what was honest, and voted with such men as J. F. Jacobson. That is the kind of man this legislative district should send to the legislature.—Thief River Falls News.

A BAD BRAND.

The republicans of Hubbard county did not appear to be very much interested in the Stephens candidacy; Cole and Jacobson to all appearances being the men most favored. But it is well to keep in mind the part that Stephens is playing in state politics, and his interest in the welfare of the republican party in the state. It is the brand of politics that stephens is said to stand for that has disrupted the republican party in the state, and the Enterprise believes the feeling is such among the voters that Stephens will get but slight consideration. The attempt to round up the vote of the northern counties and hold it solid for the interests of some individual, rather than to allow a free and open expression in the republican state convention, may have originated with the Stevens candidacy. It is not the kind of politics that is wanted this year and no matter where it originated it should be turned down by every county that is approached. —Park Rapids Enterprise.

Uncertain.

"Nobody seems to want our territory," said ex-Delegate B. S. Rodey of New Mexico, "and there is no telling where we will have landed by the time the statehood fight is settled. Our status is as uncertain as that of an old negro slave I once heard of. Somebody asked him whom he belonged to. 'Ah don't know, suh,' he replied. 'Ole marse, he upstairs playin' pokah.'"

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Ru'e dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? yoy will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th .1906

Department of the Interior., Land Office at Crookston, Minn., June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 8, 1906 viz;

Julius Halvorson.

H,E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ljot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnson, Ole Vattendahl of Highlanding Minn, Oscar Swanson of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 581 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29, Tp. 153 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Poloni of Highlanding Minn.

R, J MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th .1906.

Department of the Interior.- Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H,E. No. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 6,4, 5, 6, Sec. 20 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz

Jerrie O'Brien.

H.E. No. 1126 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final prof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 8th 1906, viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1,2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on August 6th 1906, viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H.E. No. 898, Red Lake Series, for the S.W ¼ Sec. 4, Twp. 153 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brunkeberg Minn. John Oftedahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostvolden, of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montegue Register.

She Saw a Scowl Then.

Minnie—I never noticed before that this mirror had a wrinkle in it. Mamie—I thought you were able to see wrinkles in any mirror you looked into.

Salt is like good humor—almost everything is better for a pinch of it.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn.

R J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 22, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 19th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H·E. No. 865, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O Larson. Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, Minn. Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H,E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series, for the S,W. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Anton Knutson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th, 1906 viz:

Peter A. Kolstad.

H.E. No. 694 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim; and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H.E. No. 691 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 28th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H. E. No. 547, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st 1906.

Notice is hereby given, that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning U. S Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906, viz:

Ole O. Stromme.

H.E. No. 591, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 34 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Albert Arntz, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn., Morgan Vaugen, Peter Brachmann, of Germantown Minn.

R. MONTAGUE, Register.

A Conundrum For Cannon

Speaker Cannon has received hundreds of telegrams from Oklahoma expressing the opinion of hundreds of people about him. This one, however, which he declares is the most remarkable inquiry ever propounded to an American statesman, he proposes to frame, "Shall Oklahoma, the gem of hope, be sacrificed on the Shylock of Despair?" —New York Times.

J. K. WOOD,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906 viz;

Harry G. Dobner.

H. E. No. 519 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. George Tupper, of Brunkeberg Minn. Morgan Vaughan, of Germantown Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 3rd, 1906, viz:

Peter T. Quam.

H.E. No. 983 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 19 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Iver A. Tasa, Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Elton of Lillo Minn.

of Lillo Minn.,

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 26 1906 viz:

Lars K. Viudlos.

H,E. No. 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3. 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 13 Sec. 22 Twp. 153 N R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmund K. Viudlos, Ole Breiland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May, 21st. 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before L. G. Browning, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906. viz:

Albert Arntz.

H.E. No. 528, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Ole P. Stromme, Anton Baker, of Brunkeberg, Minn., and Morgan Vaughan, and Peter Brachmann, of Germantown, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. May 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 7th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 6th 1906. viz:

George Tupper.

H.E. No. 708 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 154, N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Henry Cook, of Germantown Minn. Charles Newberry, Harry Dobner, Cordilos Douglas of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnsota on July 3rd, 1906 viz;

Thomas A. Tasa.

H.E. No. 985 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 29 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

Iver A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson of Rudell Minn. Torger Elton, of Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn. on July 20th, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E. No. 933, Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 27 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO).

We pay the highest marke price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made b boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

..... 00 ....

Call and see me for bargains, at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster. Sec. 20 T. 153 R. 40.

* * * * *

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Come to Sunbeam July 4th.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

The Rhoda blacksmith made a business trip to Thief River Falls Wednesday.

Don't get side tracked and visit at side shows on July 4th but be sure to find the right place at Sunbeam.

Even J. Sund, left for Norway lake Minn., on last Wednesday and expects to be absent during the threshing season.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

H.S. Quam, took Wednesdays boat for Thief River Falls, on his way to Dakota where he will look up threshing for his threshing outfit, which he has out there.

They have a little bit of a side show down at Thief River Falls July 4th in the form of a circus but the best part of the crowd will celebrate at Sunbeam

Miss Engeborg and Bella Vattendahl, returned home from Crookston on Thursdays Flyer, and will during the 4th visit their father, Ole Vattendahl.

Among the passengens down on Wednesdays boat, were P.A. Rustad, of Highlanding, John Radneski the Radny merchant, and Herman Lillo of Lillo Minn.

Farmers, who are going to do fencing this spring should call on E. B. Laneger, at Plummer Pioneer Hardware Store, for all kinds of fencing. Will make prices right.

Thomas Jacobson post master at Highlanding and Halvor K. Hemmy the popular Eleven town auctineer were passengers on the Flyer to Thief River Falls Wednesday.

Miss Mary Galipeau of Thief River Falls arrived on yesterdays Flyer, for a weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. Eve and will take in the celebration at Sunbeam July 4th.

The farmers of the 11 towns are taking advantage of the cheap rate for hawling cream down to Thief River Falls by boat and are marketing large quantities of it now days.

Take a walk through the beautiful grove at Sunbeam July 4th, with your best girl.

Some will be fishing; Some will be boat riding in row boats; Some will be excursion boat riding; Some will be dancing in the bowery at Sunbeam July 4th.

What Mr. Hoar Was Doing.

When Sherman Hoar was running for congress he more than once had to answer questions propounded at public meetings by an aged veteran of the civil war who dated everything from that historic struggle. Mr. Hoar replied with consideration several times, but one evening the old gentleman asked in a more than usually querulous tone: "What I want to know is: What were you doing during the war? Did you fight for your country or didn't you? That's what I want you to tell me and the rest of the folks here. What were you doing along in '61 and '62 and up to Appomattox?" "Well," said Mr. Hoar, with a kindly smile and a boyish twinkle in his eyes, "I guess I was suffering about as much as you were, for along in '61 and '62 I was teething."

Too Pious For Natt Head.

When General Natt Head was governor of New Hampshire he once applied to a well known clergyman to write for him a Thanksgiving proclamation. The clergyman wrote out what he considered an appropriate proclamation and sent it to Governor Head for approval. The next day the governor appeared, and the following conversation ensued:

"Well, governor, what do you think of the proclamation?"

"Twon't do."

"Why, what is the matter with it?"

"Too pious! Anybody'd know Natt Head never wrote that."—Boston Herald.

DR. C.C. HOUGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg, on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

JULY 4th,

The following program of sports will be seen at Sunbeam July 4th, log-rolling contest on the Red Lake River, tug of war, Deer Park V.S Highlanding, potatoe races, egg races, three legged races, foot races, boys whirling race, climbing greased pole, wheelbarrow race, foot race for boys and men.

The excursion boat Dan Patch will leave Sunbeam for Priest Point at 6 a.m. and will leave Priest point for Sunbeam at 8 a.m arrive at Sunbeam at 9. 30 a.m.

Then they will make regular excursions trips from Sunbeam to Highlanding during the day.

The following will be the program of the morning at the bowery at Sunbeam July 4th adress of welcome, reading of the Decleration of Independance by Rev. E.A. Mostue, singing by the school children of patroitic songs, Oration by Thomas Germo of Red Lake Falls, after the morning exercises one hour will be had for a basket picnic dinner after which the afternoon program of sports will commence.

There has been some inquiry made about what a log rolling contest is. It is two river drivers getting on one log and rolling it with their corked shoes, until one or both of them miss their footing and get ducked in the river, the one that stays on the longest, wins the prize, which is a box of good cigars at Sunbeam July 4th.

It is the intention of the management of the afternoons sport here to have the boys say they had a fine time at Sunbeam July 4th.

The bowery dance, will take place at Sunbeam as advertised, rain or shine July 4th.

There will be no danger in riding on the excursion boat Dan Patch, July 4th as it will be run by Captain Haug, who has established a repulation of being one of the most careful boatmen on the river

Liquid Metal Polish.

Take eight ounces of Spanish whiting, which must be perfectly free from grit, and put in one quart of gasoline. Shake up the whiting and gasoline thoroughly. You will notice the whiting settles immediately, leaving the liquid as clear as water. To remedy this and, further, to make it a better polishing agent, add to each quart of the mixture thirty-two drops of oleic acid—no more, no less. Shake again and the whiting will not settle. Apply to gold, silver, nickel, brass, glass or any kind of metallic surface with a piece of cotton flannel, rubbing well. Polish with a piece of same cloth.—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

Waterproofing Dress Goods.

One of the most important processes used for waterproofing dress materials is on the lines of the old alumina process. In this case the factor used is rosin dissolved in a large bulk of petroleum spirit. The fabrics to be proofed are passed through a bath of this solution and dried to drive off the solvent. Following this, the goods are treated by pressing with hot polished metal rollers. This last process melts the small quantity of rosin which is deposited on the cloth and leaves each single fiber with an exceedingly thin film of rosin on it.

Beyond Reason.

There be two individuals who cannot be reasoned with—a girl in love and a man who is determined to run for an office—New Orleans Picayune.

Love is never afraid of overwork.—Chicago Tribune.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

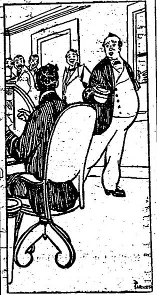
U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

CONDENSED STORIES.

When Germany Beat Ireland In a Contest of Wits.

Richard J. Barry, better known as Dick, of Irish parentage, is, or has been, the Democratic boss of the Fifth ward, Manchester, N. H., and for a long time represented the ward as alderman. Christian L. Wolff was during Dick's term of office alderman from the Eighth ward in the same city, in which many Germans reside, he being of that nationality. Dick occasionally got one on Wolff, but one morning there was a different story.



DICK STRAIGHTENED UP IN HIS CHAIR.

Dick was plumbing inspector, and Wolff was a master plumber. Dick came into the office one Monday morning a few minutes late, as usual, with a broad smile on his face, and announced that Wolff would be in shortly and that he would have some fun with him, because the Mannaerchor club, of which Wolff was a member, had, contrary to its usual custom, indulged in a bloody row the day before at its clubhouse at Lake Massabesic.

Wolff did show up, and as he came in Dick straightened up in his chair and said: "Ah, ha! Us Germans were good to ourselves yesterday!"

Without a quiver came back this answer: "Yas, we played Hirish."

For once Dick had no answer.

Willing to Be Sacrificed.

At the recent annual meeting of the voters of Cape Elizabeth two names were presented for moderator, Harry S. Jordan and Clement E. Staples, Republican and Citizen respectively, says the Boston Herald. The orator who nominated Mr. Staples made a mighty effort. "Who is Clement E. Staples?" he cried, as he waved his arms like pump handles and strode back and forth on the platform. A deep and impressive silence followed. Again waving his arms, he called in a voice of thunder, "Who is Clement E. Staples?" The silence was more pronounced and the effect greater. The audience was visibly impressed. Before attempting to dwell upon the good qualities of his candidate the speaker again proclaimed, "I say, who is Clement E. Staples?"

A small man in the rear of the hall stood up on a chair and broke the silence by saying: "Waal, I'll bite. Who is he?"

Uncertain.

"Nobody seems to want our territory," said ex-Delegate B. S. Rodey of New Mexico, "and there is no telling where we will have landed by the time the statehood fight is settled. Our status is as uncertain as that of an old negro slave I once heard of. Somebody asked him whom he belonged to. 'Ah don't know, suh,' he replied. 'Ole marse, he upstairs playin' pokah.'"

Force of Habit.

A London cabman was recently having his firstborn baby christened.

Clergyman—What name shall I give this child?—Cabby (through sheer force of habit)—Oh, I'll leave that to you, sir.—London Tit-Bits.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 8, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series. for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 20 Twp. 154, N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster. Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn,

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication June 1st 1906.
Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1906 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove hiscontinuousresidence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Oresen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hunstad, of Kuehnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before he Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July 20th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. no. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl. Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn., William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bennie P. Rustad.

H.E. No. 901, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole [illegible] all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906
Department of the Interior, Land Office. Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz:

Alfred Bakke.

H.E. No. 890 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oveson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

McCALL PATTERNS 10 15 NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN
Trade Mark

There are more McCall Patterns sold in the United States than of any other make of patterns. This is on account of their style, accuracy and simplicity.

McCall's Magazine (The Queen of Fashion) has more subscribers than any other Ladies' Magazine. One year's subscription (12 numbers) costs 50 cents. Latest number, 5 cents. Every subscriber gets a McCall Pattern Free. Subscribe today.

Lady Agents Wanted. Handsome premiums or liberal cash commission. Pattern Catalogue (of 600 designs) and Premium Catalogue (showing 400 premiums) sent free. Address THE McCALL CO., New York

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Parsee Burial Customs.

A Bombay correspondent, writing of the burial customs of the Parsees, says: "The approach of that transition we call death is a signal for the relatives to leave the presence of the dying one, the priest alone remaining to whisper Zend-Avesta precepts into his ear. He in turn passes out of the room and admits a dog, who is trained to gaze steadily into the face of the dying one. A dog is accounted the only living creature that can terrorize the evil spirits, so the 'sas-did,' or 'dog stare,' is the last sight the Parsee has on earth. No human shadow must intervene, otherwise the guardian virtue of the dog's gaze is annulled."

SUNBEAM JULY 4,

Oration by,

Thomas Germo,

COUNTY ATTORNEY, Reading of Decleration of Independence.

Singing of Patriotatic Songs, will be heard in the forenoon and big program of sports in the afternoon. Basket picnic dinner under the beautiful shade trees at Sunbeam, Grad Bowery dance, afternoon and evening. GRAND DISPLAY OF FIRE WORKS.

Excursion boats will run on the river all day.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
Northland
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE.

Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Dawn of Christmas.

Christmas day begins in the middle of the Pacific ocean on the one hundred and eightieth parallel of latitude, and there is where Santa Claus starts and ends his great and only journey of the year.

Why Pay Cash

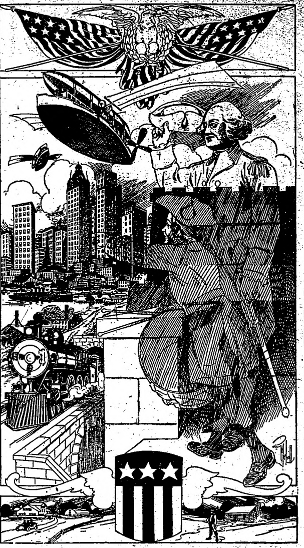
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $10.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES,
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $5.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.

Write for information and free catalogue.

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
61-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

OUR GLORIOUS REPUBLIC.



Lord of the lowly and the great,
Our prayers and praise ascend to Thee—
Grant us to guard our glorious State
In virtue and integrity.

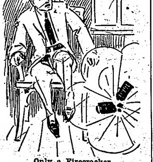
An Unpremeditated Celebration

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Fourth of July in a boarding house is not calculated to make an unattached male citizen, although otherwise patriotic and loyal, fully appreciate the efforts of those who fought, bled and went barefoot that joy might find vent once a year in the firecracker and all of its little cousins.

If in addition to that, one sweet, idealic creature, the repository of all virtues and the composite picture of the world's famous beauties, in short, the only girl in the world, is out of town, is there any reason why a man, the one lone inhabitant of the boarding house, overlooked in the grand rush that carried the population to rural joys, should stay awake?

Hugo Wilmont thought not. He tilted back the rustic chair on the narrow porch and closed his eyes to dream for a few sweet moments of that one girl before he should drift into oblivion.



Only a Firecracker.

It is not at all uncommon for staid and sober old bachelors who appear to have drifted so far past the age of romance that they cannot see back to that land of glories, to be nursing a secret and hopeless love and getting lots of comfort out of it.

Wilmont closed his eyes; the dream fairy, that amiable sprite who tells us so many pleasant things that are not so, was leading him gently back to the old homestead and showing him about the place, when from the calm summer sky there burst forth a thunder clap louder and more terrifying than the combined report if all of the artillery in the world were being fired off at once.

Just a moment later he realized that it was only a firecracker, singing its part in the nation's jubilee under his chair.

That might have been considered a good joke in the days when he was young, but it didn't appeal to him just then as such. "Confound those boys!" he muttered, glaring at a group of celebrators a few doors away, who were, if appearances counted for anything, ignorant of the fact that he was this side of the Atlantic ocean.

He closed his eyes to think whether he would remonstrate with them or treat the matter with silent scorn, when another reminder of the fact that we licked the British once upon a time sang forth a noisy taunt in the air at his side.

With a bound he was on the lads and, having seized two by the collars, began in expletives far from polite to threaten them with many kinds of dire punishment which the law in its infinite wisdom or the kindness of its heart does not allow.

Meanwhile the boys were not only protesting their innocence, but were threatening him with that awful avenger of all wrongs to whom the sufferer turns with all confidence when all other means fail, the big brother.

It was becoming an embarrassing situation, in which Wilmont was looking for a place to back out, when the excited voice of a young woman broke on his ears above the general din of the day.

"Please don't hurt them," she exclaimed. "They didn't do it. I threw those firecrackers at you myself out of the window, but I didn't suppose you would take on so about it on the Fourth of July."

Wilmont turned, and there pleading before him was the divine one.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered; "of course I didn't mind it."

"Oh, I thought from the way you acted, perhaps you did," she replied, with a twinkle in her eye.

"I will own up I ought to be arrested for interfering with the constitutional rights of free born American citizens, but to tell the truth, I was getting revenge on the world for leaving me so lonely while it went off to have a good time."

"You might apologize to the world through the boys," she suggested.

"I will," he replied; but on turning he discovered they had not waited for the little pleasantries of life.

"I know I shouldn't have done it," she said, as they walked back, but there was no suggestion of repentance in her voice.

"Yes, you should have," he insisted; "you should have blown me up."

"I am too big to shoot off firecrackers anyway, but I was all alone, and a bunch on the table tempted me."

"No, you are not too big for that, or anything else you want to do. I ought to be disfranchised for not having shot off a few bunches myself."

"It is not too late to make amends to the outraged Continentals."

"No, and I shall do so at once. Won't you please let me help shoot off what is left of your bunch, and then we can get some more?"

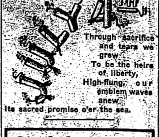
"But," she protested, hesitatingly, "we are not acquainted."

"All American citizens are acquainted on the Fourth of July," he exclaimed, as though the oracle had spoken. "My name is Wilmont, and yours is—"

"Is Miss Marble."

"Truly a charming name, and now that we know each other, Miss Marble, is there any reason why we should not celebrate?"

Thus kindled by the spark of the innocent firecracker, began a friendship which ripened into something closer, for when some months later there was another declaration, older than the other, but ever new, the answer, though low, was strongly suggestive of the good old Fourth of July motto: "Union forever."



Through sacrifice and tears we grew
To be the heirs of liberty,
High-flung, our emblem waves anew
Its sacred promise o'er the sea.

Saved the "Declaration" From British

Comparatively few of the present generation know how near to being lost was once the most precious of our national documents, the Declaration of Independence. It was during the war of 1812. The Declaration of Independence hung, for many years, in a frame in the state department in the room then occupied by Stephen Pleasonton, who moved to Washington in 1800 with the government. Mr. Monroe, when he was elected president, created a new office, which was conferred upon Mr. Pleasonton, that of chief of the lighthouse establishment, to which was added the auditing of the ministerial and consular accounts. This office was retained by Mr. Pleasonton under all the succeeding administrations until his death, which occurred in 1855.

Mr. Beasley, commissary of prisoners of war in London, forwarded to the state department some London newspapers stating that the English fleets and transports were receiving troops at Bordeaux, France, with the intention of operating against Washington and Baltimore. Soon after it was learned that the British fleet was in the Chesapeake bay, and that it was ascending the Patuxent. The officials and citizens of the little capital city were hourly expecting an attack.

Upon receipt of this information, which was a few days before the enemy entered Washington, Mr. Monroe, then secretary of state, James Madison being president, mounted his horse, rode to Benedict, a small village on the Patuxent, where the British forces were being landed, and climbed an eminence within a quarter of a mile of the village, in order to ascertain the strength of the enemy. Being convinced after his inspection that we had no force available that could successfully resist them, he sent a note to Mr. Pleasonton by a vidette, advising him to se that the best care was taken of the books and papers of the state department.

Acting at once upon this authority Mr. Pleasonton purchased some coarse linen and had it made into bags of suitable size, in which he, assisted by the others of the office, placed the books and other papers.

Mr. Pleasonton had the bags carted to a grist mill which he selected as a suitable depository. The mill, which was unoccupied, belonged to Edgar Paterson, and was situated on the Virginia side of the Potomac, beyond the Chain bridge, two miles above Georgetown.

The last load had left and Mr. Pleasonton was just quitting the vacant rooms, when, turning back suddenly to see whether anything had been left behind, to his consternation he saw the Declaration of Independence, which had been overlooked, still hanging upon the wall. He hastily cut it out of the frame and carried it away with the other papers.

He then began to be uneasy about the place he had chosen, for if the British took Washington, which he firmly believed they would do, and very soon at that, they would in all probability detach a force for the purpose of destroying a foundry for the making of cannon and shot in the neighborhood, and of course would consider a grist mill too valuable a thing to be left standing in a country they meant to subdue. Mr. Pleasonton therefore visited some of the Virginia farm houses, whose owners were only too willing to loan him wagons in which to convey the documents to Leesburg, a distance of 35 miles. There they were deposited in an empty house, the keys of which were given to Rev. Mr. Littlejohn, who was one of the collectors of internal revenue.

Worn out with his labors, Mr. Pleasonton states in a letter, he retired early to bed that night and slept soundly. Next morning he was informed by the people of the little tavern where he had stayed that evening that they had seen during the night, the same being the 24th of August, a large fire in the direction of Washington, which proved to be the light from the public buildings, which the enemy had set on fire and burned to the ground.

When he returned to Washington on the 26th he found the public buildings still burning, and learned that the British army had evacuated the city the preceding evening, in the belief that the Americans were again assembling in the rear for the purpose of cutting off their retreat.

But as the British fleet still hovered in the neighborhood and threatened Washington with a second invasion, it was not considered safe to bring the papers of the state department back for some weeks. In the meantime Mr. Pleasonton made occasional trips to Leesburg for particular papers to which the secretary of state had occasion to refer in the transaction of business.

Never Fight.

Wise men patch up their quarrels before they are begun.

TERRIBLE ITCHING SCALP.

Eczema Broke Out Also on Hands and Limbs—An Old Soldier Declares: "Cuticura Is a Blessing."

"At all times and to all people I am willing to testify to the merits of Cuticura. It saved me from worse than the torture of hades, about the year 1900, with itching on my scalp and temples, and afterwards it commenced to break out on my hands. Then it broke out on my limbs. I then went to a Surgeon, whose treatment did me no good, but rather aggravated the disease. I then told him I would go and see a physician in Erie. The reply was that I could go anywhere, but a case of eczema like mine could not be cured; that I was too old (80). I went to an eminent doctor in the city of Erie and treated with him for six months, with like results. I had read of the Cuticura Remedies, and so I sent for the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and continued taking the Resolvent until I had taken six bottles, stopping it to take the Pills. I was now getting better. I took two baths a day, and at night I let the lather of the Soap dry on. I used the Ointment with great effect after washing in warm water, to stop the itching at once. I am now cured. The Cuticura treatment is a blessing, and should be used by every one who has itching of the skin. I can't say any more, and thank God that He has given the world such a curative. Wm. H. Gray, 3303 Mt. Vernon St., Philadelphia, Pa., August 2, 1905."

GRIST OF GRINS.

Eddie—"Say, uncle, what's radium?" Uncle—"Aw, that's the stuff they make radiators of."

"Father, what's the difference between a lunch and a luncheon?" "About a dollar and a quarter, my boy."

"How did you get that black eye, Willie?" "I got dat," replied Willie, disgustedly, "by waitin' to count ten when I was angry, like you told me to."

Nervous Old Lady (on seventh floor of hotel)—"Do you know what precautions the proprietor of the hotel has taken against fire?" Porter—"Yes, mum; he has the place inshoored for twice wot it's worth."

"Well, Mr. Lambkin, how do you like being married?" "Not in the least. I am no longer allowed to smoke, to drink or to go out alone." "Then you must be sorry you married." "I am not allowed to be sorry, either."

Mrs. Nibs—"Why were you so absurd as to tell Bibbs at the dinner table that you can tell an old turkey from a young one by the teeth?" Nibbs—"So I can." Mrs. Nibbs—"Nonsense. Turkeys have no teeth."—Nibbs—"Well, I have."

Flattery and the Sex.

He—It was decided some time ago that the mails could carry soft soap.

She—Umph I didn't know the capacity of males for soft soap had ever been questioned.—Baltimore American.

The mare is by no means singular. Everything goes, where money is the motive.—Puck.

TEETH THAT WERE USELESS

Puzzle to the Man Who Had Suddenly Sustained the Loss of Them.

Harry Leon Wilson, author of "The Spenders," was domiciled for a summer in Connecticut with a colony of artists and writers, all of whom had to go into the city every day, relates the Saturday Evening Post.

Wilson was doing nothing but loafing. He loafed artistically, and from time to time met and had fun with some of the natives of the place. One day he found two men in the road who seemed congenial, and he struck up an acquaintance with them. He proposed a drive and they got a surrey and two horses.

"Can you drive?" asked Wilson.

"Sure," one of his sudden friends replied, "I am a fine driver."

They got aboard and started down the road. Before they had gone half a mile the team was frightened by a passing automobile and ran away. The driver valiantly steered the horses into a telegraph pole and Wilson and his two friends were thrown helter-skelter into the road.

Wilson slowly gathered himself together. One of his friends was sitting in the ditch rubbing his bruises and the other stood in the middle of the road gazing in tearful misery at two front teeth which he held in the palm of his hand.

"Pretty lucky escape, wasn't it?" asked Wilson, for want of something better to say.

"Yes," replied the man with the teeth, weeping afresh, "but please, oh, please, tell me, what shall I do with these?"

Pitied Pitcoe.

A man who had started with a friend on a week's automobile tour stayed away two weeks. When finally they got back to town, he went home, and his wife received him coldly. What he dreaded was a scolding and an upbraiding. "I am so glad to be back with you here, dear," he said; "but I pity Pitcoe. Poor old Pitcoe?" "What is the matter with Pitcoe?" said the lady, sharply. "Ah, poor fellow," said her husband, "at this moment his wife is giving him the very deuce!" And that wily speech got him off.

Up to Him.

Regular Boarder—How many more times am I going to see this same piece of pie?

Waiter—Dunno, sir. The boss told me to keep giving it to you till you et it.—Detroit Free Press.

"There is one advantage in this business," mused the expert gardener, as he stood in his orchard. "It is grafting all the time, but you can always get the public to swallow it."—Baltimore American.

Give and Take.

"Gracious, my dear," said the first society belle, spitefully, "I do hope you're not ill. You look so much older to-night."

"I'm quite well, thank you, dear," replied the other. "And you—how wonderfully improved you are. You look positively young."—Philadelphia Ledger.

ALL HAIL PE-RU-NA

A Case of

STOMACH CATARRH.

MARY OBRIEN

Miss Mary O'Brien, 306 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna cured me in five weeks of catarrh of the stomach, after suffering for four years and doctoring without effect. In common with other grateful ones who have been benefited by your discovery, I say. All hail to Peruna."

Mr. H. J. Henneman, Oakland, Neb., writes:

"I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago.

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat.

"So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good.

"I thank you for your kindness.

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

Catarrh of the stomach is also known in common parlance as dyspepsia, gastritis and indigestion. No medicine will be of any permanent benefit except it removes the catarrh.

A Great Tonic.

Mr. Austin M. Small, Astoria, Ore., writes: "During the hot weather of the past summer I lost my appetite. I tried Peruna, and found it pleasant to take, a splendid appetizer and a great tonic."

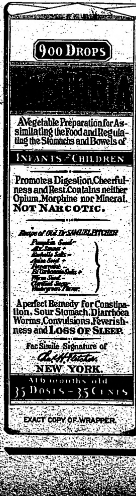
60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre

That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box W.K. La Crosse, Wis.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.



900 DROPS
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY ST, NEW YORK CITY.

WOMAN'S MAGAZINE

OF AID TO HOSTESS.

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

A Paper Wedding Celebrates Second Anniversary—A Game Involving Knowledge of Characters Used in Music.

A Paper Wedding.

A paper wedding celebrates the second anniversary, and it may be the jolliest kind of an affair with little trouble and small expense. These occasions should be confined to the family and intimate friends and in consequence be very informal, full of good comradeship and sincerity.

Table cloths and napkins come in really artistic patterns and are just the thing to use, also paper flowers to decorate with and for the centerpiece. Years ago when hot houses were an almost unknown quantity except with the very rich, flowers of paper were always used and considered the height of fashion. Dollies of lace paper come in all sizes, also paper holders for bon-bons, salted nuts and ices, so the table may be set without a bit of linen.

Have the snapping-cracker caps to put on before refreshments; by having two of each color partners may be chosen. If the hostess wishes and it is practical, the guests may be asked to come in costumes of paper. The girls can achieve most charming toilets by purchasing for a trifle the last year's patterns from a modiste or a pattern maker. The men will probably have to content themselves with neckties of paper, and a huge boutoniere. Portieres and window draperies made from strips of crepe paper are astonishingly pretty, especially in pink and white. To make the decorations still more "papery" quantities of Japanese lanterns, parasols and fans may be used. For amusement a game could be concocted from the "flags of all nations" which are of paper and come in an envelope for the sum of ten cents. To the person guessing the most award a prize of a box of stationery or any of the numerous articles made from paper.

A Musical Game.

This musical game is most suitable for people who understand how to read music and are conversant with all the musical terms. It will be found of special interest to teachers who wish to entertain their pupils and at the same time instruct them in a way that does not seem like study.

Provide cards and pencils for all and tell the guests to observe the objects in the room, as they have a musical significance. If desired, the company may hunt in pairs, partners being found by the means of a familiar bar or two of music cut in two; when the air is completed the couple set out to discover what the peculiar articles scattered about mean. Here are the objects and a key:

A quire of paper—A choir.

Three dolls dressed alike—Triplets.

A carpenter's brace—Brace.

A watch—Time.

A razor—A sharp.

The chin rest from a violin—A rest.

A card on which is written XL—Forte.

A name written on a piece of paper—A signature.

A pair of apothecory's scale—Scales.

A base taken from a table bell.—Bass.

A peck measure containing two beets—Two beats in a measure.

A heavy string—Chord.

A flat iron with a letter B on it—B flat.

A card board letter C hanging from the gas jet—High C.

A bit of tar—Pitch.

A pipe stem—Stem.

A large half-tone engraving—Half tone.

A bank note—Note.

A baby's shoe with an 0 on the sole—Solo.

A love letter which starts out well, but has a blot half way down the page—Accidental.

A necktie—Tie.

A bar of iron—Bar.

A door key—Key.

A pocket rule or a tape measure—Measure.

A 25 cent piece with a piece of black court plaster pasted on it—Dotted quarter.

A real flower and a lock of hair—Natural.

A circular piece of card-board cut into three equal pieces—Thirds.

To the one who correctly guesses the most give a prize of a musical instrument in the shape of a candy box. If something more elabroate is desired a photograph of one of the composers framed or a book of musical history would be acceptable. A short programme would complete this entertainment in a most fitting manner.

MADAME MERRI.

CROCHETED CENTERPIECE.

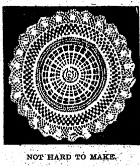
Abbreviations: Chain, ch; single crochet, s c; double crochet, d c; stitches, st.

This may be crocheted with fine or coarse cotton thread, or silkateen, just as one prefers. It can also be made with a plain center of linen, buttonhole stitched all around, and the insertion border and lace crocheted around that. The lace is also a nice pattern to use independently, writes a contributor to Farm and Home.

To make the centerpiece as represented in the illustration begin by making 5 ch st and join. Into the small ring thus made, work as follows:

First row—12 s c.

Second, 3d, 4th and 5th rows—Always with s c, increasing sufficiently to keep work flat.



NOT HARD TO MAKE.

Sixth row—1 d c into every st and 1 ch between each d c.

Seventh row—1 d c into each st.

Eighth row—2 d c and 2 ch between each 2 d c, always skipping over 2 st.

Ninth row—2 d c and 3 ch between each 2 d c.

Tenth row—S c into each st all around.

Eleventh row—2 d c and 3 ch between each 2 d c, skipping 3 st, so as to keep spokes of wheel even.

Twelfth row—Same as 11th row, only having 4 ch between each 2 d c.

Thirteenth row—D c into each st.

Fourteenth row—2 d c, with 5 ch between each 2 d c.

Fifteenth row—Same as 14th, only having 6 ch between each d c.

Sixteenth row—All s c into each st.

Seventeenth row—1 d c and 2 ch between each d c, always skipping 1 st of preceding row.

Eighteenth row—1 d c into loop of preceding row, 2 ch, and so on.

Nineteenth row—Same as 18th row.

Twentieth row—D c into each st.

Twenty-first row—3 d c and 2 ch, always skipping 2 st of preceding row.

Twenty-second row—3 d c into each loop of preceding row, with 3 ch between each 3 d c.

Twenty third and 24th rows—Same as 22d row.

Twenty-fifth row—S c into each st all around.

Twenty-sixth row (lace)—5 ch and fasten with s c into st of preceding row, and so on.

Twenty-seventh row—5 ch and fasten with s c into loop of preceding row. Make 3 such loops, and into the 4th work 6 d c, and so on.

Twenty-eighth row—Make two 5 ch loops into the groups of 3 loops below, and ch 3, then 8 d c above the 6 d c of preceding row, ch 3 and so on.

Twenty-ninth row—Make one 5 ch loop, ch 3, and 1 d c into each d c of preceding row, with 1 ch between each d c.

Thirtieth row—5 ch caught down with a s c into each loop of preceding row.

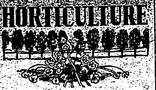
OBJECTS OF EXERCISE.

The beauty exercises, of the professional beauty of to-day, have three objects. The first is grace. There is no need of exercising awkwardly. Every time you exercise awkwardly you bring on certain awkward habits. Exercise in a graceful manner.

The second object of the up-to-date beauty exercise is deep breathing. There is a perfect fad for breathing deeply. Each and every breath must come from the very depths of the abdomen and must fill the lungs full of air, the fresher the better. Deep breathing is to the beauty seeker of to-day what outdoor exercise was to beauty seekers of a few years ago. It is everything!

The third object of the beauty exercises is the reduction of the weight and the preservation of the figure. Exercise, they say, will keep the hips small and the waist round. It will make one tall and it will make one graceful. Exercise constantly if you want to keep your form girlish as it was in your teens.

With these three objects in mind, the beauty seeker begins her six o'clock exercises, which are undertaken with an eye to the keeping of her good looks and with no other end in view. Health can take care of itself if the figure and the looks are preserved.



PLANTING A FRUIT TREE.

The Method Has Much to Do with Its Subsequent Development and Growth.

Multitudes of fruit trees are annually lost by being incorrectly planted. The careless man loses more trees than any other man simply because he tries to save trouble in the work of planting. He saves work in preparing the ground for the tree. The worst method is quite commonly followed, which is to merely dig a big hole in soil that has been for a long time undisturbed. The soil in the hole is loose, and soil around the sides and on the bottom is hard packed. Often this hard packing is made worse by the men getting into the hole and tramping it while shoveling out the dirt. This virtually "puddles" the bottom if the soil be moist, and this renders it almost impervious to water. Stock ponds are made water tight in that way.

When the tree is set in the hole and the dirt filled in, the conditions are ripe for the killing of the tree at the first heavy rain. The hole becomes a sort of sink in which the water remains. Air cannot get to the roots of the tree and hence no food can be taken into the system of the tree. When the warm days come, the tree sends out its leaves, which are developed from the latent plant food stored up in the tree from the previous year. But no new food gets in, as the roots are immersed in water. After a little time the leaves on the tree begin to wither, and the owner wonders what is affecting the tree. In another month the tree is dead.

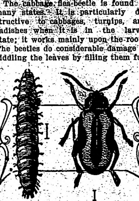
The right way to plant a tree, says Farmers' Review, is to prepare all the ground by stirring it up thoroughly and providing some way to let off the water. Frequently the slope of the ground will do this, if the trees are not placed in mere holes. With the ground well stirred up the water that falls will not collect around the trunks of the newly set trees, and the soil will not be for any long time saturated with water.

Trees should not be set too deep. Some seem to think that the deeper a tree is set the better, but most trees send out their roots near the surface of the ground. It is allowable to set a tree one or two inches deeper than it was in the nursery row, as the ground is sure to settle some around it. If a tree is properly set and if it is in good condition at time of setting there is no reason why it should not live.

CABBAGE FLEA BEETLE.

Insect Which Is Destructive Not Only of Cabbage, But Turnips, Etc.

The cabbage flea-beetle is found in many states. It is particularly destructive to cabbages, turnips, and radishes when it is in the larval state; it works mainly upon the roots. The beetles do considerable damage in riddling the leaves by filling them full of holes. The adult beetle, which with the larva is illustrated in the accompanying cut, is about one-tenth of an inch long, black with two yellowish stripes on the back which are sometimes broken into four yellow spots. The adult hibernates in sheltered places in the field.



THE CABBAGE FLEA-BEETLE.
(Lines Indicate Actual Size of Larva and Beetle.)

Bordeaux and arsenical sprays are applied for exterminating the pest. Where fields have been largely attacked during the year, it is wise to destroy the leaves and rubbish in the fall. By following this practice a large number of the adults will be destroyed and future crops curtailed.

ORCHARD CHAT.

Seeds should not be planted deep in clay soil.

Avoid the adulterated paris green on the market.

Don't mix ashes with hen manure; use land plaster instead.

Harrow or cultivate the orchard at least three times this month.

Always have a handy knife for water sprouts. Cut them out any time.

The best garden stuff you ever ate was that which you raised yourself.

Let no guilty weed escape in the garden this month. Hoe around the garden sass, not around the weeds.

After the seeds of the watermelon have been planted, tread the soil in the hills very firmly. This will insure better germination. This is also true of most seeds.

Cultivate often; it warms the soil in early spring, allows even light rains to penetrate the soil and retains the moisture for use in summer. To say nothing of keeping weeds in control.—Farm Journal.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

NOTES ON COTTON GROWING.

About 70,000 bales of cotton is this year's crop of the Laguna section of Mexico. The Mexican mills will also require an additional 80,000 bales from the United States during 1906.

The British charge in Guatemala has forwarded to London a sample of weevil-resisting cotton grown in the Retalhulen district of western Guatemala. It is called "Pachon," is a short-season cotton, productive and with a fiber of good length and texture.

The Turkish minister of agriculture is about to buy 2,200 pounds of American and Egyptian cotton seed for the improvement of the quality of cotton raised in Turkey. The seed will be distributed in the provinces of Adana, Aidin and Salonika, according to the Levant Herald.

The exports of raw cotton from southern Nigeria in 1905 declined to 96,306 pounds, having been 285,639 pounds in 1904. This falling off is expected to adjust itself during the present year, when the new plantations will commence to yield, states the Government Gazette of the Nigeria protectorate. It has also been reported that there was some cotton to be shipped from northern Nigeria.

One on the Doctor.

A Baltimore physician who boarded a crowded car in Charles street, noticed a woman standing and a big German sprawling over twice the seat area that was necessary to him. Indignantly the physician said to his: "See here! Why don't you move a little so that this tired woman may have a seat?" For a moment the German looked dazed. Then a broad smile spread over his countenance as he answered: "Say ,dot's a joke on you, all right! Dot's my vife!"

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE

Agrees with Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the practice of my profession I have found so many points in favor of Grape-Nuts food that I unhesitatingly recommend it to all my patients.

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages, being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those on liquid diet I find Grape-Nuts and albumen water very nourishing and refreshing. This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice or flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.

"My husband is a physician and he uses Grape-Nuts himself and orders it many times for his patients.

"Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for anyone—well or sick." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

In any case of stomach trouble, nervous prostration or brain fag, a 10 days' trial of Grape-Nuts will work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding, and in this way ending the trouble. "There's a reason" and trial proves.

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE
A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.
DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.
This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.
For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

ODD HAPPENINGS.

While scratching his nose with the end of a loaded revolver a man in Paris accidentally pulled the trigger and blew off the tip of the nose.

In the midst of an electric storm the Mariette fire whistle called out the men, who rushed about in the rain till the apparatus was drenched before it was discovered that lightning had played a prank on the department. There is an ordinance against turning in a false alarm.

The death lately occurred at Westbury workhouse, Wiltshire, England, of a 46-year-old "baby." The person was born in Westbury, and at the age of 12 months its further development, both physically and mentally, was arrested. Throughout its life it was attired in baby's frock clothes, and continued to act and play and had to be fed and taken care of precisely as an infant.

An extraordinary sudden death occurred the other day in Paris. A sexagenarian went to have his photograph taken. He sat in a chair before the camera, and as the photographer uttered the customary words, "Please don't move," down fell the old man on the floor. It was naturally supposed that the sexagenarian was in a fainting fit, but he was in reality dead, as the doctor who was sent for testified after a brief examination of the body.

AMATEUR AERONAUTICS.

Do not stick pins into the enevlope, even if the balloon is a stationary one.

Never leave the car while in motion—especially when at a considerable altitude. It hurts.

Do not throw out empty bottles when pasisng over densely populated urban rural districts; they will only get broken.

Should your grappling-iron "grapple" a harmless old gentleman and lift him off his feet, do not be too angry with him; let him down gently.

When passing over a friend's estate try and resist the temptation of dropping a sand-bag through his conservatory; somebody may be there, and besides, your friend may be a retaliator and a first-class rifle shot.

Nobody who understands the law of prices will wonder at a man making himself scarce when he feels cheap.—Puck.

SICK HEADACHE
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

GENERAL GLEANINGS.

The king of Ashanti has 3,332 wives.

A young Jones is born every 40 minutes.

The number of known stars exceeds 100,000,000.

Contributors to the London Times are paid $25 a column.

One man in six in the American navy is a total abstainer.

The parrot appreciates music more than any other of the lower animals.

Over 20,000,000 leeches were used annually 25 years ago, but now not 1,000,000 a year are used.

The world's largest prune orchard—in Los Gatos, Cal.—contains 50,000 trees and yields an annual profit of $50,000.

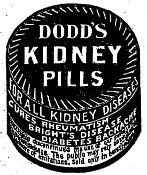
Really an Awful Affair.

She—He married her for her money. Wasn't that awful?

He—Did he get it?

"No."

"It was."—Judge.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

Libby's Boneless Chicken
Libby's Food Products
are economical as well as good. You don't pay for bone or gristle when you buy them.
Nothing goes into a Libby can but clean, lean, well-cooked meat that is ready to eat.
Libby's Products are time and trouble and money-savers—and appetite stimulators.
Libby's Boneless Chicken with Mayonnaise Dressing makes a quick salad, yet as delicious a one as you ever ate. It is all chicken, and all good chicken—mostly white meat.
Try it when you're hurried or hungry.
Booklet free, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Write
Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

PATENTS
MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 900 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.
Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.
PENSIONS

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

NEED TALENTED WOMAN GIVE UP CAREER FOR HOME AND HUSBAND?

Mrs. Ethel Watts Mumford Thought Not, and Broke Marital Chains That Bound Her Too Tightly.

ROOM IN HEART FOR BOTH LOVE AND WORK

Now She Has Found a Husband Who Promises Devotion and Freedom to Pursue Her Literary Duties to Any Extent She May Desire.

To love, cherish—and obey!

Is this a promise to be kept to the last letter? Does it mean even the sacrificing of a talent under dictation? Must the woman give up the natural gift at the bidding of the man, though it may not prevent her from loving and from cherishing?

"No!" said Mrs. Ethel Watts Mumford, most emphatically.

"Decidedly yes!" retorted George Dana Mumford, lawyer and capitalist and lately the husband of Mrs. Mumford, one of New York's most talented and successful woman writers.

Can a woman who writes be, at the same time, a good wife and a good mother? Can a woman devote herself to art and her home at one and the same time?

"Certainly!" declared Peter Geddes Grant, broker and lover.

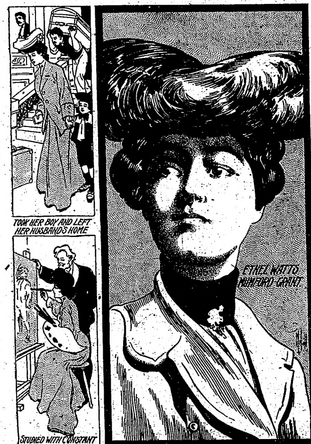
Mrs. Mumford agreed with him very decidedly. So now the marriage of Mr. Grant and Mrs. Mumford follows quite naturally on the heels of the celebrated divorce case of Mumford vs. Mumford.

Ethel Dickinson Watts was one of the most talented daughters of the south when she met George Dana Mumford. Born in New York herself, she was still the high type of southern girl that her mother, Mrs. D. G. Watts, meant her to be. She was tall, athletic, witty, vivacious, beautiful, clever.

Her mother, a woman of wealth, saw that the daughter's natural gifts were not neglected. She had a fine education, and then was sent to Paris to finish. She studied painting under Benjamin Constant; she spent a year traveling in Europe and the orient. There was another year in Japan, a long stay in the South seas, journeys to the south and west in the United States, and visits in Mexico and Central America.

When Miss Watts got back to New York, says the World, of that city, she was bubbling over with ideas which she longed to put down in black and white. And so there blossomed out another successful woman writer.

Then came Mr. Mumford. He was rich, good looking, a graduate of Columbia, '89, and Harvard, '91, a member of half a dozen smart clubs, and well known socially in New York and in Tuxedo. He fell head over heels



TOOK HER BOY AND LEFT HER HUSBANDS HOME
ETHEL WATTS MUMFORD-GRANT
STUDIED WITH CONSTANT

in love with the talented girl, and she thought she loved him.

This was in 1894, when both were very young. It was a quick, ardent courtship and a beautiful wedding. Then a delightful honeymoon abroad and a return to a beautiful home. A little boy was born two years later—the apple of his father's eye. It looked like a most happy union—this marriage of the brilliant southern girl and the polished 'varsity man.

But here the Muses took a hand and upset all these pretty little plans of Dan Cupid. The young wife's literary bent, temporarily laid aside during the courtship and honeymoon, again asserted itself. Tales of adventure, poems of the seas, romances of faraway lands—all were seething in her brain.

And so she took up her pen again and wrote.

One after another the things came into being, only to be striven for by the publishers. But prose and poetry did not comprise all the brilliant girl's talents. She would write a play and she did—"The Scenario"—and the talented Annie Russell presented it. It was a story of Mexico and Paris—note how the young wife kept close to the scenes she had visited before her marriage.

And all the time she wrote and wrote. Things were finished, only to be torn up and rewritten. Other efforts were destroyed, never to be seen by anyone. And all the time, too, the boy was growing bigger and bigger, and needing more and more his mother's care.

Who shall say who began the trouble?

If a vital household dispute arises, either wife or husband must make the sacrifice. It is for the outside world, knowing nothing of what transpires around the hearthstone, to say who shall yield?

Mrs. Mumford wanted to write. Mr. Mumford didn't want her to write. There was the problem. He wanted his wife to entertain, to go out with him, to give him all her spare time, to spend her energies within her home and not between the covers of the magazines.

Mrs. Mumford said "No!" She insisted that she could be a good wife and a good mother, and still give rein to her literary ambitions. Neither side would yield. There were quarrels. So, after five years of married life, in 1899, Mrs. Mumford took her boy and left her husband alone in his New York home. As for her, she went to California and acquired a legal residence there. Then suit for divorce on the ground of desertion was brought by the young wife; the proper papers were served on Mr. Mumford. He appeared by an attorney, but put in no defense. In 1901 Justice Hebbard, in the superior court, San Francisco, granted the decree, and the young wife, free now to write all she pleased, went back to New York with her little son, whose custody the court allowed her.

But even in California, when the lawyers were busy untying the knot tied so few years before, Mrs. Mumford's pen was not idle. She brought out her first novel in California—"Dupes"—published by the Putnams, and very successful. Then followed another novel, "White Wash," and "The Cynic's Calendar," published in San Francisco.

In New York Mrs. Mumford began writing again, mostly stories for the leading magazines. She took up her residence with her mother, who is very wealthy.

Meanwhile the divorced husband, eager still for a home, was not idle. Hardly was the ink dry on the legal decree divorcing the two, when he met Mrs. Claire Drake Butterfield, widow of the immensely wealthy Theodore Butterfield, of Rochester. Six months after the divorce was made public Mrs. Butterfield announced her engagement to Mr. Mumford. In June, 1902, they were married at the Church of the Messiah, by Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage, assisted by Rev. Dr. Clay MacCawley. There was a honeymoon down at Mr. Mumford's country place, and when they came back to town in the autumn it was to live just across Central park, where Mrs. Mumford No. 1 lived with her mother and her little son.

Forgotten, Mrs. Mumford soon forgot.

"I'll never marry again," she told her friends, "unless a man comes along who will not mind how much I write and paint," but they laughed at her.

"Wait and see!" was the drift of what they said in reply. "There are men who won't mind how much you write and paint."

They were right.

The man came along six months ago. He was Peter Leavitt Grant, a Scotchman, formerly of Granttown, Scotland, but now a member of the New York brokerage firm of Leavitt & Grant.

He was older than Mr. Mumford and broader in his views. They met at the house of mutual friends—the rich broker and the beautiful young authoress. He was immensely taken with her literary work and never wearied of praising it to his friends—so different from Mr. Mumford, whom it bored quite thoroughly.

Mr. Grant frankly told his friends he believed there were plenty of clever women who could follow their talents and at the same time be good wives and mothers. He held that there could be no incompatibility between the art of a woman and the helpful comeraderie of the home.

Finally the time came when he felt that he could say this same thing to Mrs. Mumford. He did. His answer was a whispered "Yes," just as the young college man, Mumford, had received it 12 years before. But this time it was a more qualified one. With it went the understanding that the bride-to-be-for-the-second-time could write and paint and study just as much as she pleased.

"That is distinctly understood," replied the gallant Mr. Grant, and a few days ago the engagement was announced.

"My daughter will keep on with literary work," explained Mrs. Watts, the mother, "just as she always has done. There is no reason whatever why a woman cannot be a good wife and mother and at the same time give some time to her talents.

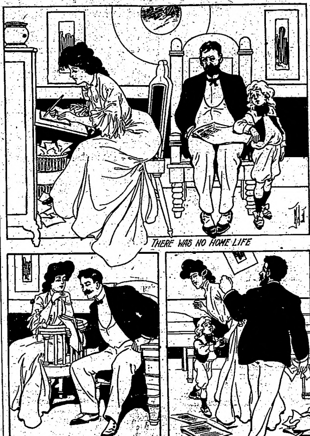
"Mr. Grant understands this perfectly and is just as interested in my daughter's success as we are. He is very proud of what she has done already and looks forward to even better things in the future. They have gone on a honeymoon in the country and in the autumn they will sail for Europe to visit Mr. Grant's family in Scotland."

As for Mr. Mumford, he was seen at his office and took the news of his former wife's engagement rather testily.

"Mrs. Mumford is my divorced wife," he said, "and I cannot discuss her affairs or her coming marriage. She is no longer a part of my life."

The wedding took place on Saturday, June 2, Rev. Charles Townsend, of Orange, N. J., Mr. Grant's pastor, officiating. It was a quiet little home ceremony at Mrs. Watts' house, only members of the families being present. Hereafter Mrs. Grant will divide her time between New York and Scotland, but the public can assure itself that fiction and adventure from the fluent pen of Ethel Watts Grant will be just as frequent as it was from the pen of Ethel Watts Mumford.

And now Cupid, god of love, and Clio, muse of literature, will walk hand in hand.



THERE WAS NO HOME LIFE

Letter From a Self-Made Packer To His Son

Paris, June 11, 1906.

Dear Percy: While I am not on the ground and cannot size up the present situation with every confidence in my judgment, I think it would be wise to clean up the yards and all the houses, so as to be ready for any inspectors or reporters who may ask to be shown through the plant. I may be wrong, but probably it wouldn't hurt anything if you were to do a little cleaning up. You can get Thomas Jefferson Jackson to do a week's whitewashing. He can daub up enough fences in that time to make the cattle and hog pens look fairly clean, and possibly he could finish in time to whiten up the interior of some of the rooms of the plant.

As I think it over, I guess it would be a good idea to clean the floors in all the rooms. Naturally a great deal of grease will fall on the floors in 10 or 12 years, and much of it will be ground into the wood and saved. Pieces of pork, beef, mutton and rind and a great deal of lard, no doubt, cover the floors to a depth of six or seven inches in places. This should be scraped up carefully and turned over to the olive oil department, where it can be placed in the vats with oxalic acid and formaldehyde. It can be bottled as "La Picha Olive Oil. Quality Guaranteed by the Italian Government." The sediment can be used in the boneless chicken department.

Here is another thing you can do: Send for reporters from every paper in the city and give them a little talk on food purity and similar rot, tell what efforts we've made to kill germs, and tell how for years we have sprayed the walls, floors, tables, wagons and tools with formaldehyde in order to be certain of absolute cleanliness. In proof of the statement show them our formaldehyde bills for the last five or six years. That'll convince 'em.

How is the egg business coming along? I met a famous French chemist yesterday who showed me a thing or two about eggs, and I had always supposed I knew about everything worth knowing. I think we can revolutionize the egg business. This fellow has a secret preparation that preserves eggs for as long as seven years. It's something wonderful. Best of all, this stuff is cheap, costs only eight cents a gallon, and a gallon is enough to preserve nearly a million eggs. You need only one drop of the stuff and great care must be observed not to use more than one, as two drops cause the stomach to rebel and three cause serious illness and sometimes death. However, we must all take chances in this world. This Frenchman has invented an instrument with which the egg is punctured, the preservative injected and the hole sealed.

I have offered him $500,000 for his formula and instrument, to become my exclusive property, and I think he will accept. That seems like a large amount of money, and it is, but think how soon it will come back. We will save thousands and thousands of dollars in ice. And when he perfects it so it can be used on meat—well, inside of a few years the phrase "cold storage" will be deader than Chauncey M. Depew. Your affectionate father,

JOHN BEEFHAM.

In the Wrong Office.

Pedler—My dear sir, do you know how much time you lose dipping a pen into the ink? Ten dips a minute means 600 dips an hour or 6,000 dips in ten hours, and each dip consumes—

Business Man—Yes, I know; I have figured it all out.

Pedler—And yet I find you still writing in the old way.

Business Man—Yes, I am using the fountain pen you sold me about a month ago—using it in the old way because it won't write any other way.

Pedler—Beg pardon; I'm in the wrong office. Good day.—N. Y. Weekly.

Minus.

"When our heiresses bring back foreign noblemen with them, when they return from Europe, it's a wonder the government doesn't charge them duty."

"Huh! If the duty were 'ad valorem' the government would be owing the heiresses money."—Philadelphia Press.

An Optimist.

"Blank started out to be a rose specialist, but the insects ate up his flowers so fast he had to give it up."

"Wasn't he discouraged?"

"No, he found so many interesting varieties of bugs, he went in for that subject, and now he's just as enthusiastic over bugs as he was over flowers!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Little Bent Pin.

"Huh!" sneered the bright new safety-pin, "You are not in the same class with me."

"O! you haven't any cause to be stuck-up," retorted the ordinary pin. "Speaking of classes, some of us have occupied professor's chairs in the foremost schools and colleges."—Philadelphia Press.

A Compromise.

Mrs. Housekeep—Want something to eat, eh? Now, I don't suppose you'd be willing to saw some wood for me.

Hungry Higgins — Well — er—no, ma'am; that's purty hard work fur a hot day. Now, if it was wintertime I'd be willin' to shovel a little snow fur ye.—Philadelphia Press.

Collected.

"Correspondent wants to know who are the greatest stamp collectors in the country," said the assistant briefly.

"Does he inclose stamp for reply?" answered the editor.

"Yes."

"Then tell him we are."—Chicago Daily News.

Great Invention.

"The chap who invented wireless telegraphy is certainly a genius," remarked the man from Ohio.

"Mebbe he is, sah," rejoined the Kentucky colonel, "but he ain't in it with the moonshiner in ouah state who invented snakeless liquor, sah."—Chicago Daily News.

Solstice and Girls.

Joshua had just commanded the sun to stand still.

"How lovely!" cried the summer resort girls; "we will have a chance to wear more stunning frocks in one day."

Herewith they promptly hustled off to change.—N. Y. Sun.

Starting the Bores.

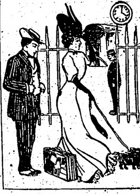
"Don't you know that when you ask your little girl to recite it makes everybody feel like going home?"

"Yes."

"Then why do you do it?"

"That's why."—Washington Star.

A SURE WAY.



The Bride—Let's act so that no one will know we have just been married.

The Groom—All right. Then you carry the suit case.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

In the Present Emergency.

The optimistic thing to do
Is to philosophize;
For every man must eat his peck
Of dirt before he dies.
—Chicago Tribune.

Exactly.

Teacher—Now, Robert, do you know what an isosceles triangle is?

Boy—Yes'm.

Teacher—Well, what is it?

Boy—It's one uv dem t'ings I gets licked fer not knowin' what it is.—Judge.

Taking Issue.

"You will live to regret talking that way to me!" tearfully spoke Miss Peachley.

"I sincerely hope not," replied Miss Tartun. "I should be awfully sorry to live till the world comes to an end."—Chicago Tribune.

The Grammatical Prisoner.

"And when he said skiddoo what did you do?" asked the judge.

"I skiddid, your honor," said the prisoner.—Judge.

Diagnosed His Case.

"Woman," said he, in agonised tones, "you have broken my heart."

She laid her ear to his manly bosom.

"No," said she, after listening intently, "there is not the slightest evidence of organic lesion. There is a slight palpitation, due, perhaps, to cigarettes. That is all."

And now the young man swears that hereafter when he makes love to a girl he will be sure she is not a medical student.—Tit-Bits.

In His Own Net.

"Yes, he's a cigar manufacturer and yet he never smokes."

"O! yes he does."

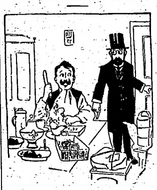
"Why, he told me some time ago that he never smoked in his life."

"That was before he began to advertise. He found his own advertisements so alluring that he just started in."—Philadelphia Press.

Silent Love.

They sat beneath the silent moon,
This seaside maid and summer chappy.
No word or whisper broke the charm;
They were unspeakably happy.
—Judge.

LIVING ON THE SAMPLES.



"Say, you seem to be living on the fat of the land!"

"O, that's easy! I advertised in the papers that a gentleman in comfortable circumstances wanted a wife; that property and personal attarctiveness were immaterial, but that skill in cooking was of chief importance. Now I am living on samples!"—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

Labor and Love.

He labors early, labors late,
And needs no other spur,
Than the thought that she makes money fly,
Or, failing money, fur.
—Puck.

The New Girl.

"And have you any alarm clocks in the house, ma'am?" inquired the new girl.

"Not one," replied the mistress of the house; "we don't need them. Both my husband and myself are early risers."

"Then I suppose, ma'am, one or the other of you will knock on my door?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Helpless.

"Mr. and Mrs. Blank had a falling out last night. I wonder if they are speaking to-day."

"Sure thing. Blank had to apologize before leaving for his office. He can't tie his own necktie to save his life!"—Detroit Free Press.

Fitted Her.

"My wife tells me that at the Woman's club the other afternoon your wife displayed a marvelous knowledge of parliamentary law."

"Well, great Scott! Why shouldn't she? She's been speaker of our house for 15 years."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Helping It Along.

Oldham—I have decided to lay my fortune at Miss Dimpleton's feet.

Youngun—Well, that ought to make it a trifle easier for her.

Oldham—Easier for her?

Youngun—Yes; to run through it.—Chicago Daily News.

His Spring Togs.

"Pretty swell outfit you have on," observed Galley as they met on the avenue.

"Yes," admitted his friend. "I bought this with the money I got from sueing a man. I call it my law-suit."—Detroit Free Press.

Not Yearning.

Don't you wish you were a careless, happy boy back on the farm?"

"No," answered the prosaic person. "I never dared be careless while I was on the farm, and I fail to see the happiness in stone bruises and prickly heat."—Washington Star.

The Hint Courteous.

Old Friend of Family (after the usual preliminary examination as to little Bobbie's age)—And now, my bright little fellow, how many dollars have you got in that bank of yours?

Little Bobbie—Five, goin' on six.—Puck.

Handy.

"What are you reading?"

"A book on learning how to swim. It's great. You tie it around your neck when you go in, then if you find yourself drowning you turn to page 57 and it tells you just what to do."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Lost Interest.

Redd—Does she take an interest in sports?

Greene—Not as much as she used to.

"How came she to lose interest?"

"She married one!" — Yonkers Statesman.

His Appropriate Name.

Hawley—I wonder why a dentist calls his office a dental parlor?

Smart—I don't know. Drawing-room would be more appropriate.—Tit-Bits.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1906. NO. 14.

1906			JULY			1906
SUN.	MON.	TUE.	WED.	THU.	FRI.	SAT.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21
22	23	24	25	26	27	28
29	30	31	○	◐	●	◑

SUMMARY OF A WEEK'S EVENTS

MOST IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS AT HOME TOLD IN CONDENSED FORM.

LATE FOREIGN DISPATCHES

Interesting Items of News Gathered from All Parts of the Globe and Outlined in the Briefest Manner Possible.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

The pure food bill was agreed upon by the conferees for the senate and house. The house bill was taken as a basis of agreement, and into this were grafted many of the important sections of the senate measure.

The general deficiency bill, the last of the big money measures, passed the house with few changes in the text of the bill. Several items were inserted due to late information of deficiencies in the departments, the net increase being about $600,000 over the bill as reported from the committee on appropriations.

President Roosevelt has approved the joint resolution of congress expressing the horror of the people of the United States as the result of the reports of the massacre of Hebrews in Russia and expressing sympathy with those bereaved.

The house emasculated the immigration bill of its most important features—the educational test and the five dollar head tax—and passed it without division. Instead of the educational test as demanded by the committee bill, the house provided that a commission should investigate the whole subject of immigration and report at the next session of congress. The head tax remains at two dollars, as at present.

A large number of bills were introduced in the two houses. The calendar records that the number has reached nearly 20,000,, 500 more than were introduced during the entire three sessions of the last congress.

Representative Lafean (Pa.) presented a resolution providing for a committee of five to make an investigation of a shoe contract recently awarded by the secretary of the navy.

The senate passed the bill authorizing the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railroad company to construct a bridge across Red river.

Mr. Wadsworth called up the partial conference report on the appropriation bill in the house and it was agreed to without discussion. Mr. Wadsworth's motion that the house further insist on its disagreement was adopted on a division, 175 to 43.

MISCELLANEOUS.

National prosperity far in advance of the highest known records is emphatically indicated in the crop estimate of H. V. Jones, crop estimator. The winter wheat production of the United States he gives as 420,000,000 bushels, 60,000,000 bushels over last year, and the record crop of winter wheat ever produced. Cotton and corn are in exceedingly good condition, and with a hot July and August may also break the record; but nothing but a wet harvest can lower the wheat crop, says the Jones estimate.

At Janesville, Wis., G. W. Hewitt, of Oshkosh, won the Wisconsin golf championship by defeating Hamilton Vose, of Milwaukee, R. P. Cavanaugh, of Kenosha, won the consolation prize, J. P. Baker, of Janesville, won the contest for golfers over 50 years old. G. H. Carter, of Janesville, won the all-day medal play contest.

Judge Britain R. Webb, for the past eleven years reporter for the courts of civil appeals at Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston and San Antonio, a lawyer of note, and the author of several law books, killed himself at Fort Worth.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the northern Illinois branch of the Young People's Christian union of the United Brethren church closed its session at Astoria. The subject of discussion of the convention was missions.

The differences which have existed between the coal operators and miners of the Michigan district since March have been settled.

On invitation of Emperor William, Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth took tea with him on board his American built yacht Meteor at Kiel.

THE GOTHAM TRAGEDY.

Stanford White, architect, millionaire and art connoisseur, attended the first performance of "Mlle. Champagne" at Madison Square roof garden, New York, and was assassinated by Harry K. Thaw, a Pittsburg millionaire, who alleges that his victim was intimate with Mrs. Thaw, who was formerly Evelyn Nesbit, a beautiful chorus girl.

Events which were shaped by Mrs. Harry D. Thaw in an effort to defend her husband for the murder of Stanford White in Madison Square roof garden, were regarded as supplying a more or less complete explanation of the crime. A letter was written by Stanford White to Mrs. Thaw. Mr. Thaw found the letter and there was thus revealed to him the fact that Stanford White persisted in pursuing his wife. Knowledge that Mrs. Thaw suffered the keenest anguish because of this continued pursuit apparently drove Thaw to insane frenzy.

As the authorities begin to inquire into the private life of White they no longer marvel that he was shot down. The investigation has already shown that there is an organized band of rich clubmen and artists who make victims of young girls of the stage, of the shops and of poorer homes. Their treatment of these girls, many of them mere children, is too brutal for description.

Harry Kendall Thaw was indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Stanford White on the Madison Square roof garden.

A bad wind storm struck the central part of Towner county, North Dakota, passing near Bisbee and Considine. Seven buildings were destroyed, and one man is said to have had his neck broken in the wreck of his home near Bisbee.

At the annual session of Imperial guild, Ancient Mystic Order of Bagmen of Bagdad, the social inner organization of the United Commercial Travelers, at Columbus, O., L. C. Pease, of Columbus, O., was elected imperial ruler.

A London art dealer has bought for $1,250,000 the celebrated Hainauer collection at Berlin of German and Italian art formed under the direction of Dr. Bode, of the Berlin museum.

That the Panama canal will be completed in eight years from the present time, is the belief of Chairman Shonts of the canal commission. Mr. Shonts made this prophecy just before sailing for the isthmus.

The $70,000 art collection of the late Harriet Lane Johnston, niece of President Buchanan, and mistress of the White House during his administration, will be preserved intact at the Smithsonian institution.

Four persons, two of them a bride and bridegroom of a day, were killed on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad at Gwynedd, Pa., by an excursion train which ran down their carriage at the station.

William Jennings Bryan was strongly indorsed as the standard bearer of the national wing of the Democratic party in the campaign of 1908 by the Wisconsin Democratic convention at Milwaukee.

Testimony on oil freight rates affecting seven southern states was taken at New Orleans by the interstate commerce commission. All the witnesses were independent oil dealers.

The infantry and cavalry school at Fort Leavenworth has closed.

Frank S. Galey, son of Mrs. Samuel Galey, widow of a millionaire oil operator, was arrested at Pittsburg charged with an attempt to rob the residence of James B. Laughlin, president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company.

The supervising architect of the treasury has completed the plans for the Jamestown monument, marking the place of the landing of the English. The monument is to be an exact miniature of the Washington monument. It will be 100 feet high.

A census bureau bulletin shows the number of paint manufacturing establishments in the United States in 1904 to have been 449, an increase of seven per cent. over 1900. The capital invested was $55,783,259, increase 31 per cent., and value of products $67,277,910, increase of 32 per cent.

The Cuban senate passed the house's Van Horne railroad subsidy bill, appropriating $6,000 per kilometer for the construction of 12 branch railroad lines which will be feeders for the Van Horne system.

Panic-stricken by a report that their children were to be secretly murdered by city physicians, thousands of mothers on the lower East Side, New York, stormed a dozen school buildings, snatching their offspring from beneath the teachers' eyes and creating scenes of riot and disorder seldom equaled even in that locality where riots are common.

Mrs. Christina Petsky, 70 years old, a widow, committed suicide on a hill at Argentine, Kan., by pouring gasoline on her clothing and setting fire to them.

Jere Dunn, a widely known man died at Elizabeth, N. J., of cancer. Some 20 years ago he achieved considerable notoriety by killing Jim Elliot, a noted pugilist, at Chicago.

Gen. Grosvenor, chairman of the house committee on mercahnt marine and fisheries, said the so-called ship subsidy bill will be reported to the house at the next session and he had no doubt of its passage at that session.

The labor troubles which have retarded building operations at St. Louis for the last three months and resulted in 6,000 men being out of work, were declared over by the building trades council.

Mrs. David Reed, sister of Gens. George A. and Thomas Custer, who were killed in the Indian battle of the Little Big Horn, in Montana, June 25, 1876, died at Monroe, Mich., aged 80 years.

Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, is seriously ill at her home in New York, and all of her public engagements have been cancelled.

Through the Japanese embassy the Red Cross has received another contribution of $36,000 for the relief of the San Francisco earthquake and fire sufferers, making the total subscription by the Japanese people $146,000.

Mrs. Harriet S. Huntington, mother of Henry Huntington, Willard V. Huntington and Mrs. E. Holladay, died at San Francisco after an illness of several weeks, aged 86 years. Her home for many years was in Oneonta, N. Y.

Six secret indictments have been returned against firms and members of firms of printing establishments for an alleged violation of the state antitrust and combination statue. It has been alleged that a combination exists among St. Paul printing establishments in the matter of presenting bids on state printing which is in effest a violation of this act.

At a meeting of the trustees of Oberlin college at Cleveland it was announced that all but $2,200 of the $500,000 additional endowment and equipment fund has been raised.

At a meeting of the Historical society of the Kentucky Baptist association at Richmond, Dr. A. Gattliff, of Williamsport, Ky., gave to the Baptist Educational society 4,000 acres of coal land in Whitley county worth $200,000.

Three miners lost their lives in the Monroe mine, near Duluth, owned by the United States Steel corporation. They were working in a drift when a blast brought down a mass of material which shut them off from escape.

King Edward has made an important concession to Jewish feeling. Courts hitherto always have been held on Fridays, precluding the presentation of Jews. By the king's command the third court of the season has been fixed for Thursday.

There were 26,420 printing and publishing establishments in 1904, an increase of 18 per cent. over 1900. The capital invested in 1904 was $384,021,359; increase of 31 per cent. Total value of products, $496,087,109; increase of 43 per cent.

The United Mine Workers' association of Illinois assessed fines of ten dollars each against 400 miners employed near Collinsville. When the mines resumed work the men refused to report because two mule drivers had been discharged.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dunbar is dead in the county infirmary at Grand Haven, Mich, aged 108. She was born in Antrim county, Ireland, and when 15 years of age witnessed the battle of Ballynahinch in County Down, Ireland.

Federal Judge McCormick of Dallas, Tex., issued an order restraining the railroad commission from enforcing its order to reduce fares on the Houston & Texas Central railroad from three cents a mile to two and one-half cents.

A largely attended meeting at Berlin expressed sympathy with the victims of the massacre and indignation at the atrocities and the hope that parliament will be able to punish the offenders.

J. P. Cudahy of the Cudahy Packing company, of Kansas City, said that the Louisville Packing company, which closed down Saturday night, is not a branch of the Cudahy Packing company.

King Haakon and Queen Maud received the several Norwegian-American delegations at Trondhjem. The entire court was present. The pilgrims from the United States spent 25 minutes with the king and queen.

The wearing of the insignia of the Grand Army of the Republic or other soldier organizations by others than members of the said organizations was made a misdemeanor with appropriate punishment.

Judge Jones, at Sioux City, Ia., approved the $25,000 bond upon which the state supreme court had ordered that Mrs. Kaufmann, accused of the murder of Agnes Polreis, her servant maid, should be released from jail.

A memorial presenting charges of oppression in office, and malfeasance, with general denial of justice against Charles Parlange, district judge of the eastern district of the United States court of Louisiana, has been received by Speaker Cannon.

John Esburg and Paul Ross were shot at Davenport, Ia., by "Cappy" Hoffman, who escaped. Esberg was shot through the heart, dying instantly. Rosa was shot in the stomach and will probably die. Esberg and Ross had been the aggressors.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

The Presidential Booms Beginning in Good Season—"Peerless Leader" —Possible Presidents—George Cortelyou Considered.

DEMOCRATIC

WASHINGTON.—Seldom in the history of the country have there been more presidential booms two years in advance of the nominating convention that there aro at the present time. As one star differeth from another star in glory, so one boom outshines another in the preparatory race. For the past two or three weeks the Bryan boom has eclipsed in interest and attention nearly every other one in either party. The suddenness with which it again sprang into bloom and the prominence the one time "Peerless Leader" of Democracy is achieving in his tour around the world have given the mention of his name unusual interest, but there are more than William J. Bryan in training for the Democratic nomination in 1908.

Congress affords quite a list of the distinguished Democrats who have their lightning rods erected for the electrical disturbance two years hence. There is young Senator Bailey, who is mentioned as the beau ideal of young Democracy and as Judge Parker has suggested that the Democrats go south of Mason and Dixon's line for a candidate, Mr. Bailey has been put well to the forefront. There is William R. Hearst of the house who is actively in the field, while Gov. Folk, of Missouri, and Mayor McClellan, of New York city, are having their booms.

On the Republican side there is no dearth of candidates at the present writing. Vice President Fairbanks is in it very strongly and if, for any reason he should drop out, his state of Indiana may push her boy orator, Senator Albert J. Beveridge. Then there are Secretaries Taft, Root and Shaw in the cabinet and Speaker Cannon up in the house, not to say anything about the persistent La Follette of Wisconsin. Senator Foraker, of Ohio, has his boosters as has also Gov. Cummins, of Iowa.

FROM STENOGRAPHER TO IMPORTANT PORTFOLIO IN CABINET.

PRESIDENTIAL PLUM

The three secretaries in the cabinet are not all the presidential probabilities now in Mr. Roosevelt's official family. There is a quiet, conservative but forceful young man at the head of the great post office department who is making somewhat of a record and attracting no little attention. This is the able and successful chairman of the Republican national committee, Hon. George Bruce Cortelyou whose public record reads like a romance and is an inspiration to every American youth. To rise from the humble position of stenographer to the fourth assistant postmaster general to one of the most important portfolios in the cabinet shows the possibilities of American public life and the ability of an American young man to accomplish that great progression.

Mr. Cortelyou is "attending to his knitting" very industriously and conscientiously. He is striving to make on of the best postmasters general the country has had just as earlier in his career he made one of the best stenographers in the service and later one of the best secretaries to the president that was ever in the White House. The presidential bee is not distracting George Cortelyou's attention from the manifold duties that rest upon his shoulders as a real, actual director of Uncle Sam's stupendous postal system.

There are a great many men in the Republican party who believe that the policy two years hence will be to nominate a man of conservatism and ability. They will want a man who is thoroughly acquainted with the machinery of government and who has had experience under administrations of widely differing character. They say they want a man who can perpetuate the best ideas of the Roosevelt administration and carry them out with the suavity and force of William McKinley. They say they want a man not so strenuous as Mr. Roosevelt, but one who will be as determined and they are looking to George Cortelyou as that man.

THE AIRSHIP WAS A NINE-DAYS' WONDER.

Washington had a genuine sensation a few days ago when an ariship paid a visit to the city and its operator sailed around the monument, alighted in the backyard of the White House, arose and flew up to the capitol where he circled around the great dome and then settled to the earth on the east front as gently and as gracefully as a butterfly on a flower. Other cities have witnessed these exhibitions and are somewhat blase on the subject of airships, but old, conservative Washington had not before experienced the thrill of this new invention. Washington does not consider it good form, anyway, to take up with new ideas until they have been tried out in other localities. The airship, therefore, was a nine days wonder to the inhabitants fo this dignified capital.

It was at the capitol that the airship caused the greatest excitement. The grave and reverend senators and members of the house became as curious and excited as schoolboys. They tumbled over each other to get a view of the strange visitor. The fact that the machine was to attempt the flight over the city had been well advertised and keen-eyed page boys had been stationed on the lookout for it. When they caught a glimpse of it circling around the monument they rushed in to the house and senate and the word was passed around in an instant "The ariship is coming." Old Senator Cullom and Senator Pettus, of Alabama, fairly ran a foot race to reach the balcony outside the senate chamber and they were joined shortly by all but five of the gray beards and the younger members of the senate.

NO CONEY ISLAND ATTRACTIONS AT WASHINGTON

POP CORN
WELL KILL IT WHILE WE'RE ABOUT IT
GREAT SHOW

There is probably no other city in the United States of the same population as Washington where popular amusements are less patronized than right here. While roller coasters, shoot-the-chute, side shows and all forms of amusements make their proprietors rich at Coney Island, Atlantic City, Pittsburg and at every popular resort, they are dismal failures when established in the suburbs of Washington. Most of the wage earners of this city are government employes and compared to the workers in other cities, particularly in manufacturing centers, they are mighty poor spenders. Out of curiosity the government clerk may take a trolley ride to the suburb and spend as much as half a dollar in some of these forms of amusement, but he does not go very often.

In manufacturing towns where the skilled workmen and even the laborers have a pocketful of money on Saturday evening they want to spend it on themselves and families and consequently they patronize these merry-go-rounds and tent shows to the limit. In the last half dozen years several popular amusement schemes have come to grief in the suburbs of Washington. This year a much more courageous syndicate established a "Luna park," but judging from the indifference of the government employes, that enterprise seems likely to follow the wake of its several predecessors. There is no summer season in Washington. Everybody gets away that is able to pay the price of transportation and board. The average government clerk skimps himself or herself during the rest of the year to accumulate a fund on which to cut a swell during the 30 days' annual leave they are granted by Uncle Sam.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

COURT DECIDES IN FAVOR OF DAIRY COMMISSION.

Suspected Murderers in Custody—Young Girl Disappointed —News in Brief.

St. Paul—The decision of the state supreme court Firday affirming the right of the state dairy and food commission to condemn "evaporated cream" unless it has 20 per cent of fat, will have far-reaching effects in the work of the commission. Commissioner E. K. Slater says it will be a big help in the work and give the officers authority to enforce some rulings which they have heretofore been somewhat dubious about. The principle established will apply to a large number of things besides evaporated milk. In fact, it gives the commission a right to declare illegal practically all goods which have deceptive labels.

The manufacturers in this evaporated cream case and in many food cases have contended that a name which was established as a label and trade-mark before the passage of the present food laws cannot be put under the ban by the commission. Many food products are sold under a name which is deceptive, although a label under it in finer print may correct any misstatement in the brand. The milk company involvel in this suit had "evaporated cream" in large letters on the can, and in smaller type stated that the contents is evaporated milk. The company argued that it complied with the law by stating that the product was evaporated milk and that the words "evaporated cream" is part of the trade-mark.

A Strange Visitor.

Duluth—A large bull moose made Duluth an early morning call. It ranged around the east end quite extensively from 3:30 to 4 o'clock. It was first seen at Eighteenth avenue east and Jefferson street, and from there cut across the block to the corner of Seventeenth avenue and Superior street, coming out by George Mance's residence.

The animal then proceeded on Superior street to Fifteenth avenue east, and from there to First street. It started to go west on First street but changed its mind and went to Second street, traversing the space between C. T. Fitzsimmons' dwelling and the one immediately west of it. After a roving on Second street the animal started to trot west with the graceful swinging gait peculiar to this monarch of the forest.

A Clue.

Minneapolis—The first real clue that has come to the police in connection with the murder of the six Macedonians whose dead bodies were found in a shanty on Tenth avenue south, near Washington avenue, March 21, was received from Cloquet.

According to a dispatch received from the chief of police of that place, five foreigners, believed to be Austrians, are in custody there for larceny, and two of the number answer the description given of the men supposed to be the murderers.

The two men whose descriptions have been sent broadcast as being the authors of the sextuple murder were picked up by the St. Paul police as suspicious characters within a few hours of the time the murder was actually committed.

Disappointed.

Duluth—Anna Macki, a young Finnish girl, came 4,000 miles to Duluth to wed one August Dagerman, whom she had gotten acquainted with through an advertisement he had inserted for a wife, in a Finnish newspaper printed in this country, and a copy of which had found its way to her in a small town in the interior of Finland. She arrived here yesterday and met the groom to be, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Christopher on St. Croix avenue.

The story as given by the police is that instead of being "single, well to do and good looking," as Dagerman had declared himself to be in the advertisement, he was dirty, unkept and a widower upward of 40 years old.

State Fair Program.

Hamline—Secretary E. W. Randall of the Minnesota state fair is making preparations for the publication of the official program of the fair of 1906. For a number of years the State Agricultural society has published the official program itself instead of disposing of a program concession as was formerly the practice. This is found to be a much more satisfactory arrangement and a handsome and useful program and souvenir of the fair is produced each year. The cover design this year will include an outline plat of the fair grounds. Inside will be a descriptive sketch of the grounds, buildings attractions, exhibits, etc., followed by a detailed daily program. Illustrations will be used freely.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The St. Paul lacrosse team defeats the Calumets of Chicago 5 to 3.

St. Paul—An aged lamp lighter is injured by the explosion of a gasoline street lamp.

Owatonna—The Minnesota state dairymen's picnic was held at Beaver Lake, a summer resort a few miles south of this city.

Mankato—Shores of Rapidan got two out of three falls from Jim Parr, the wrestler, at the opera house, in a match for $290 a side.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

SUNBEAMS SECOND YEAR.

With this issue we complete our first years publication in Red Lake County, and enter on our second year, with full confidence that THE SUNBEAM can take care of its self in the future, as well as it has done in the past. We have prehaps made some enemies since moveing up here, and have made a host of friends. While we do not wish to dig up a few small school boy rows that we have had since moving into your county, yet we can not but help say to the Editors of the Thief River Falls News and Plummer Pioneer. That our affiidavit of legal publication, is on file with the county auditor of Red Lake County, setting forth the fact that we are a legal publication and without the assistance of the auditor, who is not a paying subscriber to THE SUNBEAM, but without his subscription we think we have enough and to spare.

At this time we wish to extend our thanks to the old Polk County boys, who so loyaly stood by us in the hour of need, and will say in conclusion that Hunt don't forget.

Haldore E. Boen, of Furgus Falls who so woefully misrepresented this Congressional District, as a populist congressman, is again a candidate for election under the public ownership party

Well it helped some to have Boen in congress before, that is it helped Boen, as he started a bank after coming home and that about all we have heard about him since, however a man is not to blame for what he don't know and the people got onto his game and fired him, and they will keep him fired.

We have heard it rumord, that A.D. Stephens is going to run for state senator, from Polk County, which would of course mean that the common people will be defeated, in any legislation as to between them and the G. N. Ry. companys, as A. D. has a reputation of being a hustler in the legislature for the railroad companys, say you fellows down there in Polk, if you want to continue to pay 3 cents a mile instead of 2½, do what you can for the election of A. D. Stephens.

The attempted assassination of the king and queen of spain is being refurred to as the result of monarchy. It is with poor grace that Americans point the finger at Spain because of such tragic events, for our own land has not been free from the assassin's knife and bullets. America, the land of the free, is not without its Anarchists who would embrace an opportunity to throw a bomb at the nations' chief executive. That King Alphonso and his bride of a day escaped the assassin's aim is to be congratulated. The aim was not so much at Alphonso as at the king for the only reason that he is the ruler of Spain.

The true strength of every human soul is to be dependent on as many nobler as it can discern and to be depended upon by as many inferior as it can reach.

The world which took but six days to make is like to take 6,000 to make out.—Browne.

Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.—Pascal.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? yoy will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

The Solemn Back Bay Butler.

Some Boston editor intimated that Back Bay butlers made love to the housemaids. One of them has replied in defense of his class, and incidentally he shows how far culture has got down the back stairs of Boston society. He writes:

"I do not flirt with any of the female members of the household, and it is no exaggeration to say that I am not better than the average butler of the Back Bay, so far as morals are concerned. I have educated my boy in France and England and am now giving him a postgraduate course at an American college. Our feelings have been hurt by the article to which I refer, and we have undergone a great deal of mental suffering from the annoyance unwittingly caused us."

Little Kid Town.

Little Kid Town is a very queer place.
Just listen, and I'll tell you why;
'Cause it is built in any old place,
And the builders never do try

To fix things up as big folks do,
For their houses have never a door,
Only the sky is their roof overhead,
And the clean swept earth is their floor.

Small flat stones are their sofas and chairs,
A little old board makes a table,
A handful of straw is a fine feather bed
Or perhaps some straw from the stable.

The very "best blood" of Little Kid Town
Keeps a laundry a la Chi-nee;
With a cold flatiron, a tub and a board
He just makes believe to "wash-ee."
—Washington Post.

The Gesticulatory Language.

"Ah, bon jour, monsieur."

"Oh, talk English! It's too cold for French today. I want to keep my hands in my pockets."—Woman's Home Companion.

His Success.

"Your friend Little tells me he's got his wife pretty thoroughly trained now."

"Yes, he's got her trained so that he can make her do pretty nearly anything she wants to do."

Nemesis.

Nemesis is lame, but she is of colossal stature, and sometimes, while her sword is not yet unsheathed, she stretches out her huge left arm and grasps her victim. The mighty hand is invisible, but the victim totters under the dire clutch.—George Eliot.

Thrust Upon Him.

"How did stupid old Boresome ever get a reputation for wit?"

"He was once interviewed by a brilliant young reporter."—Minneapolis Journal.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th. 1906.
Department of the Interior.
Land Office at Crookston Minn. may 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 3rd, 1906 viz:

Iver A. Tasa.

H. E. No. 984 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 30 Tp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Thomas A. Tasa, Peter T. Quam, Iver Johnson, of Rudell Minn. Torger T. Elton Lillo Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 22, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H. E. No. 805, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O. Larson, Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, Minn. Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1st 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23rd. 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made befor L. G Browning a U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minnesota on July 5th, 1906 viz:

John S. Miller.

H. E. No. 1140 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N. R 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Martin C. Lund, Lars Runnestrand, Anton Knutson, Julius Hermanson, all of Brunkeberg, Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior.
Land Office at Crookston, Minn. May 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on July 10th, 1906 via:

Peter A. Kolstad,

H. E. No. 604 Red Lake Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 9 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Rogens, and Peter O. Brevik all of Germantown Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final prof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 8th 1906, viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series, for the Lot 1, 2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 158 N. R. 40 W

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. ontague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 25th 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz

Jerrie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1126 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 158 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees; James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on August 8th 1906, viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 581 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29, Tp. 158 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien; Patrick Sullivan; William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Pyland of Highlanding Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register.

A Sad Feature.

Jack—Engagement is off, eh? Has she sent him back the ring? Tom—No; that's what's bothering him. He owes money on that ring.—New York Press.

Wouldn't Miss It.

Maid—Are you at home to Mrs. Toney, mum? She's at the door. Mistress—I am if she has a new hat on—not otherwise.—Exchange.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 26 1906 viz:

Lars K. Vindlos.

H. E. No. 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 12 Sec. 22 Twp 153 N R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmond K. Vindlos, Ole Breiland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE. Register.

Notice for Publication

Fist Pub. June 1st 1906.
Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May, 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July, 20th, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl,

H. E. No. 933, Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 23th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H. E. No. 547, Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Per P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 18th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on July 10th 1906 Viz:

Peter O. Brevik.

H. E. No. 691 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 4 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole Wiseth, Otto Taralseth, Knud Hugens, Peter A. Kolstad, all of Germantown Minn'

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 20th 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on August 6th 1906, viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H. E. No. 808, Red Lake Series, for the S.W ¼ Sec. 4, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brunkeberg Minn, John Ofteldahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostvold, of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 22 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn. at Thief River Falls, Minn on August 6th 1906. viz:

John Rogers.

H. E. No. 7816 Chippewa Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 155 N. R. 37 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

George Cunningham, Charley Clark, Jorgen Jelle, William Lillemoen all of Jelle Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 9, 1906 viz:

Julius Halvorson.

H. E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Liot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnston, Ole Vattendahl of Highlanding Minn. Oscar Swanson of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
98
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a complete line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.00

Call and see me for bargains, at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable prices. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster, Sec. 20 T. 153 R. 40

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Haying will soon commense.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

The weather has been extreamely warm, since July 2nd.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Joe McAndrees of St. Hilaire is visiting his brother Walt, this week.

There will be a meeting of The Red Lake River Transportation Co. at Sunbeam on Sunday next.

Miss Mary Galipean of Thief River Falls, is visiting at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Eve this week.

P. Sullivan and A. Eves ferry is running in full blast now and anyone can get across the river at that point.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Rev. E.A. Mostue, of Deer Park township passed by here yesterday on his way to Thief River Falls, on a business trip.

The Clearwater creamery is now running full blast, and as it is the first one to be built on the Eleven towns, it should have a share of your patronage.

The practice that some of our country merchants have of running a saloon in connection with their groceries is liable to be an expensive experiment.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. George Singer on Saturday evening a son, of standard weight, mother and son doing finely, and George saying I told you I was'nt dead yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown, and Agnes O'Brien, of Cavalier N.D. are visiting Jerry, and Kate O'Brien, the whole party will go on an excursion to Red Lake, next week.

Pat Sullivan and crew of log drivers passed by here Sunday on their way to the outlet to take down the Grand Forks drive, chief cook Swanson was in charge of the cooking department, and the boys looked to be well fed. The outfit was being towed up river by the gritty little Dan Patch in charge of Captain Houg

DEER PARK.

Mrs. N.A. Swanson and children returned home last Wednesday from a weeks visit with friends and relatives over in Garnes.

Thor O. Moen was down to Fosston, last week and brought home his two daughters, Annie and Bargina, and they will now stay at home for some time.

Our school will close here on the 10th, and teacher Grundeson has tought a two months term of successfull school, and has had a large attendance.

Our corspondant took in the sights of Plummer, last Friday, roads was good, and crops looked splendid along the way.

Chas. Swanson our town assessor, was down to Red Lake Falls last Wednesday, with the assessment books.

Sam B. Swanson is making great preparations in the line of groceries ect., as he is going to start batching this week.

How did you celebrate the 4th? Have you had time to shake off the gog jet.

Ben Kviste of Highlanding got lost the other day, after taking in the boat meeting at Sunbeam and some how he happened to stray through a portion of Deer Park, but found his way to a place where he knew there would be coffee on tap, which he got, since then we have not heard from Ben, but hope that he will get strayed again.

DR. C.O. HOUGLAND.

Dr. O.O. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather indications on the morning of July 4th, there was a large number of the 11 towns settlers come together at the picnic, at this place The oration of the day was delivered by Thomas Germo, of Red Lake Falls and was highly apreaciated by all who had the pleasure of listening to it. He was acompanyed by his wife Mrs. Germo who enjoyed the pioneer celebration after her arrival, but did not have much words of praise for the condition of the roads between here and Red Lake Falls, at the present time.

The afternoons entertainment consisted of dancing at the bowery and excursion boat riding on the Dan Patch up and down the river, with captain Houg in charge, which was a sure guaranteed of no accidents.

HABITS OF THE RICH.

Samples of Millionaire Extravagance In the Metropolis.

Zola in his youth, before fame came to him, wrote some stories about millionaires, wherein it seemed to him he exaggerated shamefully in his descriptions of the costly homes and habits of the rich, but later on, when Zola became a friend of millionaires, he found that his accounts of their extravagance had fallen far short of the truth.

In the same way stories about the extravagance of American millionaires that sound like exaggerations may also fall short of the truth. Here, for instance, are some facts that an interior decorator of New York supplied the other day. They sound extreme, but let Zola be remembered.

A man bought for his hall twelve antique marble columns at Pompeii. Finding he could use only eight of the columns he had the remaining four destroyed, although he was offered for them twice what he had paid. He had paid $5,000 apiece.

Aubusson carpets, with a pile three inches thick, are often made to order at a cost of $40 a yard. Such a cost, though, is nothing beside what is ordinarily paid for antique rugs. They, measured by the yard, often cost $500 or $600 a yard.

Chairs of ivory inlaid with wood are occasionally sold at $500 apiece.

One millionaire's piano cost $150,000. A five inch band of ivory, four years in the carving, runs around the case, which was decorated by Everett Shinn.

The gold and silver plate of one household requires an expert to look after it. The man is a goldsmith, and his salary is $2,000 a year.

Billiard rooms sometimes cost $50,000 to furnish. The tables and cues are inlaid with ivory and gold.

Certain wines—Schloss Johannesberg, for instance, stamped with the crest of Prince Matternich—are sold at private sales to millionaires for $40 and $50 a bottle.

Automobiles of ninety or more horsepower, made to order, will cost from $30,000 to $40,000. Some millionaires keep a dozen or more automobiles, with a head chauffeur at $4,000 or $5,000 a year salary and two or three assistants at $25 a week each.

Then there is the ocean going yacht, which cannot be maintained in the most modest way at a smaller annual expenditure than $25,000.—New York Press.

A PESSIMIST'S QUESTIONS.

Why is it that a cleaning of windows is the signal for a rainstorm?

Why is John always late the night the cook is out and visitors are expected in the evening?

And why, oh, why, do visitors always come the one afternoon in the week when one is not dressed to receive them?

Why does a woman think she has so much better taste than her richer neighbor if she but had as much money to gratify it?

Why is it that a leak in the pipe is always discovered Saturday afternoon, when a plumber cannot be found until Monday morning?

Why is it that when one has made a purchase one sees ten minutes later something else which would have been better or cheaper or more becoming?—Philadelphia Ledger.

Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.—Pascal.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston June 29 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O Nesja.

H. E. No. 661 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, 8½ of N.E.¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153, N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan.

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation, of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Lander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn, Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th. 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz:

Tollef B. Nesland.

H.E. No. 646 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole o. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

The English Police.

In the conduct of the police department in an English city we find a striking comparison with our American notion of police work. In Manchester, as in London, the policeman is always the servant of the public. As in London, he carries neither club nor revolver. His duties are very nearly the same as those of a New York officer. It is in his method of doing his work that the striking difference lies. He is always quiet, always neat, always respectful, even deferential, in his treatment of the public. Such overbearing manners as we sometimes see in New York policemen would not be tolerated in Manchester—or in London, for that matter.—Success.

Origin of "Chauffeur."

There were chauffeurs long before automobiles. History tells us that about the year 1795 men strangely accoutered, their faces covered with soot and their eyes carefully disguised, entered by night farms and lonely habitations and committed all sorts of depredations. They garroted their victims, dragged them before a great fire, where they burned the soles of their feet and demanded information as to the whereabouts of their money and jewels; hence they were called "chauffeurs," a name which frightened so much our good grandmothers.—Paris Figaro.

Child Love.

Welcome to the parents the puny struggler, strong in his weakness, his little arms more irresistible than the soldier's, his lips touched with persuasion which Chatham and Pericles in manhood had not. His unaffected lamentations when he lifts up his voice on high, or, more beautiful, the sobbing child, the face all liquid grief, as he tries to swallow his vexation, soften all hearts to pity and to mirthful and clamorous compassion.—Emerson.

Merely a Precaution.

"Now, Lester," said the old codger, addressing his callow nephew in an admonitory tone, "it is as proper that you should pay the fiddler as it is to liquidate any other debt, but it's a fine exhibition of extry width betwixt the eyes to inquire the fiddler's price before the dance begins."—Puck.

Use your gifts faithfully and they shall be enlarged. Practice what you know and you shall attain to higher knowledge.—Arnold.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 3, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster, Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Publication June 1st 1903.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 25th.1908.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on July 6th, 1900 viz:

Christen Gemmestad.

H.E. no. 324 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 18 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Samuel Miller, Jake Dunn, Ole Oresen, of Brunkeberg Minn. Peter Hunstad, of Kuehnel Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th.1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. on July 2th, 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. No. 718 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn., William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. May 25th, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. May 21st, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minnesota, on July 9th, 1906 viz:

Bennie P. Bustad.

H.E. No. 901, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 8 Tp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

William A. Swanson, Martin E. Hyland, George Singer, Ole G. Skerland, all of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. BISHOP, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz:

Alfred Bakke.

H.E. no. 389 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oreson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver of the U. S. land Office at Crookston Minn on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H.E. No. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3.4 5, 6, Sec. 29 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Parsee Burial Customs.

A Bombay correspondent, writing of the burial customs of the Parsees, says: "The approach of that transition we call death is a signal for the relatives to leave the presence of the dying one, the priest alone remaining to whisper Zend-Avesta precepts into his ear. He in turn passes out of the room and admits a dog, who is trained to gaze steadily into the face of the dying one. A dog is accounted the only living creature that can terrorize the evil spirits, so the 'sas-did,' or 'dog stare,' is the last sight the Parsee has on earth. No human shadow must intervene; otherwise the guardian virtue of the dog's gaze is annulled."

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE
Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer. Edward Singer.

SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,

WORKING MEN'S Northland
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.
Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.
HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE.
Rhoda, Minn.

60 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Dawn of Christmas.

Christmas day begins in the middle of the Pacific ocean on the one hundred and eightieth parallel of latitude, and there is where Santa Claus starts and ends his great and only journey of the year.

A Gallery of Forgeries.

Paris possesses a very fine gallery of modern masters, largely of the Barbizon school, not one of which is genuine. It is to the painter Harpignies that France is indebted for this queer collection of the spurious. Passing through the Rue de Vaugirard one day, his eye caught some canvases in a window. They were all signed by prominent names, including his own, and every signature was forged. Passing inside, the list became more extensive, and the painter found himself in the presence of false Corots, Diazes, Daubignys, Lancrets, Isabeys, Neuvilles and even English Turners. The revelation of his own identity enabled Harpignies to become possessed of this collection for something less than the proverbial old song, and it may now be inspected by those interested in such matters at the state furniture depot, where it is preserved as a kind of high water mark in sophistication.

Why Pay Cash
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $19.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE
Of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES,
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $6.25 up.
We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to honorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.
Write for Information and Free Catalogue
THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
51-63 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

Mutual.

Mrs. Kratchett—Bridget, I don't like the looks of that man who called to see you last night. Bridget—Well, well ain't it funny, ma'am? He said the same about you.—Philadelphia Ledger.

His Aim.

"What will be your chief aim now you are in congress?" asked the interviewer.

"To stay here," answered the laconic young statesman.—Exchange.

Not Either as Yet.

"Er—I want some sort of a present for a young lady."

"Sweetheart or sister?"

"Er—why, she hasn't said which she will be yet."

Couldn't Lose Her.

Hewitt—I hear that your servant was blown up by kerosene. Jewett—She'll be back. I owed her a week's wages.—New York Press.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE"

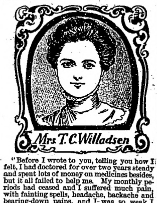
PRAISE FOR A FAMOUS MEDICINE

Mrs. Willadsen Tells How She Tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Just In Time.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.



Mrs T. C. Willadsen

"Before I wrote to you, telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money on medicines besides, but it all failed to help me. My monthly periods had ceased and I suffered much pain, with fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing-down pains, and I was so weak I could hardly keep around. As a last resort I decided to write you and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful that I did, for after following your instructions, which you sent me free of all charge, I became regular and in perfect health. Had it not been for you I would be in my grave to-day.

"I sincerely trust that this letter may lead every suffering woman in the country to write you for help as I did."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of an organ, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse all substitutes.

For 25 years Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction, and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BRIGHT BITS BY THE WITS.

Will & Must hold a mortgage on success.

The busybody butts in without any ifs or buts.

Charity begins at home, but if it is the real brand it soon outgrows its native place.

It is hard to work much confidence in a man who wears a ring on his middle finger.

A man's knowledge cannot be judged by the fool things he says when in love.

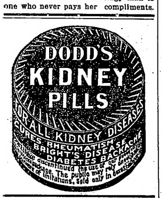
The golden calf will always be worshiped, though it wear the tail of a monkey or the ears of an ass.

Knew His Place.

"What did you think of your daughter's graduation essay?"

"I didn't permit myself to think about it," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I simply did my duty and admired it."—Washington Star.

A woman's idea of a stingy man is one who never pays her compliments.



EDUCATIONAL.

The Greatest Boarding College in the World

University of Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

We guarantee two points: Our students study and our students behave themselves

18 Buildings 75 Professors 800 Students

Courses in Ancient and Modern Languages, English, History, and Economics, Chemistry, Biology, Pharmacy, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, Architecture, Law, Shorthand, Book-keeping, Type-writing.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BOYS UNDER THIRTEEN

TERMS: Board, Tuition, and Laundry, $400. Send ten cents to the Secretary for Catalogue

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

SUMMERING OF HOGS.

Experience of a Missouri Farmer—How He Arranged His Farm for the Animals.

Last fall our 13 sows saved over 100 pigs, and all of these, except the few which have been sold at extra prices for breeding purposes, are ready for market, writes a Missouri correspondent of Farm and Home. An aged sow was sold and the remaining dozen gave nearly 100 pigs this spring. The cut shows the 40-acre farm cross-fenced into four equal squares. The southeast quarter is further divided into a three-acre barn lot, a blue grass pasture, d, of about equal size, a somewhat smaller piece containing orchard and garden, and along the west side a 60-foot lane from the house to the barn. The fences are of hog-tight wire.

For three yars the house quarter, c, has been in grass. This field is roughly divided by a ditch into two parts of four and six acres respectively. The former is in red clover and the latter in alfalfa. Since its first year this meadow has been pastured considerably, but with so much care that it has steadily improved. The orchard, also, of 1½ acres, is in clover.

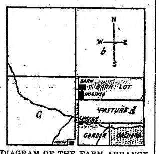

DIAGRAM OF THE FARM ARRANGEMENT.

The northwest field, a, is to be in corn this summer. The whole upper half of the farm furnished rye pasture all winter, and to May, when the fattening hogs were restricted to the barn lot and soil-fed with fresh alfalfa and clover. With the advent of spring the slop feed of the fall pigs is gradually changed to whole grain, and during the last few weeks of feding the variety of grain gives way to corn alone. All of the swine have access to coal, salt, ashes and charcoal.

Toward the latter part of the winter, the brood sows were separated from the younger hogs and confined to the lane. When the ground was not soft they were allowed to run by themselves in one of the fields. It is always planned that the spring pigs shall come between March 15 and May 1.

Until the pigs are weaned the brood sows are kept in the grassy lane and allowed to use the pens which are floored. During this time they are supplied once a day with all the green alfalfa and clover they will eat, provided with an abundance of water to drink and slopped heavily morning and evening. Oats and corn, with a little bean meal, are used for the slop, which is never cooked, but is made with warm water on chilly days.

When the pigs are old enough to begin eating they are fed skim milk in a trough by themselves. Water and ground feed are added whenever the milk is insufficient.

During April, May and June a small opening in the fence will give the spring pigs a chance at the meadow, providing them with pasture, adding fertility to the field, and not materially lightening the hay crop. By the middle of June the youngest litter will have been weaned. As each sow is taken from her pigs she is removed to the orchard.

The boar receives less corn than the sows, but otherwise is fed about the same. Most of the time he is kept by himself and usually with more than one fence between him and the other breeding stock. The lane is his runway sevral months in the year. At other times he occupies the orchard, eats blue grass in the cow pasture, or occasionally has to be confined to his pen for short periods.

During July and part of August the shotes will be confined to the barn lot, but for a time in the latter month, they will be allowed to pasture on peas and beans in the corn field. They will enjoy this freedom as long as they do not molest the corn. After that they will spend several weeks in the barn lot again, with some opportunity of gleaning in the field of soiling crops.

During the hot weather the swine of all ages have an abundance of shade. As at other times, they also have plenty of water to drink, but none in which to wallow. The breeding animals are fed grain, but not much corn except when it is needed to put or keep them in fair flesh. The growing pigs are given slop until new corn is ready. The constituents of this slop are varied to make, with whatever soiling crops are at hand, a balanced ration.

The barn lot and the lane, which contain some forest trees, are always available for the hogs and there is a constant supply of alfalfa and clover for any emergency. While at times nearly all the swine run together, yet their grain feed is given to them in the stationary troughs of the pens in the hog shed. Every animal is a pet and each one knows to what bunch he belongs. In this way, those of like age and size are fed together and special attention is given to the ones that need it, in order to have a fairly even drove at selling time.

TORTURED WITH GRAVEL.

Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills, Not a Stone Has Formed.

Capt. S. L. Crute, Adjt. Watts Camp, U. C. V., Roanoke, Va., says: "I suffered a long, long time with my back, and felt draggy and listless and all the time. I lost from my usual weight, 225, to 170. Urinary passages were too frequent and I had to get up often at night. I had headaches and dizzy spells also, but my worst suffering was from renal colic. After I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I passed a gravel stone as big as a bean. Since then I have never had an attack of gravel, and have picked up to my former health and weight. I am a well man, and give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for it."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WAS NOT IMPRESSED.

Country Hotelkeeper Not at All Awed by the Dignity of the Governor of the State of Ohio.

They tell this one on former Gov. George Hoadley of Ohio, says Judge.

Once upon a time, in the midst of a campaign, Mr. Hoadley was to deliver a speech at a little town in the great and glorious Buckeye state. When he reached the one hotel the town boasted he walked up to the register and wrote his name. The proprietor - head - porter - steward-head-waiter-depot-runner was behind the desk in his shirt sleeves, his hat on the back of his head, and a cigar stump held between his teeth. When the visitor had put down his John Hancock, the factotum turned the register around, read without a flicker of an eyelid the name there written, wrote "10" beside it with a lead pencil and said:

"You kin jest take yer grip right up that stairway there an' back down th' hall clean to th' end. Yer room's right on th' lifet-hand side of th' hall, in th' corner—No. 10."

With considerable astonishment and not a little injured dignity, Ohio's chief executive pointed to his name, smiled faintly, and said:

"I am George Hoadley, governor of the state of Ohio!"

Turning then with a look of exasperated impatience on his face, the hotel man exclaimed:

"Well, what d'ye expect me t' do—kiss ye?"

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

The trade of Chili is almost entirely in the hands of Europeans.

France imported $300,000 worth of apples from Canada last summer and fall.

In 1904 Denmark sent to England over 85,000 tons of butter, valued at $45,000,000.

It is thtimated that 1,000,000 tons of steel rails for 1907 delivery are under negotiation, and that fully half that tonnage has already been placed.

It is said that the hides of American live cattle sent to England to be killed and eaten are by prearrangement all sent back across the Atlantic, there to be tanned, and, mayhap, reshipped to England as leather or in boots and shoes.

Shipments of anthracite coal during May amounted to 3,254,320 tons, against 6,005,158 tons in May last year. For the year, to date, the shipments aggregate 19,709,783 tons, contrasted with 24,872,954 tons in the corresponding period last year.

Women Want Much.

Skoller—Of course, the generic term "man" includes the women—

Maryat—Not always.

Skoller—O! yes. You see—

Maryat—Nonsense! For instance, the sentence, "Man wants but little here below," would be ridiculous in that case.—Washington Star.

Some men are considered smart because they are able to talk well, but some others are smarter because they are able not to talk.

CLEVER DOCTOR.

Cured a 20 Years' Trouble Without Any Medicine.

A wise Indiana physician cured 20 years' stomach disease without any medicine as his patient tells:

"I had stomach trouble for 20 years, tried allopathic medicines, patent medicines and all the simple remedies suggested by my friends, but grew worse all the time.

"Finally a doctor who is the most prominent physician in this part of the state told me medicine would do me no good, only irritating my stomach and making it worse—that I must look to diet and quit drinking coffee.

"I cried out in alarm, 'Quit drinking coffee!' why, 'What will I drink?'

"'Try Postum,' said the doctor, 'I drink it and you will like it when it is made according to directions, with cream, for it is delicious and has none of the bad effects coffee has.'

"Well, that was two years ago, and I am still drinking Postum. My stomach is right again and I know doctor hit the nail on the head when he decided coffee was the cause of all my trouble. I only wish I had quit it years ago and drank Postum in its place." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Never too late to mend. Ten days trial of Postum in place of coffee works wonders. There's a reason.

Look in pkgs. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

FOR WINDOW GARDENS.

Provide Good Drainage for the Boxes—Fill About Two-Thirds Full of Light Soil.

Vines and trailing plants are the best for window boxes, and only those which endure hardship with impunity are recommended. The variegated vinca, German ivy, cobaea scandens, yonicera reticulata aurea and variegated trailing abutilon will meet the requirements and should be planted thickly enough to entirely cover the front of the box.

Of the common flowering and foliage plants these may be used: Fuchsias, geraniums, petunias, cupheas, ivy geranium, marguerite, blue ageratum, yellow and some of the fancy leaved varieties of coleus. The common sweet alyssum and blue lobelias are very pretty, but last a shorter time.

Persons who have a shaded veranda not much exposed to the wind can obtain beautiful effects by planting together red begonia and ferns of the stronger growing kinds. Use medium sized Boston ferns and nephrolepis cordata and larger plants of the holly fern. For trailing ferns the variegated nepeta and asparagus sprengeria do well.

The window box, carefully made, with plenty of holes bored in the bottom for good drainage, should be filled two-thirds full of soil when ready for planting. Set the plants deep enough so that their roots are well covered with earth. Any unevenness on the surface should be filled in with loose soil after the plants are set.

Light soil, preferably one that has been mixed thoroughly with well-rotted manure is best for a window box. —Brooklyn Eagle.

THE WINTER BLANKETS.

Some Housewives Prefer to Wash When the Summer Sun Is Hot—How to Pack Away.

If you have been delayed in packing away the heavy winter clothing of the family, or in having blankets washed, it is a good time to finish up the job this month. Many particular housewives prefer waiting for the hottest of summer suns to dry and sweeten freshly washed blankets, and this is a good time to have such work done.

Then, in laying them away, as the moth miller has laid its eggs long since, try wrapping articles in freshly printed newspapers; moths particuularly dislike printers' ink, and will not devour anything smelling of it, so the papers, the newer the better, may be used, as they are plentiful in almost every house.

If this is done in June, everything should be taken out, shaken, beaten, aired and sunned, about the second week in July; once again during August and once more in September; fresh papers are then used in rewrapping the parcels, and when the time comes to use the garments and bedding there is no awful smell to endure for the ensuing several weeks.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WHAT'S A GOOD POTATO?

Of Poor Quality When the Starch Is Not Dense—When Center Is Watery, Poor Cooker.

Most people, I suppose, take it for granted that the best potatoes are the ones that contain the most starch. On the contrary, it is the ones that contain the most gluten, because gluten is an albuminous food and starch is much cheaper than albumen.

First comes the skin of the potato. In a new potato it is thin and clear; while a corky skin indicates a mature potato, and one more likely to be mealy.

Second is a thin layer varying from one-eighth of an inch to one-half an inch in thickness. This is the gluten.

Third comes the largest part of the potato—the starch. If this is very dense the potato will be mealy, but if non-uniform the potato will be of poor quality.

Fourth is the very center of the tuber, which contains little starch and a great deal of water. If this area branches out into the starch the potato will not be a good cooker.—Garden Magazine.

Spiced Meat.

Take any kind of cold roast meat, cut it into exceedingly thin slices of about an inch across, season well, pour over it enough wine, gravy and melted butter to moisten, place in buttered scallop shells, sprinkle breadcrumbs thickly on top and place in a hot oven until well browned. Some sliced mushrooms are a great improvement. Cold rabbit, sweetbreads, poultry, calf's brains, veal and different kinds of fish are especially adapted for coquilles. Serve in the shells.

Puree of Chicken.

Although the caption says "chicken," a fowl is just as well, since it is to be cut into pieces and boiled with an onion, a carrot, and a clove till tender, so tender, indeed, that the meat slips from the bones. Pound this meat then till very fine, and with the water in which it was boiled press through a sieve. Heat up and add a pint of cream, salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Thicken with the yolks of four eggs beaten in a little cream.

Rubber Plants.

Sponge off the leaves of a rubber plant with milk; it makes them glossy and bright. A good tonic for the rubber plant is to dig a circle around its roots and put in a tablespoonful of castor oil once a month.

WIFEY'S LITTLE HINT.

Gentle Lesson, But the Probabilities Are It Cured Hubby of Staying Out Late.

It came about this way. The man, although a good fellow and well liked, managed to evade the women until he was steered against a widow, who won him hands down in three months. For a long time he was one of the model men of the city, and all the young married women held him up as a Ladies' Home Journal sample of manhood, but later he began staying out after ten o'clock and finally became so bold and hardened to feminine scoldings and pleadings that he had been known to barely get home in time for breakfast.

The other morning at three o'clock he turned the corner leading to his home and was surprised to see a light in the window. Thinking that his wife might be sick, or that something else equally as terrible might have happened, he quickened his step and burst into the door to find his wife sitting in the parlor dressed in black.

"What's the matter, dear?" he murmured, all out of breath.

"Oh, nothing," was the calm reply, "I'm just mourning for my late husband."

Allen S. Olmsted Wins in Court—The Foot-Ease Trade-Mark Sustained.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Supreme Court has granted a permanent injunction with costs against Paul B. Hudson and others of New York City, restraining them from making or selling a foot powder which the court declares is an imitation and infringement on "Foot-Ease," now so largely advertised and sold over the country. The owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease," is Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., and the decision of this suit upholds his trademark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing on the market the spurious and similar appearing preparation involved in the case. This the court declares was designed in imitation and infringement of the genuine "Foot-Ease" trade-mark rights. Each package of the genuine Allen's Foot-Ease has the facsimile signature of Allen S. Olmsted on its yellow label.

Safe Deposit.

Of Marshal Field III. an amusing story was recently told at Lakewood. The boy, according to the story, approached an old lady in a Lakewood hotel and said to her:

"Can you crack nuts?"

"No, my dear, I can't," the old lady replied. "I lost all my teeth years ago."

"Then," said the little boy, extending two hands full of walnuts, "please hold these while I go and get some more."—Denver Times.

Feel the Ground Slipping.

First Neighbor—The Snobsons over there on the corner are losing their money.

Second Neighbor—How do you know?

First Neighbor—Why, because they have begun to bow to all the neighbors, and they never noticed anyone around here before.—Detroit Free Press.

Heading Him Off.

Browne—But why do you ask me to lend him a dollar as a personal favor to you? Are you under obligation to him?

Towne—No; but if you don't he'll come to me for it.

FITS, St. Vitus Dance and all Nervous Diseases permanently cured by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for Free $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ld., 931 and 933 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa

Some men would be happy if they possessed the ability to do others as others do them.—Chicago Daily News.

FACTS GUARANTEED

Neuralgia and Anæmia are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

For nearly a generation the people of this country have known Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, during which time proof of thousands of cures by this remedy has been published and confirmed and not one person has been harmed in the slightest degree by their use. The pills contain no opiate, narcotic or stimulant, nor any drug which could injure the most delicate constitution.

"For over a year," says Miss Charlotte Van Salisbury, of Castleton, N.Y., "I suffered from neuralgia and palpitation of the heart. My skin was pale and sallow and I was troubled with dizziness, fainting spells and fits of indigestion. I was very nervous and would start at the slightest sound. At times a great weakness would come over me and on one occasion my limbs gave way under me and I fell to the sidewalk.

"Of course I was treated by our local physicians and also consulted a noted doctor at Albany, but nothing they gave me seemed to benefit me. One day I read in a newspaper about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I immediately gave them a trial. I soon felt much better and my color had begun to return. I continued using the pills and by the time I had taken eight boxes I was entirely cured.

"My sister, Sarah Van Salisbury, suffered terribly from anæmia. She was pale and thin and we feared that she would become a victim of consumption. She tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and in a short time she began to gain in strength and weight. She is now strong and well and we both heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are in ill health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. Descriptive pamphlets free on request.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

DAISY FLY KILLER

PLUMBING SCHOOL

WE TEACH YOU THE PLUMBING TRADE. Pays best wages, insures steady work, makes you independent. Write today. PLUMBING SCHOOL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864.

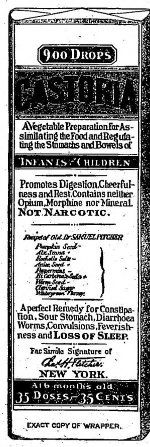
MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 900 14th St., Washington, D. C. PENSIONS

Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

PATENTS 48-page book FREE, highest references. FITZGERALD & CO., Box K, Washington, D.C.

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W. K. LaCrosse, Wis.

A. N. K.—G (1906—27) 2133.



900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS & CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed-
Alx. Senna +
Rochelle Salts-
Anise Seed +
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda +
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. NEW YORK.

At 6 months old 35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY. NEW YORK CITY.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

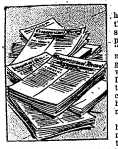
THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JULY 13, 1906. NO. 15.

Gossip of Washington

Both House and Senate Buckled Down to Work at the Session Just Closed—Secretary Busby Great Aid to Speaker Cannon—Senator Crane of Massachusetts Soon to Be Married.



WASHINGTON.—The session of congress that has just ended eclipsed anything in the history of that body in the amount of debate held in various subjects. No previous session of congress ever produced as many words for the Congressional "Record," although many of them lasted three months longer than this one. In no previous congress did the house and senate buckle down to work so assiduously as they have done since last December. There were very few idle days since the session began on the first Monday of last December and the unusual spectacle of night sessions held a month or two before adjournment was witnessed.

Ordinarily congress does not get down to real hard work in the long session for two or three months. It is usually the custom for both houses to adjourn from Thursday to Friday in the first months of the session, but this session the house has a record of adjourning only three Saturdays. It adjourned three times on account of the death of members. The rest of the time it put in good, hard, solid work, meeting frequently at eleven o'clock in the morning and continuing until six o'clock and in the last few weeks holding night sessions. The official stenographers of the house report that three times as many words were spoken on the floor during this session as there were during the first session of the Fifty-first congress which lasted until the first of October.

There were more committee hearings held this session than ever before known, both in the house and senate, and it is estimated that all the words taken down by official stenographers on the floor of the two houses and at the committee hearings and that have been printed in the Congressional Record and in committee reports will number about 40,000,000. This breaks the world's record for "heap big talk."

"UNCLE JOE" A MARVEL OF ENDURANCE.

One of the wonderful things about this very industrious session is that the unusual work of the house was inspired and directed by a man 70 years of age. Speaker Joseph G. Cannon celebrated his 70th birthday on the seventh day of last May, but he has been the one great controlling spirit in the accomplishment of business in the house. While he has not been a czar as some of his disappointed opponents are inclined to charge, he has looked into every bit of legislation that has passed and has consulted with all his committee chairmen regarding the measures before them and he has been appealed to as the one man above all others who had the greatest influence in legislation. There is great power lodged in the hands of the speaker by the rules of the house and its equitable exercise requires a man of strong character.

"Uncle Joe's" time has been fully occupied and not even the president has had greater drafts upon his physical endurance in the way of meeting people, holding audiences and listening to appeals. For weeks and months before adjournment it was a customary thing to for two or three anxious congressman to call around at Mr. Cannon's house before breakfast. They have literally "roosted" on his doorstep. Late at night they have waited on his front stoop for him to return from some social function in order to get his ear for some legislative favor. At his office in the capitol he always was surrounded by a half dozen or more members soliciting recognition and other favors.

The speaker has come out of this in fine physical condition and there is no wonder that his friends are enthusiastic in boosting him for the presidency two years hence. They declare that with him age does not count and any man who can bear the burdens of the speakership of the house of representatives and come out of a seven months' session of congress smiling, buoyant, enthusiastic and with a color in his cheek that a maid might envy, is plenty young enough to undertake the office of president of the United States.

THE POWER OF THE PRIVATE SECRETARY.

CANNON
PRIVATE

While "Uncle Joe" has been much in the limelight and the public has been engaged with his accomplishments and wondering how he could get through with so much work and handle 386 members of the house with so little friction, those who are acquainted with the inner workings of congressional life know that the speaker owes much of his success and a great deal of his good health to the work and solicitude of his secretary, L. White Busbey. Those who know from the inside the careers of public men are aware of how much the latter owe to their private and confidential secretaries. The secretary to the president can make the latter popular or unpopular. The same is true of the secretary to the speaker of the house of representatives.

Mr. Busbey who had been in journalism for a quarter of a century, all of which time was spent on one Chicago newsaper, was chosen by Mr. Cannon as his secretary when he first became speaker. The old newspaper man fell naturally and gracefully into the position and now "Uncle Joe" says that if he could not have Busbey at his right hand he would resign the speakership. His newspaper career gave Mr. Busbey a knowledge of public men and affairs that has proved invaluable to him in his present place. He knows every man worth knowing in public life, and more than that, he is a keen reader of character and a natural born diplomat. Before the congressmen can get audience with the speaker they must come up against Mr. Busbey and the latter is perfectly able to judge whether the matter they wish to discuss with the speaker is really important enough to bring to the latter's attention. Nine times out of ten Mr. Busbey can arrange the congressman's affairs without bothering the speaker.

In the conferences held in the speaker's room there are hardly two members of the house whose opinions are listened to with more respect than those of Mr. Busbey and of Mr. Hinds, the latter being clerk to the speaker's table, or in other words, the parliamentary mentor of the presiding officer. The experience and common sense of these two men are able frequently to indicate the proper course of action for the speaker and his associates on the committee on rules.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF SENATOR CRANE.

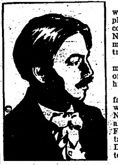
Washington has not been so excited over anything for a long time as it is over the approaching marriage of Senator Winthrop Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, and Miss Josephine Boardman, one of the social favorites at the national capital. The recent announcement of their engagement was one of the most pleasant surprises official society has experienced for a long time. It took rank with the "Nick" Longworth and Alice Roosevelt engagement as a matter of official and public interest and pleasant public comment. Miss Boardman is one of the most refined and intellectual members of Washington society besides one of the most beautiful and attractive. She is a member of a wealthy family that came here from Ohio, but her ancestors were New England people, like Senator Crane.

Senator Crane had long been regarded as doomed to widowerhood for the rest of his life. He was devoted to his first wife, who died at the time their son was born and that devotion was so strong that he closed the house in which they had lived and kept it as a memorial to her, never entering it for years. His match with Miss Boardman is undeniably a pure love match, as both parties are very wealthy in their own right. Miss Boardman took a fancy to the senator or rather was first attracted to him by his activity in the railroad rate fight in the senate. She is not one of the frivolous, society girls whose minds are not capable of grasping big public questions, but she is an eager and devoted student of economic subjects and took a great interest in the railway rate question from the time it was first made.

Early in the discussion of this question in the senate Miss Boardman was a daily visitor in the diplomatic gallery and what time Senator Crane could spare from keeping the Republican forces in line he spent at her side discussing the rate bill. Then they grew to be very fond of automobiling and were out a great deal together until one fine morning the announcement of their engagement was made and a little later that the wedding would take place at Manchester-by-the-Sea and since then nothing but the sincerest congratulations have been showered on them both.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

AN AMERICAN COMPOSER HONORED



Fine work and original has been done by Edward MacDowell, and but for his sad mental and physical collapse still greater would have been accomplished. The newly formed McDowell club of New York is a tribute to the artist and to the man; for MacDowell's was a personality to attract and hold.

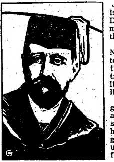
It is oftener appreciation is shown after a man is dead and gone, but Mr. MacDowell's form of illness means that for him all work is over, his career as composer ended.

It is doubly sad in that the musician is, so far as years are concerned, just in his prime. Edward Alexander McDowell was born in 1861 in New York city. He had two seasons of study abroad; in Paris three years; and in Germany, Frankfort-on Main, two years. For three years he taught at the Darmstadt conservatory. From Darmstadt he changed to Wiesbaden, and next took up residence in Boston.

On his return to America he became much interested in the idea of a school of music distinctly American, letting himself loose from conservative Old World influences. His best musical work was done here, most of it in the log studio on his farm in Petersburg, New Hampshire. MacDowell was as much poet as musician, and to interpret nature had to live with nature. Among the most admirable of his compositions are "Woodland Sketches," "To the Sea," "Forest Idylls." His compositions include concertas, sonatas, symphonies, songs and pianoforte pieces. His "Indian" Suite is constructed on themes taken from the music of the Sioux Indians. His work is representative of the modern romantic school in the United States.

Mr. MacDowell was very happy in his married life, his wife also a musician, Marian Nevins. The dark days of his passing are shielded by her devotion.

FEDERAL COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION



Dr. Harris' successor, Elmer Ellsworth Brown, is quite a young man, 45 years of age. Since 1898 Dr. Brown has been at the head of the department of the theory and practice of education at the University of California.

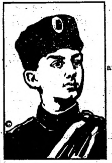
Since his graduation from the Illinois State Normal university in 1881, he has been much interested in educational matters both in this country and abroad. Dr. Brown has had very careful training in the profession of teaching—and today it is a profession—and has contributed no little to literature dealing with the art of teaching.

Upon graduation from the normal school he gathered practical experience in the public schools at Belvidere, Illinois, and later served as assistant state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Illinois. Then he studied for awhile at the University of Michigan, this study followed by work at the German universities. He received the degree of Ph. D. from the University of Halle-Wittenberg.

From 1890—91 Mr. Brown served as principal of a high school at Jackson, Michigan, leaving this position to take that of assistant acting professor of the science and art of teaching at the University of California, 1892-3, and the following year enjoying a full professorship.

In addition to various addresses and articles in reviews, Dr. Brown is author of "The Making of Our Middle Schools" and "Origin of American State Universities." In the University of California studies he wrote Notes on Children's Drawings; prepared for the Paris exposition, one is a series of monographs on education in the United States, a paper entitled Secondary Education. He was member of the international congress of arts and sciences at the St. Louis exposition, last year became president of the National Council of Education.

THE NEXT RULER OF SERVIA



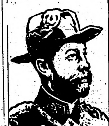
Servia appears pretty tired of King Peter and not very enthusiastic as a nation about King Peter's sons. The country doubtless will not put them out of the way by assassination, for it has learned the world does not approve of that method of change of monarchs—the world still turning a cold shoulder to the little country tucked in there by Austria-Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria, Turkey and Montenegro.

Peter's oldest son, Crown Prince George, is not a very pleasant youth. He is reported as unfortunate possessor of a most ungovernable temper. If the stories be true it would seem he is not fit to attempt governing anybody until he learns considerably more about controlling himself. In this day and age a prince may not with impunity shoot at his tuter when the tutor enters the school room to begin the day's work, may not strike an officer with a whip simply because the officer conveys a piece of unwelcome news. And a youth of 18 so foolish as to try to batter down a locked iron gate with a bicycle is of a degree of foolishness calling for general contempt.

The crown prince recently distressed father and governors by a show of fondness for the society of a gay actress, and the affair went so far the gay actress was informed the air of Belgrade certainly would impair her health if she were to remain. She gracefully withdrew, to Vienna. The prince precipitately followed, but was finally brought back by court officials.

Montenegrons and Servians are really the same people, and there is probability that the second son of the Prince of Montenegro may be asked to become ruler of Servia. For various reasons Prince Mirko would not be a bad choice. The two dynasties, Karageorgevic and Obrenovic, are united in this prince, he might easily prove a candidate agreeable to both factions of the country. His wife, who is a strikingly beautiful woman, belongs to the Obrenovic family. Prince Mirko is brother-in-law of Peter, his sister, now dead, was wife of Servia's present king.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF GERMAN NAVY



The kaisers's only surviving brother has been appointed commander-in-chief of the German navy, succeeding Admiral Edward von Knorr. Prince Henry of Prussia is known far and wide as the sailor prince, and now stands at the head of the navy of the German empire.

A "jolly tar" is the conventional phrase, all sea-faring men supposedly good fellows. It appears Prince Henry of Prussia is no excetion to the rule—we all remember how often on his recent visit to America he was assured of being a good fellow, a jolly good fellow. In his own country the prince goes by this name, is accounted pleasant and jovial.

They say a sailor's life is apt to take the nonsense out of a man, and that both King Haakon of Norway and Prince Henry of Prussia, two royal sailors, are democratic and simple in their tastes would give indication that certain virtues lies in a sailor's training. The German prince is said to have a great dislike for court life.

But that does not necessarily mean he is nothing of a courtier or diplomat. On his visit here the prince won everybody by his charm of manner. A gallant sailor, Prince Henry.

The new commander is quite youthful, 44 years old; but with enough years to have had very considerable experience in the navy. He was but a small boy when he began his apprenticeship, and it is declared his advance has been through merit alone.

Prince Henry is a prime favorite with the kaiser, and that he should hold this place is small wonder; Henry once saved his brother's life, back in 1874 it was, when the two were swimming in the Havel, near the so-called marble palace.

Talked Of in New York

The Hon. Jimmy Reynolds Is a Good Mixer—Fated to Public Life—Society and a $2,000,000 Theater—Other Interesting Gossip of Gotham Town.

NEW YORK.—I do not see how the Hon. Jimmy Reynolds can longer be kept out of this veracious chronicle. He belongs to New York and New York letters, anyhow; belonged here before he was boosted into fame by the report; belongs here now more than ever, since he was sent back by the president to mix up in local Republican politics.

The Hon. Jimmy was graduated from Yale a quarter of a century ago, but has kept his youth. For eight years he was the head worker of the University settlement on the East Side. To this day no one knows the East Side better than he; no one, not even the Hon. Big Tom Sullivan, has more personal friends and acquaintances there. Indeed, where people regard the Hon. Big Tim with awe they look upon the Hon Jimmy as an equal and a friend. It is unnecessary to add that Mr. Reynolds was foremost in every good work in the quarter, and fair to add that he combined with reformatory zeal the tact necessary to make friends of local politicians, corrupt or not. They all respected him for his earnestness and liked him for his jollity. The Hon. Jimmy is a good mixer. So long as University Settlements are needed, in short, to work among the poor, so long as there are any poor of the East Side type, such men as Reynolds will be needed to work there.

When Seth Low became mayor Reynolds became his secretary, a post for which his tact, good fellowship, knowledge of the city and of its queer characters personally highly qualified him. His mission in China and the east followed. Upon his return less than a year ago he began settlement work again, but was called from it by the president's beef inquiry. He has for years been too busy to go into trade or a profession. He is fated to public life, and adorns it.

JIMMY IN THE LIONS DEN, AND WHY.

Why should Reynolds return to New York to mix at the president's request in Republican politics? Why should Mr. Roosevelt interfere?

New York Republicans hardly ask the question. On the east side of the city it is no joke but the solemn truth that the Hon. Big Tim selects the Republican as well as the Democratic district leaders. However, Mr. Roosevelt is personally popular there, and a man having his mandate, and who is besides as well known as Reynolds, can do a considerable work. From a politician's standpoint it is foolish to leave a great mass of friendly voters at the mercy of leaders named by the opposition. It was this one-sided system that beat Hearst for mayor last fall. The Republicans' election officials obeyed the Democratic leaders. Hearst's watchers were sometimes bribed away from him; sometimes they were mere boys and were intimidated.

The larger outlook of the party in the state is as bad. It ought to get a great boost from such a splendid piece of work as the Armstrong insurance bills. But how can it, if Platt and Odell control the machine? And there are signs that these men, long enemies, are combining in the face of the common foe, which happens to be the decent element in the party.

Odell was "caught with the goods" in the insurance inquiry. Everybody expected it to be the last of him. He probably expected it himself. Yet he is still the state chairman, and still the actual leader, cynical, epigrammatic, coarse, naked in his defilement and unashamed. Who can blame him? He could have been deposed by Gov. Higgins, but that official, a man of integrity, lacks courage and is inclined to temporize. As for Platt, his personal standards are higher than those of many politicians, higher than he probably gets credit for; he cares little for money; political power is his dream.

THE PRESIDENT A NEW YORKER AND WILL INTERFERE.

The president has not the slightest idea of letting things go that way. And he is not deterred, as most men would be, by precedents of non-interference. Arthur's interference for Folger was disastrous, though Arthur was a good president and Folger an able and reputable candidate for governor. This case may be different. The president is responsible mainly for the selection of Congressman Parsons, an honorable man of high ability who will be heard from in Washington, where he is serving his first term, as county chairman. Parsons has had to suffer all sorts of indignities at the hands of the Odellites. It is to aid him mainly that Reynolds is to come to New York. The president was also responsible for the selection of young Jimmy Wadsworth as speaker of the last assembly. He has a curious liking, the president, for honest men in political place, and quite as curiosly, the people do not seem to resent his "interference."

What an absurdity, at best, is the present situation. Who is the "logical" candidate for governor? Hughes, the peerless investigator of insurance, though he doesn't want the job, probably would not take it. Who is the next choice? Ex-Ambassador Choate. Nominate Hughes, under the chairmanship of the man whose money dealings he exposed? Nominate Choate, under the chairmanship of the man whom he has denounced from the platform? Ridiculous!

Upon the Democratic side the situation is simpler. Mayor McClellan has gone to Europe for a long vacation, firing a parting shot into the Murphy camp. The mayor is himself the boss of his own administration. That makes him the leading Democrat of his state. He will not be a candidate for governor. But that does not limit his future. He is young. Rarely does a man hew out his line quite so close to the chalk-mark as this slender, boyish fellow has done. He was elected by Tammany in 1903 for two years, and for two years he gave New York a Tammany administration. He was elected, or rather got in by a fluke, in 1905 for four years for his own sake and in spite of Tammany, and he is now giving New York a McClellan administration. The party has an ideal candidate for the governorship in Judge Herrick, able lawyer, born politician, honorable men, gentleman of the old school, a thoroughbred; of course there is opposition to Herrick among the baser elements of the party, but he also is the "logical" candidate. And always there is the spectre of Hearst. No wonder the decent Republicans are not scolding the president for "interfering!"

SOCIETY ASPECT OF THE $2,000, 000 THEATER.

Abram S. Hewitt once said "It takes ten years to do anything in New York." He might have added, "and costs millions." The city is about to have, after at least ten years of talk, a two-million-dollar theater. It is to be placed upon a block of land covering a little more than an acre and in artistic beauty and richness of decoration it will have no rival but the Paris opera house. The fashionable architects, Carrere & Hastings, have not forgotten the lesson of that opera house. Garnier, its designer, was young and unknown. He gave his design the most magnificent staircase he could conceive and fitted the rest of the thing to that. His design was accepted. The New theater—that is to be its name—will have a staircase. It will have an immense foyer leading to the staircase. It will also have elevators by which the staircase may be side-stepped. Its 46 boxes will be owned in perpetuity by the owners of the building, and if all goes well, anyone of them will in ten years' time be worth as much as a seat on the stock exchange.

Certain it is that the society aspect of the new house will be as strongly marked as it is in the Metropolitan opera house, which was really built because the old Academy didn't have boxes enough for social display. The play is not the thing, but secondary. The boxes will placate those newly rich who cannot get the best boxes at the Metropolitan. Between that home of the lyric art and Hammerstein's new opera house and the $2,000,000 theater with its 46 boxes society ought to be able to get along somehow for two or three years without additional opportunities for the display of white shoulders and shirt-fronts.

FIND ROAD GUILTY OF GIVING REBATES

JURY IN FEDERAL COURT AT CHICAGO DECIDES AGAINST ALTON COMPANY.

Two Former Officials Also Included in Verdict, Judge Landis Having Overruled Motion to Dismiss on All But Two Counts.

Chicago, July 7.—The Chicago & Alton Railroad company and two former officials of the road were found guilty Friday of granting rebates. The verdict was returned before Judge Landis in the federal court after a jury had practically been instructed by the court that there was little reason to doubt the guilt of the railroad corporation.

Punishment for the offenses charged is a fine of not less than $6,000 nor more than $120,000, according to the district attorney.

The road is declared guilty on each of eight counts. Secret concessions granted by the company to Schwarzschild & Sulzberger formed the basis of the indictments.

This is considered one of the most important victories of its kind won by the government. It means the beginning of many prosecutions.

The attorneys of the railroad gave notice of an appeal. They may, however, in view of the evidence, decide to waive further effort to prove the innocence of the road of conspiracy.

Judge K. M. Landis overruled a motion made in behalf of John M. Faithorn and Frederick A. Wann, former executives of the Chicago & Alton railway, charged with giving rebates to Schwarzschild & Sulzberger that the cases be taken from the jury and a court order entered in favor of the defendants.

Not Guilty on Two Counts.

The motion was overruled as applied to eight of the ten counts in the indictment charging rebates.

The basis of the motion made by the attorneys for the railroad men was that the refunds, assuming that they had been made, did not constitute rebates as contemplated by the law.

The judge says that it appears from the evidence that prior to 1901 the Chicago & Alton Railway company charged the belt road four dollars a car for hauls from the packing company's platforms, over the packers' private tracks and the belt line tracks to the Chicago & Alton tracks, and that the belt line paid another dollar to the packing company for the part of the haul that was over the tracks of the company.

Payment Made Direct.

This practice is said to have been known to the Alton company and continued until January 1, 1901, when, for some reason which does not appear, but at the alleged request of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, the arrangements were changed so that the Alton company made the payments direct to the packing company, instead of through the medium of the belt company.

Coincident with this change the belt line filed new schedules showing its rates for moving the packing company's traffic to be three dollars a car, which amount the Alton absorbed in its tariff collected from Schwarzschild & Sulzberger and paid over to the belt road.

Court Outlines Case.

After quoting the interstate commerce law, which requires published schedules of rates, and the Elkins law, forbidding rebates or cutting of tariffs, the courts ays:

"It is argued in behalf of the defendants that if any section of the law is violated it is that provision which requires the carrier's schedule to state the terminal charges and rules which change the aggregate rates. I am unable to see the force of this contention. Plainly, the return by the defendant carrier to the packing company of a part of the money paid by that shipper to the carrier for the transportation of the shipper's product is not a charge or rule or regulation within the meaning of the law.

Definition of "Rate."

"The question is whether or not the payment so made is a device whereby the packing company's property is transported at less than the Alton's published rate, which, as seen above, includes the service on the belt company's tracks. It would seem that to state this question is to answer it. By the word 'rate' is not meant merely a figure or figures printed on a schedule filed with the interstate commerce commission and exhibited on the walls of a railway station. The real rate is the net cost to the shipper of the transportation of his property. This net amount in the case before me is one dollar a car less than the carrier's published schedule represents the rate to be. Viewing the transaction from the standpoint most favorable to defendants, it amounts simply to the railway company assuming the cost of getting the shipper's property to the carrier's rails for transportation, a substantial consideration not mentioned in or contemplated by the published schedules."

Punished for Illegal Fencing.

Helena, Mont., July 7.—Former United States Marshal J. H. Wolman, Grand Christian and Frank D. Cooper Friday pleaded guilty in the United States court of illegal fencing of government lands, and were each fined $500 and sent to jail for 24 hours by Judge Hunt.

PRESIDENT DECLINES HONOR

WILL NOT PRESIDE AT RECEPTION TO BRYAN.

Executive Having Previously Decided Not to Accept Engagements Secretary Loeb Acts for Him.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 6.—President Roosevelt will not preside at the reception the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league is to tender William J. Bryan at Madison Square Garden, New York, August 19, in Mr. Bryan's return from around the world.

A letter of William Hoge, president of the league, inviting President Roosevelt to officiate, and expressing the non-partisan character of the organization and its belief that the president is as much an enemy of the trusts as Mr. Bryan, was received and answered by Secretary Loeb.

The president had determined some time ago to refuse all proffered engagements during the summer, and Secretary Loeb needed no further consultation in sending a declination.

In accordance with the honored custom President Roosevelt will cable his hearty congratulations to the royal family of Germany on the birth of an heir to the throne. This message will be in response to an official notification which will later proceed from the German capital to the nations of the world. If the president's message is made public it will be by the recipients.

WHERE FEDERAL CASH GOES

Statement by Mr. Tawney Regarding Appropriations Voted by Last Session of Congress.

Washington, July 3.—Representative Tawney, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, has prepared a detailed statement concerning the appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1906, made by congress during the session just closed, in which he claims that the per capita cost of the government of the United States, including federal and state, is less than in any European state.

Mr. Tawney enters upon an analysis to show the various channels into which the total appropriation of $880,183,301 will be diverted. He begins by deducting $139,456,415 provided for the sinking fund, the Panama canal, etc., showing that the real appropriation for the conduct of the government for the fiscal year is $740,726,886. To meet this demand he estimates that the total revenues (customs, internal and postal) will be $781,573,364.

PUGILISTS IN HARD FIGHT

Attell Defeats Neil in Desperate Twenty Round Contest at Los Angeles Club.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—Abe Attell, champion featherweight of America, won a 20-round battle from Frankie Neil, the bantamweight champion, before the Pacific Atheltic club here Wednesday afternoon. Attell showed to great advantage with his remarkable cleverness, and he landed six blows to Neil's one.

Circling about the ring, hammering wildly with rights and lefts, jabbing, uppercutting and swinging, the spectators cheering madly at the top of their voices, the two little men fought until it seemed both must drop from exhaustion.

The decision of Referee Eyton was a popular one, and as Attell rushed across the ring and embraced his defeated opponent he was cheered to the echo by the great crowd which filled the amphitheater.

BRYAN IS GUEST OF HONOR

Ambassador Reid Graciously Welcomes Him at Fourth of July Dinner in London.

London, July 5.—William J. Bryan was the central figure at the annual Independence day dinner of the American society at the Hotel Cecil Wednesday night.

Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mr. Bryan engaged in some sharp but good-humored raillery and banter over political differences, the crowd evincing its enjoyment of the sport with cheers and shouts of laughter.

Thaws Married But Once.

New York, July 6.—Judge Olcott said that Mrs. Thaw's statement of several days ago in which she declared that she and Thaw were married in Europe and that the ceremony in Pittsburg was performed solely upon the request of Thaw's mother, was made under a misapprehension. He said that the confusion arose through Mrs. Thaw misunderstanding a question on the telephone, and that, as a matter of fact, the Thaws never were married in Europe. The first and only marriage ceremony was the one performed at Pittsburg.

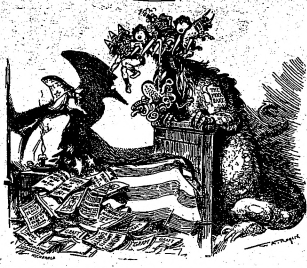
Krupp's Daughter Engaged.

Essen, Prussia, July 5.—The engagement is announced of Barbara Krupp, the younger daughter of the late owner of the great iron works, Frederick Alfred Krupp, to Baron Tilo Von Wilmowski, son of the governor of Prussian Saxony.

Rocked Boat; Two Drowned.

New York, July 6.—Boyish folly in rocking a boat led to the drowning Wednesday off Plum Beach, Sheepshead Bay, L. I., of two boys, Benjamin Goetz and Peter Zimmerman, and the narrow escape of four more, who were rescued by passing craft.

U. S.—"I NEED A VACATION."



NATIONS AVERT WAR IN CENTRAL AMERICA

UNITED STATES LIKELY TO BE SCENE OF ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS.

Mexico Joins with This Country to Prevent Meddling by Neighbors in Affairs of Guatemala and to Protect President Cabrera.

Washington, July 6.—Again the United States will probably figure as a peacemaker. Guatemala and Salvador are making overtures for the arbitration of their troubles resulting from the alleged activity of Salvador in support of the revolutionary movement against President Cabrera of Guatemala, and it is likely that the United States will be selected as the country in which the board of arbitration will meet.

The state department has been advised of the desire of the two countries, which are almost at the point of making war against each other, to have their differences settled by arbitration, and although formal negotiations have not been made as yet, there seems to be but little doubt that an amicable settlement of the points of difference will be finally effected through arbitrators.

At the first intimation of outside intereference in Guatemala affairs the state department sent the Marblehead from Panama to prevent meddling, and Mexico and the United States both made it clear that they would look with disfavor upon any combination of Central American powers to overthrow President Cabrera, of Guatemala.

Envoy from Salvador.

When the position of the United States became clear Salvador announced the appointment of J. R. Pacus as a special envoy to present the Salvadorean position to American authorities and prevent any serious international complication. The state department has been advised of the departure of Mr. Pacus for this country, but it is not believed that he will arrive in Washington for several weeks because of difficulty of reaching this country from Salvador.

Guatemala has complained bitterly to the United States of the conduct of Salvador, and charges that the later government has taken every means to forward the cause of the revolutionary general, Barillas, and to hasten the downfall of President Cabrera. It is charged that Salvador not only winked at all expeditions which crossed her boundary into Guatemalan territory, but actually sent troops into Guatemala and committed many acts which cannot be regarded as less than the invasion of the territory of a friendly power.

NAVAL RESERVE MEN DROWN

Four Illinois Militiamen Lose Life When Sudden Squall Overturns Dingy in Lake Michigan.

Chicago, July 6.—Four members of the Illinois naval reserve out of a crew of six were drowned Thursday in the lake about 200 feet off the foot of Randolph street. All were inexperienced men except the coxswain and went out in a dingy for a cruise for the first time since they joined the service. The boat was overturned in a squall, the six men being thrown into the lake. Their cries for help were heard on the pier by Alfred Curran, watchman at the lifesaving station, and within ten minutes after the accident the life savers were on their way to the scene of the mishap.

Two men were saved by the lifesaving crew after they had clung to the gunwales of the capsized boat for a quarter of an hour.

Mayor Legally Ousted.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 7.—Judge W. D. Robinson, of the Indiana appellate court, sitting Friday as special judge in the petition of Mayor Edwin J. Bidaman to restrain Frank M. Buckingham from assuming the office of mayor, dissolved the temporary restraining order and held that the action of the city council in ousting Mayor Bidaman was legal and that Bidaman had no claim on the office.

Iowa Pioneer Dead.

Dubuque, Ia., July 3.—William H. Peabody, a retired capitalist and pioneer of Dubuque, 83 years old, died Monday.

DECLARE MEAT WHOLESOME

EXPERTS REPORT ON CONDITIONS AT CHICAGO YARDS.

One Plant Is Found Where Committee Has Doubts of the Safety of Its Products.

Chicago, July 7.—The report of the committe of experts of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Commercial association, while freely criticising some of the existing conditions in the yards, declares emphatically that the food produced by the packers is wholesome.

The experts delved into the manner in which carcasses and meats are handled, paid attention to the clothing worn by the workmen as well as to their physical condition, and especially investigated the manner in which the government, state and city inspect the products of the packing plants before they are placed upon the market.

The report declares that the inspection is in every case more rigid than that employed in the abattoirs of Germany, and even recommends that the inspection for certain diseases, including "lumpy jaw," be in some degree ameliorated. It recommends, however, that the government pay the greatest possible attention to the establishing of facilities in the stockyards where men can be trained "in the important specialty of meat inspection."

In its report the committee did not mention the names of any plants which it investigated, but for its convenience in reference divided them into three classes.

The third group, the report says, relates to but one plant located outside the yards, and in this plant conditions were found which the committee declared rendered doubtful the safety of its products.

In the second class the committee found that the meat was handled in such a manner that it was wholesome and fit for food, but, while this was the case, the committee declares that there was so much dirt in the buildings, which are as a rule old, that they found considerable departure from a proper esthetic standpoint.

FOUR DEAD IN EXPLOSION

Gasoline Tank in Dyehouse Blows Up, Bodies of Victims Being Cooked in Resultant Fire.

Saginaw, Mich., July 7.—Four persons were killed and six injured, one of them seriously, by the explosion Friday of a large gasoline tank on the second floor of the boiler house of the Cosendal dye works on North Jefferson avenue. The dead:

E. A. Foehl, Louis Consendai, George Sigelko, Carl Cosnedai.

The tank of gasoline exploded without an instant's warning, and the boilerhouse was torn to pieces. A cloud of steam and debris ascending from the ruins greeted the eyes of the first persons who reached the scene after the explosion. Flames burst from a dozen points in the wreckage instantly. Foehl's body was found near the edge of the huge pile of wreckage literally cooked. John F. and Louis Cosendai were dug from the ruins with all of their clothes burned from their bodies and suffering agonies from the horrible burns they had sustained.

HOLDS MAYOR IN CONTEMPT

Supreme Court of Kansas Fines City Executive for Accepting Office After Being Ousted.

Topeka, Kan., July 7.—The state supreme court Friday handed down a decision holding Mayor W. W. Rose of Kansas City, Kan., in contempt for having assumed the office of mayor after the court had ousted him for the non-enforcement of the prohibition law and the law against gambling.

In the order Friday Mayor Rose is ordered to relinquish the office and is fined $1,000 for contempt. The court further orders, if Mayor Rose fails to pay the fine within 20 days, he shall be committed to jail until such time as it is paid.

Deadlock Record Broken.

Des Moines, Ia., June 7.—The record in deadlocked conventions was broken Friday when the Thirty-seventh district Republican convention adjourned without result. Another effort to nominate will be made at Iowa Falls July 19.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

Hastings—Peter Gergen was struck by an engine of the owl train, but escaped with slight injury.

St. Paul—About $30,000 is realized for the cathedral fund through the picnic at the fair grounds.

Fairbault—The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George Murphy was celebrated at their home last evening.

St. Paul—Fifty-three of the candidates for state dental licenses passed the examination held at the state university.

Minneapolis man assumes role of peacemaker between quarreling father and son and is shot dead; youth is arrested.

St. Paul—The state will receive $115 for the damage done to the state capitol in the fire in the historical society's rooms.

Harmony—Old Settlers' Day, celebrated here, was a red letter day for Harmony. Fully 2,000 strangers were in the village.

Winona—The Ancient Order of Hibernians of Minnesota will hold its biennial convention in Winona on Sept. 18, 19 and 20.

Moorhead—Charles Groffa, a pioneer resident, a laborer, committed suicide tonight by shooting, after having been on a spree for some time.

Melrose—The residence of J. S. Landis, a Great Northern conductor, was struck by lightning and materially damaged. Fortunately no one was injured.

St. Paul—Private Lester Blakeman of Company F, Twenty-eighth infantry, who had his leg cut off by a street car, died at the military hospital at Fort Snelling.

St. Paul—The body of a boy floating in the river under the Marshall avenue bridge was seen by pedestrians, who hastened to the bank of the river and secured the body.

St. Paul—Isadore Nattleson, thirteen years of age, living with his parents at 385 Rice street, was run down and painfully hurt at Central avenue and Wabasha street by an automobile.

Crookston—Congressman Halvor Steenerson of the ninth district has filed his affidavit as a republican candidate for renomination. He sent his check and affidavit from Washington.

St. Paul—The water board decided to make a formal complaint to the state board of health concerning residents around White Bear and Bald Eagle lakes running sewage into the lakes.

White Bear—Jacob Morgan, aged sixty-five, living over Fred Turner's saloon last evening got up in his sleep, walked down the hall and fell downstairs. He broke his neck and died instantly.

Moorhead—Charles Groffa, a pioneer resident of Moorhead, committed suicide last night by shooting. No cause is known for the act. Groffa has been an active member of the Moorhead fire department for several years and was well known.

St. Cloud—Martin Branley, found murdered at Bemidji, was an old Benton county boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Branley, both dead. Relatives live here, and Branley left home early in the spring to work in logging camps.

Belle Plaine—Local capital will install an electric lighting plant for the borough of Belle Plaine. The company will be incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. Subscriptions for stock are being received rapidly and construction will soon begin.

St. Paul—Mrs. Julia Zelnski, 1016 East Seventh street, fell dead while eating breakfast with her family. Coroner A. W. Miller investigated the case and decided that death resulted from heart trouble, with which Mrs. Zelnski had long been a sufferer.

Pipestone—Alexander C. Hart, who attempted wholesale murder at the Pipestone Indian training school on Friday morning, took his own life early today by hanging himself in his cell at the county jail, where he was confined pending an examination for insanity.

Rosemount—Patrick Mangan, a young man employed by J. E. Delaney, living three miles west of Rosemount, suffered a fracture of his right leg above the ankle while wrestling with a friend of his. The injured man was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in St. Paul for treatment.

St. Paul—The body of Lester Wilson, 605 South Robert street, who was drowned in the Mississippi river, was found near the fish hatchery by two fishermen. Dr. T. J. Maloney made an investigation and had the body removed to the morgue, where it was identified by a son.

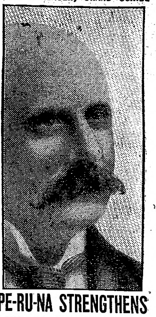
Mankato—While bathing in the Minnesota river James Bannon, a liberty patient at the St. Peter insane hospital, was caught by a swift current and carried beyond his depth. He drowned before assistance could reach him. His home was in Currie, Minn., and he was committed to the asylum in April, 1905.

East Grand Forks—The coroner's jury which held an inquest over the body of Albert Bergstad, who was found dead on the railroad tracks yesterday morning, returned a verdict that he came to his death in a manner unknown to the jury. There were so many suspicious circumstances pointing toward foul play that the general opinion is that the man was assaulted and left on the track in an unconscious condition, afterward being struck by the train.

Minneapolis—The Russell-Miller Milling Company of North Dakota will begin construction work in the course of the present month upon a new flour mill in Southeast Minneapolis.

Owatonna—J. R. Morley, representative in the legislature from this district, has announced his candidacy for re-election on the Republican ticket. Mr. Morley has served three terms in the lower house.

Fort Snelling—The troops quartered here will leave July 15 for the summer maneuver camps. What will be left of the heavy program of target practice will be finished after the return from the maneuvers.



CHAS. L. SAUER, GRAND SCRIBE

PE-RU-NA STRENGTHENS THE ENTIRE SYSTEM.

Mr. Chas. L. Sauer, Grand Scribe, Grand Encampment I. O. O. F. of Texas, and Assistant City Auditor, writes from the City Hall, San Antonio, Tex.:

"Nearly two years ago I accepted a position as secretary and treasurer with one of the leading dry goods establishments of Galveston, Tex.

"The sudden change from a high and dry altitude to sea level proved too much for me and I became afflicted with catarrh and cold in the head, and general debility to such an extent as to almost incapacitate me for attending to my duties.

"I was induced to try Peruna, and after taking several bottles in small doses I am pleased to say that I was entirely restored to my normal condition and have ever since recommended the use of Peruna to my friends."

THE FIRST COMPASS.

Was Known to Sailors Before the Twelfth Century—Indispensable Adjunct to Navigation.

Some Asian people, perhaps the Chinese, discovered, many centuries ago, that a kind of iron ore possessed a very peculiar quality. We call this ore magnetic ore, in more common language, lodestone, and it is very widely distributed, especially in the older crystalline rocks. It was found that if a bit of lodestone were placed in water upon a piece of cork or straw braid it would turn till the axis of the stone assumed a north and south position. A phenomenon of magnetism had been discovered by means of an ore that is peculiarly susceptible to magnetic influence.

It is an open question whether the Chinese utilized the directive power of the lodestone, but it is certain that the first rude compass was not used on European vessels before the twelfth century of our era. By that time the true magnetic compass had been evolved through the discovery that if an iron or steel needle were stroked on a lodestone it would receive the attractive and directive power of this ore. With this wonderful appliance placed at the service of navigation, the vessels that had hugged the coasts soon dared to venture even out of sight of land. A new impetus was gradually given to cartography, for now the true directions of the coast lines might be charted with some approach to accuracy. It was the hapy fortune of Italian sailors to make the surprisingly excellent surveys of the directions and lengths of the Black sea and Mediterranean coasts and along the Atlantic to British waters that have come down to us in the so-called Portulan maps.—Cyrus C. Adams, in Harper's.

SAID BY THE SAGES.

Lack of desire is the greatest of riches.—Seneca.

Ten noes are better than one lie.—From the Danish.

Deeds are fruits, words are leaves.—From the French.

An old bachelor is only the half of a pair of scissors.—Franklin.

Avarice and fidelity cannot dwell together in the same house.—Grimm.

A virtuous woman commands her husband by obeying him.—Publius Syrus.

Whoever undertakes a task cannot repudiate the responsibility.—Chinese Maxim.

Who dangles after the great is the last at table and the first to be cuffed.—From the Italian.

No man can escape the vitiating effect of an offense against his own conscience.—George Eliot.

The path of duty lies in what is near, and men seek for it in what is remote. The work of duty lies in what is easy, and men seek for it in what is difficult.

No Improvement.

In one of the Sunday schools in Malden, Mass., recently the teacher of a class of small boys inquired of each one if he thought he had been a better boy during the year. Each answer was in the affirmative except one little fellow about eight years old, who was conspicuous for his silence. The teacher put the question to him a second time, when with considerable earnestness he replied: "I am just as worse as I ever was."

"The Romans had small regard for human life in their amusements." "Yes," answered the man of violent prejudices. "It's a matter of great surprise to me that they failed to discover football."—Washington Star.

ROOSEVELT PLANS TO BE FAIR AND JUST

NEIGHBORS AT OYSTER BAY LISTEN TO ACCOUNT OF HIS STEWARDSHIP.

Anger and Hatred, He Says, Must Be Laid Aside When Approaching Task of Regulating Corporate and Individual Wealth.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—President Roosevelt was pleased to justify his stewardship in a review of the year for the benefit of his neighbors Wednesday. He spoke in the open air and nearly all of his important utterances were delivered during a heavy downpour of rain. The president spoke in part as follows:

Text of the Speech.

Mr. Chairman and you, my old friends and neighbors, you among whom I was brought up and with whom I have lived for so many years, it is a real and great pleasure to have the chance of being with you to-day, to say a few words of greeting to you, and in a sense to give an account of my stewardship. I say in a sense, friends, because after all the stewardship really has to give an account of itself. If a man needs to explain overmuch what he has done, it is pretty sure proof that he ought to have done it a little differently and so as regards most of what I have done I must let to speak for itself.

But there are two or three things about which I want to talk to you today, and if in the presence of dominies I may venture to speak from a text I shall take as my text the words of Abraham Lincoln, which he spoke in a remarkable little address delivered to a band of people who were serenading him at the White House just after his reelection to the presidency. He said:

"In any great national trial hereafter, the men of that day as compared with those of this will be as weak and as strong, as silly and as wise, as bad and as good. Let us therefore study the incidents of this, as philosophy from which to learn wisdom, and not as wrongs to be avenged," and he added later in the speech a touching and characteristic expression of his, saying "so long as I have been here, I have not willingly planted a thorn in any man's breast."

No Need for Hysteria.

We have heard a great deal during the past year or two of the frightful iniquities in our politics and our business, and the frightful wrongdoing in our social life. Now there is plenty of iniquity in business, in politics, in our social life. There is every warrant for our acknowledging these great evils. But there is no warrant for growing hysterical about them.

This year in congress our chief task has been to carry the government forward along the course which I think it must follow consistently for a number of years to come—that is in the direction of seeking on behalf of the people as a whole, through the national government which represents the people as a whole, to exercise a measure of supervision, control and restraint over the individuals, and especially over the corporations, of great wealth, in so far as the business use of that wealth brings it within the reach of the federal government. We have accomplished a fair amount and the reason that we have done so has been in the first place because we have not tried to do too much, and in the next place because we have approached the task absolutely free from any spirit of rancor or hatred.

Promises to Be Fair.

When it becomes necessary to curb a great corporation, curb it. I will do my best to help you do it. But I will do it in no spirit of anger or hatred to the men who own or control that corporation; and if any seek in their turn to do wrong to the men of means, to do wrong to the men who own those corporations, I will turn around and fight for them in defense of their rights just as hard as I fight against them when I think they are doing wrong.

Distrust as a demagogue the man who talks only of the wrong done by the men of wealth. Distrust as a demagogue the man who measures iniquity by the purse. Measure iniquity by the heart, whether a man's purse be full or empty, partly full or partly empty. If the man is a decent man, whether well off or not well off, stand by him; if he is not a decent man stand against him, whether he be rich or poor. Stand against him in no spirit of vengeance, but only with the resolute purpose to make him act as decent citizens must act if this republic is to be.

WEALTHY YOUTH DROWNED

Relative of Vanderbilts, in Charge of Poor Boys' Camp, Meets Death in Big Squam Lake.

Ashland, N. H., July 6.—H. McK. Twombley, Jr., only son of H. McK. Twombly, the well-known capitalist of New York and Newport, was drowned Thursday night while swimming in Big Squam lake, six miles from Ashland.

Young Twombly was 18 years old. He came to New Hampshire about three weeks ago with a number of others who had charge of a dozen or more boys in humble circumstances who were sent into camp at the expense of the Groton school of Groton, Mass., from which Twombly was graduated last month.

Twombly's mother was Miss Florence A. Vanderbilt, daughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt, of New York.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Ex-Mayor Frank L. Ten Broeck, of Asbury Park, N. J., died of heart disease.

Orders have been issued to assemble 16 American battleships for maneuvers in the north Atlantic.

Emperor William has bought Allison V. Armour's yacht, Utowana, for $75,000. The empress will use it.

Dr. Christopher Columbus Langdell, emeritus professor of law at Harvard, died suddenly at Cambridge, Mass., aged 80.

The schooner Ella G. Ealls and four men were lost at Libby island on the Maine coast. Capt. Breen was the only survivor.

Persian troops repelled Turkish and Arabian soldiers who sought to seize a section of the Persian frontier in Pushkar province.

The resignation of Capt. Robert F. Wynne, United States marine corps, was accepted by Secretary Bonaparte. This action was final.

Bids for the construction of the immigration station on Angel island, Cal., have been advertised for, to cover an expenditure of $250,000.

Barbara Krupp, the younger daughter of the German gunmaker, is to become the wife of Baron Wilmowski. Her fortune is $12,500,000.

Leon Chambers, 80 years old, was sent to prison from Laporte, Ind., for stealing horses. The present is his eighth term as a convict.

Count Castellane and Deputy Regnier may fight a duel as a result of the French chamber's action in declaring the count's seat vacant.

July 1, 1907, has been fixed as the day to decorate United States flags with the new star in honor of the admission of the new state of Oklahoma.

The missing schooner America, of the Fabre line, has been towed to Port Hamilton, Bermuda, in a disabled condition. It was picked up near the azores.

Charles Paine, veteran railroad official, author of "Elements of Railroading" and lately general manager of the Panama railroad, died at Tenalfy, N. Y. He was born in 1830.

Sailors attached to President Roosevelt's yacht, Sylph, threw firecrackers at Italians in Oyster Bay, L. I., and one of them was stabbed by an Italian, who crept upon him an hour later.

Helen Keller, the deaf, mute and blind scholar, will be appointed a member of the new commission for the education of the blind to be appointed by the governor of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. J. Meagher, widow of Gen. Thomas T. Meagher, died at her home in Rye, N. Y. She was born in 1830 and was noted for her patriotism, having accompanied her husband to the firing line at Bull Run.

The New York Life trustees' ticket to be presented to policyholders at the December election includes the names of James H. Eckels and Fleming H. Revell, of Chicago; David R. Francis, of St. Louis, and Julius Fleischmann, of Cincinnati.

Through an error, William O'Leary, dead a year, was appointed postmaster by the president at Dallas, Tex. The appointment was for D. A. Robinson and the names were unwittingly transposed, O'Leary having been succeeded by Robinson.

JURY ACQUITS W. L. HOUSER

Wisconsin Secretary of State Held Not Guilty of Attempting to Bribe Zeno M. Host.

Madison, Wis., July 7.—Walter L. Houser, secretary of state, of Wisconsin, was acquitted in the Dane county municipal court Friday night of the criminal charge of having attempted to bribe Zeno M. Host, state commissioner of insurance, on June 16, 1903, by taking a prepared decision in the Brunkhorst-Equitable insurance case from Robert Luscombe to the commissioner and telling him, as alleged in the complaint, that the Equitable society would contribute $2,000 to the La Follette campaign fund if such a decision were rendered. It took the jury over four hours to reach the verdict of acquittal.

THE MARKETS.

	New York, July 7.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00 @	$5 75
Hogs, State	6 90 @	7 00
Sheep	4 00 @	6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 35 @	4 65
WHEAT—July	86⅝@	86½
September	85⅝@	85¾
CORN—September	58⅝@	58¾
RYE—No. 2 Western	68 @	68½
BUTTER	15 @	20
CHEESE	9 @	10
EGGS	19½@	20
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 60 @	$6 10
Common to Good Steers	4 60 @	5 60
Yearlings	4 50 @	5 65
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25 @	4 10
Calves	3 25 @	6 25
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 60 @	6 77½
Heavy Packing	6 30 @	6 40
Heavy Mixed	6 55 @	6 75
BUTTER—Creamery	18 @	22
Dairy	18½@	18
EGGS—Fresh	14 @	18
LIVE POULTRY	10½@	18
POTATOES (bu.)	60 @	68
WHEAT—September	79¼@	79⅝
December	80⅜@	80⅝
Corn, September	51⅝@	52
Oats, September	35¾@	36⅝
Rye, May	58 @	60
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 85½@	86¼
September	79⅜@	79¾
Corn, September	51¼@	52
Oats, Standard	38½@	39
Rye, No. 1	64 @	64½
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, July	$ 70⅜@	70⅝
September	71¼@	71⅜
Corn, July	48 @	48⅛
Oats, No. 2 White	39½@	40½
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 75 @	$6 00
Texas Steers	2 35 @	4 50
HOGS—Packers	6 30 @	6 70
Butchers	6 55 @	6 80
SHEEP—Natives	3 00 @	6 00
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 25 @	$5 85
Stockers and Feeders	2 75 @	4 25
Cows and Heifers	3 25 @	4 65
HOGS—Heavy	6 42½@	6 50
SHEEP—Wethers	5 00 @	5 50

American Woman Leads In Fight for Suffrage

Mrs. Hannah Smith, 75 Years of Age, Still Devoting Her Entire Time to Cause of Her Sex—Author of Well-Known Book.

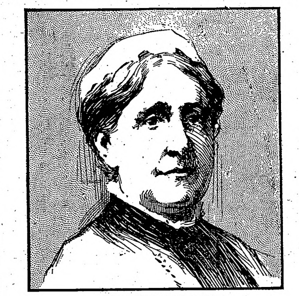
New York.—The woman's suffrage fight in England, which is costing the domestic peace of so many of the cabinet ministers whose wives are ardent suffragists, is led by a quiet, sweet-faced American Quaker, Hannah Whitehall Smith, who has lived in England many years and has a tremendous influence in the woman's movement. Mrs. Smith will soon celebrate her seventy-fifth birthday. She is in constant touch with the smallest details of the suffrage cause, and few moves in the campaign are made without her advice and sanction.

Hannah Whitehall Smith and her Quaker husband went to England shortly after the American civil war. They were both preachers gifted with eloquence and much common sense, cultivated and possessed of social charms, and rich in this world's goods. They made friends rapidly in the most exclusive society, and some of the finest old country homes in England were thrown open for their religious gatherings. The numbers attracted by the two Quakers grew to be thousands, persons coming from as far as Paris and Berlin to hear them. Before going to Europe Mrs. Smith had written "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," which had already had an enormous sale in America, but it now became famous all over the world, and was translated into 27 different languages.

Her husband dying, Mrs. Smith chose to remain in England permanently. She bought a house in London in the district of Westminster and a lovely old-fashioned place in the country, a few miles out of London, in Sussex, where a large number of well-to-do literary folk have comfortable homes. With her two daughters, who are graduates of Smith college, founded by a relative of the family in America, Mrs. Smith has been for years a distinguished member of London society. The elder daughter married a well-known art critic and spends most of her time in Florence.

The younger daughter is the wife of Hon. Bertrand Russell, brother and heir to the eccentric Earl Russell, who was convicted of bigamy a few years ago by his peers in the house of lords, the lady in the case being a dashing American widow, formerly a seamstress in the home of Mrs. Whitehall Smith and her daughters. She is now recognized as Countess Russell, formalities of divorce having been complied with.

Mrs. Whitehall Smith practices the principles of democracy which she preaches, and both she and Mrs. Bertrand Russell are ardent liberals in practice and well-seasoned fighters, especially for suffrage. Mrs. Rusesll has made her democratic ideas so obnoxious to her husband's distinguished relative, the duke of Bedford, that he and the duchess will not have anything to do with her. After Earl Russell's numerous escapades had turned him out of fashionable society, the Bedfords looked to Bertrand Russell to take the lead in his family branch in the exclusive set at court. But the influence of his beautiful American wife, who has charms and money in addition, have won the day, and the duke and duchess have washed their hands of Bertrand.



HANNAH WHITEHALL SMITH.

A few years ago Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Russell established a home in London for factory girls, and to this they have given a great deal of their time. Mrs. Russell opened classes for the girls and taught them herself, but not being satisfied with her knowledge of the factory conditions under which the girls worked, she disguised herself and for a month worked in the factories. She went from one to another, assisted by a few of her girls who were in the secret, and as a result of her investigations, wrote a series of articles on the North American Review which attracted widespread attention.

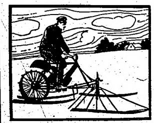
Mrs. Whitehall Smith thinks the woman's movement in England needs all her time and strength, and she never expects to return to America to live. She is a woman of striking appearance, handsome and commanding, with all the dignity and gentleness of the Quaker.

* * *

Wellman's Motor Bicycle for Use in North

Touring Sled Built for Explorer for Use in Arctic Country—Description of Machine.

New York.—Before leaving for Paris to arrange for the construction of his polar airship, Walter Wellman sent a representative to interview the automobile people of the country, select the best and make a contract for the building of a trial motor towing machine. The experience was disheartening. Almost every prominent concern had more orders on hand than could be filled, in which there was an assured profit, and to undertake an experimental machine such as Wellman wanted "would throw the entire factory out of its stride."



THE MOTOR BICYCLE SLED.

After weeks of vain effort Wellman's representative returned to Washington, enlisted the interest and cooperation of Charles M. Miller & Bro., who detailed George W. Wells, an automobile expert and a man of much originality of thought, to build the machine. In a stable in an alleyway in the northeast part of the city, where the desired secrecy could be had, the work was begun and finished.

The motor and tricar frame used were secured from a motor bicycle maker, but everything else was constructed by hand under Mr. Wells. The motor is of four and one-half horsepower. It is intended for towing solely and not for speed, and therefore is geared low. The machine can travel from two to thirty miles an hour over smooth ice.

The runners used are of two pairs of Norwegian "ski," both having seen actual service in the north on Wellman's two former trips and having been worn by Wellman himself. The wood is therefore seasoned and can be relied upon. They are reenforced, however, with sheet iron, underneath which are steel runners or skates. The front "ski" are the guides; the rear ones being used to take some of the weight from the tractive or driving wheel when soft snow is encountered, which is frequent enough in the frozen north to make such a provision necessary.

The driving wheel is quite an interesting bit of mechanism, and is Mr. Wells' invention. It is constructed entirely of steel except for the rubber tire. The width of the wheel proper is about six inches, on the outer edge of which are broad teeth that are to give the power in the snow or soft ice. In the center is a penumatic tire of rubber two inches wide. This is covered with steel wire to prevent puncture, and this latter is covered with a strip of leather which is filled with sharp steel teeth about the size of the head of an ordinary screw, that will grip the hardest ice and, as Mr. Wells put it, will climb the side of a house.

Evidence.

As small Tommy was about to climb into his chair at the dinner table his mother said: "Are your hands clean, dear?"

"'Course they are," answered Tommy. "If you don't believe it, look at the towel."

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

APPROACHES TO STATE CAPITOL ARE TO BE BUILT.

Huge Water Tank Gives Away—The State Makes Loans—Boy Is Kicked in Jaw.

St. Paul—Butler Brothers were awarded the contract to build the approaches to the main entrance of the state capitol. The contract price is $19,000, and the work is to be completed by next November. This was the only business transacted at the meeting of the capitol commissioners yesterday morning, and is the last large contract which the commission will award.

The approach to the building will be imposing and ornamental, so as to be in strict accordance with the exterior of the building as far as artistic effect is concerned. The approach will begin at Wabasha street, where the present board walk now does duty as an approach. The main walk will rise gracefully to within a few feet of the main entrance, where two branches, forming a semi-circle at the end of the approach, will be built.

The State Fair.

Hamline—Sept. 3 is the opening of the fair. One month from Wednesday, Aug. 4, is the date for the annual privilege sale, when the concessions for the fair of 1906 will be auctioned off on the grounds.

The general entries of all horses and cattle and other stock will close Aug. 15, but entries for the national Shorthorn show will close on Aug. 1. Entries in the woman's department close on Friday, Aug. 31. In the department of vegetables, grain and farm produce entries will be received one week before the fair opens, and will not be received after Saturday, Sept. 1. The same rule applies to the horticultural division. In the butter and cheese departments exhibits must reach the fair by Thursday, Aug. 30.

Tank Gave Way.

Duluth—The huge water tank on the top of the five-story wholesale building at 223-227 South Fifth avenue west gave away and fell to the dock in the rear, letting loose 15,000 gallons of water that flooded the building from roof to basement.

The building was occupied by H. Hellstein, manufacturer of men's furnishings, and the fifty employes, mostly girls, were thrown into a panic by the accident.

Two men narrowly escaped death by being buried under the mass of falling wood and iron. The tank tore away the corner of the roof and a section of the wall of the building when it came down.

State Loans.

Minneapolis—The state board of investment passed on applications for state loans amounting in the aggregate to $140,000. There is $275,000 in cash in the funds and there has been a rush of applications for state loans during the last few months. Crow Wing county received a loan of $50,000 for refunding its bonds. Independent District No. 1, Cook county, which applied for a loan of $20,000, to erect a school building, had its application cut down to $10,000. The members of the board thought that this sum is sufficient.

Banks.

St. Paul—Private banks are becoming state banks at the rate of almost two a week, and it is predicted that before the next legislature meets there will hardly be a private bank in the state. The last legislature failed to pass any law eliminating the private bank from the banking system of the state. There was strong opposition to the enactment of any such legislation, but as conditions have since developed there was really no need for such legislation and the private banks are gradually reorganizing as state banks.

Kicked in the Jaw.

St. Cloud—Cemillus Thielman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thielman, had a narrow escape from death while going to the Union school well to get some water. A team of horses had broken loose and were running around and one of them kicked young Thielman under the jaw, cutting a deep gash four inches long. There were no witnesses of the accident and nothing was known of the affair until the boy was found unconscious, his face covered with blood. Although painfully injured, Thielman will recover.

Many Fish.

Duluth—The government Lakeside fish hatchery has this season sent out quantities of fish fry, the total probably aggregating $2,000,000, which when they have become large enough for food, allowing for a fair percentage that do not mature, will be worth at least $2,000,000. The output included 20,000,000 whitefish, 3,500,000 pike and perch, 8,000,000 lake trout, 150,000 brook trout and 100,000 steelhead salmon. About 25,000 brook trout and 20,000 steelheads yet remain to be planted.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The state highway commission proposes to abolish the office of county surveyor.

St. Paul—St. Paul at present is the headquarters of the federal action against Standard Oil.

St. Paul—St. Paul's Episcopal church completes the first fifty years of its existence.

Hamline—The Twin City labor unions are asked to join in the Labor day celebration at the state fair.

Winona—Over $300 worth of Fourth of July ammunition was destroyed at dusk in the North Star grocery, one of the leading grocery stores in the west end of the city and owned by C. P. Schuler.

Stillwater—While William Sullivan was crossing the pontoon bridge last night at midnight he was assaulted by three tramps, who after knocking him down one drew a large knife and cut a gash in his throat which is several inches long.

Minneapolis—Mrs. Mary Groff, 85 East Fillmore avenue, dropped dead in a class room of St. Matthew's parochial school on the West side.

HE DIDN'T LIE—WHAT THE GOOD BOOK SAID.

There is in the service of a Baltimore man an elderly darky, who is much given to rebuking the mischievousness of his grandson, also in the employ of the Baltimorean. One day the latter chanced to overhear a conversation between the first and third generations, from which it was at once apparent that old Mose was scolding the boy for some trifling fault. The cross-examination appeared unsatisfactory to old Mose, he suspecting the pickaninny of concealing something.

"Jackson Brown," said the grandfather, sternly, "yo' is shore keepin' sumthin' back! 'Member what de Good Book says, chile!"

"Yassah," glibly responded the third generation; "I knows dat de Bible says yo' all musn't lie; but it don't say yo' all got to tell de truf all de time!"—N. Y. Times.

Smallness.

The smallest man in the world went courting. To show how very small he was, let it be known that he laid neither $18-a-dozen roses nor $3-a-pound candy at the feet of his intended, but only a quantity of 5-cents-a-paper popcorn.

Of course he foozled.

"An impossible fellow!" declared Love, disgustedly, in speaking of the affair later. "There positively wasn't enough of him to make any kind of a fool of, so what was I to do?"—Puck.

He Had Been There.

Old Medical Student—Are you looking for dogs?

New Medical Student—Yes.

Old Do. Do.—What do you want—rooms?

New Do. Do.—No; I want to get board in a private family.

Old Do. Do.—Then you'd bettter go to Miss Slowkins over the way. You'll be bored to death there in less than a month.

Maternal Wisdom.

"George, dear, I wish you'd telephone to the Swidgertons and have them send Willie home."

"I thought you were not going to let him go over there any more."

"Yes, I told him this morning that he was never to play with the Swidgerton boys again. That's the reason I know he must be there now."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Reckoned Up.

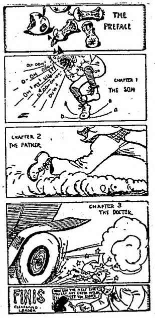
"How long is it going to take to get through this case?" asked the man who was under remand for housebreaking.

"Well," replied the young lawyer, thoughtfully, "it'll take me about two weeks to get through with it, but I'm afraid it's going to take you about five years."—Cassell's Journal.

Of Course.

He spends his money in riotous living—
He's a spendthrift.
I'm constantly "lending" to him (i. e., giving)
Ain't I a lendthrift?
—Cleveland Leader.

ANNUAL GREEN GOODS STORY.



Active Real Estate.

"Is there much activity in real estate in this section?" asked the visitor.

"I should say there is," answered Farmer Corntossel. "Had three land slides an' a washout last year."—Washington Star.

Failed.

"Yes, I got an auto on purpose to spite Mrs. Hauty."

"And did you spite her?"

"No; I ran over her husband the first time I went out in it, and she looks lovely in black!"—Houston Post.

Pleased the Baby.

Uncle Tom—The baby's looking wonderfully happy to-night.

Nurse—I expect he heard a lady, who called this afternoon, say that he wasn't a bit like any of his relations. —Tit-Bits.

Preparing for Summer.

Patience—Is Will getting ready for summer?

Patrice—Oh, yes; he's broken off his engagement with his winter girl—Yonkers Statesman.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1,00 per year in advance, If not paid in advance $1,50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

And now for the primary election campaign. The early bird will catch the worm, if they do not in turn get caught.

The democratic party do not seem to consider it a paying investment to establish a newspaper in the Twin Cities. We guess they consider this an off year for them in state politics.

The rumor that the Plummer Pioneer had sold out to F.A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls seems to be without foundation, but who controls its editoral colum would keep people guessing.

There is one good feature about the county seat removel election being stayed off until fall and that is it will give the farmers an opportunity to harvest their crops without being enterupted by county seat boomers.

The new state of Oklahoma appears to be pretty evenly divided between southern democrats and northern republicans. It is hinted that the republicans will have to do a little colonizing like they did in Kansas some years ago if they really wish to carry the state.-Crookston Times.

The Anoka Union voices a widespread sentiment when it says: "Elect no member to the legislature who is opposed to the extension of the primary election law to the state offices." It would have been stronger and not less true if it had said that no man who will not promise to support the extension should be elected.-Duluth Evening Herald.

Any republican in the state who is looking for an opportunity to get sore at A.L. Cole is looking for an opportunity to jump the ticket for financial gain, and should be placed on the wood sawyers list at once. There is one certainty and that is that Jacobson is not behind this movement, as he has tendered his services to the state central committee and will stump the state in the interest of the republican party.

Congressman Steenerson arrived home to Crookston last week, and was given a grand welcome by the citizens of his home town, who have every reason to feel proud of the fact that the tall congressman from the ninth claims that city as his home. Mr. Steenerson can well feel proud of the fact that he done his campaigning for renomination and election, while he was in Washington and can now take a well earned rest, and allow the people to do the rest.

STRIKING evidence of the faith good business men have in good newspaper advertising is found in the great advertisement which the big life insurance companys are now publishing in newspaper and magazines. If you have anything good to offer the people let them know about it in no uncertain terms. If you are unwilling to pay something to attract public attention to your wares how can people be blamed for thinking that they cannot be of much merit?-McIntosh Times.

THE NORSK NEW HOME.

The northwest is the Mecca of the Norsemen of today and within a very few years there will be more Scandinavians in Minnesota and the Dakotas than there are in Scandinavia. For this fact we have reason to be thankful for we have found that the Norseman makes the very best of Americans. The times has recently called attention to the fact that the rate of mortality among the Swedes is lower than that of any other nation and to the other fact that there is less illiteracy among Scandinavian people than among any other.

The percentage of illiteracy is even lower than that of America so we have reason to say that the Norseman makes the very best of Americans.

The old country is dear to the heart of every Norseman, but the new home is growing dearer.

Here he has his wife and babies, his farm, his business, his prosperity, his happiness. His new home has been good to him and he returns it his best love and his truest service.—Crookston Times.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? you will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

RURAL WATER SUPPLY.

Its Sanitary Condition Not What It Ought to Be.

When such great sums of money are being expended by city governments that the inhabitants of towns may have a sanitary water supply it seems strange that the supply in rural towns should receive little or no attention. This latter population may seem relatively insignificant, but it comprises about 40,000,000 souls. This means that those 40,000,000 people are drinking the water most available without a thought of its sanitary condition.

These various sources of supply, whether wells, springs or small streams, are similarly unreliable for furnishing drinking water. The statistics of mortality in the country are very indefinite, but even these show that the rural population is not as free from illness as it should be. And though everywhere the rural death rate is lower than the urban death rate, yet the lowering in the country has not been as great as in the city. An examination of typhoid statistics shows that the death rate of other diseases is generally lower in the country than in the city, but the prevalence of typhoid is almost equal to if not greater in the rural districts than in the cities.

Several instances have been reported which show the rural typhoid rate to be ten times greater than the urban rate for the same district. To particularize, a certain district in central Pennsylvania proves this fact. It is made up of a rural population with 100 inhabitants to the square mile. It is a region of fine farms, wild mountains and woods, country residences and picnic groves. And in this valley there has been as much typhoid fever as in the city of Philadelphia.

Sad as this condition is, there seems to be no remedy for it. The sources of a city water supply are few and the city government easily controls the conditions affecting it. But what can be done when the sources of supply are numbered by the thousands? A mint of money and an army of chemists would not be sufficient to give the same care to the country supply that is given to that of the city.—New York Herald.

The Verdict.

Records of the ancient city of Gorgeana, founded in 1640, better known at the present time as York Harbor, Me., contain many quaint and unusual stories of the early life of the town.

At the entrance to York harbor a bold promontory known as Stage neck extends some distance into the sea, from which formerly in stormy weather a temporary light in the form of a lantern hoisted upon an upright pole was displayed as a warning to mariners.

One dark winter night a sloop was wrecked on these rocks. A survivor on being questioned about the catastrophe said:

"The vessel struck, turned over on her side, and the skipper and another barrel of whisky rolled overboard."

The local coroner was summoned, and this somewhat startling verdict was returned:

"We find that the deceased fell from the masthead and was killed. He rolled overboard and was drowned. He floated ashore and froze to death, and the rats eat him up alive!"—Harper's Weekly.

PROBATE NOTICE

CITATION FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedant.

The State of Minnesota to all persons interested in the above entitled Matter:

Whereas Eva Shosten has filed in this Court a petition praying for administration of the estate of the above named decedent, and that letters of administration thereon be granted to Eva Shosten;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and that all persons interested in said matter be and appear before this Court on the 4th day of August 1906, at 9 o' clock A.M., at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, at Red Lake Falls, in said County, and then and there, or as soon thereafter, as said matter can be heard, show cause if any they have, why said petition should not be granted, and that this citation be served by the publication thereof in THE SUNBEAM, a weekely newspaper, printed and published in said County, according to law.

WITNESS THE HONORABLE, N.W. Tarrant Judge of said court, and the seal of said Court, this 6th day of july 1906.

[Seal] N.W. Tarrant Judge.

Notice for Publication,

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 18th 1906.

Department of the Interior,

Land Office at Crookston Minn, July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1,2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter K. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn, Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olsen, Even oftellie, Knut Jorstad of Rudell minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub in The Sunbeam june 22,1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. june 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn.on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H.E, No. 865, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O Larson, Nils O, Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, minn, Julius Halvorson of McIntosh minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Pub. in The Sunbeam june 29th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office Crookston Minn, june 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final prof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn, on August 8th 1906, viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series, for the L. (1,2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam june 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. june 18th1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn.,on August 8th 1906,viz

Jerrie O'Brien.

HE. No. 1126 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. june 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 8th 1906,viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 561 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29; Tp. 153 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William F. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Peloni of Highlanding minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register.

Observation.

An observant man in all his intercourse with society and the world constantly and unperceived marks on every person and thing the figure expressive of its value and, therefore, on meeting that person or thing, knows instantly what kind and degree of attention to give it. This is to make something of experience.—John Foster.

Tamed Poetry.

"I wish to submit a lyric, sir," said the timid young man. "My friends say it's a beauty—really sings itself."

"Humph!" said the cold hearted editor. "We couldn't use a poem like that. We want one that, once printed, will remain perfectly quiet and not keep our readers awake by singing itself at all times."

J. K. WOOD,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, &

CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam june 15 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. june 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 23 1906 viz:

Lars K. Vindlos.

H.E. No. 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 13 Sec. 22 Twp 153 N R.41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmond K. Vindlos, Ole Breiland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

Fist Pub. June 1st 1906.

Land Office at Crookston Minnesota May, 23rd., 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on July. 20th, 1906, viz:

Knut Opsahl.

H.E, No. 933, Red Lake Series, for the N.E.¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Bor P. Korstad, Simon Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for publication.

First Pub. June 1st 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn, May 23th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston minn, on July 20, 1906 viz:

Simon Opsahl.

H.E. No. 547, Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec 27 Twp. 153 N., R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Oscar Holt, Andrew T. Nilson, Bor P. Korstad, Knut Opsahl all of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam june 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. june 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls minn. on August 6th 1906. viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H.E. No. 898, Red Lake Series, for the S.W ¼. Sec. 4, Twp. 153 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brunkeberg Minn. John Oftedahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostroden, of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn, June 22 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn, at Thief River Falls, Minn on August 6th, 1906. viz:

John Rogers.

H.E. No. 7815 Chippewa Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 155 N. R. 37 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

George Cunningham, Charley Clark, Jorgen Jelle, William Lillemoen all of Jelle Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th .1906

Department of the Interior., Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 8, 1906 viz;

Julius Halvorson.

H.E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ljot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnson, Ole Vatterdahl of Highlanding Minn. Oscar Swanson of Rhoda minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

What a Letter Will Do.

A proofreader, anent the importance of trifles, read from his notebook these absurd sentences, each made by the omission of a single letter:

"The conflict was dreadful and the enemy was repulsed with great laughter."

"When the president's wife entered the humble sitting room of the miner she was politely offered a hair."

"A man was yesterday arrested on the charge of having eaten a cabman for demanding more than his fare."

"An employee in the service of the government was accused of having stolen a small ox from the mail. The stolen property was found in his vest pocket."

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders,

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

MADE BY KUPPENHEIMER
CHICAGO

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for; Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

N.N. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, ... MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.... .00..........

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

KUEHNEL STORE.

I wish to call your attention to the fact, that I have a choice and well selected stock of groceries, which I am selling at reasonable price. New settlers, who are in need of groceries can be supplied, at THE KUEHNEL POST OFFICE AND STORE, and save going long distance's to the city.

MISS A. KUEHNEL, PROP., and postmaster. Sec. 20 T. 153 R.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Patrick Sullivan is constructing a new cow barn this week.

Alfred Eve is transacting business at Thief River Falls this week.

There was 32 passengers going down on the Dan Patch boat Wednesday.

Thomas and Miss Josie Sullivan left for a weeks visit at Crystal Dakota on the Wednesdays boat.

There is to be a platform dance on the school house grounds on Saturday evening next, all are invited.

Alfred Hammerstein and P.A. Pustad were passengers down to Thief River Falls Wednesday on the Dan Patch.

Jerry and Katie O'Brien and Mr. and Mrs. Brown drove down to Thief River Falls Tuesday afternoon, returning Wednesday evening.

Mrs. E. Peterson, of Rhoda took Mondays boat for Thief River Falls on her way to Mc Intosh on a business trip returning Wednesday.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Walt McAndrees commenced haying yesterday and will cut his river meadow lands as soon as possible, as the hay will be better quality cut now than later.

The farmers boat meeting on last Sunday afternoon at this place was adjourned for one week to await the arrival of the plans and specifations for the new boat.

What grain is sown in this locality is booming and promises to be an emence crop, and our farmers are corespondly happy, wheat is just headding out, and the heads are from 4 to 6 inches in length.

☐ It was impossible for the boat Dan Patch to take all the butter there was for shipment here Wednesday. They left one barrel here belonging to Singer Bros. and two tubs at Henry Arnts place belonging to Miss Kuehnel.

Mrs. and Miss Volstad of Kratka were pleasant callers at this office Saturday, where Mrs. Volstad made application to make final proof on her land, they lunched at Miss Kuehnels, and paid her a social visit in the afternoon.

The Red Lake Flyer got stalled in the log jam, at Thief River Falls last week and the Dan Patch has had to be both express and freight boat this week. The Flyer will get out by Saturday and then will again make their regular trips.

Pat Sullivan and crew passed by here on Saturday evening with the Grand Forks drive. they were pushing the logs with a night and day shift of men and expected to get out of the way of the up river boats in a few days.

A young man named Amunson from the town of Johnson, is lying in a criticical condition at Brooks, as the result of to much 4th of July celebration at Radny. A physician was called from Brooks Monday evening who advised his removel to that place where he could obtain proper medical treatment, as he was suffering from tremens caused by excessive indulgence in beer and patent medicines. Although his recovery is considered doubtfull yet it is to be hoped that the 11 towns will not be called upon to add to the long list of 4th of July calamities.

Jerry O'Brien reports the roads in fine condition between here and Thief River Falls now.

Mrs. A.W. Shosten made a business trip to Red Lake Falls on Saturday last, returning Tuesday.

We are just getting moved into our new office this week and are more comforatable with our increase of room.

Andrew Ellingson the Highlanding merchant was a business visitor to Thief River Falls and Plummer, the past week.

Miss Mary Gallpeau who has been visiting at Mr. Eves the past ten days returned to her home at Thief River Falls on Saturday last.

Patrick O'Tool and family returned from Dakota on Wednesday and will make their residence on the claim during the balance of the season.

Register of deeds Frank Jeffers certainly is entitled to the thanks of the Red Lake River Transportation Company, by helping a good thing along by recording their articles of incorporation free of charge, which shows that register Jeffers heart is in the right place.

DR. C.C. HOUGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

DEER PARK.

A.E. Oftos returned from the Mississippi drive Sunday evening.

George Singer is treating his barn and house to a bran new coat of paint.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustof Swanson of Garnes are visiting at W.A. Swansons this week.

The new bridge at the crossing of the Clearwater is now in a good passible condition.

Stephen Singer left for Red Lake agency Wednesday, by way of Gully, on a business trip.

Peter Milen returned home from Dakota Saturday evening where he had been looking up threshing for his falls run.

Road overseer's Oscar Nestland and Martin Hyland are doing road work in their respective district this week.

Henry Peterson left for Gully Wednesday where he will attend to hawling George Singers last seasons crop of wheat to market from his Gully farm.

W.A. Swanson and George Singer, went down to Crookston Saturday, where Mr. Rustad made final proof on his homestead Monday, they returned Tuesday.

Married, at Lillo, on Thursday afternoon by the Rev. Oppegard, Hermon Lillo to Miss Ingre Lengvold. A wedding reception and dance was given in the evening which was attended by a large number of neighbors and friends. The Sunbeam joins with their many friends in wishing the happy cauple a long and prosperous journey through life.

A Conundrum For Cannon.

Speaker Cannon has received hundreds of telegrams from Oklahoma expressing the opinion of hundreds of people about him. This one, however, which he declares is the most remarkable inquiry ever propounded to an American statesman, he proposes to frame, "Shall Oklahoma, the gem of hope, be sacrificed on the Shylock of Despair?"—New York Times.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam at 8.30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's, & Arrives on the same day's, at 8.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

SCHOOL NOTICE.

In accordance with the law under which trustees are allowed $3.00 per day, hotel expenses and five cents a mile going to and coming from a meeting, held by the County Superintendent of Schools, I will hold three meetings as follows: One at Red Lake Falls, July 14th, one at Thief River Falls, July 17th, one at Kratka, July 19th 1906.

Every school officer in the county should attend one of these meetings.

H.T. McAnulty,
County Superintendent.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston June 29 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O. Nesja,

H. E. No. 664 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, S½ of N.E. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153, N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan.

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Lander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th, 1906.
Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz;

Tollef B. Nesland.

H.E. No. 646 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole O. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

SNOWSLIDES OF ROCKIES.

Peril of Mountains Takes Its Toll of Life and Property.

Every year the life of a miner in the high mountain regions is menaced by the avalanche or snowslide, and every year brings its list of casualities and of hairbreadth escapes. The story of snowslides would fill a book and would be a thrilling, tragic and in some cases a grewsome one.

Men have ridden hundreds of feet on the back of a snowslide and have escaped unhurt. Others have been caught and buried so deep and in such uncertain spots that their bodies have not been discovered until the melting of the snow in the following spring.

Some have been caught as they were walking, but a few steps from the boarding house to the mine, or while emptying a car on the mine dump. Not infrequently men have found themselves temporarily imprisoned by the entrance of the mine being closed by a slide while they were at work and have had to dig their way out.

A Chinese cook at one of the Idaho mines stepped outside his kitchen door for a moment and was caught and buried with the slide 1,000 feet down the hillside and his body was not recovered till the following spring.

Such incidents denote the extreme suddenness, power and velocity of the slide. Little or no warning is given, a roar, a cloud of snow obscuring the sight of the real slide, and in a moment thousands of tons of snow, mingled with trees and debris, are shot down the gulch or the slope of a mountain as from the mouth of a cannon. In a few seconds all is over and the scenery of the little valley is completely changed.—Mines and Minerals.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 8, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward,

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 154, N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster, Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.
Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on August 21, 1906 viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H.E. No. 1187 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Strande, Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. June 1st, 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. May 25th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on [illegible] 1906 viz:

James A. Kelly.

H.E. No. 716 Red Lake Series for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 22 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Knut Opsahl, Simon Opsahl, of Highlanding Minn. Peter O'Toole, of Kratka Minn. William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.
Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. BISHOP, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz:

Alfred Bakke.

H.E. No. 389 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oveson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.
Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H.E. No. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3,4 5, 6, Sec. 29 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

MONEY TO LOAN

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Child's View of Art.

A lover of rare old china had a collection that was the envy of her visitors. One day a little girl came with her mother for a call, and, being seated in the living room, wonderingly eyed the array of antique dishes. The hostess was much pleased at the child's evident admiration of her treasures and said, "Well, my dear, what do you think of my china?" The child looked up, and pity was in her eyes as she asked, "Hasn't you dot any pantry?"

Not Matched.

"Mustache cups?" said the salesman. "Yes, sir. Here's a pretty design. Cup and saucer $1.98."

"But," said Mr. Nurich, "that ain't the saucer that goes with it."

"Oh, yes."

"Not much it ain't. There ain't no mustache guard on it."—Philadelphia Press.

Unnecessary.

"Monsieur," said the duelist's second, "all is ready. Let me shake your hand."

"Voila!" exclaimed the duelist, with chattering teeth. "Can you not see eet ees shake too much as eet ees?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The left side of the face is usually considered by artists to be more beautiful than the right.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
Northland
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Dawn of Christmas.

Christmas day begins in the middle of the Pacific ocean on the one hundred and eightieth parallel of latitude, and there is where Santa Claus starts and ends his great and only journey of the year.

The Verdict.

Records of the ancient city of Gorgeana, founded in 1640, better known at the present time as York Harbor, Me., contain many quaint and unusual stories of the early life of the town.

At the entrance to York harbor a bold promontory known as Stage neck extends some distance into the sea, from which formerly in stormy weather a temporary light in the form of a lantern hoisted upon an upright pole was displayed as a warning to mariners.

One dark winter night a sloop was wrecked on these rocks. A survivor on being questioned about the catastrophe said:

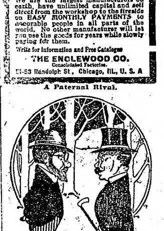
"The vessel struck, turned over on her side, and the skipper and another barrel of whisky rolled overboard."

The local coroner was summoned, and this somewhat startling verdict was returned:

"We find that the deceased fell from the masthead and was killed. He rolled overboard and was drowned. He floated ashore and froze to death, and the rats eat him up alive!"—Harper's Weekly.

Why Pay Cash
WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON
Easy Credit Terms
PIANOS $124.75 UP.
ORGANS $10.00 UP.
SEWING MACHINES $7.50 UP.
STOVES and RANGES $2.10 UP.
HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE
Of all kinds at 60 cents up.
IRON and STEEL SAFES,
TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE
FURNITURE From $6.25 up.
We are the largest manufacturers on earth, have unlimited capital and sell direct from the workshop to the fireside on EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS to accorable people in all parts of the world. No other manufacturer will let you use the goods for years while slowly paying for them.
Write for Information and Free Catalogue
THE ENGLEWOOD CO.
Consolidated Factories.
61-63 Randolph St, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A

A Paternal Rival.



"Why did you disinherit your son because he ran away with a chorus girl?"

"Well, just between you and me, I was in love with her myself."—New York World.

The Hero Who Ran Away

By J. S. FLETCHER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

When the afternoon express finally rolled into the Gare du Nord at seven o'clock of an April evening, Maxwell left the train with a sigh of immense relief. He was in Paris, and in Paris he could breathe and think, and perhaps make up his mind as to what was to be done at the present crisis of his life.

"Anyway, I am freed from the great, the overwhelming temptation of her presence," he thought, as he walked moodily about the flower-scented streets. "A man gets so little chance of thinking clearly in a woman's presence, or if she is within easy distance of him. If I'm going to fight this thing out it must be away from her. She—"

Maxwell stopped suddenly—thought and step alike came to a summary conclusion. He was dimly conscious that he stood at the corner of the Rue Royale, and that he was shaking hands with his friend Lady Ravensrode, from whom in some vague fashion the spring morning had suddenly borrowed new charm of light, shade, color and scent.

"Major Maxwell!" she exclaimed. "But why should one be surprised? Paris is so very much next-door nowadays. Let me see—it was night before last that we met, wasn't it?"

"I think so," said Maxwell. "I—I came over yesterday — Dover and Calais, you know—on business."

"I came over yesterday, too," said Lady Ravensrode. "Folkstone and Boulogne, you know—also on business. My business is—frocks."

Maxwell stroked his mustache. He became conscious of the presence of Lady Ravensrode's maid, hovering at a discreet distance; also of the interest which was being created in the minds and eyes of the passers-by, who glanced at the English woman's gracious figure, copper-gold hair, and vivacious beauty, with unmistakable admiration. He looked at Lady Ravensrode, first furtively, then with a curious determination in his bronzed face.

"Send your maid away," he said. "The frocks, I am sure, can wait a little. I—I want to talk to you. The fact is, I'm in a bit—no, I mean a good deal—of a hole, and I want your advice."

Lady Ravensrode obeyed this peremptory order without a murmur.

They sat down on a rustic seat under the refreshing shade trees of the Champs Elysees.

Maxwell began tracing strange shapes in the gravel at his feet; he knitted his brow and pursed up his lips, and Lady Ravensrode watched him with a tiny smile at the corners of her mouth. Presently he looked up, regarded her with a stony stare, and said:

"The fact is that I've run away."

"Run away? With whom?"

"That," said Maxwell, "is feminine, but silly. I ran away to think."

"Oh," she said, blankly.

"Well, I'll tell you the truth," he said, "I'm running away from a woman."

"That," she replied, "is exactly what I should expect of you."

He looked quickly and suspiciously at her.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "Then you do think me a coward?"

"I didn't say so," she said. "Is she pretty?"

Maxwell raised his eyes and stared at her.

"Pretty?" he said. "She—why, she is the most beautiful woman in the world!"

The honesty and simplicity of his tone were so evident that her inquiring eyes dropped before his.

"She is to be congratulated that you are so fond of her," she said, softly.

"Ah, but then, she doesn't know," he answered. "The thing is—ought I to tell her? That's what I want to know. That's the question I want to decide. Oh, I'm a horrible coward about it."

"If you love her," said Lady Ravensrode, "you certainly ought to tell her of your love for her. It's wrong not to; it's wicked."

"Wrong? Wicked? Why?" he demanded, with signs of great surprise.

Lady Ravensrode turned her face toward him and studied him with dancing eyes and a tightly-closed mouth. Maxwell frowned still more gloomily.

"Why do you look at me like that?" he asked. "I know you're laughing at me, right away down in your heart, and I want to know why. You see, sometimes I think 'John Maxwell, you'll be the luckiest man on earth if you can win her—try your luck!' But again I think: 'Nonsense, don't make a fool of yourself, and—'"

Lady Ravensrode interrupted him quickly.

"What, by marrying her?" she said.

"Good heavens, no!" answered Maxwell. "No, but by thinking that she would consent to marry me. You see, it's here. She's young, and beautiful, and rich, and she is so much admired that she might choose a husband amongst the greatest—she might marry a really great man."

"Every man is really great in the eyes of some woman," said Lady Ravensrode.

"But consider—I am 43 years of age!" said Maxwell.

"And the lady?—what is her age?" asked Lady Ravensrode.

"I believe she is 25—perhaps a little more," he answered.

Lady Ravensrode laughed.

"You are certainly innocent," she said. "I am 25, and I think that if I ever marry again I should certainly have a strong partiality for a husband at least 15 years older than myself."

Maxwell threw up his hands with a gesture of something like despair.

"There it is again!" he said. "I'm continually brought face to face with the fact that I do not understand women. I should have thought that a young and brilliant woman of 25 would have preferred to unite with a man of about her own age—"

"And I suppose you think that a woman of 25 likes to marry a raw child of 21?" she said, smiling. "Certainly you men are not distinguished for your intuition. But let us make progress. I think we have satisfactorily accounted for this disparity in age objection. I may tell you, as a woman, that your lady of 25 will not object to you because of your 43 summers."

"But even then," he said, "I've nothing to offer her. She's a brilliant woman—she knows everybody—she's a big social reputation—I—well, I'm not exactly a society man—I'm afraid my tastes are old-fashioned. In fact, I've a sneaking suspicion that I like a quiet, stay-at-home family circle sort of life —you know the sort of life that sort of man likes."

"Yes," she answered. "I think I do. How do you know that—that she wouldn't like that sort of life, too?"

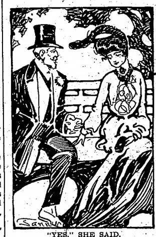
Maxwell continued to trace patterns in the gravel.

"Well," said Maxwell. "I don't know. There's an awful lot to be said on both sides of the question. I admire her talents and her cleverness, you know, just as I love her good qualities—and herself. She has always been very good to me. We are—friends."

"That may mean so much, or so little. Precisely how much does it mean?"

"Well," he said, "we are friends enough to quarrel and to call each other names—I can't think of a better proof of our friendship."

"It is proof positive," she answered. "I—I think you—that is, if you really wish my advice, and we are friends, aren't we, of almost the same caliber? —I think that you might—no, should speak to her. Besides—"



"YES," SHE SAID.

"Yes?" he said. "Besides—what?"

"How do you know that she may not be—well, anxious that you should speak to her?" she said.

Maxwell gazed at her scrutinizingly.

"You mean that—that perhaps she cares for me?" he said.

"It may be so."

He screwed up his lips as if to whistle.

"Upon my honor!" he said. "I never thought of such a thing—it seemed too absurd. To think of me—eh? So—you really think I ought to speak?"

"Yes," she answered.

Maxwell looked round him. A cripple was greatly interested in a parterre of flowers behind the wire fencing; no one else was near. His eyes came back to his companion's face, and when she saw them she dropped her own.

"I always was a clumsy beast," he said. "I've been trying to propose to you for a month, and I daren't. And now I've done it pretty badly—in fact, I don't know whether I've done it at all, but I wish you'd say yes or no, Margaret, for I'm shot if I can stand the suspense any longer!"

Lady Ravensrode slid her right hand along the seat.

"Yes," she said. "Yes. It always was yes—if you'd known."

Five minutes later the cripple stared with shining eyes at a shining gold coin.

Professional Language.

A small boy who lives in an inland traffic center had been accustomed to visiting the depots, says a writer in the New York World, and there he watches admiringly the operations of railroading. One day he arranged the chairs in line at home, and persuaded his aunt to play train with him.

"You be engineer and I'll be conductor," he said. "Lend me your watch and climb into the cab."

Watch in hand, he hurried down the platform.

"Pull out, you red-headed jay!" he called from the other end to the amazed aunt.

"Why, Willie!" she exclaimed, in horror.

"That's right! Chew the rag!" he retorted. "Pull out. We are five minutes late already."

Willie does not play round the station any more, and is acquiring a less technical vocabulary.

MAKE GOOD SAILORS

MEN FROM THE MIDDLE WEST WELCOMED IN THE NAVY.

For Those Who Have a Fondness for the Sea, Service on Uncle Sam's Ships Offers Many Inducements.

For the past few years the navy has been recruiting quite extensively in the middle west.

From data obtained at the navy department, it appears that a superior class of men are obtained from this section. A less number of recruits are rejected for physical causes at the final examination at the training stations, and the men show an unusual degree of intelligence and aptitude fod learning their new duties. A large number of mechanics are recruited from cities in the middle west, but the greater proportion of boys who enlist in this rating are sent to a training station, where they are given a thorough course of instruction, fitting them for the duties of the seaman branch. For a young man with a fondness for the sea a fine opportunity is open in the navy. While the pay at the start for apprentice seaman is small—only $16 per month—it must be borne in mind that he is paid this rate only while he is undergoing instructions and not actually performing any duty aboard ship; then, too, his board, lodging and medical attendance, and original outfit of uniform are furnished him gratis. His transportation from the recruiting office to a training station is paid for by the government, and should he leave the service because of physical disqualifications, he is furnished with transportation to his home. An ample opportunity for promotion is open to him. After mastering the details of any particular branch of the service, such as the seaman branch, or any of the mechanical branches, he is eligible for advancement to petty officer, third class, which pays $30 to $35 a month. After reaching that rating, advancement to second class petty officer, first class petty officer and chief petty officer depends entirely upon his own capabilities and conduct. The pay of a chief petty officer is $70 per month, to which should be added free rations, lodging, medical care and hospital treatment, if he be in need of it. There are extra allowances for certain duties, such as service aboard submarines, for expertness in signaling, or as a gun pointer; reenlistments, good conduct medals, and other things which bring the pay of a chief petty officer with a permanent appointment to $75 or $85 per month, clear of living expenses.

Further advancement is open to the man of ability who studies and improves all his opportunities to warrant rank. This position pays from $1,200 to $1,800 a year and allowances, and is a life position, with all the benefits of longevity pay and retirement that commissioned officers receive.

It is not impossible to even attain commissioned rank in the navy. It means hard work and a great deal of study, but the fact that every year since the passage of the act authorizing the commissioning of men from the ranks, some candidates have passed the examination, shows that the goal is within the reach of any bright, capable young man who is willing to work for it. Once he is commissioned an ensign, he is on exactly the same footing as a graduate of the naval academy, and is eligible to promotion to the higher ranks, the same as the other members of his class, and should easily be able in the ordinary course to reach the grade of captain, if not even that of rear admiral, before his compulsory retirement at 62 years of age. The first man to take advantage of the provisions of this law was Lieut. H. B. Soule, U. S. N. He was serving as gunner in 1901, at the time of the passage of the act, and passed a successful examination that year, receiving an appointment as ensign. Since then he has been promoted to lieutenant, junior grade, then to lieutenant, and is now nearly half way through that grade. He entered the service as apprentice, third class, at $9 per month.

Recognized the Speech.

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, was making a speech on the proposed Erie ship canal and one of his attentive listeners was the new senator from Maryland, Mr. Whyte. It was noticed that Senator Whyte was unusually interested, and when the Georgia senator had concluded the Marylander went over to call upon him. "Senator, where did you get those figures you submitted to the senate?" asked the new Maryland senator. "I don't know exactly where they came from," Senator Bacon replied, "but my secretary dug them up somewhere, and I am willing to vouch for them, for he is a very careful and painstaking fellow." "I can vouch for them, too," answered Senator Whyte, "for I used the same figures in a speech on the subject when I was in the senate before." The speech Senator Whyte referred to was one delivered in the senate in 1881.

Not So Short.

"O! dear," sighed Mrs. Galley, "I've still got to plan my bathing suit. I wish I could get some good suggestions—"

"I'll give you one," promptly remarked her husband. "Suppose you build the bottom of it a little closer to sea-level this year."

WOMAN AND HOME

Practical Help for the Hostess

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

A Post-Nuptial Luncheon Fine Idea —The Decorations and Refreshments—Appropriate Wedding Toasts.

A Post Nuptial Luncheon.

"Oh, if my friends only knew how much I would appreciate all their lovely invitations afterwards," sighed a much feted bride-to-be, as she prepared for her sixth function that week—and only ten days until the wedding! So, with this in mind, a thoughtful hostess has prepared to entertain a much-sought young woman after the honeymoon. It is to be an all white affair, and a dream in every way. The center-piece is to be a low cut glass bowl, containing bride roses. Glass candle sticks, with white shades; white slippers at each place to hold salted almonds, and the most bewitching heart-shaped boxes to contain a new imported bon-bon that is delicious. These bon-bons are made in pink, to resemble tiny shells, in red and in white; the latter resemble in form the tips of asparagus. They are "the thing" to serve instead of the peppermint cream patties which everyone has because there has seemed to be nothing else to take their place. The menu is to be nearly all white, starting with cream of celery soup with bread sticks; then creamed chicken with mushrooms in heart-shaped pastry shells; new potatoes French fried, white cherry salad, the pits replaced with hazel nuts, served on the white hearts of head lettuce, a whipped cream mayonaise dressing and saltines; pineapple ice is to be the dessert, frozen in the form of wedding bells, and the place cards are to be in the same shape, with charming heads cut out and done in water colors. For each guest there is to be a miniature wedding cake, decorated with a spray of artificial orange blossoms. Of course, the bride will be anxious to tell of the recent journey, and there will be no other entertainment scheme provided.

A huge bow of tulle will decorate the chair to be occupied by the bride.

Some Wedding Toasts.

There are many requests for toasts suitable for a wedding breakfast or dinner. Those given here are all good and may be given seated or standing, as the occasion demands:

What shall I wish you?
That you drink to-day
A draught divine
Of a longed-for joy,
Life's choicest wine.

To the days of Auld Lang Syne,
To the things you'll know no more.

May life's cloudless sunshine lighten
All your coming days,
And contentment bless and brighten
All your future ways.

May flowers deck your way,
And friends hold close and fast.
May the future be so bright,
You may never think of the past.

Blessings be about you, dear, wherever you may go.

'Tis a lucky day, boy.

Oh! lovely day, refuse to go;
Hang in the heavens forever so.

The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her.

We wear a face of joy.

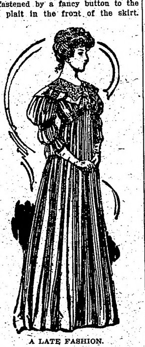
Here are my good wishes,
Love speed them on their ways,
And trust that this will be to you
The happiest of wedding days.

MADAME MERRI.

A Pretty Gown Of Soft Crepe.

Pink the Favorite Color of the Moment—We Suggest Pink Crepe for This Charming Gown.

This gown is of pale pink crepe de chine. The empire girdle of taffeta is fastened by a fancy button to the box plait in the front of the skirt.



A LATE FASHION.

The open neck is finished by a shaped collar of the material, over which is a second collar of guipure. The sleeve is a double puff, finished with a frill and trimmed with a band of taffeta. The chemisette is of guipure.

Possession of Natural Courtesy

Natural courtesy is perfect courtesy. It must proceed from an inner sense of the right thing to do, and that means true politeness—the politeness that comes from a good heart.

Humanity, being gregarious, naturally flocks together, and to make this intercourse bearable, there must be a hearty disposition to make the best of circumstances. Those best succeeding in this are the most courteous, and, therefore, the best liked.

It will not do to put one's own special likes and dislikes before those of others, if one expects to have a pleasant road to follow. There are many things to be considered when one mingles with fellow-creatures: Whether the discomforts met can be helped; whether any one is to blame, or only force of circumstances. No matter what the cause, it becomes the duty of each separate individual to make the best of all that comes, and nothing helps in the doing of this so well as the true courtesy that comes from the heart.

There are many bearing outward marks of gentle birth that are found devoid of the first principles of gentle breeding; so appearances are not always to be given precedence in judging. It is the small observances that stamp with the hallmark of true breeding those whose modesty of demeanor and garb seem to relegate them to the background.

The woman who smilingly yields the extra space beside her in a public conveyance; the man who lifts his hat with as much politeness to the poorly gowned as to the elegant lady, making no distinction as far as manner goes; the girl who gives her seat to the elderly person with some laughing remark to relieve her own action—all these may never have heard of "The Laws of Etiquette;" they only feel within themselves the true spirit of politeness, prompting the right thing in their own good and true natures.

The Kind of Girls That Men Admire Most.

It Is Decidedly a Mistake to Think the Simple Virtues Are Pushed to the Wall.

They admire the girl who is her mother's right hand in household matters, and who is not above taking an interest in the most trivial matters in connection with house duties.

They admire the girl who is a bright, entertaining companion, and who has ever a kind word and pleasant smile for all with whom she comes in contact.

They admire the girl who is always neatly gowned, no matter if in inexpensive materials, and who never dresses loudly or in questionable taste.

They admire the girl who can adapt herself to any society, who never puts on affected airs, and who would scorn to do a mean action.

They admire the girl who in an emergency can turn her hand to anything, from cooking the family dinner to retrimming an old hat.

They admire the girl who is unselfish enough to give up some pleasure of her own to benefit another, and does not consider herself aggrieved at having to do so.

Just for Style.

Dignity of style is a device for making thomas-putrefaction out of tommyrot.—Puck.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY

She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It.

When a physician tells a woman suffering with serious feminine trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for just such operations.

Miss Margret Merkley

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of menacing female troubles cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margret Merkley, of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, shooting pains through the pelvic organs, bearing down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said I had a female trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well."

Female troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing-down pains, don't neglect yourself: try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sacrifice Made by Judge.

Justice Holmes, of the supreme court, in order that he may preserve his mind free from distractions of information and misinformation that would impair his efficiency and wisdom as a jurist, does not allow himself to read the newspapers.

Accept Signatures in Irish.

Irish language revivalists have just scored a notable victory. The directors of the National bank have agreed o accept checks signed in Irish, provided the signature is repeated in English. One of the advantages of this system, as the bank points out, is that it acts as a double protection against forgery.

Notice to Barley Growing Farmers.

Do not cut your barley before it is thoroughly ripe. Second, shock and cap well. Third, do not thrash out of shock. Fourth, stack your barley and let it sweat and cure in stack, take care so that it does not heat in bin after thrashing. By following these instructions you will improve the quality of your grain and thereby realize the highest price in the market. The Maltsters will absolutely refuse to purchase barley which has been otherwise handled. John Noth, Secretary, United States Maltsters' Association.

Girl Horsebreaker.

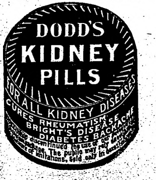
Miss Winnonah Von Ohl,, a New Jersey girl 20 years old, is making quite a reputation as a horsebreaker. Five years ago, a slender slip of a girl, she went to South Dakota with her mother, who had been sent thither for a change of climate. Miss Winnonah learned to ride bronchos out there and on returning east she took to training and breaking horses, in which work she has been remarkably successful. She has never sustained any injury while thus engaged.

Glass That Keeps Out Heat.

An Austrian inventor, Richard Szigmondy, is reported to have made a new kind of window glass whose chief peculiarity is that it prevents the passage of nine-tenths of the heat of the sun's rays.

It is well known that ordinary window glass allows nearly all of the heat derived from the sun to pass through, but, on the other hand, intercepts all heat coming from non-luminous sources, such as a stove or the heated ground. This is the reason why heat accumulates under the glass roof of a hothouse.

If covered with Szigmondy's glass a hothouse would, it is claimed, become a cold house, since the heat could not get into it. One advantage set forth in favor of the new glass is that a house whose windows were furnished with it would remain delightfully cool in summer. But in winter, perhaps, the situation would not be so agreeable.



BLOATED WITH DROPSY.

The Heart Was Badly Affected When the Patient Began Using Doan's.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, of 415 West Fourth St., Olympia, Wash., says: "For over three years I suffered with a dropsical condition without being aware that it was due to kidney trouble. The early stages were principally backache and bearing down pain, but I went along without worrying much until dropsy set in. My feet and ankles swelled up, my hands puffed, and became so tense I could hardly close them. I had great difficulty in breathing, and my heart would flutter with the least exertion. I could not walk far without stopping again and again to rest. Since using four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills the bloating has gone down and the feelings of distress have disappeared."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

Most of us have trouble to lend.

Love will find a way, even a way out.

Fortune doesn't always smile on the funny man.

Success is doing a thing before some one else does it.

Marriage is the gateway from romance to reality.

Fortune never knocks at some doors because it can't get by the janitor.

It doesn't pay to go entirely on the theory that things go by contraries.

The woman who dresses better than her friends will never be popular with them.

Those who have greatness thrust upon them seldom know what to do with it.

The fool and his money are what keep the rest of us from starving to death.

Riches have wings, but they are not the kind of wings that are fashionable in heaven.

Lots of wives never understand why their husbands should need any spending money.

Some men are so fond of sympathy that they actually glory in being the under dog.

If a man would only pay his debts as promptly as his grudges his credit would be better.

When a girl begins to ask a fellow about his life insurance, the rest ought to be easy.

The Lady and the Tramp.

Mrs. Alden was a clubwoman. Her particular fad was the moral elevation of the lower classes. She was engaged in writing a paper on the subject when the cook came to tell her that a rough-looking man at the back door wanted some breakfast.

"Give him a soup ticket," said Mrs. Alden. Then, with a sudden thought—"No, wait. I'll see him myself."

She went into the kitchen. "My good man," she said, "will you saw some wood, if I give you a good breakfast?"

"Certainly, madam," said the tramp, very elegantly, as he disappeared in the direction of the woodpile. In about five minutes he reappeared. "I'm ready now for that breakfast," he anonunced.

"Have you sawed the wood in such a short time?" asked Mrs. Alden, coming again into the kitchen.

"Yes, madam," he answered. Then, between huge mouthfuls: "Excuse me, madam, for correcting you, but you should say, 'Have you seen the wood?'"

Any man who has to get up and get his own breakfast while his wife lies in bed is likely to feel like turning the "God Bless Our Home" motto to the wall.

DOCTOR'S SHIFT.

Now Gets Along Without It.

A physician says: "Until last fall I used to eat meat for my breakfast and suffered with indigestion until the meat had passed from the stomach.

"Last fall I began the use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and very soon found I could do without meat, for my body got all the nourishment necessary from the Grape-Nuts, and since then I have not had any indigestion and am feeling better and have increased in weight.

"Since finding the benefit I derived from Grape-Nuts I have prescribed the food for all of my patients suffering from indigestion or over-feeding and also for those recovering from disease where I want a food easy to take and certain to digest and which will not overtax the stomach.

"I always find the results I look for when I prescribe Grape-Nuts. For ethical reasons please omit my name." Name given by mail by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The reason for the wonderful amount of nutriment, and the easy digestion of Grape-Nuts is not hard to find.

In the first place, the starchy part of the wheat and barley goes through various processes of cooking, to perfectly change the starch into Dextrose or Post Sugar, in which state it is ready to be easily absorbed by the blood. The parts in the wheat and barley which Nature can make use of for rebuilding brain and nerve centers are retained in this remarkable food, and thus the human body is supplied with the powerful strength producers so easily noticed after one has eaten Grape-Nuts each day for a week or 10 days. "There's a reason."

Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

HORTICULTURE

THE SIDE GRAFT.

Method Which Is Valuable When Working with Seedlings Growing in Nursery.

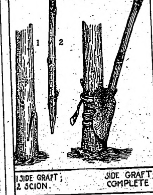
The method of grafting shown in the illustration is vaaulble when grafting young seedlings growing in the nursery or greenhouse. A slanting cut is made just under the bark on the stock near the ground, and the scion is prepared much the same as for cleft-grafting, except that the cut on what is to be the outside of the scion is shorter than the other. It is then pushed into the cut on the stock, so that the barks will be in contact, and then wrapped and waxed the same as the other grafts.

The scions used for grafts of all kinds should be well ripened, healthy shoots of the previous year's growth. They should be cut in the fall and packed in sand or moss until needed. In the case of hardy sorts, good results can generally be secured with spring-cut grafts, but it is safer to cut them in the fall. April and May are the months for grafting.

For covering all cut surfaces made in grafting, a wax made of resin, beeswax, and either tallow or oil should be used. For use during the cool days of early spring the following formula will give good results:

Resin ....4 parts
Beeswax ....2 parts
Tallow ....1 part

All parts by weight. Oil, three-fourths part, may be used instead of tallow. Melt together and when well mixed pour into cold water; after greasing the hands, pull like candy. When it reaches a light yellow color it can be used. If to be used in cold weather it may be softened with warm water, while for warm weather the amount of resin should be slightly increased.



HOW GRAFT IS MADE.

The best results in grafting are obtained when stock and scion come from plants of equal vigor and belonging to the same species, says the Prairie Farmer, but in many cases fairly good success can be obtained between plants of nearly related species. Thus the apple, pear, quince, thorn and mountain ash can be grafted upon one or the other, but the union in most cases will not be so perfect or durable as between plants of the same species.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

Strong growing plants are least attacked by insects.

Sunshine and water can produce results in any soil in which plant food is found.

If hungry trees could "bawl" as the calves do, what a chorus of howls and bleats we should hear!

Make a map of the new orchard. If the varieties are not written down now, they will probably be forgotten a few years hence.

Mulch is the salvation of young trees set in old mowing fields. Fertilizer underneath it will insure a rapid grown.

Some cultivated crop may sometimes be grown to advantage among young trees. But do not attempt to grow grain or grass crops there.

Don't let anybody interfere with the birds' nests if you can help it. If all goes well, each one will soon be filled with four or five hungry mouths, down which the parent bird will store away lots of the injurious insects from the farm.—Farm Journal.

Every disease of plants is caused by minute fungi called bacteria. Some people add, "careless treatment and bad weather," but the latter causes cannot be classed as disease. Strong plants, well taken care of and supplied plant food in abundance have a good deal of power to throw off disease.

Kerosene Emulsion.

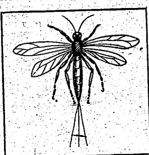
Kerosene, two parts; sour milk, one part; churn together. Or, kerosene, one gallon; soap, a quarter of a pound; hot water, half a gallon; churn together into a cream. To one gallon of either of these add ten gallons of water for spraying on tough foliage or plants, or 15 gallons of water for more tender varieties. You can buy the emulsion at the seed stores already prepared, if you prefer. This will kill most soft-bodied insects, including the different varieties of scale lice, plant lice, etc., but unless carefully made it may burn the foliage.

CODLING MOTH PARASITE.

Report of Secretary of California Horticultural Commission on Insect.

Very much attention has been directed from the different states of the union and from various countries of the world to California's method of fighting insect pests by means of their natural enemies, especially toward the experiment now being carried on in the effort to overcome the ravages of the codling moth by means of the newly introduced parasite, Calliephialtes messer.

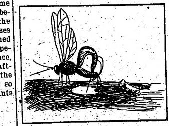
The codling moth is unquestionably the most destructive and most widespread of all of our insect pests, and is found practically wherever apples or pears are grown. It was introduced into California shortly after the completion of the transcontinental railroad, and was first observed in 1870, since which time it has spread rapidly over the whole state until there are few orchards, and these only in isolated districts, that are free from the pest.



FEMALE PARASITE OF CODLING MOTH—MUCH ENLARGED.

During all these years the apple and pear industries have been growing and extending until they have become of first rank among the orchards of the state. The only method of keeping the pest in check has been by means of spraying with Paris green or other arsenical compounds, and this naturally involves a great deal of outlay for material and labor, and in spite of the most efficient work, a large percentage of the fruit is lost.

California having been successful with several introduced insects in keeping in check some of the injurious species, determined to make the experiment of discovering and introducing an effective parasite for the codling moth. It was urged that over very large sections of Europe, where the apple was extensively grown, the codling moth had been known for a great many years, dating as far back as history itself, and yet a very large percentage of the fruit was uninjured by the moth. From this fact it was argued that there must of necessity be some natural cause which prevented the increase of the destructive insect, and experience has shown that this cause was in all probability a parasitic insect. Upon these lines, an agent of the California horticultural commission was dispatched to Europe with instructions to discover the codling moth, and discover and forward, if possible, the natural enemies which he might find working thereon. In accordance with this plan, Mr. Compere traveled extensively through Europe, and discovered in the apple-growing sections of Spain an Ichneumon fly working upon the codling moth in its pupal form. With much labor and difficulty, he obtained a large number of these, and forwarded them to the California commission, where they have been bred in confinement and distributed widely through the apple and pear orchards of the state.



FEMALE IN ACT OF OVIPOSITION.

It is yet too early to assert how effective this parasite will prove in checking the spread of the codling moth. Reports have been received from orchards in which it has been distributed stating that it is multiplying rapidly and taking hold of the work in good shape, and that the pest has been largely reduced. This is the report for one season, however, and a season that was not propitious for the breeding of the codling moth, as the apple and pear crops were both light, and climatic conditions may have had something to do with the reduced number of codling moths breeding that season.

There is one difficulty to be apprehended in connection with this parasite, and that is that it attacks the pest only after it has left the fruit and gone into its pupal stage. The pupae are not found around the trees, but are widely scattered, being found in the walls of old buildings frequently, in old fences, and any other convenient hiding place, and are often so widely scattered that it would seem difficult for the parasite to seek them out in sufficient numbers to materially check their increase. At the same time, there is a possibility that the parasite may not confine its work to the codling moth, but, like many other of the Ichneumon flies, may attack other species of the Lepidoptera. These are matters which the future has to prove, and all that can be said for the codling moth parasite at the present time is that it is an experiment, and so far a very promising one.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. Price, 50c. per bottle. One size only.

Genuine—Syrup of Figs

Libby's
Luncheon Loaf

Libby's Food Products

make picnics more enjoyable by making the preparations easier.

Easier to carry; easier to serve; and just right for eating as they come from the can.

Libby's cooks have first pick of the best meats obtainable—and they know how to cook them, as well as pack them.

If you're not going to a picnic soon you can make one tomorrow at your own table by serving some sliced Luncheon Loaf. It is a revelation in the blending of good meat and good spices.

Booklet free, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Write

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

FROM A CYNIC'S DICTIONARY.

Rouge—Face suicide.

Benedick—A penitent bachelor.

Courage—Marrying a second time.

Love—The banked fires of passion.

Divorce—The correction of an error.

Altruism—Mowing your neighbor's lawn.

Suspicion—Testing the engagement ring on window glass.

Jealousy—A tribute to man's vanity that every wise woman pays.

Furious—A word expressing the pleasure a girl experiences when she is kissed.

Conscience—The internal whisper that says: "Don't do it; you might get caught."

Widowhood—The only compensation some women get out of marriage.—Henry Thompson.

Water Wagon—A vehicle from which a man frequently dismounts to boast of the fine ride he's having.

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre

That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box W. K. La Crosse, Wis.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Dere aint goner be no leavins

Make your boy's food tasty—Mother—for it has to do some big things. It has to make flesh, blood, bone and muscle and supply boundless Energy. Remember, the boy of today is the man of tomorrow.

Don't injure him physically and mentally with indigestible meats, pastries, rich puddings, etc., that act as a drain on his nervous energy.

But feed him plenty of

EGG-O-SEE 10¢

all there is in wheat—and he'll be your heart's joy—strong, healthy, bright, smart and quick at his studies.

You won't have to coax him to eat it either, Mother, for its delicious rich flavor when eaten with cream and sugar is just what he craves most for.

Egg-O-See keeps the blood cool and is the ideal summer food.

Give him some tomorrow—"there won't be no leavin's."

Prepared under conditions of scrupulous cleanliness.

Every grocer in the country sells EGG-O-SEE—the whole wheat cereal. If your grocer has not received his supply, mail us 10 cents and his name (15 cents west of the Rocky Mountains) and we will send you a package of EGG-O-SEE and a copy of the book, "-back to nature."

FREE "-back to nature" book

Our 32-page book, "-back to nature," outlines a plan of right living, including menus for 7 days and recipes for preparing the necessary dishes, based on a whole wheat diet, with suggestions for bathing, eating and exercise, illustrated from life, exceedingly simple and attractive. By following the precepts, abounding and vigorous health is sure to result.

Published to sell at 25 cents a copy, this handsomely illustrated book will be mailed FREE to anyone who writes, as long as this edition lasts. Address

EGG-O-SEE CEREAL COMPANY

No. 10 First Street Quincy, Illinois

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

MILLIONS USE

Cuticura
SOAP
MEDICINAL TOILET
PRICE 25 CENTS

THE WORLD'S FAVORITE

For Preserving, Purifying and Beautifying the Skin, Scalp, Hair, and Hands.

Cuticura Soap combines delicate medicinal and emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. ☞ Mailed Free, "How to Preserve, Purify, and Beautify the Skin, Scalp, Hair, and Hands."

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864. PENSIONS

MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 800 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

CAREER OF OPERA STAR

How Lina Cavalieri, "Most Beautiful Woman of Europe," Has Won Her Way to Fame and Fortune by Hard Work.

IS AIDED BY HER SISTER'S DEVOTION

Love Affair with Prince Alexander Baratinski the Beginning of Resolve to Give Up Easy Life and Fit Herself for the Trying Roles Written by the Most Famous Masters of Music--Now the Idol of Adoring Paris.

Paris.—That "the most beautiful woman of Europe," may be discontented with her job is shown by the extraordinary case of Lina Cavalieri.

As a music hall star of the first magnitude she was flattered and feted. She had but to show her beautiful person and warble a few ditties to earn heavy money. The world had practically told her that her loveliness was all-sufficient without talent.

Lina Cavalieri tossed aside the brilliant sinecure and plodded the hard road leading to grand opera. When Parisians learned it they shrugged at the unpractical choice and as good as forgot her. Now she has just given them a mighty jolt by coming back as a grand opera star, with a rumored engagement at the Paris opera itself; and furthermore she has just bought a splendid mansion in the Avenue de Messine. But why she grew discontented with being "the most beautiful woman of Europe," and how she threw up the music hall sinecure on the off-chance of succeeding in grand opera remains a secret.

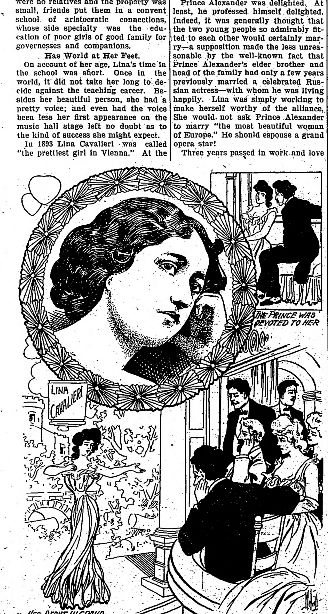
The secret spring of Lina's change of base began with a great hope, continued through a great despair and ended in a great devotion. The hope and the despair were those of worldly love. But the devotion was that of a sister.

Nothing could be more striking than the contrast between the lives chosen by the two girls. When their widowed mother died in Rome in 1889 Ada was 15 years of age and Lina 17. As there were no relatives and the property was small, friends put them in a convent school of aristocratic connections, whose side specialty was the education of poor girls of good family for governesses and companions.

Has World at Her Feet.

On account of her age, Lina's time in the school was short. Once in the world, it did not take her long to decide against the teaching career. Besides her beautiful person, she had a pretty voice; and even had the voice been less her first appearance on the music hall stage left no doubt as to the kind of success she might expect.

In 1893 Lina Cavalieri was called "the prettiest girl in Vienna." At the famous Ronacher's she had enormous vogue as a beauty and wearer of magnificent toilets. She warbled a few catchy ditties. And they were sufficient.



THE PRINCE WAS DEVOTED TO HER

HER DEBUT IN GRAND OPERA WAS A DISMAL FAILURE

In 1894 she was drawing all Paris—and the clubs contingent—to the Folies-Bergere. She had discovered the dressmakers and milliners of the Rue de la Paix; and was making the acquaintance of the jewelers. The photographers had sent her lovely face and figure to the four corners of the earth, and she began to be called "the most beautiful woman of Europe."

It was at this time that Lina Cavalieri gave her friendship to Prince Alexander Baratinski, second son of a considerable Russian house and a young man about Paris.

Prince Alexander came to have immense admiration for the talent, the voice, the beauty and the goodness of the girl.

"You must cultivate that voice," he told her. "You are wasting yourself on the music hall stage, which is not worthy of you. Take up opera!" he advised her.

"That is what my sister is always writing me," pouted the fair Lina. Those who knew her at that time declare that, personally, she found herself very well where she was. The climbing of the grand opera ladder would mean unceasing labor—not to speak of risk. The appeals of Ada had not moved her. Was it love that now began to pull her? Watt's touching painting of "Love Leading Life" contains a mighty moral.

On Road to Grand Opera.

Like the camel that is being loaded, Lina groaned in spirit. Like the camel, she was slow in getting started. But, still like that reliable creature, once started, she kept going. In 1896-7 the music halls saw no more of Lina Cavalieri; and it became known that she was diligently cultivating her voice under Mme. Mariani-Masi.

Prince Alexander was delighted. At least, he professed himself delighted. Indeed, it was generally thought that the two young people so admirably fitted to each other would certainly marry—a supposition made the less unreasonable by the well-known fact that Prince Alexander's elder brother and head of the family had only a few years previously married a celebrated Russian actress—with whom he was living happily. Lina was simply working to make herself worthy of the alliance. She would not ask Prince Alexander to marry "the most beautiful woman of Europe." He should espouse a grand opera star!

Three years passed in work and love and hope. Then Lina's chance came in 1900, when she was allowed to make her debut at no less a musical center than the Theater Royal of Lisbon as Nedda in "Pagliacci."

Unhappily, the Lisbon public is a hard one. When it pays for grand opera it insists on having something near perfection. The debutante was young, exceedingly lovely, with a sweet voice, but she showed inexperience. Did she not also display nervousness due to emotion over some lovers' misunderstanding? One would prefer to think so—for the judging of Prince Alexander!

The first night the Lisbon public made no sign. The second night it simply chased the whole company from the stage of the Theater Royal.

Alas for work, for hope, for love!

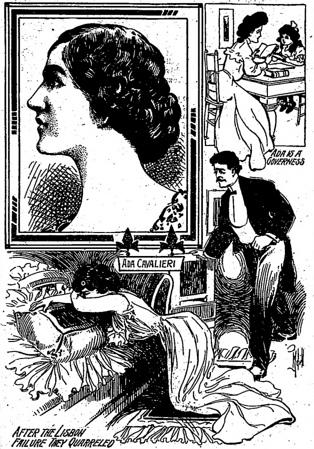
Lovers' Final Parting.

There was riot in front of the curtain and panic and recriminations behind it, and in a row that would not have been out of place in a Latin quarter cafe Lina Cavalieri and Alexander Baratinski spoke their parting words.

We know no more than this. Was it one of love's hateful treasons? Was it desertion in the hour of need? The girl had worked and slaved to please him. The world would have liked to see him stand manfully by her in her hour of failure. That Lina has never accused him proves nothing. She may have been too proud—or she may have been in the wrong. And, note, that Baratinski never defended himself proves nothing. He may have been too chivalrous or he may have had no excuse.

Baratinski fled to his yacht. Simply that.

Cavalieri moved with dignity to the railway station. On her lonely trip from Lisbon to Paris by the Sud Express, accompanied only by a faithful maid, the company disbanded—who knows what bitter thoughts may have been hers? Ah, work that had all gone for nothing! Really, I know of no more pathetic figure than that of the disabused and lonely girl returning to Paris.



ADA AS A GOVERNESS

AFTER THE LISBON FAILURE THEY QUARRELED

A few weeks later in Paris she learned that Prince Alexander had allowed his Paris apartment to be sold out by the sheriff. The young folks never met again. Prince Alexander shortly afterward married the young Princess Yourievski, morganatic daughter of the deceased Czar Alexander II., living with her mother in high Parisian society. And Lina Cavalieri remained "the most beautiful woman of Europe!"

Here the devoted sister intervened with force from her humble employment at Genoa.

Too Beautiful for Governess.

On leaving the Roman convent school three years after her elder sister had quitted it, Ada Cavalieri (to give her the family name adopted and made famous by the other) had to face the same hard proposition that confronted Lina.

She was quite as beautiful as Lina. Indeed—as you shall learn, if you have not already heard it—the sisters look so much alike that photographs of one have been mistaken for the other. Also, she had a voice. Yet she never hesitated. She had been educated for a governess. It was correct and honorable to be a governess. And a governess she would be. Even after she had lost her first three places by a strange and unique fault she never wavered.

Surely, it was a unique fault.

"This young girl is too beautiful to be a governess," wrote her first employer to the superioress of the school as she returned her. "Her conduct has been irreproachable. She is goodness itself, intelligent, patient and with a talent for teaching. Yet I will not keep her. Her presence cannot but prove a danger in a household."

At last a good and generous lady—beautiful enough herself not to be jealous of another's beauty—took the persecuted Signorina Ada as teacher for her two small children. I may not give her name; she was the wife of a foreign consul.

Ada Cavalieri had watched her brilliant sister's triumphs with uneasy wonderment that grew to terror.

Old maids are born—not made. In spite of her dazzling beauty—the same beauty line for line that had made Lina famous—Ada had, from the beginning, all the frigid timidity, the chaste tranquillity and the hard judgments, both for herself and others, of the born old maid.

She had fought with Lina to give up the music hall career. She had never ceased bombarding her with letters of expostulation. Later on she compromised.

Urged Sister Onward.

"If you will not give up the stage, be a real artiste!" was her final appeal. When Lina had begun studying with Mme. Mariani-Masi she began to hope. And when at last Lina was to make her debut in grand opera at Lisbon she was waiting anxiously to learn the result.

When she learned the pitiful result Ada Cavalieri took a great decision. Quitting her place at Genoa she hurried to Paris.

She settled down beside her wounded and reckless sister. Did she try to comfort her? How could the born old maid comfort her? But it is certain that the frigid Ada wrestled with the fiery Lina seven days—and triumphed!

Groaning in spirit like the camel, Lina again renounced the easy life and money of the music halls. Again she took up the burden of grand opera. Love, with great shining eyes, no longer beckoned her. But on and on she bore the burden, with her sister always by her. How she finally succeeded is well known.

In 1901 she was singing the principal part of Mimi in Puccini's "Vie de Boheme" at no less an opera house than the San Carlo of Naples. Next she secured a brilliant engagement for an entire season at the Imperial theater of Warsaw—singing Violetta in "Travlata," Marguerite in "Faust," Mimi in "Vie de Boheme"—and taking fine revenge on the cruel Lisbon public by an overwhelming triumph as Nedda.

Succeeding years confirmed this success, and artistic and social satisfactions of grand opera ceased to cost her anything financially. On the contrary, she had never done so well in the halls. At the Theater of Ravenna, at the Grand Theater of Palermo, at the Opera of St. Petersburg, and notably at the ultra-artistic Casino-Theater at Monte Carlo she has had repeated engagements. In Russia she is all the rage. Her own country of Italy has taken her to its heart.

And she has bought a mansion in the Avenue de Messine for her Paris residence!

During her present summer vacation she will furnish it herself—a work of peaceful satisfaction.

Beautiful Old Maid.

It is a quiet street and rich—the Avenue de Messine. It is a short street of only 34 numbers, running from the statue of William Shakespeare in the little square of the Boulevard Haussmann to the delightful Parc Monceau, surrounded by its palaces.

It is a street of the newly rich, perhaps; few great titled families live in it. But those who inhabit it are snug and at peace with the world. Well, among all, there will be none more snug than a most glorious old maid.

You know who it is. There can be but one such—"the most beautiful old maid in the world!".

Ada Cavalieri takes charge of Lina's Paris mansion. That she is so like her sister will not strike Parisians—because they will not see her. When she goes out she will dress in sad, plain clothes. And where she goes—to church for the most part—Parisians will not follow.

In her own way she is happy. Is it not strange Here is beauty gone to waste, you will say. Well, judge for yourself. Some time ago the somber sister had a skittish moment. It incited her to prove her equal beauty. How she dressed in one of Lina's gowns and posed to one of the first Paris photographers as her famous sister is a tale that has been more than once told.

For a time the counterfeit presentments circulated in commerce, being practically undistinguishable from photographs of Lina Cavalieri. Nowadays they scarcely exist.

IT WAS ALL FOR THE BEST AFTER ALL.

Bronson—Yes, my daughter's commencement essay was very fine.

Woodson—Did you enjoy it?

Bronson—I should say so! I wish I could write something like it.

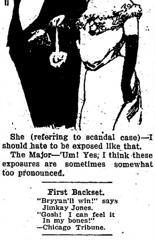
Woodson—You regret not having applied yourself to literary pursuits?

Bronson—No. If I had I probably couldn't have afforded to give Virginia the education which enabled her to produce this masterpiece.—Judge.

Taking No Chances.

Some folks is like de whippoorwill
Dat keeps a-goin', 'cause
Dey's 'fraid if ever dey keep still
Dar won' be no applause.
—Washington Star.

A CASE OF EXPOSURE.



She (referring to scandal case)—I should hate to be exposed like that.

The Major—'Um! Yes, I think these exposures are sometimes somewhat too pronounced.

First Backset.

"Bryyan'll win!" says
Jimkay Jones.
"Gosh! I can feel it
In my bones!"
—Chicago Tribune.

Uncle Allen's Helpful Suggestion.

"Speaking of that girl who broke her arm while trying to fasten the middle button at the back of he shirt waist," said Uncle Allen Sparks, "there isn't the slightest excuse for such an accident. Let an even number of buttons always be sewed on the back of a shirt waist, and there won't be any middle button."—Chicago Tribune.

An Early Bird.

"Procrastination is a dangerous thing in business, isn't it?" said the young man who is anxious to learn.

"I should say so," answered Dustin Stax. "You don't know how thankful I am that I made my pile before all that furore for investigation started in."—Washington Star.

Easy.

Young Dedstuk—Miss Hope, here's a new conundrum. Why is a cow with only one horn like an unabridged dictionary? What's your answer to that?

Miss Dora Hope (with a dreamy, faraway gaze)—The answer is "Yes."—Chicago Tribune.

Titles.

"You must remember," said the heiress who was talking about her love affair, "that he is of noble lineage."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne," but we should not select husbands as we do books, merely because we like the titles."—Washington Star.

Great Scott!

Poeticus—Everything I see is poetry to me.

Witticus—Yes, even the editors.

Poeticus—Eh?

Witticus—Well, they all seem to be at least a verse to you.—Cleveland Leader.

Chip Off the Old Block.

DeLong—I met your son this morning.

Shortleigh—Don't you think he resembles me a good deal?

DeLong—That's what. He tried to borrow a dollar from me.—Chicago Daily News.

Glad of It.

Subbubs—Somebody's stolen our dog again. That's a d—

Mrs. Subbubs (hastily)—William! William! don't swear about it.

Subbus—Who's swearing? I was just going to say it's a dog-gone big relief.—Philadelphia Press.

A Hoodoo.

"Do you believe in opals for engagement rings?"

"Nope; opals are too unlucky—the chances are ten to one that when a fellow gives a girl an opal engagement ring he marries her."—Houston Post.

Viewpoint of a Bachelor.

Iris—I wonder why you are so popular with the widows?

Jack—I guess they feel sorry for me because I haven't been anybody's first choice.—Chicago Daily News.

There Be Such Things.

"Do you believe there really is any such thing as a painless dentist?"

"Yes. I attended the funeral of one a few days ago."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Backward, Turn Backward.

Cholly—How old is your sister?

Johnny—Twenty-six, going on 25.—N. Y. Sun.

TOO GREAT A RISK—WHY BLINKS HEDGED.

Jinks—Has a husband a right to open his wife's letters?

Blinks (a lawyer)—Certainly, sir, certainly; open all you please.

"Well, here is a letter my wife has written to your wife and handed me to deliver. I feel pretty sure there's something unpleasant in it about me. I wish you'd open it, and, if there is, just burn it up."

"Humph! Does my wife know your wife is going to write to her?"

"Yes."

"And if my wife doesn't get this letter she'll soon find it out, won't she?"

"Of course."

"On second thoughts, I believe there is a new law which makes it a penitentiary offense to open a wife's letters. I couldn't take the risk, sir; indeed, I couldn't."—N. Y. Weekly.

Sudden Change of Mind.

Puffing and blowing, the fat passenger began to climb to the upper berth in the sleeping car.

"Pretty hard work, isn't it?" said the man in the lower berth.

"It is," answered the fat passenger, "for a man of my weight."

"How much do you weigh, may I ask?"

"Three hundred and eighty-seven pounds."

"Hold on! Take this one!" exclaimed the other, his hair beginning to rise on end. "I'd rather sleep in the upper berth, anyway. The ventilation is better."—Chicago Tribune.

Study Not to Blame.

"I shouldn't think you would let your daughter study so hard that her health was likely to be affected, even for the sake of being able to graduate."

"Oh, it isn't studying that has made her ill. She has had such poor luck with the dressmaker."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Nothing Radical.

Languid Lannigan (with paper)—It takes all sorts uv cranks ter make a world, all right. Now, here's a near-wise guy wot says dat six hours' sleep a day is ernuff fer anybody.

Torpid Thomas—Well, I seldom exceeds dat. An' wot's he say is de proper number uv hours ter slumber at night?—Puck.

Precocious Youngster.

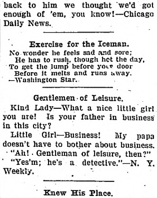
"Tommy," said Mr. Tucker, "I've been reading about the danger of boys growing up with deformed shoulders because of their always carrying their school books under one arm, and I don't want to raise a lop-sided boy. How do you carry your school books?"

"In my head, paw," said Tommy.—Chicago Tribune.

A Diplomat.

She screamed and jumped into his arms
Whene'er she saw a bug
Though she was not a timid maid,
She did it for the hug.
—Houston Post.

A GREAT PLENTY.



Ethel—That is your first ancestor, I suppose?

Bobbie—Oh, no; but when we got back to him we thought we'd got enough of 'em, you know!—Chicago Daily News.

Exercise for the Iceman.

No wonder he feels sad and sore;
He has to rush, though hot the day,
To get the lump before your door
Before it melts and runs away.
—Washington Star.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

Kind Lady—What a nice little girl you are! Is your father in business in this city?

Little Girl—Business! My papa doesn't have to bother about business.

"Ah! Gentleman of leisure, then?"

"Yes'm; he's a detective."—N. Y. Weekly.

Knew His Place.

"What did you think of your daughter's graduation essay?"

"I didn't permit myself to think about it," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I simply did my duty and admired it."—Washington Star.

Just the Thing.

Guest (to proprietor of summer hotel)—That's great music you have with the meals.

Proprietor—Like it, do you?

"Splendid! Makes me forget that I'm not getting enough to eat."—Life.

Throbbed Some.

"The heart of a man who has lived to be 70 has beaten 260,000,000 times."

"Then I lived to be 70 the evening I proposed to Miss Peachie."—Houston Post.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

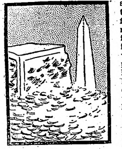
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JULY 20, 1906. NO. 16.

The Country's Capital.

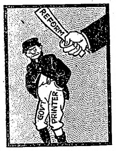
Men and Matters in Washington—Proctor of Vermont Largest Individual Owner and Dealer in Marble and Granite—Believes in Future of Washington—Senator from Iowa Held to a Policy of Pacification and Compromise—"Getting Even."



WASHINGTON.—One of the old men of the senate who does not rush off immediately upon the adjournment of congress is Senator Redfield Proctor, of Vermont. The reason he does not join the early exodus after congress adjourns is that he has some of his principal business interests in this city. No one knows how wealthy Mr. Proctor is, as he is as mum as a piece of his own granite or marble regarding his personal affairs, but by inheritance and by his own acquisition he is the largest individual owner and dealer in marble and granite in the world. He is very fond of these two stones, and he is gradually putting them into buildings of considerable consequence here in Washington. He owns many granite and marble front houses and has just completed a very large apartment house with glistening white marble front.

Like some of his wealthy colleagues and predecessors in the senate, Mr. Proctor has had a good deal of faith in the future of Washington and has made many investments which are turning out exceedingly profitable

THE PUBLIC PRINTER RECEIVES A BLACK EYE.



Subordinates in government offices in Washington have a way of getting even with superiors whom they do not like. With every appearance of faithful performance of their work, they can still so retard it and mix it up as to show a mighty poor record for their chief and at the same time make it very difficult for their own movements to be discovered. The latest exhibition of this method of "getting even" was in the case of Public Printer Stillings and occurred on the last day of congress. Since Stillings was brought to Washington and put at the head of the public printing office, there has been great friction between him and the subordinates in that establishment. He was given his position on the promise of inaugurating great reforms, and most of his time has been spent in reorganizing the force and in fighting with various cliques and organizations within the office.

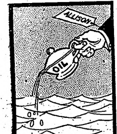
In trying to put his reform into operation Mr. Stillings has made lots of enemies, so that on the last day and night of the session of congress the latter were able to give the public printer a black eye. The printing of appropriation bills and other measures during the last hours of congress had hitherto been kept right up to the hour. On this occasion, however, the printing office fell back and the most unaccountable errors were made and delays ensued that kept congress in session at least 12 hours longer than would have been necessary under the old regime. The president was also subject to annoyance by being kept at the capitol several hours beyond the time usually necessary to sign bills.

ATTRACTIONS OF THE "GREAT FALLS OF THE POTOMAC."

It is not generally known that the largest falls east of Niagara are located in the Potomac river, some 16 miles northwest of Washington. They are called the "Great Falls of the Potomac," but have achieved in all their history little more than local fame and a very small percentage even of the inhabitants of Washington have ever witnessed their beauty. The progressive trolley, however, is now to bring this natural wonder within the view of residents and visitors in Washington. A line has been constructed to the point where the noble Potomac in a succession of rapids and falls tumbles over a good sized hill and makes one of the most attractive natural bits of scenery in the east.

Hitherto the Great Falls has been known principally on account of the good fishing in their vicinity. The small mouthed Potomac black bass is found here in large quantities and neighboring pools were the favorite fishing grounds of some of the noted statesmen of the past. Ex-President Cleveland in his eight years' residence in Washington was a frequent visitor in this neighborhood, and with his old fishing crony, former Commissioner of Internal Revenue Miller, a gentleman of equal physical weight and breadth to Mr. Cleveland, took many a string of fine bass from these waters.

SENATOR ALLISON AND SOBRIQ UET OF "PUSSY-FOOT."



A spirit of sadness spread over the senate in the closing hours of the last session, because of the absence of William Boyd Allison, the venerable senator from Iowa, and for 33 years a member of the senate. This veteran statesman has broken very much in the past year, and it was with the deepest sorrow that his colleagues saw him compelled to yield the leadership on appropriation bills to another. For many, many years Mr. Allison has been chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, and in that position has directed the distribution of billions of dollars. No man in the senate understood the construction of appropriation bills and what were necessary expenditures so well as he.

It is feared that the final break has come and that Mr. Allison will never again be able to assume the leadership that he has held in the past. He was 77 years of age last March, and it is not reasonable to suppose that at that advanced age he can hope to recover sufficiently to undertake as heavy work as he has in the past. Mr. Allison was known as the great pacificator. His has always been a policy of compromise and peacemaking. He has gone about the advancement of this principle in the most suave and quiet manner, and it is said that no man in either branch of congress has ever been able to accomplish so much in such a quiet way. He years and years ago earned the sobriquet of "Pussy footed."

MEN OF EXPERIENCE IN ADMI NISTRATIVE BRANCH.

A BILL TO OK Teller

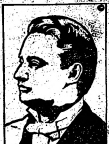
It is regarded as something of an advantage for a man in the senate or house to have had experience in the administrative branch of the government. The senate is right well off in this regard, as there are at present five ex-cabinet officers in that body, men who have had to do with the administration of government and whose practical knowledge of executive affairs is of great benefit in the consideration of legislation. Probably the most effective of these ex-cabinet officers is Senator Knox, who was attorney general under the late President McKinley and under President Roosevelt. His experience in that office secured him an appointment to the judiciary committee and to the committee on interoceanic canals and privileges and elections, where legal knowledge is of particular advantage.

The venerable Senator Teller, of Colorado, served three years as secretary of the interior under President Arthur, and to this day the experience he then gained shows in his handling of bills that relate to matters in the interior department. Anything relating to Indians or public lands must be absolutely straight before it can pass the scrutiny of Mr. Teller, who knows all about those affairs and who does not hesitate to expose any suspicious dealings which his experience as secretary of the interior may enable him to unearth.

There are three ex-secretaries of war in the senate, all of them men of ability and who are especially qualified to discuss legislation relating to the army. There is Senator Proctor, who served as secretary of war under Harrison, and Senator Elkins, who succeeded him at the war department under the same administration. Then there is Senator Alger, of Michigan, who was President McKinley's secretary of war all during the trouble with Spain.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

MR. BAILEY OF TEXAS



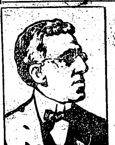
The typical gentleman from Texas would be expected to put small restraint upon himself when occasion seemed to call for strong language, but in Senator Bailey, in many ways typically Texan, we find a westerner whose thoughts are so strong he feels the only language that would fitly express them would be of the kind absolutely impossible in the senate—although the ears of the senate walls in their day have listened to words unpretty as well as pretty. Senator Bailey's feelings have been stirred to unmentionable depths by the man with the muck rake. Concerning this man and others of his ilk Mr. Bailey bears witness: "It is a great temptation for me to say what I think about these people, but that would offend the dignity and proprieties of the senate, and I forbear."

Perhaps he would not have forborne had he been really a son of Texas—but come to think of it, does Mississippi raise milder men? Mr. Bailey began to call himself a Texan not until he was 22 years of age. He was born in Copiah county, Mississippi, did not take up residence in the Lone Star State until his school days and preparatory work for a professional career were ended. He was admitted to the bar in 1883, two years later removed to Texas and at Gainesville began the practice of law.

From the first he took an active interest in politics; in 1884 we find him a presidential elector, in 1888 presidential elector at large. From 1891-1901 he served as member of congress, the latter year took his place as United States senator.

In reply to the muck raker's accusations, Mr. Bailey, with temperate language, made explanation; explanation that seemed of a reasonableness. He admitted that he charged clients fees, declared he had no patience with the idea that it is only the poor man that is honest.

SOCIALISM AND JUDGE GROSSCUP



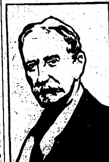
In this day of increase in socialist ranks it is of interest to hear what a man of Judge Grosscup's authority may have to say on the subject of socialism. This the judgment: "A doubling back on the road along which the race has come from the days when no man had a hope of his own for an individual part in the destiny of things." Socialism, then, Judge Grosscup thinks, is a stepping backward.

But he makes acknowledgment of present ills, and gives suggestion for dealing therewith; avers that what is needed is not prosecutions of corporations simply because they are big; "what is wanted is the corporation, big and little, so rebuilt that in the vast domain of property covered by it the people, who with their hands have worked, may hereafter see their way to participate." The jurist does not think the reforms are to be brought about by act of congress, but that state legislatures should "lay clean and firm in state law the foundations for the new corporation," and then the people themselves be relied on to look after their interests.

Judge Grosscup resides in Chicago, since the beginning of the year 1899 has been judge United States circuit court of appeals, Seventh circuit. Among notable judicial acts in his career should be mentioned his opinion anent the application to close the World's Columbian exposition on Sundays; the injunction issued in conjunction with Judge William A. Woods against Eugene Debs and other officers of the American Railway Union.

Judge Grosscup was born in Ohio, is 54 years old, was graduated at Wittenberg college, Ohio, and at the Boston Law School.

AMERICAN PROFESSOR AT BERLIN



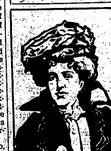
We have all heard more or less in the last few months of the plan for the exchange of professors in German and American universities, of this means of strengthening the bonds uniting in friendliness Germany and the United States. In October of this year an American professor begins work at the University of Berlin, Prof. John W. Burgess, Theodore Roosevelt professor of American history and institutions for 1906-07. In the Roosevelt room at the University of Berlin are to be placed three pictures, portraits of the men from this side the water most prominently connected with the Roosevelt professorship: Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and Prof. John William Burgess.

Prof. Butler is head of Columbia university, Prof. Burgess member of the faculty at Columbia. Prof. Burgess, while not so widely known as President Butler, is a noted educator, since 1890 has been dean of the faculty of political science at Columbia. He is author of several works: "Political Science and Comparative Constitutional Law;" "The Middle Period;" "The Civil War and the Constitution;" "Reconstruction and the Constitution;" and has contributed to reviews on historical, political and legal topics.

Dr. Burgess was born in the south, is a native of Tennessee; attended Cumberland university, Lebanon, Tennessee; in 1867 was graduated from Amherst, received from that university the degrees of Ph. D. and LL. D. He studied law and in 1869 was admitted to the bar. For two years Dr. Burgess was professor of English literature and political economy at Knox college; was professor of history and political science at Amherst, from Amherst went to Columbia as professor political science and constitutional law.

Dr. Burgess continued the study of history, public law and political science at Gottingen, Leipzig and Berlin. He now goes to Germany as lecturer on American history and institutions.

ACTRESS AND AUTHOR



Clara Morris, the actress once so prominent in emotional roles, has of late years taken to writing. Miss Morris says of her book, "Life on the Stage," it was calmly offered out of boundless courage and perfect ignorance; in her later "Life of a Star" the author has arrived at, or affects, a diffidence come of experience in the literary field.

Miss Morris in her time has known a long procession of interesting people, chronicle and chronicler both hold one's attention. And note the list the actress-author has put forth since taking her pen in hand: "A Silent Singer;" "My Little Jim Crow;" "Life on the Stage;" "A Pasteboard Crown;" "Stage Confidences;" "The Trouble Woman;" "Life of a Star." In addition, Miss Morris has contributed to numerous periodicals; the Century, St. Nicholas, North American Review, etc. Her sketches have been syndicated in the newspapers, and the star who retired into obscurity, the actress who held the older generation enthralled, reappears to entertain a younger set—as well as the elders who have not forgotten her sway.

She began her stage career as member of the ballet in the Academy of Music at Cleveland, Ohio, back in '61. The young girl advanced rapidly, at the age of 20 was leading lady at Wood's theater, Cincinnati. The following year she became member of Daly's Fifth Avenue company. Miss Morris soon rose to prominence in theatrical roles, and appeared as star in the principal theaters of the country. Her principal roles were Camille, Alixe, Miss Multon, Mercy Merrick in the "New Magdalene," and Cora in "L'Article."

Gossip from New York.

At Oyster Bay Mr. Roosevelt Relaxes—Happy as a Boy, But Needs Guard to Keep Out Intruders—Two Miss Ethels—The City Preacher Off for Badly Needed Rest Gives Countryman a Chance—Ocean-Crossing May Be Popular in True Sense.

NEW YORK.—The president's return to Oyster Bay has been accomplished without extraordinary sensation. In many respects the transition is remarkable. Certainly the contrast is remarkable. Theodore Roosevelt is as much the president at Oyster Bay as he was at Washington, but nevertheless he passes from an imposing home—a palace it would be called at one of the older seats of government—to a very modest one. The presidency follows the man, but for the months he is at Oyster Bay the president, to an extent unexampled elsewhere in the world, combines the dignities of office with the privileges of a private person.

At Oyster Bay Mr. Roosevelt relaxes. He is not accused of being very formal at the White House, but at Oyster Bay he is less so. At his simple country home he does pretty much as he pleases—walks, hunts, fishes, swims, chops down trees, all in a rough and ready garb.

But of course the president cannot do as he pleases without chance of interruption. Thousands of delegations, visitors, foreign and native, call on him here, and thousands more of curiosity seekers try to do so, or try to intrude on his reasonable privacy. They hunt the president in local "rigs," in automobiles and on foot. They hunt him with autograph albums and with cameras. Often they are very annoying. Often they are more impolite with the president of the United States than they would be with their own neighbor.

Fortunately Mr. Roosevelt, who has with him a secretary, an assistant secretary, an executive clerk, a telegrapher and three stenographers, has some secret service protection that is pretty efficient, and, in general, reasonably gentle with the erring. The system of guarding the executive is not precisely like that of guarding the czar, but simple as it is, the crank and intruder are kept away.

As for the president, he is as happy as a boy in these first days of his strenuous vacation.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT THE NEXT ROOSEVELT DEBUTANTE.

While the president's daughter Alice is saying nice things to the royalty of Europe and hearing some nice things in return—most of them, of course, about her father—Mr. Roosevelt is about to assume the responsibilities of another debutante in the family and other matrimonial anticipations.

Of course Miss Ethel is too young to be talked about as a bride, but she is not too young to be talked about as a debutante, though she is younger than debutantes usually are. Miss Ethel is likely to be the bright particular debutante in Washington early next winter, and then the gossips and match makers may get to work.

Miss Ethel, who is the daughter of the present Mrs. Roosevelt, is greatly different from her famous sister Alice. She has a vivacity of her own, but she is without the remarkable energy and animation of Mrs. Longworth. Probably some people would say that she was "less original." Also, it is probable that some foreign observers might say that she is less American. She is just a charming girl, cheerful, pretty, friendly, well-balanced, highly intelligent, quick to see a point, graceful, clever in dressing, rather conservative without being formal in her ways, a "good daughter," much doted upon by both her father and mother.

Miss Ethel has a number of Roosevelt cousins in New York society and is easy and successful in the society circle already. One of her friends, who will also be a next winter's Washington debutante, is Miss Cecilia May, now at Oyster Bay. Miss May is a sister of Miss Isabel May, now abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Young as she is, Miss Ethel has a real popularity at Washington—and at Oyster Bay—and her "coming out" will be watched with more than ordinary interest.

THE VOYAGING TO AND FROM EUROPE.

I saw another Ethel the other day—Miss Ethel Croker, daughter of the old Tammany chief, who has just come from England with her mother and her brother Howard. The Croker group that came over on the big "Amerika" had been visiting the old chieftain at Wantage, England.

Ethel Croker is a thin, ambitiously dressed, carefully toiletted girl with a supercilious look. She came off the steamer with her pet dogs and gave much attention to her back hair and her veil.

I could not help thinking how different her social prospects might be if her father were still owner of New York. I say different without meaning better, for the Crokers are surely very comfortably situated as to those elements upon which society marriages are reported to be founded.

Howard Croker, still in mourning for his two brothers, is being tutored for entrance at Princeton next fall. He is an honest-faced, sturdy-looking lad.

Curiously, although the season is young, the ships from Europe are almost as crowded as those that are going over. There are tremendous crowds at the steamship piers every sailing day. These are the sort of sailing throngs that are said to indicate prosperity and the probable continuance of the same.

It may be true that the Europe habit is increasing—that as a habit going to Europe has become more prevalent. Certainly every inducement that is calculated to lure is now being offered by the steamship companies. The new ships are more like the Waldorf-Astoria than any that have gone before. Only cheap rates remain to be added to present inducements to make ocean-crossing popular in the true sense.

THE SUMMER PREACHER BRINGS A MESSAGE.

This is the time of year when the society paragrapher declares that everybody has left town—a cheerful irony when one comes to look over the four millions or so who are really here.

It is to be admitted, however, that the people in the rubber-neck wagons really do see a good many boarded-up windows. Also the summer visitor finds other definite indications of the fact that New York is in the midst of its hot season. Particularly will he find this true on a Sunday.

And yet the fashionable churches are not all shut. It is the fashion for the preachers to go away about the Fourth of July, but it is also the fashion for them to fill their pulpits with lesser talent. And so many a country preacher is getting his long-coveted chance to preach in the metropolis.

On many a church portal is a notice like this: "The Rev. Abner Willison will preach here at 10:30 next Sunday."

The pastor is in Europe or Maine, recovering from the strain of the strenuous fashionable or popular preacher's metropolitan labors. A humble substitute, different from week to week, raises his voice in the church.

But let it not go unsaid that the almost empty church sometimes hears a better sermon than it has heard in a long time. Young men from out of town—and old men from out of town—men who have not succeeded in getting big churches, but who have the fire and the power and the conviction, sometimes raise a strong, clear voice in the metropolitan pulpits that deserves the hearing of a big audience.

Many a chance auditor in a big church has listened to one of these unknown men and found occasion to say to himself, if not to another: "This is the sort of preaching this metropolis really needs!"

OWEN LANGDON.

NEWS OF A WEEK TERSELY OUTLINED

A SUMMARY OF THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENTS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

TOLD IN CONDENSED FORM

Complete Review of Happenings of Greatest Interest from All Parts of the Globe—The Latest Foreign Information.

Alfred Dreyfus, vindicated of all taint of treason and dishonor by the highest court in France, will resume his place in the army with the rank of major. He will soon be promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and his name will be inscribed on the list for the grand cross of the Legion of Honor. Placards bearing the vindication and denouncing Easterhazy as the real culprit will be posted in every commune in France.

Of eight little girls who went wading in the Cedar river at Cedar Rapids, Ia., one is alive. One by one she saw the others drown in a swimming hole at the end of the sandbar in which they were paddling.

William J. Bryan, in another interview at London, denied that he had abandoned free silver, but admitted that it was no longer an issue. Mr. Bryan declared, also, that in his attitude on "predatory wealth and immoral methods" he is more radical now than he was in 1896.

The North Dakota Republican state convention nominated a full state ticket headed by E. Y. Sarles, who was renominated for governor.

John Turish, well-known mining man aged 35 years, was committed to the insane asylum at Denver after being arrested on a warrant sworn out by his brother. The demented man is a son of James Turish, of Stevens Point, Wis.

William Van Eps, a pioneer merchant of Sioux Falls and one of the most prominent business men in South Dakota, is dead. Mr. Van Eps at one time was rated as the wealthiest man in Dakota.

President Hintz, of the Boone Baseball association, wired President Peckham, of the Iowa State league of Boone's withdrawal from the league. Financial trouble is the cause.

Gov. Mickey, of Nebraska, announced he would begin quo warranto proceedings in the supreme court to oust Dr. J. M. Alden, superintendent of the hospital for the insane at Norfolk, and his assistant, Dr. Nicholson.

Between 400 and 500 patients and many of the physicians of the North Texas insane asylum are ill, suffering with an attack of what shows many of the symptoms of cholera morbus.

Fire destroyed the plant of the American Cigar Box company at Johnson City, Tenn., causing a loss of $110,000 and throwing 125 men out of work.

The Cleveland Electric railway discharged about 100 of its 2,500 motormen and conductors, following the organization here of a local of the Amalgamated Street Railway Employes of America.

News was received at Zion City that the Australian branch of the church has repudiated Zion, and henceforth will be independent.

President Pardo, of Peru, has refused to accept the resignation of Minister of the Interior Zapata, tendered in order that the latter might be free to fight a duel with Senor Ulloa, a journalist.

The net value of the estate left by the late John A. McCall, former president of the New York Life Insurance company, was $40,885, according to the report of the appraisers.

Hundreds of Jews left Poltava, Russia, fearing an anti-Jewish outbreak, but the spirit shops were closed and the authorities have promised to prevent any disturbances.

Esther Mitchell shot and killed her brother, George Mitchell, in the waiting room of the Union station at Seattle. The shot was fired just as Mitchell rose to take the evening train for Oregon. The brother, who was recently acquitted of killing Franz Edmund Creffield, the leader of the Holy Rollers, dropped in his tracks.

The proprietors of eight Jewish factories at Bialystok are winding up their affairs with the intention of removing to Palestine and setting up in business there.

Henry Clay Evans, of Hamilton county, Tenn., former commissioner of pensions and recently American consul-general in London, was nomi- you took the train for Clarenceville. can state convention.

Elihu Root, the American secretary of state, was entertained at luncheon at Porto Rico by George Cabot Ward, at the Union club. Others present included United States and insular officials, the military and naval authorities of Porto Rico and several merchants and bankers.

W. W. Rose, mayor of Kansas City, Kan., was granted a writ of error by David J. Brewer, justice of the United States supreme court, which stays the judgment of the Kansas supreme court in fining Mayor Rose $1,000 and demanding that he relinquish his office.

Frank Curry, a noted strike breaker, known throughout the United States among labor men, was fined $50 in police court at St. Louis for abusing his wife and $10 for using obscene language in the presence of a neighbor.

John N. Faithorn, former vice president, and Fred A. Wann, former freight agent, were fined $10,000 each by Judge Landis in the federal court at Chicago for rfebating. The Chicago & Alton Railway company was fined $20,000 on each of two counts, the limit under the law, and the individual defendants $5,000 on each count.

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture concluded his work in Chicago by issuing a statement in which he denied meat packers the use of the United States government inspection label as a guarantee to the world of the fitness of their products as food, until they have made perfect the sanitary conditions in the buildings where food is prepared.

The steamer Quincy of the Diamond Jo line, burned near Trempeauleau, Wis., with 200 people aboard. The boat ran into the bank and turned half over, when the fire started. One babe was drowned.

At Sevastopol an attempt was made by mutineers to assassinate Vice Admiral Chuknin, commander of the Black sea fleet. The admiral was wounded and taken to a hospital.

A train of two trolley cars, westbound from Lockport on the lines of the International railway, ran into an open switch at a siding just east of Martinsville, N. Y., and crashed into a trolley freight motor. Five passengers were killed outright, and a score injured, some of whom may die.

The Continental Limited, No. 1, on the Wabash railroad had a remarkable escape from a disastrous wreck. When speeding at the rate of 50 miles an hour it crashed into some track construction work near Cass station, Indiana.

Robbery is believed to have been the motive of the brutal murder of Miss Millie Ellison, of Ellsworth, Wis., who was attacked while in her room in a Minneapolis hotel.

In the United States appellate court at St. Louis, former Attorney General Crow, of Missouri, for the government, began a searching investigation into the methods by which rates on coal are made and maintained by the railroads on the east side of the Mississippi river.

The Association of Rhenish and Westphalian Grain Importers has sent a circular to the various German and foreign chambers of commerce and produce exchanges regarding the alleged incorrect classification of American grain.

The parole system was attacked by Lieut. Gov. Sherman in an address delivered before the Illinois States Attorneys association at its annual convention in Springfield. He said that of all the criminals paroled most of them had returned to their bad life.

The automobile bearing Vice President Fairbanks and party from Danville, Ill., to Champaign crashed into a buggy driven by Joseph M. Dougherty. The two vehicles came together with a loud crash at a curve in the road, and Mr. Dougherty was thrown out and painfully bruised.

A half score of persons were injured, five painfully, by the stampede of a bucking broncho during the performance of a wild west show at Granite City, Ill.

Mrs. Carrie Nation was arrested at Cleburne, Tex., charged with having misused the mails.

At the Sanitary Inspectors' conference at Bristol, Eng., a delegate said if the British public only knew a quarter of what was going on in the slaughter houses of the country the Chicago scare would become insignificant by comparison.

The long coal strike in the Dubois, Pa., region was settled in a conference between representatives of the coal companies and miners' officials.

The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters will build a home for aged and indigent potters.

Because of a misunderstanding the miners of the Hocking valley, 10,000 men, went out on a strike. Negotiations resulted in the misunderstanding being cleared up.

The warehouse of the Hub Furniture company, containing stock valued at $40,000, was destroyed by fire at East St. Louis, Ill., entailing a total loss of about $60,000.

President T. E. Young, of the Ohio coal operators, said it was probable a conference of representatives of operators and miners will be held.

At the annual meeting of the officers of the Illinois division, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, James H. Barkley, of Springfield, was reelected brigadier general for the fourth time.

Indications that American farmers this year will harvest the largest grain crops in the history of the country are given in the government report on condition as of July 1. Not only is the prospect for a bountiful harvest most bright, but market quotations show that the farmer will get a fair price for his grain, while reports from Europe are that the wheat crop will be 150,000,000 bushels short of that of 1905, indcating that the export demand will be large and that America will have to fill a good share of it.

A cloudburst in the country, just back of Wellsville, O., sent a torrent of water down McQueen's creek and Trotter's run, causing a loss of thousands of dollars.

Congressman Henry Cullen Adams, of Wisconsin, died at Chicago as a result of his efforts at the session just closed while in a weak physical condition.

More than a dozen passengers were cut and bruised when a trolley car at Wichita, Kan., jumped the track and rolled down an embankment. The track had been weakened by a heavy rain and the car turned entirely over.

Harry K. Thaw protests against being regarded as insane and declares his counsel assure him that no such course as the appointment of a commission to inquire into his mental condition is contemplated.

The French chamber of deputies passed the bill providing for a compulsory day of rest weekly. The measure, which is designed to terminate the present system of Sunday labor, has already passed the senate.

A warrant for John D. Rockefeller, which is now in the hands of the sheriff of Hancock county, Ohio, is accompanied by a copy of the information and affidavit charging Rockefeller with violating the anti-trust laws in organizing and maintaining a monopoly of the oil business.

According to a report issued by the census bureau there were in the United States in 1904 163,176 persons in almshouses and of these 111,718 were males.

William R. White, known throughout the United States as an inventor of farm gates, died at Bloomington, Ill., aged 62 years.

Gov. Magoon, at Panama, confirms in a measure the report that a Colombian warship had seized the captains of two British schooners at a point off the Colombian coast. Upon discovering the men were British subjects they were released.

The president has proclaimed a convention for the protection of trade marks between America and Roumania, framed on the conventional lines.

Edwin R. Thomas purchased for $50,000 a half interest in the high-class two-year-olds, Water Pearl and Charles Edward, both stake winners, and the former considered to be the best of his age in training.

Ten armed men attacked the cashier of the Vistula railway at Warsaw. He was accompanied by an attendant and two soldiers. The assailants stopped the carriage, shot the soldiers dead and got $50,000.

A large lumber mill, two stores, ten dwellings and 300,000 feet of lumber burned at Mintbrook, N. F. The loss is $100,000.

Evidence of the existence of an ice trust that, it is alleged, controls the Kansas City, Mo., output is being sought in an investigation begun by the county prosecutor.

Sheriff Charles Wilson, of Clay county, Florida, was shot and instantly killed in a train near Green Cove Springs, by a negro prisoner in his custody. A deputy shot and killed the negro.

Secretary Metcalf named Director North, of the census bureau, as the representative of the department of commerce and labor to assist in preparing regulations for the operation of the pure food law.

Suit for the recovery of large sums of money which were paid to his stationery firm through alleged erroneous vouchers was begun against Lysander W. Lawrence by the Mutual Life Insurance company. It is believed the suit may involve over $1,000,000.

Brig. Gen Louis Henry Rucker, U. S. A., retired, is dead at Los Angeles. He had been in continuous military service for 40 years. He enlisted at Chicago when the call for troops was made in 1861.

President Roosevelt filled the place of solicitor to the department of commerce and labor by the appointment of Charles Earle. This place was made vacant by the appointment of Edwin W. Sims, as United States district attorney at Chicago. The president also appointed Richard K. Campbell as chief of the bureau of naturalization.

Suits were filed in the United States court at Austin by the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe and International & Great Northern railroads attacking rates established by the railroad commission of Texas.

President and Mme. Fallieres gave a brilliant dinner at the Elysee palace, Paris, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

A conference between operators of the Ohio district known as the Pittsburg vein, and representatives of the miners' organization looking to a settlement of the strike troubles in the souheastern part of the state was begun at Cleveland.

The output of asbestos in the United States for 1905 was 3,109 short tons, valued at $42,975. This exceeds the production of any previous year, and represents an increase of more than 100 per cent. in quantity and of almost 67 per cent.

It has been decided to hold the junior and senior track and field championships of the Amateur Athletic union of the United States at Travers island, the seniors to be held on September 9 and the juniors on the Thursday or Friday preceding.

Henry H. Glauste, secretary of the commission to inquire into and report to congress its conclusions concerning the laws relative to second class mail matter, has issued an announcement that the first session will be held at New York at noon, October 1, 1906.

About one person in every 1,200 was blind and one in every 850 persons was deaf in the United States in 1900, according to a special census report on the blind and deaf in the United States in that year just issued by the census office.

One killed, another fatally injured, while three are seriously burned, is the result of a fire in a soda bottling works at Meadville, Pa.

Dr. James L. Green, superintendent of the Nebraska hospital for the insane at Lincoln, has resigned. Dr. Green has accepted the superintendency of the Illinois hospital for the insane at Kankakee.

John R. Morgan, aged 75 years, a prominent lumber man and banker, died at Oshkosh. He was president of the Morgan company. He was also vice president of the National Union bank.

SOFT COAL MINERS WILL RESUME WORK

LONG STRIKE IN PENNSYLVANIA AMICABLY SETTLED.

SCALE OF 1903 RESTORED

Provides That Men Shall Not Quit Pending Adjustment of Differences Regarding Interpretation of the Agreement.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 14.—The men in the collieries of the Central Pennsylvania bituminous coal district numbering nearly 4,000 who have been idle since April 1, when the mines closed down because the operators would not restore the scale of 1903, will resume work on practically the same scale as 1905.

The agreement to do this was made Friday in a conference that was attended by prominent operators, President John Mitchell and Secretary Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America, and representatives of the districts in the affected territory, conference was held in Philadelphia on Tuesday on which terms were made and these were submitted to the districts which sent their men here to ratify them.

The session lasted six hours and after much discussion principally on the "open shop" and the method of collecting the check-weighman's fund, the following scale was agreed upon:

Test of the Agreement.

"First. Pick mining per gross ton 66 cents; per net ton 58.85 cents; machine loading shall be five-ninths of the pick price plus one-half cent and cutting and scraping whether by the ton, day or task, will be advanced 6.45 per cent above the price paid in 1905.

"All other day wages and monthly men both inside and outside the mines, and all yardage shall be advanced 5.85 per cent. above the rates paid during the scale year ending March 31, 1906, except all mechanics and skilled labor who are to be paid such prices as shall be mutually agreed upon between the undersigned and the mechanics employed.

"Coke men to receive an advance of 5.85 per cent. over the rates during the scale year of 1905.

Secure Eight-Hour Day.

"Second. Eight hours of actual work at place of work shall constitute a day's work for all labor inside the mines, except pumpmen and monthly men, who shall work the number of hours required. It is understood and agreed however that the trip-riders, motormen, drivers and cagers shall work the extra time required to clean up and deliver outside all coal gathered from working places through the side tracks within the eight hours of actual work and all be paid for such extra time work at the rates per hour herein agreed upon. All outside labor to work the number of hours required and to be paid as per rates specified.

"Third. There is to be no change of working conditions and customs under this scale from such conditions and customs as have applied at this mine and have been in practice there at during the scale year ending March 31, 1906."

Scale for Machine Loading.

In addition to the adoption of the scale the following agreement was entered into for machine loading: "That during the term of this agreement it is agreed that the price of machine loading shall be 37.9 cents per gross ton or 33.6 cents per net ton."

The other provisions are: "Any regularly employed miner may, at his option, authorize deductions from coal mined, for use of a check weighman's fund, such amount of coal as he may elect to subscribe, provided such authority is duly executed in writing by each individual miner, and such authorization releases the company from all liability from account thereof. There shall be no collection from day labor by the companies from day labor working in mines or outside. The collection of coal for check weighman's fund shall be collected for sheets on tipples.

"The right to hire and discharge, the management of the mine and the direction of the working force are vested exclusively in the operator and the U. M. W. shall not abridge that right. It is not the intention of this provision to encourage the discharge of employes, or the refusal of employment to applicants because of personal prejudice or activity in matters affecting the U. M. W. of A.

Provides for Arbitration.

"Should differences arise under this agreement, between the employers and employes touching the proper interpretation of any of its provisions, there shall be no suspension of work on account thereof, but an earnest effort to settle such differences shall be made.

The agreement is regarded as a compromise, the miners getting the wage advance, and the operators the open shop, arbitration and check weighman points.

National Secretary Wilson, when asked regarding the agreement and scale made, said: "The thing that gratifies us is that it gives us the 1903 scale of wages and that is all we contended for."

Pays Penalty for Murder.

Towson, Md., July 14.—Harold E. Pyles, colored, was hanged in the jail yard here Friday for the murder of his sweetheart. He confessed his crime.

ITALIAN LABORERS IN A RIOT

AT PRESCOTT, WIS. WHERE AN OFFICER IS KILLED.

The Trouble Arose over the Illegal Shooting of Quail. Some of them Escape.

Prescott, Wis., July 14.—John Isace a constable was murdered in cold blood shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a gang of twenty-six Italian laborers while the officer was attempting to arrest one of them. Village Marshal James Hammel who accompanied Isace, was badly wounded, only escaping after a desperate battle. Isace was killed by a blow with pick ax after shooting one of the gang.

A man hunt is now on in which almost every man in Prescott is participating, but as yet only five of the gang have been capaured.

In the neighborhood of twenty men are still at large, skulking in the woods and brush, but their capture is said to be but a question of hours. The foreman of the gang, George Sarogusee, who, it is said, instigated the attack upon Isace and Hammel, and who is charged with having dealt the death blow to Isace, was captured at Trimbell last evening. Two more fugitives were also apprehended at the same place.

Later in the evening two more were caught at Diamond Bluff, about twelve miles below Prescott.

Yesterday a warrant issued by the game warden for the arrest of Saroguse was placed in the hands of Isace, who, accompanied by Hammel, set off for the camp. They were met with every evidence of friendship by the Italians and anticipated little trouble. Isace, after reading the warrant, stepped towards Saroguse with the intention of putting him under arrest, but as he placed a hand on the man's shoulder the latter whistled shrilly and jumped back with a drawn knife. Instantly the broad steel blades of two dozen shovels glimmered in the sunlight and like an avalanche the entire gang attacked the officers.

Jumping back Isace drew a revolver and aiming at the nearest man, pulled the trigger. Only the dull click of the hammer responded. The weapon had missed fire. Another instant the blade of a shovel sank deep into his shoulder forcing him to his knees. Again the constable pulled the trigger, and this time there was a loud report and and one of the Italians fell to the ground with a bullet in his stomach. Before the wounded officer could fire again a pickax descended on his head crushing his skull.

Ellsworth, Wis., July 16.—With the local jail overcrowded by the captives made by the posses seeking for members of the band of Italians who murdered Constable Isace, the searchers have relaxed their efforts and many of the deputies have returned to their homes. Twenty members of the gang now are behind the bars, leaving but six at liberty, and these six are being watched for in the various towns and cities along the river and railroads south of Prescott. It is believed, however, that all those directly concerned in the murder have been arrested.

Extreme terror has seized on the prisoners, augmented by the reports given them by the last two captives, brought in late last night, from River Falls, that the whole twenty-six when captured, are to be hanged for the death of the constable. They can speak but little English and have no conception of the formalities of trial by jury.

Nearly Killed.

Superior, Wis.—"Zarrow," who makes a thrilling ride on a bicycle down an inclined plane from the top of the tent, narrowly escaped death at a performance of a circus. As it was, he received injuries which will prevent him doing his stunt for some time to come. The accident resulted from the miscalculation on the part of the performer of the speed at which the wheel was going, and he failed to jump high enough at the end of the runway to catch the net and fell on the machine, which was in a lower net. He received painful injuries which may prove serious.

Found Dead.

Red Wing, Minn.—News reached this city that Timothy Rowles had been found dead in a pasture at the home of his brother in Belle Creek township. On the presumption that death had resulted from some unnatural cause the coroner was summoned. It was demonstrated that death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Rowles was at one time a wholesale dealer in Minneapolis. Financial irregularities resulted in a penitentiary sentence, but he had many influential friends and they secured his pardon. He was 50 years old.

Graveyard a Gold Mine.

Butte, Mont.—The Jewish cemetery has been "jumped" as a gold mine. So has the entire south half of the Mount Moriah cemetery. All the land intervening between the Cathelic and Protestant cemeteries has also been staked out comprise a ten-acre placer claim known as the Palm Leaf placer.

Suicide

Owatonna, Minn.—Mrs. Charlotte Gartner, wife of one of the most prominent farmers of the county, committed suicide by hanging here. Mrs. Gartner's son had left the house for a few minutes, his mother telling him she would follow him shortly. When she did not come after a lapse of some time, young Gartner returned to the house but he was unable to find any trace of his mother.

A search was made, and she was found in the granary with a stout rope drawn taut abort her neck.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

DAIRY AND FOOD COMMISSION MORE VIGILANT THAN EVER.

Boys Commit Robberies—Northwest Banks Flourish—Dairy Exhibit at State Fair—News Notes.

Impure Cream.

St. Paul—Impure and unwholesome cream which has been condemned will be watched more vigilantly in the future, according to a notice just issued to the cream shippers and buyers of the state by Edward K. Slater, state dairy and food commissioner. The condemned cream is to be seized, and care taken that it is not sold to the public. The notice is as follows:

Acting under advice from the attorney general's department of this state, all cream hereafter condemned as "impure and unwholesome" by car inspectors will be seized and put in cold storage. Notice will then be served on consignors and consignees, and the cream destroyed, after it is no longer needed as evidence in prosecuting violators. In the case of shipments into this state from outside points, the cream will be destroyed and cans returned to shippers. Shippers from points within the state will be prosecuted in addition to losing the cream. The same rule will apply to creameries where delivery is made otherwise than by railway shipments. Wherever practicable impure and unwholesome cream will be condemned and seized while in the possession of the express and railroad companies.

Bandits.

Minneapolis—Boy desperadoes committed two robberies in Minneapolis, but although their work was done with much bravado and sensational detail they secured only about $2 in money and a cheap watch.

Spares Katlos, proprietor of a small fruit store at the corner of Seventh street and Second avenue south, was the first victim. He had fallen asleep in a chair in the rear part of the store and about 2 o'clock in the morning suddenly awakened to find himself confronted by three boys, one of whom carried a heavy club. In the gruffest tones that they could command the youths demanded that Katlos produce all of his cash and be quick about it.

Katlos was somewhat dazed by sleep, but as soon as he could collect his senses, he ran behind the counter for a revolver. This move disconcerted the youthful robbers and they seized a box of small change that lay in plain sight and fled. The box contained about $2.

Very soon after the robbery at Katlos' store A. Shapiro was held up on the street in front of his home, 507 Eleventh avenue south.

Banks.

Washington—Surprising development, not only in the number of banks in the agricultural section of the Northwest, but also in the growth of their resources and the volume of each deposited by individual depositors, is furnished by the abstract of reports made to the controller of the currency by the banks of the interior of Minnesota and of the state of North Dakota, given out at the treasury.

In Minnesota, outside of the reserve cities, there are 225 national banks, against 218 in the midsummer of 1905.

These national banks now have loans and discounts to the amount of $50,089,000, against $44,294,000 last year, while they have increased their surplus funds about $200,000, and their undivided profits, less expenses and taxes, have increased about a like amount.

Big Dairy Display.

Hamline—The exhibits of dairy products and dairy apparatus at the Minnesota state fair have become famous as showing the very best of the dairy produce of a state which has for years held first place as the butter producer. The prospects for the fair of 1906 are for an exhibit of butter which will grade higher than ever before. Supt. A. W. Trow, in charge of the division of butter and cheese, is laying his plans early in the season and feels confident that there not only will be a very large exhibit but that the scores will be extraordinarily high.

The state agricultural society is very liberal in its offers of premiums. The great sweepstakes of $1,000 is divided among creamery butter makers, while other premiums make the total of $1,445 to be paid out to butter and cheese men.

News Notes.

St. Paul—St. Joseph's and St. Patrick's parishers win the contest in connection with the cathedral fund picnic.

St. Paul—T. D. O'Brien, insurance commissioner, today issued a notice practically suspending the Minnesota license of the Trans-Atlantic Fire Insurance company of Hamburg, Germany.

Thief River Falls—The Red Lake county teachers' training school is in session in Thief River Falls and will continue until Aug. 2.

St. Peter—A proposition to bond this city for $35,000 will be submitted to the voters at the annual school election, to be held July 31. The money is needed to erect a new high school building, and all that is necessary is the indorsement of the taxpayers.

Thief River Falls—While engaged in cleaning a rifle Christ Lee of Carmel was shot and killed by the accidental discharge of the weapon. Lee did not know the gun was loaded.

Alexandria—Mrs. Tollef Jacobson, wife of President Jacobson of the village council, died at Rochester.

Owatonna—A shooting affray occurred here this morning, and as a result Edward Shepard is in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury. Shepard's wife is confined to her bed with a serious gunshot wound.

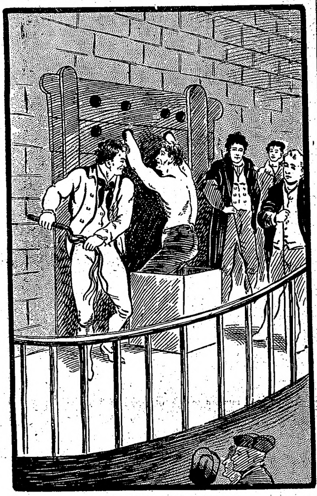
Stillwater—As Arthur Wilson was released from a nine months' sentence at the penitentiary, he was met at the prison door by Sheriff Mora of Vermillion county, Illinois, and re-arrested for breaking parole from the Joliet prison prior to his arrest in Minnesota.

Prisons of Yesterday and Prisons of To-day

Undoubtedly Very Great Progress Has Been Made—Moral Conditions and the Bad Sanitary Conditions of the Past.

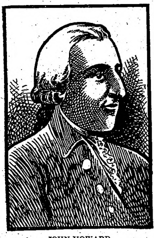
A recent reform inaugurated at the Illinois state penitentiary at Joliet does away with the "lockstep." The prisoners now are to march in military fashion. Which item of news sets us pondering on the change in treatment of prisoners that marks the last century and a half. Not yet are conditions ideal, not yet is the prison admittedly successful as reform school; but unquestionably progress has been made.

An authority asserts that to-day there is no department of science, whether physical or social, in which progress is more evident than in the realm of penology—the study of the management of prisons. The same authority, writing in the Forum on "Progress in Penology," declares that the civilization of a people can now be told quite as well by its prisons as by its picture galleries, its schools or its churches.



WHIPPING AT THE PILLORY.

No one can accuse prison wardens of being mere sentimentalists. They have practical knowledge of hundreds of convicts, they know the total, they know the average. And when they give as their judgment that there is hope for reform in a goodly per cent. of men under their care, the reformative aspect of prison life should loom large. Formerly the idea of punishment dominated. To-day the prisoner is "deprived of opportunities for self-indulgence, but is given what he needs for self-development. He is not punished for what he has been; he is to prove by labor, study and good behavior what he may be."



JOHN HOWARD.

It was in 1777 the Englishman, John Howard, made his famous report on prisons, calling attention to the fact that young and old, innocent and guilty, were shut up together and in idleness. Very soon England set to work at reforms in prison conditions, and has since continued at the task. Experience in the world at large has shown that stringent laws and severe punishments do not lessen crime. At one time there was a score of crimes in England which meant death if the person were caught; to-day the only capital offenses are murder and treason. And yet, as Barrows, secretary of the Prison Association of New York, points out, though population has multiplied and police vigilance greatly increased, the number of convictions has steadily diminished.

In the old days they used to look upon criminals as dangerous beasts, desperate characters, of different clay from ordinary men and women, creatures of uncanny cunning. In the ruins of an American "Old Newgate," a colonial prison that later became the Connecticut state prison, one may still see deeply embedded in the walls the iron staples to which the prisoners were chained while at their work; and remains of the treadmill used for refractory convicts. The prisoners were confined in underground caverns, shafts and chambers of an abandoned copper mine. You may to-day travel down a tortuous path to these one-time prison cells, where, 70 feet below the surface, manacled prisoners were crowded at night; their feet fastened with heavy iron bars, chains about their necks attached to beams above. The caves reeked with filth; contagious fevers were incessant. The keeper was allowed to punish by flogging, putting on shackles and fetters, the treadmill, solitary confinement and putting in the stocks, double and treble sets of irons, hanging by the heels, and other methods that seem far removed from criminalist views of the present.

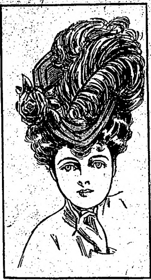
But let us turn from the horrors and inhumanities of the past to the work for betterment. In the work of prison reform in the United States four great organizations have done much to hasten progress: The Philadelphia Society for Alleviating the Miseries of Public Prisons, formed in 1777; the Boston Prison Discipline Society, organized in 1824; the Prison Association of New York; the National Prison Association of America. And, as Dr. Wines says, yeoman service has been rendered by individuals.

Barrows, in summing up the most important indications of progress in penology in the past century, gives the following points: (1) The higher standard of prison construction and administration; (2) the improved personnel in prison management; (3) the recognition of labor as a disciplinary and reformatory agent; (4) substitution of productive for unproductive labor, and to a small degree for unrequited labor; (5) an improvement in prison dietaries; (6) newer and better systems of classification; (7) the substitution of a reformatory for a retributory system; (8) probation or conditional release for first offenders, with friendly surveillance; (9) the parole system; (10) the Bertillon system for identification of prisoners; (11) the new attention given to the study of the criminal, his environment and history; (12) separation of accidental from habitual criminals; (13) the abandonment of transportation; (14) the humane treatment of the criminal insane; (15) the new emphasis laid upon preventive instead of punitive, or merely corrective, measures.

CHRISTOPHER WEBSTER.

Summer Feathers and Frills

As the summer advances more plumes are seen on headgear, as though the flowers that bloomed in the spring had all faded away, or else their wearers, reputedly fickle, had grown aweary of so much artificial bloom.



BILLOWING PLUMES.

It is a pretty fancy to make yokes of lace insertion with a frill of lace at each seam of insertion strips. The fluffiness about the face is very becoming.

At last we are finding some excellent models of Princess gowns, and the best of all have several rows of shirring at the waist line, enough to do away with any sharp outlining of curve of hip and bust. The shirring begins just below the bust, and the lower rows form a dip in the front, do not run straight around, but start from the sides and slope downward.

Touches of vivid green are chic and refreshing these hot days. The smart summer girl wears a skirt of light weight and very light colored gray the summer girl wears a black and white linen frock, white ground with big black spots; made with Peter Pan waist and neat untrimmed skirt. She wears an immense black taffeta bow in her hair and a white sailor with black velvet band.

Few are the high stocks seen nowadays, the round Dutch neck taking their place. A light-haired girl looks well in olive green messaline silk, lightened a bit with Cluny lace; the neck cut just low enough to be suitable for the street and a band of olive wool, a shirt-waist of sheer white stuff, a cool-looking, simple white hat, thrown back from which and forming a pretty background for face and hair, is a green lace veil. Of a morning velvet about the throat, the band fastening with an iridescent pearl buckle.

A mother-of-pearl buckle is very suitable for a wash belt, and such a buckle comes with a slide for the back of the belt, a good idea, wash belts so apt to look mussy after one wearing. In the popularity of Princess and corselet skirt, belts are not so noticeable features of costumes as formerly, but when worn should be very carefully chosen, they give, or take from, style as much as any dress accessory.

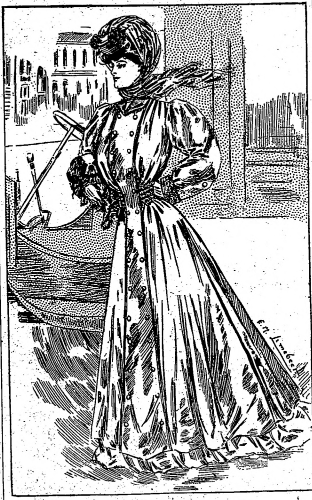
Mitts have come to their own again—the wonder is they ever go out of style, being so comfortable and yet discreetly veiling the arm and protecting it from sun and soilure. The long gloves having increased so in price, the average woman seizes gladly upon the more economical mitt. There are very pretty lace mitts and lace gloves, these peek-a-boo handshuhe more admirable than the peek-a-boo waists that have flaunted their foolishness so long.

One sees charming old-fashioned looking flowered muslins; gray tissue sprigged with moss rosebuds; white lawn picked out in stiff little sprays of corn flowers. No colored ribbons with these, please; the trimming, just a little linen lace, or the use of soft white mull, introduced as necker and part of the sleeve.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

Fashions for the Automobilist

The most sensible thing noticed at present is the small hat. Time was when the woman autoist affected the big picture hat, but it proved too much for coiffure and temper, and she wisely gave it up. Almost any small hat that can be worn under an automobile veil is considered right for automobile toilet, and the popular small sailor answers this purpose very well. Many women, however, like to have a distinctive wrap and hat for the hours when they are touring, and there is offered for their choice a wide variety. The long turban simply trimmed is a favorite, the cap with visor has some adherents.



A SENSIBLE COSTUME.

Responding to the present liking for grays, the milliners are displaying charming little gray crin hats with long gray chiffon veils shirred here, left plain there. Worn with one of the gray satin coats now much the mode, the costume is very modern as well as fresh and pretty.

Not a few women when they go in for sports of any kind like their clothes to bear sportsman air; and for these there are provided trim auto suits of tailored style. These are coat suits of pongee or khaki, with gay vest, skirt short, shirt-waist severely plain.

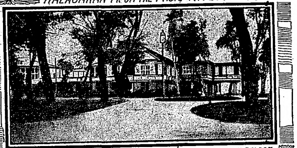
In contrast is the autoist with love for luxury and feminine fripperies. Her auto wrap, all white and voluminous, with immense sleeves, looks like an opera cloak. Her floating white chiffon veil adds to the partified ensemble. When she alights for dinner at the country club and removes her wrap, there is disclosed a very elegant summer toilet, she looks all ready for the ball room.

Now we come to the happy mean, the woman that likes automobiling for the pleasure of the ride rather than because autoing is "the thing;" and dresses neither in mannish fashion nor as if going to a dance—just in temperate apparel. And we confess a personal liking for this woman. Her coat is long and sensible, quite covers her dress, but not of a startling sweep. It fits comfortably, the long lines follow the figure in a graceful way. The hat is close, the veil not too assertive. No need for this woman when the speed's put on to clutch hat and draperies; her costume was designed to withstand wind and weather. Pongee, linen, khaki are chosen for the dust coat, and for time of rain the manufacturers now have a sheeny satin that is well waterproofed.

Gauntlets are worn with some of the suits, and the ordinary long gloves with the opera cloak sort of wrap. For the woman who drives the machine herself a gauntlet is the glove to choose.

Malacanan The White House of the Phillippines

MALAGANAN FROM THE PASIG RIVER



DRIVEWAY LEADING FROM GATE TO THE SALLY-PORT OF THE PALACE

A Manila landlord in trying to rent his house said it was located in the aristocratic district of San Miguel. He was stirring up a hornet's nest, but didn't know it. There are people in Manila who object to San Miguel being termed the district of the 400. Until this time few people ever knew, and a majority cared less, that Manila could boast a really aristocratic section. Those who did were probably of the American colony living in Ermita. There the cream, so to speak, of the American contingent resides, that is the commanding general of the Philippines division and those of the big government salaries, and it has always imagined itself the aristocracy of the city, perhaps more through a penchant it has for paying about 50 per cent. greater rent than would be required elsewhere.

In Ermita the houses are huddled together like stampeded steers in a round-up, but the nearness of the sea shore and the Luneta, Manila's Bois de Boulogne, the cleanliness of the district and, incidentally, the high rents, are what attract the American to this select western center of the metropolis. But the landlord was quite correct in saying in his rent ad that his property was located in the aristocratic neighborhood of San Miguel, the literal translation of which is Saint Michael, for here true eastern aristocracy, what little there is in the capital, quietly resides.

The landlords of Ermita are just rich enough on the average to own expensive houses, but poor enough to need to rent them when Americans can be found that will pay double what they are worth. But in San Miguel the conditions are somewhat different. There the citizens are wealthy beyond the state of becoming landlords, regardless of the lone owner who wanted to hire out and who was crafty enough to advertise an aristocratic atmosphere as a drawing card to the susceptible. Here the Roxases, the brewing magnates, and other families of great wealth live when not touring continental Europe, or globe-trotting in general. Their vast wealth quite counterbalances the high rents paid by the aristocracy of Ermita, and then they have one other claim upon the title which handicaps the aspiring denizens of the sea shore barrio. This other claim lies in the fact that the governor general has his home there—the White House of the Philippines—and has had since long before American occupation.

But so much for Manila's aristocracy and the hombre who brought up the subject through a desire to rent, and to the subject of the Insular White House, which is locally known as the Malacanan palace, located on the banks of the Pasig in the heart of San Miguel. Malacanan is a native name and means in terse English the "hang-out," or rendezvous of the fishes, but the exalted official who resides there is far from being a fish in the sense that the American term implies. Why this name was given the place is not known, unless it was because of its proximity to the river.

The executive mansion at Malacanan, although popularly known as the palace, would hardly be dignified with the name in any other country, unless in some of the toy republics in the Caribbean. The new commanding general's residence recently erected in Ermita at government expense far excels it in exterior magnificence, but the interior and the grounds about the military mansion can hardly favorably compare with the domicile of the governor general. But the name of palace generally signifies a grand and imposing structure, fit for kings and their ilk, yet this cannot conscientiously be said of Malacanan. The buildings proper are long and low, squatty and flat, but covering a vast amount of ground as if to make up in area what they lack in height. All the roofs are of ordinary, unpainted galvanized iron or of red tile, while the walls are either of adobe stone or native hard woods, the place thus giving, with its well-kept lawns, shrubbery and drives more the appearance of a shooting lodge or some sporting prince than anything else to which it can be compared. From without it is true that the building looks sadly out of place in the center of the beautiful grounds, but within it is the finest residence, no doubt, in the entire archipelago, hence, when the position of he who lives there is taken into consideration, the name of palace.

Malacanan has some little history. Until 1863 the Spanish governors general had their official residence in a palace situated in the walled city, near the present rebuilt Catholic cathedral, but in connection with this they had a summer residence (if a country house in a tropical climate can be called such) in the suburb of San Miguel, where the palace of Malacanan is now located. A terrible earthquake occurred in Manila in 1863, which destroyed about two-thirds of the buildings of the city, among them the governor general's palace and the cathedral and Don Rafael Echague, then governor general of the island, had the summer residence properly fitted up for a permanent home. From that time forth it was the official residence of all the Spanish governors general, no less than 33 of them having resided there, some of whom served but six days in office, and among whom were such famous men as Weyler, Blanco and Augustin. Francisco Rizzo served a few days in 1898 after the capitulation, and was the last Spanish governor general to live there. The Spanish coat-of-arms still grace the arch over the entrance, but a big American policeman sits daily as a guard over the place, reminding one of latter day conquests.

Hon. William H. Taft was the first American official to occupy the palace, being succeeded by Governors General Luke E. Wright and Henry Clay Ide. Mrs. Taft while mistress of Malacanan inaugurated a system of public receptions held monthly, and which are still in vogue. To these receptions all the prominent people go to pay their respects and enjoy the hospitality of the chief executive, and such personages as the duke of Abruzzi, the prince of Savoy and countless other notables of the world and of the orient are numbered among those who have been entertained there, it falling to the lot of Miss Marjorie Ide, as first lady of the land, to entertain the prince of Savoy before she had spent a fortnight in her new home.

R. M. WOOLLEY.

SMIRCH LOVELY CITY.

People of Naples Unworthy of the Beauty with Which They Are Surrounded.

Say! God made the site of Naples the finest in the world. The bay and its surroundings are grand beyond conception. But Naples is to-day the vilest city I have ever seen. There are fine people there, but they are a small minority, and are powerless to correct the evils. Some of the streets are only four feet wide. Everywhere there is macaroni for sale. Men, women and children of the slums drift lazily along, and if they have a cent or two help themselves out of the common bowl of the paste, just as some folks eat slaw in a barroom here. It is very disgusting to see them hold it two feet above their heads and let it run down their gullets. I have seen burly Italians buy two cents' worth of the stuff, suck it down and go to sleep on the neighbor's doorstep, where they will lie for a day and a half.—N. Y. Press.

One Good Thing About Autos.

Scientists have always contended that the odor of gasoline is fatal to Jersey's chief product, the mosquito. This is something the anti-mobile legislature should keep in mind when doing their best to drive the car off New Jersey roads and make an impenetrable barrier to visiting motormen.—Motor World.

Scriptures Widely Distributed.

The British and Foreign Bible society now distributes the Scriptures in 400 languages. Last year the society issued a few volumes short of 6,000,000.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Northwestern editorial convention which was to have been held in Crookston tomorrow has been prosponed until some later date.

D.C. Lightbourn Editor of the Ada Index will be a candidate for state Senator of this District.

This makes two candidates for this position which means" one shall be taken and the other one left."

While Red Lake County have their county seat scraps to entertain the people as a side issue, Polk county will call a special grand jury to round up the East Grand Forks gamblers, surly reform is abroad in the land.

The small potato, who but in a side show newspaper in this township in opposition to THE SUNBEAM had better read the story of the parot who sicked the bull dog onto himself, and let this paper and its editor alone, as we do not care to mix in such small business as to interfere with him or his paper.

The Thief River Falls News is just begining to find out, that the settlers on this reservation were granted an extension of time of one year in which to make their payments to the government.

We published the facts about this in our issue of May 4th. If you want to get the reliable news about any changes or rulings about these lands subscribe for THE SUNBEAM, as we pay particular attention to publishing any news or rulings passed offecting this land.

The prospect now is that Hon. H. Steenerson will have no opposition to his renomination for congressman from this district on the republican ticket. Halvor has just filled the bill of what the people want and any would be aspireant should be wise enough to see it, and place his energy and money in some other direction where he will get better returns for them than using them in attempting to defeat the big Norsman from the Ninth.

We publish this week the articles of incorporation of the Red Lake River Transportation Company. Read them over carefully and if you are interested in the development of the 11 towns, take hold of this matter with the company and we will soon have boats running on this river.

Don't listen to a few kickers who never do anything themselves, but growl at others, but take hold of the handle and pull together, and let us put a line of boats on this river, and keep it open for navigation.

The Ninth District's Representative.

In a recent issue the Minneapolis Journal, attacking the congressman from its own district, compares the record of Mr. Fletcher with that of other congressmen of the Minnesota delegation.

The Journal says: He has spent the best working years of his public life as the representative of one of the largest and most important districts in the country and has never become author of a single piece of general legislation. While such men as Tawney, McCleary, Stevens, of the older members and Davis, Steenerson and Volstead of the newer members of the delegation have been rapidly coming to the front, Mr. Fletcher has been traveling to the rear. * * * He has been looked upon as merely a visitor, as one who had announced his departure, a sort of week-end guest at a country house. As to the justice of the Journal's attack on Mr. Fletcher—it is not material to the Ninth District of Minnesota. But the reference to Mr. Steenerson is very material to the Ninth District and to Messrs. Volstead and Steenerson to the entire north country:

Even setting aside the great question of drainage—admittedly the greatest problem to all Minnesota north of St. Cloud that has ever arisen—the general activity of the Ninth Districts representative in all matters pertaining to public policy has been so pronounced that he has risen in the critical public eye.

In Indian legislation, notwithstanding his short appearance in the House, Mr. Steenerson has become an authority and factor.

On the immigration bill his stand opposed the passing of the English speaking provision

The provision did not pass

Mr. Steenerson assumed without the hesitancy of many of the other members of congress the popular stand on the railroad rate legislation and in every direction the Ninth District statesman has demonstrated his freedom from the pernicious influence of corporate power. being watchful active against commercial pressure on federal legislation, the ban of our times.

Visitors from Crookston in the Ninth District at the capitol in Washington return with remark of satisfaction and pride at the prominence and power of the Ninth District in federal affairs.

At the congress Mr. Steenerson is neather "meerly a visitor as one who had announced his comming departure" or a sort of week-end guest at a country house."

The Ninth District has been represented—none of its interests have been neglected or sacrificed.—Crookston Daily Journal.

THIEF RIVER FAIR.

The Thief River Falls Fair association are out with their premium list for their fifth annual fair which will be held at that place August 8th, 9th, and 10th. They are offering liberal premiums for farm products and we hope to see as many of the Eleven towns farmers make exhibits at this fair as possible, as it advertises the country in which you live.

J. K. WOOD,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? You will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

Looking Forward.

"Progress is becoming extremely rapid."

"Yes, indeed. In the year 3000 or so lightning will have to get a move on if it wants to be considered fast."

Lucky Patients.

"Did you ever make any mistakes, doctor?"

"Well, I've had several patients get well that I expected would die."

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE RED LAKE RIVER TRANSPOTATION COMPANY.

We the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58, revised laws of Minnesota, 1905, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

Article 1.

The name of this corporation shall be the Red Lake River Transportation Company.

Article 11.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be the operating of a line of boats upon the Red Lake River and upon the Great Red Lakes, and streams tributary thereto, in Red Lake, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, in the State of Minnesota, as a common carrier of passengers and freight for hire, together with the doing of all things necessary, convenient or incidental thereto. For the purposes of carrying on said business, this corporation may buy, own, sell, lease, let, build, and operate, steam boats, barges, tugs, launches, or any other sort of water craft, whether propelled by steam, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, alcohol, or other motive power; may buy, construct, lease, let, own, and operate docks and wharves, and for that purpose may buy or acquire by condemnation proceedings, or otherwise, any real estate convenient and necessary for the carrying on of the said business; may buy, sell, own, lease, let, develope, improve, water powers, dams or locks for the purpose of carrying on said business; may borrow money for the corporate purposes of said corporation and issue notes, obligations, bonds, and securities therefore, in the name of said corporation, and pledge and mortgage, the property, rights and franchises of said corporation as security for the payment thereof, and in general, do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the business of said corporation, not inconsistent with the laws of the State of Minnesota.

Article 111.

The principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be at the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

Article 1V.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be the 9th day of June, A. D., 1906, and the period of continuance of this corporation shall be thirty (30) years.

Article V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), which shall be divided in one thousand (1000) shares of Ten Dollars ($10.00 each, and shall be paid in at the time or times and in the manner prescribed by the board of directors, in cash or property at the cash market value thereof.

Article V1.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2500.00).

Article V11.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation shall be, Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Segardson, D.A. Kolstrand all of Highlanding Minn. James O'Brien, Carl Jenson, all of Kratka Minn. W. A. Swanson of Rhoda Minn. E.K. Gjernes, Sjur Stolass all of Radny Minn., all of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Article V111.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of Eleven directors, who shall be elected annually by the stockholders at the annual meeting thereof and shall hold office until their sucessors are elected and qualified.

The names of the first Board of Directors of said corporation are Ole Overum, Carl Jenson W.A. Swanson, W.G. Hunt, Lars K. Vindlas Peter Hedeen, E.K. Gjernes, James O'Brien, August Wentzel, D.A. Kolstrand, Frank Lundeen, whose term of office shall continue until the first annual meeting of said corporation and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The officers of said corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors at their first meeting after the annual stockholders meeting in each year, and who shall respectively hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. The office of treasurer and secretary may be held by the same person.

Until the first election of officers by the board of directors Ole Howard shall be president, Carl Jensen vice president, and William A. Swanson secretary and August J. Wentzel treasurer.

Said corporation may have such other officers as may be necessary for carrying on its affairs, to be provided by the by-laws or designated by the board of directors. All such officers to be chosen by the board of directors.

Any vacancies in any office or in the board of directors shall be filled by the board of directors for the unexpired term,

The president and vice president of this corporation shall be elected from the Board of Directors.

Regular and special meetings of the directors and stockholders may be held at such times and under such rules as may be prescribed by the by-laws of such corporation.

Article 1X.

No sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation pledge or other disposition of any stock of this corporation shall be valid or effectual for any purpose until there has first been endorsed upon the stock certificate to be effected by such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition, the approval or consent of a majority of the Board of Directors of such corporation, sitting as a board, to such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition.

Article X.

The by-laws of this corporation shall be adopted by the first board of directors, and may be from time to time modified, amended or repealed by stockholders or members at any regular meeting or any special meeting called for that purpose.

The annual meeting for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may regularly and properly come before the same, shall be held at the office of said corporation, in the Town of Highlanding County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 2nd Monday of January in each year, commencing with the year 1907, and immediately after each annual meeting the board of directors shall meet for the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as the by-laws may prescribe.

The first meeting of said corporation shall be held at Sunbeam Post office in the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of June, A.D. 1906 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and a meeting of the said board of directors shall be held at the same place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day.

In witness whereof the persons hereinbefore named have subscribed their names and affixed their seals this 28th day of March, A. D. 1906.

Andrew Ellingson, [Seal]
Ole Overum, [Seal]
James O'Brien, [Seal]
Carl Jensen, [Seal]
August J. Wentzel, [Seal]
J.A. Kelly, [Seal]
W.A. Swanson, [Seal]
E.K. Gjernes, [Seal]
Sjur Stolaas, [Seal]
Julius Halvorson, [Seal]
Ljot Sigardson, [Seal]
D.A. Kolestrand, [Seal]

Executed in presence of:
B. Henry, Costello
Hallvard Rystad.

State of Minnesota) S. S.
County of Red Lake)

On this 2nd day of June, A.D., 1906, before me, a notary public in and for the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, personally appeared Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, James O'Brien, Carl Jensen, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, W.A. Swanson, E.K. Gjernes Sjur Stolaas, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Sigardson D.A. Kolstrand, to me personally known to be the same persons described in and who executed the foregoing articles of incorporation, and each acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

(Seal) W. G. Hunt.
Notary Public,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.
My commission expires June 21st 1912.

Office of Register of Deeds.
State of Minnesota
County of Red Lake.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 3rd day of July, A.D. 1906. at 8 o,clock A.M. and was duly recorded in book [illegible] of Misc. page 388.

(Seal)

Frank Jeffers.
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA.
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 6th day of June A.D. 1906. at 3 o'clock P. M. and was duly recorded in Book [illegible] of Incorporations on page 153.

P. E. Hanson.
Secretary of State.

Germo & Farley.
Attorneys.

PROBATE NOTICE

CITATION FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedent.

The State of Minnesota to all persons interested in the above entitled Matter:

Whereas Eva Shosten has filed in this Court a petition praying for administration of the estate of the above named decedent, and that letters of administration thereon be granted to Eva Shosten:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and that all persons interested in said matter be and appear before this Court on the 4th day of August 1906, at 9 o'clock A.M., at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, at Red Lake Falls, in said County, and then and there, or as soon thereafter, as said matter can be heard, show cause if any they have, why said petition should not be granted, and that this citation be served by the publication thereof in THE SUNBEAM, a weekly newspaper, printed and published in said County, according to law.

WITNESS THE HONORABLE, N. W. Tarrant Judge of said court, and the seal of said Court, this 6th day of July 1906.

[Seal] N. W. Tarrant, Judge.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 6th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on July 26 1906 viz:

Lars K. Vindlos.

H. E. No 413 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3, 6, 7, Sec. 21 Lot 13 Sec. 22 Twp. 153 N R 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Anton Skog, Carl Jensen, Asmond K. Vindlos, Ole Brelland all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on August 6th 1906, viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H. E. No. 808, Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼, Sec. 4, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brunkeberg Minn, John Oftedahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostvoden, of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

The Dawn of Christmas.

Christmas day begins in the middle of the Pacific ocean on the one hundred and eightieth parallel of latitude, and there is where Santa Claus starts and ends his great and only journey of the year.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store.

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best Brands of flour, at lowest market price

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office At Crookston Minn. June 22 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn, at Thief River Falls, Minn on August 6th, 1906. viz:

John Rogers.

H.E. No. 7810 Chippewa Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 155 N. R. 37 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

George Cunningham, Charley Clark, Jorgen Jelle, William Lillemoen all of Jelle Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th .1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 8, 1906 viz:

Julius Halvorsen.

H. E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ljot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnson, Ole Vattendahl of Highlanding, Minn. Oscar Swanson of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Ye editor made a social visit to Rhoda on last Sunday afternoon returning Mon day.

Read Chris Larsons add, the hustling Anton merchant in this issue and call and see him.

John Polbrook, of Deer Park, and E.B. Johnson of McIntosh made this office a business and social call.

Mrs. B. Peterson, Mrs. John Poloni, and Mrs. McMand were visitors at Miss Kuehnels, on Wednesday afternoon.

John Radneski, the Radny post master and merchant was a passenger down the river on the Dan Patch yesterday.

Walt McAndrees and Jerry O'Brien drove down to Rhoda yesterday to see the plow doctor but found him absent.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

The Sullivan and Eve ferry is running in good shape now and any one desiring to cross the river can do so in safety at that point.

There is to be a rousing boat meeting here today but as we go to press before the meeting, we can not publish full report until next week.

Alfred Hammersten of this township and Thor Torkelson of Deer Park township were passengers down river on the Flyer Wednesday.

James Kelly took Wednesdays Flyer down the Red Lake River, on his way to Crookston, where he will make final proof on his homestead today.

The new school house bell arrived last Saturday, and was placed in position the same evening, The price of the bell was raised by popular subscription.

Be sure to all turn out to the school meetings tomorrow night as this will be quite an important meeting being the first annual school meeting in this District.

A large number of the school officers from this township and Deer Park went down to Kratka yesterday to meet County superintendant of schools H.T. Mc-Anulty.

Thomas Jacobson the Highlanding post master must be going into farming quite extensively judgeing from the amount of farm machinery he is having shipped up.

Wm. Swanson, Edward Singer, and Thor Moen passed this way yesterday morning on their way to Kratka to attend the school meeting and made this office a pleasant call.

Our new school house is now completed, outside and in, the painting having been finished by Julius Halvorson last week, The new seats will arrive in a few days and be placed in position and then we will have a complete up to date school house.

As we have been compelled to add some meterial to our plant to keep up with the other improvements of the country, we would consider it a special favor if some of our delinquent subscribers who are troubled with to much ready cash would please remit.

While Dewey and Clinton Eve were playing on last Sunday afternoon Dewey threw a stick, striking Clint over the eye and making a serions, but not dangerous wound. Dr. Hougland dressed the wound and no serious results are inticipated as the little fellow is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

Are you going to visit the big fair at Thief River Falls? why not? The roads are in fine condition and you can easily drive down and see the sights.

We made a friendly call on Henry Arnt on last Sunday forenoon and had the pleasure of seeing one of the finest gardens we have seen this season, Mr. Arndt has a large scare crow erected in the center of it and says he thinks it is the large amount of hoeing this fellow has done which makes the garden look so fine.

Dr. C.C. HOAGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

Assessment of the town of Highlanding.

The following is the assement for the Town of Highlanding for this year.

Horses & mules. One year old 10 $100 two years old 13 $208 three years old and over 101 $3050. Stallions 1 $100.

Cattle. One year old 102 $306. two years old 103 $515. cows 217 $1736. working oxen 31 $465. all other cattle three years old and over 23 $230. sheep of all ages 35 $35. hogs of all ages 25 $50. wagons, carriages, sleighs, and bicycles 75 $478. sewing and knitting machines 27 $135. watches and clocks 8 $8. melodeons and organs 2 $10. household goods and wearing apparel $559. farm tools, implements and machinery $350 goods and merchandise retail merchants $460. manufactures tools, implements and nachinery. engines and boilers $155. improvements on land entered under United States land laws 2665. dogs over six months old 165. the value of all other articles of personal property not include in the proceding itim 120. total value of the thirty itims as determined by the Assessor 11900.

real property 3812.

Total $15712.

P.C. Wold, Assessor.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.

Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

The Gardener.

It is at once the joy and the despair of a gardener that his work is never done. His materials are growing, changing, ever varying things. This is an endless delight to a man who lives with his garden and watches his plans grow up. When he makes a garden for another it is a different matter. Then, after spending his best thought and skill, the garden must be turned over into the hands of the Philistine, who may, doubtless will, spoil his color effects, make gaudy what before was rich, introduce tawdry display where before was a sensitive delicacy. These are the things that try men's souls and will continue to try them until the owners of large places acquire some degree of sympathy with and understanding of art.—Century.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office Crookston Minn. June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final prof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn, on August 8th 1906, viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series. for the Lo 1,2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W

She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 22, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H. E. No. 805, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O. Larson. Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, Minn. Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston June 29 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O. Nesja.

H. E. No. 664 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, S½ of N.E. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153, N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan.

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Sander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz;

Tollef B. Nesland.

H.E. No. 646 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole O. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 881 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29, Tp. 153 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous reesidence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Poloni of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U.S. Land office at Crookston, Minn, on August 8th 1906, viz

Jerrie O'Brien,

H.E. No. 1126 Red Lake Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 8, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 20 Twp. 154 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchamp, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster. Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston Minn., on August 21, 1906 viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H.E. No. 1187 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove hiscontinuousresidence upon and cultivation of said land viz;

Ole O. Strande. Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. July 11th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston, Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz;

Berit Martha Valstad.

H.E. No. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 23 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gullingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn. Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. BISHOP, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz:

Alfred Bakke.

H.E. No. 689 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 16 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oveson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th .1906.

Department of the Interior., Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H.E. No. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3,4 5, 6, Sec. 20 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien. Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S, Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

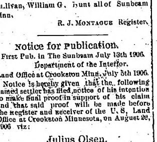
H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series. for the Lots 1,2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 19 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter E. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn. Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olsen, Even Softelie, Knut Jorstad of Rudell Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register,

CORONEL.



The Clebrated half Morgan & half French Coach stallion CORNEL, will stand during the balence of the season, at Rhoda, on Mondays, Tuesdays & Wednes days. At Lillo, on Thursdays, Fridays & Saturdays.

Terms. To insure 8.00.

E. B. Johnson, Proprietor.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & Feed.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LEVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

GIVE ME A CALL.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

Obedience.

Every duty, even the least duty, involves the whole principle of obedience. And little duties make the will dutiful—that is, supple and prompt to obey. Little obediences lead into great. The daily round of duty is full of probation and of discipline. It trains the will, heart and conscience.—Woman's Life.

A Biography In a Nutshell.

Born, welcomed, caressed, cried, fed, grew, amused, reared, studied, examined, graduated, in love, loved, engaged, married, quarreled, reconciled, suffered, deserted, taken ill, died, mourned, buried and forgotten.

Sure on One Point.

"Out late last night? What time did the clock say when you got in?"

"I don't remember what the clock said, but I will never forget what my wife said!"

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Slipped a Word.

From a recent examination paper on religious instruction at a boys' school: "Holy matrimony is a divine institution for the provocation of mankind."—Punch.

Delia's Diary

(Her Final Entry)

By GERTIE DE S. WENTWORTH-JAMES

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

I am thirty to-day (30! XXX!!), and Dolf's birthday present (the fourth since our marriage!) is lying on the writing table in the sunshine.

Thirteen years ago he gave me a heart—a little simple gold thing—and to-day he gives me yet another!

But this one is set with diamonds, diamonds that shine with emblematical fires of flawless purity.

It is wonderfully sweet that my birthday gift shall still be a heart—at thirty!

Five years ago I feared the mirror, but to-day I sit before it bravely, and without a pain.

This morning Dolf woke me with a kiss.

"Wake up, my birthday wife," he whispered, standing tall, bronzed and tweed-clad by the bedside.

For a moment I could not quite realize things, but then suddenly I remembered which birthday this was.

"Dolf, Dolf!" I murmured, with my face buried in his neck (that dear brown bit between his nearly curling hair and collar), "I—I am thirty today!"

"Thirty? And we were married just after you were twenty-five! Well, thank God, only four years of our life together have gone by so far, sweetheart!"

Dolf never mentions the old love-story, of which he knows nothing (not even a name, nor an incident) except that I was—jilted! But sometimes when I look up suddenly and see his eyes fixed wistfully upon my face, I feel that he is mutely asking if his rival still lives in a sacred place called Memory-land.

I wish I could answer him, but I cannot—quite! I think I know, but it is so dangerous to be sure!

A woman's heart is such an indefinite thing; she can never be certain of it as long as the elusiveness of remembrance alone separates the past from the present.

To-night we are giving a little "douzaine dinner," because Dolf will never allow my birthday to go by without some celebration. (To me it seems such a childish idea! Why fete people because of events over which they had no control? But then, dear big bronzed men are always childish!)

Erica and Oscar are coming (Erica's beginning to love dinners!), Aimee Belleby and— Oh! a telegram! Pardon, one moment, my Birthday Diary. . . .

Only from Dolf saying that as David Hexton is up at the club with a sprained ankle, he will bring another man in his place.

How vexing! I do dislike strangers at dinner!

Never mind, the man is sure to be dineable, or else Dolf wouldn't bring him home, and I expect everyone else was engaged. Another interruption! The dressmaker this time. My Birthday Diary, I will return to you later.

11:30 p. m.

The Birthday dinner is over, the people have gone, and I am sitting with the summer night breezes stealing through the open window of my boudoir—ruffling the lace and roses on my breast.

How strange, how infinitely strange it is to think that less than 12 hours ago I was wondering, and now—I know!

I want to write it all down, in case I forget anything of this wonderful peace-giving evening; I want to always remember, so that there can never be any doubt again.

Dolf's train was late, so I did not see him until we were all sitting in the drawing room waiting for the chimes to sound.

"Delia," he said, coming to my side and laying his hand on my shoulder in a way that always makes me feel sorry for lonely women; "Delia, let me introduce Mr. Dullimore—great friend of Charlie Bensted's, and a scratch golf-man. Dullimore, my wife!"

And thus, after eight years, I touched the hand which had bruised all the youth out of my heart!

"Mr. Dullimore and I have met before," I said, finding it strangely easy to be cordial, and to speak without a tremor in my voice.

George bowed low over my hand, and I couldn't help noticing his head. I had so adored its sleekness; but now—Well, it wasn't greasy, of course! It must be that I had got so used to Dolf's insistent tendency towards suppressed curls and avoidance of gelatine!

Five minutes later we were busy with hors d'oeuvres and remarks that didn't matter, while George (who sat at my left) and I probed the past with a long, almost dissecting look.

At last, after we had waded through unnecessary and unwanted courses, I snared Lady Stormont's eye, and we rose from the table.

(Until that instant I had forgotten that George was—short!)

When the men rejoined us in the drawing room, Arthur Mitre-Covell crossed to my side.

"Mr. D—Dullimore and I have been discussing Lanroy from the point of view of a p-portrait p-painter, Mrs. Kennett. Mr. D-Dullimore condemns his flesh tints and I uphold 'em; d'you mind showing him that tr-triumph of you that is hung in the billiard room? It so emphatically gives my side of the question a chance."

"By all means," I replied, looking round and noting that Erica was moving towards the piano, while all the others were amalgamating satisfactorily. "Come this way."

As we entered the billiard room I switched on the light.

"Now, Mr. Mitre-Covell," I began, "here is the picture, but—"

"Don't waste your words on the absent, Delia. The excellent Mr. Covell (I haven't time for the hyphen) has not come to substantiate his argument," said George, standing close at my elbow and looking at the pearls about my neck.

(I could feel his eyes!)

"Oh! er—well, here is the picture."

There was a silence (those silences used to be poignant, but now they only seemed empty), and then I felt a hand on my arm.

I turned, and there was the old cold look, behind which burnt blazing fires.

"I—I don't know if I love you tonight, or if I actually ever did love you; but—but whatever it was, it is still Delia! I've tried to burn it out, but the fires go on like the fires of hell! Delia, look at me—like you used to look!"

I turned and faced him. Now was my moment—my test!

"Delia—"

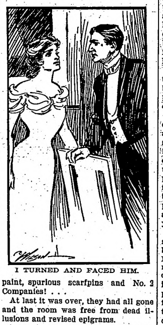
His hands were on my hands, his eyes were close to mine; then, with a swift movement that surprised myself, I reached the door!

The supreme test was not wanted—the touch of his lips need not be!

I knew!

"I'm glad you like the picture, Mr. Dullimore," I said, crossing the corridor and reentering the drawing room. "Mr. Mitre-Covell, I don't think you'll find that my poor portrait has secured a convert. Mr. Dullimore will tell you what he thinks of it. . . . Aimee, do sing that delicious little thing you sang at the Palmerstons' the other night—all about oiseaux and printemps, you remember? So light and lovely it was—Dolf called it a souffle song!" And with these last words I actually moved towards my husband, and laid my hand for one passing instant on his arm.

His eyes lighted—I so rarely ever look towards him in public—and, glancing at George for the first time, I realized how strongly a Napoleonic profile could suggest cheap grease-paint, spurious scarfpins and No. 2 Companies! . . .



I TURNED AND FACED HIM.

At last it was over, they had all gone and the room was free from dead illusions and revised epigrams.

Dolf was bending over the sofa stroking the cat (a dear, hungry, valueless thing he had rescued in the Square Gardens), when I made up my mind to tell him what there was to tell.

"Dolf," I said, taking one of his big hands in both my own, "H-have you ever wondered about the man who jilted me so long ago—wondered if—if I ever think of him?"

"Of course, darling, I've wondered; but as you've given yourself to me I've no right to bother you about your memories, my Delia. I know th-that a woman can't ever quite get over—those! Every book tells you so!" he answered, almost wearily and hopelessly. (I'd never heard that note in his voice before. He'd hidden it all these years!)

"Then every book is wrong; a woman can get over memories when realities come to help her!" I cried, with triumph. "If David Hexton had not sprained his ankle I might never quite have known!"

"Hexton? What d'you mean?"

"I mean that your club friend, George Dullimore, was the man who nearly killed my heart nine years ago, and I mean that to-day has absolutely effaced yesterday—wiped it out as if it had never been! When I saw George to-night I felt as one feels on reopening a meritless bygone book (which had proved entrancing) after one's literary taste has become more matured! . . . You need never again ask me that silent question which I have seen shining from your eyes, my husband. For all time I answer it now, and voluntarily,—I answer it, dear, like this!"

And I kissed Dolf's big brown hand!

And now, my Birthday Diary, shall we say good-by to each other?

Your few leaves (which were so white and virgin just 13 years ago) are all covered with the blotted confessions of a woman's heart, and I have no fancy to commence another volume. What should I have to say in it? Please God—Nothing!

I have no more confessions to make—the pen is drying—Dolf is calling—the clock strikes 12—another birthday year begins—

Good-by—good-by!

FLOWERS FOR A WEDDING.

Suggestions for Decoration for a Home Wedding by Use of a Bay Window as Background.

Almost any flowers which an old-fashioned garden affords are lovely for a summer wedding. A bay window is often used as the place for the bridal party to stand, and this lends itself particularly well to decoration, says the Housekeeper.

The curtains can be drawn together and edged with delicate vines. Between each window section, a tall evergreen tree planted in a large pot, painted white, can help to make a most graceful background. A low table covered with a white cloth can be set at the back of the bay window. Upon this may be placed a vase of blossoms of any desired hue, and two tall brass candlesticks holding lighted tapers.

A small white rug upon the floor in front of the table, marks the spot where the clergyman is to stand. Curving outward from the front of the bay window, small evergreen trees, also in white pots, can make a green chancel boundary; leaving an opening at the center where the bride and groom will stand.

Another pretty arrangement is to have screens placed at the back of the bay window, covered with sprays of graceful bloom. The ceiling of the bay window can be covered with wire netting and massed with laurel leaves or other dark green; and hanging from this can be numerous lengths of fine wire or string wound with vines, and each holding from its tip end a spray of blossoms—either roses, snowballs, peonies or lilies could be used, and the effect is lovely. White ribbons can form an aisle at the time of the bridal procession. If wished, these ribbons can be held by four little girls dressed in white and crowned with flowers.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES.

When peeling onions begin at the root end and peel upward, and the onions will affect the eyes scarcely at all.

To remove fruit stains stretch the fabric containing the stain over the mouth of a basin and pour boiling water on the stain. In cold weather fruit spots can frequently be removed by hanging the stained garments out of doors over night. If the stain has been fixed by time, soak the article in a weak solution of oxalic acid, or hold it over the fumes of sulphur.

In buying canned goods examine the can carefully, and if the sides bulge reject them, as this denotes the presence of gas, which renders the contents unfit for food.

One of the latest ideas is that celery is a cure for rheumatism. It is asserted that the disease is impossible if the vegetable be cooked and freely eaten. The celery should be cut into pieces and boiled in water until soft, and the water drunk by the patient. Put new milk, with a little flour and nutmeg into a saucepan with the boiled celery, serve it warm with pieces of toast, eat it with potatoes, and the painful ailment will soon yield.

The Lancet advocates the use of snails as food. The snail, it says, has been called "the poor man's oyster." It makes an excellent fish sauce and may be used for the same purpose as oyster sauce. Care must be exercised in the choice of the snail for food purposes, as it is well known that snails feed on poisonous plants, and it is the custom in France to allow a few days to elapse after they have been taken from their feeding ground in order that any poisonous matter may be eliminated.

If horseradish is to be grated the simplest way is to put it through the meat chopper.

To prevent making a great dust in sweeping use moist sawdust on bare floors. If the floor is carpeted, moisten a newspaper, tear it into small pieces and scatter over the floor. The carpet will look much brighter than if swept in the ordinary way.

Hot water and soap generally remove grease spots. If fixed by long standing, use either chloroform or naphtha. Both these must be used away from fire or artificial light.

If eggs that are to be boiled hard are put into rapidly boiling water the yolks will not become dark on the outside.—Boston Budget and Beacon.

Pineapple Jam.

Pare, dig out eyes, cut in small pieces and reject cores. To each pound fruit allow three-quarters pound sugar. Sprinkle sugar over fruit and allow to stand over night. In the morning bring to a quick boil, skim, and then simmer slowly for three-quarters hour. Put in tumblers and seal as directed above.

Salmon Sandwiches.

Mash half a can of salmon to a paste, taking out skin and bones. Add a raw egg beaten, one tablespoon melted butter, two of cream or milk—if milk, use more butter—salt, pepper, mustard and lemon juice to taste. Mix thoroughly together and spread between thin slices of bread, trim and cut into triangles.

For the Bird.

Canaries are fond of green food and when lettuce is scarce a substitute is offered in a little of their favorite seed planted in small flower pots and allowed to grow. The birds like it all the better if they are allowed to pick out the plants themselves.

Cinnamon Flavor.

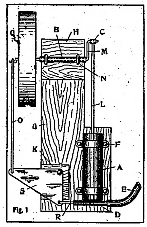
Cinnamon makes an unusual and appetizing flavor for gelatin desserts, one which has the additional virtue of economy. Serve with sweet cream, plain or whipped.

Facts & Fancies for Lads & Lassies
R. K. BROWN.

A TOY STEAM ENGINE.

A toy engine can be easily made from old implements which can be found in nearly every house.

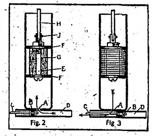
The cylinder, A, Fig 1, is an old bicycle pump, cut in half. The steam chest, D, is part of the piston tube of the same pump, the other parts being used for the bearing, B, and the crank bearing, C. The flywheel, Q, can be any small sized iron wheel; either an old sewing-machine wheel, pulley wheel, or anything available. We used a wheel from an old high chair for our engine, explains the correspondent of Popular Mechanics. If the bore in the wheel is too large for the shaft it may be bushed with a piece of hard wood. The shaft is made of heavy steel wire, the size of the hole in the bearing, B.



VALVE MOTION AND CONSTRUCTION OF PISTON.

The base is made of wood, and has two wood blocks, H. and K, ⅜ inch thick, to support bearing B, and valve crank, S, which is made of tin. The hose, E, connects to the boiler, which will be described later. The clips, F F, are soldered to the cylinder, and nailed to the base, and the bearing, B, is fastened by staples.

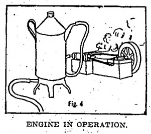
The valve motion is shown in Figs. 2 and 3. In Fig. 2 the steam is entering the cylinder, and in Fig. 3 the valve, B, has closed the steam inlet, and opened the exhaust, thus allowing the steam in the cylinder to escape.



THE VALVE MOTION.

The piston is made of a stove bolt, E, Fig. 2, with two washers, F F, and a cylindrical piece of hard wood, G. This is wound with soft string, as shown in Fig. 3, and saturated with thick oil. A slot is cut in the rod, H. The valve, B, is made of an old bicycle spoke, C, with the nut cut in half and filed down as shown, the space between the two halves being filled with string, and oiled.

The valve crank, S, Fig. 1, is cut out of tin, or galvanized iron, and is moved by a small crank on the shaft. This crank should be at right angles to the main crank.



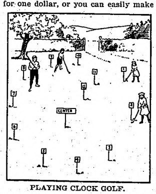
ENGINE IN OPERATION.

The boiler, Fig. 4, can be an old oil can, powder can, or a syrup can with a tube soldered to it; and is connected to the engine by a piece of rubber tubing. The heat from a small gas stove will furnish steam fast enough to run the engine very fast.

THE GAME OF CLOCK GOLF.

No doubt some of our boys and girls are expert golfers, but most of them have no opportunity to play the game because one must have regular links, and they are few and far between, owing to the great stretches of ground they must cover. However, you can all play clock golf, and get nearly as much fun out of it as others do from the more pretentious game.

Your own lawn, or a neighbor's, will afford ample room. You need but one stick, a "putter," which you can buy for one dollar, or you can easily make one just as you make a "shinny" stick in the winter, or, better still, your old hockey club will be found just the thing.



PLAYING CLOCK GOLF.

Get 12 pieces of cardboard about four inches square and number them from one to 12. Then get some heavy wires or slender sticks, sharpened on one end, and glue one of the cardboards to each. Get a larger cardboard, mark it center, fasten it to another stick and place it in the center of the plot of ground you are going to use. By this center post dig a hole deep and wide enough to contain a tin can without a top. Sink the can in the hole so that its rim is just level with the ground. Stick the other numbered cardboards in an uneven circle about the center and, making your circle as large as your ground will permit, build a little "tee" or pile of earth by each number, and try to drive it into the hole in the center with one stroke. It is not at all likely that you will, but it will probably take you four or five. Then mark on a card the number of strokes you had to use, and go to the second tee, and so on until you have gone "all around the clock.

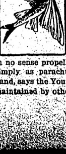
Place the ball on the tee by No. 1, and try to drive it into the hole in the center with one stroke. It is not at all likely that you will, but it will probably take you four or five. Then mark on a card the number of strokes you had to use, and go to the second tee, and so on until you have gone "all around the clock."

Place the ball on the tee by No. 1, and you are ready to play. Your ball should be the regulation golf ball.

After a little practice, says Good Literature, you will be making almost every hole in two strokes, but it will be a long time before you can do it in "bogie," or the least number of strokes possible to the ordinary player. Some very fine players beat "bogie," which is usually placed at one stroke for every other hole, and two strokes for the remainder, or "around the clock" in eighteen strokes. You will improve your game almost every time you play, and you will find "clock golf" the best sort of practice for real golf. Clock golf is not to be despised by any means for lots of golf professionals play it a great deal, as it is the finest kind of training in putting.

FLYING-FISH.

Flying-fish must have been watched ever since the first mariners ventured upon the sea, and yet the question of the manner in which they perform their flights is apparently unsettled. Dr. Abel, of the Austrian geological survey, in a recent memoir on these fishes, maintains that the initial impetus by means of which they launch themselves is due to screw-like movements of the tail fin, and that the wings are in no sense propelling organs, but act simply as parachutes. On the other hand, says the Youth's Companion, it is maintained by other observers that the flight of flying-fishes is due to incessant and extremely rapid movements of their wing-like fins. It has been suggested that there may be differences in the manner of flight of different species of fish, and that consequently there may be truth in both views.



Walter's Adjectives.

It was little four-year-old Walter's first sight of a baby colt. In his delight and surprise he cried:

"Oh, papa, what an enormous small horse!"—Chicago Daily News.

AS TO A CANINE KING.

If dogs should form an empire great,
 As men do who are wiser,
I wonder would their chief of state
 Be called the grand kai-yi-ser.
—John Kendrick Bangs, in St. Nicholas.

UTTERLY WORN OUT.

Vitality Sapped by Years of Suffering with Kidney Trouble.

Capt. J. W. Hogun, former postmaster of Indianola, now living at Austin, Texas, writes: "I was afflicted for years with pains across the loins and in the hips and shoulders. I had headache also and neuralgia. My right eye, from pain, was of little use to me for years. The constant flow or urine kept my system depleted, causing nervous chills and night sweats. After trying seven different climates and using all kinds of medicines, I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy has cured me. I am as well today as I was twenty years ago, and my eyesight is perfect."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

REFLECTIONS.

Poets are born, not paid.

It isn't fair to even beat a carpet when it is down.

Necessity is the mother of invention, but her children don't always amount to much.

"Speak gently," runs the old adage. But that was before the days of the megaphone.

The only reason some men get married is to put their property in their wife's name.

The ice supply will be short this summer, but most people are fresh enough, anyhow.

Nell—"Few men can govern themselves." Belle—"I suppose that's why so many get married."

Wigg—"Many a man's hopes of the future life will miss fire." Wagg—"Well, it seems to me if he misses fire he's all right."

It is a terrible thing when a singer realizes he is losing his voice, but it would be much more terrible if he didn't realize it.

"Does the buzz saw ever drink?" asked the monkey wrench. "Well, occasionally I've seen him take a few fingers," replied the work bench.

New Fruit of Value.

A new fruit that seems likely to prove of considerable value has been developed by the cultivation of the very familiar "maypop," a plant which is very familiar in the southern states, quite ornamental, easily grown from seeds and affords a handsome cover for arbors and verandas. It is known to botanists as passiflora incarnata. The fruit in its improved form is somewhat bigger than a hen's egg and decidedly palatable. It looks like a May apple.

"Married life is a constant struggle," says the Manayunk Philosopher. "The wife struggles to keep up appearances and the husband struggles to keep down expenses."

FITS, St. Vitus Dance and all Nervous Diseases permanently cured by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for Free $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ld., 931 and 933 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A woman suspects that the butcher is trying to cheat her if his account exactly balances with the one she has kept.

He never says anything who never has anything to unsay.

What is a Backache?

IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO WOMEN

Diseases of Woman's Organism Cured and Consequent Pain Stopped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It seems as though my back would break." Women utter these words over and over again, but continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, "bearing-down" pains, nervousness and no ambition for any task.

Miss Maude Morris

They do not realize that the back is the mainspring of woman's organism, and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the female organs or kidneys, and that the aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been for many years the one and only effective remedy in such cases. It speedily cures female and kidney disorders and restores the female organs to a healthy condition.

"I have suffered with female troubles for over two years, suffering intense pain each month, my back ached until it seemed as though it would break, and I felt so weak all over that I did not find strength to attend to my work but had to stay in bed a large part of the first two or three days every month. I would have sleepless nights, bad dreams and severe headaches. All this undermined my health.

"We consulted an old family physician, who advised that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it regularly and soon found that I could sleep and eat better than I had done for months. Within two months I became regular and I no longer suffer from backache or pain."—Miss Maude Morris, Sec. Ladies' Aid and Mission Society, 5 E. Hunter St., Atlanta, Ga.

BAD COMPLEXIONS

Depraved Blood Causes Pimples and Boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood and Cure Follows.

"I abused my stomach, my blood got out of order and then my face broke out with pimples and boils," says T. E. Robertson, of 197 Addison street, Washington, Pa. "This was over two years ago. My stomach was in bad shape. After eating I would have to rest awhile or I would suffer the most severe pains in my stomach. On arising I would often be so dizzy that I could hardly stand up. The slightest exertion would start my back aching so that I often had to sit down and rest awhile. At times I experienced a pain around the heart which alarmed me but which I suppose came from my stomach trouble.

"I began to break out on the face with pimples and later with boils which confined me to the house a week or more at a time. One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People advertised in a pamphlet which was left at the door and I thought I would give them a trial. I took several boxes of the pills before all the pimples and boils left me, but I am now glad to say that my blood is good. I do not have any eruptions and I no longer have the head and stomach troubles I have described. I am very grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and I have recommended them and always will advise those who are suffering from bad blood or stomach trouble to try them."

If you want good health you must have good blood. Bad blood is the root of most common diseases like anæmia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, indigestion, debility, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

The thing that makes a pretty hat is the face under it.

People may love their children for their faults, but mighty few others.

Singing in a choir is the very best way not to make friends of the rest of it.

Hardly anybody would like to get the cussing a millionaire has without his money.

There is hardly anything that makes a woman madder than to have her photograph look like her.

The meanest man is the one who won't kiss a doll for a child when she thinks it has been hurt.

When you see a man looking pretty cheerful in town it's a sign his family is away for the summer.

A very useful thing about an amateur garden is it's such a nice place for the dog to bury his bones.

Girls don't get much fun out of going in swimming unless there is some man around to show them how.

Even if a baby understands the language the women talk to it he'd be ashamed to admit it by answering.

A man can make a good deal of money in stocks by being careful not to have anything to do with them.

When a man lets a collar buttton fall and brags that it didn't roll under the bureau it's a sign he is a perjurer.

One of the meanest things a man can do when his wife has a point in an argument that can't be beaten is to agree with her.—N. Y. Press.

BADGER PHILOSOPHY.

A man can't be unusually polite without being looked upon with suspicion.

When the real nature of a man's business is in doubt it is often hinted that he is a gambler.

A woman is never satisfied with herself until she has outdone her neighbor in some respect.

It's hard to understand why actors with such fabulous salaries always stop at such modest hotels.

Lots of people think they have been cheated unless they get more than their money's worth.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

OUTDOOR LIFE

Will Not Offset the Ill Effects of Coffee When One Cannot Digest It.

A farmer says:

"It was not from liquor or tobacco that for ten years or more I suffered from dyspepsia and stomach trouble, they were caused by the use of coffee until I got so bad I had to give up coffee entirely and almost give up eating. There were times when I could eat only boiled milk and bread and when I went to the field to work I had to take some bread and butter along to give me strength.

"I doctored with doctors and took almost everything I could get for my stomach in the way of medicine, but if I got any better it only lasted a little while until I was almost a walking skeleton.

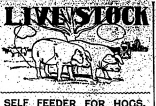
"One day I read an ad for Postum and told my wife I would try it, and as to the following facts I will make affidavit before any judge:

"I quit coffee entirely and used Postum in its place. I have regained my health entirely and can eat anything that is cooked to eat. I have increased in weight until now I weigh more than I ever did; I have not taken any medicine for my stomach since I began using Postum. Why, I believe Postum will almost digest an iron wedge.

"My family would stick to coffee at first, but they saw the effects it had on me, and when they were feeling bad they began to use Postum, one at a time, until now we all use Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee proves the truth, an easy and pleasant way. "There's a reason."

Look in pkgs. for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."



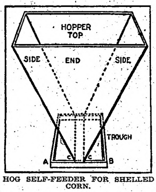
LIVE STOCK

SELF FEEDER FOR HOGS.

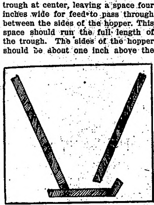
Directions for the Building of Two Convenient Devices for the Pen.

This self-feeder should be placed on floored space and can be made any length desired. A general plan is shown in our first illustration, says Prairie Farmer.

In building it, nail 2x4's to the floor with edges up to make the trough. Set the end pieces of the hopper inside of the ends of the trough at center, leaving a space four inches wide for feed to pass through between the sides of the hopper. This space should run the full length of the trough. The sides of the hopper should be about one inch above the bottom, so that feed can pass beneath. The feed can be shut off at any time by nailing a strip over this opening.



HOG SELF-FEEDER FOR SHELLED CORN.



ANOTHER STYLE OF SELF-FEEDER.

This feeder keeps the grain clean and a supply before the hogs at all times. The grain cannot be wasted when the hopper is properly regulated. This self-feeder can be built out of doors without any trouble, providing a roof is placed over it.

The second plan is shown in our second illustration. There is no particular scale. It is only necessary to slant the sides of the feeder and trough so that a hog can get his head in and not his feet.

GRUB IN HEAD OF SHEEP.

The Treatment for This Trouble Should Begin by Using the "Ounce of Prevention."

Treatment for grub in the head is practically valueless, declares Orange Judd Farmer. Not so, however, with reference to prevention. Grub in the head is caused by a fly which in hot, late summer weather lays eggs in the nostrils of the sheep. These hatch in a few days and crawl up into the region adjacent to the brain. There they live and their presence leads frequently to inflammation, which often results in death. If sheep are furnished with a cool and darkened shed where they can lie during hot summer days, they are not likely to be injured by the fly.

THE LIVE STOCK.

No blemished horse should be used as a breeder.

Good horses cannot be produced from inferior parents.

Hogs grown under cleanly conditions make clean, wholesome pork.

Horse breeding should receive more attention by the general farmer.

Pig pork is juicer, tenderer, healthier, costs less and sells better than hog pork.

Cleanliness is as necessary for the health and well being of hogs as for other animals.

Oats fed to hogs will produce bone and muscle and will prevent sows from getting too fat.

In the purchase of any kind of animal, quality is generally worth more than is paid for it.

The growing pig should be raised upon something else beside corn till ready to begin to fatten.

Gradually increase the rations of the pigs a few days before weaning if they are to be kept growing.

If the sow is kept in good condition on the right kind of food her pigs will be strong and vigorous.

Oats form bone and muscle rather than fat, hence their value for the breeding sows and embryo pigs.

A sow will rear a litter of pigs on half the rations if given a good pasture than she will if enclosed.

Hogs are profitable because they will ripen two crops a year, but this requires good hogs and good attention.

Large and fine muttons bring good prices, sufficiently good to pay well for the grain to make them fat, large and as fine as possible.

STOMACH WORMS IN SHEEP

Ailment Which Is Best Treated by a Change of Pasturage—Other Remedies.

The bane of the sheep grower in the humid sections is what is called the twisted stomach worm, the Strongulus Contortus, a small, fine thread-like worm found twisted together in the stomach of the sheep red when filled with blood, white when dead and empty. So far as we know it is to be found in all flocks in the humid and perhaps in the semi-arid sections of the United States.

It seldom does any appreciable injury to the older sheep, nor to vigorous early lambs. It is frequently fatal to lambs out of condition, and especially to lambs that come as late as the first of June. It is taken into the system from pasture infected from the droppings of older sheep or lambs that are infested.

Hence the one important thing in fighting this disease is change of pasture. If sheep are kept for a number of years on a blue grass pasture, and especially if they are watered from sloughs in the pasture, they are almost certain to have a severe attack of stomach worms. There are just two preventives. One is not to allow sheep on the same pasture more than two years in succession. The other is to have your lambs come as early as they can be cared for, and then feed them some grain and keep them growing vigorously from start to finish. If they can be sold fat in June at the prices usually current, sell them. Five dollars is just as good pay for a lamb in June as it is for a lamb in December and January which has eaten a great deal more feed and incurred greater risk. If weaned they should be put on a fresh pasture. Old pastures sooner or later become sheep sick.

As to remedies, Prof. R. A. Craig, veterinarian of Purdue experiment station, upon the authority of Dr. Law, recommends the following:

"Arsenious acid, one dram; sulphate of iron, five drams; powdered nux vomica, two drams; powdered areca, two ounces; common salt, four ounces. This mixture is sufficient for 30 sheep and can be fed with ground feed once or twice a week. In case the symptoms are already manifested, it should be fed once a day for two or three weeks. In giving this remedy in this feed the necessary precautions should be taken or each animal may not get the proper dose."

To which he also adds:

"Turpentine is largely used in the treatment of stomach worms. It is administered as an emulsion with milk (one part turpentine to 16 parts of milk). The emulsion should be well shaken before drenching the animal. The dose is two ounces for a lamb and four ounces for an adult, and to be effective should be repeated daily for two or three days."

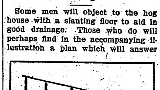
We used this turpentine treatment some years ago in our own flock; and while it will kill the worms, we have always thought that it left the sheep in an enfeebled condition; whether due to the treatment or the result of the disease we were not able to determine.

In handling sheep an ounce of prevention is worth a good many pounds of cure, and the one maxim "change of pasture is good for sheep" is worth about all the medicines that were ever poured down the sheep's throat, says Wallace's Farmer. We remember once looking through an old copy of one of the earliest of the agricultural papers. It went into the subject of diseases of sheep very thoroughly, dealing with almost every disease we ever heard of and some we never heard of. The remedies described were purely vegetable, decoctions from various herbs such as were used by our wise grandmothers in treating the ailments of their children and grandchildren; but we noticed that at the end of each prescription there was this sage advice: Change the pasture.

DROP FLOOR HOG HOUSE.

Arrangement Which Does Away Largely with the Objectionable Slanting Floor.

Some men will object to the hog house with a slanting floor to aid in good drainage. Those who do will perhaps find in the accompanying illustration a plan which will answer their purpose more satisfactorily, says Prairie Farmer. The figure represents a double hog house with a double roof. P is the passage down the center, while g g are the gutters on either side. FL is a feeding platform a little lower than B, which is the bed and yet higher than the passage. The feeding trough is placed in FL, next to the passage partition. By this plan, all liquid manure or the water which may be used from time to time in washing down the cement floors runs to the front, where it strikes the gutter and thus finds an outlet to the outside of the hog house.



SECTIONAL VIEW OF THE HOG-HOUSE.

There is no stock so easily and cheaply kept as sheep and they are of value instead of a detriment to the farm and pasture. They eat plants, weeds, etc., in the pastures which other stock refuse, thus acting as gleaners.

ERA OF BIG THINGS.

Skill and Talent Command Greater Rewards Than Ever in World's History.

In these days the surgeon who is master of his science receives fees which would have startled the surgeons and the public 50 years ago. A fee of $10,000 is not uncommon for an operation which can be performed in comparatively little time. Of course, $10,000 is not the maximum fee There are cases, it is stated, in which as much as $25,000 has been paid. When life is hanging by a thread the question of fees is immaterial. The average man will give all that he has, if required, to get a new lease of life through the surgeon's skill. A famous throat specialist was once summoned from London to treat the father of the present kaiser. He remained only a few days after making a diagnosis. He rendered no bill, but it is said the German government gave him a fee which represents half a year's earnings of the specialist, who had a very large income from his profession. Even the literary man receives large fees for his work. Mr. John Morley, it has been stated, was paid $50,000 to write the "Life of Gladstone." Certainly, great skill and talent never commanded greater rewards than they do now. It is an era of big things.

In Washington to Study Fish.

Dr. Th. Mortensen, of the Zoological museum of Copenhagen, is in Washington to study the fish in the National museum.

Even an electric button won't accomplish much unless it is pushed.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

The love that lifts lightens its own load.

It takes more than a vindication to restore virtue.

The highest service is that which raises others.

A little help is worth a lot of talk about happiness.

New paths are the best penance for old wanderings.

In many a burden is hidden the blessing of strength.

Poverty cannot be cured by making charity a pastime.

Meekness is the secret of the maintenance of mastery.

No man ever succeeded in preaching truth by acting a lie.

You do not have to empty your head to fill your heart.

The only way to keep kindness is to keep it in circulation.

People who are self-satisfied are not always of a contented mind.

You cannot reach the Divine by climbing up on your dignity.

Some men seem to think that repenting of borrowing pays the debt.

They who do their own work well do not need to speak ill of another's.

The power of the preacher is in inverse ratio to his professionalism.

If you are picking all your pleasures they only may make heaven seem sour.

Many a man thinks that he is righting his wrongs when he only is revenging them.

Men who are too tired to think are always ready to believe that intelligence is a sin.—Chicago Tribune.

Sunday School Teacher—What became of the swine that had evil spirits cast into them? Small Johnny—They were made into deviled ham.

$20

AND LESS

From St. Louis and Kansas City to all points Southwest via M. K. & T. R'y. August 7th, 21st. Tickets good 30 days returning with stopovers in both directions.
To Dallas, Ft. Worth, Waco, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Laredo, and intermediate points $20
To El Paso and intermediate points $26.50
To Kansas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma, and Northern Texas points, one fare plus $2.00, but no rate higher than . $20
Correspondingly low rates from all points: From Chicago, $25.00; St. Paul, $27.50; Omaha and Council Bluffs, $22.50.

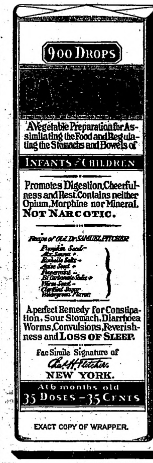
Write for full particulars

W. S. ST. GEORGE
General Passenger Agent, M. K. & T. R'y
Wainwright Building St. Louis, Mo.
W. P. LINDSAY, 376 Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

THE MKT

"SOUTHWEST"

A. N. K.—G (1906—29) 2135.



900 DROPS

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS & CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WHY OHIO IS PROUD.

Not much is heard of Ohio as a corn state, but only seven out of the other 44 beat it in the size of the crop.

The average population of the counties of Ohio is about 50,000, but of the 88 only 20 or 21 exceed that limit.

There are more men fit for military duty in Ohio than fought at Mukden, in the Japanese and Russian armies combined.

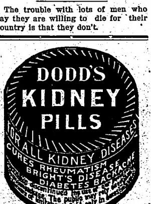
If the people of Ohio stood side by side, with outstretched arms, touching finger tips, the line would reach from Boston to San Francisco, with a large margin left.

The first settlements in Ohio were made in the southeastern part of the state, but now that section is less populous than almost any other. It contains no great city.

No precious metals have ever been mined in Ohio, but the value of the coal and iron dug out of the Ohio hills every year exceeds that of the gold of Colorado or California.

Only one state—Illinois—which is younger than Ohio is more populous. Illinois is much larger in area. No state later in date of settlement has more inhabitants in proportion to its size.

The trouble with lots of men who say they are willing to die for their country is that they don't.



The parson was talking to little Elmer about his habits, and asked him what time he was usually called for breakfast. "They don't have to call me," answered Elmer. "I'm always Johnny-on-the-spot."

The up-to-date girl does all her blushing for the mistakes of her friends.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 DeKalb Av., Brooklyn, N.Y.

PLUMBING SCHOOL

WE TEACH YOU THE PLUMBING TRADE. Pays best wages, insures steady work, makes you independent. Write today. PLUMBING SCHOOL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Greatest Boarding College in the World

University of Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

We guarantee two points: Our students study and our students behave themselves

18 Buildings 75 Professors 800 Students

Courses in Ancient and Modern Languages, English, History and Economics, Chemistry, Biology, Pharmacy, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, Architecture, Law, Shorthand, Book-keeping, Type-writing.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BOYS UNDER THIRTEEN

TERMS: Board, Tuition, and Laundry, $400.
Send ten cents to the Secretary for Catalogue

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions" Established 1864. MILO B. STEVENS & CO. 820 14th St., Washington, D.C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit. PENSIONS

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W. K. La Crosse, Wis.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet. DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

MILLIONAIRES GO PACE THAT KILLS

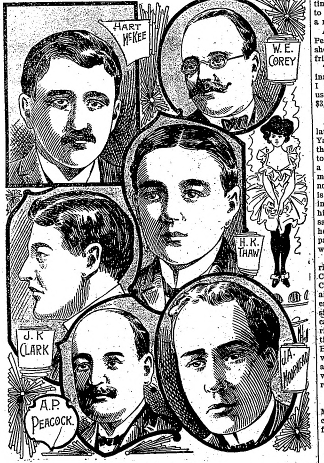
Pittsburg Men of Wealth Unequaled in Furnishing Sensations for the Lovers of Scandal—Allurements of Painted Stage Beauties Fatal to Domestic Peace and Harmony.

Harry K. Thaw the Only One of Gay Crowd That Has Essayed the Novel Sensation of Murder, But All Have Sought in Startling Manner to Dissipate Their Easily Earned Millions.

New York.—Now that the crime of murder has been added to the eccentric doings of the dozen or more Pittsburg millionaires, it is probable that the limit of their capacity for sensationalism has been reached.

Remarkable divorces, remarriages, breaches of promise, alimony and chorus girls have hitherto been ordinary features of their lives. They seem to have become rich so suddenly that they have lost their heads. Never before, however, has any one of them been accused of murder.

Years before Harry Thaw ever heard of Evelyn Nesbit or Stanford White he was eccentric to the verge of craziness. He was known as a cigarette fiend, a heavy absinthe drinker, an admirer of chorus girls and a reckless spendthrift. He gave dinners costing tens of thousands of dollars, and like the general run of Pittsburg millionaires he always had one or more "affairs" on hand with women of the footlights.



It is a strange fact that chorus girls and actresses seem to appeal to the Pittsburg millionaire past all power of resistance. Four of them who have made New York their home during the past few years, and whose wealth amounts to $50,000,000 in the aggregate, have become infatuated with stage beauties more or less widely known throughout the country, according to the World of that city.

Three of them have married actresses, and the infatuation of the fourth for a beauty of the footlight is being used against him in divorce proceedings. Although Harry Thaw was probably the wildest among the Pittsburg high rollers who have sowed in the wild winds of the Tenderloin, young Hart McKee was almost as well known, but in a different way.

Forgot Marital Obligations.

His father, E. Sellers McKee, a multi-millionaire glass manufacturer of Pittsburg, supplied him with practically limitless funds, with which the young man proceded to cut a wide swath. He was handsome, dapper and fastidious, with the red and white complexion of a healthy girl. Soon after leaving college he married a Miss Sutton, from whom he separated a year or two afterward, giving her $300,000 outright in lieu of alimony.

In Mrs. McKee's allegations against her husband she testified that he was not with her much during the two years of their married life, and that he became more neglectful as time proceeded. Finally Mrs. McKee left him, "owing to his entire neglect." She made affidavit that he cut off her personal allowance and household allowance and put at the head of the household a butler, who was objectionable and very insolent, and over whom she had no control. He was given the money to pay the servants, and was empowered to hire and discharge them. Mrs. McKee protested, but was told that she had no power to discharge him.

McKee became acquainted with Mrs. Genevieve Phipps, the wife of Lawrence Phipps, another Pittsburg millionaire, then living in Denver. McKee and Mrs. Phipps were frequently seen together, and an estrangement sprang up between Mr. Phipps and his wife. The breach gradually widened, and Mr. Phipps brought suit for divorce, naming Hart McKee as co-respondent. Pittsburg society was disrupted by the news, and the McKee and Phipps factions waxed bitter in their denunciations.

Kidnaped His Children.

Following the return of Mrs. Phipps to this country, her two little children were forcibly taken from the Waldorf-Astoria by Mr. Phipps and hurried away to Denver, where he had resided for some time. It was openly stated that when the divorce proceedings were over Mrs. Phipps would marry Hart McKee, but in the meantime that eccentric young man had become enthralled with Mrs. Hugh Tevis, who a few years previous had been wed and widowed within six weeks.

Mrs. Tevis and Mr. McKee sailed away to Europe on the same steamer, and shortly afterward were married. Things were rather dull in the Pittsburg colony for awhile until Mrs. Phipps went out to Denver, where the divorce case was brewing.

Mrs. Phipps began a contest for the possession of the children, but eventually terms were reached under which a divorce was granted on the ground of desertion. Then almost before their friends had ceased talking about their case Mr. and Mrs. Phipps made up, and it is said that they will be remarried. This seems to have finished the calendar of sensations as far as the Phipps and McKee millionaires are concerned.

Another Pittsburg millionaire who had a varied and noteworthy career was James King Clarke, known to his friends as "Jamie."

Young Clarke inherited a part of the millions of his father, Charles J. Clarke, of Pittsburg. He was in the habit of spending a part of his time in Washington, and it was there that he met Miss Esther Bartlett. They were married on April 26, 1899, in Washington, and with the best man, Mackintosh Kellogg, journeyed to New York, where they took rooms at one of the big hotels.

As related by Clarke in the suit for divorce, which began a month later, upon their arrival in this city he left his bride in his room with Mr. Kellogg while he went downstairs to look after some baggage. He was detained for some time. On his return he found the door locked, and when it was finally opened Mr. Kellogg's shirt front was stained with the violets which Mrs. Clarke wore as a corsage bouquet. That settled it. Mr. Clarke waxed wroth and left his bride.

Mrs. Clarke afterward sued for and obtained a divorce, after which she became the wife of L. T. Whitehead, of Erie, Pa. Mr. Clark then married a Miss Katherine Willoughby, of St. Augustine, Fla., thus closing another chapter of Pittsburg millionaire sensationalism.

Career of A. R. Peacock.

Mr. Alexander Rowland Peacock is another Smoky City candidate for fame. Mr. Peacock is worth many millions of dollars. When he came to New York he evidently made up his mind to live up to the traditions and habits of the lively Pittsburgers who had preceded him. To perpetuate his name he had a $17,000 peacock made of genuine diamonds, sapphires and emeralds and gave it to his wife. He also had a peacock put on the livery of his servants.

Once Mr. Peacock was in Los Angeles. There were only upper berths left in the train to Chicago. "Give me a special train, then," he ordered.

"It'll cost $4,000," said the passenger agent.

"I'll take it," replied Peacock, unfolding a roll of bills as large as an elephant's trunk. The run broke all records. Fifteen engines were used. There were eight passengers, and to transport them in lower berths instead of upper cost $1.13 a minute for 59 hours, or nearly two dollars a mile. But Mr. Peacock was from Pittsburg and did not care.

When some Englishmen sent over $150,000 to back Shamrock II. Mr. Peacock headed a syndicate who covered it with $250,000. He played in a poker game on the steamship Deutschland in which $500,000 changed hands. Peacock won, although there were nine other Pittsburg millionaires at times in the game. There was a $90,000 jackpot.

They tell how when Mrs. Carnegie was buying her wedding trousseau in this city years ago she was waited upon by a handsome young saleswoman to whom she told her secret.

"I'm to be married, too," confessed the young woman. "That is my intended over there—Mr. Peacock."

"That's a Scotch name," said the future Mrs. Carnegie. "Where does he come from?"

"From Dunfermline, ma'am," replied the salesgirl. Andrew Carnegie learned about the incident, and in due time the ironmaster brought Peacock to Pittsburg and made the floorwalker a millionaire.

At the Waldorf one morning Mr. Peacock was discovered scribbling on a sheet of paper in the writing-room. A friend asked him what he was doing.

"Oh, my wife at breakfast ust now insisted that I was worth $10,000,000. I think it is only $7,000,000. She is usually right, but I can't find the other $3,000,000 this morning."

Married Mother's Maid.

John Alston Moorhead is one of the latest. He was a heavy man on the Yale football team and also pulled in the crew. He never did anything else to deserve particular distinction. Only a few weeks ago he eloped with his mother's French maid. They have not been entirely forgiven yet, but it is understood that John Alston is being treated in a New York sanitarium, his father paying the bills, and it is said the little French maid is crying her way back to sunny France, well paid, if cash can make it good, but with her foolish little heart broken.

More recently the limelight of notoriety has been turned upon W. E. Corey, one of the best known of the Carnegie group of Pittsburg millionaires. He dawned upon New York several years ago on a special train consisting of one dining car, four sleeping cars and two baggage cars, which carried the entire office forces of the National Steel company and the National Hoop company. In the baggage cars were 50 trunks filled with ledgers and account books and 12 typewriter girls who took down dictation as the train rolled along.

Corey's Lurid Exploits.

Some time afterward Mr. Corey gave Mr. Schwab a Lucullian feast. The costliest wines, the daintiest hot-house fruits and the rarest flowers were liberally provided. The waiters wore colonial costumes with powdered wigs, and the souvenirs were silver cardcases. Previous to this, however, Mr. Corey had emulated other Pittsburg rich men by figuring in a swimming party of which Miss Maybelle Gilman, an actress, was a member. The party took place at the Pittsburg natatorium. There were hot birds and cold bottles and some very pretty exhibitions of plain and fancy swimming.

At this party an infatuation for Miss Gilman is said to have sprung up on the part of the millionaire. An estrangement took place between Mr. and Mrs. Corey supposedly on account of Miss Gilman, and at present Mrs. Corey is in the west, where she is residing with a view to securing a divorce.

During the course of business in Pittsburg Andrew Carnegie transformed Gibson D. Packer from a poor man into a millionaire. Mr. Packer did not miss his chance to get before the public. Mrs. Mary I. Vetter, armed, it is said, with 140 love letters, prepared to sue Mr. Packer for $100,000 for breach of promise. There were many pledges of affection in the shape of jewelry.

Contemporaneously with the Thaw murder Mrs. Scott Hartje, the wife of Augustus Hartje, Pittsburg millionaire paper manufacturer, has begun suit against her husband for divorce. Mrs. Hartje says that her husband wore paper collars for years; that he would buy a $1,500 horse over the telephone and the next minute refuse Mrs. Hartje's request for three dollars for a pair of shoes. Some of the charges of both Mr. and Mrs. Hartje cannot be printed here.

Cooked His Own Meals.

Charles Clarke, son of Mrs. Eliza Clarke, cousin of James King Clarke, married Miss Elizabeth Stocking, of Atlanta, Ga. "Chic," as he was known, was a jolly good fellow. Before his marriage he tried newspaper work in Pittsburg. He essayed a publication similar to Town Topics, but the United States could only stand one such at a time, and the Pittsburg production died and the owner was in debt. Times went hard with him about the time he married, and he apparently lost all his money, it being tied up in legal broils. Either he tired of his wife or she tired of him.

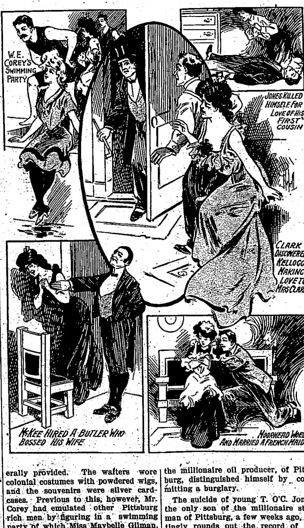
At any rate, he sued for divorce and told that he had endeavored to maintain the two by doing the family cooking in a chafing-dish in their little room over in Allegheny. He got his divorce, and the next day the wife became the wife of "Sport" Donnelly, son of a Pittsburg millionaire.

While George Lauder Carnegie has figured somewhat among the Pittsburg prodigals, his brother Coleman, or "Coley," also a high-roller, has decided to "straighten up." Hitherto he has been piking along on $125,000 a year without saving much of it. It is said that if Coleman will continue to straighten up his uncle Andrew will take him to Scotland and make a real laird of him.

Frank Galey, nephew of John H. Galey, partner of Col. James McGuffey, the millionaire oil producer, of Pittsburg, distinguished himself by committing a burglary.

The suicide of young T. O'C. Jones, the only son of the millionaire steel man of Pittsburg, a few weeks ago, fittingly rounds out the record of the young Smoky City high rollers. He had lost his mind because of his love for his first cousin, a charming Pittsburg girl. He killed himself when she married another.

This almost exhausts the crop of Pittsburg's gilded youths, but there is a new crowd growing up. They are as yet in knickerbockers.



W.E. COREY'S SWIMMING PARTY
JONES KILLED HIMSELF FOR LOVE OF HIS FIRST COUSIN
CLARK DISCOVERED KELLOGG MAKING LOVE TO MRS CLARK
McKEE HIRED A BUTLER WHO BOSSED HIS WIFE
MOORHEAD WOED AND MARRIED A FRENCH MAID

WHY HIS HAIR WAS LIKE THE SETTING SUN.

"Do you know, sir," chuckled the buffoon barber, as he reached for the tonic bottle, "that your hair reminds me of the setting sun?"

"Quit you nonsense," snapped the busy man. "How could my hair remind you of the setting sun? It is not golden is it?"

"No, sir."

"Nor variegated in color?"

"No."

"Then why do you say it reminds you of the setting sun?"

"Because it is so rapidly disappearing, sir."

And the buffoon barber started to use the tonic bottle as if it were a fire extinguisher. — Chicago Daily News.

Up to Her.

"Yes," said the stern woman; "I am masculine in my dress and I am proud of it! You notice I wear a man's straw hat?"

"I see you do," yawned the meek husband.

"And a mannish stock and shirt waist?"

"Yes."

"Also a mannish shoe?"

"H'm."

"And I can whistle as good as any man?"

The meek man yawned again.

"Well, Maria," he said, slowly, "if you are all that mannish, I guess you are the man of the house. So you can just pay the bills."—Chicago Daily News.

His Mistake.

Bilkins—So you didn't go to the fancy dress ball?

Wilkins—No; I made a fool of myself there last season, and I didn't care to risk it again.

Bilkins—Eh? Didn't drink too much, did you?"

Wilkins—No. But when the masks were removed I discovered that I'd wasted a whole evening spooning with my wife.—Tit-Bits.

RELIEVED.

Wifey—My dear, didn't I hear you tell Jenkins that you were going to plunge again?

Hubby—Yes.

Wifey—Well, I'm glad to hear it. I'd so much rather you'd go swimming than go to the races.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Staying Guests.

Mrs. De Brass—Do you have much trouble with your servants?

Mrs. De Mure—Oh, I'm always discharging them, really.

Mrs. De Brass—Yes, and it's such a bother, getting new ones in, isn't it?

Mrs. De Mure—Well, we find the difficulty in getting the old ones out.

Married Rich.

Gus—I hear George has married an heiress. He's in clover now, I suppose?

Dick—No, he's working like a horse, trying to pay his board at a $40-a-week hotel. Her father pays her, and she won't live anywhere else.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Rushing Business.

First Rich Man—Are you having any trouble getting your daughters married off?

Second Rich Man—I should say not! Each of them has been married twice already.—Detroit Free Press.

Their Ultimate End.

Husband—What has become of those indestructible toys you got last week?

Wife—They are out on the scrap heap along with the indestructible kitchen utensils.—Life.

Not Quite Clear.

She—While in the country last summer I learned to milk a cow, just for amusement, you know.

He—For the cow's amusement or for your own?—Chicago Daily News.

At the Beach.

The ball dress has the golden train
And each frock has a claim:
The bathing suit has no size at all,
But it gets there just the same.
—N. Y. Sun.

No Browning.

Stella—They are always trying to invent a bottle that cannot be refilled.

Bella—They ought to invent a ring that cannot be regiven.—N. Y. Sun.

Stumbling Into Greatness.

Stella—What an original waist Mabel wears.

Bella—Yes, she accidentally cut it out by a baseball diagarm instead of a pattern.—N. Y. Sun.'

Parting Is Such Sweet Sorrow.

Knicker—Does your wife pick an expensive mountain resort hotel?

Bocker—Yes; it is the alimony for a summer separation.—N. Y. Sun.

Unfortunate Question.

Landlady—Dark meat or white?

Boarder — Er—the natural color, please.—N. Y. Sun.

HE PROBABLY DESERVED IT.

Bill—I knew a girl in the country who wrote on an egg, which was going with others to the city, her name and address, and just over them: "Will the man who gets this please write to me?"

Jill—Well, did she hear from it?

"I think not. The inference is that the man who got it was an actor, and that the inscription became destroyed the evening it was handed to him over the footlights." — Yonkers Statesman.

Building for the Future.

The pastor was looking at the plans for the new church.

"It seems to me," he said, "the downward slope of the floor from the entrance doors to the chancel is altogether too pronounced. Viewed from the pulpit, the congregation will seem to be sitting in tiers."

"That's my wife's idea," explained the architect. "She says it will obviate the necessity of requesting the women to take off their hats, and more of them will come to church."—Chicago Tribune.

A Modest Order.

The Idle Rich One—Ya-as, I've decided to go in for ballooning a bit, so you may take my order.

Agent—What sort of balloon do you wish?

The Idle Rich One—Why, to begin with, you might furnish me with a high-altitude balloon, a low-altitude one, a touring affair, and, say, a runabout balloonette for town use.—Puck.

Shattering Sentiment.

"Ah, the bugler!" exclaimed the beautiful girl graduate. "Doesn't it always bring something to your mind to here the call of the bugle?"

"Yes," yawned the corpulent and unromantic matron, "it always reminds me that I have a pair of scissors to grind, and if I don't hurry the scissors' grinder will get out of sight."—Chicago Daily News.

Harduppe's Mistake.

Caller—I have here several bills which are long overdue.

Harduppe (desperately)—I am sorry to say that our cashier is out to-day.

Caller—Oh, well, it doesn't make much difference. I'll call and pay them at some future date. Good day, sir.—Tit-Bits.

Necessary Discontinuation.

"Frenchmen don't fight as many duels as they used to."

"No," answered the eminent Parisian. "The men of this later generation are so careless there would really be danger of their hurting one another."—Washington Star.

A Distinction.

"When a man makes a display of wealth," said the tourist who is studying American slang, "you say he is 'flush,' do you not?"

"Well, answered Broncho Bob, "sometimes he's a four-flush."—Washington Star.

Uncooked Food.

The giants of old, their relics with awe.
We latter-day pygmies may view.
The dinosaur ate his comestibles raw,
And see how the dinosaur grew!
—Judge.

His Luck.

Benevolent Lady: But, my poor man, if you have been looking for work all these years, why is it that you have never found it?

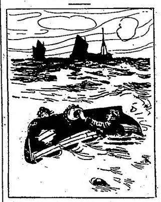
Tramp (confidentially)—It's luck, mum; just sheer good luck.—Tit-Bits.

Her Idea.

"Did you let your wife superintend the building of your new cottage?"

"I did until I found that she wasn't leaving room for anything but closets."—Cleveland leader.

PRESENCE OF MIND.



Binks—Put on your hat, Jane, or you'll catch cold.—Punch.

Forced to It.

Fist Artist—But you love art for its own sake?

Second Artist—Well, I'm coming to the conclusion that that's all there is in it.—Cassell's Journal.

Economy and Alimony.

Knicker—Do you think that two can live cheaper than one?

Bocker—Yes, but the most expensive way is when they are neither.—N. Y. Sun.

The Climber.

"With you to share my lot," he vowed,
"I'll climb to dizzy heights." Alack!
His climbing has not made her proud,
For he is but a steeplejack.
—Judge.

When She Breaks.

"Aren't the running expenses of an auto rather burdensome?"

"No; but the stopping expenses are."—Houston Post.

O, Woman, Woman!

He—When in doubt, play trumps.

She—But suppose you can's remember what they are?—N. Y. Sun.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

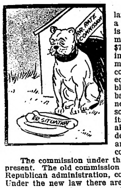
VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1906. NO. 17.

Gossip of Washington

Interstate Commerce Commission Assumes Importance of High United States Court—Members No Longer a Laughing Stock—Mr. Roosevelt Hopes Republican House Will Be Elected—Some Campaign Speakers—The Jamestown Exposition.

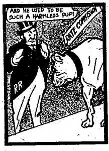


WASHINGTON.—Under the new railway rate law the interstate commerce commission becomes a far more important body than it ever was. It is increased in size from five members to seven members and the salaries have been raised from $7,500 to $10,000. The commission assumes the importance of a high United States court. Its membership is only two less than the supreme court of the United States and the salaries are equal to those drawn by the "nine gentlemen in black." The commission now has a specific law back of it giving its decisions force and it will no longer be a laughing stock as it had been for some years because it had no power to enforce its decisions regarding railway rates. That has all been cured now and when the commission designates a certain rate the latter goes into effect and must be observed unless overthrown by the courts.

The commission under the new law will have two more members than at present. The old commission consists of five which, strangely enough under a Republican administration, consists of three Democrats and two Republicans. Under the new law there are to be seven commissioners, no more than four of them to be of any one political party. The two new members will therefore be Republican in order to bring the majority of the new commission into political alignment with the administration.

The new members of the commission have been selected and are J. S. Harlan, of Chicago, a brilliant young attorney and son of the distinguished Associate Justice of the Supreme Court John M. Harlan, is one of them. E. E. Clarke, of Iowa, the head of the Railway Conductors' association, has been selected as the second new member. These two men will probably be appointed upon the law going into effect on August 28.

MEN OF HIGHEST ABILITY AND INTEGRITY.



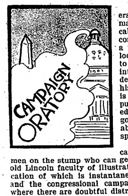
AND HE USED TO BE SUCH A HARMLESS PUP!
RATE COMMISSION
RR

There is no doubt that the new law raises the standard of the commission and in the future men selected for it will have to be of the highest ability and integrity. In the past this commission has at times been regarded as a very convenient place in which to land some "lame duck" or political "has been" who had failed of reelection to some other public office. For some years it had been considered as a convenient harbor of refuge for politicians and was regarded as the legitimate patronage of the big political leaders.

This has changed now and with the added responsibility provided for by the new law men of the highest grade will have to be selected. It is fortunate that the members of the old commission of five men are not disturbed, but will go right along serving out their terms. These five gentlemen, or at least four of them, are men of tried ability and their work during the past few months under specific authority of congress in the investigation of big railroad and coal companies demonstrates their fitness for the new duties under the new law. Messrs. Knapp, Prouty and Clements all have had long experience on the commission and Mr. Cockrell, although a member of but a little over a year's standing, has brought to the commission the painstaking habits of a generation in the senate. Mr. Lane has just been added to the original commission and has his reputation to make.

There is some talk of making young Mr. Harlan president of the commission, and it is understood that President Roosevelt favors that proposition. The election of a president lies with the commission itself, and unless Mr. Knapp, who has been president for some time, should voluntarily retire from the contest, there may be a pretty hot fight over this position. Mr. Knapp has been active and was one of the most industrious advocates of the new railway rate law and feels that he is entitled to a continuation in the position of president of the commission.

MR. ROOSEVELT A GOOD PARTY MAN.

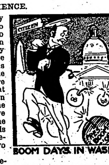


This will be a busy season for the "spellbinders" of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet. No secret is made of the intention of three or four of the cabinet members actively to engage in this year's congressional campaign. The president feels in a way that his administration is on trial and he looks to the people to indorse it and particularly to indorse the policies which congress enacted into law on his recommendation. The president despite all that has been said and written about his reform ideas, is a pretty good party man and is honest enough to express the hope that a Republican house of representatives will be reelected. He does not object to his cabinet officers going into the campaign, and it is not improbable that he himself will make one or two speeches of a somewhat political character.

Secretary Shaw of the treasury is the best campaign speaker in the cabinet. There are few men on the stump who can get closer to an audience than he can. He has the old Lincoln faculty of illustrating his points with humorous stories, the application of which is instantaneously recognized. He expects to be right busy and the congressional campaign committee will use him in several states where there are doubtful districts. The old farmer of the administration, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, has a mighty effective way of talking to voters and his services will be utilized very freely.

The orator in whom President Roosevelt apparently places the greatest confidence is his secretary of war, William H. Taft. The number of engagements the latter has already made indicates that he will be able to keep his avoirdupois down to its present 250 pounds by the arduous traveling he has in view. Attorney General Moody will have a few speeches to make in which he will recount the achievements of the administration in its prosecution of the Octopi.

CHOICE FOR NOMINATION TWO YEARS HENCE.



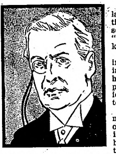
It is somewhat amusing to note the jealousy that exists in the little group of statesmen who have their political lightning rods elevated to catch the presidential bolt in 1908. These men who aspire to the presidency are thoroughly human and they are watching each other like hawks. While for public consumption their words and acts are altogether disinterested, in private conversation they indulge in some pretty severe criticisms of each other. There has been great anxiety among these candidates to find out on whom the administration favor would rest. The developments of the past few weeks seem to have settled that point and now it appears to be the field against Secretary Taft, for the latter is looked on here in Washington as President Roosevelt's choice for the Republican nomination two years hence.

There are Vice President Fairbanks, Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, Senator Foraker, Speaker Cannon, Gov. Cummins of Iowa, Postmaster General Cortelyou and one or two others who cannot help gazing on the Taft boom with considerable envy. The idea that Mr. Taft will acept an appointment as associate justice on the supreme bench seems to have been abandoned. His opponents in the presidential race declare that his actions and his public speeches demonstrate beyond all question that he is an active and aggressive candidate for the presidential nomination.

President Roosevelt recently in discussing the outlook for 1908 was quoted as saying that Secretary Taft in his opinion was the only man who could defeat William J. Bryan, and it looked as though the latter would be the Democratic candidate. The other aspirants for the Republican nomination are not disposed to accept this estimate of the president.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A WIDELY CELEBRATED TARIFF REFORMER



We speak of the Englishman, Joseph Chamberlain, who recently, on the occasion of the celebration at Birmingham of his seventieth birthday, sent out this characteristic message to the nation: "Treat foreigners as they treat us and treat your kinsmen better than you treat foreigners."

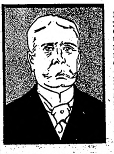
Joseph Chamberlain is immensely popular and immensely unpopular, but appears equal to coping with both friend and foe. When assailed as he was so strongly during the Boer war and its preceding and subsequent problems, his cool, cynical meeting of attacks opposed formidable front to those that attempted to down him.

Early in his career he was three times elected mayor of Birmingham, and during his terms of office carried through many public improvements in the face of obstinate opposition. In 1885 he became member of parliament, soon won distinction, became widely known by reason of the advocacy of popular reforms. For a time he was the recognized elader of the Radical party; but later organized the Liberal Union party which supported the Conservatives, and was called "renegade" by the Home Rulers.

In 1888 he came to this country as chief commissioner, effected an agreement in the Canadian fisheries dispute. This same year he married an American woman, daughter of W. E. Endicott, secretary of war. In 1891 we find Mr. Chamberlain leader of the Liberal Union party in the Commons. In the "coalition ministry" of the Marquis of Salisbury he became colonial secretary and proved himself most zealous in developing the interests of the British colonies.

An ardent disciple of the new diplomacy, Joseph Chamberlain has labored assiduously for an Anglo-American alliance.

THE ADVENTURES OF GENERAL DIAZ

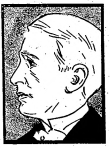


The long, peaceful, highly successful career of President Diaz is not so picturesque as his life the years preceding the occupancy of the presidential chair. And it may be of interest to go back to the days prior to modern, progressive Mexico—modern and progressive largely by reason of the man at the helm—and note the adventures experienced by Porfirio Diaz.

It would seem the count of Monte Cristo had no more call for daring and resourcefulness than Diaz had in that period when Mexico was struggling to reach a national existence. During his soldier days Diaz was thrice made a prisoner and thrice made romantic escape. The first time he broke away from his captors and on horseback dashed over a high stone wall. The second time he outwitted his jailers in the closely guarded prison at Puebla, stole out by night on to the roof of the building where he was confined, then along other roofs and then down a rope in safety to the ground. The last trial and victory was experienced on board a vessel as he was returning from his first visit to the United States. Among the fellow passengers were numbers of his enemies, bitter enemies only longing for a chance to do him harm. Knowing he must forfeit liberty, and perhaps life, as soon as the boat landed, he drew to his aid the purser, with this officer arranged a plot that included a pretense of jumping overboard. The enemies thought he had thus sought escape from them, while really he was safe hid in a box-couch in the purser's room and listening to the surmises of his foes.

President Diaz' mother was a full-blooded Indian, his father of good Spanish-American blood; and thus the different elements of the country are represented in "Don Porfirio," as the Mexican people affectionately call their ruler.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, AMERICA



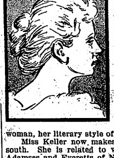
Scribbling and politics not infrequently go hand in hand these days, a man dividing his time between the two. And we would speak of Winston Churchill, author and now candidate for election as governor of New Hampshire. (And over in England there's the other Winston Churchill—undoubtedly the gentleman calls himself the Winston Churchill—who in his time has played soldier, war correspondent, author and politician.)

Our Winston Churchill gave up a naval career to engage in literary work, and now may have to surrender literature if he takes earnestly to politics. The author-politician was born in St. Louis, in 1871, after preliminary schooling entered the United States Naval Academy, graduated therefrom in 1894. Among his early writings were short naval stories which attracted considerable attention. "Richard Carvel" was his first great success; an earlier work, "The Celebrity." "Richard Carvel" was followed by "The Crisis," "Mr. Keegan's Elopement," "The Crossing," and last the political novel, "Coniston."

Mr. Churchill in 1902, now far famed for his writings, entered politics, made a successful campaign for election to the New Hampshire legislature, having for several years made his home in Cornish, N. H. He served in the legislature two years, was a delegate to the last Republican national convention.

Mr. Churchill has shown much interest in American history of the past, now is to take a hand in the making of some history. Probably the American voter will pay considerable tribute to the man with the pen.

BLIND TO DIRECT EDUCATION FOR THE BLIND



Helen Keller, the wonderful blind, deaf and dumb girl, has recently been appointed member of the Massachusetts board of education for the blind. The board was recently created, provided by the Massachusetts legislature largely at the solicitation of Helen Keller.

The wonderful results that have followed the efforts to open the world of thought and beauty to this famous blind girl, have been an inspiration the world over to workers in behalf of those that cannot see. Miss Keller is a strong believer in industrial training for persons afflicted with blindness, and probably during her service on the board will further with characteristic enthusiasm this training.

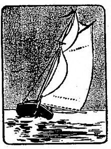
Helen Adams Keller is a graduate of Radcliffe college, one of our best schools for women; finished the four years' course, was graduated with the degree A. B. She is author as well as college woman, her literary style of an excellence.

Miss Keller now makes her home in the north, but she comes from the south. She is related to well-known families of both north and south, the Adamses and Everetts of New England, the Pottswoods and Lees of Virginia. She was born at Tuscumbia, Ala.; at the age of 19 months an illness left her blind and deaf. Until the age of seven years little was done in the way of teaching her, when Miss Anna Sullivan, who had received training at the Perkins institution in Boston, assumed charge of the unfortunate child. Helen at that age was little more than a wild animal, very difficult to control. With infinite patience and skill her teacher led her out of darkness, to-day she is a beautiful, cultured, splendid woman.

Talked of in New York

Gossip About Personages and Events in the Metropolis.

Numerous Boating Accidents and Lack of Knowledge About Resuscitation—A Bevy of Southern Girls Capture the Town—Street-Cleaning Commission Asks the Children's Aid—Hard on the Horses—Remembering the Little Ones.



NEW YORK.—The extraordinary number of drownings around about the metropolis sufficiently advertise the fact that we are at the height of the out-doors season. Incidentally they reveal the fact that a vast majority of people do not know the first principles of that science which devotes itself to the resuscitation of the drowned. In scores of cases lives might be saved if the simple rules were even partially known.

Very many of the drownings near and in the New York waters—the city has 50 miles of water front—are due to boating accidents. Some of these are doubtless what might be called unavoidable. The vast majority are due to carelessness or ignorance—ignorance of sail-craft, ignorance of motors.

A great number of curious craft are visible in the bay and sound this season. New York has seemed to go motor-boat mad. "Vichers" are put not merely into most sailing yachts, but into all manner of small boats, until one wonders that the motors are kept afloat in such slender vessels.

The latest announcement is of a turbine yacht. At this writing the matter has not been proclaimed in point, but one of New York's millionaires will soon launch a yacht with a turbine engine from which is promised a hair-raising speed, a speed that will make even the little Vanderbilt terror seem slow.

This craving for speed which is killing so many on land will continue to drown both the ambitious contestants and those who may be lured into their company—not to mention those whom they run down.

WITHOUT DOUBT NEW YORK IS HOSPITABLE.

Seventeen lovely girls from the south have said so and they have reason to know—that New York is really hospitable.

The 17 have been seeing the town as a result of a "most popular girl" competitive. Having won the honor in their respective towns the 17 came north in charge of a chaperone and one man.

It is not true that they came north as 17 southern beauties. "Most popular" was the official designation.

The chaperone and the man told me the "beauty" designation was a joke, and they resented New York's taking it seriously, though in justice to New York it should be said that an astonishingly large proportion of the 17 are really pretty—and the chaperone is not excepted. Hence New York quite naturally took the invasion as a "beauty" affair.

Anyway, the 17 captured the town. They have been everywhere. They have "done" Coney Island, bumping the bumps and sitting in the lion's den. They have been photographed separately in groups a hundred times.

And they say that New York is the most cordially hospitable place they ever saw. Everybody was tremendously nice to them—and they were tremendously nice to everybody. They have answered the question: "How do you like New York?" and "What do you like best about New York?" in 683 different ways. They have ridden in all sorts of elevators and they have been asked to do 538 things that they couldn't find time to do. If there was a pause anywhere they were photographed again.

In spite of the chaperone it is said that certain romantic things happened, that certain introductions were accomplished from which may result romantic consequences. The whole affair was very diverting to New York, and the 17 had the time of their lives.

NOW COMES THE BANANA PEEL SEASON.

A banana peel doesn't seem like a very important matter, but it has been made a real issue.

Of course it is important enough to the person who steps on it at the wrong time and in the wrong way, and Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury had this in mind in taking steps to have people arrested who put banana peels in the wrong place. Moreover the commissioner organized the city children into groups whose duty it is to help keep the city clean and to apprehend those who violate the law.

The street cleaning commissioner went further. In a printed circular he said: "Feed your banana peelings to the horses."

This sounded very well. The act seemed both precautionary and charitable. It seemed to have humane purpose and a clean, safe intention.

But trouble has come. Truckmen, cabmen and others are complaining that they have sick horses. They are watching for youngsters with banana skins and are protesting that while banana skins may be scientifically adjudged a good diet for horses, there is sometimes too much of a good thing.

And so there is a banana skin issue that is really important to some folks. So many people may not topple and break their necks, but after all the poor, faithful, confiding horses have some rights, and maybe the whole affair is a terrible blow to the fruit diet theory.

New York has a new fruit diet theory every 24 hours. Every fresh attack on the beaf trust sends fresh converts to the fruit and vegetable diets. Then comes trouble, as with the horses. "Strawberries and Insanity," is just one of the year's propositions. "No uncooked fruit," is another cry. The man of the future who listens to all the theories as to what he should and should not eat will surely die of starvation.

FOR THE CHILD MILLIONS IN SUMMER.

While one set of doctors is complaining that the modern man works too much, and that children have too many months of schooling in the year, the other set is insisting that even in vacation children must have something to do, and so New York has agreed to compromise.

The "vacation school" is the compromise. After all the term school sounds worse than the fact. They are schools, but they have not the rigidness of the regular sessions. Mostly the youngsters regard them as fun. The new schools were mobbed with applicants when they opened last week.

The popular features are the manual training and playgrounds which are among the despised "new ideas" in public schools. The wood-working classes are a great delight to thousands of boys. Girls and boys alike are to be taken on historic excursions in and near the city, and for this purpose government military reservations and other such places are to be thrown open to the young excursionists. In other words the new theory is that children boxed up in a city with nowhere to play and nothing to play with, need employment for their hands and their eyes in order to be contented.

Naturally the playgrounds are a great vent to juvenile energy. They have a kindergarten annex for the very youngest.

Supplementing these enterprises are the recreation piers at the river, and roof playgrounds for the early evenings.

Bands play at the piers, in the parks and on the roofs. Every day some prominent person of benevolent instincts suggests some new means of comforting the children. Maybe they will be spoiled by and by, but in the meantime the children are having their "innings." At last it is realized that beginning at the beginning is the wisest thing for a community.

OWEN LANGDON.

BADGER JUSTICE ADMITS LETTERS

SUPREME COURT MEMBER ASKED FOR COMMISSION ON INSURANCE.

Acknowledges in Absence of Company Representative He Sought to Secure Agent's Allowance for Collection of Premium on His Policy.

Milwaukee, July 21.—Justice Roujet D. Marshall, of the supreme court of Wisconsin, is the high court official referred to in Thursday's proceedings of the Wisconsin legislative life investigating committee.

The original correspondence was produced by Mr. Albright late Friday. The letters soliciting the commission for collection, dated Madison, October 3, 1902, is as follows:

"Gentlemen—I hold policy No. 232,009 in your company, on which there falls due, the 18th day of this month the annual premium of $671.40. I am not at present advised as to whether I will be obliged to remit to the principal office. Not knowing that you have any agent in this city, and supposing that if you have such agent he has no claims upon you for a percentage for the collection of my premium, I suggest that you send my receipt to the First National bank of Madison, Wis., with a draft attached for the $671.40 and instructions to reliver the receipt upon payment of the draft on or before the due date of the premium, and that in such case you permit the bank to take the usual agent's commission for the collection, with permission to pay the same to me. My policy came from an agent entirely outside of my circle of business acquaintances. I see no reason, myself, why I cannot be permitted to make the payment in the manner suggested, but if there are reasons, of course you will write me suggesting where to send the money."

Agent Scores Judge.

The above letter from Justice Marshall was referred by the home office of the insurance company to State Manager Albright, of Wisconsin, who, in turn, wrote to his superior office, on October 16, as follows:

"I am to-day in receipt of yours of the 3d, enclosing a letter from a judge of the supreme court of Wisconsin, Hon. R. D. Marshall, asking that you grant him a rebate upon his renewal premium. When a judge of the supreme court of this state makes an appeal for a rebate and does it direct to the home office, is it not time that there be some elevation in the moral conscience of the people in high places before we can hope for much change for the better among the rank and file on the rebate question? This gives you an idea of some of the difficulties we are obliged to contend with in this state."

Mr. Albright also wrote to the justice informing him that rebating was forbidden by law in Wisconsin.

Nothing to Prevent Payment.

The final answer of Justice Marshall was written to Mr. Albright as follows:

"Here is the draft for payment on my policy. I am not unacquainted with the law to which you refer. On reflection you will probably see that there is nothing in the law to prevent your company from paying to any bank any collection charges you see fit. I do not take your letter very seriously. It would not be out of place for your company to establish an agency outside of Milwaukee. Send receipt to Madison, Wis."

"I wrote the letters which were read before the life insurance investigating commission Thursday," said Justice R. D. Marshall, over the long-distance telephone from his farm in Kilbourne, late Friday afternoon.

"I wrote, as the letters will show, that the company had no local agent in Madison, that I did not know where to send the money for the premium; and submitted to the general office of the company the propriety of allowing me to pay the premium into the bank and receive the usual agent's collection fee back, suggesting that they so direct the bank if it seemed proper to them.

"They evidently did not deem it proper and I sent the money in full. That is all there is to it."

CROP REPORTS EXTENDED

Department of Agriculture Widens Scope of Its Work to Take in Many Minor Products.

Washington, July 18.—The bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture has so extended the scope of its work that its reports will hereafter cover a far larger number of agricultural products than in the past, the added list including alfalfa, hemp, broomcorn, kafir corn, sorghum, blue grass, millet, sugar beets, Canadian peas, cow peas, beans, cabbages, onions, tomatoes, apples, lemons, blackberries, strawberries, cantaloupes, watermelons and peanuts.

The last issue of the crop reporter includes a statement of the condition of the new articles, showing that in none of them is there a full crop throughout the country. Montana is the only alfalfa growing state that comes up to the standard in that article. Minnesota takes the lead in hemp with a full crop. California shows the highest yield in sugar beets with 98 per cent. There is a noticeable falling off in apples, several states showing not to exceed 60 or 70 per cent. a full crop. A similar condition exists with regard to peaches.

FILTHY KILLING PLANT FOUND

SLAUGHTER HOUSE IN KANSAS REEKS WITH DIRT.

Secretary of State Board of Health, Declares Fire Is Only Sure Method to Eradicate Disease Germs.

Topeka, Kan., July 18.—A meat slaughtering house near Wellington, inspected by order of the state board of health, has been found to be in such filthy condition that Dr. J. S. Crumbine, secretary of the board, has sent notices to the county commissioners of every county in the state, directing them to examine the slaughter houses in their districts and if not found to be in a sanitary condition, to allow five days for cleaning up, as permitted by law. If the order is not complied with in the time specified arrest and prosecution may follow.

"It's impossible for me to describe the actual conditions as I found them," said Dr. Crumbine. "No person who hasn't seen the place can conceive the filthiness of it. It was so bad that I cannot see how the place can be cleaned up in five days, or 50 days. It's my opinion that the burning of the house will be the only means of eradicating the disease germs. There may be other slaughter houses in almost as bad condition, none can be as bad, and I hope by sending notices to all county commissioners there may be a general cleaning up."

The order applies to some of the big packing houses at Kansas City whose plants are located on the Kansas side.

DECIDES AGAINST ROGERS

Standard Oil Official Must Return Half of Commission to Delaware Gas Company.

Boston, July 19.—A decision favorable to the plaintiff was handed down Wednesday in the United States circuit court in the case of George W. Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas company, of Decatur, against Henry H. Rogers, of New York, in the suit to recover $3,000,000 alleged to be due the gas company in connection with the sale of the Boston companies.

The court orders that the profits shall be apportioned by a master between Mr. Rogers and the Bay State Gas company, of Delaware, but if no definite equitable rule is ascertained then the amount shall be apportioned half to Mr. Rogers and half to the gas company.

The court finds that Mr. Rogers was guilty of no fraud. It also finds that he was guilty of no breach of trust so far as the making of contracts is concerned.

HEAVY LOSS BY LIGHTNING

Wholesale Millinery Institution at Kansas City Nearly Destroyed by Resultant Fire.

Kansas City, Mo., July 20.—The six-story brick building at the corner of Tenth street and Broadway, owned and occupied by the Frankel-Frank Wholesale Millinery company, was partially destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. The entire stock of millinery was destroyed. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $100,000.

The fire started in the sixth story which was struck by lightning. Seventy-five girls at work on the fifth floor left the building by way of fire escapes. No one was injured.

Spanish Troops Mutiny.

Lisbon, Portugal, July 18.—Owing to the arrest of a soldier a mutiny occurred here Tuesday among the troops who formed part of an expeditionary force to which the man belonged and which were quartered in barracks preparatory to their departure. The soldiers made a disorderly demonstration threatening to attack police headquarters. The authorities finally succeeded in calming the mutineers.

Kentucky Judge Acquitted.

Beattyville, Ky., July 18.—The jury in the Hargis-Callahan trial returned a verdict of not guilty Tuesday, after being out 22 minutes. The men were charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum. The verdict is the culmination of a long and bitter fight in the courts to convict James Hargis and Ed Callahan as chief conspirators in one of the darkest crimes in Kentucky history.

First Directory Publisher Dead.

Cincinnati, July 19.—Benjamin T. Redman, said to have been the first directory publisher in the United States, died at the Widows' and Old Men's home on Walnut Hill, aged 93 years. "The Old Colonial Directory," a combined directory of Philadelphia and New York, reputed to be the first one in America, was issued by Redman.

Smallpox Increases in Colon.

Washington, July 19.—Eleven new cases of smallpox at Colon were reported to the Washington office of the canal commission by Gov. Magoon. One new focus of infection has also developed. The total number of cases now is 27. No Americans have the disease and so far there have been no deaths.

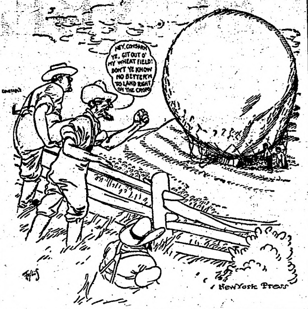
Jurist Passes Away.

Baltimore, Md., July 19.—Judge Thomas S. Baer, of the supreme court of Baltimore, and professor of law in the University of Maryland, died at his home in this city Wednesday. He was 63 years of age.

Business Block Burned.

Iowa City, Ia., July 19.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed an entire business block at Kalona, 20 miles south of here. Loss $75,000.

THE PERILS OF BALLOONING.



HEY, CONSARN YE, GIT OUT O' MY WHEAT FIELD! DON'T YE KNOW NO BETTER'N TO LAND RIGHT ON THE CROPS

New York Press

PRESIDENT BOOSTS SHORTER WORKDAY

FEDERAL OFFICERS TO COMPEL CONTRACTORS TO OBSERVE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Mr. Roosevelt Issues Order Looking to Enforcement of Provisons of Enactment of 1902 by Employes of the Government.

Washington, July 20.—Action of the greatest importance in labor circles is contemplated in a direction given by the president to officers in charge of public works at the instance of Secretary Taft. This is to employ the government's own officers to direct and punish violations of the law of 1902, providing except that in case of emergency, work upon government buildings, ships and other properties shall be limited to eight hours each day for each workman.

An effort was made by the forces or organized labor during the last session of congress to secure legislation to this end, but so effective was the opposition of the great contracting firms that adjournment was had without any action upon the pending bill, though the house committee on labor consumed many hours in listening to powerful arguments on either side of the question.

Reverses Old Practice.

Heretofore it has been the practice of executive officers, when complaint was made by labor unions that the eight-hour law was being violated by contractors building ships, constructing public buildings, engaged in river and harbor works and other public enterprises, to reply that it was not their business; that the law was binding upon the contractors, and that if the labor unions felt aggrieved and knew of violations of the law they should proceed themselves legally against the offenders.

Must Report Violations.

The labor unions asserted that it was almost impossible for them to secure the necessary evidence and that they had not the money to engage in a legal struggle with powerful moneyed interests. Under the president's direction every government officer in charge of or inspecting a public work in progress is to be directed to promtly report to the department of justice any violations by contractors of the eight-hour law, and prosecutions initiated by and at the expense of the government is to follow.

Cost Will Be Enhanced.

The effect of the order upon the cost of government work is expected to be very great. It is known that it has been almost the rule for government contractors to work their men 10 and 12 and even more hours per day. If they cannot do this they assert that they must increase by 20 or 25 per cent. the amount of their bids; so that congress must either increase by like percentage the appropriations for public works or must correspondingly reduce the amount of work authorized.

ARKANSAS IS AFTER TRUSTS

Attorney General Sues Cotton Seed Oil Mills for Alleged Violation of the Anti-Trust Laws.

Little Rock, Ark., July 19.—Suit was entered Wednesday against the five cottonseed mills of this city by Attorney General Rogers and Prosecuting Attorney Rohoton, charging them with being members of a combine in violation of the anti-trust law and alleging restraint of trade. The suits ask judgment in the sum of $5,000 per day, aggregating $130,000 against each company and saking also the revocation of their charters in this state.

It is the understanding in court circles here that suits are to be entered against the remaining 34 mills as soon as the papers can be filed.

Elks Select Next Meeting Place.

Denver, Col., July 19.—Philadelphia was chosen by the grand lodge of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks Wednesday as the convention city for next year. Philadelphia received 495 votes, Baltimore 265.

LA FOLLETTE ON RATE BILL

SAYS MEASURE IS GOOD, YET IT LACKS STRENGTH.

Declares Unless Certain Changes Are Made the Railroad Question Will Remain the Great Issue.

Milwaukee, July 21.—"I do not understand the meaning of treason to party and people if it means working for the good of the people," said Senator La Follette when shown the interview of Senator Heminway, of Indiana, in which La Follette is branded as a party traitor and enemy of the rate bill passed by congress in that he worked with the Democrats to load the bill with amendments which would imperil its constitutionality.

"The rate bill is good so far as it goes," said Mr. La Follette, "but it needs strengthening. I am going back to Washington next fall to fight for these amendments, and unless some of these changes are made the railroad question will be the great issue of the next presidential campaign. I had a talk with the president before I left Washington, and he told me the bill needed strengthening. He thought some of my amendments were good, and said he would study them this summer. He congratulated me upon the work I have done in Washington."

RUSSIAN TOWN DESTROYED

Hundreds of Persons Perish in Flames, Supposed to Have Been Started by Revolutionists.

Samara, Russia, July 21.—The latest news from Syzran is that the city is a heap of ruins. Hundreds of persons lost their lives in the flames. Several men suspected of incendiarism were lynched. Food for the starving inhabitants of Syzran is being sent from here and from Saratoff.

No doubt is entertained that the burning of Syzran was a revolutionary demonstration. The federal buildings and treasury were destroyed. Many panic-stricken inhabitants sought refuge in the surrounding fields and forests.

Syzran was an important commercial and industrial town 70 miles south of Simbirsk, on the Syrian river, near its confluence with the Volga. By the census of 1897 it had a population of over 32,000.

St. Petersburg, July 21.—Many hundreds of peasants have been killed and wounded since Sunday near the city of Voronezh. Dispatches received Friday tell grewsome stories of wanton butchery by troops at the instigation of the rich landowners.

The slaughter continued until the peasants were reenforced and by force of numbers threatened to overwhelm the soldiers. Then the troops were forced to retreat.

FEARS TO FACE THE COURT

So-Called "Sewer Pipe Trust" Agrees, Through Attonrey, to Cease to Do Business.

Jamestown, N. Y., July 20.—The Sewer Pipe Trade association, familiarly known as the "sewer pipe trust" practically entered a plea of guilty to the charges of a secret contract to limit the production and control the territory and prices of sewer pipe before the federal grand jury in this city Thursday.

United States District Attorney Brown had prepared a mass of evidence against the company which he was intending to present to the grand jury, when Harry A. Halt, of Pittsburg, attorney for the association, submitted the proposition that rather than submit to the proposed investigation by the grand jury he would enter into an agreement whereby the association would be dissolved and go out of business. The proposition was accepted by the district attorney.

Fatal Powder Explosion.

St. Clairsville, O., July 20.—In an explosion of a can of powder in the Maynard, Belmont county, mine, three men were seriously burned. John Frazier, one of the victims, died, and Ben Waters and another man cannot recover. Sparks from an electric wire set off the can of powder.

FORMER VICEREINE OF INDIA IS DEAD

LADY CURZON, NEE MARY LEITER, OF CHICAGO, PASSES AWAY IN LONDON.

Daughter of Capitalist and Dry Goods Merchant, She Married British Under Secretary, and Gained Fame as a Clever and Shrewd Woman

London, July 19.—Lady Curzon of Kedleston, wife of the former viceroy of India, who has been ill for some days, died at 5:40 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Her illness was recently made more serious by the hot weather in England.

She suffered from acute peritonitis—which almost caused her death in September, 1904.

Her husband, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, recently dropped all political engagements to stay at her bedside.

Lady Curzon's History.

Lady Curzon, who before her marriage was Mary Victoria Leiter, was the daughter of Levi Z. Leiter, the Chicago capitalist, who in recent years had made Washington his home. She was born in Chicago and was married in January, 1895, in Washington, to Sir George Nathaniel Curzon of England, who became under secretary of foreign affairs the same year and viceroy of India in 1899, after having been created an Irish peer with the title of Lord Curzon of Kedleston. In Chicago, before her marriage, she was one of the reigning belles in society, as well as one of the most popular. The same was the case in Washington after the removal of the family to the capital.

Social Duties Undermine Health.

Her married life was a happy one. Her husband was devoted to her and she to him. While vicereine of India her social and other duties were heavy and this undoubtedly undermined her health to some extent.

Children Devoted to Mother.

An interesting scene instancing the deep attachment existing between the children and their queenly mother was witnessed at a musical festival in the cathedral at Calcutta. The younger members of the Curzon household had been taken down early by their nurses and were sitting quietly in their seats when Lady Curzon arrived, and the look of delight and the eagerness with which they greeted her was followed by a hurried move to seat themselves near her that caused quite a flutter of amusement in the vicinity. Lady Curzon took a keen interest in the Lady Dufferin fund, which was founded to build and maintain hospitals all over India, for the use mainly of the women of India, and these now minister to the wants of millions every year.

Lady Curzon of Kedleston was in her own right the possessor of $3,000,000. She leaves two daughters.

GEN. STOESSEL TO BE SHOT

Russian Commission Recommends Death Penalty for Officer Who Defended Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, July 20.—The commission appointed to investigate the surrender of Port Arthur has finished its labors and recommends that Lieut. Gen. toessel, the former commander of the Russian forces at Port Arthur, be dismissed from the army and shot, that Lieut. Gen. Fock, who commanded the Fourth East Siberian division at Port Arthur, be dismissed from the army and undergo a year's hard labor; that Gen. Reiss, chief of staff of Gen. Stoessel, be dismissed and banished, and that Admiral Aliexieff, former viceroy in the far east, Lieut. Gen. Smirneff, commander of the Port Arthur fortress, and Gen. Vernander be reprimanded. The formal trial of these officers will take place shortly.

LOOK FOR GREAT HARVEST

Country Merchants Place Large Orders for Staples to Supply Fall and Winter Demand.

New York, July 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Exceptionally encouraging reports for this time of the year are received regarding trade, industry and transportation, but there is no response in the market for securities. The best news of the past week comes from agricultural sections where progress is fully maintained, harvesting of winter wheat promising a larger yield than expected; and of good quality, while corn and oats exceed anticipations. As results on the farms become assured there is a growth of confidence that brings out large orders for fall and winter delivery of all staples.

PEACE COMPACT IS SIGNED

Quick Work Marks Session of Commissoners for Three Central American Republics.

San Jose, Guatemala, July 21.—A treaty of peace between Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras was signed Friday on board the United States cruiser Marblehead, on the high seas off the Guatemalan coast.

There was a strenuous discussion and some difficulty in reaching mutually acceptable conditions.

The Mexican minister, Senor Gamboa, was active in assisting in bringing about an agreement.

The peace commissioners adopted resolutions thanking the presidents of the United States and Mexico for their intervention.

A PRETTY MILKMAID

Thinks Pe-ru-na Is a Wonderful Medicine.

MISS ANNIE HENDREN.

MISS ANNIE HENDREN, Rocklyn, Wash., writes:

"I feel better than I have fer over four years. I have taken several bottles of Peruna and one bottle of Manalin.

"I can now do all of my work in the house, milk the cows, take care of the milk, and so forth. I think Peruna is a most wonderful medicine.

"I believe I would be in bed to-day if I had not written to you for advice. I had taken all kinds of medicine, but none did me any good.

"Peruna has made me a well and happy girl. I can never say too much for Peruna."

Not only women of rank and leisure praise Peruna, but the wholesome, useful women engaged in honest toil would not be without Dr. Hartman's world renowned remedy.

The Doctor has prescribed it for many thousand women every year and he never fails to receive a multitude of letters like the above, thanking him for his advice, and especially for the wonderful benefits received from Peruna.

SOME BEDROOM DON'TS.

Don't lie in the same position all night if you can help it.

Don't cover your head with the bedclothes. Have your covers warm but light.

Don't go to bed hungry. Eat any light simple food that you wish if it agrees with you.

Don't sleep in a room that is too cold. From 55 to 60 degrees is the right temperature.

Don't go to bed with cold feet, but see to it that they are warm and comfortable before you get in bed.

Don't fill your bedroom with bric-a-brac and draperies, but have as little as possible in it to catch the dust.

Don't put your pillows in the sun, as it draws the oil out of the feathers. Sun the bed and bedding, but place the pillows out of the sunlight in a current of air.

AWFUL ITCHING ON SCALP.

Hair Finally Had to Be Cut to Save Any—Scalp Now in Good Condition—Cured by Cuticura.

"I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for a diseased scalp, dandruff, and constantly falling of hair. Finally I had to cut my hair to save any at all. Just at that time I read about the Cuticura Remedies. Once every week I shampooed my hair with the Cuticura Soap, and I used the Ointment twice a week. In two months' time my hair was long enough to do up in French twist. That is now five years ago, and I have a lovely head of hair. The length is six inches below my waist line, my scalp is in very good condition, and no more dandruff or itching of the scalp. I used other remedies that were recommended to me as good, but with no results. Mrs. W. F. Griess, Clay Center, Neb., Oct. 23, 1905."

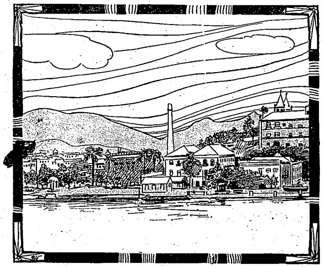
The Newspaper Maker.

The newspaper maker is in honor bound to do good and sincere work. The whole community is his client, and is entitled to respect. Whatever may be advanced on his editorial page, the right to color the news to suit the purpose of any faction in the community is withheld. Otherwise the subscriber is not being treated with consideration or fairness. There must be the combination of brains, incessant energy, broad judgment and knowledge, with devotion to a high purpose, or the paper will fall short of achievement.—Philadelphia Ledger.

In a few days a letter dropped in the Chicago general postoffice fifteen or twenty minutes before the departure of trains for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, St. Louis, New Orleans, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Cincinnati, Buffalo, New York and the east will be aboard flyers on their way to these and hundreds of other points between the Lakes and the Gulf and the two oceans. The new fast work will be possible by the connection between the Chicago subway and the Illinois Central's mail rooms at its Park Row station, which is also used by the Michigan Central, Big Four and Wisconsin Central roads. The subway which runs under Wabash avenue has a spur in Thirteenth street to the south end of the big railway station. All sack mail to this station has been hauled by wagons. Now it will be dropped into waiting electrical cars in the subway under the postoffice and rushed to the Park Row station, where it will be dumped onto waiting elevators which will lift them to the doors of waiting mail cars.

THE LAND OF THE BRAZILIANS

The Sensitive Brazilians Do Not Like To Be Called Spanish-Americans—Different From Typical Latin-American Countries.



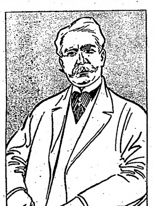
IN RIO DE JANEIRO.

The particular portion of the globe drawing the eyes of the world for at least an instant's attention is Brazil, the Pan-American conference in Rio de Janeiro giving prominence to the country called by some one "Portugal's Gigantic Daughter."

You remember—or perhaps you never knew in this age with its so many things to know—that the royal family of Portugal in 1807 fled to Brazil, that in 1815 the colony was declared a kingdom. A few years later the Portuguese court having returned to Europe, a national congress at Rio De Janeiro chose Dom Pedro, eldest son of the king of Portugal, perpetual defender of Brazil, his title now constitutional emperor and perpetual defender. In 1831 Dom Pedro I. abdicated in favor of his son; Dom Pedro II. reigned until the autumn of 1889. Dom Pedro II. was a wise and tactful ruler, devoted to the interests of his country, but was dethroned by a successful revolution, he and his family were sent into exile, the empire of Brazil was declared a republic, a republic styled the United States of Brazil.

To-day there are not nearly so many Portuguese as Italians in Brazil; the census of 1900 showed 1,100,000 Italians, the majority settled in San Paulo. In the southern Brazilian states there are very prosperous German and Italian colonies in Rio Grande de Sul, something like 800,000 Germans. In the seaport towns the principal part of the population is of European descent.

The returns of the census of 1900 were not adopted, considered fallacious as they reported a decrease in population. The census of 1890 gave the total population as 14,000,000; some over 6,000,000 whites, more than 4,000,000 metis (half-breeds), about 2,000,000 negroes, and 1,200,000 Indians. The population to-day is put, in round numbers, at 17,000,000. The Indian element preponderates in the northern provinces, the negroes are numerous in Rio de Janeiro, Pernambuco and Bahia. Brazil has a larger population than any country in America save the United States; less than one-half are whites, one-third are half-breeds, one-seventh negroes, and the Indians are less than one-tenth.



BRAZILIAN AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES.

Ethel Armes, writing in the National Magazine, says: "As in this country so there is in Brazil the same fusion of races and of nationalities; Italians, Portuguese, Spanish, Germans, Austrians, Scandinavians, Poles, Russians, English and French, of whom the predominating race, in so far as numbers are concerned, is the Italian. There are nearly four times as many Italians as Portuguese in Brazil, notwithstanding the fact that the country was for so many centuries a Portuguese colony, then a Brazilian empire, and now a Brazilian republic with the Portuguese tongue the official language, and manners and customs and leading families to-day harking back to the mother land of Portugal, as America to England."

Brazilians are not Spanish-Americans, they do not like to be known as Spanish-Americans. "Brazilian" is the only acceptable term.

Brazil is of a bigness, larger than the United States prior to the purchase of Alaska. Bishop Hendrix, of the Methodist Episcopal church, writes of the land as "A Republic in the Tropics;" calls attention to the fact that the wide region is almost wholly in the tropics, and that it is one of the world's largest territories under a single flag. The last to emancipate her slaves, the task was accomplished without bloodshed or without granting compensations to the owners. Immigration followed fast on the emancipation of the slaves, which emancipation was begun in 1871, carried on gradually, completed in 1888.

The immigration to Brazil in 1890 was 200,000, in 1898 it had fallen to less than 60,000, mostly Italians, Portuguese and Spanish. The early privileges offered immigrants brought in such an overwhelming tide restrictions were imposed. The cause of no inconsiderable internal dissension has been the question of showing favor to foreigners. Latin-America sends the most immigrants; the Germans have contributed greatly to the development of their chosen province, and German colonization is a most important feature of present day Brazil; English and Belgian capital has aided greatly in railroad development and growth of banks.

Brazil has had her share of financial problems. The cost to replace slavery by immigration was tremendous. With the organization of the federal government in 1890 radical changes were made. Revolutionary movements later in the 90's added to the difficulties. But the ship of state has passed through the rough waters, guided by the skillful piloting of President Campos-Salles and other sagacious statesmen. Next November the republic celebrates its seventeenth birthday, at peace, at home and abroad. Brazil, unlike certain neighboring states, courts the friendship of the nations, labors for peace and continued progress.

Brazil is an agricultural country, as yet undeveloped. Coffee is the chief product cultivated, then come sugar tobacco, cotton, mate (Paraguay tea), india rubber, timber, cocoa and nuts. The forests and mines are of great value, their wealth not yet brought forward. The industries are cotton spinning and weaving, sugar refining, brewing, match, paper and hat manufacture. The "strike" is unknown in industrial Brazil.

The constitution of Brazil is modeled on the constitution of the United States, but changed to meet different conditions. One unlikeness is the rule that no president may succeed himself. The term of the present president, Mr. Rodrigues Alves, expires in November of this year. His administration has been a commendable one, he has shown special activity in the department of public works. Among several important improvements should be mentioned the changes in the capital city, the beautifying of Rio de Janeiro. Tree-lined, palace bordered Avenida Central gives suggestion of the modern progress of the nation.

Rio de Janeiro is most picturesquely located, the landlocked bay running far inland, surrounded on all sides by forest-covered mountains. The city stretches 15 miles along the shore, reaches deep into the valleys and climbs way up the heights. Manufacturies are not to the fore, commerce explains the city. It has a population of about 800,000. Rio de Janeiro has been the capital of Brazil since the middle of the eighteenth century.

Perhaps one reason we show so much ignorance of the other America, and of Brazil particularly we speak now, is because of the distance. It is a shorter run from Rio de Janeiro to European ports than to ports of North America. Our country is just awaking to the fact that "Portugal's Gigantic Daughter" is a lady to be paid court to.

KATHERINE POPE.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

LARGE SUM WILL BE PAID OUT IN PREMIUMS.

A Court on Wheels—Boy Saves His Mother—Alleged Murderer is Still at Large—Notes.

The great Minnesota state fair will be held Sept. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. Premiums and purses offered aggregate $65,644.50, and the exhibition and amusement features will be far better than ever before. Half rates are announced by the railways.

The new live stock amphitheater, the best of its kind in the country, will be dedicated on Monday, Sept. 3. James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, will deliver the address. Horses and cattle will be shown and judged in the amphitheater throughout the week. Three great auction sales of pure bred cattle will be conducted.

"Dan Patch," the king of pacers, and "Cresceus," the king of trotters, will be seen Monday afternoon. Each of these magnificent horses will make an effort to lower its own world's record.

Among the special racing events are the $5,000 purse for 2:13 pacers on Tuesday, St. Paul day; the $5,000 purse for 2:21 trotters, on Friday, Minneapolis day; the $2,500 purse for 2:35 trotters on Monday; the $2,500 purse for 2:30 pacers for Wednesday and the $2,000 purse for 2:02 pacers on Thursday. In addition there are eight $1,-00 purses and two $500 purses to be contested for by the trotters and pacers during the week. Liberal purses are offered for runners also. Racing will be of the sensational order every day.

Court on Wheels.

Duluth—Probably the last "court on wheels" that will make the circuit of the range towns on its annual trip for making new citizens. Notice has been given that an adjorned term of the district court will be held for the purpose of granting naturalization papers at Tower, Ely, Biwabik, Eveleth, Virginia, Chisholm, Hibbing and Floodwood, between July 23 and 27.

The court on wheels, as it is popularly known will consist of one of the district judges, the clerk of the district court and one of his deputies. At each of the towns where sessions of the court will be held, persons applying for second or final papers will be required to present a certified copy of their first papers and the testimony of two witnesses who have known the applicant in each case for the required term of five years.

Boy Saves Mother.

Pillager—Twelve-year-old Harold Dorsey, by a rare display of heroism, saved his mother, Mrs. Nancy Dorsey, from death by drowning at Sylvan lake. With a party of friends, the Dorsey family was enjoying a picnic at the lake. The women of the party went in bathing, while Harold was rowing about in a boat. His mother, thinking the water was shallow, started to wade out to the boat, but stepped into a deep hole, and she disappeared beneath the water, only her imploring hands being visible to her horrified companions. Harold quickly rowed to the spot, plunged in and succeeded in grasping his mother's hair. Then he swam with her toward shore. He was almost exhausted when help arrived, and both were pulled ashore not much the worse for their adventure.

Not Captured.

Eveleth—Despite the report from Hibbing to the contrary, Angelo Giangarelli, the Italian who is alleged to have murdered his fellow countryman, Basilo Romano, and to have attempted to kill Bruno Gervasso, on July 4, is still at large. Upon several occasions the local authorities were of the opinion that they were in reaching distance, but they were not actually able to make the capture. It appears that he has friends who keep him constantly advised of the officers' movements and assist him in evading arrest.

Victim of Hay Tedder.

Plainview—Theodore Klassen, living southeast of town, was seriously injured by being run over by a tedder he was using in the hayfield. The ram which was attached to the tedder became frightened and ran away and Klassen was thrown in front of the machine, one wheel of, which passed over his body, badly bruising him and injuring him internally. It was fortunate, however, that the wheel struck him, as in passing over his body it raised the machine sufficiently high to prevent the forks from striking him.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The Saengerfest committee completes its arrangements for handling the crowds at the auditorium.

Minneapolis—A North Dakota prosecuting attorney is arrested on charges of violating the Minnesota game laws.

St. Paul—Prof. Washburn, state entomologist, says there are no serious outbreaks of insect pests this year.

St. Paul—Hundreds of thousands of invitations to attend the state fair are being sent to the people of the Northwest.

Minneapolis—A building permit was issued for a brick and glass greenhouse, to be erected by the University of Minnesota, at University and Thirteenth avenues SE. The greenhouse will cost $9,500.

Sabin—The State Bank, capital stock $10,000, was authorized to do business by Public Examiner P. M. Kerst.

St. Cloud—The Mississippi River Electric Power company will begin work next week in the building of a new dam at Clearwater, twelve miles south of St. Cloud. The new dam will be one of the largest on the river near St. Cloud.

St. Augusta—The 5-year-old daughter of Mr. Kenning, a farmer, was severely cut by a mowing machine while at play in a meadow, where her father was cutting hay.

Eveleth—Despite the report to the contrary, Angelo Giangarelli, the Italian who is alleged to have murdered his fellow countryman, Basilo Romano, on July 4, is still at large.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Foreign commerce of the United States for the fiscal year just closed amounted to $2,970,000,000.

Plans are being drawn at Washington for the $1,250,000 Puget sound dry dock, the largest in the world.

The statue of Liberty, on Bedloe's island, New York, will be regilded and its lights increased threefold.

The Home Telephone and Telegraph company has been organized to take over several companies in southern California.

Brooklyn, N. Y., is to have a $5,000,000 Roman Catholic cathedral after the general style of Notre Dame de Rouen, France.

Col. S. Winfield Scott, who was custodian of Chief Joseph after his capture by Gen. Miles, is dead at Seattle, Wash., aged 74.

The pope recently pricked a finger with a pen and the wound is causing some anxiety on account of possible blood poisoning.

Labor committees in New York are agitating a general building strike, the outgrowth of differences between rival plumbers' unions.

The government has asigned Prof. Lucke of Columbia university to make experiments with denatured alcohol to be used for fuel purposes.

A scarcity of lithographs is threatened, as the 15,000 lithographers of the country may strike if their demands for shorter hours are refused.

Tennie Fristo, a waitress in a Columbus (O.) hotel, preferred to go to jail rather than tell her age in court. She told the judge it was none of his business.

The New York court of appeals, in the suit of Lautern vs. the Bolton Drug company, ruled that a druggist has not the right to change a physician's prescription.

Quijada, a Mexican, cut his father-in-law's throat and then disemboweled him. He was arrested in Arizona. The act was committed in the presence of the murderer's wife.

Robbers, led by a woman, looted a store at New York, of 1,000 packages of dry goods. The theft was committed at night and witnesses believed the merchants were moving.

Postmaster General Cortelyou, who is in Canada on his vacation, says it is not unlikely that a two-cent postal rate will be established between the United States and Great Britain.

Dynamite destroyed the plant of the Berkeley Rock company at Oakland, Cal., fatally injuring Superintendent Fred Hoffman. The explosive was placed in machinery by an unknown man.

The Methodist Episcopal church, the Methodist church of Canada and the Methodist church, South, will consolidate their Japanese missions under the name of the Methodist church of Japan.

It was announced that policyholders in the American Life Insurance company of Elkhart, Ind., would not realize over ten cents on the dollar. Most of the assured are in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

The Retail Merchants' Association of Missouri resolved in favor of the repeal of the tax on oleomargarine, a tax of $5,000 a year on trading stamp concerns and a state pure-food law to conform with federal regulations.

C. F. Howell, alleged to be from Kankakee, Ill., tendered a bogus check in payment for a farm near Laporte, Ind., got the deed and left with the difference between the purchase price and the face "value" of the check.

Tragedy at Warren, O.

Warren, O., July 19.—Charles McMillan, a laborer, Wednesday shot and slightly wounded Herbert Fox and then fired three bullets into his own head. McMillan will die, while Fox's injuries are not serious. The motive for the act is not known. The tragedy occurred in a boarding house.

Renamed by Acclamation.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 19.—Fronk B. Fulkerson was renominated for congress by the Fourth district Republican convention here Wednesday by acclamation.

THE MARKETS.

New York, July 20.

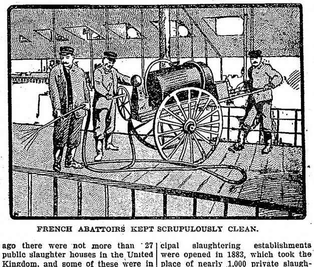
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@ 7 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 30	@ 4 60
WHEAT—September	84¼	@ 84⅝
December	86½	@ 86⅝
CORN—December	57¼	@ 57⅝
RYE—No. 2 Western	67¼	@ 68
BUTTER	16½	@ 20½
CHEESE	10¾	@ 11
EGGS	21	@ 24
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 75	@ 6 40
Common to Good Steers	4 75	@ 5 75
Yearlings	4 50	@ 5 65
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 10
Calves	3 00	@ 7 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 60	@ 6 80
Heavy Packing	6 00	@ 6 40
Heavy Mixed	6 40	@ 6 70
BUTTER—Creamery	18	@ 21½
Dairy	14	@ 18
EGGS—Fresh	14	@ 18
LIVE POULTRY	11	@ 13
POTATOES (bu.)	67	@ 87
WHEAT—September	78	@ 78¾
December	80⅜	@ 81¼
Corn, September	50½	@ 51
Oats, September	33½	@ 35
Rye, September	58	@ 58⅛
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 83	@ 84
September	77⅝	@ 78⅛
Corn, September	50	@ 50⅜
Oats, Standard	37	@ 37½
Rye, No. 1	63	@ 63⅛
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, July	$ 69⅝	@ 69¾
September	70½	@ 70⅝
Corn, July	47¾	@ 47⅞
Oats, No. 2 White	40½	@ 41
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 50	@ 6 25
Texas Steers	2 60	@ 5 00
HOGS—Packers	6 40	@ 6 80
Butchers	6 70	@ 6 85
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 6 00
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 50	@ 6 30
Stockers and Feeders	3 60	@ 4 25
Cows and Heifers	2 25	@ 3 85
HOGS—Heavy	6 45	@ 6 65
SHEEP—Wethers	4 85	@ 5 25

Abattoirs, Adequate and Inadequate Government Inspection

The Regulation of Food Supply in Germany and France Scientific—Model Abattoirs in Paris—Napoleon Started Reform.

A writer makes declaration with calm conviction that since 1891 the whole packing industry of the country has been under rigid government inspection. In the light of present disclosures the assertion does not carry the assurance it may have when the words were fresh written; even the most careless reader must know the methods of meat inspection in this country bear no comparison whatever to those obtaining in France and Germany, in which countries regulation of the food supply is more thorough and scientific than here or in England.

Chicago is not the only city showing interest in the improving of slaughter-house conditions. Over in England the London county council is taking steps for the establishment of public abattoirs, and parliamentary legislation thereto is looked for. In the regulation of the slaughter and sale of meat England is far behind the two European countries named. Parliament has not made enactment for compulsory inspection, nor authorized municipal slaughter houses. However, several cities of Great Britain have secured by special legislation the public abattoir; in Edinburgh abattoirs were opened back in 1851; in Manchester in 1872, and Birmingham has a city market similar to the best markets of Germany. A London correspondent, writing to the New York Tribune on the subject of "English Meat Inspection," says: "The English precedents for municipal management of abattoirs are not so numerous as Mayor Dunne has assumed them to be. When the public health act was amended 16 years ago there were not more than 27 public slaughter houses in the United Kingdom, and some of these were in small towns. About 50 towns have incurred debt for the construction of abattoirs, and perhaps 20 more have established them without borrowing money for them but many of these are small communities. The annual receipts for 50 of these public abattoirs do not aggregate more than $100,000, so that the business from the point of view of the Chicago packers is insignificant. The bulk of the slaughtering for London, with its immense population, is done in private slaughter houses under fairly close inspection. At Deptford and Islington the slaughtering is supervised so systematically by officials of the city corporation that the business is considered semi-public, although not in a strict sense municipalized. Inspection is virtually the only safeguard against improper food supplies in the metropolis. Glasgow has a series of slaughter houses at the foreign cattle wharf and elsewhere, and Edinburgh and Dundee also have a municipal system of abattoirs admirably conducted. Manchester, Leeds, Brighton, Blackpool, Exeter, Reading and other English cities have municipal slaughter houses; but the system is not yet general, although reformers assert that it is likely to become so in the large towns."



FRENCH ABATTOIRS KEPT SCRUPULOUSLY CLEAN.

The Review of Reviews calls attention to a visit recently made by members of the London County Council to Paris in a study of the model abattoirs of that city. It is of interest to note that private slaughter houses have been done away with in Paris since 1818. The city of Paris owns and operates the Villette slaughter houses, and in the Vuagirard district is situated one other great municipal abattoir. A large staff of veterinary surgeons carries on the work of inspection, which is done under the direction of the prefecture of police.

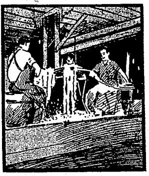
In making comparisons between the English and French inspection of meats an observer asserts it is impossible for meat retailed in Paris to escape inspection, as it frequently does in London. In London the staff of inspectors is too small, and detection of disease is left to inexperienced slaughterers. In Paris many inspectors are well qualified for their work. The system of inspection, as carried on at the public abattoir in Paris, is thus described in a London publication:

"After each carcass has been dressed and suspended on the stands with stout iron pegs, which can be seen both inside and outside each echaudoir, it is examined by one of the numerous inspectors of the prefcture of police, who, on finding it to be sound and of good quality, stamps it in violet ink with the letters PP (prefecture of police). Should he find that it is diseased, he immediately reports the matter to his superior officer; the special cart which collects unsound meat is sent around; and the carcass is removed, either to be rendered useless for sale as human food by sprinkling it with petroleum or to be given to the Jardin des Plantes for the use of wild animals. In this way, not a single pound of meat is offered for sale in Paris without it having been examined. Before each carcass leaves the abattoirs the officials at the exit look to see that it is properly stamped, and at the same time that it is weighed, in order to claim the various dues which must immediately be paid to them. Among these is a sum of two francs per hundred kilogrammes (about $4.20 per ton) which is named the "slaughter-house tax," and which the municipality sets aside for the purpose of defraying the cost and maintenance in a good state of repair of the abattoirs.

In Germany each town council has power to erect and maintain public slaughter houses and to forbid the slaughtering of meat elsewhere. German cities have markets, as a rule, located in the suburbs, that are maintained at public expense; these in addition to the municipal slaughter houses. Generally throughout Europe public abattoirs are coming to be looked on as indispensable to proper regulation. In Berlin two municipal slaughtering establishments were opened in 1883, which took the place of nearly 1,000 private slaughter houses. In the United States commercial consolidation has greatly lessened the number of small slaughter houses, the concentration making possible, if properly conducted, a system of government inspection.

The packing industry in this country may be traced back to the seventeenth century and to New England, when and where large quantities of pork were packed in barrels to be sent out for foreign trade. The west now leads in this now gigantic industry, the present tendency being to carry on the business nearer the cattle raising districts. The first packing house in the west was located at Cincinnati, established in 1818. This city continued to lead in the industry for a number of years, but Chicago came to the fore, and other towns forged ahead: Milwaukee, Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha.

Probably the first attempt made to regulate the conduct of places where animals were slaughtered for food was made in England in the time of Richard II. In 1388 parliament legislated against the casting of offal and other refuse of slaughtered animals into rivers and other waters. Then a long break in attempt at looking after the public health in the way of meat inspection, and the last century was marked by vigorous effort in this direction. During this period a national system of municipal slaughter houses was established in France and Germany, and in Great Britain the subject was widely discussed, and local instances of public ownership. To Napoleon belongs no small credit for the public abattoir.



SAUSAGE DEPARTMENT, CHICAGO PACKING HOUSE.

CHRISTOPHER WEBSTER.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

It is getting to be about time for A.D. Stephens to put in a branch lumber yard at McIntosh and place the best politican he can muster in charge of it, if he wants to land that County as solid as he did four years ago. We suppose all the old Columbia County boomers will be just falling over themselves to get a chance to vote for him.

The News of Thief River Falls is not going to fight county politicts on political lines this year, but is to put the north against the south part of the County, of course John don't mention the east part, but there might be a few votes poled up in this direction and if placed where they will do the most good, might upset the calculations of either north or south part.

The Northwestern Editorial association will meet at Crookston on Friday, August 3rd. where they will be entertained by the citizens and the experimental farm and new agricultural college visited. On the 4th they will visit Cass Lake, spending the day on the lakes, and on the 5th go to the progressive city of Grand Rapids, where the party will disband

That Re-apportionment.

ONE of the most important matters to come before the coming session of the legislature is legislative re apportionment.

The southern counties will undoubtedly fight it, and, with 40 per cent of the state senate to 28 per cent of the population within the three congressional districts, they may defeat it but the present apportionment is certainly a rank injustice to the northern half of the state.—McIntosh Times.

With the governor from the northern part of the state the members of the legislature had ought to get a fair deal on this important matter, even if the southern part is in the majority.

The editor of the Thief River Falls News must have come from Missouri, as he wants to be "shown" how some of the prospective candidates for the legislature are going to vote on some of the important questions, that are liable to come up before the next legislature, such as the extension of the primary election law to state officers and the reduction of passenger rates to two cents per mile and some other important questions. This thing of members slipping into the legislature to support the railroads and serve as their servants had ought to be stopped and the sooner the better. They all say they are for state drainage, so is Jim Hill, but you bet your life he is not for a reduction of railroad fare, and we have not seen a candidate that has announced himself this for that dared to say he was. It is getting to be about time for A.D. Stephens, the candidate from Polk to start to write up his famous state hail insurance plank that successfully landed so many farmer suckers four years ago. That famous plank of A.D.'s was good enough to go in on but it wasn't worth much to stand on.

The small courtesies sweeten life; the greater ennoble it.—Bovee.

They Will Order Boats.

The boat meeting of the Red Lake River Transportation Company, held at Sunbeam on last Friday afternoon, for the purpose of qualifying the officials, was largely attended by share holders of the association. After the quallification of the board of Directors, plans and specifications were submitted to them for different styles of boats by Mr. J.C. Shaub, representing the Shell Lake boat Company of Shell Lake Wisconsin. An agreement was reached about the size and style of the first boat to be built and an order will be placed as soon as the draft of the boat is received from the Company.

The first boat ordered will have a capacity of about 30 tons of freight, and accomidations for a limited number of passengers in addition. It will be propelled by a 60 horse power steam engine and will have a speed of about 10 miles per hour. The draft of the new boat will be on file in the secretarys office in about ten days and can be seen by anyone interested. Stock is being taken in the new Company at a rapid rate and they expect not only have one boat, but a sufficent number of boats on this river to handle the freight and passenger traffic next season.

THIEF RIVER FAIR.

The Thief River Falls Fair association are out with their premium list for their fifth anual fair which will be held at that place August 8th, 9th, and 10th. They are offering liberal premiums for farm products and we hope to see as many of the Eleven towns farmers make exhibits at this fair as possible, as it advertises the country in which you live.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? you will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

DEER PARK.

Haying is the order of the day here now.

The crops in Deer Park, look splendid, the oats especially, is the finest we have seen for years.

The County Sup't meeting that was held at Kratka, last Thursday, was well attended, every organized district was represented. We also had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Quist, make a very interesting speech in regard to school matters. Mr. Quist, was one of the candidates for County Sup't two years ago. He is a very able speaker and well qualified man in ever respect, and would just make the right kind of an officer.

Observation.

An observant man in all his intercourse with society and the world constantly and unperceived marks on every person and thing the figure expressive of its value and, therefore, on meeting that person or thing, knows instantly what kind and degree of attention to give it. This is to make something of experience.—John Foster.

Tamed Poetry.

"I wish to submit a lyric, sir," said the timid young man. "My friends say it's a beauty—really sings itself."

"Humph!" said the cold hearted editor. "We couldn't use a poem like that. We want one that, once printed, will remain perfectly quiet and not keep our readers awake by singing itself at all times."

A Conundrum For Cannon.

Speaker Cannon has received hundreds of telegrams from Oklahoma expressing the opinion of hundreds of people about him. This one, however, which he declares is the most remarkable inquiry ever propounded to an American statesman, he proposes to frame, "Shall Oklahoma, the gem of hope, be sacrificed on the Shylock of Despair?"—New York Times.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE RED LAKE RIVER TRANSPOTATION COMPANY.

We the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58, revised Laws of Minnesota, 1905, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

Article 1

The name of this corporation shall be the Red Lake River Transportation Company.

Article 11.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be the operating of a line of boats upon the Red Lake River and upon the Great Red Lakes, and streams tributary thereto, in Red Lake, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, in the State of Minnesota, as a common carrier of passengers and freight for hire, together with the doing of all things necessary, convenient or incidental thereto. For the purposes of carrying on said business, this corporation may buy, own, sell, lease, let, build, and operate, steam boats, barges, tugs, launches, or any other sort of water craft, whether propelled by steam, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, alcohol, or other motive power; may buy, construct, lease, let, own, and operate docks and wharves, and for that purpose may buy or acquire by condemnation proceedings, or otherwise, any real estate convenient and necessary for the carrying on of the said business; may buy, sell, own, lease, let, develope, improve, water powers, dams or locks for the purpose of carrying on said business; may borrow money for the corporate purposes of said corporation and issue notes, obligations, bonds, and securities therefore, in the name of said corporation, and pledge and mortgage, the property, rights and franchises of said corporation as security for the payment thereof, and in general, do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the business of said corporation, not inconsistent with the laws of the State of Minnesota.

Article 111.

The principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be at the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

Article 1V.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be the 9th day of June, A. D., 1906, and the period of continuance of this corporation shall be thirty (30) years.

Article V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), which shall be divided in one thousand (1000) shares of Ten Dollars ($10.00 each, and shall be paid in at the time or times and in the manner prescribed by the board of directors, in cash or property at the cash market value thereof.

Article V1.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2500.00).

Article V11.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation shall be, Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Segardson, D.A. Kolstrand all of Highlanding Minn. James O' Brien, Carl Jenson, all of Kratka Minn. W. A. Swanson of Rhoda Minn. E.K. Gjernes, Sjur Stolass all of Radny Minn., all of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Article V111.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of Eleven directors, who shall be elected annually by the stockholders at the annual meeting thereof and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified.

The names of the first Board of Directors of said corporation are Ole Overum, Carl Jenson W.A. Swanson, W.G. Hunt, Lars K. Vindlas Peter Hedeen, E.K. Gjernes, James O'Brien, August J Wentzel D.A Kolstrand, Frank Lundeen, whose term of office shall continue until the first annual meeting of said corporation and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The officers of said corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors at their first meeting after the annual stockholders meeting in each year, and who shall respectively hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. The office of treasurer and secretary may be held by the same person.

Until the first election of officers by the board of directors Ole Howard shall be president; Carl Jonsen vice president; and William A. Swanson secretary and August J. Wentzel treasurer.

Said corporation may have such other officers as may be necessary for carrying on its affairs, to be provided by the by-laws or designated by the board of directors. All such officers to be chosen by the board of directors.

Any vacancies in any office or in the board of directors shall be filled by the board of directors for the unexpired term.

The president and vice president of this corporation shall be elected from the Board of Directors.

Regular and special meetings of the directors and stockholders may be held at such times and under such rules as may be prescribed by the by-laws of such corporation.

Article 1X.

No sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation pledge or other disposition of any stock of this corporation shall be valid or effectual for any purpose until there has first been endorsed upon the stock certificate to be effected by such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition, the approval or consent of a majority of the Board of Directors of such corporation, sitting as a board, to such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition.

Article X.

The by-laws of this corporation shall be adopted by the first board of directors, and may be from time to time modified, amended or repealed by stockholders or members at any regular meeting or any special meeting called for that purpose.

The annual meeting for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may regularly and properly come before the same, shall be held at the office of said corporation, in the Town of Highlanding County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 2nd Monday of January in each year, commencing with the year 1907, and immediately after each annual meeting the board of directors shall meet for the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as the by-laws may prescribe.

The first meeting of said corporation shall be held at Sunbeam Postoffice in the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of June, A.D. 1906 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and a meeting of the said board of directors shall be held at the same place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day.

In witness whereof the persons hereinbefore named have subscribed their names and affixed their seals this 28th day of March, A. D., 1906.

Andrew Ellingson, [Seal]
Ole Overum, [Seal]
James O'Brien, [Seal]
Carl Jensen, [Seal]
August J, Wentzel, [Seal]
J.A. Kelly, [Seal]
W.A. Swanson, [Seal]
E.K. Gjernes, [Seal]
Sjur Stolaas, [Seal]
Julius Halverson, [Seal]
Ljot Sigardson, [Seal]
D.A. Kolestrand, [Seal]

Executed in presence of:
B. Henry, Costello
Hallvard Rystad.

State of Minnesota) S. S.
County of Red Lake)

On this 2nd day of June, A.D., 1906, before me, a notary public in and for the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, personally appeared Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, James O'Brien, Carl Jensen, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, W.A. Swanson, E.K. Gjernes Sjur Stolaas, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Sigardson D.A. Kolstrand, to me personally known to be the same persons described in and who executed the foregoing articles of incorporation, and each acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

(Seal)
W·G. Hunt.
Notary Public,
Red Lake County, Minnesota,
My commission expires June 21st 1912.

Office of Register of Deeds.
State of Minnesota
County of Red Lake.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 3rd day of July, A.D. 1906. at 8 o,clock A.M. and was duly recorded in book E of Misc. page 388.

(Seal)
Frank Jeffers.
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA.
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I hereby certify that the within Instrument was filed for record in this office on the 6th day of June A.D. 1906. at 3 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book M. 3 of Incorporations on page 133.

P.E. Hanson.
Secretary of State.
Germo & Farley.
Attorneys.

PROBATE NOTICE

CITATION FOR HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINESTRATION.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedent.

The State of Minnesota to all persons interested in the above entitled Matter:

Whereas Eva Shosten has filed in this Court a petition praying for administration of the estate of the above named decedent, and that letters of administration thereon be granted to Eva Shosten:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and that all persons interested in said matter be and appear before this Court on the 4th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A.M., at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, at Red Lake Falls, in said County, and then and there, or as soon thereafter, as said matter can be heard, show cause if any they have, why said petition should not be granted; and that this citation be served by the publication thereof in THE SUNBEAM, a weekely newspaper, printed and published in said County, according to law.

WITNESS THE HONORABLE, N.W. Tarrant Judge of said court, and the seal of said Court, this 6th day of July 1906.

[Seal] N.W. Tarrant. Judge.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on August 6th 1906. viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H.E. No. 898, Red Lake Series, for the S.W ¼, Sec 4, Twp. 153 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brandsberg Minn, John Oftedahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostvoden, of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR &
CIVIL ENGINEER.
Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.
Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

Vegetables as Medicine.

If you are wakeful eat lettuce.

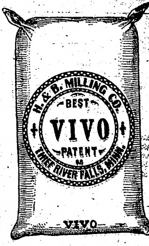
For affections of the skin and for yellow skin eat onions. Onions are also good for colds, coughs and scrofula.

For a torpid liver eat freely of asparagus.

For malaria and general breakdown eat cranberries.

If nervous and irritable eat plenty of celery.

For constipation eat fruits—ripe and healthy fruits. Fresh fruits are good, so are figs and dates. Raisins are beneficial.



VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleet line of flour & feed at both points.

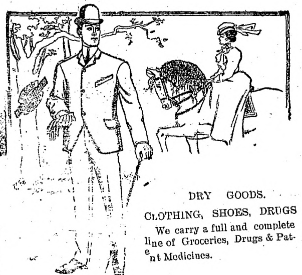
☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS
State Bank,
OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.
PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.
John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.
A full and complete line of groceries.
Best brands of flour, at lowest market price
.........00............
Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.
John Radneskie.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 22 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn. at Thief River Falls, Minn on August 6th, 1906, viz:

John Rogers.

H.E. No. 7815 Chippewa Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 155 N. R. 37 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

George Cunningham, Charley Clark, Jorgen Jelle, William Lillehetten, all of Jelle Minn.

[illegible]

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th, 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 8, 1906 viz:

Julius Halvorson.

H.E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 155 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ljot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnson, Ole Vattendahl of Highlanding Minn. Oscar Swanson of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Read Chris Larsons add, the hustling Anton merchant in this issue and call and see him.

Nels Olson, of "the Town of Garnes has been doing carpenter work on the Sunbeam office this week.

Rev. [E.A.] Mostue will open the dedication exercises at the school house on next Sunday afternoon,

Ole Overum has just completed siding his residence, which will matearialy add to its warmth for the coming winter.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Thomas Jacobson the Highlanding post master has just completed a large and substancial addition to his residence.

Owing to Mr. Hammerstein not being a full citizen of the U.S., he did not qualify as school clerk and Miss Kuehnel will hold over.

There is a rumor and quite a strong one that there will be another wedding in Deer Park township soon if it has not alerady occured. Guess who.

Henry Castillo, of Hilda post office, passed down the river on Wednesdays Flyer on his way to Thief River Falls, to have his hand treated for a bad case of poisening.

P.C. Wolde and Alfred Swanson were pleasant callers here on Sunday afternoon. We enjoyed a sail with them on the river which was perfor ned in the true viking style.

Walt McAndrees is doing some breaking for Jerry O'Brien this week and reports that the land is getting rather dry for breaking something new for this part of the country for nearly two years.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Gully, Minn.

Alfred Eye and August J. Wentzel, started on their canvassing trip for shares in the Red Lak River Transportation Company, yesterday morning. Better see them and get hold of a few shares of this stock while it is selling at for, as the price is bound to advance next season.

Dan Carroll, the bonanza farmer of Mayfield township, left here a couple of weeks ago to visit with old friends near Fosston. He was taken ill during his absence and was operated on at Fosston last week for appendicitis. The latest advices from there are to effect that he is recovering nicely and will soon be able to return.—Plummer Pioneer.

There will be a basket social at the school house on next Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of raising funds to buy a school librairy. There should be a good attendance at this meeting, as it is gotten up for a good purpose. Good music will be in attendance, and a pleasant afternoon and evening entertainment may be expected.

The school meeting last Saturday evening was well attended and the following board of directors were elected, Director A. Eye, Treasurer Ole Overum, Clerk Alfred Hammersten. It was voted to have eight months school and to hire a teacher with a first grade certificate if possible, and if only second grade teacher was employed to only have four months school.

A Dirty Low Trick.

An anonymous letter signed, a farmer, was sent to Thief River Falls last week making complaint against Fred Houg as Captain of "The Dan Patch" It was just such a letter as a cowardly sneak would write that was afraid to sign his own name for no matter what the complaint can be against the lumber Companys or the service on the river, there is one certainty and that is that Fred has done the best he could to get up all the freight he could with the sized boat that he has had to do with, not hesitating to work night and day Sundays and all, and the party that is in such low down business as to try to stab as hard a working man as him in the back, is just the kind of man that would betray his best friend for a dollar if he thought he could do it and not get caught at it. While we never have, and I fear we never will enjoy the reputation of being very friendly to any opression of the people by a corporation, yet we will always do in the future as we have done in the past, pitch into head quarters and let the laboring men alone that are working for wages.

From Rhoda Special.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meline left for McIntosh today where Mrs. Meline will go to see a physician.

Chas. Erickson on of the popular Rhoda men left for McIntosh the past week.

E B. Johnson of McIntoash is doing business in Deer Park this week.

Henry Peterson, has been on the sick list during the past few days, and is now able to be around again.

Ed Havik, the Grit merchant was seen here Sunday.

Oluf Snoback has laid up his ditching machine for the coming month owing to the busy season of the year.

Miss Lillie Johnson of Datton is visiting with her sister. Miss Thone Johnson.

Bernt Olsen, the Rhoda blacksmith, who has been absent the past week on important business is expected home this week and will attend to the farmers as usual.

Singer Bros., have been paying 14 cent per pound for butter, up to the present time of the year, which certainly shows we have some up to date merchants in the eleven towns.

Dr. C.C. HOAGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.

Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail leaves Sunbeam at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thursday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office Crookston Minn, June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final prof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn, on August 8th 1906. viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series, for the L c 1,2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W

She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn,

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29,1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn, June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn, on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H-E. No. 805, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O. Larson, Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Hudell, Minn, Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston June 22 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn, on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O Nesja.

H. E. No. 664 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, S½ of N.E. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn, Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan.

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Sander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz:

Tollef B. Nesland.

H.E. No. 646 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole o. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 581 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 29, Tp. 153 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his contiauous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Polousi of Highlanding Minn.

R. J MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn, on August 8th 1906, viz

Jerrie O'Brien.

HE. No. 1196 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 15th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 9th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 2, 1906 viz:

John J. Ward.

H.E. no. 824 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 26 Twp. 151 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continious residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Joseph A. Duchemin, John O'Reily, of Germantown Minn. Charles Schuster. Christopher Porter of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn, July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on August 21, 1906 viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H.E. no. 1187, Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 30 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Strande, Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Eric Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn, July 11th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz:

Berit Martha Valstad.

H.E. no. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼, Sec. 23 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gullingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn, Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. BISHOP, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz:

Alfred Bakke:

H.E. no. 389 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oveson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior.- Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H.E. no. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3,4 5, 6, Sec. 29 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1,2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 16 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter E. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn. Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olson, Even Oftelie, Knut Jorstad of Rudell Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

COLONEL.

The Clebrated half Morgan & half French Coach stallion COLNEL, will stand during the balence of the season, at Rhoda, on Mondays, Tuesdays & Wednesdays.

Terms. To insure 5.00.

E. B. Johnson, Proprieror.

Remember the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.

That's the Holiday Week of the Year —The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATEFAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Ampitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd, Dedication adress by James J. Hill.

Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.

The greatest Live stock Exhibition of the world-All the week.

Three great Auction sales of Pure Bred Cattle in the Amphitheater daily.

Live stock parade on Friday. Sensational Racing each day.

Increased Agricultural and Horticultural Exhibits. Spectacular Fireworks, Racing, Etc., each night. $5,000 Trotting Race on Minneapolis Day. $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day. Exciting Ladies Relay Riding Race—Six days—Every afternoon of fair week. High Class Specialties each afternoon and evening. Demonstrations of all kinds of farm and Dairy Machinery—Daily. Premiums and Purses $65,641.50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to Leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th.

C. N. COSGROVE, Pres. E. W. RANDALL, Sec'y.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer. Edward J Singer.

SINGER BROS. Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE, AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & Feed.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

GIVE ME A CALL.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

Backward Andy's Coortin'

BY SEUMAS MAC MANUS.

Liza Jane she lived in the very next townland to myself. An' as Liza Jane was given out for a hundred pounds of dry money, there was, as ye may well suspect, a tremendous traffic of boys come afther her.

But it's little encouragement they got from Liza Jane; she considered coortin' a ridiculous waste of time that a pair of tomfools, only, might engage in; an' as for marryin' the most of the lads that presented themselves, she said she wouldn't make dishclouts of them, to wipe a pot.

This, I say, she thought of most of the neighbor boys, but not of all. There was one, Andy McClarnin, or Bab's Andy, as he was better known, by raison, as his father's name was Bab. Anyway, this Bab's Andy was no eyesore to Liza Jane, for he had a fine farm that fed five milch-cows, an' give him ten head of stock to sell off every harvest; his father, poor man, was five years dead.

An' Liza Jane Bohunnan saw that, all things considered, she couldn't get, an' wouldn't ask for, a better or a warmer sittin'-down than Bab's Andy's. An' accordin'ly she made up her mind that she'd marry Bab's Andy—in case the boy was anyways middlin' willin'.

At the tail-end o' four years' coortship Liza Jane begun to be not too plaised with proceedin's. An' fair good raison, too, the poor girl had.

"Mother," says she of a night when both herself an' her mother was sittin' over the kitchen fire, "I have let him fool 'round me for long enough. I mean," goes on she, "to have him, once an' for all, make up his mind on this matter whether he wants to make a wife of me or not—I mean that he'll make it up, or I'll make it up for him purty quick."

"Brave woman ye are, Liza Jane," says the mother, says she.

"An' on next Sunday night, too, he'll make his dicision."

"The jewel ye are, Liza Jane!"

An' when, on the next Sunday night, poor Andy, poor sowl, come ploddin' to Liza Jane's, it's little he suspected the thraps that was laid down for him to walk into.

"Are ye all alone?" says he.

"My mother an' them," says she, "went one road an' another, to see the neighbors, an' left me to myself."

"Which," says Bab's Andy, says he, "was noways kindly of them tor'st ye."

"Which," says Liza Jane, says she, calm, an' lookin' steady into the fire, "was very, very good of them."

"Good of them!" says Andy, says he.

"Was very, very good of them," says she, "considerin' that they knew I needed a quate hour to myself to discuss in me mind a very serious matter—in fact, I may say, an extrhaordinary serious matter."

Bab's Andy he was all taken aback, an' the face on him got lengthy at onct, an' he says, "Oh! I beg yer pardon, Liza Jane."

"An' exthraordinary serious matter, as I was sayin'," she went on, as cool an' calm, "an' one that wants a good deal of deliberation; an' one, moreover, that I'm mortial glad to have ye here, to talk it over with ye."

"Oh!" says Bab's Andy, says he, settlin' himself to hear it, an' lookin' pleased that he was to be consulted.

"For," says she, "it's such a matter that there's only one man in the worl' I could talk it over with—an' that's you."

"I'm proud," says Andy. "I'm proud to know it, Liza Jane."

"For better, for worse," says she, playin' a thrump-card, "for richer, for poorer, for good or for ill."

Poor Andy, it seemed like a dhraim to him that he'd heard something like them words somewhere or other afore, but it puzzled him for a minute to mind what it was about. So he gave it up, an' remarked, "Just so, Liza Jane. Indeed, so?"

An' then says she, "For richer, I sayed, for poorer, for good or for ill, from this time henceforrid." Then she waited a wee bit, to give him another chance—though if she'd waited durin' the nine lives of a cat it would never get into Andy's skull. "Andy McClarnin," she says, "don't ye see what I'm dhrivin' at?"

Poor Andy looked confused an' ashamed of himself, an' says he: "Faith, an' I don't, then, Liza, know from Adam down what ye're dhrivin' at, at all."

"I don't doubt it," says Liza Jane, sevairly. "Well, will ye understand me when I say that I'm thinkin' I had best marry an' settle down."

Troth, that was plain enough for a palin'-post to understand. So it's very little wondher that Bab's Andy did.

"Marry," says she, "an' settle down," perfectly cool an' calm, an' never seemin' to see Andy's raptures at all. "An'," says she, "I was waitin', very anxious, to have your opinion on it."

"An' my opinion," says he, with his head hangin', "is that though ye've done many wise things in your life, ye never done anything wiser; an'—an'—for—for—myself—"

"Thanky, Andy," says she, snappin' him up afore she'd let him go any further. "An' it was about time I'd think of settlin', if I'm ever goin' to settle—"

"Yes," says Andy.

"An' seein' that I have a hundhred pounds at me back—"

"Yes," says Andy.

"A hundred pounds," says she, "not to mention the sprickled cow, which comes to me likewise—"

"Yes, yes."

"An' a store of linen," says Liza Jane, says she.

"Magnificent!" says Andy.

"Seein' I have all that—" says she.

"Exactly," says Andy.

"An' seein', moreover," says she, slower, "seein', moreover," says she, "that I've been axed—" An' then she closed her mouth hard, an' waited.

"Ah-h-h!" says Bab's Andy, says he, with a purty puzzlin' look comin' over his countenance.

"Axed by a boy," says Liza Jane, an' closed her mouth again.

"Ye-ye-yes," says Andy, says he, tryin' to recollect when, in the name of wondher, he had axed her, an' comin' to the conclusion that he must 'a' been walkin' in his sleep some time or other.

"Seein'," says Liza Jane, says she, "that I've been axed by one, last Saturday night was a week."

Andy was ten times more puzzled than afore.

"Axed," says she "on Saturday night last was a week, by a boy with a big farm, from the Dhrimholme parish," an' she begun pilin' more turf on the fire.

"I thought—thought," says Andy, says he, sthrugglin', "thought—it wasn't a boy from the Dhrimholme parish ye intended to marry."

"Oh-h-h!" says Liza Jane, says she. I see. You thought it was a boy in our own parish I was goin' to take?" says she, encouragin'ly.

Andy was himself again, an' he says, "Yes, Liza Jane; yes."

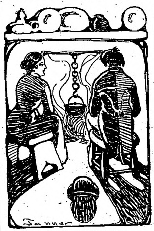
Says Liza Jane, says she, "Did ye think it was Mose McClure?"

"No," says Bab's Andy.

"Nor Sam Long?" says she.

"Nor Sam Long," says Bab's Andy.

"Then in wondher's name," says Liza Jane, says she, turnin' to him, an' lookin' him square, "in wondher's name," says she, "who do ye mean that I was goin' to marry?"



"NO," SAYS BAB'S ANDY.

"An' I thought," says he, "Liza Jane, it was myself ye were goin' to marry."

Liza Jane she got a face on her that would freeze a lough, an, she dhrew herself up, an' says she, "I beg yer pardon, Misther McClarnin" — she wouldn't consent to know Andy McClarnin just then—"I beg yer pardon, Misther McClarnin," says she—an' poor Andy when he seen the sight of her, an' heerd the words of her, went as weak as a dish-clout—"but I hope in my heart, an' sincerely thrust, that ye didn't mean to insinuate—even in the inside of yourself—that I meant to offer to marry you—you, Misther McClarnin, or any other man that steps in shoe-leather this day—to offer myself to marry you without your first axin' me, Misther McClarnin?"

"Och, och, I ask an' beg," says Andy, says he, an' him in such a state of disthress as might melt the heart of a millstone, "I ask an' beg," says he, "an' implore of ye a hundhred thousand pardons for my ignorance in puttin' the thing as I did. But sure ye know, an' know, that if I didn't ax ye in words it wasn't for want of the wish, but the will, for four years gone. Ye know, an' know, that it was only fear kep' me from sayin' the words to ye—I mean to say ye should know. I wanted to ax ye, an' I come to ax ye three times, an' the fright overtuk me, an' I run home like a hare. I'm a dunce, Liza Jane. An' there I am now," says he, givin' up for want of breath, "an' do what ye like with me."

But as Bab's Andy had gone on, Liza Jane's look was changin' an' changin' an, when he finished, her look was as mild an' gentle as, a lamb's.

An' then she hung her head a wee bit, an sthrove her level best to blush, an' says she, "Oh, Andy, Andy! An' ye never breathed a word of this to me afore! An' I never suspected it! No, no, it's me is the dunce—it's me is the dunce, Andy!"

Poor Andy's heart, when he saw the change in her, come up again from the bottom of his boots, an' was thumpin' against the crown of his skull, wantin' room to rise. "An'" says he, "Liza Jane Bohunnan, then ye don't take it ill—me thinkin' of ye?"

"Andy McClarnin," says she, "ye know this is suddint—very suddint. An' myself is flustered, an'—an' narvous a bit, an'— But if ye insist on an answer on the spur of the moment," says she, "I don't believe I do take it ill, at all, at all."

"An' Liza Jane Bohunnan," says Andy, says he, gettin' the narve as Liza Jane lost it, "Liza Jane Bohunnan," says he, "will ye consent from this time forrid to wet yer wee grain of tay in my tay-pot?"

"Andy McClarnin," says she, "ye're a daicent, industrious boy, an' come of daicent, industrious people, an'—an' myself doesn't know but—but—maybe I could do worse."

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Vaseline will make the eyelashes thicker. I do not know whether it will make them grow longer or not.

Temple of Buddha in a Philadelphia Park

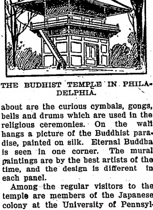
ONE RECENTLY TRANSPORTED FROM JAPAN.

Interesting Oriental Place of Worship Said to Be the Only One in America—Has Been Placed in Philadelphia Park.

Philadelphia.—In this free land the pious or the superstitious may worship anything or nothing without causing comment. But we have not yet grown accustomed to the worship of Buddha, and the sight of Japanese appealing to the gods of their island home is one to cause a national craning of necks. The shrine that is the mecca for pious orientals is a temple recently set up by Japanese workmen in a shady corner of Fairmount park, Philadelphia. It was never intended as a place of worship, but was set up merely as a curiosity for American visitors to the park. Just as pious Americans in a foreign land, however, would avail themselves of the privilege of praying and meditating in a Christian church, so Japs who live in Philadelphia or who go there on foreign ships, seek the favor of their own gods in the quaint retreat just erected in Fairmount park.

The temple is said to be the only one outside of Japan. The Japs are indebted to John H. Converse and Samuel M. Vauclain for the privilege of worshipping Buddha in a foreign land. Once within the sacred portals Buddhists might imagine themselves back in the land of the lotus, Wide-eyed and gentle visaged goddesses await the coming of the believer, wonderfully carved symbols adorn the altars, mother of pearl incense bowls are at hand for the faithful, and Buddhist deities in various poses invite a continuance of the homage to which they were accustomed in the land of their origin. It is very interesting, very oriental and ancient enough to satisfy the most exacting lover of the antique. The temple was built more than 300 years ago at the village of Furimachi, province of Hadachi, Japan, by Lord Satake Giobu-no-Tayu, of the noble Satake family, in memory of his father, and for the peaceful rest of his departed soul. It is two stories high and resembles an Indian pagoda in its architecture. There is an outside balcony on the second story encircling the structure, which is 45 feet high, 30 feet wide and 16 feet in depth. Its roof is tiled, as are all Buddhist temples, in distinction from Shinto temples, which are always straw thatched. The chrysanthemum, which is the Japanese imperial crest, is seen prominently upon the roof. It was allowed to be put there when the imperial tablet was conferred upon the Temple Sciouji. The two Deva kings, Braham and Indra, stand on either side of the gate as guards of the temple. Fantastic and fabulous beasts carved out of wood project from every beam and support, corresponding to the gargoyles of Christian ecclesiastical architecture. The old bronze bell, which hangs on the balcony was cast 450 years ago, and was used to summon the devout to prayer.

In the interior of the second floor are the shrines and religious treasures. The shrine of the Goddess of Mercy stands in the center, guarded on each side by two sacred dogs which were carved 600 years ago. Hung about are the curious cymbals, gongs, bells and drums which are used in the religious ceremonies. On the wall hangs a picture of the Buddhist paradise, painted on silk. Eternal Buddha is seen in one corner. The mural paintings are by the best artists of the time, and the design is different in each panel.



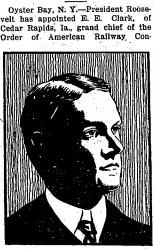
THE BUDHIST TEMPLE IN PHILADELPHIA.

Among the regular visitors to the temple are members of the Japanese colony at the University of Pennsylvania. One student, a devout worshipper of Buddha, is almost a daily visitor to the shrine in the park. He is always alone, and is very careful to see that no mocking freshman or sophomore follows him to the scene of his devotion. Only the flesh and blood guardians of the temple and Brahma, the fierce-looking image who eternally scowls at the visitors, see the little student burn incense to the gods of his homeland.

High Post For Labor Man

Head of Railway Conductors Is Made a Member of Interstate Commerce Commission.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—President Roosevelt has appointed E. E. Clark, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., grand chief of the Order of American Railway Conductors, a member of the interstate commerce commission. The new appointee fills one of the two new commissionerships provided by the railroad rate law passed by congress during the last session.



E. E. CLARK.
(Well-Known Labor Leader Who Has Been Appointed to Interstate Commerce Board.)

Mr. Clark has shown great ability in the handling of labor questions, both in his position as head of the railway conductors and as a member of the anthracite coal strike commission. He was highly commended to the president by his associates. He is cordially indorsed also by the senators and representatives from Iowa, and by several of the most influential labor organizations.

Mr. Clark has been at the head of the Railway Conductors' brotherhood for many years. The president believes that he has the confidence of the labor element of the country as completely as any other man.

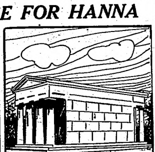
Mr. Clark was born on February 18, 1856, within the sound of the locomotive whistles of old Erie, in the quiet village of Lima, in Livingston county, N. Y. His father died when the boy was but six years old, but Clark's will and energy were early manifest. He entered and graduated from the Genesee Wesleyan seminary at Lima, at that time an institution of wide reputation. In 1874 his mother, accompanied by her four children, went west and located in Austin, Minn. While there Clark obtained employment as brakeman on a western railroad and from then until 1889 went through the usual trials and hardships incident to the life of a brakeman, freight and passenger conductor, when he resigned active railroading to enter the service of the Order of Railway Conductors of America. He was elected to the position of grand senior conductor by the grand division, which met at Denver. One year afterwards he became grand chief conductor, which position he has now held for 16 years to the great dignity and credit of the order and himself.

RESTING PLACE FOR HANNA

Handsome Mausoleum at Cleveland, O., Built at Cost of $100,000, Is Almost Completed.

Cleveland, O.—The mausoleum in Lake View cemetery, Cleveland, which is to be the last resting place of the remains of Marcus A. Hanna, will be entirely completed within the next few weeks at most. The exterior work is already about done, and the grounds have been graded and sown with grass seed. The body of the late senator, now in the vault of the Wade Memorial chapel will be removed to the Hanna mausoleum during the present summer.

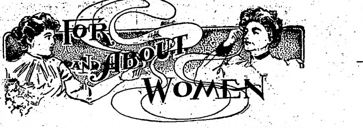
The Hanna mausoleum is built of white marble, and cost $100,000. It stands upon an imposing eminence perhaps a quarter of a mile from the entrance to the cemetery. Only a few hundred feet away upon another eminence is the memorial to President Garfield, and nearby is the John D. Rockefeller monolith. The Wade Memorial is but a short distance from the new mausoleum. It is conceded to be one of the most beautiful memorial chapels on the American continent.



MAUSOLEUM OF THE LATE SENATOR HANNA.

"I am afraid you have been drinking a little," said Mrs. Trim to the applicant for a hand-out.

"Lady," answered Meandering Mike, "youse don't know me. I never drinks a little. Dis is a whole lot."



OF AID TO THE HOSTESS.

SUGGESTIONS FOR NOVEL AND PLEASING ENTERTAINMENTS.

An Amusing Way in Which to Choose Partners—A Contest That Will Test One's Knowledge of the Bible.

A Way to Choose Partners.

Ask all the girls into one room, the men into another. Close the folding doors between and then select the wittiest man in the party to act as auctioneer. He is to go to the room occupied by the feminine portion of the guests and describe, not too accurately, one of the men; the girls are to bid, the highest bidder to be given a number, and a duplicate number being pinned upon the man who has just been auctioned. He is then permitted to go in and find his partner, who bears the corresponding number. This proceeds until all have been paired off. It is most amusing and livens the beginning of an evening.

A Bible Contest.

Write the following questions on strips of paper, one question on each strip, then put all into a basket and have a supply of pins; pass the basket and let each guest draw out a paper, and the first one to answer a question correctly pins it upon her dress. Each one in turn reads a question. At the end of the contest it will be easy to determine the winner by the bristling papers on the gown. One of the many pretty framed mottoes will be suitable for a souvenir. The key is to be kept by the hostess or leader and is given below the questions.

1. Which were written first, the epistles or the gospels?
2. Which was written first—John's gospel or the Revelation?
3. How did St. Peter die?
4. What is the meaning of "Mammon?"
5. When was the Bible divided into verses?
6. Who first translated the Bible into Latin?
7. What language did our Lord speak?
8. Who wrote the epistle to the Hebrews?
9. Who was the Pharaoh of the Exodus?
10. How much was a mite?
11. How far was a "Sabbath day's journey?"
12. What was the leviathan mentioned by Job?
13. What was the last Epistle written by St. Paul?
14. What articles were kept in the Ark of the Covenant?
15. Where were the disciples first called Christians?
16. What is the difference between a disciple and an apostle?

KEY.

1. The epistles were written by Paul 25 years before the Gospels.
2. The Revelation was written many years before the Gospel.
3. Crucified with his head down at his own request.
4. Money—God's great rival.
5. In the ninth and thirteenth centuries.
6. St. Jerome.
7. Aramaic, a mixture of Hebrew and Chaldaic.
8. Some say Apollos, but most critics say Paul was the author.
9. Menephtha, a son of Rameses the second.
10. One-sixteenth of a cent.
11. About seven-eighths of a mile.
12. The crocodile.
13. The second epistle to Timothy, written just before his martyrdom.
14. The stone tables of the Commandments, a sample of manna, and "Aaron's rod that budded."
15. At Antioch.
16. An apostle is a divinely accredited messenger; a disciple is a leader or follower. There were 12 apostles, the others were called disciples.

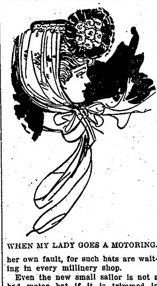
MADAME MERRI.

The Proper Motor Hat.

Only That Should Be Chosen That Will Allow of Wearing a Voluminous Veil.

To enjoy motoring thoroughly one must wear the right clothes for it, and a big hat that must be held on will effectually spoil automobiling for any woman. Even when a veil tied over a big hat guarantees that it will not part company with the head there is still discomfort enough, for the wind gets under the brim and tugs until every hairpin hurts and each individual hair pulls, and the temper of the wearer is worn to a frazzle.

Every woman should have one hat in her outfit which will fit snugly under a motor veil, and if she does not select a hat for the purpose that is becoming as well as comfortable it is her own fault, for such hats are waiting in every millinery shop.



WHEN MY LADY GOES A MOTORING.

Even the new small sailor is not a bad motor hat if it is trimmed in ribbon and wings, or in ribbon alone and is fitted comfortably to the head by a cleverly adjusted bandeau. Despite its coquettish tip to the left, it has not brim enough to be unmanageable, and with plenty of hatpins it can be made very secure.

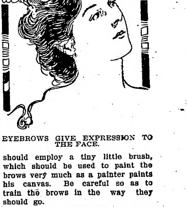
Case for Turn-Overs.

A case to hold turnovers may be made of fancy crepe paper. Two oblong pieces of cardboard the desired size for the case are covered with the pretty colored paper, a layer of scented cotton lying next to the board. The edges of the paper may be pasted or sewed together. A band of ribbon two inches wide passes across the ends of one of the boards, the ribbon ends being crossed on the back of the board and brought forward across the front of the other board to form a hinge, and at the same time form straps to keep the collars in place.

Eyes and Eyebrows.

If Eyebrows Are Scanty, Try to Improve by Use of Vaseline or Olive Oil.

"Beautiful eyes should be outlined by nice eyebrows, which should be heavy and dark. There are various things to make the eyebrows grow, but I have found white vaseline about the best, except, perhaps, olive oil, slightly warmed and used upon the brows at night. In outlining them one should employ a tiny little brush, which should be used to paint the brows very much as a painter paints his canvas. Be careful so as to train the brows in the way they should go.



EYEBROWS GIVE EXPRESSION TO THE FACE.

"Beetle brows spoil any eye. Take a pair of forceps and pull out the wandering hairs.

"The eyes should have long, dark lashes, and it is the aim of the woman who wants to be pretty to make her lashes long and deep. Just how well she succeeds depends upon her own cleverness, for there is a constant field for her efforts.

French Wealth Well Distributed.

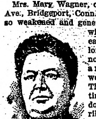
The fact that France is able to hold substantially all of her own public debt, to finance her own industrial enterprises, and still have so much left for outside investment is a remarkable evidence of the thrift of the French people. One reason for the great prosperity of the French people seems to be the general distribution of wealth among the population, large fortunes and great industrial combinations being comparatively few in number.—Bankers' Magazine.

Fragrant Hats.

Faddish summer girls are lining the hats with sachet powder. And, where the whole hat cannot be lined in this manner, there is a padded hat band slipped in, or, there is a little cushion filled with sachet powder. This can be lightly tacked in the top of the hat and the result is something very sweet smelling. Every effort is made to keep the hair smelling sweet.

TERRIBLE TO RECALL.

Five Weeks in Bed with Intensely Painful Kidney Trouble.



Mrs. Mary Wagner, of 1367 Kossuth Ave., Bridgeport, Conn., says: "I was so weakened and generally run down with kidney disease that for a long time I could not do my work and was five weeks in bed. There was continual bearing down pain, terrible backaches, headaches and at times dizzy spells when everything was a blur before me. The passages of the kidney secretions were irregular and painful, and there was considerable sediment and odor. I don't know what I would have done but for Doan's Kidney Pills. I could see an improvement from the first box, and five boxes brought a final cure."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SHEPHERD'S CROOK.

City People First Learn Use to Which the Implement Is Put by Owner.

"What is a shepherd's crook used for?"

The automobilists were out, far out, in the country. A summer sky of bright, delicious blue smiled down on them. An air perfumed with turf and flower scents fanned their cheeks. The land was dotted with sheep, which a shepherd guarded, attended by a shaggy and wise shepherd dog.

"The use of a shepherd's crook? Why," she said, "it is a staff, a support, isn't it?"

"But the crook—the crook handle—that is what I'm speaking of. What is the use of that crook handle?" he repeated.

She did not know. No one knew. He called the young shepherd.

"These ignorant people," he said, "don't know why a shepherd always carries a crook. Show them what a crook is used for."

The shepherd smiled, and, approach a sheep, he hooked the crook around its hind leg, and drew it to him. He hooked another sheep's hind leg, another's, another's. In a minute or two he had hooked a dozen sheep.

"That's wot a shepherd's crook is fur," he said; "to grab holt o' the sheep with. A shepherd without a crook would be like a fisherman without a hook."

Shelter Tents.

There is a probability of the Australian military authorities encouraging the manufacture or importation of shelter tents, as used in Japan during the late war. The tent consists of a waterproof sheet with hooks and eyelets, the weight being trifling. Each Japanese soldier carries one of these sheets in his kit, and any number of them can be laced together, the custom being for four men to form a bivouac. Arms are piled in the usual way, and the sheets are spread over the pile weapons, affording shelter from both heat and rain. They can be utilized in many ways for sheltering the soldiers.

When Herbert Spencer was a boy his father sent him away from home to school. The youngster became homesick and with two shillings in his pocket made his way home, over 120 miles, in three days, walking most of the way. He did 48 miles the first day and 47 on the second. On the third day a friendly coach driver took him most of the way for nothing.

BACK TO PULPIT.

What Food Did for a Clergyman.

A minister of Elizabethtown tells how Grape-Nuts food brought him back to his pulpit: "Some 5 years ago I had an attack of what seemed to be La Grippe which left me in a complete state of collapse and I suffered for some time with nervous prostration. My appetite failed, I lost flesh till I was a mere skeleton, life was a burden to me, I lost interest in everything and almost in everybody save my precious wife.

"Then on the recommendation of some friends I began to use Grape-Nuts food. At that time I was a miserable skeleton, without appetite and hardly able to walk across the room; had ugly dreams at night, no disposition to entertain or be entertained and began to shun society.

"I finally gave up the regular ministry, indeed I could not collect my thoughts on any subject, and became almost a hermit. After I had been using the Grape-Nuts food for a short time I discovered that I was taking on new life and my appetite began to improve; I began to sleep better and my weight increased steadily; I had lost some 50 pounds, but under the new food regime I have regained almost my former weight and have greatly improved in every way.

"I feel that I owe much to Grape-Nuts and can truly recommend the food to all who require a powerful rebuilding agent, delicious to taste and always welcome."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. A true natural road to regain health, or hold it, is by use of a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream morning and night. Or have the food made into some of the many delicious dishes given in the little recipe book found in pkgs.

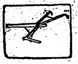
Ten days' trial of Grape-Nuts helps many. "There's a reason."

Look in pkgs. for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

HARVESTING BEANS.

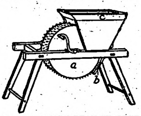
Directions for the Growing and Handling of This Profitable Crop.



The bean crop fills a good place in the ordinary farm rotation, since it may be planted at a time when other work is not pressing and require but a small amount of cultivation. They grow well on ordinary clay loam soils, and give good returns for the labor expended.

Bush beans should be planted after all danger of frost is past and corn planting and other spring work has been well completed. A good crop may often be matured if planted as late as July 4. They do best on loam soils and prefer clay uplands that are well drained which need not be particularly rich.

It is best to plant them in rows about two and one-half to three and one-half feet apart. They may be planted with a corn planter, adjusted to a slow speed, so as to drop the beans six to eight inches apart in the row. Some planters have special attachments for planting beans. The ground should be harrowed after the beans are planted and the surface may be thoroughly cultivated at that time. The only cultivation necessary to grow them is frequent stirring of the surface to keep down weeds and retain moisture. Deep plowing should be avoided, since it is unnecessary and harmful.



THE HOME-MADE BEAN SHELLER.

The beans should be allowed to ripen and become brown before being picked. It is usually best to allow them to become as dry as possible, so as not to shell out in handling. There are several contrivances for pulling and cutting the beans, one of the simplest and most practical is shown in the cut.

It consists of a knife, which may be made by any blacksmith, which is bolted to the stock of an ordinary single shovel plow. With one horse this instrument may be used to cut several acres a day. The plow should be held so that the knife passes along just under the surface of the ground, cutting the bean stems about one-half inch below the surface.

After allowing the beans to dry and the leaves to wilt, they may be gathered into piles with a four-tined fork, where they may be allowed to remain for a day or two if the weather is dry. They should then be hauled to shelter and placed in a pile not more than three feet deep. If leaves are very green, there is danger of molding, which will seriously injure the beans. They must be left in this pile until thoroughly dry and the shells have become hard and brittle. They may then be hulled, either by beating them out with a stick, or by using one of the hullers, several makes of which are on the market.

A very cheap and effective huller suggested by Farm and Home may be made from the sketch. It consists of a cylinder, a, which may be made from a block of wood, into which are driven a number of No. 10 spikes, with heads cut off about one inch apart, and in rows. In the block, b, which serves as a concave, other spikes are driven, which, when the arrangement is mounted, will pass between the rows of spikes on the roller.

ABOUT THE FARM.

Make war on the poison ivy.

Cut the rye heads out of the wheat.

Timothy sod is right for rutabagas.

Study the matter of raising a little alfalfa.

There is too much waste land along our fences.

Clean out the swill barrel. Rotten swill is unfit for hogs.

If penned out-of-doors be sure to have a shelter from rain, and an awning or trees to shade from the sun. Hogs easily blister and suffer. Give them good water.

A hog can be reared in the pasture, with the cattle, almost without cost. It will learn to love and to follow the cows as easily as will a pet sheep. Free-range hogs are healthy.

Don't let a crust form on cultivated land. Start the cultivator going soon after each rain. A crust means that the soil moisture can rapidly evaporate. A dust mulch prevents such evaporation. Stir the soil every week or ten days, until time to lay-by the crop.

A Neglected Fence.

A neglected fence is always a detriment to the farm, especially if it be a stock and grain farm. The neglected fence teaches the farm animals that a fence may be ignored when they wish to get into a field where they should not be. A neglected fence is always unsightly and is usually a harbor of weeds and predatory insects.

A Balloon Incline Railroad.

Consul William Bardel writes from Bambery that Engineer Balderauer, of Salzberg, has invented a balloon railroad, experiments with which are now being made in the mountains in the neighborhood of that German city. It consists of a stationary balloon, which is fastened to a slide running along a single steel rail. The rail is fastened to the side of a steep mountain, which ordinary railroads could not climb, except through deep cuts and tunnels. The balloon is to float about 85 feet over the ground, and a heavy steel cable connects it with the rail. The conductor can, at will, make the balloon slide up and down the side of the mountain. For going up the motive power is furnished by hydrogen gas, while the descent is caused by pressure of water, which is poured into a large tank at the upper end of the road, and which serves as ballast. Suspended from the balloon is a circular car with room for ten passengers. The cable goes from the bottom of the balloon through the center of the car to a regulator of speed, which is controlled by the conductor. The inventor of this railroad claims that his patent will force all incline cable roads out of existence.

The Things We Eat.

Too much meat is absolutely hurtful to the body. Sailors on board of ships get scurvy when their supply of vegetable food is exhausted. The digestive organs of the human body demand vegetable food, and if we don't eat enough vegetables we pay for it dearly.

Nature gave us wheat, and in every kernel of wheat nature has distributed iron, starch, phosphorus, lime, sugar, salt and other elements necessary to make bone, blood and muscle.

EGG-O-SEE is wheat scientifically prepared. Cooked, and made into crisp flakes, EGG-O-SEE goes into the stomach ready for the digestive organs to convert it into life-giving substances with but little effort.

EGG-O-SEE eaters are a clean-eyed, strong and happy lot. The proof of a pudding and the proof of EGG-O-SEE is in the eating. EGG-O-SEE besides being solid nourishment is most palatable. Every mouthful is a joy to the taste and direct benefit to your health. A 10-cent package of EGG-O-SEE contains ten liberal breakfasts. Our friends advertise us. They eat EGG-O-SEE for a while. They grow strong. They are well and happy and they pass the good word along.

Next time you send to the grocer's tell your boy or girl to bring home a package of EGG-O-SEE. Have your children eat EGG-O-SEE. It is their friend. They'll eat EGG-O-SEE when nothing else will taste good.

You try EGG-O-SEE and you can deduct the cost from your doctor's bills.

We send our book, "Back to Nature," free. It's a good bookful of plain, good, common sense. If you want a copy, address EGG-O-SEE Company, 10 First St., Quincy, Ill.

WISDOM OF THE ANCIENTS.

Attention to small things is the economy of virtue.—Chinese maxim.

The ways to enrich are many and most of them foul for you.—Terence.

Provided a woman be well principled she has dowry enough.—Plautus.

Where the love of the people is assured the seditious are thwarted.—Bias.

He is truly rich who desires nothing, and he is truly poor who covets all.—Solon.

It is a greater offense to steal dead men's labors than their clothes.—Synesius.

To do a kindness to a bad man is like sowing your seed in the sea.—Phocylides.

We ought either to be silent or speak things better than silence.—Pythagoras.

The public has more interest in the punishment of an injury than he who suffers it.—Cato.

Fall Excursions to Milwaukee.

The Jobbers and Manufacturers' association has arranged for three Merchants' Excursions to Milwaukee during August and September.

Any merchant in the northwest is entitled to a rate of one and one-fifth fare for the round trip, not alone for himself and wife but for anyone actively interested in his business.

You can buy tickets to Milwaukee as follows:

First Excursion, August 4 to 12 and return home August 6 to 22.

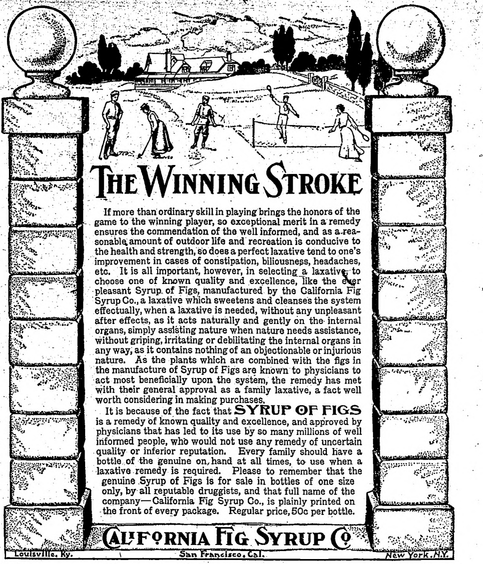
Second Excursion, August 18 to 26 and return home August 20 to September 5.

Third Excursion, September 1 to 9 and return home September 3 to 19.

Ask for ticket to Milwaukee at full fare and for a certificate (not a receipt) for fare paid. This certificate will entitle you to one-fifth fare to return home if validated at the Secretary's Office, 45 University Bldg., at any time within the dates fixed.

Get the low rate and visit Milwaukee, the most beautiful city in America.

The brain of a man is more than twice that of any other animal.



THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists, and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co.

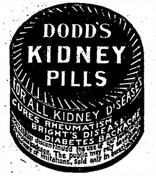
Louisville, Ky. San Francisco, Cal. New York, N.Y.

West Virginia Bear Hunt.

A large black bear caused quite an excitement in this section last week. He was first discovered near Aleck Park's residence with an air of bravery not altogether lovely.

Aleck has two fierce dogs that chased him up against the garden fence, and, as is often the case, no gun could be found loaded, and after tossing the dogs around over the meadow with apparent ease he crossed over to near Harper Wolford's on the creek and made his escape in the jungle, hotly pursued by a dozen or more men and dogs with short breath and fast beating hearts.—Hampshire Review.

A woman can put this and that together and tell everything her husband is doing. But a woman can fool her husband whenever she wants to. Fortunately, women do not often care to fool their husbands.



FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
CURES RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

A. N. K.—G (1906—30) 2136.

Libby's Cooked Ox Tongue

Libby's Food Products

All are selected meats, prepared for your table in a kitchen as clean as your own.

Ready to serve any time—fit to serve anywhere.

All are economical—and all are good.

Whether your taste be for Boneless Chicken, Veal Loaf, Ox Tongue, Potted Ham, Dried Beef, there is no way you can gratify it so well as by asking for Libby's.

Try Libby's delicious cooked Ox Tongue for sandwiches or sliced cold.

Booklet free, "How to Make Good Things to Eat." Write

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago.

Exceptionally Low Rates to Brighter Possibilities

The Southwest is the land of possibilities. The opportunities for men of average means are brighter here than elsewhere—you can get more for your labor or your investment. The opportune time is now while the land is cheap. The country is settling up. If you purchase land now you will soon see grow up around you a community of prosperous energetic men who like yourself have seen the brighter possibilities of the Southwest, and have taken advantage of them.

Along the line of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas R'y in Indian Territory, Oklahoma, and Texas are vast areas of unimproved land—land not now yielding the crops of which it is capable. The same thing, in a different way, is true of the towns. Few lines of business are adequately represented. There are openings of all sorts for you. If you're in any way interested in the Southwest, I'd like to send you a copy of my free paper, "The Coming Country."

August 7th and 21st

you can make a trip Southwest exceptionally cheap. Round trip tickets, good thirty—30—days, will be sold by all lines in connection with the M. K. & T. R'y at not more than one fare plus $2.00; in many cases—from Chicago to San Antonio, e. g., the rate is $25.00, from St. Paul, $27.50, from St. Louis and Kansas City, $20.00—the rates are considerably lower. The tickets permit of stop-overs in both directions, via M., K. & T. R'y.

If your nearest railroad agent cannot give you the rates, write me for particulars.

W. S. ST. GEORGE

General Passenger Agent, M. K. & T. R'y

Wainwright Building St. Louis, Mo.

W. P. LINDSAY, 376 Robert St., St. Paul, Minn.

THE MKT

"SOUTHWEST"

READERS OF THIS PAPER DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

PATENTS 48-page book FREE, highest references. FITZGERALD & CO., Box K, Washington, D. C.

DEFIANCE STARCH never sticks to the iron.

COMPLEXION HANDS AND HAIR

Preserved, Purified and Beautified by Cuticura SOAP

The World's Favorite Emollient for rashes, blemishes, eczemas, itchings, irritations, and scalings. For red, rough, and greasy complexions, for sore, itching, burning hands and feet, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery, Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great Skin Cure, is priceless.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent 50c. (In form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, "How to Care for Skin, Scalp, and Hair."

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864. MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 900 14th St., Washington, D. C. PENSIONS Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre

That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box W.K. La Crosse, Wis.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

AGENTS.

AGENTS WANTED

We want agents to sell our Made-to-Order Suits and Pants. Suits from $10.00 up. Pants $3.00 up. We will give liberal commission to the right men. If you are interested, write at once for sample outfit, particulars and territory. WARRINGTON WOOLEN & WORSTED MILLS, Dept. 10, Chicago, Ill.

REAL ESTATE.

Canada Lands

FARMERS WANTED to act as agents for Alberta and Saskatchewan Lands. Write

NORTHERN LAND COLONIZATION CO.,

824 Security Bank Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

Bears The Signature Of Chas. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over Thirty Years

The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE

A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.

This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.

For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

LIFE THE STAKE

Albert T. Patrick's Long Fight to Prevent the Carrying Out of the Grim Sentence of Death.

HAS MADE THE LAW A PLAYTHING

Sentenced in 1902 for the Murder of Millionaire William Marsh Rice, By Skillful Maneuvering He Has Thus Far Evaded the Hands of the Executioner.

New York.—Take the average murderer. Sentenced to die, he bows to the seeming inevitable. Like a thing whose spirit has already crossed the border-line, from life to death, he mechanically waits for the end, sometimes moaning, sometimes praying, but always waiting—waiting for the executioner to beckon him forth.

Nowhere can a more striking contrast to the above be found than in the amazing and even brilliant fight of Lawyer Albert T. Patrick against the law, his own stock in trade, says the New York World.

Arrested in February, 1901, for the murder of William Marsh Rice, an eccentric old millionaire who had been found dead five months previously under suspicious circumstances in his apartments at No. 500 Madison avenue, Patrick was tried, found guilty and sentenced to die in the electric chair in the week of May 5, 1902. More than four years have passed since then, and yet Patrick is still very much alive, and actually has a longer lease of life ahead of him now than he had on April 7, 1902, when the grim death sentence was pronounced for the first time upon him.

Dangerously near to the dead-line, Patrick has been forced time after time, but by skillful maneuvering he has evaded the executioner's hand and obtained another respite. As the case now stands, Patrick is safe at least until next October, when the United States supreme court will pass upon the writ of error granted on June 12 by Justice Day. This writ was granted at Canton, O., within six days of the time set for Patrick's execution, and after preparations for putting the condemned man to death had already been commenced at Sing Sing. It was the closest shave Patrick ever had.

When Millionaire Rice was found dead in his apartments at No. 500 Madison avenue, on September 23, 1900, there was absolutely no suspicion that his lawyer, Patrick, had murdered him. Not until four days later, when the funeral had been stopped by order of the coroner and Rice's body sent to the morgue, did Patrick learn that he was a suspect. Six days from the date of Rice's death detectives began to shadow Patrick, and finally, on October 4, Patrick and Rice's valet, Charles F. Jones, were arrested, not on a charge of murder, but for forgery connected with Rice's will and a $25,000 check which Patrick had tried to cash after Rice's death.

On the day following their arrest, Patrick and Jones were held in $10,000 bail each on the forgery charge. The bail was purposely placed at that high figure, in order that the two prisoners might be detained while the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the mysterious death of Mr. Rice could be probed.

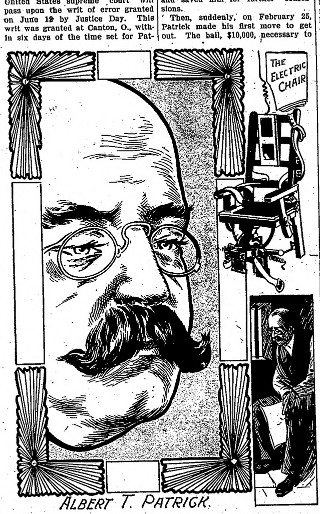
Then, while Patrick and Jones were endeavoring to get somebody to bail them out, the police and coroner worked hard to solve the murder mystery. On October 27 the result of the analysis of Rice's body was announced, showing that the aged millionaire had been poisoned.

Had Been Poisoned.

Next the police turned their attention to Valet Jones. They "third-degreed" him for thee days, and then he told them what they already suspected: Patrick had murdered Rice. Two days later Jones made a still more detailed confession, shouldering all the guilt on Patrick to save his own neck. Having done that, Jones cut his throat in prison, but the police doctors stitched up the gash and saved him for further confessions.

Then, suddenly, on February 25, Patrick made his first move to get out. The bail, $10,000, necessary to liberate him, was produced, and Patrick had already left his cell and was almost free, when orders came to refuse the bail and put Patrick back in his cell. Two days later Patrick was formally charged with the murder of Rice and held without bail pending a hearing.

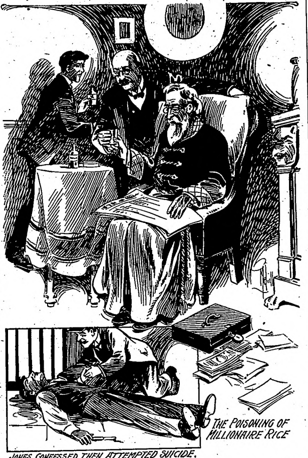
Events in Patrick's case came swiftly after this. On April 9 Jones declared that Patrick had admitted to his lawyers in Jones' presence, that he had killed Rice. On April 12 Patrick was remanded on the charge of murder. Four days later, at a preliminary examination, he was held for the grand jury, and on April 25 that body returned an indictment against Patrick, charging him with murder in the first degree. Next day Patrick was formally arraigned before Recorder Goff and remanded for trial.



ALBERT T. PATRICK.

On October 14, when more than a year had passed since the death of Rice, Patrick's lawyers went into court and made a motion for their client's release on the ground that two trial terms had passed without the district attorney bringing Patrick to trial. This motion was denied.

Patrick was placed on trial for his life on the following January 20. Postponements came on February 4 and 5, owing to the illness of Juror John D. Campbell, and it was not until March 26 that the trial ended with Patrick's conviction. Immediately following the announcement of the jury's verdict of "guilty of murder in the fist degree" Patrick's lawyes filed notice of their intention to appeal from the verdict, and to move for a new trial.



JONES CONFESSED, THEN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

THE POISONING OF MILLIONAIRE RICE

Sentenced to Die.

Recorder Goff called Patrick to the bar on April 7, and after denying the motion for a new trial and another motion for the arrest of judgment, he sentenced Patrick to die in the electric chair in the week beginning May 5.

A notice of appeal was at once filed with the court of appeals. This acted temporarily as a stay of execution, and the dreaded week of May 5 passed with Patrick still alive.

A delay of almost three years followed, during which Patrick successfully checkmated every move made to end his life.

Patrick's lawyers had six months from the date of the notice of appeal in which to present their case to the court. The six months expired on October 7, 1902, but on the day previous went before the court of appeals and asked for an extension to January 15, within which to file Patrick's appeal for a new trial.

Two days later the court refused the application for an extension of time.

This left the case in suspense. The court record stopped with the court's refusal to extend the time limit, which, by the way, had already expired. The court of appeals, although it had stopped the execution of Patrick, had no jurisdiction to fix a new date for carrying out the sentence. Things were at a standstill.

Patrick broke the ice on November 17, 1902, by filing a motion for a new trial. On November 26 the hearing of the motion before Recorder Goff was postponed until Decmeber 5. The year 1902 closed with Patrick waiting in his cell for Recorder Goff to decide whether he would grant the motion for a new tial or not.

New Year's day, 1903, found Patrick anticipating an unfavorable decision from Recorder Goff by preparing an appeal from the anticipated decision. February 9 passed without the recorder's decision being announced, and the court of appeals granted Patrick an extension of time under which to file his appeal if necessary.

On March 2 Recorder Goff denied the motion for a new trial. Patrick immediately filed his notice of appeal, and nothing more could be done toward carrying out the death sentence for another six months at least.

The court of appeals the following June decided against Patrick, refusing to grant a new trial and affirming the judgment of conviction.

Two days later Patrick prepared a new appeal for presentation to the court of appeals for a new hearing and argument. This time it took the court of appeals just three days to decide against Patrick's newest move. On June 14 his application was refused and the court fixed the week of August 7 for his execution.

Patrick's next move was more successful. The court of appeals on July 24, just 14 days before Patrick was to die, granted a stay of execution pending a new hearing and re-argument on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. This was followed on October 2 by a motion for a re-argument of Patrick's original appeal, but on October 27 the court of appeals decided against Patrick by refusing to reopen his case and denying the motion for a re-argument.

On November 10 Patrick asked the court of appeals to amend the record of decision in the case. His motion was denied. Matters began to look grave.

On July 6 Justice Rogers called Patrick to the bar in the criminal branch of the supreme court and sentenced him to die in the week beginning January 22 of this year. Then Patrick made a personal appeal to Gov. Higgins for a stay of execution. The appeal was denied. Patrick then made a public appeal for "a square deal." This was on December 23. Time was getting short and Patrick's resources seemed exhausted.

As a result of Patrick's appeal many petitions reached Gov. Higgins on December 30, asking him to save Patrick's life. Patrick followed these with another appeal to the governor for a stay of execution, but this, too, the governor refused to grant.

When January 15 came and Patrick's execution was only distant seven days, the governor granted Patrick an extension to March 19 in order that he might present the testimony of the Texan witnesses who came to New York city later to tell what Valet Jones had told them about Patrick's innocence.

Patrick waited until February 18 before filing his motion for a new trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. His fight for a new trial began before Recorder Goff on February 21 and ended disastrously, one of the Texan witnesses being arrested and sent to jail for perjury.

On March 12, one week from the date of execution, Patrick received another reprieve, this time to May 21, and on May 14, with the day of execution one week away, once more, Gov. Higgins granted a further respite to June 18.

Gov. Higgins dealt Patrick a hard blow on May 30 by vetoing a legislative bill pased at Albany which would have permitted him to obtain easily a new trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence.

Another very hard blow came on June 11, when Recorder Goff handed down a decision denying Patrick's motion for a new trial. Patrick apparently had reached his last ditch. He was to die within a week.

But on June 12 a writ of error was granted on his application to the United States supreme court. This acted as a stay of execution and is not returnable until the October term of court.

In his prolonged fight Patrick has had the assistance of many celebrated attorneys, but almost every move made has been at his own suggestion or that of Attorney Bell Thomas, who has been his most constant adviser.

Public sentiment in New York has been a great factor in the case. That Rice was murdered has been proved beyond all doubt, but many believe the millionaire's valet, Jones was the assassin. Both Patrick and Jones benefited in a pecuniary way through the death of Rice.

During his stay in jail Patrick has made himself the idol of the prisoners, acting as their legal adviser in many cases. His knowledge of the law is profound, and many a criminal, it is alleged, has attained his liberty through clever technicalities devised by Patrick. The state's attorney's office would be glad to have him liberated or the death sentence, so long delayed, carried out.

The case shows as perhaps never before in criminal history how easily a man of resources can evade punishment for his misdeeds.

LINES OF THE POET BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

They were about to take summer boarders.

The woman, for the eternal feminine will not down, could not forego a touch of sentiment, and she was writing out a rustic sign, which she purposed nailing up by the well:

"The old oaken bucket,
The iron-bound bucket,
The—"

But her hand faltered.

"There's no moss on our bucket," she said, looking very blank.

The man seized the crayon, and with a bold flourish, finished the verse:

"—sterilized bucket,
That hangs in the well."

"That's more up-to-date, anyway," he said."—Puck.

How to Know Them.

The Soda Water Man—By his phiz.
The Temperance Man—By his no's.
The Conceited Man—By his I's.
The Surveyor—By his feet.
The Captain of Industry—By his hands.
The Miltary Man—By his arms.
The Stovepipe Man—By his elbows.
The Rubber Man—By his neck.
The Miserly Man—By his chest.
The Tourist—By his trunk.
The Dairy Man—By his calves.
The Iron Man—By his nails.—Life.

Beyond the Pale.

"But," said the visitor to the old friend, whom she had not seen for ten years, "you will pardon my seeming presumption ,yet I think I could suggest several ways in which your house could be more economically managed."

"Economy?" says the hostess, with some hauteur. "Pardon me, but our position in society is such that we cannot afford to save money."—Life.

Relieved.

"Our cashier wants a vacation this summer," said the vice president of the bank. "He'd like to get away, he says, for about three weeks."

"Good," replied the president. "That removes a weight from my mind. I was beginning to be afraid his accounts might be in such shape he wouldn' dare to go away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Bright Boy.

"Can any of you tell me," said the teacher, "what system of bookkeeping is in operation in our banks?"

"Double entry, sir," said the bright boy of the class.

"Correct; and now can you give me a definition of double entry?"

"Yes, sir; the one entry is for the bank and the other for the cashier."

Can't Always Tell.

Gyer—Bonem doesn't look like a man who would strike another when he's down, does he?

Myer—I should say not.

Gyer—Well, that's the kind of chap he is. He struck me for $5 while I was lying on the sofa the other evening.—Chicago Daily News.

No Room for Argument.

"I always try to be up to date," remarked young DeBorem, as the cuckoo clock chirped the half-hour previous to midnight.

"Yes," rejoined Miss Caustique, as she attempted to strangle a yawn, "you certainly are the latest thing out."—Chicago Daily News.

Woman's Wiles.

Mord Emly—Am I the first young woman wot you've walked out with?

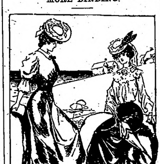
Moldy Green—Yuss.

Mord Emly—I thought I was.

Modly Green—Why?

Mord Emly—Eh? Oh, I dunno. 'Cause you seem afrightened o' 'urtin' me.

MORE BINDING.



"Ella says George hasn't proposed."

"Oh, well, actions speak louder than words."

"Perhaps so; but Ella wants words."

Sure to Please.

Miss Jinks—Oh, you must see the photographs I had taken at Camera & Co.'s. They're splendid.

Miss Winks—I knew they'd be good. Camera & Co. have the finest retoucher in the city.—N. Y. Weekly.

Temporary Joy.

"My wife's tickled to death because I gave her a book of blank checks."

"Gee! I should think she would be. Can you afford it?"

"Yep—don't tell her—I didn't sign 'em."—Cleveland Leader.

Never Satisfied.

She—Now that you have an automobile that will break records, are you not satisfied?

He—No; I want one that will break trees and telegraph poles.—Life.

Now They Don't Speak.

Maude—Jack makes me tired.

Clara—It's your own fault, dear. You should stop running after him.—Chicago Daily News.

THE LOST DREAMS.

I.

Young,
And dreaming the dreams of glad twenty-three,
She swung
In the hammock that hung
'Neath the spreading tree.
Sweet in her freedom from marring care
And glad with the grace of her womanhood,
Robed in garments as light as air,
She suffered the zephyrs to kiss her there,
Believing, as they
Who are fortunate may,
That life was good.

II.

High
Above in the branches that lightly swayed
Between the luscious reclining maid
And the azure sky
A wasp's nest hung:
With a piercing cry
She rose and flung
Her arms about her in wild dismay,
And the gay,
Glad dreams she had dreamed as she lightly swung
Blew off with the zephrys that wandered by,
As a pitiful groan from her lips was wrung—
Stung!

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Knew His Business.

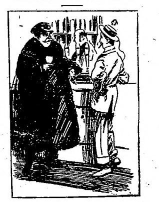
Criticus—I have only one fault to find with this rural scene.

DeAuber—What is that?

Criticus—Why in the name of common sense did you paint those cows blue?

DeAuber—Oh, that's all right. The models I used were from the bluegrass section of Kentucky.—Chicago Daily News.

VICTIMS MADE HIM PAY.



Young Snobleigh—The running expenses of a motor are pretty thick, eh?

Ald Bluffkins—H'm, yes. But nothing to the running over expenses, my boy!

Lullaby.

Magistrate—You are accused of attempting to hold a pedestrian up at two o'clock this morning. What have you to say in your own behalf?

Prisoner—I am not guilty, your honor. I can prove a lullaby.

Magistrate—You mean an alibi?

Prisoner—Well, call it what you like, but my wife will swear that I was walking the floor with the baby at the hour mentioned in the charge. —Chicago Daily News.

Such Is Life.

"After all," remaked the loafer who was holding down an empty box, "there is nothing in a name."

"There isn't in yours, at least," rejoined the grocer.

"What do you mean?" queried the loafer.

"Just what I said," replied the grocer. "Everything you have is in your wife's name."—Chicago Daily News.

But She'd Settled It.

Dottie—Who's that fine-looking young man I saw you with this morning?

Lottie—Isn't he dear? That's the man I'm going to marry.

Dottie—Why, I didn't know you were engaged!

Lottie—Dear me—we're not. I only met him yesterday.—Cleveland Leader.

For Self-Protection.

"Nature gives up her secrets with great reluctance," observed the doctor.

"Well," commented the professor, "if she has any secrets that reflect on the family she'd better lose no time in killing off the whole human race, for we're finding out lots of them these days."—Chicago Tribune.

How He Knew.

"Is your wife having a good time at the seashore?"

"Yes; she's enjoying herself splendidly."

"I suppose her letters are very cheering?"

"No; she doesn't write at all."—Judge.

The Immortal John.

"Now, Harold," asked an Evanston teacher, "can you tell me who signed the Declaration of Independence?"

"Yes, Miss Blankston, John Hancock and a lot of other men but I don't remember their names."—Chisago Record-Herald.

Why He Was Sorry.

Buggins—Have you heard that Bullion, the millionaire, is dead?

Briggs—Yes. I'm awfully sorry.

Buggins—Why, he's no relation of yours, is he?

Briggs—No; that's why I'm sorry.

Large Hearted.

"Do you believe a man can love more than one?"

"I know it. Why, between Friday night and Monday morning I have loved a whole summer resort."—Life.

New Standard.

Employer—What salary do you want?

Office Boy—Enough to place me above de temptation of graft.—N. Y. Sun.

Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, AUG. 3, 1906. NO. 18.

RIGID INSPECTION OF MEAT CERTAIN UNDER NEW RULES

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson Promulgates Regulations for the Guidance of Packers and Federal Overseers at Packing Plants.

Washington.—Secretary Wilson has made public the regulations under the new law governing the inspection of meat products for interstate and foreign trade. They do not, however, cover the subject of interstate transportation of meat or the microscopic inspection of pork for export. Regulations on these subjects, it was stated, will be issued later.

The general regulations provide that the scope of the inspection shall cover all slaughtering, packing, meat-canning, salting, rendering or similar establishments whose meats or meat food products, in whole or in part, enter into interstate or foreign commerce, unless exempted from inspection by the secretary of agriculture. Under the law the only establishments which may be exempted by the secretary are retail butchers and retail dealers supplying their customers in interstate or foreign trade, but even those exempted classes are required to submit to the secretary an application for exemption.

Sanitary Regulations.

Sanitary regulations require the establishments in which animals are slaughtered or meat and meat food products are prepared, packed, stored or handled to be suitably lighted and ventilated, and to be maintained in a sanitary condition. All portions of the buildings must be whitewashed or painted, or where this is impracticable, they must be washed, scraped or otherwise rendered sanitary. All trucks, trays, chutes, platforms, racks, tables, knives, saws, cleavers and all utensils and machinery used in handling meats must be thoroughly cleansed daily.

Clean Outer Clothing.

Employes of the establishments must wear outer clothing of a material that is easily cleansed and made sanitary. Toilet rooms, urinals and dressing rooms are required to be entirely separate from apartments in which carcasses are dressed or meats and meat food products are prepared. Managers of establishments will not be permitted to employ any person affected with tuberculosis in any of the departments where carcasses are dressed, meats handled, or meat food products prepared.

Butchers who dress diseased carcasses are required to cleanse and disinfect their hands and implements before touching healthy carcasses.

Inspectors to Report.

Weekly reports on sanitation are to be made by the employes in charge of various departments to the inspector in charge of the station, who in turn must report weekly to the chief of the bureau of animal industry at Washington.

The provision relating to dyes, chemicals and preservatives is stringent.

Heretofore the ante mortem inspection has been made in the stock yards, at the time the animals arrived, and has covered animals which were to be slaughtered at establishments where inspection was maintained, and those which were slaughtered for local trade. The new law does not authorize inspection of animals for local trade. It came to the attention of the department that speculators were taking advantage of this form of inspection, and the farmers who shipped the animals to market were thereby losing several hundred thousand dollars a year. Under the new form of inspection the shipper will be absolutely protected, and will receive full price for all animals which pass the inspection.

The inspection of animals before slaughter, designated in the regulations as the ante mortem inspection, is changed to conform to the new law, and to give the secretary of agriculture authority to require that all animals suspected of disease on this ante mortem inspection shall be slaughtered separately and apart from all other animals, under the careful supervision of federal inspectors.

Destruction of Carcasses.

Special provision is made for the destruction for food purposes of all carcasses and parts of carcasses and meat food products which, upon inspection or reinspection prove to be unclean, unsound, unhealthful, unwholesome, or otherwise unfit for human food. All such meat will be placed in a tank in the presence of a government inspector and sufficient coloring matter will be added to render it impossible that the tankage can be used for lard or other eatable product. If any establishment refuses to follow the tankage regulation, inspection will be withdrawn.

The meat inspection law under which the regulations are issued, contains a provision that no meat or meat food product shall be sold or offered for sale by any person, firm or corporation in interstate or foreign commerce under any false or deceptive name, but established trade names which are usual to such products and which are not false and deceptive and which shall be approved by the secretary of agriculture are permitted.

The regulation on this subject provides that trade labels which are false or deceptive in any particular shall not be permitted, and that a meat food product whether composed of one or more ingredients, shall not be named on the trade label with a name stating or purporting to show that the said meat food product is a substance which is not the principal ingredient contained therein, even though such a name be an established trade name.

These provisions in regard to labels conform to the requirements of the pure food law. It was stated at one time that the provisions of the meat inspection law conflicted with the pure food law, but this idea is not borne out by the regulations just issued.

Supervision of Stamps.

All stamps, labels and certificates showing that meat and meat food products have been inspected and passed are required either to be affixed by a government employe or to be affixed by an employe of the establishment under the personal supervision of a goverenment employe.

Certificates are required for exports of cattle, sheep, swine and goats, and the meat and meat food products thereof, and no vessel having on board any such animals, meat or meat food products for export will be allowed to clear by the customs officers until the certificate of the secretary of agriculture, showing that the meat is sound, healthful, wholesome and fit for food, is produced.

Free Access to Houses.

For the purpose of enforcing the law and the regulations, inspectors and other government employes under the direction of the inspector, must have access to establishments at all times by day or night, whether the establishments be operate or not.

The regulation directs attention to the fact that it is a felony, punishable by fine or imprisonment, for any firm or corporation or any agent or employe thereof, to give or offer, directly or indirectly, to any department employe engaged in meat inspection any money or other thing of value with intent to influence the employe in the discharge of his duty.

Labeling Carcasses.

The provisions in regard to labeling carcasses which are found diseased and which have been condemned, are very complete. A system of tags, numbered in duplicate, with reports to the inspector in charge, who, in turn, reports to Washington, will make it impossible for any carcass which has once been tagged by a department employe to escape the vigilance of the inspectors.

Method of Appeal.

Whenever the proprietor of an establishment questions the action of the inspector in condemning any carcass or meat, he may take an appeal to the inspector in charge, and from the inspector in charge if he desires, to the chief of the bureau of animal industry, or to the secretary of agriculture whose decision is final, so far as the department is concerned.

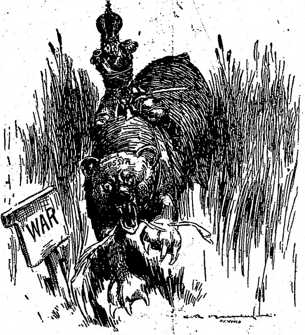
All inspectors in charge of the meat inspection stations are directed to notify the municipal authorities of the character of the inspection and to cooperate with such authorities in preventing the entry of condemned meat or other products into the local markets.

Running through the regulations is a carefully prepared scheme which will effectually prevent the entrance into sausage, curing, canning and other chopped meat establishments of any carcasses which were not inspected and passed by federal inspectors at the time of slaughter.

One of the important provisions of the regulations is the following definition:

"'U. S. inspected and passed.' This phrase shall mean that the carcasses, parts of carcasses, meats and meat food products so marked are sound, healthful, wholesome and contain no dyes, preservatives, chemicals or ingredients, which render meats or meat food products unsound, unhealthful, unwholesome, unclean or unfit for human food."

RUNNING WILD!



COURT APPOINTS RECEIVER FOR ZION CITY PROPERTY

JUDGE LANDIS HOLDS TRANSFER OF ESTATE TO VOLIVA IS VOID AND ORDERS ELECTION FOR GENERAL OVERSEER.

Chicago.—John Alexander Dowie, months ago repudiated by his followers as their spiritual leader, Friday was declared legally to have no personal or private claim to the vast Zion estate. Wilbur Glen Voliva, present overseer and leader of the revolt against Dowie, was held also to have no legal hold on the property. Judge K. M. Landis of the United States district court, in deciding the famous controversy, placed the whole property in the hands of John C. Hately as receiver pending entry of a final decree and designation of a permanent trustee. He ordered also an election by the people of Zion the third Tuesday of September as to who shall rule them spiritually.

Long before the hour set for the announcement of the court's ruling Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva and all the leaders who assisted in the overthrow of Dowie and many of his followers were in court, as were also the loyal supporters of Dowie. Broken in health and spirit, the hoary-headed founder of Zion was too weak to leave Shiloh House at Zion City, and received the first news of his defeat by telephone.

The Ruling in Brief.

Following are the important points in Judge Landis' decision:

Lands, industries and all property in Zion held to constitute a trust estate in which John Alexander Dowie can claim no individual proprietorship.

The conveyance by Voliva under power of attorney from Dowie of the Zion property to Granger declared to be "mere waste paper."

An election ordered for the third Tuesday in September, at which all members of the church living in Zion City since January, 1905, may vote for ecclesiastical leader of the church. If there be more than one candidate the tabernacle to be used alternately for campaign purposes.

Publication of Leaves of Healing to be suspended until after the election except for one issue, which is to contain the full decision of Judge Landis.

In due course the court is to make provision for Dowie because of his services in organizing and developing the estate.

Disposes of Bankruptcy Case.

Judge Landis began the delivery of his decision at 11:15 a. m., and the reading required almost an hour. The case decided was the one in which William B. Holmes, a resident of Kentucky, and a stockholder in Zion industries, petitioned for a receiver. The decision, however, covers all the questions involved and at the same time disposes of the bankruptcy cases against Dowie as, under the ruling, Dowie's debts are the debts of the trust estate.

Judge Landis' sweeping decision sets at rest the controversy growing out of the action of Overseer Voliva in transferring the properties of Zion from John Alexander Dowie to Granger. Millions are involved, and all Zion, throughout the world, has anxiously awaited the decision.

PEACE CONFERENCE ENDED.

Text of Resolutions Adopted by Delegates at London.

London.—The conference of the interparliamentary union, after a prolonged debate Wednesday, adopted the following resolution:

"The interparliamentary union, now assembled in London, expresses the view that the second Hague conference should:

"1. By treaty define contraband of war as being restricted to arms, munitions of war and explosives.

"2. Reassert and confirm the principle that neither a ship carrying contraband of war nor other goods aboard such ship not being contraband of war may be destroyed.

"3. Affirm that even between belligerents private property should be as immune at sea as it is on land."

The conference also adopted a resolution in favor of the discussion by The Hague conference of means to cut down the "intolerable expenditure on armaments." Another resolution provides that such national group shall apply to its own government to grant funds to aid future conferences of the interparliamentary union.

The decision as to the time and place of the next conference was left in the hands of the international council. It is expected that it will be held in Berlin in 1908. The conference then concluded its sessions.

The delegates were entertained at luncheon at the house of lords. A deputation of the visitors will be received by King Edward at Buckingham palace Thursday.

BATTLE WITH PULAJANES.

Constabulary Routs Enemy in Clash on Island of Leyte.

Washington.—The following account of the fatal collision between the Philippine constabulary and the Pulajanes in Leyte was received at the war department from Gen. Wood at Manila, dated Wednesday:

"Sudden outbreak of Pulajanes occurred island of Leyte. Two constabulary detachments defeated; loss 12 in one case, 15 other, with arms. One constabulary lieutenant killed. On application governor general for use troops, under president's order, July 3, have directed Brig. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, commanding department of the Visayas, rush enough troops to scene of trouble to smother outbreak promptly.

"Telegram from department of the Visayas this morning reports engagement between a detachment of the Twenty-fourth regiment, United States infantry, and 360 Pulajanes. Enemy's loss, 150; our loss, one constabulary sergeant wounded. No occasion for anxiety."

Forest Fires in Michigan.

Marquette, Mich.—Serious forest fires are raging northwest of here. The town of Birch, 15 miles distant, the scene of the extensive operations of the Northern Lumber company is in grave danger, and Mayor Culver, of Marquette, general manager of the company, who is at the scene has telephoned for help. With the sawmill plant and lumber and timber, half a million dollars worth of property is in jeopardy at Birch.

DAM CAUSES BATTLE

JOHN DIETZ DEFIES SHERIFF AND GUARDSMEN.

MANY SHOTS ARE FIRED

Son of Notorious Wisconsin Man and One of Soldiers Wounded—Women Aid in Fight—More Trouble Expected.

Milwaukee.—John Dietz, the homesteader who has held the Cameron dam on Thornapple river in Sawyer county against the combined power of the Mississippi Logging company and the state and federal government for the last two years, has been victor in another pitched battle. The stories are conflicting, but all agree that a sharp fight took place Thursday at the Dietz home between Dietz and his family on the one side and Sheriff Gylland and a posse of half a dozen militiamen, sent by the government from Milwaukee, on the other.

One of the sheriff's men was shot three times and seriously though not fatally wounded, and Clarence Dietz, a son of the doughty homesteader, was shot through the head. Another battle is expected.

Battle Lasts Over Hour.

One account of the battle is that as soon as the sheriff and posse came in sight of the Dietz cabin Dietz, his wife, two sons and one daughter came out armed with rifles. After the first volley from the Dietz side one of the militiamen fell wounded, bullets having struck him in the ankle, hip and neck. The fusillade was returned by the militiamen, and when the smoke had cleared away it was seen that Clarence Dietz had fallen. Then the posse retired behind stumps and trees, and for over an hour the battle lasted. Fully 150 shots were fired. Dietz's son was dragged into the house under fire and the place baricaded.

Official Withdraws Men.

When it was seen that Dietz was determined not to give up, Sheriff Gylland and his posse retired to the Mississippi Logging company's camp at Cameron Dam, half a mile from Dietz's cabin. Doctors have been sent from Ladysmith to care for the wounded.

Dietz has stopped all lumbering on the Thornapple river for the last two years. He held that the logging company had no right to run logs through his farm unless they paid for the privilege. He demanded $10,000 and the company laughed at him. It proceeded with the usual drive and brought down 20,000,000 feet of logs to Cameron Dam. There the men found Dietz fortified. He notified the foreman that if an attempt was made to open the sluice ways and run the logs he would open fire. As he is a dead shot with a rifle, no one was inclined to the job.

Warned by Neighbors.

Arguments, threats and coaxing all fell on deaf ears. Sheriffs have tried to get him, United States marshals have tried to serve papers on him, all sorts of devices have been tried, but no service has been made nor has he been taken.

Part of his strength comes from the friendship of his neighbors for miles in every direction, who warn him of approaching enemies. Dietz has said that he expects to die on his farm with an empty gun in his hands.

Militia's Hands Off Dietz.

Madison, Wis.—Gov. Davidson Friday said no request had been made for militia to capture John Dietz, who holds the dam at Cameron against the Mississippi Log and Boom company. The governor added that if the militia assisted in the attempt they did so without authority. The governor will take no action until the sheriff's posse have been exhausted.

DREYFUS INCIDENT IS DENIED

Alleged Assault on Major at Military Club Did Not Occur.

Paris.—An official denial was issued Thursday regarding the rumor that Maj. Dreyfus had been assaulted Wednesday by a brother officer at the military club. The official statement says:

"According to custom the officers of the First Cavalry division gave a dinned to two newly appointed lieutenants, and the minister of war authorized the officers, upon their unanimous request, to invite Maj. Dreyfus. The dinner occurred and was marked throughout by animated sentiments of the most perfect good fellowship. The officers separated towards 9:30 p. m. without the occurrence of anything which could give rise to the rumor put in circulation."

Not Mrs. Gentry's Slayer.

Poughkeepsie.—Fritz Consantino, the man alleged to have murdered Mrs. Arthur W. Gentry, of Chicago, January 6, last, is not the man wanted by the Chicago police.

POSTPONE CALL FOR STRIKE

REVOLUTIONISTS DECIDE TIME NOT YET RIPE.

Several Manifestos Issued to People—To Proclaim Russian Republic.

St. Petersburg.—At the end of a long series of conferences between the representatives of the central committees of the social democrats, social revolutionists, peasants' league, workmen's councils of Moscow and St. Petersburg, the Group of Toil, members of the outlawed parliament and professional leagues it was decided not to attempt immediately to summon the people to declare a general strike or armed uprising. The determining factor in the decision was the advice of the revolutionary military committee which reported that the time was not quite ripe. It was decided, however, to energetically push preparations and to address manifestos to the army and navy, peasants, workmen and the people generally.

The manifesto to the peasants in substance declares that the government, having denied land freedom, had dissolved parliament, in which the peasants' hopes were centered, and they now had no reason to wait any longer. The manifesto to the soldiers and sailors tells them that they are brothers of the masses who are fighting for liberty and took an oath not only to defend the emperor but the country and that it is their duty now to side with the people. A general manifesto to the nation says the moment has arrived when the people must take liberty into their own hands. A separate address was issued to the Cossacks.

Kharkov.—The revolutionists are actively preparing for an armed uprising and a reproclamation of the republic of Kharkov in the autumn. It was determined in the meantime to avoid conflicts with the authorities. The revolutionists have the sympathies of a large proportion of the population.

The French vice consul here has received very disquieting news from French industrial establishments at Yuzovka, the principal smelting center in the south of Russia, where 40,000 workmen have armed themselves and have organized a disciplined rifle legion of 1,000 members under former army officers. The Russian troops are useless in the emergency, having fraternized with the strikers almost continuously. The workmen's demands amount practically to confiscation of the plants.

PREPARING TO PUBLISH RATES

Interstate Board Offers to Cooperate With Railroads.

Washington.—Chairman Martin A. Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, on behalf of the commission, has directed a letter to all railroad companies and corporations of the United States calling their special attention to section six of the recently enacted railroad freight rate law. The section provides that every common carrier, subject to the provisions of the act, shall file with the commission and keep open to the public for inspection, schedules "showing all the rates, fares and charges for transportation between different points on its own route and between points on its own route and points on the route of any other carrier by railroad, pipe line, or by water when a through route and joint rate have been established."

The commission will cordially cooperate with representatives of the carriers, and will freely discuss with them all pertinent questions. Methods proposed by carriers should embrace those designed to effectuate immediate substantial compliance with the amended law as well as those intended to be permanently applicable.

ESTATE IS LEFT TO MRS. SAGE

Outside of Bequests to Immediate Relatives Widow Gets All.

New York.—The will of Russell Sage, which was filed for probate Friday, bequeaths all of his estate to his widow, Margaret Oliva Sage, after the payment of $25,000 to each of Mr. Sage's nephews and nieces and $10,000 to his sister, Mrs. Fanny Chapin, of Oneida, N. Y. Mrs. Chapin died since the will was made. The will also provides that in case any of its beneficiaries contested the probate of it they shall be cut off from any share in the estate. There was nothing in the will to show the value of Mr. Sage's estate.

Six Men Hurt by Thrown Bomb.

New York.—Six men were injured Friday night by the explosion at Sixteenth street and Third avenue of a bomb believed to have been thrown from an elevated railroad train. The explosion took place in a group of about a hundred plumbers who were standing in front of Teutonia hall waiting for a meeting to begin.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

H.E. Ives of St. Hilaire has filed for the office of Clerk of court, of this county, Harry is all right for the position, and we believe he will safely land the nomination, if he hustles a little.

Candidates for the primary election seem to be rather backward about publishing their announcements. A gum shoe campaign may be all right, but we think the man that does as much as to ask the people for their votes will come out in the lead on the deal.

This is getting to be about the time of the year when the "spell binder" starts out to save the county from political ruin, while his wife stays at home and milks the cows, saws her own wood and gathers the garden truck for the winter.

If Theodore Roosevelt does go to the senate from New York after his presidential term expires it will be mighty interesting to see him chew up that senate convention that requires new members to suck their thumbs in quite for a couple of years—Duluth Evening Herald.

Heywood the Socialist who is in jail in Idaho for murder, has been nominated by that party as candidate for governor of Colorado. Evidently they want to know where their candidate is.—Greenbush Journal.

It must be a great inducement to law and order loving converts to the party to tell them their candidates soul will be with them after he has been executed for the murder of his fellow man.

Up to the present time we have not expressed any preferance as to who is the best available timber for the legislature in this and our old home county of Polk, however there is a vast difference in men for these positions, and it is right and proper that the newspapers informs their readers of the fact, if they know of any good and valid reason why certain men should not be elected to fill these important offices, and we shall oppoint ourselves as a committee of one to do this and if we tread on anyones corns, in a sore spot we can't help it.

Why would it not be a good idea for the government to make an appropiation for the improvement of navigation on the Red Lake River? They are spending money freely to improve the rivers and harbors in the southern states, but this water way and railroad for a large section of fertile country is left to let nature have full sway. If this river could be dredged so as to increase its depth about four feet it would improve it for navigable purposes and solve the ploblem of drainage for a large amount of land lying along its low banks. Above Highlanding the banks of the river are so low that the meadow lands on either side of it are flooded by water during a large portion of the year, making it an impossibility to make any use of the land, but if the depth of the river was increased for four feet it would be good tillable land where it is now swamp.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A. L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? you will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

Don't put in to much time reading appeal to reason, but get after that hay while the sun shines as your neighbor might not want to divide with you next fall, and the socialist party wont get into power this year.

Governor Johnson says he is in favor of a two cent and a half a mile railroad fair. Funny he did not think about doing something for this at the last session of the legislature, but A.D. Stephens would have prehaps defeated him if he had, and if elected this year we will bet them fellows in eastern Polk will continue to pay 3 cents a mile or walk when they want to go to Crookston, for you bet A.D. has the pull in a legislative body, and he will use it if him and Jims interest is touched.

THE FIRST AIR BRAKE.

What It Did When Westinghouse Finally Won a Trial.

Persons who should have known better thought Westinghouse visionary when they were told that he proposed to stop a train by air. Nobody seemed inclined to let him try his plan on a real train, but they did not object to his working a model of it in a shop where he couldn't do any harm or involve anybody else in expense. He knew his scheme would work, but he could not make any one else believe it. So he continued to sell his invention for replacing derailed cars on the tracks and to talk about his brake to any railroad man who was willing to listen.

"Well, have you ever stopped a train with this air thing of yours?" they would ask.

No, he couldn't say that he had done so. Nobody would let him try it even on a train of dump cars.

One day he arrived in Pittsburg, selling his other invention and talking about his brake notion to a man connected with a railroad out there. "That's a great idea of yours," said the man. "We will try it on our line."

So the officials of this railroad permitted Westinghouse to put his new "kickshaw" on one of their trains. But he had to agree to indemnify the road for any damage that might be caused to the train as the result of the trials. The train was equipped. On the designated day the confident inventor and a group of skeptical railway men boarded the train on which the first air brakes were fixed. Off went the train on its trial trip. The engineer put on full speed, and just as he had rounded a curve he saw ahead, at a grade crossing and in the middle of the track, a loaded wagon, a man and a boy and a balky horse. The engineer moved his little lever, and the first train that was ever stopped by air pulled up at a standstill several feet short of the obstruction.

Thus, on its first trial, the Westinghouse air brake saved life and prevented damage to property. Thenceforward talking was unnecessary; all that had to be done was to make brakes. The inventor thought of that clause securing compensation to the railroad for any damage he might do to the train, and he laughed. His fortune dated from that day. He was then only twenty-two.—Arthur Warren in Success.

The small courtesies sweeten life, the greater ennoble it.—Bovee.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE RED LAKE RIVER TRANSPOTATION COMPANY.

We the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58, revised laws of Minnesota, 1905, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

Article I

The name of this corporation shall be the Red Lake River Transportation Company.

Article II.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be the operating of a line of boats upon the Red Lake River and upon the Great Red Lakes, and streams tributary thereto, in Red Lake, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, in the State of Minnesota, as a common carrier of passengers and freight for hire, together with the doing of all things necessary, convenient or incidental thereto. For the purposes of carrying on said business, this corporation may buy, own, sell, lease, let, build, and operate, steam boats, barges, tugs, launches, or any other sort of water craft, whether propelled by steam, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, alcohol, or other motive power; may buy, construct, lease, let, own, and operate docks and wharves, and for that purpose may buy or acquire by condemnation proceedings, or otherwise, any real estate convenient and necessary for the carrying on of the said business; may buy, sell, own, lease, let, develope, improve, water powers, dams or locks for the purpose of carrying on said business; may borrow money for the corporate purposes of said corporation and issue notes, obligations, bonds, and securities therefore, in the name of said corporation, and pledge and mortgage, the property, rights and franchises of said corporation as security for the payment thereof, and in general, do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the business of said corporation, not inconsistent with the laws of the State of Minnesota.

Article III.

The principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be at the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

Article IV.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be the 9th day of June, A. D., 1906, and the period of continuance of this corporation shall be thirty (30) years.

Article V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), which shall be divided in one thousand (1000) shares of Ten Dollars ($10.00 each, and shall be paid in at the time or times and in the manner prescribed by the board of directors, in cash or property at the cash market value thereof.

Article VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2500.00).

Article VII.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation shall be, Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Segardson, D.A. Kolstrand all of Highlanding Minn. James O' Brien, Carl Jenson, all of Kratka Minn. W. A. Swanson of Rhoda Minn. E.K. Gjernes, Sjur Stolass all of Radny Minn., all of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Article VIII.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of Eleven directors, who shall be elected annually by the stockholders at the annual meeting thereof and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified.

The names of the first Board of Directors of said corporation are Ole Overum, Carl Jenson W.A. Swanson, W.G. Hunt, Lars K. Vindlas Peter Hedeen. E.K. Gjernes. James O'Brien. August J Wentzel D.A Kolstrand, Frank Lundeen, whose term of office shall continue until the first annual meeting of said corporation and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The officers of said corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors at their first meeting after the annual stockholders meeting in each year, and who shall respectively hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. The office of treasurer and secretary may be held by the same person.

Until the first election of officers by the board of directors Ole Howard shall be president, Carl Jensen vice president, and William A. Swanson secretary and August J. Wentzel treasurer.

Said corporation may have such other officers as may be necessary for carrying on its affairs, to be provided by the by-laws or designated by the board of directors. All such officers to be chosen by the board of directors.

Any vacancies in any office or in the board of directors shall be filled by the board of directors for the unexpired term.

The president and vice president of this corporation shall be elected from the Board of Directors.

Regular and special meetings of the directors and stockholders may be held at such times and under such rules as may be prescribed by the by-laws of such corporation.

Article IX.

No sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation pledge or other disposition of any stock of this corporation shall be valid or effectual for any purpose until there has first been endorsed upon the stock certificate to be effected by such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition, the approval or consent of a majority of the Board of Directors of such corporation, sitting as a board, to such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition.

Article X

The by-laws of this corporation shall be adopted by the first board of directors, and may be from time to time modified, amended or repealed by stockholders or members at any regular meeting or any special meeting called for that purpose.

The annual meeting for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may regularly and properly come before the same, shall be held at the office of said corporation, in the Town of Highlanding County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota on the 2nd Monday of January in each year, commencing with the year 1907, and immediately after each annual meeting the board of directors shall meet for the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as the by-laws may prescribe.

The first meeting of said corporation shall be held at Sunbeam Post office in the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1906 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and a meeting of the said board of directors shall be held at the same place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day.

In witness whereof the persons hereinbefore named have subscribed their names and affixed their seals this 28th day of March, A. D., 1906,

Andrew Ellingson, [Seal]
Ole Overum, [Seal]
James O'Brien, [Seal]
Carl Jensen, [Seal]
August J. Wentzel, [Seal]
J.A. Kelly, [Seal]
W.A. Swanson, [Seal]
E.K. Gjernes, [Seal]
Sjur Stolaas, [Seal]
Julius Halvorson, [Seal]
Ljot Sigardson, [Seal]
D.A. Kolestrand, [Seal]

Executed in presence of:
B. Henry, Costello
Hallvard Rystad.

State of Minnesota) S. S.
County of Red Lake)

On this 2nd day of June, A.D., 1906, before me, a notary public in and for the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, personally appeared Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, James O'Brien, Carl Jensen, August J. Wentzel. J.A. Kelly, W.A. Swanson, E.K. Gjernes Sjur Stolaas, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Sigardson D.A. Kolstrand, to me personally known to be the same persons described in and who executed the foregoing articles of incorporation, and each acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

(Seal)
W.G. Hunt.
Notary Public,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.
My commission expires June 21st 1912.

Office of Register of Deeds,
State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake,

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 3rd day of July, A.D. 1906, at 8 o'clock A.M, and was duly recorded in book E of Misc. page 388.

(Seal)
Frank Jeffers.
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 6th day of June A.D. 1906. at 3 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book M. 3 of Incorporations on page 133.

P.E. Hanson.
Secretary of State.
Germo & Farley,
Attorneys.

Summons.

State of Minnesota,) S. S.
County of Red Lake,)

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA,
To Warlenty Warjnaroski and Mrs. Warlenty Wajnaroski, Defendant's.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 30th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A.M., at my office in the Town of Highlanding in said County to answer to the complaint of Edward Singer Plaintiff, in a civil action, wherein the Plaintiff claim the sum of seventeen dollars and seventy two cents ($17.72), with intrest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 8th, day of November 1906. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid judgement will be rendered against you up on the evidence adduced by said Plaintiff for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand, and dated this 1st, day of August 1906

W. G. HUNT.
Justice of the Peace.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn. on August 6th 1906. viz:

Reier O. Braaton.

H.E. No. 898, Red Lake Series, for the S.W ¼, Sec. 4, Twp. 153 N.R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Gilbert C. Gulrud, of Brunkeberg Minn. John Oftedahl, Joseph Peterson, Nels Ostvoden, of Highlanding Minn.

R.J. Montague Register.

J. K WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

What a Letter Will Do.

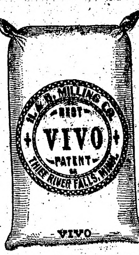
A proofreader, anent the importance of trifles, read from his notebook these absurd sentences, each made by the omission of a single letter:

"The conflict was dreadful and the enemy was repulsed with great laughter.

"When the president's wife entered the humble sitting room of the miner she was politely offered a hair.

"A man was yesterday arrested on the charge of having eaten a cabman for demanding more than his fare.

"An employee in the service of the government was accused of having stolen a small ox from the mail. The stolen property was found in his vest pocket."



VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS,

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

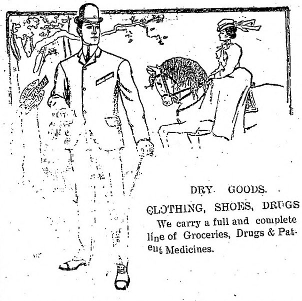
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.——— J. A. DUFFY, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store:

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE,
John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.
A full and complete line of groceries.
Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 23 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before J.M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn at Thief River Falls, Minn on August 6th, 1906. viz:

John Rogers.

H.E. No. 7815 Chippewa Series, for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 34 Twp. 155 N. R. 37 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz;

George Cunningham, Charley Clark, Jorgen Jelle, William Lillemoen, all of Jelle Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston, Minn. June 22, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on August 8, 1906 viz:

Julius Halvorson.

H.E. No. 1175 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 33 Twp. 153 N. R 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ljot Sigurdson, Andrew M. Johnson, Ole Vattendahl of Highlanding Minn. Oscar Swanson of Rhoda Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

For sale, or trade for a good pig, a first class cat, inquire at this office.

Simon O'Tool shipped his cow to Thief River Falls, by yesterdays Dan Patch.

Miss Katherine Dunn was visiting Miss Kuehnel from Monday to Friday this week.

The ladies aid society met at the residence of Ole Overson on last Wednesday afternoon.

Charley Cook and Mr. J. Duglas of Germantown took in the social at the school house last Sunday.

Ye editor will be at Thief River Falls next Wednesday, and expects to return home on Wednesdays Flyer.

Wm. Swanson and M.E. Hyland of Deer Park township transacted business at Thief River Falls the past week.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

Wm. Martinson who has been working for Thomas Sullivan for the last four weeks will leave for the Dakota harvest fields Monday.

Miss Laura Galipeau who has been visiting at Mrs. A. Eves the past two weeks will return to her home at Thief River Falls on tomorrows Flyer.

James A. Kelly and family, of this township left for Kelso N. D., on saturday last, where Mr. Kelly will buy wheat for an elavator company during the fall.

Mrs. Walt McAndrees has not been enjoying the best of health for the past two months, and went down to Thief River Falls to consult a physician on Saturday last, returning home on Mondays flyer.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Gully, Minn.

A Justice court case is to be tried here Monday for damages caused by the allegation that Oscar Holt, of this township violated an agreement to sell land to Nels Loiland of the town of Chester. Realestate is looking up a little in this locality now as it seems to be worth lawing about, Walseth and Tautges of Thief River Falls represent defendant Oscar Holt.

A. Eve and August Wentzel were interviewing the citizens of Thief River Falls to obtain shares for the Red Lake River Transportation Co. last week, but it seems that the citizens of that berg are "scart for fraid" of certain corporation called the Thief River Falls logging Co. Too bad, but the Red Lake River Transportation Co. STILL LIVE. And the boat will be built, we will take this matter up later in our ed. colums.

The basket social at the school house on Sunday afternoon and evening passed off pleasantly and the neat little sum of $32.05 was netted for the benefit of the school. Considerable credit is due to the school clerk Miss Kuehnel for the active interest she took in the getting up of the intertainment, to make it a success. Nearly every one in the district was present and contributed toward the intertainment. There was quite a large number from outside the district that enjoyed the afternoon picnic with us.

Lady to wait outside the gate.

The management of the Thief River Fair, are cutting their bait rathe fine this year, as we are in reciept of complimentary ticket, which says Pass W. Hunt, Now we are trying to figure out just what they ment by this If it was the intention to pass one free in order to induce him to spend a a quater to allow his lady to, see the show, or whether they were aware of the fact that we were a single man that was not likely to want to take a lady to the fair. At any rate we have received a good many complimentary tickets to shows and fairs but this was the first bob tailed one we ever saw. We expect to go to the fair and may have a lady with us, but have not decided yet whether we will invest a quater to take her in to see the show, or take her up as far as the gate and tell her to sit down and wait until we go in and see the big show on a Complimentary ticket duly issued by The Red Lake Agr'l Society, for Advs.

There has been some complaint made by the farmers, about the smallness of the premiums given by the fair association for farm products and the large ones for fancy trotting harnes, but they should consider that the fair is gotten up more for an exhibitation than for the purpose of inriching any individual by the payment of large premiums.

Dr. C.C. HOAGLAND.

Dr. C.C. Hougland of Thief River Falls will make weekly visits to the following places on the day of the week named.

At Kratka on Monday afternoon weekly.

At Highlanding Monday evening, and Tuesday forenoon.

At Brunkeberg on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

At Germantown Wednesday, and Wednesday night.

Dr. Hoagland is a regular qualified physician and surgeon and any one desiring his services meet him at the above named places weekly on the days named.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer.
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

His Idea.

Miss Kate—I shall refer you to mamma before giving you a final answer.

Mr. Wise—I'm perfectly willing to take you without any reference.—Mail and Express.

Not Encouraging.

"But," said the persistent suitor, "if I were to prove to you that I would go to the ends of the earth for you"—

"First," replied the Boston girl, "you would have to prove to me that the earth really has ends, and that, you know, is quite impossible."—Philadelphia Press.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3.30 p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 8th 1906, viz:

Katie O'Brien.

H. E. No. 1127 Red Lake Series, for the L (1,2, & E. ½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W

She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien, all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 22, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 7th 1906 viz:

John J. Oland.

H. E. No. 865, Red Lake Series for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 21 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land viz;

John O. Larson, Nils O. Risen, Knud O. Larson of Rudell, Minn. Julius Halvorson of McIntosh Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston June 20 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O Nesja.

H. E. No. 664 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, S½ of N.E. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153, N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim. and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan.

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Sander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz;

Tollef B. Nesland.

H.E.No. 646 Red Lake Series, for the S.W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole O. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Regster.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 20th 1906,

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn., on August 6th 1906, viz:

Thomas Sullivan.

H. E. No. 581 Red Lake Series for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 20, Tp. 153 N. R. 40W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous reesidence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Jerrie O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn. John Poloni of Highlanding Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of U. S. Land office at Crookston, Minn., on August 8th 1906, viz

Jerrie O'Brien

HE. No. 1126 Red Lake Series, for the N.W. ¼ Sec. 32 Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Katie O'Brien, Thomas Sullivan, Walter McAndrees, James O'Brien all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of The Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn., on August 21, 1906 viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H.E. No. 1187 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Strande, Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Erie Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. July 11th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver, of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston. Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz:

Berit Martha Valstad.

H.E. No. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 23 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gullingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn. Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office, at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before J. M. BISHOP, Municipal Judge, for the City of Thief River Falls, Minn., at Thief River Falls Minn., on August 6th 1906 viz

Alfred Bakke.

H.E. No. 389 Red Lake Series, for the N.E. ¼ Sec. 13 Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole Oveson, Sam Mills, Ole T. Waale Peter Hunstad all of Kratka Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam June 29th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 18th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn on August 8, 1906 viz;

John J. Sullivan.

H.E. No. 555 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 3,4 5, 6, Sec. 20 Tp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivaton of said land viz:

Thomas Sullivan, Jerrie O'Brien. Patrick Sullivan, William G. Hunt all of Sunbeam Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

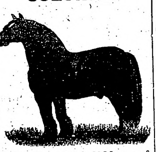
H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1,2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 19 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter E. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn. Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olsen, Even oftelie, Knut Jorstad of Rudell Minn.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Register.

COLONEL.



The Clebrated half Morgan & half French Coach stallion COLNEL, will stand during the balence of the season, at Rhoda, on Mondays, Tuesdays & Wednesdays.

Terms. To insure 8.00.

E. B. Johnson, Proprieror.

Observation.

An observant man in all his intercourse with society and the world constantly and unperceived marks on every person and thing the figure expressive of its value and, therefore, on meeting that person or thing, knows instantly what kind and degree of attention to give it. This is to make something of experience.—John Foster.

Tamed Poetry.

"I wish to submit a lyric, sir," said the timid young man. "My friends say it's a beauty—really sings itself."

"Humph!" said the cold hearted editor. "We couldn't use a poem like that. We want one that, once printed, will remain perfectly quiet and not keep our readers awake by singing itself at all times."

Rememher the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.

That's the Holiday Week of the Year—The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATEFAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Ampitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd, Dedication adress by James J. Hill.

Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.

The greatest Live stock Exhibition of the world-All the week.

Three great Auction sales of Pure Bred Cattle in the Ampitheater daily.

Live stock parade on Friday, Sensational Racing each day.

Increased Agricultural and Horticultural Exhibits Spectacular Fireworks. Racing. Ect., each night. $5,000 Trotting Race on Minneapolis Day. $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day. Exciting Ladies Relay Riding Race—Six days—Every afternoon of fair week, High Class Specialties each afternoon and evening. Demonstrations of all Kinds of farm and Dairy Machinery—Daily. Premiums and Purses $65,644 50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to Leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th.

C. N. COSGROVE, Pres. E. W. RANDALL, Sec'y.

THE FIRST STATE BANK, OF

THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates

On Farm Loans.

Stephen Singer, Edward J. Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,

AT ANTON MINNESOTA.

Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & Feed.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

GIVE ME A CALL.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

HIS ONE WEAK SPOT.

Prominent Minnesota Merchant Cured to Stay Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

O. C. Hayden, of O. C. Hayden & Co., dry goods merchants, of Albert Lea, Minn., says: "I was so lame that I could hardly walk. There was an unaccountable weakness of the back, and constant pain and aching. I could find no rest and was very uncomfortable at night. As my health was good in every other way, I could not understand this trouble. It was just as if all the strength had gone from my back. After suffering for some time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The remedy acted at once upon the kidneys, and when normal action was restored, the trouble with my back disappeared. I have not had any return of it."

For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE CAMERA FIEND.

Man Was Not Satisfied with Ordinary Amusement Like Taking Pictures.

A well-known criminal lawyer one day sauntered into a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had no attorney, and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case.

"I'll take it, judge," the late comer said, wishing to pass away the time.

"By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked.

"He's a camera fiend of the worst sort, Mr. Brown," the judge said with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What!" the lawyer shouted, indignantly. "Your honor must be joking. Send a man to the rock pile for three months for a little harmless amusement like taking pictures?"

"Well," the judge said, mildly, "he don't take pictures much—it's the cameras he takes."

FOUR YEARS OF AGONY.

Whole Foot Nothing But Proud Flesh—Had to Use Crutches—"Cuticura Remedies the Best on Earth."

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician who had charge of me was trying to sew up the side of my foot, but with no success. At last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh. I suffered untold agonies for four years, and tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. In two weeks afterwards I saw a change in my limb. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment often during the day, and kept it up for seven months, when my limb was healed up just the same as if I never had trouble. It is eight months now since I stopped using Cuticura Remedies, the best on God's earth. I am working at the present day after five years of suffering The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $6, but the doctors' bills were more like $600. John M. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

Sunday Rest in Italy.

The question of Sunday rest is being agitated to a large extent in Italy, and a commission was named some time ago which recommended that as far as possible an uninterrupted rest of from 32 to 36 hours should be insured to all the working classes, and that in case of public services, the men who worked on Sundays should have one day off in the week by turns, domestic servants being entitled to a half holiday a week. The law does not apply to fishermen.

Harriman Lines to Become Floral Routes.

Executive officers of the Union Pacific road in Chicago are planning to build several large greenhouses along the main lines of this company in Nebraska, Wyoming, Utah and other districts, with the object of having at every table in every dining car over the entire system a bouquet of freshly cut flowers at every meal. In addition to table and other decorations it is planned to grow flowers on a scale sufficiently large to allow a free distribution of roses to women and carnations, or other seasonable flower, not only in dining cars but to passengers in every car of every train, and in winter as well as in summer, the idea being to make patrons feel that the flowers are a part of the trip over this road and not precious little souvenirs. The greenhouses will probably be located at Grand Island, Neb.; Cheyenne, Wyo., Denver, Col., and Ogden, Utah. In California and in the territory of the Sunset route in the south the company has no trouble in getting outdoor flowers all year. But even in these districts the scheme of flowers for passengers and car decorations is to be enlarged upon. Dining rooms along all lines are to be supplied freely with plants and blooms. The California and southern resources with the greenhouses to be built along the central route will put the Union, Southern Pacific and Oregon Short Lines in a position where they may become known as the floral lines, an appellation officers of the Harriman lines hope to merit.

A friend in need usually needs all he can squeeze out of you.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

O. C. GREGG HAS A METHOD TO KILL WILD MUSTARD

A Farmer Mysteriously Disappears from White Bear—Poles Win at Winona—Notes.

Minneapolis—Wild mustard, the bugbear of the northwestern farmer, may be eradicated from grain fields by spraying the grain with a solution of sulphate of iron. This is the announcement of O. C. Gregg, superintendent of the state farmers' institution, who has been conducting a series of experiments on his farm in Lynd, Lyon county. Mr. Gregg declares he has established absolutely that the mustard pest can be killed by using the sulphate of iron solution.

Farmers who have waged war against the wild mustard will appreciate the importance of Mr. Gregg's discovery. Securing a foothold in a field of grain, the mustard spreads rapidly, and unless entirely eradicated before it goes to seed, it will cover the whole field within a few years. Different methods of exterminating the pest have been resorted to, but none seems entirely satisfactory, as the mustard seeds are tenacious and the plant is prolific.

The method used by Mr. Gregg in killing the mustard is simple. When the grain was about four inches high and the mustard plants had developed three leaves, he sprayed his fields with the sulphate of iron solution and found that the mustard was destroyed while the grain was not affected. The only difficulty he has ecountered has been in procuring machinery which would do the work of spraying cheaply and economically.

Mr. Gregg will discuss his experiments at the farmers' institutes to be held next winter.

Disappeared.

White Bear—The police of two cities are looking for August Buschank, who has disappeared mysteriously from his farm near here. He left his farm a week ago, with considerable money in his possession, and although a systematic search has been carried on since it was discovered that he had not returned, not the slightest trace of him has been found.

The discovery of his lengthy absence was made by a man who happened to pass the farm. The horses and cows in the barn were making doleful noises as though in great distress, and when he went to investigate, he found that they had not been fed or watered for several days, and that several of them were in a dying condition, owing principally to want of water.

Restrain the Hogs

Winona—Complying with the persistent demands of several thousand Polish residents, the city council ordered the hog limits changed so that hogs cannot be kept in the city anywhere near residences. A committee of Poles issued an ultimatum two weeks ago that if this action were not taken they would tear down the obnoxious ranch fence and drive the hogs to Central Park. Fearing a violent demonstration, the council complied with the wishes of the Poles.

At the Fair.

Hamline—Unquestionably the largest and most attractive amusement offering of the season in the northwest is the Gregory's big pyrotechnical spectacle, "Moscow," which will be presented at the Minnesota state fair during the week of September 3 to 8.

A much augmented company of dramatic players, pantomimists, dancers and pyrotechnists, numbering over 200 people, is required to produce the interesting and historic Russian subject.

Lawyers Meet

St. Paul—The American Bar association will for the first time hold its annual meeting in Minnesota, and the chosen dates are the last three days in August, and the place, the capitol It promises to be the largest attended and most successful meeting in the history of the association, and will bring 400 or 500 lawyers from outside the state, and there probably will be 400 lawyers of Minnesota in attendance

A Decent Tramp.

Eveleth—Overcome by cramps while bathing in Cedar Island lake, near Sparta, Arthur Magee would have been drowned had not a ragged hobo, who was asleep under a tree on the lake shore, heard his cries and plunged in and dragged him to safety. After taking Magee to the shore the hobo ran to nearby house and summoned help and then disappeared without giving his name.

Born in Prison.

Stillwater—Mrs. James Brennan, who was sent to the penitentiary from Minneapolis for the murder of her three step-children last fall, gave birth to a girl baby. Mrs. Brennan's mother will care for the child after two or three months. This is the second child born in the Stillwater penitentiary.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The new workingmen's party organized in Ramsey county, and nominated a county and legislative ticket.

Stillwater—The general store of Albert La Rue of Lake Elmo was burglarized early this morning. The residence of Arthur Stevens, the postmaster, adjacent to the post-office, also was entered.

Faribault—A man who gave his name as Crosby, but whose real name was Thomas H. Dormody, was drowned at Cannon Lake.

Rosemount—A horse driven by A. Groth, living north of Rosemount, became frightened at an automobile yesterday evening and upset the buggy throwing Mr. and Mrs. Groth to the ground. Mr. Groth was severely injured and his wife had an arm broken.

Bemidji—A rear end collision in which the west bound passenger train ran into a special freight train, occured on the Great Northern one mile east of Shevlin.

Adrian—Dr. Sullivan was re-elected school director for a term of three years and James Cox was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. C. C. May.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

St. Paul—State dairy and food department is pushing pure food campaign.

South St. Paul—A South St. Paul city official holds office before he is naturalized.

St. Paul—Bishop Stariha blesses the new bells for the chimes at St. Bernard's church.

Ft. Snelling—A young man from Milwaukee drowns in the Minnesota river near here.

St. Paul—Frank. Bergquist, a hotel proprietor, disappears, and his wife suspects foul play.

Hamline—The sessions of the Northwestern Bible conference begin at the state fair grounds.

St. Paul—The play in the women's state tennis tournament begins at the Town and Country club.

St. Paul—The general committee report that $42,000 more will be needed to complete the auditorium.

St. Paul—A runaway team dashes over three babies, and one of the children is probably fatally hurt.

Granite Falls—Congressman Andrew J. Volstead filed for re-nomination as congressman for the Seventh district.

Minneapolis—Ralph, the three-year-old son of Max Fauer, 1629 Bryant avenue north, drowned in Medicine lake.

Montgomery—At the annual school meeting D. A. Hanlon and M. M. Powell were elected to succeed themselves on the board.

St. Paul—Some interesting matches are played in the women's state tennis tournament at the Town and Country club.

St. Paul—The new auditorium is lighted up for the first time and is ready for the saengerfest crowd tomorrow night.

Blackduck—The Catholic parish is to build a new church. Bids have been advertised for and are to be opened Aug. 1.

St. Paul—Ben Tremble, heavyweight, went up to Hibbing and knocked out Young Mahoney in the sixth round of a fast and furious fight.

Preston—Carl Schwab, a Clay county (Kan.) farmer, is in Preston after a wife. Schwab advertised for a helpmeet and a Preston woman answered for her daughter.

Northfield—Prof. F. J. Fairbank, head of the department of languages in Western Illinois state normal school, has been appointed professor of Latin in Carleton college.

Crookston—Etaoin Etaoinski, a Finlander, tried to do things in the Bar saloon here and it took three policemen to convince him that he ought to go to the city lockup.

Bemidji—Some of the land owners in this county are about to go into sheep raising on an extensive scale. It is said that the cut over lands over there are just the thing for sheep.

East Grand Forks—The lid is on permanently here, if the statement of Chief of Police George Brown is to be taken at its face value. Acting under orders from Mayor O'Leary.

Rushmore—S. B. Bedford filed Saturday for state senator in opposition to Dan Shell of Worthington, who has been senator for 14 years. Mr. Bedford is a banker at Adrian and Rushmore, Minn.

Minneapolis—Algot Anderson, 23 years old, was caught between two cars in the Wisconsin Central yards on Boom island, and was so badly injured that he died while on the way to the hospital.

Perham—The annual meeting of the Perham school district was held Saturday evening. The treasurer's report showed nearly $1,000 on hand and all bills paid. Alex Nelson and P. J. Fitzpatrick were re-elected directors.

Mankato—The real estate assessment foots up to $2,620,821, and the personal property assessment to $1,051,909, making a total assessed valuation of $3,672,730, or an increase of $231,812 over the total valuation last year.

Minneapolis—By river from Grand Rapids, Minn., to Minneapolis in nine days. This is the record of four young men, who breached two green duck boats on the shores of the Mississippi at Fourth avenue N, after completing a river trip of 450 miles.

St. Paul—Mrs. Mary C. McDonald's will gives the Trinity Baptist church a small fortune. The deceased was the daughter of the late Elisha Jones and she had always been prominent in church work and especially in the affairs of the Trinity church of which she was a member.

Minneapolis—Suffering from an attack of blood-poisoning which resulted from a slight scratch received in a fight with a drunken prisoner several days ago, Patrolman John Maloney, who is attached to the central patrol wagon, is confined to his house in a serious condition.

St. Paul—The Minnesota Mutual Fire Insurance company has no right under its charter to issue non-assessable policies either within the state of Minnesota or outside of it. Insurance Commissioner C. D. O'Brien today notified the officers of the company of his ruling to this effect.

Grand Forks—Ed Nealy of Red Lake Falls, Minn., who recently secured the franchise for lighting and power at Grand Forks and East Grand Forks, was in the city today and stated that work would begin right away. There is a large dam at Red Lake Falls with an 18-foot head and a big pond.

St. Peter—The state board of control is considering bids for the erection of a new nurses' dormitory at the state hospital to cost $40,000.

Mankato—Mrs. Anna M. Weycker was badly burned about the face and hands today by the explosion of her gasoline stove. The house was set on fire, but was saved by a force of telephone linemen who were working near.

Mentor—William Kolden came near drowning at Maple lake, Crookston's summer resort, last evening, by falling from his sailboat. Mr. Kolden could not swim, and being a man of considerable weight and size, it was with much difficulty that he was rescued.

LIKE EDGE OF THE WORLD

Unalaska, in the Alaskan Islands, a Desolate Spot—Where White Men May Not Land.

Unalaska resembles other northern stations, having warehouses, docks, the inevitable Greek church and a score of wooden cabins. Whalers leave here for the Arctic regions.

Dutch Harbor is a station for our revenue fleet. There is much coming and going of ships of all nations; there are quite a formidable fleet, and only two ships out of twelve carry colors of the same country.

Just before entering the harbor one notices a detached rock high against the side of the cliff. It bears a striking resemblance to a Russian priest in full robes. Touched by the sunset light, he seemed to stand blessing the harbor.

Sailing north out into Behring sea, one looks back at the desolate, silent, treeless islands, which seem to wall the edge of the world. Hundreds of miles west they run toward Vladivostok.

Two hundred and forty miles north of Unalaska are the Pribilof islands; not large, but the greatest seal islands in the world. There are many fur seals around the shores of Behring sea and the Aleutian islands, but the great mass of them are bred on the Pribilof group. No white man is permitted to land on these breeding grounds without a permit, signed by the secretary of the treasury of the United States.—Outdoor Life.

Nothing Succeeds Like "EGG-O-SEE."

The man who preaches the best sermon; the man who tells the funniest stories; the man who keeps the best store; or the man who makes the best goods soon finds that people come to him. Merit is the best advertisement in the world. People speak well of things they know are good. They pass the good word along.

The best breakfast food is EGG-O-SEE, for it contains all the life-giving properties of nature's best food, which is wheat.

EGG-O-SEE is deeply in debt to the thousands of wives and mothers who use it in their homes, for these good women tell their neighbors about this great food.

Children and aged persons alike are friends of EGG-O-SEE.

Merit and common sense are the things that advertise EGG-O-SEE most. EGG-O-SEE is cheap. A 10-cent package contains ten liberal breakfasts. EGG-O-SEE is sold everywhere. Grocers must keep it if they want to keep their good customers, for good customers insist on buying EGG-O-SEE.

The fact that no preparation, no cooking is required, makes EGG-O-SEE very popular. Open the package; put as much as you like in a dish; pour on milk or cream and eat. It is delicious. It is wholesome. It makes you strong.

A lot of interesting facts about EGG-O-SEE have been published in book form entitled, "Back to Nature." This book also has a course of physical culture—fully illustrated. Anyone wishing this book will receive it free by addressing EGG-O-SEE Company, 10 First St., Quincy, Ill.

Throws Rays Half a Mile.

Light rays half a mile long and 24 times as powerful as the sort commonly in use are the new oxy-petrol lime lights that have been invented for the motorists. The lamp consists of an oxy-petrol blowpipe flame playing on a piece of specially refractory material. A reservoir of material is to be carried on the car and also a cylinder of compressed oxygen. Presumably a stream of oxygen under pressure is saturated with petrol vapor and burnt in the blowpipe and a small, extremely hot flame is produced, this being caused to impinge on something more refractory than lime.

Railway Tariff Simplified.

Germany has just revised its railway tariff, which involves a multiplication of tickets. It is calculated that a traveler with a small family going from Mulhouse to Bale will find himself furnished with 60 tickets, in addition to which are those for baggage.

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

Yours for Health
Lydia E. Pinkham

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest-fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to restore the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until to-day Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

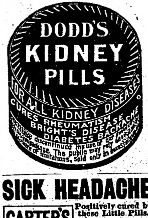
During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE
A Certain Cure for Tired, Hot, Aching Feet.
DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE.
This signature Allen S. Olmsted on every box.
For FREE Trial Package, Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.



SICK HEADACHE
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Positively cured by these Little Pills.
They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature
Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

EDUCATIONAL.
The Greatest Boarding College in the World
University of Notre Dame
NOTRE DAME, INDIANA
We guarantee two points: Our students study and our students behave themselves
18 Buildings 75 Professors 800 Students
Courses in Ancient and Modern Languages, English, History, and Economics, Chemistry, Biology, Pharmacy, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, Architecture, Law, Shorthand, Book-keeping, Type-writing.
SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BOYS UNDER THIRTEEN
TERMS: Board, Tuition, and Laundry, $400.
Send ten cents to the Secretary for Catalogue

YOU CANNOT
CURE
all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.
But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with
Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic
which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.
Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.
Send for Free Trial Box
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package —other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W.K. LaCrosse, Wis.

Your Vacation
Where to Go
How to Get There
And What It Will Cost
ALL THIS WILL BE FOUND IN THE BOOK OF SPECIALLY SELECTED VACATION TOURS, COMBINING RAIL AND WATER ROUTES, ISSUED BY THE MICHIGAN CENTRAL
"The Niagara Falls Route."
SEND FOR A COPY NOW.
V. C. RUSSELL, Northwestern Passenger Agent 340 Robert Street, St. Paul, Minn.
W. J. LYNCH, Pass. Traffic Mgr., O. W. RUGGLES, Gen'l Pass. Agt., CHICAGO.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PATENT ATTORNEYS.
PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864. PENSIONS
MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 906 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

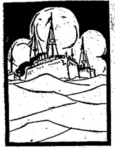
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, AUG. 10, 1906. NO. 19.

Our Washington Letter

Review of Biggest Fleet in American Warships Ever Assembled—Second Only to Channel Squadron of Great Britain—The Public Burden of Naval Expenditures—The Various Classes of Negroes.

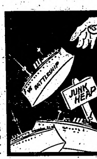


WASHINGTON.—It is proposed in September to have a review of the biggest fleets of American warships ever assembled. It will take place either in the waters of Long Island Sound or off the coast of Massachusetts and will be witnessed by President Roosevelt. Before he left Washington Mr. Roosevelt informed Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte that he wished to inspect the Atlantic fleet before it left for the southern drill grounds in the early autumn. The secretary is now making the preparations to have the big fleet assembled some time in September, and it is probable that in addition to the president the reviewing party will include Secretary Bonaparte and Admiral Dewey and several members of the house and senate committees on naval affairs.

The fleet will be assembled under the flag of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans and will be second in power only to the channel squadron of Great Britain, which is the most formidable fleet in the world. The fleet will embrace 14 first-class battleships which will be divided into four squadrons. In addition there will be a squadron of four or five first-class armored cruisers, a torpedo flotilla and a number of fleet auxiliaries, such as colliers, repair ships, etc.

It is expected that five or six new battleships fresh from the yards of the contractors will be in this force, including the Georgia, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Virginia, Connecticut and Louisiana. It is probable that the Connecticut, one of the new 16,000 ton battleships, will be selected as the flagship of the squadron. The total tonnage of the battleships will be something like 180,000 tons and the armored cruiser squadron will represent 55,000 tons, making a grand displacement of about 235,000 tons in the vessels to be reviewed.

THE PROPAGANDA OF DISARMAMENT.

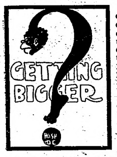


While preparations are being made for this grand naval display there are some earnest statesmen at work spreading a propaganda of disarmament. Mr. Burton, of Ohio, a forceful member of the house, who was largely instrumental in having postponed the construction of the big 20,000 ton battleship until congress could pass on the plans, is one of the leaders in the movement to put a stop to the building up of the navies of the world. At the coming session of the Inter-Parliamentary Union in London Mr. Burton expects to exploit a practical plan for disarmament.

Mr. Burton proposes if possible to obtain an agreement by the representatives of the various parliaments who will meet in London with the idea that their recommendation will receive consideration by The Hague conference which follows. It is already assured that the disarmament will be brought to the attention of the coming Hague conference. The American delegates will favor it and if necessary will take the initiative in bringing it forward. The new Liberal government of Great Britain has declared favorably for the proposition and it is understood that England's delegates will be prepared to support it at The Hague.

Disarmament as a theory has been under general discussion for years. Advocates of peace and arbitrators have laid the blame of failure to accomplish something in this line to the absence of a feasible programme. Even should the proposition be rejected at The Hague it is felt that the discussion of the subject will bring before the world the desirability of putting a check on war. There are indications that France would welcome a proposition to stop building ships, as would also Germany, who will continue to emulate Great Britain as long as that country keeps adding to her navy. Naval expenditures by all these governments, including the United States, are getting to be a public burden, and if an international agreement could be reached to stop preparations for war great relief would be experienced.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM AT THE CAPITAL.



The commercial and social circles of this city and surrounding country are terribly agitated over a proposition to establish a settlement of colored persons in a section that is being built up by white people who are in comfortable circumstances. One of the attractive suburbs lying to the northwest of Washington has for some years been patronized by a good class of white people who have spent money in the improvement of their property and felt comfortable in the fact that their surroundings were all satisfactory. Now comes a proposition for the acquirement of a large section in this fashionable territory which will be sold in lots to negroes. Already a large number of lots have been bought and the white people living near by are in a state of frenzy.

The negro problem is as acute in Washington, and even more so, as in the southern states and cities. Nearly one-third of the population of the capital city is colored and among them is the most undesirable class of negroes. There is a class which, while law abiding in most respects, is very impudent and assertive and wherever possible will "butt in" among the whites. This class is purchasing lots in the suburb mentioned and the old residents who have already erected homes in that neighborhood are sure that their property will lose half its value if this negro settlement is continued. There does not seem to be any relief to those who object to colored neighbors, as the latter have a right to purchase property if they have the price.

The better class of negroes in Washington, those who do not wish to associate with the whites, are scattered all over the city. They are not the class that wish to colonize in any particular locality, but go off quietly by themselves and do not intrude on anyone. There is another class who have a little money and who try to ape the fashions and customs of white society and who produce the young men and girls who crowd sidewalks, elbow white people to the wall or in the gutter, and preempt seats on street cars. So far there has been no direct outbreak against the aggressive type of negro, but that is due largely to the conservative character of the white citizenship of Washington. It is not "good form" to get in a row with a negro.

ESCAPADES OF A YOUNG CENTRAL AMERICAN.

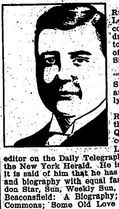
There has been running around loose in this country, creating occasional sensations and giving an undesired advertisement to his own country, a young man who ought to be one of the most prominent men in his own home. Alphonso Zelaya, who is the son of the president of the Republic of Nicaragua and one of the heirs to a fortune of $12,000,000, has been making a spectacle of himself for several months. He was sent by his father to receive a military education at the West Point Military Academy, but found the discipline and curriculum of that institution a little too severe for his southern nature. He made the acquaintance in this city of a Miss Baker, the adopted daughter of a Dr. Baker, and a few months ago married her.

The report of his attentions to the young lady had reached his president father in Nicaragua and the latter tried to have him arrested and sent back home, but before his agents could accomplish that purpose young Zelaya and Miss Baker had become man and wife. It was then that the rich Nicaraguan president cast the young man off and would not recognize him unless he gave up his American wife and came home.

The honeymoon of the young Zelayas did not last very long and they separated, the wife returning to her foster father in this city. Then the young man got a job playing a piano in a beer garden and earned ten dollars a week. On this slender income the pair reunited, but soon separated again and Zelaya lost his job as a musical "professor." Then rather than go hungry he stole $20 from a roomate and rather than go naked he stole a 50-cent shirt from a policeman and his troubles seem only to have begun. The escapades of this young Central American have made the society girls in Washington a little shy of foreigners who represent themselves to be of great wealth and to belong to high families.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A NOTED IRISH LEADER



T. P. O'Connor, ardent advocate of Home Rule, in 1883 elected president of the United Irish League of Great Britain, expects to visit this country the coming September, is slated to address meetings in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. On a tour of Canada he will be the guest of the president of the Canadian Pacific railway, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

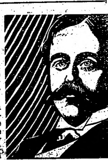
In 1881 Mr. O'Connor, familiarly known as "Tay Pay," made a tour through the United States and lectured on the Irish cause to large audiences in all the principal cities, raising goodly sums for "the cause."

"Tay Pay" was born at Athlone, County of Roscommon, Ireland, educated at the College of the Immaculate Conception, Athlone, and at Queen's college, Galway. For three years he was connected with the Dublin press; then went to London and for awhile was employed as subeditor on the Daily Telegraph. Later he served as London representative of the New York Herald. He is to-day famed both as journalist and politician; it is said of him that he has written history, fiction, essays, political science, and biography with equal fascination and charm. He is founder of the London Star, Sun, Weekly Sun, M. A. P. and T. P.'s Weekly; is author of Lord Beaconsfield: A Biography; The Parnell Movement; Gladstone's House of Commons; Some Old Love Stories; Napoleon, and numerous articles and essays.

Mr. O'Connor was an influential supporter of Parnell, in 1880 elected member of parliament for Galway, became one of the most active members of the party led by Parnell. In 1885 he was returned for both Galway and Liverpool, chose latter, four times has been elected for Liverpool.

The distinguished parliamentarian and journalist is now in his fifty-ninth years.

OUR AMBASSADOR TO TURKEY



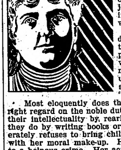
The United States has insisted on honoring Abdul-Hamid, in spite of the fact that Abdul has protested. Uncle Sam has not shown insistence out of pure altruism, it is needless to say, but raised the rank of our representative at Constantinople for the reason that it has reached a point where it is necessary the agent of the United States be able to make the Grand Turk yield audience when occasions demand. A mere minister is admitted to the sacred presence only when the Grand Turk chooses; an ambassador can demand an audience.

It is reported that dispatches to the Turkish representative at Washington, Chekib Bey, advised this gentleman to do his utmost to dissuade our government from raising the status of the legation at Constantinople. Some one, waggishly inclined, remarked upon hearing this news that probably the sultan had heard Minister Leishman was from Pittsburg.

Yes, Mr. Leishman hails from the Smoky City, and made his money in steel—for of course he has money, no one these days can afford to serve as diplomat unless he has the wherewithal to pay his way. Mr. Leishman in 1881 entered the steel brokerage business, rose to the position of vice president of Carnegie Bros. & Co., later became president of the Carnegie Steel company. In 1897 he left steel for diplomacy, became United States minister to Switzerland. In January, 1901, he assumed the duties of minister to Turkey.

To quote from the New York Evening Mail: "Mr. Leishman, our representative at the Sublime Porte, is a good sultan-bulldozer, but he has labored under the disadvantages of being a mere minister. Congress has made him an ambassador. Now he will be a better bulldozer than ever."

VICTOR EMMANUEL'S MOTHER



Margherita, the Queen Mother of Italy, is not only a very beautiful woman, a woman of much sweetness and charm, but also a woman of intellect. What she has to say on the question of woman's attitude toward life is of no small interest, and especially so as she is considered one of the best authorities in Europe on the subject of the education of her sex, and also because in the last 20 years even in her Latin country woman has made much progress.

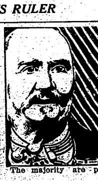
But Margherita holds to old-fashioned ideals, declares herself absolutely opposed to any extravagant theories of what is called the emancipation of women; this her idea of the ideal woman—"a blending of ancient reserve with modern independence." Personally that seems to us, advice the modern woman would do well to stop a moment and heed, a not letting go of the "ancient reserve."

Most eloquently does the dowager queen plead for women to look with right regard on the noble duties of wifehood and motherhood: "Women show their intellectuality by rearing healthy and great children just as much as they do by writing books or painting pictures." And: "The wife who deliberately refuses to bring children into the world must have something wrong with her moral make-up. Her shirking of the obligation may even amount to a heinous crime. Her action may even be contrary to patriotism."

The New York Times commenting on the views of this royal lady, says of her:

"As the first queen of United Italy she has worked wonders for the women of her race; as daughter of the House of Savoy, she herself set a rare example of filial duty; as wife of Humberto, her virtues were compared with those of Queen Victoria; as mother of Victor Emmanuel II. she developed in the present king of Italy high ideals, sober wisdom, and wide culture. Such is the gracious lady who has given her views on the all-important questions of family life."

MONTENEGRO AND ITS RULER



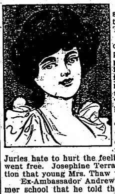
Montenegro is a very small country, but its ruler plays czar with assumption of splendor and state. This ruler is Prince Nicolas, very proud because two other daughters are married to Russian grand dukes.

Prince Nicolas is probably the most absolute sovereign in Europe, but it is the belief his supremacy is partially due to the clansmen-like feeling for a chieftain supposed to obtain in this peculiar country. Peculiar in a certain jealously guarded isolation, for Montenegro discourages the building of railroads and roads, fearing intruders and their taking possession. The Montenegrins are the typical mountain folk, physically fine specimens, a race of warriors. The chief riches of the people are cattle, sheep and goats. They dwell in rude stone huts in thinly settled, scattered settlements, their settlements connected by narrow bridle paths. The majority are poor peasants.

But the ruler of these peasants surrounds himself and family with very considerable magnificence. To be sure schools and other expenditures suffer thereby—but a prince must live up to his royal in-laws or feel very small potatoes, indeed. In addition to the marriages aforementioned made by the house of Montenegro, we may mention that the deceased wife of the present king of Servia was a daughter of Prince Nicolas; that the heir apparent, Prince Danilo Alexander, wedded the daughter of the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz; that Princess Anna wedded Prince Francis Joseph of Battenberg. It is said that last year only one-fifth the total revenue of the country was devoted to administration, the four-fifths to the maintenance of style for the prince.

Gossip from New York

The Beautiful Young Woman Who Figures in the Really First-Class Murder Sensations—The Unpunished Murders in America—Concerning Women in Business—The "Sport of Kings."



NEW YORK.—Each time New York has a sensational murder case on its hands it appears that morbid sentimentality has gone the limit. The Thaw case is no exception.

Of course it is indispensable to a really first-class murder sensation that it should include a pretty woman. The imperative demand in this particular was never more completely met than in the Thaw case. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is one of the prettiest women who ever came into public notoriety. The photographers, the painters and the stage managers all found that young Mrs. Thaw was beautiful. Charles Dana Gibson has her in his gallery of American beauties.

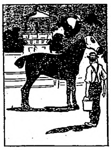
And so the papers are full of pictures of Mrs. Thaw. Her beauty is one of the natural assets of the defense. Whether the defense of insanity is or is not advanced in hope of having a rich young reprobate's life, Mrs. Thaw will be a great help. Juries hate to hurt the feelings of a beautiful young woman. Nan Patterson went free. Josephine Terranova went free. There is more than an expectation that young Mrs. Thaw will save her husband.

Ex-Ambassador Andrew D. White has just been telling the Cornell summer school that he told the university students last April, that there is a grave danger in this country that the practice of letting murderers go unpunished will in time seriously menace the republic. "America leads the world in unpunished murderers," says Dr. White.

The ex-president of Cornell goes further in claiming that crime is on the increase in this country.

Meanwhile hundreds of people of all ages and conditions stand in front of the Tombs each day to see beautiful Mrs. Thaw enter and leave the iron gateway. If you studied these people and others of their attitude of mind you might have some explanation of the conditions against which Dr. White complains.

BELMONT'S HORSES AND HIS FARMS.



One million dollars for horses!

It is a big sum, yet this is a conservative statement of the sum August Belmont has spent to own the splendid group of turf aristocrats that make his training farm famous.

The last great purchase of "Rock Sand" really brings the total of Mr. Belmont's outlay considerably beyond the million mark.

For this splendid English stallion Mr. Belmont paid the handsome sum of $125,000.

Mr. Belmont's breeding farm is at Lexington, Ky. His training stables are here on Long Island. At these training stables the art of making a race horse from the raw material—very fine and very high priced raw material—is seen at its best.

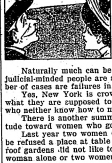
The most skillful of men are employed here on these beautiful 1,500 acres of land. In addition to the mile track there is a big, glass-roofed exercising shed in which, summer or winter, the young horses may be exercised. The other day I found 16 yearlings at Babylon, nearly all sired by the celebrated Hastings.

The only racer of real fame now at the Long Island farm is "Lord of the Vale," from whom big things are expected. Then there is the charming filly "Fond Heart."

Possibly it is true, as some one has declared, that one of the great sensations in life was that which the sportsman of the Belmont type enjoys when, after the greatest care, a horse was bred and reared to the point when he could carry his owner's colors to the very front in one of the great races of the year.

And all the time the man who can afford it has the comfort of knowing—whether he listens to criticism or ignores it—that he is playing the "sport of kings."

SOME MORE NEW WOMEN QUESTIONS.



A debate as to whether women are failures in business has rather innocently started, and it has gone further than anyone expected.

Failures? With the streets of business sections swarming with women?

It was a bold proposition.

Two choruses have arisen. One shouts that women are not merely indispensable in business but that they are mastering departments of modern labor and enterprise. The $10,000 a year woman private secretary is pointed out with pride.

The other chorus cries that women are not to be depended upon; that any department store or manufacturing place—any place where large numbers of women as well as men are employed—will offer proof that the women are more to be complained of, harder to train, harder to keep after they are trained, than men.

Naturally much can be said, and much has been said on both sides. The judicial-minded people are saying that men as well as women in a large number of cases are failures in business.

Yes, New York is crowded with people of both sexes who do not know what they are supposed to know, who are unskillful where skill is required, who neither know how to manage or to be managed.

There is another summer question: What has changed New York's attitude toward women who go to theaters and restaurants at night?

Last year two women entering a large restaurant or hotel were likely to be refused a place at table unless in the company of a man. The fashionable roof gardens did not like to sell women tickets unless they were escorted. A woman alone or two women together had a disagreeable time in New York at night.

This year it is quite different. The other night it was discovered at a fashionable roof garden that the majority of the audience were women. Women freely secure places at hotel tables. A man is no longer a utilitarian necessity.

What has produced this extraordinary change within a single year? I asked a theatrical manager. He didn't know. "There doesn't seem to be any kick this year," was all he said.

"Nice women may do as they please in New York this summer," said a hotel man. "And it wasn't so last summer."

I thought of this yesterday when I saw some undeniable "nice women" standing in a Park Row crowd waiting for the next inning to be marked up on the baseball bulletin board.

THE ICE TERROR AND THE SEASON BEFORE US.

The continued rise in the price of ice has frightened New York. There is no real ice famine as yet, but the heated term is scarcely more than half over and the likelihood that prices will rise higher has in certain quarters created real terror.

Last winter the so-called ice trust harvested less than its usual supply. This natural supply is supplanted by machine made ice, but for some reason this artificial ice represents only five per cent. of the summer's supply. There were 544,300 tons of ice available for New York a month ago. This supply, if the present heat prevails any considerable proportion of the time, will disappear by September 10 or 15.

Last year ice cost 30 cents per hundred for small consumers, 17½ cents for large consumers. This year small consumers are paying 40 cents and large consumers 35 cents—an increase of 33-1-3 per cent. for the household and of 100 per cent. for the large consumer.

Naturally there are loud wails.

The ice trust says it is very sorry. The president is quoted as saying that he raised the price so that the poor sick babies might not be without ice before the summer is over.

Somehow this explanation did not seem to explain.

It is true that the higher price has made people conservative about ice.

Ice funds are numerous and the poor are being helped at various free ice stations.

Why, if New York's very life is threatened by an ice famine, do not those who have the opportunity build ice plants that will supply every possible demand? Why is a big city without so necessary equipment? No one has answered this question.

TELEGRAPH

1906			AUGUST			1906
SUN.	MON.	TUE.	WED.	THU.	FRI.	SAT.
○	☾	●	1	2	3	4
5	6	7	8	9	10	11
12	13	14	15	16	17	18
19	20	21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30	31	☽

A WEEK'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

RECORD OF MOST INTERESTING EVENTS TOLD IN BRIEFEST MANNER POSSIBLE.

HOME AND FOREIGN ITEMS

Information Gathered from All Quarters of the Civilized World and Prepared for the Perusal of the Busy Man.

RUSSIAN STRIFE.

The latest news from the fortress tends to confirm the report that the mutineers have surrendered. The mutineers undoubtedly had the upper hand until the battleships Slava and Czarevitch arrived on the scene and commenced to bombard them with such telling effect that the central magazine was blown up and the biggest guns in the hands of the revolutionists were rendered practically useless.

Although the mutinies at Sveaborg have been ended and one at Cronstad has been practically put down, the outlook is still black. The revolutionists, whose hands were suddenly forced by the premature rising at Sveaborg, apparently are undaunted at these initial reverses, and intend to persist in their programme of calling a general strike.

The strike at Yuzovka is almost complete. Troops are pouring in. Some of the mines have been flooded and ruined. Agitators from St. Petersburg and Moscow have arrived, and are urging the strikers to prepare for an armed uprising, but to await the signal, which will soon be given.

It can be stated definitely that the first step toward a dictatorship may be taken by the nomination of Grand Duke Nicholas to the chief command of all troops in Russia.

At Kursk an encounter took place between peasants and dragoons, during which six peasants were killed and three were wounded.

The Stolypin cabinet sways in the balance and Russia is upon the verge of disorders which may lead to the reign of the military or the proletariat.

In anticipation of labor riots small steamers with quickfiring guns mounted on board are cruising up and down the Neva.

It is understood that some ex-deputies belonging to the labor party are among those arrested at Sveaborg and Cronstad.

During the disorders at Cronstad the insurgents wore caps with black bands in order to distinguish them from the loyalists.

A policeman was severely wounded while endeavoring to arrest Jewish youths at Kertch who were distributing revolutionary proclamations among the soldiers.

MISCCELLANEOUS.

Judge Babcock, in common pleas court at Toledo, O., handed down his decision in the ice cases, sustaining Judge Kinkade in every particular and exonerating him of having made any promise or suggestion of leniency as claimed by the attorneys for the ice trust. The judge declared the contentions of the attorneys for the trust to bo ridiculous.

Because he had refused to marry her, Marie Shabara, an Italian girl 22 years of age, shot and killed her cousin, Nicola Felrare, 34 years old, in the Italian district near the Five Points mission, New York, in the presence of hundreds of their countrymen.

Alfred E. Bills, who has openly supported John Alexander Dowie in his fight against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, filed a petition with Judge Landis in the United States district court at Chicago announcing his candidacy for the office of general overseer of the Christian Catholic church in Zion. Almost simultaneously with the filing of the petition by Bills Voliva's petition as a candidate for the same office was filed.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller reached Cleveland. They were driven directly to Forest Hill, their suburban home. Mr. Rockefeller greeted the newspaper men who had gathered at the Union station most cordially. He said he was glad to get back to his old home.

William Woods, of St. Louis, shot and killed his young wife, who had been some time residing at Mobile, Ala., with her sister, Mrs. Thomas.

C. A. Fairweather, guard of the University of Illinois football team, has been engaged as athletic director for Beloit.

Fifteen thousand men are needed in Minnesota, Iowa and the two Dakotas and about a thousand are available. The wages offered by the farmers range from $1.75 to $3 a day and board, but the jobs go begging.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade reports are especially gratifying from the northwest and other points that are dependent upon agricultural results, but all sections of the nation enjoy great prosperity and there is scarcely a discordant note in any of the dispatches. Scarcity of labor is the only serious complaint.

Timothy Sullivan, of Detroit, and Herbert Walker, 12 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Walker, of Swan Creek, Mich., were drowned in Swan creek near the Walker home. It is believed they fell into the water while reaching for pond lilies.

The governor of Samara was instantly killed by a bomb thrown by an assassin who was subsequently arrested. The governor's head and feet were torn off by the explosion.

At Pensacola, Fla., an investigation of the alleged peonage at the Jackson Lumber company's camp at Lockhart, Ala., resulted in three men being held to the United States court for trial under heavy bond.

Attorney General Moody, in accordance with the policy heretofore determined on, has directed further prosecutions of a number of railroads for violations of the federal safety appliance acts.

"Cy" Seymour, the center fielder whose release the New York National League club paid $10,000, refused to don a uniform in the game against St. Louis, claiming he is entitled to a share of the money paid Cincinnati for his release.

David Hoover, United States collector of customs at Gateway, ont., and Quon Lee, a Chinaman, were bound over to the federal grand jury in bonds of $3,000 each to answer to a charge of conspiracy to smuggle Chinese into the country.

In a runaway accident near Lehigh, Iowa, two children of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson were killed, and two more children and the mother were badly injured.

The Minnesota state railroad and warehouse commission entered an order compelling the railroads whose officials have given testimony in the merchandise rate hearing, which has been in progress during the present year, and which was lately resumed, to produce at the office of the commission all records on which their statistics have been based.

E. A. Gage, son of Lyman J. Gage, former secretary of the treasury, committed suicide in a tourist hotel at Seattle by shooting himself through the body with a 38-caliber revolver.

Indorsement of William J. Bryan for president in 1908, the defeat of a resolution calling upon the national Democratic committee to investigate the charges made against National Chairmon Thomas E. Taggart and demand his resignation if they are proven, and the nomination of Charles H. Kimmerle, of Cassopolis, for governor, were the features of the Michigan Democratic state convention.

The Missouri state board of railway and warehouse commissioners refused to grant an increased freight rate on furniture and agricultural implements.

The Goldfield Athletic club guarantees a purse of $20,000 for a contest between Gans and Nelson, and $10,000 for Britt and McGovern on Labor day.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the William J. Bryan reception committee it was decided to issue reserved seat tickets to Madison Square garden, New York, where Mr. Bryan is to deliver his address.

A disastrous fire broke out in the grounds of the international exposition at Milan and two of the finest buildings were destroyed.

Miss Bertie Schneider, of Milwaukee, rescued Miss Claire L. Corwin from drowning in the Chippewa river at Chippewa Falls.

J. G. Wellington, a saloon keeper, was killed, W. J. Cooke, a judge of election is fatally wounded, and a third man less seriously injured in a fight at a Memphis polling place.

Emilio Alvarez, discoverer of the Rhinoscleromo (a disease of the nose) bacillus, died at San Salvador. He was well known as a physician.

James B. Postlethwait, employed in the clerical department of the Michigan Central company in Detroit, died after having fasted 49 days for the benefit o fhis health.

The McKinley syndicate secured a license from the secretary of state of Illinois to incorporate the Danville & Eastern Illinois Railroad company, to construct an electric railroad from Danville through Vermillion county.

Clifford S. Hixton, a bookkeeper for the Union Trust company, is in jail at Pittsburg charged with embezzlement. Hixton is said to have made a confession in which he says his peculations will amount to about $135,000.

The state of Illinois secured judgment against former State Treasurer Henry Wulff and Floyd K. Whittemore, his bondsmen, for $6,532.40. The suit was filed by the state of Illinois to recover fees held by former State Treasurer Wulff.

The Negro Young People's Christian and Educational congress having for its object the educational and moral uplifting of the race, began a five-days' session in Washington. Several thousand delegates are in attendance.

Excepting a slight brush in the resolutions committee over Congressman William Alden Smith's resolution pledging the party to the direct nomination of United States senators, the Michigan Republican state convention was featureless and partook more of the nature of a ratification meeting than a convention.

Immense forests in the Kostroma district belonging to the Russian government, are burning. This probably is the work of incendiaries.

Nineteen persons were seriously wounded in a collision between electric street cars which occurred at Vincennes, France.

Secretary Root, Lloyn C. Griscom, the American ambassador, and Senor Nabuco, president of the Pan-American congress, visited the Brazilian parliament and were received with great courtesy. Secretary Root made a short address.

John B. Caldwell, who was charged with having stolen upward of $15,000 from the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke company, has been sentenced at Wise, Va., to seven years in the penitentiary.

The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows that during July the coinage executed at the mints of the United States amounted to $6,303,164, as follows: Gold, $6,175,000; silver, $128,164. These amounts, however, do not include 30,000 pesos minted for the Philippine government.

The navy department has been informed of the death of Medical Inspector William E. Taylor, retired, which occurred at Honolulu, Hawaii.

In accordance with an order issued by the emperor of Russia the American syndicate represented by Baron Loicq de Lobel of Paris is authorized to begin work on the Trans-Siberian-Alaska railroad project.

The final account of the trustee of the bankrupt estate of Frank G. Bigelow, the defaulting Milwaukee bank president, who is now serving a sentence in Fort Leavenworth, has been filed. The trustee says that there is sufficient money on hand to pay a final dividend of 11.22 per cent. on approved claims, aggregating $3,242,255.

A stick of wood containing dynamite caused an explosion in the home of Mrs. Carl Ostman at Toledo, O., and pieces of the wrecked stove struck Mrs. Ostman and her daughter, seriously injuring them.

Gov. Davidson, of Wisconsin, will appoint a commission to investigate the Dietz situation at Cameron dam. For the present, at least, there is no intention on the part of the executive to send troops to capture Dietz.

At Louisville, Ky., United States Commissioner Cassin held J. M. Scott, chief train dispatcher of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad company, in $300 bond for alleged violation of the Erdman arbitration law.

Rockland, a little mining town in Ontonagon county, Mich., was the scene of wild disorder when the striking trammers at the Michigan copper mine attacked the miners who were going to work under the protection of Sheriff McFarland. One man was killed and another mortally wounded.

Henry Porter, the last of the famous ring of aldermen which fleeced contractors desiring jobs in Green Bay, Wis., for thousands of dollars several years ago, pleaded guilty to five bribery charges.

A compromise has been effected between the trustees of the Devlin estate and the receivers of the First National bank, of Topeka, Kan., involving the division of $600,000 worth of property formerly assigned to the First National bank by C. J. Devlin.

William R. Hearst has decided to run for governor of New York as an independent candidate. The state committee of the Independent league, a Hearst organization, decided the league shall hold a state convention in September 11 to nominate Hearst for governor and put a full state and judiciary ticket in the field.

President Roosevelt has contributed one dollar to the Republican national congressional committee's campaign fund in response to a general appeal for one dollar contributions.

An important informal conference between the interstate commerce commission and representatives of the Western Trunk Line association and the traffic officials of various southern and southeastern railroads took place in the hearing room of the commission at Washington. It related to the construction to be placed by the commission on the recently enacted railroad rate law.

The negro who was charged with criminally assaulting Miss Annie Poole, a young girl in Lakewood, an Atlanta, Ga., suburb, was captured and lynched.

Albert B. Cummins was nominated for governor of Iowa by the state Republican convention Wednesday on the first ballot, securing 933 votes to 603 for George B. Perkins and 104 for S. W. Rathbun.

The Nebraska Prohibition platform reasserts adherence to the principle of no traffic whatsoever in liquor, but insists that the people have the right to vote out the saloon by states, counties or municipalities, and to that end declares for the enactment by the next legislature of a county option law.

James H. Sage, of Troy, N. Y., a nephew of the late Russell Sage, Tuesday declared that the will of the deceased millionaire will be contested.

Four men were killed and a fifth man is missing, as a result of an explosion of guncotton in the works of the Cooper Chemical company on the outskirts of Newark, N. J.

After crawling on hands and knees for a great distance through the forest, Duyo Rogich, of Milwaukee, wounded in three places by Clarence Dietz, reached the homestead of Charles Johnson, at Dadison, Wis., and was later carried into Winters, where he secured medical attention. Slight hope is entertained for his recovery.

Secretary of State Root, speaking before the Pan-American congress, gave valuable advice to Latin America regarding working out the problem of popular self-government. The problem, he said, is a difficult and laborious one.

THREE HUNDRED DROWNFD

ITALIAN SEASHIP SINKS OFF THE SPANISH COAST.

The Vessel had 800 Persons Aboard and over 300 Meet Death in the Water.

Cartagena, Spain, Aug. 6.—A terrible marine disaster occurred Saturday evening off Cape Palos. The Italian steamship Sirio, from Genoa to Barcelona, Cadiz, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, with about 800 persons on board was wrecked off Hormegas island.

Three hundred emigrants, most of them Italians and Spaniards drowned.

The captain of the steamer committed suicide.

The remainder of the passengers and the officers and crew got away in the ships boats or were rescued by the boats from shore.

The Sirio struck a rocky reef known as Bajos Homegus, and sank soon after, stern first. Homegas island lies about two and a half miles to the east of Cape Palos.

The disaster occurred at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The steamer was making a difficult passage through the Homegus group, where the Bajos Home gas reef is a continual menace to navigation.

The vessel began to settle rapidly immediately she had struck, and a terrible scene of confusion and panic ensued on board. The fishermen along the coast sought to render every assistance in their power and sent out boats, which brought many survivors ashore.

Most of the officers and crew of the Sirio are among the saved.

The condition of the survivers is most deplorable. They have lost everything and are without money, food or clothing. The maratime authorities of Cartagena have dispatched a tug to the scene carrying relief supplies. The buildings of a circus and the poorhouse are used as temporary quarters for the sufferers.

The captain took the entire blame for the disaster.

Will Investigate

Bemidji, Minn.—George H. Spear of Grand Rapids, county attorney of Itasca county, has been at Houpt where he made a thorough investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Archie Campbell, whose dead body was found in a bunk room at the Labree hotel at Houpt Sunday morning. E. E. McDonald, county attorney of Beltrami county and Dr. Blakeslee accompanied Mr. Spear, Mr. McDonald having been employed to look after the interests of Edison Bereman one of the men who it is alleged, was involved in a fight with Campbell the evening previous to the latter's death.

Perjury

Williston, N. D.—When the district court convened here the first case which was called was that of the state against John Hamilton, who is charged with running a "blind pig" in the city of Williston.

Alex Lester was put on the stand and was asked whether he had bought whisky of Hamilton. He answered that he had bought something, but would not say whether it was whisky or water. The judge asked him, point blank, if it was whisky he bought and he said he did not know. The judge then ordered him to be arrested on a charge of perjury.

Trouble Ahead

St. Peter, Minn.—The police in this county are confronted with a case that is the exact parallel of that which resulted so tragically at Prescott Wis. They may be called upon to arrest a crew of Italians who are charged with the illegal shooting of wild game, and instructions to apprehend the men are expected hourly.

The foreigners responsible for the trouble here are Chicago & North Western railway laborers, who have been employed in the general pits at Courtland village for several weeks past.

Held up

Bristol, S. D.—A. E. Farr of Carnduff, Canada, was held up in a box car near Bristol and relieved of $40. He had been working in Iowa all summer and had started up with two friends for the Dakotas to work in the harvest fields, Farr was in the box car when the robbers entered. He was ordered to hold up his hands, at the point of a revolver. His friends have disappeared and he suspects them of being implicated in the holdup.

Killed His Wife

Bar River, Man.—Avard Morine, a laborer killed his wife with a hatchet and then committed suicide by jumping into the river after cutting his throat with a razor.

Morine was forty-five years old and it is thought had been mentally unbalanced since his recovery from typhoid fever. He had worked all day picking cherries in the intense heat and at night seemed much confused.

Will test Case

Sturgis, S. D.—A test case is to be brought to determine the constitutionality of a feature of the state peddler's law, which provides that only one individual has the right to peddle under one license.

C. Q. Adams, a canvasser for a buggy manufacturing company, has been arrested in Meade county charged with canvassing without a license. Adams was one of several men in the employ of the buggy company who were canvassing through Meade and Butte counties.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Gold.

Faribault—Probably as rich gold fields as any discovered in which pure gold in the dust was found have been located in Newmarket township, sections two and three, and range 112, twenty-six miles northwest of this city.

There seems to be no mistake or fake about these deposits, and that they are extensive as to area and depth, as samples have been sent to Rapid City to the government assaying establishment, and a thorough test made. The assay of the poorest samples shows $1.65 a ton, after being figured by a score of hands, and nearly half the dust sticking to the fingers.

The gold is pure dust in sand, and can be shoveled up as easily as common sand, and the hills and valleys are full of it on ground comprising nearly 100 acres, some places as deep as forty feet.

The writer has seen the assay certificate signed by the essayer, L. Mellinger, and Charles H. Fulton, president of the college of mines, Rapid City, S. D. We have spent several days prospecting there and have samples of the gold washed and some unwashed.

There is much of it which will test $4 to the ton of gravel and sand.

Races at the Fair.

Hamline—More fast horses will be seen at the Minnesota State Fair this year than ever before. A great entry list closed on July 2 and horses famed the country over are to contest for purses aggregating $33,000. But the greatest of all the track events will be the appearance of Dan Patch, the fastest pacing stallion in the world, and Cresceus, the fastest trotting stallion, in an attempt to lower their world's records. These horses will go on Monday, Sept. 3, the opening day of the fair. They will be driven by Hersey, driver and trainer of their owner, M. W. Savage. Both horses are owned in Minnesota—a fact that should be remembered.

There will be sensational racing each day of the fair—racing under the best conditions and surroundings. The horses go on their merits the management is equitable and just.

Half fare rates have been made on all roads running into Minneapolis and St. Paul, and are good beginning with Saturday, Sept. 1st—so that all may reach the cities in time for the big events of the opening day.

A Big Packing Plant.

Minneapolis—J. Ogden Armour, president of the great packing house company of Chicago, in conference with leading business men of the city yesterday, announced that they will establish in Minneapolis one of the largest and most modern packing house plants in the world, representing a first investment of over $2,000,000, which will increase in the course of three or four years to $9,000,000 or $10,000,000.

Armour & Company have bought 800 acres of land lying directly northeast of the city, but outside of the city limits, embracing the entire northeast section of Hennepin county and running over the line into Ramsey county. It is suitable in every way to the development of a great packing industry, and will be provided with a plant second to none. Every railroad facility will be put in, and the equipment will be the best that money can buy, making it the most complete packing plant in the country.

Nearly Escaped.

Minneapolis—The chance discovery of a severed bar in one of the cells in the Hennepin county jail led to the frustration of a threefold jail delivery, evidently planned for that night. The investigation that followed resulted in finding three other severed bars, one in the same cell and the others in different parts of the jail, and in locating a thirty-foot rope made of bedding, a quantity of saws and other tools that were used in cutting the bars. Following the investigation W. H. McEwen, Leonard Wilcox and John Kelley were locked in the jail dungeons. The three men are awaiting the action of the grand jury, being charged with grand larceny. They were the occupants of the cells where the bars were found cut.

Disfigured.

Rochester—Minnie Hoesley was the victim of an accident that will disfigure her for life. The girl mounted a horse on her father's farm, near this city, when the animal bolted. The child was tossed into a barbed-wire fence. Her left cheek was cut open from the eye to the mouth, and great gashes were torn in the left arm.

News Notes.

Minneapolis—There seems to be not the least doubt that Jesse Armstrong was drowned in the river near the west end of the stone arch bridge.

Crookston—John Kelch of Pekin, Ill., reported to the police that he had been robbed of valuables amounting to $940 last night on the Great Northern train.

St. Paul—Charles Thalender, a carpenter, is killed by falling while at work.

St. Cloud—Nothing has created such a sensation in political circles in this part of the state as the unexpected resignation of James A. Martin, postmaster of St. Cloud.

St. Paul—The saengerfest closes with a monster parade and picnic.

Hamline—More than 800 attend the sessions of the Northwestern Bible conference at the state fair grounds.

Washington—John F. Magnuson was today appointed postmaster at Hazel, Red Lake county, Minn., vice A. M. Edstrom, resigned.

St. Paul—There has been a marked falling off in the summer school attendance throughout the state this year, according to a report issued yesterday by State Superintendent of Schools Olsen.

Granada—The Granada mill, valued at $20,000, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The insurance is $8,000.

St. Cloud—The ten-year-old son of Peter Bettendorf, living on Ninth avenue, while engaged at target practice with a 22-caliber revolver, accidentally shot himself through the two fingers of the left hand. It is not thought he will lose the fingers.

HON. W. H. KELBAUGH OF WEST VIRGINIA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh.

A Cold at Any Time of the Year, Especially in Hot Weather, is Very Depressing to the System. Pe-ru-na is an Unequaled Tonic For Such Cases. Read What People Say About It.

Hon. W. H. Kelbaugh, Ex-Member W. Va. Legislature, 204 9th street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes:

"You can use my name and word at all times for Peruna as a medicine and tonic unequaled. I have tried it for a stubborn cold and badly run down system. I tried all sorts of other medicines and paid several expensive doctor bills. Peruna cured me, strengthened me more than ever, and saved me money."

Mrs. Clara Litterst, Seafield, Ind., says: "Last fall I took a severe cold. I took Peruna, began to improve and kept on so until I was able to do my work."

Fishermen Using Motor Boats.

Iceland's fishermen have taken to using motor boats in their business. Automobiles and motor boats have also made their way to Helsingfors, Finland.

Shows Value of Liquid Fuel.

The steamship Goldmouth, belonging to the Shell line, has just arrived at Rotterdam, after steaming from Singapore by the route round the Cape of Good Hope, a distance of 11,791 miles, in 52 days, without once stopping the engines or checking the generation of steam in the main boilers. This performance is believed to be the largest nonstop run ever made by marine machinery. The vessel was burning liquid fuel, and with so great an economy that enough surplus is left to take the vessel 20 days steaming on her return passage east.

BOOKS FOR GREAT COMMANDER.

Library Napoleon Ordered Comprised Many Subjects.

In 1808 Napoleon formed the idea of having a traveling library in order to make his hours of intellectual recreation independent of the exigencies of a campaign or the delays of a courier.

The proposed library was to form about a thousand volumes. The books were to be of small duodecimo size, printed in good type, and without margins in order to save space. They were to be bound in morocco, with flexible covers and limp backs. The boxes for their conveyance were to be covered with leather and lined with green velvet, and were to average 60 volumes apiece, in two rows like the shelves in a library. A catalogue was to accompany them, so arranged that the emperor could readily find any desired volume. The distribution of subjects was as follows: Forty volumes on religion, 40 of epic poetry, 40 of the drama, 60 volumes of other poetry, 60 volumes of history and 100 novels. "In order to complete the quota," ran the instructions, "the balance shall be made up of historical memoirs."—James Westfall Thompson, in the Atlantic.

"NO TROUBLE"

To Change from Coffee to Postum.

"Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Ills. man.

"I've had indigestion nearly all my life but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last Spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time.

"A coffee drinker for 30 years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever.

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells.

"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I am well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

STORIES OF OUTBREAKS RIFE AT ST. PETERSBURG

Sevastopol Said to Be Scene of Uprising Similar to That at Cronstad, While Four Mutinous Warships Are Bearing on Capital.

St. Petersburg.—An outbreak at Sevastapol similar to that at Cronstad is reported. Reenforcements have been sent to Sevastapol from Odessa.

There is a rumor that four mutinous warships are cruising about Cronstad threatening St. Petersburg. The admiralty does not believe the story.

General Strike Call.

The call for a general strike, finally issued Friday, bore fruit before nightfall. It is estimated 40,000 men in the capital and surrounding district quit work at once.

St. Petersburg was in darkness Friday night. The employes of the electric lighting plants, always the earliest barometric record of political conditions, ceased work during the afternoon in obedience to the call.

Fear Soldiers May Mutiny.

With the call for a strike the first serious symptoms of military disaffection in St. Petersburg developed. Cossacks were hastened to the barracks of the Moscow regiment of the guards, stationed in the capital. It is circumstantially asserted this regiment is on the point of mutiny.

Serious disaffection among the troops also is reported from Warsaw and Moscow. A portion of the troops in summer camp near Warsaw mutinied Thursday and are in open revolt. The artillerymen have driven their officers out of their quarters. A detachment of Cossacks sent to overpower the mutineers was received with grapeshot. Details are lacking, as extraordinary precautions are being taken to prevent the facts becoming public.

Army and Navy to Rise.

The growing restlessness among the troops composing the garrisons in the southern provinces is being carefully watched by the provincial commanders-in-chief. Protracted staff councils are being held daily.

A revolutionary manifesto was circulated Friday declaring that Russia is on the eve of a military and naval revolution which will be sharp and desperate.

A general uprising in the navy is among the possibilities, despite the fate which befel the revolt on Pamaya Azova.

An incipient mutiny broke out Friday on board the cruiser Bogatyr at Helsingfors. It immediately was put down with the arrest of 200 of the sailors on board.

Soldiers Guard Warships.

A battalion of infantry is guarding the docks at Cronstad night and day to prevent any attempt to destroy the warships there. These include Rossia and Gromboi, which recently returned from Vladivostok. Their crews remain calm. Reports from Cronstad say that all the sailors have not yet surrendered.

Mutiny at Cronstad.

St. Petersburg. — Developments Thursday were as follows:

More than 2,000 sailors and soldiers at Cronstadt mutinied, and a fierce battle followed, in which several were killed and many wounded. The mutiny virtually is ended.

The mutineers at Sveaborg fortress surrendered.

A general strike, which is expected by its promoters to bring about a great uprising, is to be called Saturday or Monday, according to the decision of revolutionists' committee here.

The crew of the cruiser Pamyat Azova mutinied off the Esthonian coast and killed some of the officers of the vessel. The uprising was suppressed by sailors who remained loyal.

May Be New Mutiny.

Military disorders have broken out at Reval. No details are obtainable. It is feared another mutiny has occurred.

Although the collapse of the great Sveaborg mutiny and the defeat of the Cronstadt uprising somewhat relieve the situation, for the moment, the outlook is so black as to make the government despair. In view of these two mutinies, coming after numerous other outbreaks in the army and navy, the loyalty of the government's fighting forces is utterly an unknown quantity. No one knows what mutiny may spread like wildfire throughout the entire army and navy, or what strike may precipitate a horrible uprising and civil war. The revolutionists expect the next strike to bring this about.

Gen. Markgraffsky, chief of the gendarmerie at Warsaw, was shot and killed by revolutionists.

Will Keep Up Fight.

Although the hands of the revolutionists were forced suddenly by the premature rising at Sveaborg, they are undaunted at these initial reverses and intended to persist in their programme.

The mutiny on the cruiser Pamyat Azova caused great uneasiness for a time, as it is not known how far the disaffection in the navy will spread. The cruiser, however, has arrived in the roadstead at Reval in possession of the loyal portion of her crew, which gained the upper hand after a fight at sea. It is not known how many were killed. Five of the ship's officers are reported to have been slain.

Panic in Palace.

When the firing began at Cronstadt there ensued a wild panic in the imperial palace at Peterhof, as the palace lies under the guns of the fortress. All preparations had been made in advance to flee to Tsarskoe Selo, but the report afloat that the emperor and his family actually had fled in the middle of the night was denied later at the chancellery of the imperial household. It was explained, however, that on account of the "dampness" at Peterhof arrangements had been made for the return of the imperial family to Tsarskoe Selo.

Helsingfors.—With the desperate revolt in the island fortress of Sveaborg quelled after three days' continuous fighting, the authorities are now confronted with a civilian uprising here, led by socialist red guards.

The city, which remained quiet during the battle for Sveaborg, broke into a tumult with the defeat of the revolutionists Wednesday night. Thursday was marked by clashes between troops, police and socialist red guards. There have been several casualties, among the wounded being the chief of police and his assistant.

The revolt at Sveaborg finally was quelled late Wednesday night after three days' continuous fighting in which at least 200 men were killed and three times that number wounded.

It was announced officially that nearly all the mutineers in the fortress had surrendered and that the men implicated are on trial by court-martial. As quickly as found guilty they will be shot.

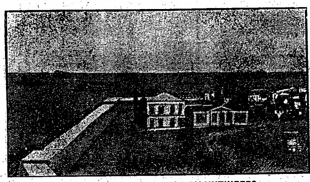
It is asserted that some of the mutineers still are holding a few of the smaller islands, but there was no firing on any of the islands during the night or day.

While the final phase of the fight was at its height six civilians, believed to be red guard leaders, were sent ashore in a hail of bullets. Their identity is not known, but it is reported they will be shot immediately.

Surrender Reported.

Helsingfors.—The latest report from Sveaborg fortress is to the effect that a majority of the mutineers have surrendered.

The mutineers had the upper hand until the battleships Slava and Czarevitch commenced to bombard them with such telling effect that the central magazine was blown up and the biggest guns in the hands of the revolutionists were rendered useless.



ONE OF THE FORTS HELD BY MUTINEERS.

Bad Fire in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The plant of the Montgomery Bros. & Co. planing-mill and box factory, on Court street, was partially destroyed by fire early Tuesday, causing a loss estimated at $170,000. The Pierce Automobile company occupied the top floor, where they manufactured the wooden frames for their cars. They estimate their loss at $100,000. Lieut. George Storm and Fireman George Harnett were slightly injured. Fred O'Brien, night watchman, is missing.

Fire in Malting Plant.

Milwaukee.—Fire Tuesday damaged the plant of the Borchert Malting company, Twenty-fifth avenue and South Pierce street, to an extent estimated at $30,000, about equally divided between building and contents.

Killed by Lightning.

Springfield, O.—Luther Lorton, a farmer, engaged in threshing oats, was struck by lightning and instantly killed during the progress of a terrific rain and electric storm. Clyde Xanders was knocked senseless.

EXCELLENT FRUIT PIES.

Now the Season When There Should Be Brought Forth Such Recipes as the Following.

GRAPE AND ELDERBERRY.—Pick one-third pint of grapes and two-thirds pint of elderberries; mix with two rounded tablespoonfuls of sugar. Line the plate with paste; sprinkle with flour; fill with the grapes and berries; sweeten more, if desired; sprinkle the edge with flour, and cover with a top crust.

HUCKLEBERRY.—Clean carefully one quart of berries; line a plate with paste; turn in the berries, with a cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of water; dredge with flour, and sprinkle over a very little salt and one-half a grated nutmeg. Cover the pie with a top crust, and bake in a quick oven.

PEACH.—Peel, stone and quarter or dice good ripe peaches. Line the plate with crust, and arrange the fruit in it. Sweeten well, and add a little water. Sift over a teaspoonful of flour. Bake with an upper crust, and serve with sugar and rich cream.

APPLE.—Select tart apples; pare, quarter and cut them in thin slices. Line the plate with good puff paste; on this pile the apples, allowing plenty of filling, sweeten with two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar, according to the tartness of the fruit, and put on the top crust. Bake in a hot oven from 20 minutes to half an hour. A little grated nutmeg or ground cinnamon may be added for a change. Or the apples may be pared and cut into halves and placed on the paste with round side down. Mix a piece of butter the size of an egg with two tablespoonfuls of sifted flour, add two cupfuls of sugar and half a cupful of water. Stir smooth, flavor with grated nutmeg, pour over the apples, and bake. When the apples are cooked, pile on the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Set in a hot oven until nicely browned.

PLUM.—Add to three cupfuls of plums enough water to cover, and sweeten with one and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Let simmer until tender. Line the plate with paste; wet the edges, after putting in the fruit; sift a little flour around the edge and over the top. Cover with the upper crust, and bake in a quick oven for 20 minutes.—The Delineator.

ABOUT CLIMBING PLANTS.

Picturesque Arches Covered by Creepers—The Variety of the Latter—The Ramblers.

A length of straight garden can be broken up and made picturesque by a series of archways, which may soon be covered by creepers. Some are evergreen creepers, such as Irish ivy, jessamine and variegated ivy. In planting ivies large plants should be obtained, the lengthy growths of which can be trained to give an immediate effect, and when this is accomplished it is there for good. Although all plant growths prefer woodwork to entwine itself upon, an iron framework can be made by uniting a series of pipe arches, the construction of which is well known to all, by horizontal bars, thus making a continuous arch, which can easily be covered with the wistaria by carefully tying in the young shoots, says the Brooklyn Eagle. In the early summer when it bursts into leaf and blossom it presents a gorgeous sight of lavender flowers and pretty light green fern-like leaves. It may also be trained up a window on a wire lattice, adding beauty to the scene and sweet perfume to the house. This climbing plant is no trouble, once it obtains a hold of the ground, grows very rapidly quickly covering the space allotted to it; it is, moreover, sure to give abundance of blossom every spring, either white or lavender. There are now so many climbing roses that these ought not to be overlooked when the covering of arches is in question. Those of the rambler tribe are strongly recommended on account of the amount of blossom obtained from them during the season. They are now available in crimson, white, yellow and pink varieties, and when planted near one another give great variation and color.

Arranging Floral Pieces.

When arranging floral pieces in which wire frames, covered with lead-foil and filled with moss, form the basis of the work, it is hard to get the surface closely covered, and the edges hidden. I have found wire hair-pins used as staples for fastening flowers and foliage into position the greatest help of anything I have ever tried. The pins pierce the foil and enter the moss, easily, and so make it possible to quickly staple vines, foliage or flowers around the edge of the frame or into vacant spots over the face of the piece. Then, too, a flower or leaf often persists in standing up when it should lie flat, and, when this happens, a hair-pin put across the stem brings it into the required position and holds it there.

Salted Almonds.

A cooking-school formula for salting almonds requires that after shelling and blanching, the nuts shall be boiled in strong salt water for ten minutes, allowing one teaspoonful of salt to each cupful of nuts. Dry thoroughly on a cloth and sprinkle with melted butter or salad oil, a teaspoonful to each cupful. Spread on a tin and put in a hot oven till they are a light brown. Shake often, watching carefully that they do not burn. Drain on blotting-paper.

To Test Vegetables.

A thin knitting needle is better than a fork for testing vegetables in cooking, as it leaves scarcely any mark.

MIDSUMMER REPAIRING.

In the Middle of the Summer the Careful Woman Takes Account of Stock.

There are few women who can possibly tide over the whole summer with the clothes they had made in May, observes Anne Rittenhouse.

Sun and soap are two very damaging causes of the going-to-pieces of the clothes we wear between March and October. While blouses disintegrate rapidly under the pressure of the washboard and the sharp point of the iron; most colors fade from cloth after being worn in the sun after two months; white skirts begin to show raveling threads at the edge and from constant pulling and pressing the plaits and the gathers get out of gear.

Colored straw hats fade, as well as the roses and ribbon on them. Even tan shoes get steadily darker while the stockings bought to match them grow rapidly lighter. So it is that even the most careful woman finds herself in the middle of the warm months looking far more disheveled and unneat than she cares to own.

Then should come a week of mending, altering and replacing.

Whether or not women have any system of renewing their clothes at this time of the year, no woman can afford not to have a general overhauling of every garment she wears, under-linen, hats and clothes.

It is strange how upon close inspection we find our clothes not all we thought them to be in neatness and freshness.

Summer clothes are certainly perishable ones and unless we have a constant criticism of them from the outside we are apt to let all the little details slip, and then gasp with astonishment when we really see the condition of things.

A few good days of ripping and mending, of putting on new belts and renewing old collars, of replacing buttons and cutting off edges will do wonders toward giving us a freshened wardrobe for the rest of these days.

POLKA-DOTS IN VOGUE.

They Will Come Well to the Front in Spite of Checks and Plaids and Stripes.

Ever since last March polka dots have been struggling for recognition, in spite of the almost autocratic rule of checks and broken plaids, and of the determined advance of stripes. This summer they have succeeded.

All sorts of polka dots are worn, from the embroidered muslins and linens down to the least expensive batiste, and all sizes as well, from the big, strikingly effective ones to infinitesimal dots (which are almost too small to be seen, and which, when set close together, lighten a dark color without showing, to a casual glance, how they do it.

Single polka dots are the rule, but some unusual effects got by combining several are seen, we are assured by a writer in the Chicago Record-Herald. One stunning silk, for instance, in black and white, with its white ground literally covered with big and little polka dots, overlapping and with the tiniest of all tucked in to fill up corners. All the design was printed in a sort of shadowy black, which kept it from being startling.

Another attractive dress was of dotted Swiss, each of the big black dots which made its style accompanied by two wee ones set just below it.

An unusual version of the skeleton dress, which is one of the most attractive and at the same time useful styles of the season, was of blue, in that strong yet dull shade like the blue of a Chinese mandarin's coat. The blouse worn with it was white, with big polka dots of blue—the same pretty shade that characterized the dress. Yet it was sheer and fluffy enough to "be a real blouse," instead of reverting to a shirt waist type, which would have utterly spoiled the dress.

Cherry Pie.

Stone the cherries and line deep dishes with good rich paste. Fill nearly full of stoned cherries, or if preferred, leave in the stones, sprinkle over them five tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and dredge the cherries lightly with flour. Now roll out the upper crust as thin as convenient to handle and deftly lay it over the dish prepared. Trim off the edges of crust with a sharp knife so as not to drag the pie crust. Make a juice vent in the center and pinch the edges of the crust all round to keep the juices in, and place in the oven, bake and eat the same day.

Bag Cherry Pudding.

One pint of milk, three and one-half cups of flour, three eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one pint of stoned cherries. Beat the eggs until light, then add the milk and flour and beat until smooth. Drain off the cherries, dredge with flour, stir them into the pudding, have a linen bag rung out of cold water that the mixture may not stick, pour into the bag and boil three hours. The ordinary custard boiler may be substituted for the bag, but is no better. This rule is also good for other seasonable fruits.

Veal Loaf.

Four ounces of veal steak, chopped fine, one slice of salt pork, three crackers, pounded fine, two eggs, one tablespoonful of sage, one tablespoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of salt, piece of butter size of an egg. Milk all together and put small bits of butter over top. Grate slice of bread over it. Bake two hours in slow oven.

AROUND THE BASES

Chick Fraser, Pitcher, Expert with the Lasso.

It is not generally known that the Cincinnati Reds have a cowboy novitiate on their team, and that during the coming winter he hopes to develop into a regular ranchero. Chick Fraser, the twirler secured from Boston, is the pseudo knight of the lasso, and before another spring training comes around the clever twirler expects to be so expert with the rope and the cayuse—said cayuse being a small Indan pony—that goes with the lariat, that he will enter some of the steer-roping competitions that are held in and around Marlin Springs, where the Reds again will do their preliminary work.

"I spent a goodly part of last winter on Fred Clarke's ranch in Kansas," said Chick, "and there acquired the art of tossing the lasso over the head or hoofs of flying cattle. Clarke's brother has a large number of cattle, and on a certain day, when there was to be a dehorning bee, he allowed Fred and me to try our hands at lassooing steers. The first cast I made I got my noose right around the neck of a big boy, and in a moment he was on the ground. I was advised to quit right there and rest on my laurels, but ambition drove me on, and for some time after I looked like a fool in making wild tosses.

"Eventually, however, I got the knack of the thing, and another winter at it will see me an expert. Clarke, by the way, is as successful with the lasso as he is in managing the Pittsburg team—and there are those that say that the Pirates will win the pennant again this season."

JOHN ('HANS') WAGNER
SHORTSTOP OF THE PITTSBURG (N.L.) CLUB

Son of Sioux Warrior, Sitting Bull II., a Fan.

Sitting Bull, son of the famous Sioux Indian warrior, umpired amateur baseball games at the summer resort at Spirit Lake, Ia., recently. Some of the fastest teams in Iowa have had the indicator held by the Indian umpire during the season, among them the Indian team owned by Col. Walker, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company, and the Hawarden (Ia.) team, the fastest amateur team in the northwest.

Sitting Bull is as good an umpire as his father was a fighter. There is no playing with him. When he makes a decision it "goes." And he does not get excited. "I never thought I would hold an indicator in a baseball diamond," he said. "I started to be a referee in lacrosse games and finally got to holding the indicator for the Indian teams near Fort Robinson. Then the colored regiment at Fort Valentine had two ball teams, and I held the indicator for them. Now I am an enthusiast in the baseball game, and take as much interest in the game as the bleachers."

Sitting Bull denies that his father was ever the murderer that the school histories and common report picture him. "My father was a brave man, who fought in the open," he said, in speaking of the injustice done his family. He never engaged in anything else but honorable warfare. He was never a murderer or a sneaking prowler, nor a trouble maker for the white settlers, or attacked helpless emigrants.

"As to his participation in the Custer massacre, he was not even on the scene at that time, and was not then a chief of our tribe. Crazy Horse, and not Sitting Bull, was the real leader of the Sioux in the massacre of Custer and the Seventh Cavalry. He and Gall were the chiefs who led the Indians on that fatal day. I remember Crazy Horse, and have heard my father speak of him. He was a chief of great intelligence, a fine-looking Indian of medium height. How they ever thought my father was the leader is a mystery to me. Dull Knife and Standing Elk were both chiefs who were at the massacre, and Dull Knife and my father looked alike."

James A. Hart May Head the National League

It is likely that the National league will have a new president next year and that the Boston club will have a new owner. Rumor points to James A. Hart, the ex-president of the Chicago National league club, as the new president of the league, and Harry C. Pulliam, president of the league, as owner of the Boston club.

President Hart has admitted that he was in favor of a new management for the Boston team and that he had written to Soden and Conant asking them to dispose of the club to some man who would be willing to spend considerable money in the building up of the club.

"Boston is probably the best baseball city in the country," said Mr. Hart. "With a winning team it would make a heap of money. Soden and Conant refuse to invest any money in strengthening the team, and I think that it would be a good plan for them to sell out.

"Harry Pulliam is in the field to buy a club and would take the Boston team if he could get it. He is tired of the presidency of the league, and wants to make a change.

"In regard to my taking the presidency of the league I have nothing to say. It has not been offered to me, and until it is I will have nothing to say concerning the matter."

Baseball fans consider James A. Hart as the best man in the country for the position, and if Pulliam retires Hart will undoubtedly be asked to succeed him.

Hugh Duffy, of Philadelphia, has been mentioned as the new manager of the rejuvenated Boston team if the deal goes through.

On the Diamond.

Umpire Tackaberry, of the Southern league, has resigned.

The Waterbury club has released Pitcher Cy Voorhees and Catcher Perry Thackera.

Dave Jones, of the Detroits, has made but seven doubles and one triple in 50 games.

Lush on May 1 shut out the Brooklyns without a hit, the only no-hit game of the season.

Courtney, the Quaker guardian of the third corner, has not made a home run this season.

Lajoie has an excellent fielding average for a second baseman, his mark being .981. He has only stolen four bases up to date.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1870.

Why not have the County seat removel and the anties tabed, so the ordinary voter will know them? If this county seat fight is to be dragged into the county officers fight, lets have a square deal, as it would be something awful if a good republican living in Red Lake Falls should vote for O'Brien, because he was a republican and found out afterwards that County seat removel was what he was voting for.

We hope the inspection of cleanliness in the packing houses will be kept up, until the pork packers are compelled to pack mess pork without putting the brussels in. We suppose it takes time and a little water to do this, but it is rather unpleasant for the consumer to have to face the fact that if he must eat "hog" he has to eat him hair and all, if his cook is not any cleaner than the packers.

The Sunbeam reflects, "it is getting to be about time for A.D. Stephens to put in a branch lumber yard at McIntosh and place the best politician he can muster in charge of it, if he wants to land that County as solid as he did four years ago. We suppose all those old Columbia County boomers will be just falling over themselves to get a chance to vote for him," which begins to look like they wanted more of a platform and less loose lumber in the east county.—Crookston Daily Journal.

The Thief River Falls News, of last week gives John B. O'Brien of St. Hilaire a grand send off for the position of County auditor, which makes us arise to inquire whether Mr. O'Brien is to be the candidate of Thief River Falls or the Republican party. We note that the News has the socialist lined up for him and expects the anarchist will fall in line by next week, while he has the germans all sticking together, but don't say what for, politicaly or otherwise.

We wish to give the editors of newspapers in Polk county a "tip" and that is if A.D. Stephens wants long articles published about state hail insurance, it is just as well to have him pay for setting the type in advance, for our experience has been with him that we would positively decline to give any credit to him for doing this kind of work. Our printers got their pay four years ago for setting up his long winded platforms of false promises, but they were paid by yours truly W.G. Hunt, and the balence due is still coming from A.D.

Persian Dramatics

A traveler, speaking of some of the oddities of Persian customs when viewed with occidental eyes, said:

"Depending as we do upon illusion and scenic effects in our theaters, the presentation of a Persian play by native performers strikes the westerner as little short of ridiculous, the extreme solemnity of all concerned making the appeal to hilarity all the stronger. In one of their favorite miracle plays the prophet is supposed to ascend to heaven, and this dramatic incident is accomplished by the very simple expedient of drawing him up from the stage and out of sight with a block and tackle. The tackle is attached to his belt by an attendant in plain view of the audience. So strong, however, is the imaginative power in the oriental that many of the onlookers will be observed weeping openly."—Harper's Weekly.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.
Governor—
A.L. Cole,
Cass County.
Lieutenant Governor—
A.O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.
Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.
State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County,
Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.
Attorney General—
E.T. Young,
Swift County.
State Auditor—
S.G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.
Clerk of Supreme Court—
C.A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.
Railroad Commissioner—
C.F. Staples,
Dakota County.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? yoy will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

Still They Come.

S.A. Gunderson and Oluf Snoback have our thanks for taking advantage of the special rate, and paying one years subscription the past week. Mr. Gunderson left for E. G. F. Saturday, but the Sunbeam followed. He will return in about five weeks and teach the fall term of school in the Swanson District in Deer Park Township.

With all the renewels and the old subscribers paying up and extending it is a difficult task for us to keep our subscription list down to the 75 subscriber mark. Bro. Latta can't you extended it a little. so as to partly conform with our new affidvit on file in the auditors office of Red Lake County, for behold that irepresible Hunt never lets up,

Bids For Carrying Mail Wanted.

Preposels are out for making contracts for the carrying of mail from here to Lillo and return three times a week. All bids must be made in time to reach Washington by September 1st, copy of preposal can be seen at this office or at Rhoda post office.

BUSINESS LAWS.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

The acts of one partner bind all the others.

An agreement without consideration is void.

A personal right of action dies with the person.

The law compels no one to do impossibilities.

A contract made with a minor or lunatic is void.

A receipt for money paid is not legally conclusive.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

Agents are responsible to their principals for errors.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm.

A draft becomes an acceptance when the party upon whom it is drawn writes "accepted" across its face and signs his name.

Had No Time to Vote.

President Zachary Taylor in 1810, when only twenty-two years of age, was appointed to a lieutenancy in the regular army. He served in the army up to or near the time of his nomination for the presidency in 1848. After he had carried off the prize friends of Henry Clay and others who wanted the nomination sneeringly spoke of Taylor as an ignorant frontier colonel, who had not voted for forty years. It is probable he had not voted, as he had been away from home in the military service most of the time and came into prominence only through his brilliant military record in the Mexican War.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE RED LAKE RIVER TRANSPOTATION COMPANY.

We the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58, revised laws of Minnesota, 1905, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

Article 1

The name of this corporation shall be the Red Lake River Transportation Company.

Article 11.

The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be the operating of a line of boats upon the Red Lake River and upon the Great Red Lakes, and streams tributary thereto, in Red Lake, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, in the State of Minnesota, as a common carrier of passengers and freight for hire, together with the doing of all things necessary, convenient or incidental thereto. For the purposes of carrying on said business, this corporation may buy, own, sell, lease, let, build, and operate, steam boats, barges, tugs, launches, or any other sort of water craft, whether propelled by steam, gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, alcohol, or other motive power; may buy, construct, lease, let, own, and operate docks and wharves, and for that purpose may buy or acquire by condemnation proceedings, or otherwise, any real estate convenient and necessary for the carrying on of the said business; may buy, sell, own, lease, let, develope, improve, water powers, dams or locks for the purpose of carrying on said business; may borrow money for the corporate purposes of said corporation and issue notes, obligations, bonds, and securities therefore, in the name of said corporation, and pledge and mortgage, the property, rights and franchises of said corporation as security for the payment thereof, and in general, do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the business of said corporation, not inconsistent with the laws of the State of Minnesota.

Article 111.

The principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be at the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota.

Article 1V.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be the 9th day of June, A. D., 1906, and the period of continuance of this corporation shall be thirty (80) years.

Article V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), which shall be divided in one thousand (1000) shares of Ten Dollars ($10.00 each, and shall be paid in at the time or times and in the manner prescribed by the board of directors, in cash or property at the cash market value thereof.

Article V1.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($2500.00).

Article V11.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation shall be, Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Segardson, D.A. Kolstrand all of Highlanding Minn. James O' Brien, Carl Jenson, all of Kratka Minn. W. A. Swanson of Rhoda Minn. E.K. Gjernes. Sjur Stolass all of Radny Minn., all of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Article V11I,

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of Eleven directors, who shall be elected annually by the stockholders at the annual meeting thereof and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified.

The names of the first Board of Directors of said corporation are Ole Overum, Carl Jenson W.A. Swanson, W.G. Hunt, Lars K. Vindlas Peter Hedeen, E.K. Gjernes, James O'Brien, August J Wentzel D.A Kolstrand, Frank Lundeen, whose term of office shall continue until the first annual meeting of said corporation and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The officers of said corporation shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors at their first meeting after the annual stockholders meeting in each year, and who shall respectively hold office until his successor is elected and qualified. The office of treasurer and secretary may be held by the same person.

Until the first election of officers by the board of directors Ole Howard shall be president, Carl Jensen vice president, and William A. Swanson secretary and August J. Wentzel treasurer.

Said corporation may have such other officers as may be necessary for carrying on its affairs, to be provided by the by-laws or designated by the board of directors. All such officers to be chosen by the board of directors.

Any vacancies in any office or in the board of directors shall be filled by the board of directors for the unexpired term,

The president and vice president of this corporation shall be elected from the Board of Directors.

Regular and special meetings of the directors and stockholders may be held at such times and under such rules as may be prescribed by the by-laws of such corporation.

Article 1X,

No sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition of any stock, of this corporation shall be valid or effectual for any purpose until there has first been endorsed upon the stock certificate to be effected by such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition, the approval or consent of a majority of the Board of Directors of such corporation, sitting as a board, to such sale, assignment, transfer, hypothecation, pledge or other disposition.

Article X

The by-laws of the corporation shall be adopted by the first board of directors, and may be from time to time modified, amended or repealed by stockholders or members at any regular meeting or any special meeting called for that purpose.

The annual meeting for the election of directors and the transaction of such other business as may regularly and properly come before the same, shall be held at the office of said corporation, in the Town of Highlanding County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota on the 2nd Monday of January in each year, commencing with the year 1907, and immediately after each annual meeting the board of directors shall meet for the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as the by-laws may prescribe.

The first meeting of said corporation shall be held at Sunbeam Postoffice in the Town of Highlanding, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of June, A.D. 1906 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and a meeting of the said board of directors shall be held at the same place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day.

In witness whereof the persons, hereinbefore named have subscribed their names and affixed their seals this 28th day of March, A. D., 1906.

Andrew Ellingson, [Seal]
Ole Overum, [Seal]
James O'Brien, [Seal]
Carl Jensen, [Seal]
August J. Wentzel, [Seal]
J.A. Kelly, [Seal]
W.A. Swanson, [Seal]
E.K. Gjernes, [Seal]
Sjur Stolaas, [Seal]
Julius Halverson, [Seal]
Ljot Sigardson, [Seal]
D.A. Kolestrand, [Seal]

Executed in presence of:
B. Henry, Costello
Hallvard Rystad.

State of Minnesota) S. S.
County of Red Lake)

On this 2nd day of June, A.D., 1906, before me, a notary public in and for the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, personally appeared Andrew Ellingson, Ole Overum, James O'Brien, Carl Jonsen, August J. Wentzel, J.A. Kelly, W.A. Swanson, E.K. Gjernes Sjur Stolaas, Julius Halvorson, Ljot Sigardson, D.A. Kolstrand, to me personally known to be the same persons described in and who executed the foregoing articles of incorporation, and each acknowledged that he executed the same as his free act and deed.

(Seal)
W.G. Hunt.
Notary Public,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.
My commission expires June 21st 1912.

Office of Register of Deeds.
State of Minnesota
County of Red Lake.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 3rd day of July, A.D. 1906. at 8 o'clock A.M. and was duly recorded in book E of Misc. page 388.

(Seal)
Frank Jeffers.
Register of Deeds.

STATE OF MINNESOTA.
DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed for record in this office on the 6th day of June A.D. 1906, at 3 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book M. 3 of Incorporations on page 133.

P.E. Hanson.
Secretary of State.
Germo & Farley.
Attorneys.

Summons.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, } S. S.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA,

To Warlenty Warjnaroski and Mrs. Warlenty Wajnaroski, Defendant's.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 30th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A.M., at my office in the Town of Highlanding in said County to answer to the complaint of Edward Singer Plaintiff, in a civil action, wherein the Plaintiff claim the sum of seventeen dollars and seventy two cents ($17.72), with intrest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 8th, day of November 1905. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid judgement will be rendered against you up on the evidence adduced by said Plaintiff for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand, and dated this 1st, day of August 1906

W. G. Hunt,
Justice of the Peace.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota on August 15 1906 viz:

Tollef B. Nesland,

H. E. No. 040 Red Lake Series, for the S. W. ¼ Sec. 36 Tp. 154 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Ole O. Langli, Halvor Homme all of Brunkeberg Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

J. K. Wood,

COUNTY SURVEYOR, & CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls Minnesota.

The Ohio River.

No part of the Ohio river is in Ohio, the boundary of the state is the northern or northwestern margin of the river. The stream itself is wholly in West Virginia and Kentucky, where it flows past Ohio. The northwest territory, out of which Ohio was formed, was defined as the territory north and west of the Ohio, not north and west of the middle of that great river.

Not to Be Trifled With.

Love had just laughed at the locksmith.

"Why don't you laugh at the milliner and the landlord and the grocer?" asked a bystander.

"Because," replied Love, "they always make me feel mighty serious."—Houston Post.

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
96
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.—— J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS. CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H.H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store;

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price .....00..........

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

How Some Mutes Marry.

Statistics compiled by authorities on the condition of the deaf and dumb in this country present one significant fact in regard to the domestic affairs of that body of citizens. It is revealed therein that while many women deprived of the power of speech have been sought in marriage by men whose five senses were unimpaired only a few women whose tongues were in good working order have consented to tie themselves to men who could not hear what was being said. Cynics find in these revelations matter for many caustic diatribes pertaining to the conversational and listening powers of the sexes. Whether or not these sarcastic observations contain an explanation of the comparative willingness of men and women to marry mutes is a question, but the fact remains.

The Hindoo Strong Man.

The Hindoos tell wonderful stories of the feats of Bhima, who was their strong man. Among the wonders credited to Bhima are the following: Pursued by a tiger, his mother when nursing Bhima let him drop. The force of the impact shattered in a thousand pieces the rock on which he had fallen, but the boy was none the worse. When he quarreled with other boys he gathered them up, ten or fifteen at a time, and plumped them into the nearest pond. His cousins hid themselves in a tall banyan to jeer at him, but he tore it from the ground without effort. He snapped his bonds like Samson, and a hungry cobra's fangs could not penetrate his skin. His triumph, however, was the defeat of Bakasura, who "consumed a cart load of food at a sitting and used palmyra trees for toothbrushes."

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Our farmers are jubilent over a bumper crop, which they will commence harvesting the first of next week.

The Misses Sullivans and Arndts and Katherine Dunn had a social picnic at Miss Kuehnels on last Sunday afternoon.

Andrew Ellingson the Highlanding merchant was enjoying city life here Monday, listening to the lawsuits tried.

Miss Olive Lee who has been at Fargo the past three months returned to her home in Kratka Township on Friday last.

Walt McAndrees and P. Sullivan went down to Crookston Tuesday as witnesses in final proof cases before the U.S. Land Office.

The past week has been fine hay weather, only rather warm at least that is what we thought when we tried our hand at it on Tuesday afternoon.

Ye editor was transacting Notary Public business at Kuehnel post office Wednesday afternoon in the Probating of the A. W. Shosten estate case.

Jerry and Kate O'Brien went down to Crookston on Tuesday, where they will make final proof on their homesteads, and go from there to Crystal N. D. for the harvest season.

James Coleman came down from his Pea Soup Island farm Wednesday, and is helping A. Eve haying this week. He expects to leave for southern Minnesota next week.

Miss Auguste Kuehnel, has been taking in the fair at Thief River Falls this week. Miss Katherine Dunn has been licking stamps as assistant post master at Kuehnel during her absence.

The wagon roads are now in fine condition on all parts of the 11 townships' as the long continued spell of dry weather has completely dryed up all the sloughs, and any one can drive with safty and speed, to any point they desire to visit.

Edward Singer of the firm of Singer Bros. the Rhoda merchants, says they are doing a large amount of toting of goods from Plummer now days and the roads are in fine condition, even the towns of Equality and Garnes are enjoying good roads

Cards are out announcing the Marriage of John Radneski of Deer Park Township and Miss Engeborg Vattendahl of this township, to take place at the Lambert church on Wednesday, the 15th of August. A grand reception and ball will be given at the residence of the brides father. Ole Vattendahl, in the afternoon and evening.

John Radneski the Radny store keeper passed this way Tuesday morning on his way to Crookston and Plummer, on a flying business trip. We noticed that John had a smile on his conteuance and a far away look— something like a man that was going to take a plunge into a river and did not know just how the swimming would be.

There was two cases tried in Justice Court here last Monday. Daniel Reireson was Plaintiff in one and Oscar Holt was defendant which resulted in a virdic for the defendant. Im the other one Nels Loiland was Plaintiff and Oscar Holt defendant, and resulted in a virdic for the Plaintiff. Attorney J. Walseth appeared for defendant Holt in both cases and takes appeal to District court in the case of Loiland v.s. Holt.

Julius Olson and wife and Ole Vattendahl, went down the river in a row boat on Tuesday to Thief River Falls on their way to Crookston.

What realestate has changed hands in this locality since final proof has been made, has been sold at a big profit over the government price paid.

There will not be a great many of our homesteaders that will go to the Dakota harvest fields this year, the larger portion of them having plenty of work to do improving their farms.

The farmers of this and Deer Park township are very well satisfied with the fair dealing they have had from the Thief River Falls creamery this season, and this is a business that will largely increase next year.

The wedding that we foretold two weeks ago comes off next Wednesday, with John Radneski and Engeborg Vattendahl as principals, which leaves us still single and another guess coming to the editor of Thief River Falls News.

If you think you will want to look at and read the articles of incorporation of the Red Lake River Transportation Co., at some future time, you should keep this copy of THE SUNBEAM as they will not be published next week.

Tom and John Sullivan left for Crystal N.D. on Tuesday morning to look after their farming interests out there. They went by way of Crookston, where they made final proof on their homesteads here, before the U.S. Land office on Wednesday.

Parties making application to to make final proof at this office must not understand that the writing of the application and the publication of the notice is any guarentee that their proof will be eccepted by the U. S. Land office, and that it is just the same amount of work for us if you don't prove as it is if you do.

A Wolf Story.

The other day one of Mrs. N. Moe's daughters started to go to the store, when she noticed some thing move the grass along the road, she stepped aside to see what it was, to her surprise; up jumped a great big she wolf with her mouth wide open, but as luck would have it, her dog was right behind her. The wolf and the dog went at it, this gave the girl a chance to escape. The wolf was playing with her young ones when the trouble began. It was indeed a very close call, and the girl may be thankful that she escaped alive.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam,

Husbands.

The woman who said that she knew her husband didn't drink because he drank so much water in the morning isn't in it with the woman who says that the reason her husband doesn't go to church is because he is already as good as he can be.—Detroit Free Press.

Misunderstanding.

"Hannah," said the mistress to her new girl, "you can take that brown serge dress of mine and put it in soak."

"Yes'm," said Hannah. "Who's your fav'rite pawnbroker?"—London Answers.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3, p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, P.M.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston June 29 th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U.S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on August 15 1906 viz:

Ole O. Nesja,

H. E. No. 664 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1 2, 8½ of N.F. ¼ Sec. 1, Twp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan, Tollef B. Nesland, Simon Olson of Brunkeberg Minn., Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R.J. Montague, Register,

Notice For Publication.

First Pub, in The Sunbeam June 6th 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. June 29th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reaiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on August 15th 1906, viz:

Kittil H. Haugan,

H.E. No. 705 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 31 Tp. 154 N. R. 40 W,

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Nesja, Simon Olson, Sander M. Vraa of Brunkeberg Minn. Gulbrand Granum of Thief River Falls Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Gully, Minn.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

BIRD AND BEAST.

Battle Between a Hawk and a Big Black Dog Mink.

Silent as an owl in the black of night, the hawk glided low on whist wings across the little open space cleared by the fallen maple, paused an almost imperceptible instant above the unlistening squirrel, and then, wings closed, dropped upon him with unerring talons. But for some strange reason the harrier seemed powerless to bear away his kill; while his angry, frightened screams drowned out the dying squeak of the squirrel, he strove with great rattling wing strokes to get purchase on the air, but could not. Over and over again he struck downward with his beak, apparently at the squirrel, though of this, because of the blur of his whipping wings, I could not be sure. In a moment he half toppled forward, and then, like a huge broken winged partridge, he flopped about among the tangled coils of roots, uttering meanwhile shrill screech on screech that seemed fairly to lacerate his throat. In but little more than it takes to tell it a dozen kingbirds had gathered, and were buzzing round the struggling harrier like gadflies round a horse, adding their spiteful cries to his harsh din; now a crow appeared out of nowhere and searched deep in his throat for his hoarest cry; blue jays flashed across the clearing and back again in a frenzy of clamorous excitement; a swarm of chattering blackbirds rushed into the tree above me till its branches sagged and creaked like those of a laboring tree overweighted with fruit—all in an instant bedlam was let loose round that old wind wrecked maple.

Under cover of the uproar I crept nearer and saw that a big black dog mink, his bulldog jaws clamped on the upper leg of the harrier, was grimly fighting to pull him down from behind, while the harrier, with the speed of terror and hate, sought desperately to reach his assailant with his beak. It looked as if the mink must win, for the harrier was perceptibly weakening in his vain counter attack; but a sudden lift with the harrier's long wings half tore the mink from his hold and swung him for one brief moment within distance of that rending beak. Rip; a big red gash gaped open on the mink's writhing flank, and he let go and tumbled back among the roots. Up leaped the hawk, his pearly white breast streaked and blotched with blood from his wounded leg. Like magic the cries of all but the kingbirds were hushed, while, still screaming with rage and hurt, the hawk rose heavily skyward and marked his course athwart the wind for the shelter of the woods.—Harold S. Deming in Harper's Magazine.

Looking Forward.

"Progress is becoming extremely rapid."

"Yes, indeed. In the year 3000 or so lightning will have to get a move on if it wants to be considered fast."

Lucky Patients.

"Did you ever make any mistakes, doctor?"

"Well, I've had several patients get well that I expected would die."

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of The Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston Minn., on August 21, 1906 viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H.E. No. 1187 Red Lake Series, for the S.E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Strande, Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Erie Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION,

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. July 11th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office. at Crookston, Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz:

Berit Martha Valstad.

H.E. No. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 23 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gullingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn., Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. Montague Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub, in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn, July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

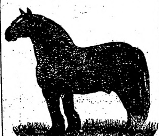
H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1,2, E½ N.W. ¼ Sec. 19 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter E. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn. Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olson, Even Moftelie, Knut Jorstad of Rudell Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

COLONEL.



The Clebrated half Morgan & half French Coach stallion COLNEL, will stand during the balence of the season, at Rhoda, on Mondays, Tuesdays & Wednes days.

Terms. To insure 8.00.

E. B. Johnson, Proprieror.

The Verdict.

Records of the ancient city of Gorgeana, founded in 1640, better known at the present time as York Harbor, Me., contain many quaint and unusual stories of the early life of the town.

At the entrance to York harbor a bold promontory known as Stage neck extends, some distance into the sea, from which formerly in stormy weather a temporary light in the form of a lantern hoisted upon an upright pole was displayed as a warning to mariners.

One dark winter night a sloop was wrecked on these rocks. A survivor on being questioned about the catastrophe said:

"The vessel struck, turned over on her side, and the skipper and another barrel of whisky rolled overboard."

The local coroner was summoned, and this somewhat startling verdict was returned:

"We find that the deceased fell from the masthead and was killed. He rolled overboard and was drowned. He floated ashore and froze to death, and the rats eat him up alive!"—Harper's Weekly.

Vegetables as Medicine.

If you are wakeful eat lettuce.

For affections of the skin and for yellow skin eat onions. Onions are also good for colds, coughs and scrofula.

For a torpid liver eat freely of asparagus.

For malaria and general breakdown eat cranberries.

If nervous and irritable eat plenty of celery.

For constipation eat fruits—ripe and healthy fruits. Fresh fruits are good; so are figs and dates. Raisins are beneficial.

Advice to Young Men.

If the average young man would read the want ads. as closely as the baseball news he would find that he had as many "chances" as a first baseman.—Erie (Pa.) Times.

Consideration.

Duke McGluke—Why do you call your dog Feathers? Count Noaccount—Because I dislike to call him down.

Don't express a positive opinion unless you perfectly understand what you are talking about.

Remember the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.

That's the Holiday Week of the Year
—The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Ampitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd, Dedication adress by James J. Hill,

Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.

The greatest Live stock Exhibition of the world—All the week,

Three great Auction sales of Pure Bred Cattle in the Ampitheater daily.

Live stock parade on Friday, Sensational Racing each day.

Increased Agricultural and Horticultural Exhibits Spectacular Fireworks, Racing, Ect., each night. $5,000 Trotting Race on Minneapolis Day. $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day, Exciting Ladies Relay Riding Race—Six days—Every afternoon of fair week, High Class Specialties each afternoon and evening. Demonstrations of all kinds of farm and Dairy Machinery—Daily. Premiums and Purses $65,644 50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to Leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th.

C. N. Cosgrove, Pres, E. W. Randall, Sec'y.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS, WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

Singer, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.

Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
Northern
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINNESOTA.
Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & Feed.
EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE-LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.
Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.
GIVE ME A CALL.
Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.
Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

THE IDEAL DOROTHY.

BY GEORGE HORTON.
Author of "Like Another Helen."

He was down in the Washington City Directory as "A. Quintner, clerk War Department," and that brief biography gave a very correct estimate of his relative importance in the community. He was one of several thousands in similar positions who left their houses at a certain hour in the morning, performed various duties and returned at a fixed hour at night.

He was a bachelor, was A. Quintner, 45 years of age, retiring and timid, with brown hair, slightly silvered at the temples, a florid complexion, and shaggy eyebrows. He was a big man, he dressed neatly, his manners were grave and polite, and he walked with the aid of a corkscrew Manzanita cane.

A. Quintner had never married because of an ideal.

In early youth he had supposedly found the incarnation of that ideal; a tall, fair woman, with a form as graceful as the stem of a lily, a low, broad forehead, arching eyebrows, an oval face, serious, truthful, tender eyes. Exquisite refinement seemed to emanate from her like a perfume, while gentleness and angelic goodness looked from her level, fearless glance, and spoke in every tone of her low, soft voice.

This woman lied to him, played with his heart as a cat with a mouse, and married a disgusting old millionaire, whose very touch was contamination. Her husband died after a few years and the widow made it very plain to A. Quinter that he might share the dead man's millions with her, but he preferred to remain simply a "clk." in the war department.

But he did not lost faith in his ideal, as we shall see.

One morning, as he was proceeding to his desk in the department, he looked suddenly into the face and eyes of a woman who so reminded him of his youthful love that he nearly dropped his corkscrew cane in his agitation. He turned and gazed after her. Yes, there was the same graceful form, reminding him of the stem of a lily, swaying in a gentle breeze, the same massive coil of amber hair.

"Can it be?" he mused. "But no. She is 40 by now, and this is a young woman, the same age that she was then."

He called this woman, too, Dorothy, even though he did not know her name and had no desire to learn it.

It seemed improbable to him that two persons so closely resembling each other and his ideal—this Dorothy and the Dorothy of long ago—should both be ignoble

This opinion was confirmed the next morning when he observed her from his window bringing several bundles from the corner grocery, evidently provision for the family breakfast. The early air had touched her cheek with freshness, and there was a joyous light in her eyes, which he concluded were grey.

After a week, A. Quintner began to feel that he had something to come home to nights. He was no longer envious of his two associates, one a fat, the other a thin old man, both bald, who shared his office. As the hands of the clock crept around the dial towards half-past four, he also glanced impatiently at them. They—the two old men—were hungry for a sight of their wives and babies, while he perhaps might get a glimpse of Her. Failing that, he should at least experience the sweet influence of her proximity, for she was sure to be in during the evening.

Now, he enjoyed a bowing acquaintance with the servant next door, a woman of about 40, with one colorless eye and a Socratic nose.

He stopped and talked several times with Annie, holding his hat politely in his hand, out of deference for her, whose servant Annie was; and as he talked, his voice grew tender and he exhibited hesitation and embarrassment. When he was actually in conversation with Annie his purpose seemed preposterous for he realized that he had stopped the woman simply because she was her servant.

He saw nothing incongruous in so much physical ugliness serving so much beauty. It seemed to him rather the fate of women of Annie's appearance to perform menial tasks for one upon whose face and figure God had set the seal of Queen.

"There can be no such thing as sentiment in the heart of a poor creature like this servant," he reflected. "In the ideal woman, beauty of soul, refined and delicate feelings, are associated with physical beauty. The latter is the visible and tangible expression of the former. I can talk with Annie without her even suspecting my sentiments for her mistress."

Soon suitors, or, in more conventional language, "men friends," began to appear next door.

"There's a dozen of 'em," said Annie, one day, "and she wouldn't have any one of 'em, not if he was the last man on earth. She'll turn 'em all away some day, when her own true love comes a-ridin' up to the door."

"Cheap literature," reflected A. Quintner, as he walked off, "puts many silly ideas into the heads of the unenlightened."

But Annie's remark brought a new element into his dreams and caused them to include the time when She should suddenly discover that She had lost interest in the others, and should spend all of her evenings with him.

He shrank from actually making her acquaintance for two reasons: First, suppose she should fall short of his conception of her? This thought was such treason that he tried to persuade himself that he did not entertain it, and when it became too insistent he apologized, saying: "Forgive me, dear, I cannot forget the sins of that other woman."

Secondly, his long years as A. Quintner, clerk, had deprived him of the powers of initiative.

About this time something epochal happened. One evening, at an early hour, Mr. Quintner heard a tapping upon the wall which separated his residence from the dwelling next door. He was thinking so intensely of her at the moment that the sound, coming from that quarter, impressed him as a signal. Scarce realizing what he was doing, he sprang to the wall and, trembling like an aspen leaf, he tapped three times, softly, with his knuckles.

What was his joy to receive a response—almost inaudible, indeed, but unmistakably a response!

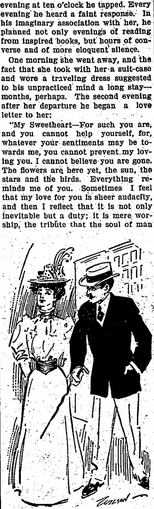
On his way to the office the next day he met her; he passed her in the street; he fairly brushed her dress with his sleeve. He was about to lift his hat in joyful recognition and gaze smilingly into her eyes, but was restrained by a feeling of delicacy, elusive, yet so clear that it caused him to pass by without looking up.

"This is our secret," he mused, "unconfessed even to ourselves, and to take advantage of it or to seem conscious of it would be as rude as to speak of a kiss."

Tapping upon the wall now became the chief feature of A. Quintner's daily life, something to be looked forward to, a sacred tryst to bring him home nights and to keep him there. Every evening at ten o'clock he tapped. Every evening he heard a faint response. In his imaginary association with her, he planned not only evenings of reading from inspired books, but hours of converse and of more eloquent silence.

One morning she went away, and the fact that she took with her a suit-case and wore a traveling dress suggested to his unpracticed mind a long stay—months, perhaps. The second evening after her departure he began a love letter to her:

"My Sweetheart—For such you are, and you cannot help yourself, for, whatever your sentiments may be towards me, you cannot prevent my loving you. I cannot believe you are gone. The flowers are here yet, the sun, the stars and the birds. Everything reminds me of you. Sometimes I feel that my love for you is sheer audacity, and then I reflect that it is not only inevitable but a duty; it is mere worship, the tribute that the soul of man pays to the good, the true and the beautiful—"



HE FAIRLY BRUSHED HER DRESS WITH HIS SLEEVE.

He laid the letter aside and never finished it, for she came back the next day, having been no farther away than Annapolis.

Shortly after her return the responsive rappings ceased, and A. Quintner, fearful of betraying her, did not persist. He merely waited patiently.

But on his way to the office one morning he met the servant with the Socratic features. Her eyes were red with much weeping.

"What's the matter, Annie?" he asked. "Is Dor—is your mistress sick?"

"Don't you know, sir," said the girl, "she has been very sick for a week. The poor thing died this morning at three o'clock."

"My God!" gasped A. Quinter, blanching and leaning against the fence. "No!"

"Yes, sir." Annie laid her large red hand tenderly upon his arm, and looked up to him bravely.

"God bless you, Annie!" sobbed A. Quintner, turning away.

He was never to know that the tapping on the wall, begun as a playful prank by "Dorothy," and indulged in but once or twice by her, had been long continued by the servant with the unsentimental exterior. She had only discontinued it the week before, when her mistress had been taken sick and had demanded her undivided attention.

A. Quintner moved out of the neighborhood the next day, carrying with him the sad but radiant memory of an ideal woman, combining physical charms with beauty of soul and tenderness of sentiment.

A girl with Socratic features stood blubbering, as she watched the dray carrying his effects, and repeating a verse which she had written with stubby, unused fingers:

"Go, little pome, through the male,
My love to my tru love too tell.
The rose is read, the violet bloo,
And o, my love, I loved you troo!"

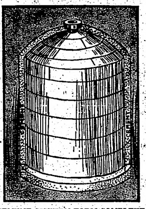
(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

INDUSTRY & MECHANICS

MAKING CEMENT CISTERNS

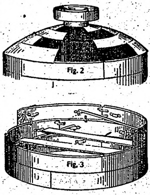
New Method of Construction Which Has Numerous Advantages Over Old Style.

Cisterns are now built of concrete, which has numerous advantages over the old style. As now built the cistern is a large jug, without seam or joint, and all in one piece. Cistern making of concrete is a new branch of work which the concrete constructor can profitably add to his cement walks, foundations and hollow blocks.



CEMENT CISTERN FORM COMPLETE.

A patent has been granted on a set of adjustable forms, which enable the cistern to be made of any size desired. The cistern can be built up one section at a time where there is seepage or danger of cave-in. In building, a 4-inch floor of concrete is first laid, then the forms are set and a thin concrete poured all around, and tamped. The proportions recommended are: One part cement, two parts sand and four parts crushed stone. Or, if gravel is used: One part cement, six parts gravel. The forms remain in place three or four days, then are removed, and the interior of the cistern given a cement wash or a coat of cement mortar. For the wash use a clean cement with two per cent. waterproof compound. For mortar: One part cement, two parts sand and two per cent. waterproof compound. Such a cistern should last indefinitely.



DETAILS OF THE SECTIONS.

Fig. 2 shows how the arch and neck are built up; Fig. 3 how forms are braced and scaffolds placed.

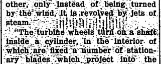
WHAT IS A TURBINE"?

Engineer Explains It by Saying It Is Like a Series of Paper Wind Mills.

"Turbines," especially in the case of "turbine steamers," have been very conspicuous in engineering matters of late years, yet there are probably few people outside the ranks of engineers who know what a turbine is.

"The best idea I can give of it," said an engineer, "is to liken it to those paper windmills which spin on the end of a stick, and which are sold to children on the streets. A turbine, in fact, is like a series of these revolving wheels fixed one behind the other, only instead of being turned by the wind, it is revolved by jets of steam.

"The turbine wheels turn on a shaft inside a cylinder, in the interior of which are fixed a number of stationary blades which project into the space between each wheel. The purpose of these blades is to catch the steam and direct it on to the wheels at an angle where it will exert the most force.



INTERIOR VIEW OF TURBINE TUBE.

"As the steam enters the cylinder it is caught by the stationary blades and deflected to the blades of the first wheel, which are set turning. The steam then passes to the next, until all the wheels are set whirling and the ship is driven through the water."

In order to make the matter clearer, we give an illustration of a small turbine, the revolving blades being in white and the stationary ones in gray.

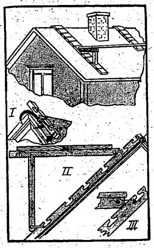
Gold to America.

Within three weeks nearly 30 tons of gold specie have been transferred from England to America.

IMPROVED SCAFFOLDING.

A Novel Form Which Is Particularly Adapted for Use on Roofs of Buildings.

A novel form of scaffolding has recently been invented, which is particularly adapted for use on roofs of buildings. It will be found very convenient when repairing chimneys or doing other work on a roof, as it may be easily handled or placed in position, and when not in use it can be compactly folded for storage or transportation. The Scientific American describes the invention as follows: The scaffolding comprises a pair of bars, each consisting of two sections, which are hinged together. In use the bars are passed over the ridge of the roof, with the sections resting against opposite sides, as shown by Fig. II. in the accompanying engraving. The sections, it will be noticed, are provided with undercut or T-shaped notches, which are adapted for engaging links or loops used in supporting brackets. The upper or horizontal member of each bracket consists of a bar with perforations in its under side, and the vertical member of the bracket carries a pin at its upper end, which is adapted to engage one or other of these perforations, according to the pitch of the roof. The method of linking the bracket bars to the notched bars is clearly illustrated in Fig. III. When the brackets are in position a scaffolding plank is supported on them. In some instances it may be necessary to use the bars at their full length on one side of a roof; that is, to reach from the peak of the roof to the gutter. In such a case hooks are used, which are connected to the bar by a loop, and these hooks are adapted to engage the peak of the roof, as indicated in Fig. I. As the notches in the bars are of T-form, it is obvious that the bars may be used either end up. Mr. John Emberson, White Plains, N. Y., is the inventor of this improved scaffolding.

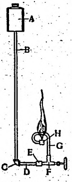


IMPROVED SCAFFOLDING.

A SMALL GASOLINE BURNER

How a Most Serviceable One Can Be Made Out of Inexpensive Materials.

I have found a small gasoline burner, like the one illustrated, very useful for melting babbitt and lead, writes a correspondent of Popular Mechanics. An old coffee flask, A, is soldered to a piece of one-eighth inch pipe, B, about two feet long. This is screwed into a one-eighth inch elbow, C, which holds a one-eighth inch by three-inch nipple, D. A one-eighth inch coupling, E, connects this to a one-eighth inch needle valve, F, which holds a piece of one-eighth inch pipe, G, ten inches long, bent as shown, and covered at the end by a one-eighth inch cap, H, with a one-thirty-second inch hole drilled through the upper side.



In making this device be sure to have all the joints screwed up tight, and a good soldered joint between the flask and vertical pipe, as a small leak might result in an explosion.

Burning Cartridges in Fire.

"In a recent test made at the suggestion and expense of the various manufacturers of cartridges," says Amateur Work "it was demonstrated that cartridges can be burned in a fire without danger to those standing near. As the shell of the cartridge is not confined, the force of the exploding powder tears the shell open instead of throwing the bullet, and these pieces of light shell will not produce serious injuries. The cartridges explode only one at a time instead of simultaneously, so that it is a continual popping instead of a large explosion. In the test, firemen were able to work within 20 feet of where the cartridges were burning without danger or inconvenience."

A Good Cement.

A good cement for switchboard repairs, where iron has to be fastened to marble, is said to consist of 30 parts plaster paris, 10 parts iron filings, and half part of sal-ammoniac; it is mixed with vinegar to a fluid paste for use and made freshly, for it solidifies if allowed to stand.

BOY'S TERRIBLE ECZEMA.

Mouth and Eyes Covered with Crusts—Hands Pinned Down—Miraculous Cure by Cuticura.

"When my little boy was six months old, he had eczema. The sores extended so quickly over the whole body that we at once called in the doctor. We then went to another doctor, but he could not help him, and in our despair we went to a third one. Matters became so bad that he had regular holes in his cheeks, large enough to put a finger into. The food had to be given with a spoon, for his mouth was covered with crusts as thick as a finger, and whenever he opened the mouth they began to bleed and suppurate, as did also his eyes. Hands, arms, chest and back, in short the whole body was covered over and over. We had no rest by day or night. Whenever he was laid in his bed, we had to pin his hands down; otherwise he would scratch his face and make an open sore. I think his face must have itched most fearfully.

"We finally thought nothing could help, and I had made up my mind to send my wife with the child to Europe, hoping that the sea air might cure him, otherwise he was to be put under good medical care there. But, Lord be blessed, matters came differently, and we soon saw a miracle. A friend of ours spoke about Cuticura. We made a trial with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, and within ten days or two weeks we noticed a decided improvement. Just as quickly as the sickness had appeared it also began to disappear, and within ten weeks the child was absolutely well, and his skin was smooth and white as never before. F. Hohrath, President of the C. L. Hohrath Company, Manufacturers of Silk Ribbons, 4 to 20 Rink Alley, South Bethlehem, Pa., June 5, 1905."

English the World Language.

The new world language, Esperanto, seems to have already won more advocates than the older Volapuk. No manufactured language, however, seems to have much chance in competition with English, which long ago displaced French as the most useful and widely spoken language and which is gaining faster than ever in all parts of the world. Quite recently the German government has ordered that all railway officials and employes must learn to speak English. In Antwerp also the authorities are urging all classes to study English and are providing special facilities in the public schools; the city has become "almost an English-speaking port." In Japan all school children are now obliged to learn our language. A few years hence tourists from this country will be able to get along there as easily as on a trip at home. With Great Britain, India, Australia, Canada, the United States and large sections of Africa using English, what hope is there for any other language?

Will Widen Kiel Canal.

The ever-increasing dimensions of war vessels has led the German government to conclude to widen the Kiel canal from 60 to 130 feet, and the width at the surface from 130 feet to 350 feet. The proposed improvements, it is estimated, will cost nearly $50,000,000.

The last of the Lincoln articles in The Four-Track News appears in the August number, under the head of "Lincoln in Bronze;" an article well worth everybody's reading and of especial interest and value to young people.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" an Operetta.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been given as an operetta. It was originally sung at the Music Hall, Lynn, Mass., October 6, 1886.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES do not stain the hands or spot the kettle, except green and purple.

Sargent's Pictures Rare.

Only three pictures by John S. Sargent have been offered at auction in recent years. A head of a girl wearing a red shawl brought $750 at Christie's. A portrait of Ellen Terry, which fetched $6,000 and was sold subsequently for $15,000, and a half-length portrait of a lady sold in 1903 for $685.

Fall Excursions to Milwaukee.

The Jobbers and Manufacturers' association has arranged for three Merchants' Excursions to Milwaukee during August and September.

Any merchant in the northwest is entitled to a rate of one and one-fifth fare for the round trip, not alone for himself and wife but for anyone actively interested in his business.

You can buy tickets to Milwaukee as follows:

First Excursion, August 4 to 12 and return home August 6 to 22.

Second Excursion, August 18 to 26 and return home August 20 to September 5.

Third Excursion, September 1 to 9 and return home September 3 to 19.

Ask for ticket to Milwaukee at full fare and for a certificate (not a receipt) for fare paid. This certificate will entitle you to one-fifth fare to return home if validated at the Secretary's Office, 45 University Bldg., at any time within the dates fixed.

Get the low rate and visit Milwaukee, the most beautiful city in America.

A man can't be unusually polite without being looked upon with suspicion.

ITS MERIT IS PROVED

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

A Prominent Cincinnati Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Completely Cured Her.

The great good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, and thinking people generally.

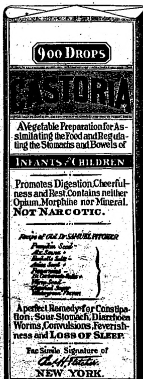
Mrs. Sara Wilson

The following letter is only one of many thousands which are on file in the Pinkham office, and go to prove beyond question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound must be a remedy of great merit, otherwise it could not produce such marvelous results among sick and ailing women.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About nine months ago I was a great sufferer with female trouble, which caused me severe pain, extreme nervousness and frequent headaches, from which the doctor failed to relieve me. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and within a short time felt better, and after taking five bottles of it I was entirely cured. I therefore heartily recommend your Compound as a splendid female tonic. It makes the monthly periods regular and without pain; and what a blessing it is to find such a remedy after so many doctors fail to help you. I am pleased to recommend it to all suffering women."—Mrs. Sara Wilson, 31 East 3d Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you have suppressed or painful periods, weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, pelvic catarrh, nervous prostration, dizziness, faintness, "don't-care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, backache or the blues, these are sure indications of female weakness, or some derangement of the organs. In such cases there is one tried and true remedy—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

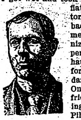


900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.



L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistency of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

In the course of conversation one must change the solid gold of one's thoughts into countless pieces of such small coin that one invariably appears poor.—Carmen Sylva.

CURIOS AND ODDITIES.

Only one woman in 100 insures her life.

Ellen Terry is passionately fond of cats.

Sarah Bernhardt has a huge bed 15 feet long.

Patti sleeps with a silk scarf about her neck.

Brides in Australia are pelted with rose leaves.

In stature Eskimo women are the shortest on earth.

No photographs are ever taken of women in China.

A woman's brain declines in weight after the age of 30.

In Africa wives are sold for two packets of hairpins.

New York has 27,000 women who support their husbands.

Drunkenness is rare, smoking common among Japanese women.

TWO WRITERS OF BIOGRAPHY.

Johnson and Boswell Exponents of Different Schools.

It is an interesting fact in the history of literary genres that two of the great examples of biographical writing occur almost side by side. Less than a decade separates the completion of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets"—happily honored in the new edition of the late Dr. Birkbeck Hill—from the publication of his own life by Boswell. Yet with the latter book a new type of biography came into being. Johnson, in the main, had, like most of his predecessors, followed a simple narrative and expository method, prefixing a plain story of the poet's life to a systematic account of his character and a critical estimate of his works; he gathered his facts and impressions together and spoke for the author and for himself. Boswell, on the other hand, making use of a more dramatic method, succeeded in his attempt to let the author reveal himself, and, instead of an exposition of character, painted a picture of personality, to which his own comments were subordinate. What we see as a type of mind and character in Johnson's work, we see as a living man in Boswell.—The Forum.

PHYSICIAN SAYS

Children Thrive on Grape Nuts and Cream.

A Mass. physician has found a cure for constipation in children—citing fifteen cases—by feeding them Grape-Nuts.

"Some time ago," he writes, "I became interested in your food, Grape-Nuts, as a cure for constipation in children. Having tried it in my own family, I have advised it in fifteen cases in which all suffered with constipation more or less severe. The result has been absolute relief in all.

"I write this that other children may be benefited."

How much better it is thus to bring about a healthy action in the bowels of growing children by natural means, than to feed them with improper food, requiring some kind of cathartic at intervals to overcome constipation.

Grape-Nuts gives energy to the entire nervous system including the nerves that cause the natural contraction and relaxation of the bowel muscles, that propel the food mass along.

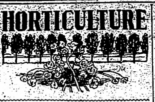
It is predigested also, and the blood easily absorbs the food as it goes through the body, storing up vitality and force for the functions of all the organs.

Children especially, should get the right start as to habits of living. They should grow into bright, strong, cheerful men and women. Grape-Nuts solve the question of the start; a wholesome appetite will do the rest.

Children's teeth are benefited by chewing Grape-Nuts, also. Your dentist will tell you that a certain amount of exercise in chewing firm food, is necessary to grow strong, beautiful teeth.

Teeth need exercise just the same as muscles, if they are to grow strong and firm as nature intended. Grape-Nuts gives the exercise and also gives material from which good teeth are made.

"There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

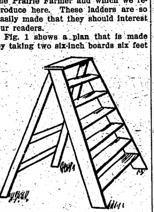


LOW FRUIT LADDERS.

Can Be Built on the Farm and Will Prove Their Value When Given Trial.

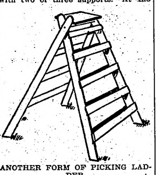
Two sketches of low ladders for picking small fruits, such as peaches, cherries and apples, where the trees are low appeared in a recent issue of the Prairie Farmer and which we reproduce here. These ladders are so easily made that they should interest our readers.

Fig. 1 shows a plan that is made by taking two six-inch boards six feet long and cutting grooves every ten inches where the steps are to be. The steps are set into the grooves and then securely nailed from the outside. The width at the bottom is about three feet, but each step is shortened two inches, so that the top step, which is nailed across the ends cut parallel with the grooves, is two feet long.



A CHEAPLY MADE STEP LADDER.

The support is made by taking two three-inch pieces and connecting them with two or three supports. At the top the two sets are connected with the rod that passes through both. This ladder is secure and if carefully placed will be hard to tip over.



ANOTHER FORM OF PICKING LADDER.

Fig. 2 shows another form that is made by taking four six-foot legs made of sound 3x1 strips and connecting at the top with a bolt. The steps are made by nailing two-inch strips on either side of the legs as illustrated. The board at the top is nailed to the main legs and is supported on either side by the cleats which corresponded with the steps below. The same dimensions are followed as in Fig. 1.

REAL VALUE OF SPRAYING.

In Fighting Disease and Insects One Should Not Depend Too Much on It.

So rapid has been the advancement of spraying as a means of controlling insects and diseases, that there is a tendency to greatly overestimate its value. It was only 26 years ago that Paris green was first used for the codling moth of apples. Not until about 1885 was the Bordeaux mixture used to any extent. When we remember that practically all of our modern spraying—its tools, mixtures and methods, has been developed or made of practical utility within the past 15 or 20 years, until it has come to be an almost universal practice among the most successful fruit growers, we can readily understand why greater importance is sometimes ascribed to it than it really merits. Spraying is a new idea, says Farming, and like most new ideas, it has been over-emphasized. There are some old and a few new ways of solving the insect and disease problems. Sometimes these other ways may be better even than spraying, sometimes they may supplement it very advantageously. We should not forget them in our enthusiasm over a new and valuable remedy.

PRUNINGS.

Currants are among the most profitable of fruits and can be grown in cold climates.

Prune trees properly when young and after they commence to bear little trimming is needed. Its a big mistake to neglect young fruit trees.

For marketing the fruit should be matured full grown when gathered, but should not have time to become mellow.

Keep grass and weeds away from trunks of trees—at least two feet to prevent ravages by mice, and the better to examine the trees.

If fruit trees are overloaded, they should be thinned, not only for the benefit of this year's crop, but of the crop which is to follow another year.

It is a long wait between the planting of an orchard and the appearance of fruit on the trees and a great deal of time will be lost if the wrong sorts are chosen.

RAISING TREES FROM SEED

How It Can Be Done Successfully—Budding and Grafting to Improve Stock.

It is a very easy matter for a farmer or fruit grower to raise his own trees from the seed and to propagate choice varieties. Seeds of stone fruits, including peaches, plums and cherries, many be planted in the fall by sowing thinly in rows three feet apart and covering one to two inches deep. If there is danger of squirrels digging up the pits, store in wooden boxes covered with wire and bury in the ground until spring.

Apple seedlings make good roots in all localities. The most satisfactory way is to purchase apple seedlings and bud or graft them. Practically all pear stocks used in this country are imported from France. Dwarf pears are grafted on quince roots, but all varieties do not thrive on this stock.

Several species of plums are available for stocks, but the best is a confused subject and should be selected according to the variety and locality. For most European varieties the Myrobalan stock is used. This is also adapted to Japanese sorts. These are frequently propagated on peach stocks, as they make more rapid growth and thriftier trees for the first year or two. On any stock they are a short lived tree.

Seedlings of whatever kind will seldom come true and the common ways to propagate varieties are by budding and grafting. Both methods are employed with apples, the seedling roots are cut into pieces five to six inches long and united with the scion by a whip graft. This is then wrapped with waxed cloth and the grafted stocks packed away in moist sand or moss until spring, when they are carefully set in nursery rows. Budding is commonly done in July or August; in the south June budding is practiced to some extent with peaches.

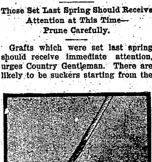
After one full year's growth in the nursery row, says Farm and Home, peach trees are ready to set in the orchard, but most other trees require two or three years before reaching sufficient size. In fact, apples may be transplanted after growing two years and again transplanted two years later before setting in the orchard.

Rich, deep and mellow soil should be selected for growing all kinds of nursery stock. It should be heavily fertilized the year previous to planting and a hoed crop grown. It is unsafe to use rank manure around nursery stock. The cultivation must be thorough and frequent, weeds kept down and growth forced and stimulated as much as possible. Cut off the leader when it has reached proper height to form a head.

CARE OF GRAFTS.

Those Set Last Spring Should Receive Attention at This Time—Prune Carefully.

Grafts which were set last spring should receive immediate attention, urges Country Gentleman. There are likely to be suckers starting from the old branches below the scions, and these should be removed, or they will rob the new growth. The scions also are likely to make a branchy or irregular growth, and this can be prevented to a very large extent by suitable pruning or pinching. The illustration shows a graft after two years' growing which now requires considerable pruning to bring it into proper condition.



AN APPLE GRAFT THAT NEEDS PRUNING.

Flavor of Fruit.

The flavor of fruit is a matter that has engaged the attention of our deepest thinkers on horticultural subjects. Prof. Goff used to contend that there was just so much flavor distributed to each apple. The larger the apple, the less would be the percentage of flavor found in it. He certainly was a close student of fruits and must have had some very good reasons for his opinions. We do not believe that very many people will hold to his opinion. It is certainly true that the more water in fruit the less there will be of flavor, because the less will be the amount of dry matter. It is claimed that fruit grown by irrigation has much less flavor than that grown naturally upon hillsides where the moisture supply is limited.

Climbing Cut Worms.

Look out for climbing cutworms which may, in the night time, destroy the buds on newly-set trees. The best remedy is a tar-paper fence set in the soil around the base of each tree trunk. This "fence," says Farm Journal, must not be closer than two inches to the tree, should extend an inch or so into the ground, and need not be more than three inches high above ground. Use same idea for cutworms which attack cabbage or tomato plants.

Cultivate the orchard thoroughly, particularly the first two years after setting to present surface from baking and drying out.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

India's Cotton Crop.

The cotton crop of India was larger last year, 1905, than the general average. About 20,000,000 acres were planted in cotton and the yield was about 3,500,000 bales. During the year there were exported from India to other countries over 2,125,000 bales of raw cotton at a value of over $81,000,000, the four countries, Japan, Germany, Belgium and Italy, in the order named, being the largest purchasers, they together buying nearly 1,500,000 bales of Indian cotton, while Japan alone took nearly 500,000 bales.

Mother Hubbard's Feast.

By Nixon Waterman.

When old Mother Hubbard
Went to her cupboard
And found it was bare, she ought
To have seen in her plight,
When she hadn't a bite,
Some serious food for thought.

—From Four-Track News for August.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

There is no one any prouder than the girl who has a pretty white neck.

We have noticed that a baldheaded man has always plenty of hair brushes.

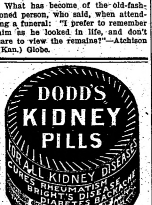
Love may make the world go 'round, but it takes jealousy to make it move lively.

When a man eats a peach in the dark, is the joke on him or on the worm?

One of the remarkable features of childhood is the kind of singing that will put it to sleep.

When a woman announces that she puts up cherries with the pits in, the women who take out the pits think to themselves: "How shiftless!"

What has become of the old-fashioned person, who said, when attending a funeral: "I prefer to remember him as he looked in life, and don't care to view the remains?"—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Libby's Food Products

enable you to make good meals out of "hurry" meals.

Libby's Food Products are ready to serve when you get them, yet are cooked as carefully and as well as you could do it in your own kitchen.

Ox Tongue, Dried Beef, Boned Chicken, Deviled Ham, Veal Loaf—these are but a few of the many kinds your dealer keeps.

Try for luncheon or supper tomorrow, some sliced Chicken Loaf.

Booklet, "How to Make Good Things to Eat," free if you write.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago.

Libby's
Chicken Loaf

TO HOLDERS of U. S. 4s of 1907

Your bonds will be paid off by the Government at par on July 1, 1907, or less than one year from now.

Owing to the demand for Government bonds, due to the appointment at the present time of a large number of temporary public depositaries, we are in position to pay you for your bonds almost as much as you will receive from the Government in principal and interest, even though you should hold them to maturity.

We can pay 103¼, or at the rate of $1,032.50, for a $1,000 bond. To retain your bonds when you can sell them at this price is equivalent to your investing your funds at a rate of less than ¼ of 1% per annum.

Conditions are unusually favorable to the reinvestment of your funds. Railroad bonds of the highest type are much lower than they have ruled for several years.

If you are interested in taking advantage of the peculiarly favorable opportunity to sell your maturing Government bonds, we shall be pleased to have you write us. In case you have $5,000 or more of bonds, we shall be glad to have you wire us at our expense.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK
52 WALL STREET
NEW YORK

PATENT ATTORNEYS.

PATENTS Send for "Inventor's Primer" and "Points on Pensions." Established 1864. PENSIONS

MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 900 14th St., Washington, D. C. Branches at Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit.

READERS OF THIS PAPER
DESIRING TO BUY ANYTHING
ADVERTISED IN ITS COLUMNS
SHOULD INSIST UPON HAVING
WHAT THEY ASK FOR, REFUSING
ALL SUBSTITUTES OR IMITATIONS.

WEIGHING THE BABY AFTER ITS FIRST BATH WITH CUTICURA SOAP

Physicians, Pharmacists, and Nurses endorse Cuticura Soap because of its delicate, medicinal, emollient, sanative, and antiseptic properties derived from Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, united with the purest of cleansing ingredients and most refreshing of flower odors. For preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet and bath, Cuticura Soap is priceless. Absolutely pure and may be used from the hour of birth.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, "All About the Skin, Scalp, and Hair."

Are You Just As Well As You Wish to Be?

Every subscriber to Good Health is privileged to submit questions on health topics to the editors. The most interesting of these questions are answered in the Question Box, a monthly department of the magazine. Others are answered by letter without cost.

This is but one of many interesting features of Good Health, the oldest health journal in the world. A big, handsomely illustrated monthly magazine.

A quarter and this ad. with your name in the space below will bring you this handsome health magazine for the next three months. Sample copy ten cents.

GOOD HEALTH PUBLISHING CO.,
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Name ____________

(Address)

60 Bus. Winter Wheat Per Acre

That's the yield of Salzer's Red Cross Hybrid Winter Wheat. Send 2c in stamps for free sample of same, as also catalogue of Winter Wheats, Rye, Barley, Clovers, Timothy, Grasses, Bulbs, Trees, etc. for fall planting. SALZER SEED CO., Box L, La Crosse, Wis.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

THROUGH JUNGLE FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN

Since the discovery of the Isthmus of Panama, or Darien, as it was at first called, there is hardly a spot on earth that has attracted so much attention. Balboa, the Spanish navigator, was the first to cross the divide and saw the Pacific on September 25, 1513. Its history during the nearly 400 years that have since elapsed is filled with stories of bloodshed and cruelty. The Spaniards slaughtered the Indians as they did the inoffensive Caribs. The buccaneers under such monsters as Hawkins and Morgan committed crimes against the Spaniards that appear almost incredible. The sack of the old City of Panama is one of the darkest pages in the history of nations. It is a relief to turn from these subjects to a history of suffering supported by the dictates of duty and patriotism as enrolled in the archives of the United States naval department at Washington.

From Tehuantepec to New Granada every effort had been made fifty years ago to find a suitable route for a ship canal through the Cordilleras. An Irish romancer wrote a book describing such a route, and English capitalists sent out an engineer named Gisborne to make a survey. He returned with maps and figures and wrote a book describing an alleged practicable route. All were false and it is doubtful if he ever penetrated the isthmus at all. On his statement that there was a gap of only 150 feet in height above sea level, a company was formed with a capital of $75,000,000 to construct a canal. Gisborne's falsehoods were speedily discovered, but an English party sent up the Savana river in 1853, after penetrating a few miles, returned in despair, minus four men killed by the Chuquanaqua Indians, a fierce tribe of the interior.

Sought Through Route.

The idea at the time was to discover a route from Caledonia bay, on the Atlantic, to Darien harbor, on the Pacific. To this end the United States steamship Cyanne was sent with an exploring party to Caledonia bay, while a British ship, the Virago, went to Darien harbor to give assistance if needed. The Cyanne's party consisted of Lieutenant Isaac C. Strain, in command; Passed Midshipmen Charles Latimer and William T. Truxton, First Assistant Engineer J. M. Maury, Midshipman H. M. Garland, a volunteer from the Cyanne; A. T. Boggs, S. H. Kettlewell, J. Sterritt Hollins, who were assistant engineers, and Dr. J. C. Bird, surgeon. Mr. Maury was astronomer and secretary. Senors Castilla and Polanco went along as representatives of New Granada, in which state the proposed route lay. The balance of the party of twenty-seven consisted of tried seamen of the navy.

Misled by Gisborne's maps and statements, the party took only ten days' provisions, but was amply supplied with arms and ammunition. Of that party of twenty-seven men that left the Cyanne, on January 17, 1854, only eighteen ever saw the ship again, the other third having perished miserably in the depths of the tropical fores, or after the rescue of the party.

Advancing up the bed of the Caledonia river, they were soon forced to take to the land, where progress could only be made by hewing a path through the dense foliage. The Indians fled before them, first burning their tents and canoes. The explorers were speedily immersed in the appaling difficulties of a tropical country, aggravated by steep precipices and deep canons. Holcomb, Winthrop, Hollins, Dr. Bird and Roscoe strayed from the column on January 20 and were never heard of again. Deeply as Strain felt for them, he was obliged to push on after firing repeated signals for them to return. They found an Indian guide, who appeared to be honest at that time and said he would guide them to the Savana, one and a half days' march. He later encountered a band of Chuquanaqua Indians and abandoned the explorers. They finally reached the Sucuteti river, a tributary to the Chuquanaqua, which runs into the Tutyra, and the latter into Darien harbor by a most circuitous route. Chuquanaqua is said to be the most tortuous stream known to geographers, as the unfortunate explorers were soon destined to learn. It is said to take a course double its own direct length.

On Wearisome Journey.

The party struggled along the rock-strewn bed of the Sucuteti, believing it to be the Savana, which would lead them to relief and safety. Worn out by incessant toil, Polanco and Kettlewell gave out, the latter begging to be left behind. The men did not take care of their rations, the Grenadians had thrown away theirs and there was but one day's supply remaining. The officers had some food left, and this was divided among the party. Once more the march was resumed, the men struggling wearily through the hills and dense forests.

Reluctantly Strain gave the order to return to the river he had left and there the first and last council of the party was held. The conclusion was reached that they were on the Iglesias, set down by Gisborne as a branch of the Savana. There was no trail through the wilderness; three of the men and one of the Grenadians were utterly worn out. A few plantains were found and divided. Eight birds were shot, among them an owl and a woodpecker, and some small fish were caught by Mr. Truxton. An iguana was shot and, in vainly trying to recover it from the river, Holmes lost his boot, which later on caused his death.

On the thirteenth day the New Grenadians gave up in despair, although the work had all been done by the Americans. Lombard, the boatswain of the party, became very ill. The clothes and boots of the men were torn to shreds and at night nothing was heard but agonized groans. Boils began to appear on the men and each was found to contain a "worm of the woods," some of them an inch in length. On the sixteenth day an acid nut was discovered, but it destroyed the enamel of the teeth and the digestive powers as well. Some turkeys were shot and the stage was reached where even the buzzards and cranes were welcomed as food.

On the eighteenth day they had a great misfortune. Truxton only was intrusted with the sole fishhook. He gave it to Castilla, who turned it over to one of the men, who broke it. Strain said nothing beyond pointing out the probable result. It cost many lives, as the Chuquanaqua, when reached, was full of fish, but there were no means of catching any.

Small Craft Soon Wrecked.

On the twentieth day the Grenadians asked permission to return and take a man with them. This was granted and they were furnished with good arms. Their idea was to reach some New Grenadian settlement and procure aid there. The party was now reduced to nineteen persons and the march was resumed. The Grenadians rejoined the next day; they had built a small craft, but it was soon wrecked. The day after Strain took three men to push their way rapidly down the river and secure aid for the rest of the party, leaving Mr. Truxton in command. Avery, a volunteer, and Golden and Wilson of the Cyanne, volunteered to accompany him.

After many parting councils Strain sadly left the main body on February 13. Occasionally a bird or an iguana was shot and furnished a modicum of food for the famished men. Lombard, Harrison and Castilla failed entirely on the twenty-eighth day. Holmes, who had lost his boot, had a wounded foot that was becoming gangrenous. Some buzzards, a turkey and a peccary were shot, but there was no marching until the thirty-seventh day and then only for half a mile.

Lombard, Parks and Johnson left the camp and hid. In their terrible sufferings they had matured a plan to hide until Holmes died, exhume the body and subsist upon the flesh until they reached the Atlantic coast. On the thirty-eighth day Holmes breathed his last and his emaciated body, with his musket alongside, was laid to rest on the banks of the river in a grave hollowed out with knives and an ax.

Decided to Go Back.

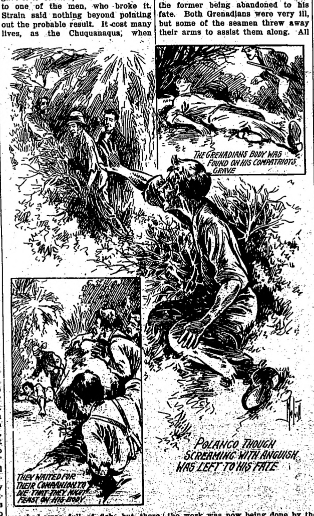
Lieutenant Strain was now twenty-one days gone, and it was evident that the sixteen survivors would not live for his return. They believed he was dead and a council of the officers decided to countermarch and try to regain Caledonia bay. It cost a severe struggle to reach this conclusion, but it seemed the only hope. Truxton, seated by Holmes' grave, sadly penned a letter of explanation to Strain, should the latter ever regain the place, and in it he begged him to push on after the party. Then Parks was missing and on March 6 a start was made on the march to Caledonia bay, the former being abandoned to his fate. Both Grenadians were very ill, but some of the seamen threw away their arms to assist them along. All the work was now being done by the officers. The following day Castilla lay down to rise no more and his body was interred by the river. The party strayed from the dark stream and was soon lost in the jungle. Despair settled upon all. Polanco could go no farther, and, with streaming tears, the ragged, torn, starving men were forced to abandon him to his fate. He screamed in anguish, but there was no resource and the unfortunate Grenadian was left alone. Later it was discovered that he had crawled back to his compatriot's grave and died upon it. His remains were later found in that position by Lieutenant Strain.

The following day Lombard asked to be left behind, as it was clear he could go no farther. They shared their remnants of food with him and left him to his fate. What this may have been was never discovered. At his earnest request his boatswain's whistle was left with him. The next day a terrapin somewhat revived the thirteen miserable men. Miller became delirious and Harwood the weakest, where all were weak. So dragged on the weary days and nights until March 22, when Mr. Boggs agreed that ne should be abandoned, although he still hoped for succor. Mr. Truxton became very ill and the emaciated band was forced to halt. It was evident that four or five men would have to be abandoned the next day and that not more than two or three could hope to reach Caledonia bay, if any one ever did.

Knew Fate Was Sealed.

Truxton, Boggs and Harwood, all young men, knew that their fate was sealed. Hunger and toil had reduced them to mere bundles of rags and bones. Harrison and Vermilyea were little better; that evening Maury stood by the gloomy river. All were wrapped in the darkest despair. Suddenly Maury shouted, "Truxton, I hear a gun; I see white men; I see Strain." No words can describe the delirious excitement that brought the despairing, dying men to their feet as deliverance appeared at hand.

Day after day the lion-hearted Strain and his comrades had pushed their way through fearful obstacles, much of the path being cut by himself. Reduced to skeletons, they at last reached the village of Yavisa, to find natives as venal as cowardly. He managed to reach the ranch of an Irishman named Bennet, on the Savana, who gave to him the warmest aid. The Virago returned from Panama and boats laden with provisions were soon on their way up Chuquanaqua river and the rescued men were brought back. They found Parks still alive, but covered with wood ticks, and he died a little later. Polanco's body was found, as described, on Castilla's grave. Through all McGinness had clung to the American flag, wrapped around his body. Later it was wrapped around the coffin of Vermilyea, who died at Yavisa. The others reached Panama, where Mr. Boggs died. The survivors crossed the isthmus to Aspinwall, all that were left of the twenty-seven stalwart young men who started up the Caledonia river on January 17, 1854. One-third of the entire expeditionary party perished from hunger, or its effects, and extreme toil on that dreadful march that began at the Atlantic and ended at the Pacific ocean.



THE GRENADIANS BODY WAS FOUND ON HIS COMPATRIOTS GRAVE
THEY WAITED FOR THEIR COMPANION TO DIE THAT THEY MIGHT FEAST ON HIS BODY
POLANCO THOUGH SCREAMING WITH ANGUISH WAS LEFT TO HIS FATE

VIENNA'S RICH CHOIR COMING.

Chorus of Wealthy Men to Sing for American Charities.

New York.—New York next spring is to hear for the first time the Vienna Male Chorus society, composed of well-to-do or wealthy men, who are coming all the way from Europe at their own expense to give here two or more concerts for charitable institutions.

The chorus consists of 300 voices, and the members are prominent in the social life of the Austrian capital. On their American tour they will pay their own expenses, said Felix Kramer. Mr. Kramer is here to make arrangements for the concerts and to confer with the leaders of various musical organizations. The society gave several concerts about six weeks ago in London and sung before King Edward in Buckingham palace. On their visit to New York next April they will be accompanied by several of the leading soloists of the Royal opera house in Vienna, by special permission of the emperor.

BARS GAUZY BATHING SUITS.

Filmy Clinging Material Will Not Be Allowed on Beaches at Cleveland.

Cleveland, O.—Joe Goldsoll, chief of the park police, has drawn the line on peek-a-boo bathing suits, as well as those constructed of gauzy, clinging stuff and white muslin.

Open work surf costumes don't go with him. Diaphanous duds for the depths make no strike with him, and he will not allow them at the public bathing beaches. The chief recently issued notice to this effect upon the bathing public.

"No gauzy, clinging stuff for bathing suits will go at the public beaches," he said with firmness. "It is indecent. White muslin is no good for bathing suits, and neither is this thin brilliantine. Those suits have to be substantial, with some thickness to them."

Goldsoll added that he would make daily trips of inspection to the beaches in autoboat and otherwise, and with field glasses in search for infraction of his rule.

Favorites.

"You say that Mr. Boodles is a musician?"

"Yes," answered the man who makes puns.

"What are his favorite instruments?"

"The loot and the lyre."

One Advantage.

City Man (carpingly)—Whew, but it's hot! I am told that the mercury frequently stands at 110 in the shade here.

Farmer Summerboard (cheeringly)—Well, you don't hafter stay in the shade, ye know.—Puck.

Fact and Fancy for Little People

The King's Orders.

But They Were Not Executed Because the Prince Held His Nerve Until Crisis Was Passed.

A story is told of one of the Moorish princes of Granada, which is well worth noting, showing as it does, the great value of coolness and self-control in trying circumstances.

When Mahommed the Sixth usurped the throne of Granada, he set aside his elder brother Yousuf, the rightful heir to the throne, so that the kingdom might be secure to his own children. He caused Prince Yousuf to be imprisoned in the castle of Shalobanya, where he remained for the ten years of his brother's reign, Mahommed intending, when he felt his health failing, to have his brother assassinated.

The unfortunate prince, though brave and courageous to the last degree, was forced to submit to his brother's arbitrary will, knowing that rebellion would be in vain. He was a man of commanding presence, courteous to all about him, and of so winning and gracious a manner that he gained the love and fealty of his entire household, any one of whom would gladly have risked life in his cause. This was especially true of the alcayde of Shalobanya, who was his devoted friend.

Prince Yousuf passed the weary days of his captivity the best he could, his favorite recreations being the game of chess, of which he was a passionate lover; and the perusal of the exciting literature of the day.

READING HIS DEATH WARRANT.

In the early part of the fifteenth century, knight errantry was rife. The young Spanish nobles vied with each other in proving their prowess in arms, incited by the reading of such wonderful romances as "Adventures of Amadis di Gaul," a book that turned the heads of half the Spanish youth, a type that Cervantes has immortalized in Don Quixote.

The fascination of chess, however, rivaled those of the tournament with the knights of Spain, and many an hour was beguiled over the game by Prince Yousuf and the faithful alcayde. They were seated thus, one day, both intent upon the game, Yousuf for the time completely forgetting the sword that was always hanging over his head.

He was losing slowly but surely, his adversary's knight and castle were steadily bearing down upon his king, when a page hastily entered the room and informed the alcayde that a messenger was without, desiring to see him upon an urgent matter of state.

"Tell him to wait until our game of chess is finished," said the prince.

But the page made an imploring gesture to the alcayde, which brought the latter instantly to his feet, and he hastened out to meet the messenger, who silently and gravely handed him a sealed note from the king. Hastily tearing it open, the alcayde glanced over the contents, his cheek blanching as he did so. With tottering steps he reentered the room, and the prince, shocked at his pallor, explaimed:

"My friend, what is thy trouble? Thou lookest as though thou hast just received thy death warrant! Oh," he added, jokingly, "perchance the king, my most loving brother, demands my head! Speak! Is it so?"

For answer the alcayde handed him the letter, but his hand trembled so that the paper fluttered to the floor. Yousuf, stooping, coolly picked it up, and read at a glance the following words:

"My servant, when thou receivest this letter thou shalt immediately take the life of my brother Yousuf and send me his head by my trusty messenger."

The eyes of the brave prince never quailed, nor did his voice falter as he said quietly to the page:

"Bid the king's messenger wait until our game is ended; it will be but a few moments now, for I am losing rapidly; fate is against me on every side."

They reseated themselves at the board, but the alcayde played wildly.

It was an easy matter for the prince to regain his lost advantage, and he was just giving checkmate when in the distance was heard the clatter of horses' hoofs. Nearer and nearer they came, and soon two caballeros from Granada, armed cap-a-pie, covered with dust, and in the maddest haste, came dashing into the courtyard at full speed.

"The king is dead! Long live the king! Long live our good king Yousuf!"

The lesson for children to learn from this story is of course obvious. Never give up hope in the face of misfortune. —Chicago Daily News.

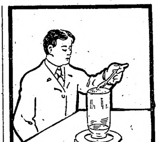
The Magic Bottle.

How You Can Make It Appear That You Are Pouring Through the Bottom of the Bottle.

Here is a trick that will prove a puzzle to those who are not pretty well up in physics.

Take an ordinary dinner plate, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and fill it with water, then a small empty bottle, and assure the spectators that you are wizard enough to pour water through the solid bottom of the latter.

Pass the bottle around, that all may see it perfectly empty and dry, then, having thrust a stick into it and held it to the fire until it it is very hot—too hot to hold in the bare hands—stand it, mouth dowward, in the plate of water. At the same time pour a tablespoonful of water on the upturned bottom, as if you were beginning to fill it in that way.



THE WATER RISING IN THE BOTTLE.

Each time you do this the bottle will be seen to retain more water, and as a corresponding amount will have disappeared from the plateful from which you are dipping it, it will easily appear as though the water had passed through the bottom of the bottle.

A Clever Trick.

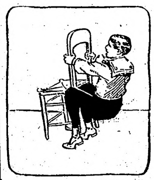
Requires Careful Balancing and You May Fool Your Boy Friends with It.

The accompanying picture shows this little feat better than any words could do. Place a chair on the floor, front downward, in such a way that the legs are horizontal and the back is uppermost.

Get one of your boy friends to kneel on the lower back bar of the chair and take up with his lips a piece of candy placed on the back of the top bar. The picture shows you his position, just as he is about to make the attempt.

It is not unlikely that the boy will think you have set a trap for him; that you want to give him a "header" on to the floor, but you can overcome his reluctance by first doing the thing yourself.

All that is necessary is for you to keep the center of gravity back of the chair seat, and this you can do by crouching very carefully. Perhaps, suggests the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, it might be as well for you to practice for a while in private, and you might also find an advantage in having a pillow or some other soft thing just in front of the chair, so that if you come down you will come down easily.



DOING THE TRICK.

Foolish Idea.

Some people suppose they can return to nature in an automobile.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

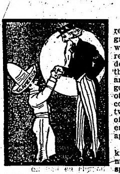
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, AUG. 17, 1906. NO. 20.

Gossip from the Capital

GATHERED BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Interesting Chatter of Men and Events at Washington—Secretary Root's Tour of South American Countries—Annual Housecleaning at the White House—Other Things.



WASHINGTON.—The reception accorded Secretary of State Root at the Pan-American congress at Rio Janeiro and the cordiality exhibited wherever he has landed in South America are regarded as omens of success for his unprecedented tour. Never before has the premier of this government undertaken a similar mission, and it is unusual for such a high official of one government personally to visit the capitals of other governments and by plain, frank intercourse endeavor to establish firmer relations between great powers. Mr. Root has as the object of his South American tour the correction of an erroneous idea and prejudice that exists there against the United States.

The people of this country are virtually unknown in South America. The United States has no steamship connection with that section to speak of and our trade cannot compare with that of Europe. Unfortunately, the type of Americans with which the Latin-Americans have become acquainted is largely that of the adventurer. A dislike has grown up because of this and also because our language, customs and ideas are all different from theirs. It is to correct this idea that Mr. Root is visiting the Latin-American republics and also with the idea of strengthening the time-honored Monroe doctrine and perhaps to lay the foundation for a still stronger bond between the nations of the Western Hemisphere as against the encroachment, commercially and politically, of foreign powers.

Mr. Root will call to the attention of these South American countries the fact that from the time of their great wars for independence, the United States has protected the southern continent from political aggression. He will endeavor to show that it is to the advantage of these people to form closer commercial union with the United States and that, when an understanding is effected, they will find American goods superior to those imported from Europe.

FROM THIS THE PRESIDENT ESCAPES.

WHITE HOUSE

The annual house cleaning is now in progress at the White House. It would require an expert mathematician to figure out just how many coats of paint, how many yards of plastering and how much expenditure of money there have been lavished upon this historic old building. Every year the interior is gone over and every year the outside is either painted or washed, so that the glistening whiteness may be retained.

The decorations of the executive mansion need careful attention always, and the paint and enamel work has to be kept clean and free from all marks and scratches. The multitude of pilgrims who annually visit this building is disposed to be critical, and if any dirt or any defacement of decorations or walls is discovered, there is sure to be something ugly said about it. The hard wood floors have to be cared for whenever a flaw is seen in their finish.

The ceiling and wood work of the East Room is being gone over, and the Green Room and Red Room have both been overhauled. A good deal of attention has to be given to the magnificent State dining-room. Minor repairs are being made in the private dining-room and the columns in the corridor are being refinished.

As the abode of the president, and as the place where the official functions occur, an army of artisans is rquired every summer to overhaul it. Last year there were given three state dinners, five musicales, eight receptions and one lecture, besides almost daily semi-official functions by the president or Mrs. Roosevelt.

THE NUMBER OF ANARCHISTS INCREASING.

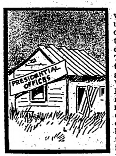
Considerable alarm is felt in official circles over the rapidly increasing number of anarchists that are finding their way to the United States. The immigration authorities are of the opinion that unless something is done by treaty or otherwise, the United States will soon be overrun by this undesirable class. In the naturalization law recently passed, there is a restriction on giving citizenship to anarchists and regulations are now being formulated to make this effective. That, however, does not prevent anarchists coming to this country and preaching their doctrine. It is a comparatively easy thing for this disorderly element to obtain admission to this country, and congress will be asked to consider more drastic regulations regarding them.

An immigration official in discussing the increase of immigrants of anarchistic tendencies said the other day:

"It would be impossible to say with any degree of accuracy how many anarchists are in this country at this time. Without data as to their antecedents, it is impossible as a general rule to spot them. The man with whom you sat at dinner at your restaurant last evening may have been one. In a word, there is no way now by which you can tell an anarchist unless there is a falling out among the craft. We have no means of picking them out at the ports and turning them back. Here comes a man down the plank who gives a name that might fit any one of 100,000 ordinary persons. He fulfills all the requirements of admission. He says he is a tailor and in he comes. That man may be one of the most noted anarchists, and yet we are absolutely powerless to keep him out."

The immigration officials believe that the United States government should lose no time in making treaties with foreign nations, by which this government will be fully informed as to the movements of anarchists. With the liberal use of the cable, the United States could keep out many bomb throwers who gain easy admittance under our present system.

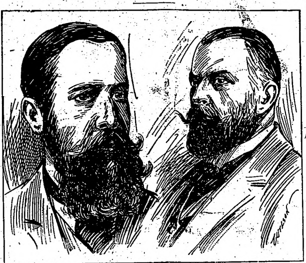
STANFORD WHITE AND THE WHITE HOUSE.



The recent tragic death of Architect White, who was shot by Harry K. Thaw, attracted unusual attention in Washington because he was of the firm of architects that made the plans for the renovation of the old White House and the construction of the executive office buildings. There has always been a diversity of opinion as to whether the expenditures, amounting to about a quarter of a million dollars, in restoring the White House to its original design, were justified. In the opinion of those of artistic taste, it was money well spent, although the general public does not appreciate what was done. The original design of the White House contemplated a terrace on each side of the main building. This had never been fully carried out, a huge conservatory on the west, an ugly structure of glass, wood and iron, taking the place of the terrace. This was removed and the extensions on either side are now in accordance with the original model.

The executive office building is a very unattractive, homely structure, although it did cost $68,000. There was method in the work of the architects in producing this barn-like structure. For many years past congress has been asked to provide a proper building for the president and his executive force, where the business of his office could be transacted and where proper salons and halls could be located in which important official functions, like the signing of treaties, the reception of foreign ambassadors and other affairs of that sort could be conducted. Congress has never seen fit to appropriate the money for such a building, and when the presidential offices were erected, it was supposed that nothing more would be needed. These offices are so ugly and excite so much contempt in the public eye and mind that the pressure is growing stronger every year to have a decent executive building, one that will comport with the dignity of the nation. erected.

HEAD OPPOSING FORCES IN RUSSIA.



M. Stolypin, who takes the place of Goremykin as premier of Russia, has been minister of the interior in the Goremykin ministry, and will retain that portfolio. M. Stolypin has the reputation of being one of the most genial and cultivated members of the Russian civil service. His father was a popular general. He was born in 1863. Although popular, M. Stolypin has reactionary tendencies, and he is regarded with a measure of distrust by the progressive and democratic elements in Russia.

Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, who was made head of the perpetual executive committee of the douma, chosen at Viborg before the members were dispersed by the soldiery, was vice president of the douma and is a close frind of President Mouromtseff. The prince comes of a noble family and is a graduate of the University of Moscow. He is 48 years of age.

RIVER QUICKLY MADE TO RISE.

Simple Explanation, But It Considerably Puzzled Northerner.

It is little short of astonishing to see how little water is required to float the southern river steamers, a boat loaded with perhaps 1,000 bales of cotton slipping along contentedly where a boy could wade across the stream.

Not long ago, however, the Chattahoochee got too low for even her light-draft commerce, and at Gunboat shoals a steamer grounded. As the drinking water on board needed replenishing, a deckhand was sent ashore with a couple of water buckets.

Just at this moment a northern traveler approached the captain of the boat, and asked him how long he thought they would have to stay there.

"Oh, only until that man gets back with a bucket of water to pour into the river," the captain replied. Presently the deckhand returned, and the stale water from the cooler was emptied overboard. Instantly, to the amazement of the traveler, the boat began to move.

"Well, if that don't beat thunder!" he gasped.

The fact was that the boat, touching the bottom, had acted as a dam, and there was soon backed up behind her enough water to lift her over the shoal and send her on down the stream.—Harper's Weekly.

Singular and Plural.

It is a question of taste and fancy whether one should make two bites of a cherry, but we all really make two bites of the word "cherry" when we use it in the singular. The original English version of "ceries" was "cheris" or "chiris," which was mistaken for a plural, so that "cheri or "chiri" was soon manufactured as a singular. Exactly so has "pea" come into being as a false singular obtained from the supposed plural and true singular "pease." "Sherry" for "sherris" is another case, and "shay" from "chaise." "inee" from "Chinese," and "corp" from "corpse," are others in vulgar speech. Similarly, "riches" is really a singular, of which "richesses" was the old plural.

ALL THE WAY, AND THEN SOME.

According to This, Old Earth Has a Pretty Sure Foundation.

A colored preacher known far and wide for his powerful exhorting qualities advertised to tell something worth while on "The Foundation of the World" at his following Sunday morning service.

One brother attended especially to find out just what formed the foundation of the terrestrial sphere upon which he lived. The desired scientific information failed to materialize in the sermon. The only scrap of information he got was the assertion "dat dis 'ere yarth res's on a big rock."

After service he hunted up the preacher and demanded:

"Brer Johnsing, didn't yo' 'low dat dis 'ere yarth res's on a rock?"

"I did, sah," replied the divine.

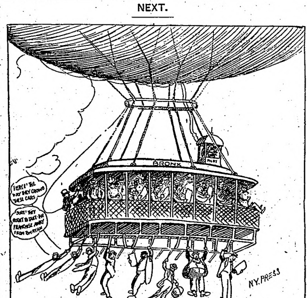
"Den wha' I want t' knaw is wha' dat rock stan's on?"

"On a nudder rock, sah," replied Brer Johnsing, cautiously.

"An' dat'n?" persisted his interlocutor, inexorably.

"A nudder'n!" yelled the exasperated minister. "An' yo' needn't axe me any mo' sich questions. 'Case hits rock all der way down, yo' blame fool."

NEXT.



BRONX
PILOT
HERE! THE WAY THEY CROWD THESE CARS
SURE THEY OUGHT TO TAKE THE FRANCHISE AWAY FROM TOM RYAN
N.Y. PRESS

Will Tunnel the Loetschberg.

The piercing of a tunnel under the Loetschberg has been decided upon. The work, which is estimated to cost three millions sterling, and is being financed by French capitalists, is to be completed in 5½ years. It is to be highly recommended in the financial and economic interests of the Bernese Oberland district. The Loetschberg tunnel will bring the whole of this agricultural district into direct touch with Italy.

Oh, Hubby!

Hubby—Nonsense! This little exhilerating shower won't prevent my playing golf; besides, I need the exercise.

Wify—But you promised to take that begonia and the parrot cage down to mother's.

Hubby—What, in all this downpour? Do you want to give me pneumonia, woman?—American Spectator.

The Passing of Zion City

BOOM TOWN HAS SEEN ITS BEST DAYS

City Builded by John Alexander Dowie Near Chicago Being Rapidly Depopulated—Factories Are Closed, Bank Depleted and Many People Are on Verge of Starvation.

BARBER SHOP
BE A CUT

CHICAGO.—Zion City, builded almost in a day by John Alexander Dowie, is doomed. Zion City, itself, says so. The lace works, the candy factories, the soap factories; and, in fact all the many industries are closed, as is also the bank, the land office, the printing office.

The white-robed choir is gone, the brilliant costumes of the elders, the Zion guards. The great tabernacle is practically deserted, the people are turning again to the call of the world, and that which has been a wonder to the outsiders, if not fully explained, is no more.

Twelve months ago the thriving population of Zion City was pouring thousands upon thousands of dollars into the coffers of Dowie. Now John C. Hately, the receiver appointed by the government, is issuing appeals for a relief fund to stay the hunger of Dowie's old followers. Where a community of 5,500 tithe-paying people dwelt in prosperity a year ago, there are now a scant 3,000 persons menaced by want. They are unemployed, their land is valueless and their children are underfed and half clothed.

This is the story of the downfall of a city that was built on the self-made and self-administered religion of "Dr." Dowie, "the healer."

And under the rule of the receiver nothing prevents an influx of "the world, the flesh and the devil" into a city hitherto kept inviolate to the teachings of its founder. The tobacconist, the barber, the butcher shop at which is sold the flesh of the hog, which Dowie, like Moses of old, condemned as unfit for human food; may all ply their trade within its boundaries. It is no certainty that the purveyor of strong drink may long be kept out.

THE SHADOW OF DECAY PREVAILS.

YOU'RE A HAS-BEEN
ZION GUARD

Pitiable conditions are found among the people and the shadow of decay has fallen upon all its industries. A majority of workingmen who live in Zion City now make their living in neighboring towns. Time was when laborers from Waukegan, Kenosha and other towns within a radius of 20 miles found employment within the growing city; when men even went from Chicago and secured work there at profitable wages.

Now in Kenosha and Waukegan can be found men of good families with homes in Zion City earning a bare living for themselves and those at home by working on new roads. Among these common laborers are those who once held positions as bank clerks, traveling men and aids to Dowie in his magnificent Mexican scheme.

In the general administration offices of Zion City last year there was employment at good wages for 65 clerks. Now there are less than a dozen on the first floor of the building and those are not certain that their labor will be repaid.

In the bank a year ago there were eight clerks. While they are away building roads a single small boy sits in the bank office to warn stragglers who may try to get in that the bank is closed. In the land-investment department, where there were 26 clerks, there are left only three and the telephone-exchange force has been reduced from four to one.

Such is the passing of Dowie's mighty Zion.

The uniformed guard which Dowie established, and in the use of which he aped royalty, has passed. The few faithful now meet with jeers on the streets where once their presence inspired respect and enforced obedience to the laws laid down by "the prophet."

NO GUESTS FOR THE HOTEL.

Conditions at the hospice furnish added proof of the decline. The visitor to Zion City used to find the dining-room filled with from 150 to 200 people every day and every room tenanted. To one who drops in now there is presented no spectacle of booming business; less than 20 discouraged men and women find seats about the dining-room at luncheon. Some of these were invalids, who, as one of the half-alive waiters expressed it, could not leave the hospice. Others were officers in the once prosperous town.

The printing plant is closed down. Once 250 men and women had work there. Most of them have gone to other places to look for employment, as have the 30 brickmakers who compromised the working force of the now abandoned brick-yards.

Idle men wander aimlessly about the streets. There is nothing for them to do.

No one will buy the land.

There is no money in the bank except a little that was saved by some during the booming days of building and manufacturing. It is to these few "careful" ones that Receiver Hately largely looks for aid in his plan to raise a relief fund to aid the penniless families until some employment may be secured or devised for the men.

How complete is the collapse of the city started with such high hopes and brilliant promise may be inferred from the fact that keen men of business hesitate to invest in Zion and that can be bought for the proverbial song. The future is so uncertain, and troubles have gathered so thickly, that even speculators fear to enter the field.

For evidence that it is impossible to sell the land in Zion City people point to Gladstone Dowie, son of the fallen "Elijah." He has been for several months trying to dispose of a group of lots in the heart of the town. He could find no purchasers. No one will take any chances on land investment even when the property is offered, as Gladstone offered his, for one-third of its old valuation.

ALL ARE WEARY OF LITIGATION.

There is little comfort for the suffering Zionites in the news that Dowie, thanks to "heavenly revelations," is planning a new legal coup by which he hopes to regain control of the affairs of the city. The idea of further protracted litigation has ceased to interest the hungry there. There has been a life of vanishing hopes since the decline of the Dowis dynasty began, and the hard truth was brought home to the citizens.

The appointment of a new receiver brought a crowd of hungry men and women to the administration building to settle their claims against the bank and with Mr. Hately. Old bankbooks had been fished out from their places in the desolate homes and there was a general rush to the place.

It was only another disappointment. One by one and in groups the applicants for money were turned away. Men and women begged for a few cents to keep food on their tables. It was no use.

Forty women, each holding useless bankbooks and unpaid checks against the bank, gathered in the vestibule of the administration building and compared notes. Some of the women held little children by the hand.

Those who but a few months ago were confident that their church and their city alike were founded on a rock, sure that in forsaking the world and following Dowie they were doing the will of God, humbly asked for only enough to sustain life.

"I only want sufficient money to buy a few pounds of potatoes," said one.

"I must get some food for my baby," another spoke up. "My two children are ill and they have no nourishment. I have $250 in the bank and I would be satisfied with 50 cents." The voice of the speaker was hollow. As each woman told her troubles she would burst into tears, leave the building and trudge homeward in the rain.

SILVER PURCHASES WILL BE RESUMED

UNITED STATES TO BUY BULLION FOR COINAGE AT ITS VARIOUS MINTS.

Bids for Weekly Delivery Invited by Director of Mint, to Be Sent In Each Wednesday Until Further Notice.

Washington, Aug. 10.—For the first time in 13 years the government announced Thursday its purpose to purchase silver for coinage purposes. Tenders are invited at the office of the director of the mint in this city on Wednesday, the 15th instant, up to one o'clock p. m. and every Wednesday thereafter until further notice. These tenders are to be for delivery at the Philadelphia, New Orleans or Denver mints, settlement to be on the New York basis of bullion guaranteed 999 fine. The treasury reserves the right to reject all tenders or accept such part of any tender as may suit its convenience.

It is understood that, anticipating that its reappearance as a purchaser might temporarily disturb the market unduly, the treasury has obtained control of considerable amounts for future delivery, so that it is in position to drop out of the market for several months if desirable.

The average requirements of the treasury throughout the year will probably not exceed 100,000 ounces per week, and it will be the policy of the department, while keeping a reasonable amount in hand, to so distribute its purchases throughout the year that its demands will be uniform and not an element of uncertainty in the market.

Stock of Bullion Exhausted.

For the resumption of specie payments in 1879 down to the year 1900 the constant increase in the stock of subsidiary coin required by the growing population and trade of the country was supplied by the recoinage of old and uncurrent subsidiary coins which accumulated in the treasury under the resumption act. In 1900, as this stock was running low, authority was granted in the monetary act of March 14 to the secretary of the treasury to divert bullion, purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, for the coinage of silver dollars to the coinage of subsidiary pieces. Under this authority about $33,000,000 has been coined since 1900.

The stock of bullion in the treasury was exhausted more than a year ago and since then no bullion has been available for the subsidiary use.

Demand for Coinage.

The stock in the treasury had become so low that it was apparent, according to the department, that the demands of a constantly enlarging trade could not be met without additional coinage. The secretary of the treasury was in doubt whether existing statutes authorized him to buy bullion for this purpose and, moreover, was of the opinion that it would be a better policy to meet future demands for subsidiary coin by the recoinage of silver dollars in the treasury, and so recommended to congress. Congress, however, having failed to act upon his recommendations, Secretary Shaw requested an opinion from the attorney general as to his authority to purchase bullion for this purpose under existing law and he received a favorable reply, based on section 3,626 of the revised statutes. The policy now announced was accordingly determined upon.

LARGE YIELD OF WINTER WHEAT

Illinois Board Reports Increase of Nearly Five Million Bushels.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10.—The state board of agriculture issued a bulletin Thursday, stating that reports from its correspondents in Illinois show that the yield of winter wheat in Illinois this year is 27,365,552 bushels, an average of 20 bushels an acre, an increase of 4,906,232 bushels over 1905.

Quality of wheat this year is reported as excellent and free from cheat and dirt. Yield of spring wheat in state is 1,692,122 bushels. Area of oats harvested is 3,018,295 acres, giving a total yield of 90,971,381 bushels, or 33,593,943 fewer bushels than last year.

The condition of corn on August 1 is but 81 per cent of the seasonable average, which is a decrease of eight points since June 20, and 15 points below August 1, 1905, and four points below the ten years' average. There was great damage done by a drought of 60 days' duration.

EXPLOSION ON U. S. DESTROYER

Hot Rivet Falls Into Varnish and Six Men are Badly Burned.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 11.—Six men were burned by an explosion in the paint locker on the torpedo boat destroyer Worden late Friday afternoon at the Norfolk navy yard.

While driving rivets in the paint locker on the Worden, one of the hot pieces of steel fell into a quantity of varnish, causing it to explode.

The force of the explosion was so great that Robert White and William H. Wilson, who were driving the rivets, were blown through the opening leading into the paint locker and landed on deck.

Immediately after the explosion the little boat caught fire, but the flames were extinguished without material damage.

UNABLE TO FINISH TUNNEL

OUTFIT OF CONTRACTOR IS CONFISCATED.

Irrigation Project In Northern Wyoming Brought to Standstill by Inability to Get Labor and Cash.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Acting under authority of the secretary of the interior, the director of the geological survey Friday ordered the confiscation of the whole of the contractor's outfit for work on the Corbett tunnel on the irrigation project in northern Wyoming. It was ascertained by the secretary that the contractor not only abandoned the work but was about to remove all his appliances from the premises.

This contract was awarded to Charles Speer, cashier of the Billings State bank. He, in turn, made arrangements for carrying on the work under the Western Construction company.

The difficulties of securing labor and the high cost of material resulted in such delays to the work that it apparently became impossible to finance the operations, and Aug. 3 the company was unable to pay the 400 or more men then employed.

The bids on Corbett tunnel were opened Sept. 6, 1905, and awarded to Charles Speer on an estimated basis of $594,325. The next lowest bid was made by J. G. White & Co., of New York, at $595,750.

The government officers also took possession of the work and outfit of Prendegast & Clarkson on the Shoshone dam, one of the largest structures in the west, on the ground that the firm had not been able to secure necessary men and financial backing to carry them through the work. The bids for this work were opened Sept. 5, 1905, and award made on an estimated basis of $515,750. The next lowest bid was that of J. G. White & Co., of New York, at $558,855.

PICNIC PARTY OVER PRECIPICE

Twenty Daughters of Liberty Injured When Wagon Goes Over Bluff.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—While driving over a country road at Evergreen, nine miles from this city Wednesday night, a wagon containing 20 persons of a picnic party plunged over 30 foot precipice and all sustained more or less serious injuries. None were fatally hurt.

A lodge of the Daughters of Liberty from Allegheny were enjoying an annual straw ride, and the last of the three wagons became fast in a rut on a muddy mountain road.

On attempting to turn out the horses stepped too far from the road which ran along the bluff, and plunging over dragged the wagon with its occupants with it.

The screams of the women as they went over the cliff attracted the attention of the occupants of the other wagons and the other picnickers returned to the relief of their unfortunate sisters.

MURDERED DAUGHTER WITH JUG

Enraged Man Chased Wife with Ax in Attempt to Complete Tragedy.

Menominee, Wis., Aug. 9.—William Esler, of Downsville, killed his seven-year-old daughter Tuesday night by striking her over the head with a gallon jug.

He says he killed the child because the mother did not want it.

Before killing the child Esler chased his wife with an ax.

The couple had not lived together for six months, and Esler had sought to have his wife return home to live with him again.

The quarrel started on the wife's return.

NORTH DAKOTA MAYOR GUILTY

Jury Sustains Allegation That He Was Member of Horsethief Band.

Williston, N. D., Aug. 10.—W. M. Denny, mayor of Williston, and a prominent banker, was found guilty on a charge of receiving stolen property. It was charged by the authorities of Valley county, Montana, that Denny was the head of a band of horse and cattle "rustlers" and that he disposed of the booty. An attempt was made to extradite Denny and take him to Montana for trial, but failed. He was brought to trial here on a charge of having received and disposed of six horses stolen in Montana.

COOLIES TO BUILD THE CANAL

Contracts for 2,500 Laborers to Be Made as Experiment.

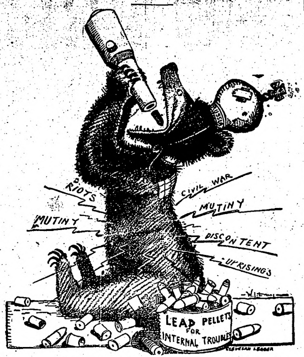
Washington, Aug. 11.—Chinese labor will be given a thorough test on the Panama canal. Contracts calling for 2,500 Chinamen for canal work have been prepared and advertisements will be issued by the Isthmian canal commission in a few days asking for proposals from labor agents.

If the initial 2,500 Chinamen prove a success, it is likely that many more will be taken to the isthmus to do the work, which is too hard for the Jamaicans now employed there in large numbers.

Miners Meet Horrible Death.

Charleroi, Belgium, Aug. 8.—An elevator in which nine miners were going down to the Marchiennes coal mine here Tuesday dropped 900 yards, smashing the car to atoms and instantly killing all its occupants. Their bodies were so crushed as to be almost unrecognizable.

"HEROIC TREATMENT."



It May Relieve the Trouble, But It Won't Cure It.

CHARGE REBATING BY UNIQUE PLAN

CHICAGO FEDERAL GRAND JURY RETURNS BILL AGAINST BIG COMPANY.

Standard Concern Is Alleged to Have Received Refunds from Railroads in the Form of Remission of Storage Charges.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Standard Oil received its first serious blow from the federal government Wednesday when the special grand jury returned a true bill embracing 19 counts against the Standard Oil company as an incorporation. The indictment, which was presented in Judge Bethea's court, sets forth that the Standard company receives rebates in the form of storage charges on oil from the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway amounting to $8,501.72. The time covered by the indictment extends from August, 1903, to March 1, 1905.

Bond for the defendant company was fixed by Judge Bethea at $25,000.

After returning the indictment charging the acceptance of rebates, the jury retired and made preparations for taking up the investigation of alleged rebates on transportation charges.

Surprise by Grand Jury.

It was a surprise party which the special jury sprung upon the Standard Oil people as well as upon the court officials when word was sent to Judge Bethea that a true bill had been voted against the Standard Oil corporation.

The investigation proper did not begin until 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. There were a half-dozen Lake Shore officials waiting in the witness room for examination, as the jurors emerged from the juryroom and headed for Judge Bethea's court.

Standard Attorneys Get Busy.

Only the legal representatives of the government were present when the report was read. Judge Bethea immediately fixed the amount of the bond in accordance with the suggestion of District Attorney Morrison. John S. Miller, special counsel for the Standard Oil company during the government attack, has been on his vacation in the Adirondacks. Merritt Starr of the same legal firm declined to make any statement, but intimated that Mr. Miller was hurrying back to Chicago. It was learned at Mr. Miller's office that he had expected to remain away some time, but the change in the situation warranted his hasty return.

BANK TELLER KILLS HIMSELF

Employe of Stensland Ends Life Under Taunts of Depositors.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Frank Kowalski, paying teller of the wrecked Milwaukee avenue bank, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head Friday night.

Since the bank failed, Monday, Kowalski had been stopped on the street many times and accused by depositors of having known their money was in peril. He had been in the service of the bank 13 years, handled all of its business among the Poles, and, until the crash came, was as highly regarded by them as were Paul O. Stensland and Henry W. Hering.

Mrs. Devlin Loses Claim.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 11.—The claim of Mrs. C. J. Devlin against the estate of the late C. J. Devlin for the sum of $620,661 was disallowed by N. H. Loomis, special referee in bankruptcy. The amount of the claim is the equivalent of the life insurance turned over by C. J. Devlin, with the consent of Mrs. Devlin, beneficiary, to the receiver of the First National bank as collateral security.

COMMISSION CUTS TARIFF

BADGER RAILWAY BOARD LOWERS GRAIN RATES.

Great Saving to Shippers of Wisconsin by Decision Reducing Charges About One Cent a Bushel.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 10.—Grain rates for the state of Wisconsin will be reduced practically one cent per bushel by an opinion of the railway commission, handed down Thursday. This is the most important decision that has ever been rendered by the Wisconsin commission. The order will affect all of the railroads operating in the state of Wisconsin. The matter was started by a complaint made by O. G. Kingy against the Wisconsin Central and later by a complaint of W. L. Houser against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Minneapolis & Omaha and the Chicago & Northwestern. The matter was conducted as an investigation of grain rates between stations in Wisconsin and Milwaukee by the railroad commission acting on its own motion. The two complaints involved grain rates from Colfax and Mondovi to Milwaukee only.

The commission notified the railroad companies that a complete investigation would be made on their own initiative of the whole question, and the railroad companies appeared at a formal hearing July 10, when sworn testimony was received at that time on the matter.

The independent investigation of the commission with reference to these grain rates dates almost back to the time of organization, and an elaborate statistical compilation had been made before the first hearing.

The hearings in the matter of passenger rates have contributed much to an exact solution of the question. The opinion states that the final adjustment of figures has not yet been made in passenger rates.

In view of the fact that Wisconsin will ship 175,000,000 bushels of grain this year the reduced rate will cause a large saving to the shippers throughout the state.

INDICTMENTS FOR STANDARD OIL

Violation of Commerce Law Charged by Jamestown Grand Jury.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The federal grand jury for the western district of New York Friday returned indictments against the Standard Oil company, of New York; the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and the Vacuum Oil company, of Rochester, for violations of the interstate commerce law.

There are 24 counts in each indictment of the Standard Oil company and of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and a smaller number against the Vacuum Oil company.

The evidence presented to the grand jury in the oil cases having indicated that shipments of oil were made from Rochester to Rutland, Vt., over the New York Central railroad, Boston & Maine, and Rutland railroad lines, United States Attorney Brown asked that he be given time in which to prepare for an investigation into the connections of these three great roads with the shipments of the Standard Oil company's products to the alleged discriminative rates alleged to have been given by the Pennsylvania railroad.

Will Try to Save Cargo.

Cartagena, Spain, Aug. 8.—An expedition organized by the vice consul of Italy and the captain general of the port has started on a tug for Hormigas island to examine the situation of the Sirio and make an attempt to save part of her cargo. The tug also had on board several divers, wrecking apparatus, a portion of the crew of the Sirio and one of the officers of that vessel.

Toronto Carpenters on Strike.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 10.—The carpenters of the city went on strike Thursday for 35 cents an hour and recognition of the union. Over 1,000 men are out.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Claude H. Desha, a prominent Kentucky Democrat, died of apoplexy in Cynthia, Ky.

The New York aquarium's $3,000 sea cow died of blood poisoning, due to a rifle wound.

Bourke Cockran, of New York, is ill in California and is attended by Miss Ide, his fiancee.

Two thousand gold beaters went on strike in New York as the result of an open-shop controversy.

Private advices from Constantinople confirm the recent report that the sultan, Abdul-Hamid II., is ill.

The village of Corneaux, France, was nearly wiped out by the overflowing of the River Charmaix, caused by heavy rains.

Mrs. William Jones, of Chicago, who was visiting her parents at Kewanee, Ill., committed suicide by hanging herself.

Process servers finally caught H. Clay Pierce in St. Louis and summoned him as a witness in the oil investigation there.

Mrs. William G. Ford, a prominent Brooklyn, N. Y., society woman, is dead of a bullet wound accidentally inflicted by herself.

The home of J. L. Maxey, 15 miles west of Springfield, Mo., was struck by lightning and burned and two children were cremated.

Admiral Brownson, U. S. N., will take a fleet of cruisers to Asiatic waters upon the conclusion of the maneuvers of the Atlantic squadron.

Fire destroyed the steamer John H. Pauly at Marine City, Mich., and Joseph Minnie and John Spencer, members of the crew, were severely burned.

The son of John A. Brue, of Pontiac, Ill., was killed by a live wire in his home, which he accidentally grasped when the house was ignited by crossed wires.

A bowlder weighing 225 tons fell from Palo Pinto mountain in Texas on the tracks of the Texas Pacific, blocking the line for 12 hours, until it was removed.

George Crocker, of New York, formerly of California, presented a pipe organ to the Episcopal mission of St. John's church, Ramsey, N. J., in memory of his wife.

Private Jess Cantiss, Morgansville, Ky., aged 22, First United States artillery, was killed in the military maneuvers at the Austin, Tex., camp, by a loaded cartridge.

A Terre Haute, Ind., policeman turned up intoxicated at the station and reported he had been searching for violators of the closing ordinance. "I see you found them," replied the captain.

Bishop Lawrence of the Boston Episcopal diocese has sent out a denial of the story that he originated the "endless chain of prayer," attributed to him, which has raised a storm of protest.

William Jennings Bryan will make three outdoor speeches in Newark, N. J., after his reception in New York.

United States census figures give the population of the Panama canal zone as 30,000, the majority negroes.

"KID" HERMAN BESTS YANGER

Referee Awards Decision After Hard Contest in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 11.—Kid Herman, of Chicago, was given the decision over Benny Yanger, in a glove contest Friday night at the end of the tenth round before 3,500 people at the baseball park.

Herman continued in-fighting tactics throughout the contest, frequent clinches and hard hitting characterized the bout. Herman set the pace in the first and second rounds, Yanger getting an even break in the fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth and quitting strong. The verdict of the referee met with popular favor.

Had Counterfeit Money.

Corry, Pa., Aug. 10.—County Detective Watson, of Erie, assisted by Capt. W. P. Walsh, of Pittsburg, arrested John Hannon, a former engineer. Counterfeit money was found in his possession.

THE MARKETS.

		New York, Aug. 11.
LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00	@ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90	@ 7 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 80	@ 4 60
WHEAT—September	79⅜	@ 79⅝
December	83⅛	@ 83¼
CORN—December	56¼	@ 56⅜
RYE—No. 2 Western	67½	@ 68
BUTTER	18½	@ 19
CHEESE	11	@ 11½
EGGS	22	@ 25
CHICAGO.
CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 60	@ 6 60
Common to Good Steers	4 50	@ 5 60
Yearlings	4 50	@ 6 00
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25	@ 4 10
Calves	3 00	@ 7 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	5 95	@ 6 10
Heavy Packing	5 50	@ 5 85
Heavy Mixed	5 95	@ 6 05
BUTTER—Creamery	16	@ 21
Dairy	15½	@ 18½
LIVE POULTRY	11	@ 15
POTATOES (bu.)	48	@ 52
WHEAT—September	72¼	@ 72⅝
May	78⅞	@ 79⅛
Corn, September	45¾	@ 46⅛
Oats, September	30⅞	@ 32¼
Rye, September	56⅞	@ 57
MILWAUKEE.
GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 77	@ 79
September	72⅜	@ 72¼
Corn, September	49⅝	@ 49⅞
Oats, Standard	35	@ 36
Rye, No. 1	58	@ 58½
KANSAS CITY.
GRAIN—Wheat, September	$ 65¼	@ 65⅜
December	67½	@ 68
Corn, September	44¼	@ 44⅞
Oats, No. 2 White	35½	@ 36
ST. LOUIS.
CATTLE—Beef Steers	$3 00	@ 6 25
Texas Steers	3 00	@ 5 40
HOGS—Packers	5 90	@ 6 25
Butchers	6 10	@ 6 35
SHEEP—Natives	3 00	@ 6 00
OMAHA.
CATTLE—Native Steers	$4 00	@ 6 00
Stockers and Feeders	2 75	@ 4 25
Cows and Heifers	3 00	@ 4 25
HOGS—Heavy	5 85	@ 6 00
SHEEP—Wethers	4 50	@ 5 10

LONG PRISON TERM FOR LEADER OF MOB

FORMER CONVICT GETS FIFTEEN-YEAR SENTENCE FOR HELPING LYNCH NEGROES.

First Time in History of North Carolina That Jury Has Convicted Man for Avenging Crime by Taking Law Into His Own Hands.

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 11.—What is said to be the first instance of the conviction of a lyncher in the history of the state was furnished here Friday night when George Hall, a white ex-convict of Montgomery county, North Carolina, who was one of the party that Monday night lynched three negroes in jail here for the murder of the Lyerly family, was found guilty of conspiracy in connection with that crime and was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary.

Verdict of Guilty.

Hall's trial ended Friday evening at seven o'clock. The jury was out but 35 minutes and returned then with a verdict of guilty, after several witnesses had been heard. Judge B. F. Long sentenced Hall to the maximum term provided by law—15 years at hard labor in the penitentiary. The evidence against Hall was overwhelming. He was remanded to jail. His counsel has appealed on the ground that Gov. Glenn was in Atlantic City when the special term at which Hall was tried as ordered and that being out of the state's bounds he had no jurisdiction.

Change Charge From Murder.

The state sprung a surprise in the trial when the offense against the prisoner was changed from murder to conspiracy. When the court was called to order at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning, former Congressman T. J. Kluttz announced his client would contend that the court was unlawful. It was argued that the governor could not sign a commission for such a court unless he was in the state and it was claimed that he was at Atlantic City, N. J.

Saw Hall Leading Mob.

The objection of the defendant was overruled and the trial proceeded. The first witness was David W. Julian, a deputy sheriff, who testified that he saw Hall leading a mob of about 30 men, some of whom the witness knew. The officer had in custody a man he had arrested at the jail. Hall, said the witness, carried a hammer and threatened to brain him if he did not liberate the prisoner. Mr. Kluttz objected to this tesimony in its entirety.

Other testimony was offered in the afternoon and the case speedily given to the jury.

Hall had been a cotton mill operative.

LIBERTY FOR PERSIAN PEOPLE

National Assembly to Make Laws, Subject to Shah's Approval.

Washington, Aug 11.—For the first time in her history, Persia is to have a national assembly. This information conveyed to the Persian minister here late Friday in a cablegram from Mirza Nassrollah Khan Mochiredolet Sadreazame, the grand vizier and minister for foreign affairs, who stated that in view of the desire of his imperial majesty, the shah, for the extension of national tranquillity and for the welfare of Persia and all its inhabitants and in order to fortify the government, it had been decreed necessary to give certain reforms and a constitution durable for the country and for the administration. The immediate organization of a national assembly for the realization of these reforms accordingly was ordered.

The assembly will meet at Teheran, and it is provided that all civil and constitutional laws shall originate in the assembly and after the signature of his majesty will become effective.

MANY INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Physician in Dishabille Attend to Wounds of Passengers.

Bowie, Tex., Aug. 11.—Between 40 and 50 passengers were injured, none fatally, but several seriously, when the north-bound train of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad was wrecked a few miles south of Fruitland, Tex., late Thursday night. The sleeper and chair car left the track and rolled down an embankment, and nearly all those aboard sustained injuries.

The cars began to rock and sway from side to side and then toppled over before anyone realized the danger. However, there was no panic. The principal occupants of the sleeper and chair car were women and children, and the fact of their being no excitement is remarkable.

Dr. Connell, of Hot Springs, a sleeper passenger, not taking time to dress, did all he could to relieve the suffering. Where debris was impassible to his bare feet the brakemen assisted him across.

Three Die of Burns.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 8.—Three of the seven men burned by an explosion of gas in the No. 1 colliery of the Susquehanna Coal company at Nanticoke died during the night. Two others are so badly injured that they are not expected to recover.

Sultan's Illness Confirmed.

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—The recent reports that the sultan, Abdul Hamid II., is ill, are confirmed by private advices.

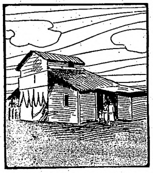
ON THE TROCHA LINE.

CHANGES THAT HAVE TAKEN PLACE IN CUBA.

Famous Old Blockhouses of Spanish War Memory, Turned Into Homes, Warehouses and Shower Baths by the People.

Havana.—Go back eight years. Paint in your fancy the beautiful, luxuriously indolent island of Cuba in the convulsive clasp of war and Weyler—Weyler the tyrant, Weyler the butcher, Weyler, the accursed, whose very memory the Cubans fain would erase from their history. Across the narrowest part of central Cuba, from Jucaro on the south to beyond Moron on the north, you see stretched the famous—or infamous — Trocha, that impassable line of barbed wire, designed to prevent the insurgents of the west from joining forces with their comrades in arms of the east.

A kilometer apart blockhouses crowded with Spanish soldiers rise like sentinels. The groans of the dying and the stench of the dead are everywhere, for the wholesale devastation of the land along the Trocha by the Spanish soldiers, accompanied by shocking atrocities, has acted as a boomerang, and the men themselves are daily dying of starvation and the disease so rampant in tropical close quarters, where the lack of proper sanitation quickly bring its dire result.



TROCHA BLOCKHOUSE NOW A CUBAN HOME.

At every ten miles is a Spanish barracks with a thousand eyes to spot the daring rebel, who, in the intense blackness that precedes a Cuban dawn, ventures to force himself through the barricades with a message to those comrades across the line. Poof, bang! and another body is ready for the vultures which haunt the Trocha—another man's hopes, loves and ambitions are ended!

Ring up the curtain on the scene in 1906 and note the changes. One can now go by train from Havana to Ciego de Avila, as sleepy a Spanish town, in the very center of the Trocha, as one can well imagine, as peaceful and lazy as if it had never beheld the outrages that were committed at its gate. Its plaza dozes in the noonday sun; its palms wave languorously while its few inhabitants lounge about their doorways unaffected by the hum of American industry that can almost reach them from the north and from the south, or listen to the tales of some black veteran of the war. A cross line of railroad runs here—if, indeed, it may properly be said to do anything but creep—its single locomotive puffing its wheezy way once each day.

He who is in any haste to reach any given point along the Trocha, who desires to travel faster than the slowest freight that ever was conceived, will do well to take passage in the patient mule stage that is waiting, and from it view the fertile red land. The journey southward is marked as with milestones by the grim blockhouses still standing at kilometer intervals, but from the portholes and the turrets, where Mauser rifles once bristled, the tropical foliage often now forms a chevaux-de-frise, and waves a gentle welcome in the trade wind that here sweeps across the island.

There is something almost pathetic in the contempt in which these once dreaded blockhouses are now held. Eight miles to the south of the railroad station is one that has been seized upon by a native family. Its watch tower has been torn down, and around it spreads an addition with thatched roof, the whole forming a modern Cuban residence of some local pretension, while at a little less distance in the other direction, an American settler has built a neat and attractive cottage and uses the blockhouse as a bathroom. He has a windmill, and has piped his water to the blockhouse, where each morning, standing upon a cement floor, he impudently takes his matudinal shower, careless of the structure's early history. Some of the larger blockhouses are now used by the farmers along the old Trocha line as storehouses for various commodities.

MAY WIN FATHER'S SEAT.

Young Gorman Likely to Be Elected Senator from Maryland.

Baltimore, Md.—That Arthur Pue Gorman, Jr., may succeed his father, the late senator from Maryland, is the belief of his many admirers in this state.

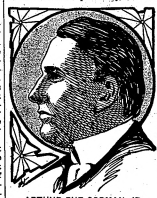
Young Gorman first came into notice three years ago when his father was in Europe. The young man had wanted his party's support for the state senate, but his father had expressed the opinion that he had better be sent to the house of delegates. The son, in spite of this, took matters into his own hands, and after a fight in the convention, became the nominee for senator from Howard county and won the election by one of the largest majorities ever received by any Democratic candidate.

During the session of 1904 he took no very active part on the floor of the senate. His record during the next session, 1906, exceeded the hopes of even his most sanguine friends. Having made a careful study of the legislative game, he at once assumed the leadership and held the place through some of the most bitter fights ever fought in Maryland's legislative halls.

The greatest service he rendered the state was the passage of a resolution, offered by himself, for the investigation of the affairs of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company. This resulted in a complete rout of the corporation legislators and the gain by the state of $2,500,000 for its holdings in the property of the road and reduced the state taxes from 23 cents to 16 cents on the hundred dollars.

When he introduced this resolution his critics intimated that he was not serious in the matter, but his strenuous defense of the measure on the floor of the senate and its final passage put them to shame.

To-day Marylanders speak of him as the stronest possibility for the toga among the younger men of the state, irrespective of politics or party.



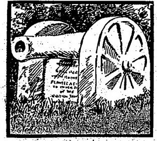
ARTHUR PUE GORMAN, JR.
(Young Marylander May Succeed His Father in the Senate.)

In the meantime Young Gorman is quietly conducting his law office and seemingly pays little attention to the whisperings of his friends. But those who know, say that two years hence, after a return to the senate, he will allow his name to be used as a candidate to succeed to his father's place, now being temporarily filled by Senator Whyte.

Historic Spot in Lexington.

Granite Model of Old-Style Cannon in Lexington, Mass.

Boston.—In Lexington is a stone cannon which bears the following inscription: "Near this spot Earl that they have found remains of persons belonging to a red-haired, blue-eyed race, evidently the founders of the temple in the Mingoi caves, and bearing marks of unmistakable Iranian origin. A number of huge iron swords also were discovered, and numerous Buddhist frescoes containing many figures. The temple, in fact, seemed to have a sort of Buddhist pantheon. Her von Lecoq has made an ethnological collection, which includes numerous specimens of ancient pottery and quantities of embroidery in ancient Turkish patterns.



STONE CANNON IN LEXINGTON.

Uncle Sam's Paper Bill.

One of the largest expenses connected with the government printing office is that for paper, nearly $1,000,000 being spent for the 10,000 tons used every year. There are 100 different kinds of paper used. Nearly $40,000 is realized from the sale of waste paper, consisting principally of sheets spoiled in the varied processes of manufacture.

Another Charge Against Autos.

English farmers have added another count to the indictment of motorists, with regard to the dust nuisance. They say that owing to the dust raised by motor cars it now takes a man two days to cut an acre of grass, as the scythe has to be sharpened more frequently. Before motor traffic was general, it is stated, this work was done in one day.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

MAN IS KILLED BY BEING JABBED WITH AN UMBRELLA.

Hoboes Beat Members of a Wrecking Crew—New Ulm Man Wins in State Butter Contest.

Minneapolis—Frank Staffier died at St. Mary's hospital in Minneapolis and the police are searching for John Harris, who it is alleged thrust the ferule of an umbrella into Staffier's right eye on Saturday night and thus inflicting the wound which caused Staffier's death.

The police have learned that Harris and Staffier met on Saturday evening in a sale stable at 12 Second street north, and quarreled about the payment of $5 which Staffier said was due him from Harris. It is said that both men had been drinking and that Staffier attacked Harris because of his refusal to pay the money.

Duluth—A syndicate of lake capitalists, one of whom resides in Duluth, is planning the construction of a boat that not only will be the largest freighter on the lakes, but will be unsinkable.

The size of the vessel is to be not less than 650 feet. Such a vessel would carry 15,000 to 17,000 net tons cargo. She would be the largest exclusively freight carrier in the world.

Compressed air is the principle to be applied to make the vessel unsinkable. This would make necessary a double hull.

The cost of the vessel would be about $600,000 at present prices of steel.

Beaten by Hoboes.

Minneapolis—Set upon by a gang of hoboes, John McDonald and William McLean, members of a Northern Pacific wrecking crew at work at Northtown Junction, were rescued in the nick of time by a detail of North Side police under the lead of Lieut. Firm.

In response to a call for help that came from some of the members of the wrecking crew, Lieut. Firm and his men pressed a locomotive into service and reached the scene in time not only to save McDonald and McLean from being seriously injured but to round up no less than 20 members of the gang that were manhandling the two railroad men. All the number are now locked up at the North Side station with a charge of vagrancy against them, but in case the members of the wrecking crew are able to recognize among the gang the ones that set upon their companions a more serious charge will be made against them.

The trouble between the hoboes and the wreckers started when McDonald attempted to recover a tool that one of the tramps had stolen out of the wreck ing car. Several of them promptly set upon him and beat him severely. McLean went to his rescue, despite the odds of 20 to 1, and with the handle of a pickaxe he was able to fight his way to McDonald's side.

Butter Contest.

St. Paul—Alex Johnson, of New Ulm, wins this month's scoring in the butter contest conducted by the state dairy and food department. His score is 98. P. Christensen, of Olivia, is only a quarter of 1 per cent below him, and A. D. Fisher, of New Richland, is third, with 97 1-4. Christensen was first in the June scoring and third in the July scoring. The winner and the third man have also been high in the previous scorings.

The butter was scored by J. C. Joslin, of the state dairy and food department. Sam Haughdahl, of St. Peter, and H. A. Goetsch acted as critics, and will give the buttermakers instructions in improving their product.

A total of 193 tubs was entered. The butter was not as even in grade as at the previous contests, the high score being higher and the low scores being lower than at the previous contest.

Ladies' Relay Race.

Hamline—A six days ladies' relay riding race is to be one of the sensations at the Minnesota State Fair this year. The race is for 24 miles and three lady riders will contest. They will ride four miles each day, changing horses at the end of each mile in front of the grand stand and the race will not be decided until the last mile is ridden on Saturday afternoon. It will be one of the liveliest track events ever "pulled off" in the northwest. The horses are thoroughbreds and the riders will be the most skillful in the country.

The fair is to be held this year during the entire week of Sept. 3 to 8 inclusive, and half fare rates will be effective on the Saturday previous to opening day.

News Notes.

St. Paul—The new city directory figures show that St. Paul gained 5 per cent in population during the past year.

Faribault—Prof. George A. Franklin, who has been superintendent of the public schools in this city for twelve years, removed his family this week to Austin, where he will be superintendent of the school of that city.

Beaudette—The Shevlin-Matthieu Lumber company has just completed a large mill here.

Mankato—Henry Smith, fifteen years old, son of W. G. P. Smith of Mankato, was drowned in Madison Lake. He and two young companions were bathing off the summer resort at Point Pleasant, and swam out to a sail boat anchored off shore, but on his way back he got tangled in weeds and sank before help could arrive, although his companions tried to aid him.

St. Paul—A requisition upon the governor of Nebraska was issued by Gov. Johnson for the return of Edward Tuggle, charged with assault in the second degree. It is alleged, Tuggle assaulted Herb Buchanon with a knife on July 6. Tuggle is now under arrest in Nebraska. Frank Picha has been sent to bring him back.

Minneapolis—The Great Northern and Northern Pacific announce a cut in the freight rates to Montana.

Minneapolis—Mrs. Mary Johnson, 60 years old, was struck by a fast "Excelsior limited" car at Thirty-fourth street and the Lake Harriet tracks and seriously injured.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

St. Paul—Wages of freight handlers at four of the railroad warehouses have been increased.

St. Paul—Burglars armed with an ax and carrying a lantern made a raid on the home of A. Hemis.

St. Paul—Lloyd Cush, 253½ Colborne street, is probably fatally injured while attempting to board a train.

Beaudette—The St. Benedictine Sisters are about to build a $10,000 hospital here on the banks of Beaudette river.

Slayton—The summer training school for this county closed last week. Examination papers are prepared.

Hutchinson—William Yoekes, 71 years old, committed suicide by hanging in the waiting room at the Biscay station.

Owatonna—The report of the assessor shows that there are nearly 16,000 cows in this county and nearly 6,000 horses.

Granite Falls—An unknown man was killed by a train just in front of the Milwaukee depot at this place early this morning.

Owatonna—Whether Nicholas Neubauer met his death by accident or by foul play is the question which Owatonna people are discussing.

Owatonna.—A final settlement of the gas war troubles has been arrived at and the gas company has conceded everything asked by the council.

Owatonna—An automobile party made up entirely of Owatonna people, driving machines owned in this city, started a tour of this state and Canada.

Montevideo—Fire broke out early this morning in the general store of Stewart Bros., destroying the stock and damaging the building. The loss is about $4,000, partly covered by insurance.

Moorhead—W. B. Douglas was appointed by the governor to succeed O. M. Lord of Minnesota City as a member of the state forestry board. The vacancy was caused by the death of Mr. Lord.

Winona—Tony Bednarz, a mail clerk on the North-Western railway has made a record-breaking swim from this city to Homer, a distance of something over five miles, in 2 hours and 45 minutes.

Worthington—The first Worthington Chautauqua assembly opened under favorable conditions except the weather, but the rain, apparently, did not affect the attendance, which numbered about 3,000.

Eveleth—That Northeastern Minnesota will become a richer agricultural country than Northwestern Minnesota, including the Red river valley, is the unqualified opinion of Prof. Thomas Shaw.

St. Peter—C. Amundson, treasurer of the board of education, has just made another payment of $3,000 on the school bonds, and the debt of the district is now reduced to $4,000, the bonds maturing July 1, 1907.

Hallock—The most successful summer school ever held in Kittson county has closed. The conductors were E. T. Carroll of Wadena, Mrs. H. McGee of St. Paul, and Miss Honora Sutton of Alexandria. The attendance was sixty-three.

Winona—August Franke, the fifteen-year-old son of Carl Franke of Bluff Siding, dropped dead in a field while running for shelter when a severe hailstorm came up, the cause being heart trouble. This is the third child in this family that has died in the same manner within a few years. Only two are now left.

St. Paul—A mysterious note found in a bottle, at the St. Paul boom, is puzzling the police. The note was signed by Annie Furch, 2404 Twenty-fifth avenue S., and was as follows: "Whoever finds this note will know that I have found my rest in the river at the Lake street bridge. Tell my mother."

Beaudette—Burglars entered the saloon of Treffin Bros. here, and finding the bartender asleep on the bar with the cash register locked, they took register and all, and no trace has been found of the register or the burglars since. The register is valued at about $250, and is said to have contained about $48 in currency.

Biwabik—Following a fist fight between the two, John Tuoria, it is alleged, shot and killed Sam Aijala near Tuoria's home at the old Cincinnati location near here. The men had been drinking together and it is said a trivial dispute brought them to blows and a tragedy. The bullet struck just above the eye, and caused instant death.

St. Peter—Omaha passenger trains used the new St. Peter-Ottawa short line for the first time last week. In the morning a crew of men took up a section of the old track, and finished laying the rails for the new and at noon south-bound Passenger No. 3, in charge of Conductor Montey, made the first run over the recently completed grade.

Minneapolis—C. A. Severance, attorney for the railroads, today informed the railroad and warehouse commission that no railroad would offer opposition to examination of its records to affirm the figures which the railroad officials have offered in evidence at the merchandise rate hearing, tending to show that there should not be a reduction in the existing tariffs.

Owatonna—If present plans go into effect Owatonna will have a fine park system. A park association of a thousand members is to be formed.

Biwabik—Following a fist fight John Thoria, it is alleged, shot and killed Sam Aijala yesterday near Tuoria's home at the old Cincinnati location near here. The slayer came to this place and surrendered.

Duluth—A. M. Chisholm and Edward Lynch of Duluth returned today from Pittsburg, where they closed a deal whereby the control of the Shagawa iron company's lease to the Shagawa iron mine passes at once into the hands of the Midland Steel company.

Were for Sale.

"Now," said the fussy old gentleman, putting one of the biggest plums in his mouth and picking up another, "what is the sense of having that notice read: 'French plums for sale?' Don't you see that 'French plums' would be enough? Don't you suppose that everybody knows they are for sale?"

"I dunno," answered the grocer; "some folks seem to think I'm giving them away."

And the old gentleman put back in the box the second plum he was taking.—Tit-Bits.

Why It Wouldn't Cook.

At a gas cookery exhibtion an old farmer entered, who, having listened to the merits of gas cooking stoves, ordered and paid for a cooker, which was duly sent to his home. About three months after the said farmer called on the manager, complaining that the gas cooker was a fraud, and that he had tried everything, and nothing would cook in the "bloomin'" thing. The manager asked if anything were wrong with his gas, to which he replied:

"Gas! What's gas?"—Royal Magazine.

In the Wee Hours.

"What was that noise in the parlor last night?"

"Why, Bender came home from the club and started to make that electrical experiment."

"What electrical experiment?"

"Why, rubbing a black cat on the back to see if he could see any sparks."

"And did he see any sparks?"

"No; but he saw a myriad of stars. The cat clawed him, and he fell over the piano."—Chicago Daily News.

Settling.

The seedy-looking stranger approached the Questions and Answers editor.

"May I have your assistance," he asked, "in settling a wager?"

"Certainly, sir."

"You're sure it'll be no trouble to you?"

"None at all. I'm perfectly willing to help you."

"Let me have $10, then, I lost."—Cleveland Leader.

Too Late.

"That old fellow looks dreadfully disappointed," remarked the sympathetic stranger at the village station.

"Yes," said the baggageman, "he missed the train."

"Oh, that was too bad. Where was he going?"

"Nowhere. He just missed seeing the train come in."—Detroit Free Press.

Knew What He Wanted.

Young Gent—Um—er—do you ever take back goods and—return the money?

Jeweler—No, sir; but if you have an engagement ring, I'll melt it up for you and pay for the gold.—N. Y. Weekly.

Hairy Persiflage.

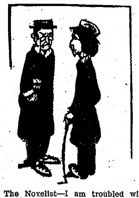
Barber—Hair cut or shave, sir?

Customer—Eh? Oh, merely cut, thank you.

Send Check.

His wife is at the seashore,
And every day's a gay day;
His daughter is with mamma,
And every day's a wade day;
But they write lovely letters—
He gets one every pay day.
—Houston Post.

A Sure Cure.



The Novelist—I am troubled with insomnia. I lie awake at night thinking about my novels.

The Critic—Why don't you get up and read one of them?—Brooklyn Eagle.

Yes, Indeed.

She said that she thought it was perfect bliss
To go out for a row on a day like this;
But her arms were bare, and I see with sorrow,
That bliss to-day will mean blisters tomorrow!
—Cleveland Leader.

A Deep Question.

Student—Which is it proper to say: "The snow was ten feet deep, or ten feet high?"

The Professor—That would depend whether you were on top or underneath.

The Cure.

Miss Budd—How did you cure your insomnia?

Mrs. Lotus—Sitting up nights waiting for my husband. I always get sleepy before he gets home.—Detroit Free Press.

At the Musicale.

Patience—That Miss Bellow is going to sing.

Patrice—Oh, is she? What shall we talk about?—Yonkers Statesman.

Has Nothing Left.

"Do you leave your valuables in the hotel safe when you go to a summer resort?"

"Only when I leave."—Judge.

IT IS SO HARD TO UNDERSTAND WOMAN.

"Gad, you can't understand a woman," he said, disgustedly. "It's no use trying."

"What's happened now?"

"I met that pretty Miss Swift in a dark hallway and kissed her. I didn't think she'd mind, you know."

"And she did mind?"

"Well she pretended to be very angry, so I thought I'd smooth things down by telling her that it was all a mistake—that I thought she was somebody else."

"And then?"

"Why, then she really was very angry."—Judge.

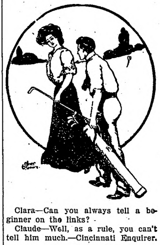
Rose Life.

The night sent down a dewdrop
To where a red rose slept;
The red rose opened wide its arms,
And in the dewdrop crept.

The sun came softly stealing
Above the hilltop's crest,
And made the dewdrop sparkle
Upon the rose's breast.

The south wind came and kissed it,
And made it dip and nod—
Its flaming petals, falling,
Made rainbows on the sod.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The Rule of Golf.



Clara—Can you always tell a beginner on the links?

Claude—Well, as a rule, you can't tell him much.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Song of Degrees.

We show in simple manner,
And with a hope to please,
The work which is expected
Of those who hold degrees.

Through four long years of study
Athletics prove the key,
With drafts on father's check book
To get a glad A. B.

Next stage, the honorary,
Is made both wide and free;
Few men who gain distinction
Escape the LL. D.

But morning, noon and evening
The hardest work we see
Is keeping daily hustling
To hold a J. O. B.
—N. Y. Sun.

Modest Patriot.

"Maj. Pompus is very public spirited. He's going to Washington for the summer; he has rented a house near the White House."

"What's the idea in that? The president will be away during the summer, and—"

"That's just it. He thinks there should be a brainy man near at hand in case any important mational business should come up suddenly."—Philadelphia Press.

Panic Averted.

"I hear," said Hi Tragedy, "that while you were playing in one of the country towns a fire broke out in the theater."

"Yes," replied Low Comedy, "and there might have been a horrible panic but for one thing."

"What was that?"

"There weren't enough people in the audience to create one."—Tit-Bits.

Not Inseparable.

"I'd like to go shopping with you," said Miss Passay, "but the dentist is to fix up my teeth this afternoon and it will take him at least an hour."

"Well, that'll give us time," replied Miss Knox. "You can shop with me while he's doing his work."—Philadelphia Press.

Very Likely.

Enraged Shopkeeper (catching fellow by the collar)—Here, you've just broken my window.

Loafer—I know I have.

Enraged Shopkeeper—What were you running away for?

Loafer—Why, to get the money to pay for it, of course.

Real Mortifying.

"George kissed me last night," she said, "and I'm so mortified that I hardly know what to do."

"Why, do you regard kissing before you are engaged as a disgrace?"

"No, but in my surprise, I forgot to make a pretense of fighting him off for a while."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Helpful.

"I suppose now, Susie," said the visitor, "that you're getting old enough now to help your mamma at her housework."

"Oh, yes," replied Susie; "whenever she tells me to get out of her way I don't."—Philadelphia Press.

Speculative.

He—What fearful bills! How much will your dress cost next year?

She—Goodness! How do I know? I shall have to see what the horrid woman next door wears before I can tell you.—Cassell's.

That Was All.

Effie—Jack and I fished for four hours yesterday.

Elsie—Catch anything?

Effie (coyly)—Only Jack.—Royal Magazine.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The Appeal to Reason (?) says: "Why do the Russian autocrats prohibit the circulation of Socialistic literature in that country?" Doubtless to prevent crime and revolutions. If more of it were done in this country there would be less assassination of presidents and others representing authority.

The latest bid for notoriety made by Haldor E. Boen of Fergus Falls is his entering the race as a candidate for congress on the socialist ticket. As may be remembered, Boen has served in congress before, but for another party now also of the past.—Thirteen Towns.

About the only good Boen done in congress was to make enough money for Boen to start in the banking business. He has the proper party to represent now that believes in a division of the spoils.

It looks kind of lonesome to a man that expects to make his home in this locality to pass the abandond farm of the homesteader that only stayed long enough in the country to make final proof and then return to his home in the older settled potions of country, and leave the actual resident to develop the country and raise the price of it for him. It looks now like a mistake that there was a provision in the law allowing the settler to make final proof with fourteen months residence, as it threw down the bars and opened wide the gate for the land speculator to walk in.

That Extension Helped Some.

The extension of the time of making payments on these lands for one year has been a great relief to the settlers, that have limited means and desire to make their homes here. It has caused the making of final proof to fall off about sixty per cent, as it has removed the necessity to make proof to make the second payment to the government. It has also placed the officials of the land office in a position so they can redily distinguish the true settler from the land grabber and speculator.

For the past year it has been a difficult matter to tell when a man made application to make final proof on a homestead of these lands, whether he was a man that was honestly intending to make his home here, or whether he had put up a cheap shanty and expected to leave the country and go home as soon as he made final proof, with no ententions of ever returning to make any more improvements.

Of course the settlement of the homesteader that intended to make this his home to exclusion of any other home and the land speculator would give about the same evidence when making proof, as the law compels them to make about so much residence in order to make proof, which might be called a jail sentence so far as the land Speculator is concerned. If a man is sentenced to jail he usualy stays his time out, and then gets out of the country, and that is the way to many of them have been doing in this part of Red Lake County.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A. L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A. O. Eberhart,
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E. T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S. G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C. A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C. F. Staples,
Dakota County.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? yoy will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

RURAL WATER SUPPLY.

Its Sanitary Condition Not What It Ought to Be.

When such great sums of money are being expended by city governments that the inhabitants of towns may have a sanitary water supply it seems strange that the supply in rural towns should receive little or no attention. This latter population may seem relatively insignificant, but it comprises about 40,000,000 souls. This means that those 40,000,000 people are drinking the water most available without a thought of its sanitary condition.

These various sources of supply, whether wells, springs, or small streams, are similarly unreliable for furnishing drinking water. The statistics of mortality in the country are very indefinite, but even these show that the rural population is not as free from illness as it should be. And though everywhere the rural death rate is lower than the urban death rate, yet the lowering in the country has not been as great as in the city. An examination of typhoid statistics shows that the death rate of other diseases is generally lower in the country than in the city, but the prevalence of typhoid is almost equal to if not greater in the rural districts than in the cities.

Several instances have been reported which show the rural typhoid rate to be ten times greater than the urban rate for the same district. To particularize, a certain district in central Pennsylvania proves this fact. It is made up of a rural population with 100 inhabitants to the square mile. It is a region of fine farms, wild mountains and woods, country residences and picnic groves. And in this valley there has been as much typhoid fever as in the city of Philadelphia.

Sad as this condition is, there seems to be no remedy for it. The sources of a city water supply are few and the city government easily controls the conditions affecting it. But what can be done when the sources of supply are numbered by the thousands? A mint of money and an army of chemists would not be sufficient to give the same care to the country supply that is given to that of the city.—New York Herald.

The Gardener.

It is at once the joy and the despair of a gardener that his work is never done. His materials are growing, changing, ever varying things. This is an endless delight to a man who lives with his garden and watches his plans grow up. When he makes a garden for another it is a different matter. Then, after spending his best thought and skill, the garden must be turned over into the hands of the Philistine, who may, doubtless will, spoil his color effects, make gaudy what before was rich, introduce tawdry display where before was a sensitive delicacy. These are the things that try men's souls and will continue to try them until the owners of large places acquire some degree of sympathy with and understanding of art.—Century.

Mixed Feelings.

The little girl who, after a drink of soda, declared that her nose felt as if her foot was asleep has evidently grown up and retained her happy power of expression, for evidently the young lady mentioned in Punch is the same person who drank bubbles when she was small.

The young woman was traveling in a coach as an elderly and somewhat sour looking man, in trying to open the window, pinched his finger nail severely.

"Oh!" exclaimed the lady sympathetically. "How horrid! I always think anything wrong with one's nails sets one's teeth on edge all down one's back!"

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of The Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn., July 9th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on August 21, 1906, viz:

Knut O. Strande.

H. E. No. 1187 Red Lake Series, for the S. E. ¼ Sec. 17 Tp. 153 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Ole O. Strande, Even Skjulestad, Ole Gjermundson, Alex F. Lattimore all of Erie Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

THE FIRST AIR BRAKE.

What It Did When Westinghouse Finally Won a Trial.

Persons who should have known better thought Westinghouse visionary when they were told that he proposed to stop a train by air. Nobody seemed inclined to let him try his plan on a real train, but they did not object to his working a model of it in a shop where he couldn't do any harm or involve anybody else in expense. He knew his scheme would work, but he could not make any one else believe it. So he continued to sell his invention for replacing derailed cars on the tracks and to talk about his brake to any railroad man who was willing to listen.

"Well, have you ever stopped a train with this air thing of yours?" they would ask.

No, he couldn't say that he had done so. Nobody would let him try it even on a train of dump cars.

One day he arrived in Pittsburg, selling his other invention and talking about his brake notion to a man connected with a railroad out there. "That's a great idea of yours," said the man. "We will try it on our line."

So the officials of this railroad permitted Westinghouse to put his new "kickshaw" on one of their trains. But he had to agree to indemnify the road for any damage that might be caused to the train as the result of the trials. The train was equipped. On the designated day the confident inventor and a group of skeptical railway men boarded the train on which the first air brakes were fixed. Off went the train on its trial trip. The engineer put on full speed, and just as he had rounded a curve he saw ahead, at a grade crossing and in the middle of the track, a loaded wagon, a man and a boy and a balky horse. The engineer moved his little lever, and the first train that was ever stopped by air pulled up at a standstill several feet short of the obstruction.

Thus, on its first trial, the Westinghouse air brake saved life and prevented damage to property. Thenceforward talking was unnecessary; all that had to be done was to make brakes. The inventor thought of that clause securing compensation to the railroad for any damage he might do to the train, and he laughed. His fortune dated from that day. He was then only twenty-two.—Arthur Warren in Success.

A Pessimist.

"Don't be too anxious to get a husband," said the wise matron. "Don't go around hunting for one."

"Think I should just sit down and wait for one, eh?" replied the maiden.

"Yes, for you'll sit up and wait for one often enough after you've got him."

Quite Natural.

Husband—What did you think when you heard the chandelier fall last night? Wife—Why, I thought you had been detained on business again and were getting upstairs as quietly as you could.

How Some Mutes Marry.

Statistics compiled by authorities on the condition of the deaf and dumb in this country present one significant fact in regard to the matrimonial affairs of that body of citizens. It is revealed therein that while many women deprived of the power of speech have been sought in marriage by men whose five senses were unimpaired only a few women whose tongues were in good working order have consented to tie themselves to men who could not hear what was being said. Cynics find in these revelations matter for many caustic diatribes pertaining to the conversational and listening powers of the sexes. Whether or not these sarcastic observations contain an explanation of the comparative willingness and unwillingness of men and women to marry mutes is a question, but the fact remains.

What a Letter Will Do.

A proofreader, anent the importance of trifles, read from his notebook these absurd sentences, each made by the omission of a single letter:

"The conflict was dreadful and the enemy was repulsed with great laughter.

"When the president's wife entered the humble sitting room of the miner she was politely offered a hair.

"A man was yesterday arrested on the charge of having eaten a cabman for demanding more than his fare.

"An employee in the service of the government was accused of having stolen a small ox from the mail. The stolen property was found in his vest pocket."

A Wonderful Theory.

Gladys—I don't like this egg, auntie. It's not good. Auntie—Nonsense, dear! It was only laid yesterday. Gladys—Well, then, it must have been laid by a bad hen.

Still in the Future.

Cashier (coughing)—Pardon me, I did not catch your last name. Ethel (blushing)—I haven't caught it yet myself.—Cleveland Leader.

Summons.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake, } S. S.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA,

To Worlonty Wojnaroski and Mrs. Worlonty Wojnaroski, Defendant's.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 30th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A. M., at my office in the Town of Highlanding in said County, to answer to the complaint of Edward Singer Plaintiff, in a civil action, wherein the Plaintiff claim the sum of seventeen dollars and seventy two cents ($17.72), with intrest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 8th day of November 1905. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid judgement will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said Plaintiff for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand and dated this 1st day of August 1906.

W. G. Hunt,
Justice of the Peace.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given, that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on September 25th 1906 viz:

Ole O. Vattendahl.

H. E. No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 9, Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1, Sec. 34, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Lande, Sjur Stoles, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Radny Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 11, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 26 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sen.

H. E. No. 8856, Chippewa Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen Fore, Ansa Fore, John G. Lintvedt all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, register.

Probate Notice.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedent.

Letters of administration this day having been granted to Eva Shosten,

IT IS ORDERED, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is, limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday the 11th day of January 1907, at 9 o'clock A. M., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in THE SUNBEAM a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County as provided by law.

Dated August 11th 1906.

N. W. Tarrant,
[Seal] Judge of Probate.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam July 13th 1906.

Department of the Interior.

Land Office at Crookston Minn. July 5th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on August 20, 1906 viz:

Julius Olsen.

H. E. No. 1045 Red Lake Series, for the Lots 1, 2, E½ N. W. ¼ Sec. 19 Twp. 152 N. R. 39 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Peter E. Bjerkly of Lillo Minn. Knut K. Solberg, Charley O. Olsen, Even oftelle, Knut Jorstad of Rudell Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. July 11th, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz:

Berit Martha Valstad.

H. E. No. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 28 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gullingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn. Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. Montague Register

Just Rebuke.

"Ma!"

"What is it now?"

"I wanna nother piece cake!"

"No, Tommy, you've had enough."

"Aw, ma! Yer always tellin' me I don't eat properly, an' then you don't never gimme no chance to practice!"—Cleveland Leader.

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(Always Call For Vivo)

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a compleat line of flour & feed at both points.

☞ Promt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake River.

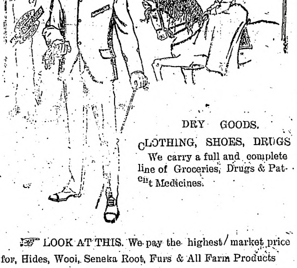
We solicit your orders.

Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payment's. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds. Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US.

J. A. Duffy, Cashier.



NORSK HANDEL.

DRY GOODS.

CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS

We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

☞ LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store.

☞ THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

Call and see me for bargains, at Radny post office and store.

John Radneskie.

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headdresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headdresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headdresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

Persian Dramatics.

A traveler, speaking of some of the oddities of Persian customs when viewed with occidental eyes, said:

"Depending as we do upon illusion and scenic effects in our theaters, the presentation of a Persian play by native performers strikes the westerner as little short of ridiculous, the extreme solemnity of all concerned making the appeal to hilarity all the stronger. In one of their favorite miracle plays the prophet is supposed to ascend to heaven, and this dramatic incident is accomplished by the very simple expedient of drawing him up from the stage and out of sight with a block and tackle. The tackle is attached to his belt by an attendant in plain view of the audience. So strong, however, is the imaginative power in the oriental that many of the onlookers will be observed weeping openly."—Harper's Weekly.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

John Poloni was a passenger down the river on the Flyer Wednesday.

James Coleman and P. Sullivan have been assisting A. Eve is putting up his winter supply of hay this week.

George Singer drove over from Rhoda Wednesday to see the Highlanding people. He says he has his haying nearly completed.

George Singer is rejoiceing over the discovery of a new and fine well of water on his farm, as the result of Pete Melins water witchery.

A lumber jack was a passenger on the Flyer Wednesday, that had met with an accident on the drive above here and fractured one of his legs.

Some of our farmers are complaining about the failure of their binding twine to arrive on time as ordered, which is delaying them about starting their harvest.

We regret to learn that captain Fred Houg of the Dan Patch river boat was taken so seriously ill last week that he was compelled to go to the Thief River Falls hospital.

There was a big electric storm which was accompied by a heavy rain storm passed over this locality Tuesday night but so far as we can learn there was no damage done to crops.

Edward Singer and Henry Peterson left Wednesday, for Ardock N.D. where they will put in three or four weeks threshing with the Robert Neason machine. They took the Red Lake Flyer down to Thief River Falls.

This week we present our readers with the announcement of H.E. Ives of St. Hilaire for clerk of court. He desires your votes and support for his nomination and election and takes this way of asking you for your support, as it is a difficult matter to personaly visit all the voters in as large a county as this.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spokely drove out from Thief River Falls last sunday to visit their farm and neighbors and took in the picnic at P. Sullivans in the afternoon. Notwithstanding Mr. Spokley has moved his family to Tnief River Falls he takes an active interest in keeping up his improvement on the farm, haveing recently painted his farm residence.

There was a social picnic at the residenc of P. Sullivan, on last sunday afternoon that was enjoyed by quite a large number of neighbors and friends of Mr. Sullivans. A grand dinner was served at one o'clock, which was done ample justice to by all. The afternoon was passed in social visiting until five o' clock lunch' which was enjoyed by all, after which they departed for their homes well pleased with afternoons entertainmen.

The wedding reciption at Ole O. Vattendahls on last Wednesday afternoon and evening was one of the largest gatherings that has met at one place since the opening of the reservation. A very enjoyable afternoon and evening was passed by all who attended and the guests surly wished Mr. and Mrs. Radneski joys and happiness in their matrimonial journey, over lifes troubled sea. Whose turn comes next? John and Miss Engeborg seem to be alive; don't be afraid old batches and maids for it may be all right to be married after all.

It is hot, hot, weather now days.

Harvesting is in full blast in this locality.

Banker A. F. Hanson, of Ada, is out as a candidate for the senate for this district. This makes three candidates so far, with Clearwater and Beltrami counties to hear from.—St. Hilaire Spectator.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Eve, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sullivan, Miss May Arndt, Miss Mary Sullivan, Katherine Dunn, James Coleman and ye editor from here attended the Vattendahl wedding wednesday evening.

Polk County seems to be well suplied with candidates for the legislature, for Representative there being four in the field and only two to be elected, which will leave two of them still running after the Primaries.

SECURES PENSION.—Congressman Steenerson has secured a renewal of the pension of Mrs. Emily Gowdy, of Fergus Falls, as the widow of Lewis Tenny. The pension is allowed at $12 per month from the time of the death of her late husband, Mr. Gowdy which ocurred on March 10. A soldiers widow, on marrying, losses her pension, but in this case, the second husband having died, the pension on the life of the first husband is restored.

The farmers living along the river are begining to get a little warmer under the collar, about the boat business, and thoes that have hung back claiming the present services were good enough, are begining to find out that the present services are not going to continue as soon as the boat agitation stops. So far as we are concerned we will endevor to get along with this things as they were last year rather than to put in our time, and money to try to better the condition of the country and the only reward being a shy dig by some one that we should do more.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

Wanted: Gentleman, or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Gully, Minn.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

Office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

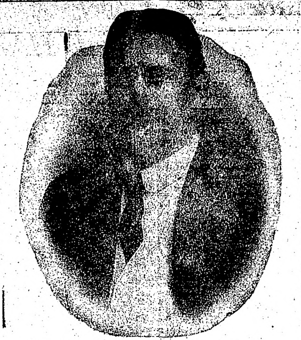
I have money to loan on realestate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.



HARRY E. IVES, ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Respectfully solicits your support and vote for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the District Court for Red Lake County at the Primaries, Sept. 18. If nominated and elected will pledge a square deal to all parties and all men.

STORY OF THE FLOOD

THERE ARE MANY AND VARIED VERSIONS OF THE DELUGE.

The Great Event Is Chronicled Not Only In the Talmud and Koran, but In the Legends of Almost Every Race That Ever Lived on Earth.

One of the most powerful and vivid descriptive portions of the book of Genesis is that devoted to the wonderful story of the deluge. Together with the accounts of Adam's fall, the slaying of Abel and the turning of Lot's wife into a pillar of salt, every one remembers from childhood how Noah was warned of the doom impending over the children of men and how he constructed a huge ark in which he did live, himself and his family and two of every beast of the field and fowl of the air, for the space of 190 days, or until the waters subsided and the dry land appeared. But the Biblical recital of this terrible visitation of divine wrath is by no means the only one. In fact, the most skeptically inclined must believe that something of the sort actually occurred long ago, for it has been perpetuated not only in the Talmud and Koran, but in the legends of almost every nation and race that ever lived on the face of the earth, including the Chinese, the ancient Aztecs of Mexico, the Indian tribes of North and South America and even the savages of Africa.

The story, of course, varies materially in the multitudinous traditions, but the gist of it remains substantially the same—namely, that the earth was once visited by a great flood in which nearly every living thing was overwhelmed and lost. Thus in the Koran we read that Noah constructed the ark with divine assistance and was railed at for his pains by the wicked. When the time prescribed for the punishment of mankind arrived, water was seen to flow from the burning oven of Noah's wife, and immediately all the veins and arteries of the earth broke and spurted out water.

Noah was then admonished in these words: "Take and bring into the ark two couples of every kind of animal, male and female, with all your family, except him who has been condemned by your mouth, and receive the faithful and even the unbelieving, but few only will enter." The Koran also says that the ark was built in two years and that it contained three stories, the upper one for the birds, the middle one for the men and the provisions and the hold for the beasts. Canaan, the son of Ham, refused to be saved. Therefore Noah cursed him, and his posterity became black and were enslaved. The Persians assert that Ham incurred his father's malediction as well. When six months had passed the ark rested on the top of Mount Djondi (Ararat), after having made the circuit of the world. Tabari says that two sorts of animals left the ark which had not entered it—the pig and the cat. Concerning the latter we have this interesting piece of information: When the rats began to make trouble the voyagers complained to Noah. Whereupon the patriarch "passed his hand down the back of the lion, who sneezed, and the cat leaped out of its nose. And the cat ate the rats."

According to the Talmud, Noah and his family and one pair of each kind of beast were to be saved in the ark, but of every clean beast seven were to enter in. The rhinoceros, however, had to be left out, for the simple but sufficient reason that its neck alone was three miles long. Nevertheless all the rabbinic writers agree that the rhinoceros survived the flood; hence it is reasonable to suppose that the huge beast was taken in tow by a rope attached to its horn. Some authorities likewise declare that Noah extended his hospitality to another outsider in the shape of Og, the giant, who climbed on the roof of the ark and received his daily food through a hole bored in the side of the vessel.

Ararat has been known under this name for 3,000 years, and an Armenian writer declares that an entire country was so called after Aral the Fair, an ancient Armenian king who lived about 1750 B. C. He fell in a bloody battle with the Babylonians, and the scene of his death was thenceforth known as Aral-Arat, or the Fall of Aral. Josephus refers to the mountain as Nazuana and declares that the remains of the ark were there to be seen carefully preserved.

Almost all the Asiatic traditions closely resemble the Biblical account. Berosus in his Chaldee history (B. C. 260) speaks of ten kings, who appear to correspond to the ten patriarchs in Genesis before the flood. The last of these kings was called Xisuthrus. Berosus relates that "Kronos appeared to Xisuthrus in a dream and warned him that all men would be destroyed by a deluge on the 15th of the month Daesios and commanded him to write down all the learning and science of men and to hide it in the sun city Siparis and then to build a ship and enter it along with his family and relatives and nearest friends and to take into it with him food and drink and beasts and winged fowl. When he was asked whither he was about to sail, he was bidden to reply, 'To the gods to pray them that men may prosper.'" Xisuthrus did as he was commanded, and when the flood showed signs of abating he sent out three birds in succession. The first and second came back, the latter with mud on its feet, but the third returned not. Soon after this the ship was stranded on a mountain, and Xisuthrus disembarked with his family, offered thanks to the gods and vanished. Subsequently the remaining survivors heard his voice in the heavens, bidding them fear God and to take his writings out of Siparis and from them instruct men.

An Exception.

A New York banker tells the story of two Irishmen who discussed the "nationality of the American states." Said Pat, "Faith an' be jabbers if this grate counthry ain't overrun wid th' Irish, an' yit out of all th' states in th' Union not wan has an Irish name." "Sure an' yer wrong," replied Mike. "What's the matter wid O'Regon?"

Ancestors.

"My ancestors," said the man whose name happened to be Endicott, "came over in the Mayflower."

"And mine," observed the man whose name was Adams, "were the original occupants of the garden of Eden."—Chicago Tribune.

Enthusiasm.

Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm. It is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus; it moves stones; it charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity, and truth accomplishes no victories without it.—Bulwer.

To make knowledge valuable you must have the cheerfulness of wisdom.—Emerson.

Looking Forward.

"Progress is becoming extremely rapid."

"Yes, indeed. In the year 3000 or so lightning will have to get a move on if it wants to be considered fast."

Lucky Patients.

"Did you ever make any mistakes, doctor?"

"Well, I've had several patients get well that I expected would die."

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Remember the dates-Sept. 3,4,5,6,7, and 8th.

That's the Holiday Week of the Year
—The week of the Great MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Opening of the $100,000 Livestock Ampitheater on Monday morning Sept. 3rd. Dedication adress by James J. Hill.
Dan Patch and Cresceus, the two fastest stallions in the world, to go against their world's records Monday.
The greatest Live stock Exhibition of the world—All the week.
Three great Auction sales of Pure Bred Cattle in the Amphitheater daily.
Live stock parade on Friday. Sensational Racing each day.

Increased Agricultural and Horticultural Exhibits. Spectacular Fireworks, Racing, Etc., each night. $5,000 Trotting Race on Minneapolis Day. $5,000 Pacing Race on St. Paul Day. Exciting Ladies Relay Riding Race—Six days—Every afternoon of fair week. High Class Specialties each afternoon and evening. Demonstrations of all kinds of farm and Dairy Machinery—Daily. Premiums and Purses $65,644.50.

Half Fare Railroad Rates.

Tickets on Sale Saturday Sep. 1 Good returning to leave Cities until Monday Sep. 10th.

C. N. COSGROVE, Pres. E. W. RANDALL, Sec'y.

THE FIRST
STATE BANK, OF
THIEF RIVER FALLS. WILL LOAN YOU THE Money To Make Your Second Payment, or to make your final proof. Give us a call, as we give the best rates
On Farm Loans.

nger, Edward Singer,

SINGER BROS.
Dealers In,

WORKING MENS
CLOTHING
MADE IN DULUTH
This line is justly celebrated because they fit and STAND THE WEAR
WE CAN FIT YOU

Groceries, flour & feed.

Dry Goods, Boots & Shoes.

HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR FARM PRODUCE

Rhoda, Minn.

NEW STORE,
AT ANTON MINNESOTA.
Dry Goods, Goceries, Flour & Feed.

EXCLUSIVE AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED DE-LAVAL CREAM SEPERATOR, IN THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

Any Kind Of Stock Taken In Exchange For Goods.

GIVE ME A CALL.

Located at Anton post office, on the Red Lake River, Eight miles east of Thief River Falls.

Christ Larsen.-Proprietor.

THE OTHER CAPTAIN TENNANT

BY LOUIS TRACY.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

A hansom darted out of the station, and the occupants, two sun-tanned men, stamped with the cavalry seal, each clutched at a window-rest and exchanged smiles of quick understanding.

"Great Scott!" cried the major, "it's good to be back in God's country after two and a half years in the Philippines! Look at the girls in muslin! Jimmy, let's charter the hansom for the afternoon and go round and see things!"

His excitement met with no response. Glancing at his companion, he suddenly checked the further outburst on his lips.

"What's up, Jimmy? No bad news, I hope?"

"Bad news! I have had none at all."

"Faith! there's plenty of good fish in the sea. Believe me, Jimmy, there is safety in numbers. I have run after women all my life and never caught one yet, so I have had all the sport and none of the worry."

Tennant agreed with him. He was in no mood for discussion, nor did his friend's cynical badinage appeal to him at the moment.

At last, when the major had gone off to a club Tennant stood irresolutely in the foyer of his hotel whilst pride and common sense wrestled for supremacy.

Pride said: "Why trouble your soul about a woman who has utterly ignored you for six long months, and now treats your homecoming with absolute indifference? Give her no further heed."

But common sense whispered: "Find out the truth before you decide. You would have trusted Elsie Stapleton with your life, your future, your honor. Do not now condemn her unheard."

He was a hard man and an obstinate one. Not readily, nor yet in stinted measure had he bestowed his love, and the causeless, merciless abandonment to which he had been subjected had seared his heart. Nevertheless, pride went under in the struggle, and he started forth to ascertain from the lady herself why he no longer found favor in her sight.

When he reached the lady's house, she was not there; indeed no one knew where she was. Her father had given up the house eight months ago, and in New York, where no man knows his next door neighbor, the interval opposed a blank wall against further inquiry. It struck him as a small coincidence that at the period of this change of residence he was in the wildest part of the Philippines and temporarily incapacitated from writing home. Letters from Elsie, breathing love and hope, continued to reach him by devious routes for some weeks. Then—silence!

Being a determined man, he interviewed local tradesmen, policemen, post office officials, and finally a doctor. Here he found a clew. Yes, exactly eight months ago, Miss Elsie Stapleton, suddenly became very ill—received a shock, he believed, by unexpected news concerning a friend in the Philippines, and was taken abroad by her father. The girl was dangerously ill.

Ablaze with uncertainty, Tennant went back to his hotel. A man awaited his arrival, an army officer, like himself, and it was sufficiently amazing to read on the stranger's card: "Capt. J. W. Tennant."

"I have been chasing you round the world," he explained. "My business is important. Can we have a quiet talk somewhere?"

Jimmie led his namesake to a sitting-room. Here the other Capt. Tennant seated himself, lit a cigarette, and produced an envelope.

"Do you recognize the handwriting?" he said.

Jimmie required no second glance It was Elsie's.

"How the deuce did this come into your possession?" he demanded, fiercely.

"Hold on! This affair may have caused you some trouble, but not half so much as it has given me. Now, just sit still and listen. My name happens to be John Watson Tennant. My wife, whom I recently married, and who was a millionaire's widow, happens to be extremely jealous. She collects my correspondence. I don't mind, as I thought all the letters would be from duns. I didn't count on receiving love-letters, and devilish well-written ones at that, from a young lady named Elsie. By Jove! didn't she make it hot for me? Never a word did she let on, though, for I should have discovered the mistake at once. To her there was only one J. W. Tennant in existence, and she did not believe me when I showed her your name in the army list. I must admit that the last letter appeared to justify her suspicions."

"The last letter!"

"Yes. I am awfully sorry for you, old man, but I couldn't help it. Miss Elsie evidently saw an account of my marriage in some papers and thought it was yours, as you had not written to her for some weeks. Then the fat was in the fire—with my wife, I mean. Since that document reached her she has made my life a misery, compelled me to leave the service, pays all the bills, never gives me a red cent, and alternately ties me to her apron string and threatens divorce proceedings.

"Give me . . . . my letters!" gasped Jimmy.

The other man laughed discordantly.

"I am almost in the divorce court for demanding even an envelope," he cried. "My wife sleeps on them, and reads them twice a day whenever she thinks I am wheedling her a bit. Now, if you feel equal to it, come with me to my hotel and try all you know to persuade her that Elsie belongs to you, and not to me."

The persuasion took a form that the rich and elderly Mrs. Tennant was not accustomed to. It astounded and gratified her happy-go-lucky husband to see the way in which she quailed before Jimmy's wrath. The latter walked straight into her palatial suite and thrust some old and frayed letters before her eyes.

"You have some of my correspondence in your possession," he said, with an intensity of passion that cowed her instantly. "They are letters written to me by a Miss Elsie Stapleton. You will recognize her handwriting. Will you give them to me quietly, or must I take them by force?"

"John!" she shrieked, "protect me!"

"Darling," said her better half, "I am helpless. This is the other Capt. J. W. Tennant. You refused to believe me, ducky, when I assured you—"

"Do you hear, woman?" growled Jimmy. "Your miserable jealousy has entangled, perhaps wrecked, the happiness of two people who never imagined that such a creature as you could come between them. Give me my letters, or by the bones of your martyred first husband, I will—"

That was enough. She produced a crumpled packet from the bosom of her dress. Without a word of apology or further comment, Jimmy stood where he was and read the blurred lines, for the lady had wept hot tears over them, and the paper was almost in tatters. The silly mistake which might yet have a tragic ending was quickly revealed. Elsie had indeed seen in a newspaper an account of the marriage, and her lover's prolonged silence at that unhappy juncture forced her to the conclusion that he had jilted her. Her last little note of farewell wrung his heart in agony.

It was a long and difficult search for ten days. Jimmy's chief difficulty was that the only persons who knew the Stapletons' whereabouts regarded him as an unprincipled scoundrel, and refused to see him. Then he found the girl's aunt, and the woman knew that this story was true. She told him that Elsie, who had been near to death, was slowly recovering her health in Florida.

"SOMEHOW," SOBBED THE GIRL, "I NEVER REALLY DOUBTED YOU."

He went there by the next steamer, and with him traveled Mr. and Mrs. Tennant—the latter most unwillingly, but shamed now into subjection to her lord and master. With a soldier's strategy the leader of mounted infantry first captured Elsie's father and made him listen to reason. Then it was thought advisable that the dame should be forced to go and tell her story to Elsie, and thus prepare her for the coming of her lover.

She played her part honestly, but with whimpers. She happened, too, to hear what Elsie said when Jimmy took her in his arms.

"Somehow," sobbed the girl, "I never really doubted you. I read a description of this woman—and saw her photograph—and then I thought that fever or hardship had affected your brain."

By succeeding mails from the Philippines came batches of Jimmy's correspondence, returned through the dead letter office, and Elsie enjoyed reading them, now that they were married, a great deal more than if he were still in the far east.

The two Tennants occasionally play bridge together at the same club, but the two Mrs. Tennants will never be real friends, though they meet at times.

A Point in Favor.

Si Medders—Trolley cars are a great blessin', Josh.

Josh Kornkrib—They be thet. They be th' only things around here thet an automobile is afraid of.—Judge.

What the Wild Waves Say.

This is the story
The deep ocean tells;
"Ten yards of board bills—
One trunk of shells!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

PROPER CARE OF THE HAIR

IN SUMMER GIVE IT A REST FROM ARTIFICIAL CURLING

Those at the Seashore Should Never Allow the Salt Water to Remain in the Hair—To Protect the Skin.

Women intending to pass the summer or a portion of it at the seashore much be very careful of both skin and hair. The salt of wind and wave, as well as the glare on the sandy beaches, play havoc with the texture of the skin and the beauty of the hair.

Pounds and more pounds of the best cold cream should be used on the skin, and the sea water should never be allowed to remain in the hair. It is better to wear oil-skin caps and so protect the head entirely, but with the utmost precaution an occasional wetting occurs, and then the salt water should be rinsed out as soon as possible and the hair dried. A little salt is good for the hair, but not the real salt water of the sea; it leaves the hair sticky and in time destroys its gloss beyond restoring.

It should be the rule to rest the head from all, or as much as possible, artificial dressings, and helps through the hot months; no curling iron should be used at all, for one reason that the curl will not stay in, and another, that the hair may have the rest it so much needs from the constant dressing in the whirl of the winter festivities.

The woman who thinks she looks "a fright" without the "marcelling" of her hair, will find she can wear charming veils of lace, of chiffon or soft liberty silk most becomingly over perfectly straight locks, and also the beruffled lingerie hats. If she will loosen her hair after the bath, and if it is wet, rinse it and dry it in the sun and wind, it gets a "fluff" of its own, from simple relief.

The Crown of Glory.

Advice for the Stout Woman

Firm Flesh Well Carried Is Not Ungainly—How to Reduce.

There is a wonderful new German reduction method which calls for a rubber blanket, in which the fat woman is wrapped. Sometimes she is put into a rubber suit. And with this so tight that it both compresses and sweats her she does her exercises. The result is a rapid loss of weight. And particularly does this weight around the belt line disappear, just where it is the thickest and looks the worst. Make the room quite hot and go through a simple course of gymnastics, the most important of which is the bending exercises. She can lie flat on the floor and elevate her feet. She can stand and bend over. She can lie upon the floor and lift one foot and then the other.

The rope gymnastics are extremely good. A rope is slipped over the foot and the handles are held in the hand. The rope is seesawed by the handles, and the patient is strengthened as to her back and broadened as to her shoulders. The second of the rope exercises is taken lying flat upon the back. The patient lies down, lifts one foot, throws a rope over it, and seesaws it, pulling the handles back and forth. This is for the reduction of the belt line proper. Incidentally it develops the chest.

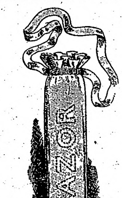
For reducing the chin and the waist at the same time there is an old physical culture exercise which resembles in a way the puss in the corner game of the nursery folk. The one who is reducing kneels down in the corner puss fashion, throwing the rope to some one else, who pulls on it in a sort of tug-of-war fashion. If there is no one to assist the puss can play it by herself, throwing the rope over something and seasawing the handles. This is excellent from the viewpoint of exercise. The kneeling position, the exercise with the arms, the vigorous chest movements, and the fact that the chin is kept constantly on the go makes it quite varied and enjoyable.

When all is said and done about reducing those who are stout never need look or act unsightly if they are fastidious about their daily baths—two a day, the hot at night, the cold plunge in the morning—dainty about their food, eschewing the grosser sorts and taking the fruits and vegetables in abundance, with no water at meal time and plenty within two hours of meals, and if, besides, they indulge in regular exercise—walks, golf, swimming, horseback riding, or some other favorite physical practice. So long as the flesh is firm and well carried and pure from internal and external impurities, it is not ungainly or unpleasant to the eye.

A Few Healthful Breathing Exercises

In a Bag Lined with Wash Leather and Conveniently Placed.

The accompanying sketch illustrates a useful little bag for a razor, made for hanging up on the post of a looking-glass or on a nail in the wall by the side of the glass. The bag should be about eight inches in length and two in width. It is gathered at the top and a ribbon run through, which answers the double purpose of closing the neck and supporting the bag when it is hung up. This little article can be made from any odd piece of material that we happen to have by us, and the word "razor" may be worked in silk in plain letters on the side as shown. It should be lined with soft wash-leather, as the leather will keep the razor bright and clean and in good condition. A razor will not improve if it is left lying about loose on a dressing-table, to say nothing of it being a most dangerous plaything should it happen to fall into little hands, and if after it has been used it is returned regularly to the bag it will at any rate be safely out of the way.



Quite a Convenience.

A Good Place to Keep the Razor

No Expensive Gym. Apparatus Needed, But Full Value Received.

When one knows how much there is in breathing one begins to realize the importance of breathing exercises. To make sure that we breathe right we should prepare the lungs before we begin as the runner does who takes a little run before he starts in the race in order to get the second wind by the expansion of the whole chest cavity. We can get our second wind simply by tapping the chest, which causes the lungs to expand and get hungry for air.

Place the hands on the hips and draw in a full breath, at the same time throwing the head upward and backward. Exhale as the head is brought forward. The hands on the hips hold the shoulders down. Count four while breathing in and four while breathing out.

Clasp the hands over the abdomen and take a full deep breath, at the same time pressing upon the abdomen and lifting the chest as high as possible. Count four while breathing in and the same while breathing out. Do not relax the pressure on the abdomen while breathing out, but continue it all the while.

The third movement is full breathing with chest lifting, almost the same as the last. Raise the chest high and hold it there, letting the breath go out, and pressing hard upon the abdomen to prevent the chest from sinking. You cannot let the chest down while you clasp the hands tight.

Empty the lungs completely of air, close the throat, and raise the chest as high as possible. This makes a suction that creates a vacuum in the chest. The blood is then being pumped out of the liver. Open the throat for a few seconds and let the air in, then repeat the exercises.

Good for the Eyes.

Open the lids and let the water bathe the eyeballs. Wipe them with a soft towel, taking care to rub toward the nose. This motion has a tendency to remove any foreign matter.

HERITAGE OF CIVIL WAR.

Thousands of Soldiers Contracted Chronic Kidney Trouble While in the Service.

The experience of Capt. John L. Ely, of Co. E, 17th Ohio, now living at 500 East Second street, Newton, Kansas, will interest the thousands of veterans who came back from the Civil War suffering tortures with kidney complaint. Capt. Ely says: "I contracted kidney trouble during the Civil War, and the occasional attacks finally developed into a chronic case. At one time I had to use a crutch and cane to get about. My back was lame and weak, and besides the aching, there was a distressing retention of the kidney secretions. I was in a bad way when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills in 1901, but the remedy cured me, and I have been well ever since."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

He Hit the Bookmaker.

Patrick Murphy had an afternoon off, so he thought he would go out to see the horse races.

Pat had heard about the fortunes made at the race track, so he thought he would try his luck. He went down stairs before every race, but didn't find any odds that suited him until the last race. It was a large gray horse. I don't remember its name, but it suited Pat all right, for it had 50-1 after it.

Pat put up his dollar and went upstairs to see the race. His horse won by a neck. Pat hurried down-stairs with a lively step to cash in his check.

It was the last race of the day and the bookmaker was anxious to get rid of his silver, therefore Pat was paid with silver dollars.

Pat stood there a few minutes fumbling over his handful of silver dollars, when the bookmaker hollered: "What's the matter, Irish? Don't you think they are good?"

Pat said: "They look all right, but I am just trying to see if I can find the bad one I gave you among them."

Grocer Was Getting Even.

"That was tit for tat with a vengeance," said Walter Christie, the automobilist, apropos of a quarrel between two French chauffeurs. "It reminds me of a grocer I used to know in Paint Rock. This grocer went over to the jeweler's one day to get a new crystal put on his watch. The latter as he fitted and cleaned the crystal suddenly flushed. He bit his lip and frowned. His hand trembled so that he could hardly go on with his task. Finally, handing the watch to the grocer, the jeweler said in a restrained voice: 'Beg pardon, but didn't I just see you put a couple of rings and a scarfpin in your pocket?'

"'Sure you did,' said the grocer, boldly. 'When you come to my place aren't you always putting things in your mouth?'."

BIG NEW SHOE BUILDING.

It Is Dedicated by the W. L. Douglas Co. at Brockton.

The dedication a short time ago of the new administration and jobbing house building erected by the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. as a part of its mammoth manufacturing plant at Montello was marked by the thoroughness and attention to detail characteristic of the firm in all its undertakings.

The dedicatory program included open house from 11 a. m. to 8 p. m. with concert by the Mace Gay orchestra and the presence of a Boston caterer to attend to the wishes of all. The building itself afforded a feast for the eye, especially the offices, which are marvels in many ways. Fifteen thousand invitations were sent out, including over 11,000 to the retail dealers in the United States who handle the W. L. Douglas Co. shoes, the others going to shoe manufacturers and all allied industries in Brockton and vicinity. Mr. Douglas will be glad to have anybody who is interested call and inspect the new plant, and says "the latch string is always out." All departments of the plant were open for inspection, the three factories as well as the new building, and visitors were received and escorted through the industrial maze by ex-Gov. Douglas, assisted by the heads of the various departments.

Under the present system all shoes are manufactured to order, and customers sometimes lose sales waiting for shoes to arrive. With the new jobbing house they will be enabled to have their hurry orders shipped the same day they are received.

The new building is 260 feet long and 60 feet wide and two stories in height. The jobbing department will occupy the entire lower floor, while the offices will occupy the second floor. The jobbing department will carry a complete stock of men's, boys', youths', misses' and children's shoes, slippers, rubbers and findings equal to any jobbing house in the country. Buyers are especially invited to come here to trade, and every effort possible will be made to suit their convenience. There will be a finely appointed sample room on the second floor, with an office in which both telephone and telegraph will be installed, with operators, both Western Union and Postal Telegraph wires to be used. There will also be arrangements for the receipt and despatch of mail.

Rich Women Have Troubles.

The idea that fashionable women are too busy and had too many interests to feel acute sorrow over their broken crockery was disproved the other day when Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish went into the principal dry goods store in Newport with a friend who stopped to watch a man who was selling cement for cut glass and called to Mrs. Fish: "Oh, here is a cement for cut glass which not only mends it but makes it ring as clearly as if it were new." Mrs. Fish called back: "My servants break so much of my glass now that it is heartbreaking and if they knew it were possible to mend it they would break it all, so I don't care for any, thank you."

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Frankie Orser

Miss Pearl Ackers

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, tumors, ulceration, falling and displacements or perhaps irregularity or suppression, causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Miss F. Orser, of 14 Warrenton Street, Boston, tells women how to avoid such suffering; she writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered misery for several years with female irregularities. My back ached; I had bearing-down pains, and frequent headaches; I could not sleep and could hardly drag around. I consulted two physicians without relief, and as a last resort, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to my surprise, every ache and pain left me. I gained ten pounds and am in perfect health."

Miss Pearl Ackers, of 327 North Summer Street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered with painful periods, severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen; was very nervous and irritable, and my trouble grew worse every month.

"My physician failed to help me and I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found it was doing me good. All my pains and aches disappeared, and I no longer fear my monthly periods."

Lydia E, Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and displacement with all its horrors will no more crush you.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing-down pains, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled, and it will make you strong and well.

You can tell the story of your sufferings to a woman, and receive helpful advice free of cost. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years she has, under her direction and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

AN OLD PAINTER'S IDEAS.

The autumn season is coming more and more to be recognized as a most suitable time for housepainting. There is no frost deep in the wood to make trouble for even the best job of painting, and the general seasoning of the summer has put the wood into good condition in every way. The weather, moreover, is more likely to be settled for the necessary length of time to allow all the coats to thoroughly dry, a very important precaution. An old and successful painter said to the writer the other day: "House owners would get more for their money if they would allow their painters to take more time, especially between coats. Instead of allowing barely time for the surface to get dry enough not to be 'tacky,' several days (weeks would not be too much) should be allowed so that the coat might set through and through. It is inconvenient, of course, but, if one would suffer this slight inconvenience, it would add two or three years to the life of the paint." All this is assuming, of course, that the paint used is the very best to be had. The purest of white lead and the purest of linseed oil unmixed with any cheaper of the cheap mixtures, often known as "White Lead," and oil which has been doctored with fish oil, benzine, corn oil or other of the adulterants known to the trade are used, all the precautions of the skilled painter are useless to prevent the cracking and peeling which make houses unsightly in a year or so and, therefore, make painting bills too frequent and costly. House owner should have his painter bring the ingredients to the premises separately, white lead of some well known reliable brand and linseed oil of equal quality and mix the paint just before applying it. Painting need not be expensive and unsatisfactory if the old painter's suggestions are followed.

FINEST TROUT IN THE WORLD

Found in Small Stream in the High Sierras, Says Expert.

The finest trout in the world, says Dr. Barton W. Evermann of the bureau of fisheries, is to be found in a little stream of the high Sierras in southern California called Volcano creek. The trout is named the "golden trout," and in beauty of coloring gameness and delicacy of flavor it has no equal.

So far as is known, it exists only in this stream, which is about 20 miles in length. President Roosevelt recently called attention of the bureau of fisheries to this unique specimen, with the result that Dr. Evermann was sent to California to study its habits and environment and to see whether it might not be introduced elsewhere.

He reports that the trout is in danger of extermination and that fishing in the stream must be prohibited by the state of California for three years if the trout is to be saved. Dr. Evermann has also recommended that the bureau of fisheries undertake the artificial propagation of the trout and co-operate with the state of California in transplating it to a number of barren streams that can be easily reached.—National Geographic Magazine..

Tigers Tap Rubber Trees.

Near Perak in the Malay peninsula is a prosperous rubber factory run by a long-headed Scotchman. In order to obtain the sap from which the rubber is made it is necessary to puncture the bark of the trees. Laborers are scarce in that district, but there are an abundance of tigers. There were not enough men to "tap" the trees, but the Scotch proprietor hit on a brilliant idea. He knew that tigers are fond of valerian, so he gave orders that all the trees should be rubbed with this stuff. The tigers came up and caressingly scratched the bark in the most approved herringbone fashion, after which all that the coolies had to do was to walk around once a day and collect the rubber.

AN OLD TIMER.

Has Had Experiences.

A woman who has used Postum Food Coffee since it came upon the market 8 years ago knows from experience the necessity of using Postum in place of coffee if one values health and a steady brain.

She says: "At the time Postum was first put on the market I was suffering from nervous dyspepsia and my physician had repeatedly told me not to use tea or coffee. Finally I decided to take his advice and try Postum, and got a sample and had it carefully prepared, finding it delicious to the taste. So I continued its use and very soon its beneficial effects convinced me of its value, for I got well of my nervousness and dyspepsia.

"My husband had been drinking coffee all his life until it had affected his nerves terribly. I persuaded him to shift to Postum and it was easy to get him to make the change for the Postum is delicious. It certainly worked wonders for him.

"We soon learned that Postum does not exhilarate or depress and does not stimulate, but steadily and honestly strengthens the nerves and the stomach. To make a long story short our entire family have now used Postum for eight years with completely satisfying results, as shown in our fine condition of health and we have noticed a rather unexpected improvement in brain and nerve power." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Increased brain and nerve power always follow the use of Postum in place of coffee, sometimes in a very marked manner.

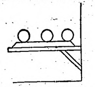
Look in pkgs. for "The Road to Wellville."

POULTRY AND BEES

THE HEN HOUSE.

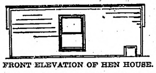
Some Points About the Dimensions and Arrangements of the Well-Appointed Building.

The floor plan of the hen house shown in an illustration taken from Country Gentleman, indicates a building 12 by 14 feet in dimensions. One window in the center in front, which, for appearance sake, might have one large glass in each sash, or to cheapen the cost, smaller panes. The front elevation, in connection with the quartering elevation, shows the finished appearance of the building. The door for entrance at the rear and smaller windows at either end of the building.

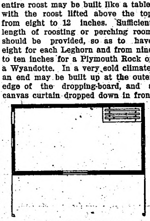


SECTION OF ROOSTS.

The dropping-board may be made in several different ways. This is hung upon a bracket against the wall. Some dropping-boards are fastened with hinges and supported by a wire or a rope on the outer edge. Again, the entire roost may be built like a table, with the roost lifted above the top from eight to 12 inches. Sufficient length of roosting or perching room should be provided, so as to have eight for each Leghorn and from nine to ten inches for a Plymouth Rock or a Wyandotte. In a very cold climate, an end may be built up at the outer edge of the dropping-board, and a canvas curtain dropped down in front at night, which makes what is known as the hooded roost, a protection from the cold weather.



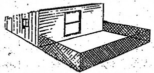
FRONT ELEVATION OF HEN HOUSE.



FLOOR PLAN OF HOUSE.

The roosting poles can be made of round pieces of timber or of a square piece rounded on top. It is not best to compel the poultry to sit upon a flat piece with sharp corners when roosting.

The nests can be placed wherever most suitable and convenient. It is best that they should be up off the ground, and so constructed that the hens can go in them and not be in sight of the other hens in the hen house. Each fowl kept in a building should have four to six square feet of floor space. This house, as described would accommodate from 25 to 30 hens very comfortably. More than this could not be well kept therein.



THE HOUSE WITH RUNWAY.

The size of the runway or yard about the poultry house can be decided in accordance with the space you have to spare. This can be built as plain and cheap as desirable. The cheapest construction would be of 12-inch barn boards, which should be stripped on the outside; a better construction, regular siding nailed on the upright pieces, with a shingle roof, the cheaper construction roof to be covered over with barn boards and tar paper. If the ground is dry, with good drainage, an earth floor is the best. If the ground is not dry, raise the building from the ground and fill in with soil, or put in a cement floor and lay boards on top of the cement.

Legs of Fowls.

It is well for the poultry raiser to keep a close watch of the legs of his fowls. If more would do this the poultry would be saved attacks of the insects that burrow under the scales on the legs and produce what we call "scaly legs." Often the trouble is not realized till the pest has spread all through the poultry yards and most of the fowls are affected. Then some of them have become so bad that it is extremely difficult to cure them. If they are taken in time, a good bath of the legs in a kerosene emulsion or some other insecticide may check the invasion, as the insects will be annihilated. It is not uncommon to find birds so badly affected that their legs have become chalky and in some places are bleeding from the attempts of the fowls to pick off the parasites, which evidently cause intolerable itching. If the legs are as they should be they will be smooth and glossy in appearance, no matter what their color may be.

All creameries use butter color. Why not do as they do—use JUNE TINT BUTTER COLOR.

Mexican Coffee Kaiser's Favorite.

The German emperor is very fond of Mexican coffee, and now drinks none other.

Don't Get Footsore! Get Foot-Ease. A wonderful powder that cures tired, hot, aching feet and makes new or tight shoes easy. Ask to-day for Allen's Foot-Ease. Accept no substitute. Trial package FREE. Address A. S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Intoxicants in Vegetables.

Vegetables not only contain stimulants but are capable of producing an intoxicating influence on those who depend on them exclusively for food, according to an investigator. He cites a case in which some young people of his acquaintance suffered from partial intoxication as the result of a purely vegetable meal.

Sinai, the "Turquois Land."

Sinai was known as the "turquois land" in very ancient times, and Dr. Flinders Petrie believes that it was the first mining center in the world. In his recent book on the subject Dr. Petrie tells of the various expeditions sent to Sinai by the Egyptian government. At the head of the party was the "commander," or "bearer of the seal of the god," the Pharaoh. The official staff consisted of "masters of the house of metals," or assayers, scribes and secretaries, to make inventories of the output of the mines.

SORES ON HANDS.

Suffered for a Long Time Without Relief—Doctor Was Afraid to Touch Them—Cured by Cuticura.

"For a long time I suffered with sores on the hands which were itching, painful and disagreeable. I had three doctors, and derived no benefit from any of them. One doctor said he was afraid to touch my hands, so you must know how bad they were; another said I never could be cured; and the third said the sores were caused by the dipping of my hands in the water in the dye-house where I work. I saw in the papers about the wonderful cures of the Cuticura Remedies and procured some of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. In three days after the application of the Cuticura Ointment my hands began to peel and were better. The soreness disappeared, and they are now smooth and clean, and I am still working in the dye-house. Mrs. A. E. Maurer, 2340 State St., Chicago, Ill., July 1, 1905."

ANYTHING FOR FILTHY LUCRE

Writer's Cynical Justification of Mean Piece of Work.

A certain gifted writer of whom it was once said that he wouldn't recognize his wife if he met her on the street wrote a charming love story not so long ago, and it was printed in a popular magazine. His friends and all those of the circle in which the author moved recognized the story as an exact and recent transcript from the life of the writer, involving a very beautiful young woman, also well known in the same set. One man, coming across the author, took him to task for it.

"What in the world did you write up that affair with Miss Blank for?" he demanded.

The author looked at him unmoved and with the same exquisite calm and clearness that characterized his work, replied:

"I needed the money."

Veterans Rapidly Passing Away.

Veterans of the civil war are dying now at the rate of 100 a day, according to records of the United States pension office. The monthly reports for several months past have shown the death rate among the old soldiers to be in the neighborhood of 3,000 a month. Pension office officials who have watched the figures closely and know the tendency of the death rate are of the opinion that the number of civil war pensioners has reached the maximum and that hereafter each succeeding month will show a decrease.

A WINNING START.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such a condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

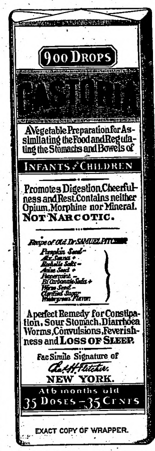
Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

What is Castoria.

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
AVegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion,Cheerfulness and Rest.Contains neither Opium,Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
FacSimile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. F. Gerald Blattner, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "Your Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, always obtaining the desired results."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Drawing the Line.

We have followed the plow, wielded the hoe, served time on the public roads under an austere overseer, swept the backyard, worked the garden, churned the butter, washed the dishes, nursed the baby and performed other various and sundry disagreeable tasks in our times without a murmur, but when it comes to cleaning streets under three lady bosses—excuse us, please. Three women to boss you. Great Caesar's ghost! Just the thoughts of such a catastrophe is enough to give a man the "buck-ague."—Minden (La.) Signal.

The University of Notre Dame, it appears, has some features that can not be duplicated in any other school. It is one of the old, well-established colleges, with settled traditions reaching back sixty-four years, with a distinguished staff of professors and excellent library and laboratory equipment. Its discipline is of the paternal kind—strong without being oppressive; and as it embraces in its scope the grammar school, high school and college work, its appeal is as broad as it is potent. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the famous Indiana University, however, is the fact that it has arrived at its present marvelous development absolutely without endowment. An announcement of the courses provided at Notre Dame appears on another page.

Deaf Women Form Club.

One of the most curious clubs on record has recently been formed by society women in Berlin. The principal condition of membership is that the applicant must be deaf. The club has over a hundred members, who meet regularly once a week in handsomely furnished rooms in the Wilhelmstrasse, where they converse by means of ear trumpets and sign language and drink tea.

Smokers Shown by Handwriting.

Mr. Saunders, a former schoolmaster, told the British house of lords committee on juvenile smoking that he could detect smokers by their handwriting—that of boys who smoked being a loose, flabby kind. Handwriting, he said, was a cinematograph of the heart.

To Launder Hardanger Embroidery.

The popular hardanger embroidery launders beautifully if one knows just how to do it. Whether worked in cotton or silk, do not rub, but dip up and down and squeeze in warm Ivory Soap suds until clean. To dry, spread between coarse towels and roll them up. Iron between cloths until nearly dry, then press on the wrong side. ELEANOR R. PARKER.

Laid Out Like Checker Board.

The country in which the large towns are most nearly equi-distant is Holland. They are at an average distance of 20 miles from one another.

As for life, it is a battle and a sojourning in a strange land; but the fame that comes after is oblivion.—Marcus Aurelius.

Good intentions should be covered with asbestos. You know what's paved with them.

Convenient English.

"We become accustomed to a phrase," observed an educator at a teachers' convention, "but when we introduce a new one along exactly the same lines, it startles the hearer.

"A number of ladies were seated in a hotel parlor, and one of them, commenting on a woman who was standing in the hallway, said:

"'Mrs. Loraine seems unusually happy this morning.'

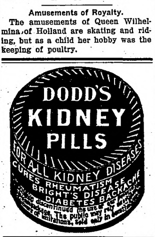
"'Yes,' answered a companion, knowingly, 'the ladies of Newark gave a tea in her honor yesterday. But doesn't her husband look gloomy and dejected?'

"'That is true,' admitted the first speaker. 'I presume the gentlemen of Newark gave a beer in his honor last night.'"

A constable who arrested four men on a country road in England the other day for gambling told the magistrate the men played cards as they walked along, stopping to deal.

Amusements of Royalty.

The amusements of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland are skating and riding, but as a child her hobby was the keeping of poultry.



SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature

Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

A. N. K.—G (1906—33) 2139.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Greatest Boarding College in the World

University of Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA

We guarantee two points: Our students study and our students behave themselves

18 Buildings 75 Professors 800 Students

Courses in Ancient and Modern Languages, English, History, and Economics, Chemistry, Biology, Pharmacy, Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering, Architecture, Law, Shorthand, Book-keeping, Type-writing.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BOYS UNDER THIRTEEN

TERMS: Board, Tuition, and Laundry, $400. Send ten cents to the Secretary for Catalogue

A 300-Page Cook Book Free

We are the publishers of the oldest health journal in the world, GOOD HEALTH. It is a large, monthly magazine for the home, ably edited and handsomely printed and illustrated. It tells how to live to be perfectly well,—how sick people may get well,—how well people may stay well. The regular price is ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

We want you to read a few copies. So we make this special offer:

Send us 50 cents (stamps if you prefer) with this advertisement, and in addition to

GOOD HEALTH for Six Months,

we will send you FREE a copy of Mrs. E. E. Kellogg's new 300-page cook book, "Healthful Cookery." This offer will not appear again.

Good Health Publishing Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

YOU CANNOT

CURE

all inflamed, ulcerated and catarrhal conditions of the mucous membrane such as nasal catarrh, uterine catarrh caused by feminine ills, sore throat, sore mouth or inflamed eyes by simply dosing the stomach.

But you surely can cure these stubborn affections by local treatment with

Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic

which destroys the disease germs, checks discharges, stops pain, and heals the inflammation and soreness.

Paxtine represents the most successful local treatment for feminine ills ever produced. Thousands of women testify to this fact. 50 cents at druggists.

Send for Free Trial Box

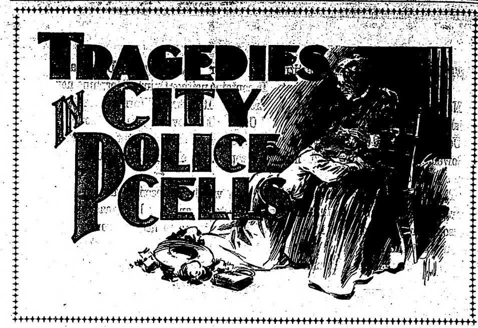
THE R. PAXTON CO., Boston, Mass.

THE DAISY FLY KILLER destroys all the flies and affords comfort to every home. One 20c. box lasts the entire season. Harmless to persons. Clean, neat and will not soil or injure anything. Try them once and you will never be without them. If not kept by dealers, sent prepaid for 20c. Harold Somers, 149 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

DAISY FLY KILLER

WINTER Wheat, 60 bushels per acre. Catalogue and samples FREE. Salzer Seed Co. Box W. K. LaCrosse, Wis.

TRAGEDIES IN CITY POLICE CELLS



Brooklyn.—It was a quiet day in the police station. Brownsville was behaving itself and the matron of the station had a whole hour to talk, with only one interruption to wipe the tears from the eyes of a small, dirty boy, induce him to tell the address of his home and send him on his way under the guidance of a big, strong bluecoat. And the matron, when she talks, has a few things to tell. In fact, Mrs. Cox says, with her good Irish chuckle, that she thinks she will write a book of her experiences to make her rich after she retires from the job of matron. The "boys" have suggested it to her. The "boys" are the bluecoats, every one of whom in Brooklyn, knows Mrs. Cox and has a joke for her or a word of guying when he meets her.

Duties of a Police Matron.

Intoxication is the usual charge upon which the woman prisoner is committed, with occasional charges of theft, of assault, an attempted suicide and now and then a woman whose hands have committed some bigger crime, homicide or infanitcide. Whatever the charge, they all pass through the station house on their way to the jail or the penitentiary, and the matron has them in her care. She gets them fresh from their misdemeanors and with the stain of their crimes new upon them. She is the first and often the only ministering angel they know, for it is to the task of ministering that most of the matrons, womenlike, give themselves, with more heartiness than to the technical tasks of their office.

As I sat in the comfortable little apartment of the matron, flooded with morning sunshine, each of the homely objects in the room, and even the pictures on the walls, seemed to have something to whisper of the stories that have been told in those rooms, of the depravity they have looked upon, of the pitiable wrecks of womanhood they have seen pass through this room to the iron-barred cells beyond. Of some of these crippled creatures and their stories the matron told me. Fourteen years of the life has not calloused her sensibilities but, instead, sharpened her sympathies, and for all the endless stream that comes her way she can listen to each of their stories, pity them and hold out a hand to help if they have not gone too far to be beyond helping. Sometimes the judicious, quick intercession of the matron can do a great deal to check a young offender in the downward course; at any rate, a kind word never hurts even the most lowly.

Young Girls Saved.

One night two young girls were brought into the station house for intoxication, fresh, dainty girls, dressed in the finest of evening gowns, covered with long coats. It was New Year's eve and a bitter cold night. The matron was used to the unusual, but the presence of girls such as these in her lodging house made her stop and wonder. It was only a little while before the sleep of intoxication wore off and the girls woke to the realization of their surroundings and the horror of it. Finally, they were calm enough to tell the matron how it all happened. They had been over to Manhattan to a dance with two boy friends. It was so icy cold that the escorts suggested before they crossed the bridge to take something to warm them, and they stopped in a cafe and drank what the men ordered for them. Unused to taking stimulants, as soon as they struck the cold air out of doors the drinks went to their heads and they knew very little else of what happened until they waked to find themselves in the police station. What had happened was that the two escorts, finding themselves burdened with girls too much intoxicated to know what was happening to them, had opened the door of a tenement house, shoved them in and left them there. The girls had fallen immediately to sleep and one of the occupants of the house stumbling over them, had reported to the police and had them taken to the station. It was a hideous night for those girls, used only to the niceties and refinements of life.

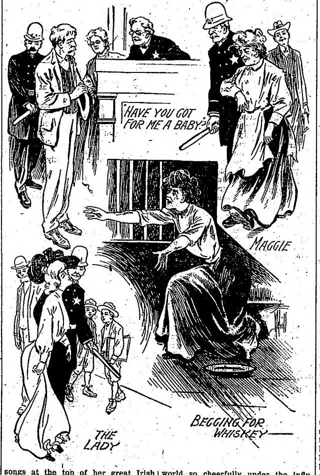
When the next morning came, with its inevitable appearance at court, they pleaded not to be taken in the patrol wagon with the other prisoners and the matron secured the permission of the sergeant to take them to court herself in the car, and arranged for a private hearing before the judge. The circumstances related, the judge let them off with some strong words of admonition. Then the matron took the girls to their home, where they found a mother almost frantic. The matron put in a plea for them and saved them the upbraiding that most parents would have poured forth for such an indiscretion. Now, every Christmas since the happening there comes to the station a gift from those two girls, a bit of their own handiwork, and now and then a letter from their mother, reiterating her appreciation for the saving of her girls.

Maggie a Regular Lodger.

With some of the prisoners the matrons become old friends, for they almost make the station house their regular dwelling place. One of Mrs. Cox's old-timers is an Irish woman, named Maggie, whom everybody in the station house knows. She has been a habitue of station houses for 15 years, and the matrons and sergeants get so they look for her and almost miss her when she doesn't come. She is one of the cheerful drinkers and always comes in with a swagger and a laugh. The matron will greet her with a sort of despairing smile: "Well, Maggie, are you back again?"

"Sure, and ain't you glad to see me? I keep you alive, give you something to live for."

And she does keep things alive, Mrs. Cox admits. She sings her Irish songs at the top of her great Irish voice, and keeps everybody in the station awake with her song. She makes herself perfectly at home in the tiny cubby-hole of a cell and sinks into a sleep as peaceful as a child's when she has exhausted herself with singing. It takes a vigorous effort to make her get up in time for court.



Enlivens Station with Song.

Remonstrance with her is useless, the matrons have learned her long ago. Sometimes they ask her if she isn't ashamed to come so often to the station house, and she always makes the same answer. "No; the city's willing for me to stay here and I'll come as often as I like. It's much more comfortable than home. It's cleaner and I like the electric lights."

She has such a ready good humor and such a spirit of fun that in spite of her waywardness Maggie is rather a favorite in the station and with the judges. After one of her last visits to the police station Maggie pleaded penitence to the judge and promised to walk the straight and narrow path in the future if the judge would let her go. So the magistrate did give her the chance, threatening dire consequences if she appeared before him again soon. The very next night Maggie was brought into the station house with her usual hilarity, but gorgeously arrayed. She made no apologies for her downfall, but explained that when she went from the station house the day before she had found a letter from her sister containing $15. She took $7 of it and bought a new skirt, a new shirt waist and an enormous brass chain; with the other $8 she went to a saloon to come out minus the money and in the custody of a policeman. Once during one of her visits to the station Magige grew despondent. She thought of her two daughters who are placed in a Catholic home, safe from her influence, and she began to brood. She got hold of a string and decided to choke herself with it. To make the thing more effective she called to Mrs. Cox to tell her what she was going to do. The matron was used to Maggie, however, and to threats of suicide, so she answered carelessly: "Go ahead, Maggie, you've no idea how quickly we would get you out of here; get you out much quicker dead than alive, because we don't want any dead ones around here." Whereupon Maggie burst into one of her peals of laughter and declared it was no use committing suicide in the face of such discouragement.

There are only a few that take the world so cheerfully under the influence of drink. Many of the cases that come under the eye of the police matron are of women who have been led to the passion for drink to drown some sorrow, and many of them women used to better ways of living. One day a frail bit of a woman—a mere girl—was brought to the station. Her husband had got out a warrant for her and wanted to have her committed to some institution. Drink had made terrible ravages in the woman's appearance, and when the effects of the whisky began to wear off she sat in her cell clinging with her thin hands to the bars and begging pitifully for drink. Toward dawn the woman collapsed and a hurry call was sent to the hospital. The ambulance surgeon on his arrival had only time to kneel at her side and begin his work before death closed upon her.

Woman's Pitiful Story.

While the woman lay trembling in the cell during the night she had told her story to the woman outside the bars, of how the craving had grown upon her little by little until she lost all power over herself. At 23 she was a hopeless wreck. The closing act of the little tragedy was when the mother came from her home in the country, near New York, and insisted on seeing the place where her girl had died. The matron begged and pleaded with her not to look at the cell; that it would be something she could never forget, but the mother demanded to see it, and as soon as she looked into the bare place, fell in a collapse, and an ambulance had to be called to care for her.

"The lady" was once a figure well known in all the police stations, but "the lady" is one of the figures that has passed, whose life hurried her to a pitiful end before she reached what should have been her prime. The matrons all called her "the lady," because even in her worst days she never looked anything but the lady, was always well dressed and never came to the police station without her well-fitting gloves carefully buttoned, though sometimes she was picked out of the gutter in an almost hopelessly deadened condition. Her story is one that might have been the thread of some of the stories one used to read in the Sunday school libraries, though it comes with much more force to hear the police matron who saw her in the last days of her degradation tell it.

She had spent her girlhood in the country at her father's home upon the Hudson, where they took city boarders in the summer time. The girl was as pretty as a picture, had been carefully reared and well educated. One summer there came the inevitable man from the city that won the heart of the country girl, and they were married and came to Brooklyn to live. All went as happy as a marriage bell for a while. There was a little girl baby after whose coming the young wife was not very strong, and the doctor ordered milk punches every day. The young woman began to like the punches and wanted two instead of one a day, then after a while she began to take the brandy without the milk and soon she found the habit fixed on her strongly. The husband bore with her and did everything that could be done, but things went from bad to worse until the habit fastened itself so that there was first a visit to the police station, and after the first a second and a third.

The woman, whose life had been guarded as carefully as any girl's could be, who had been used in her young days to take nothing stronger than milk or sweet cider, began to become used to the walls of a cell and to bow in abject slavery to the taste of whisky. Sometimes she would plead with the matron to go and intercede with her husband and promise better things, and many a time has Mrs. Cox gone with the plea. Always it was granted and the same result would follow and "the lady" would be back in the station house crazed with drink. The baby girl grew up into a beautiful young woman, who would come after dark to visit her mother in the cell and plead with her. It was like trying to check the north wind. The passion swept down everything in its pathway. One day Mrs. Cox was sent for to come to a consumptive home, and there she found "the lady" in the last stages of the disease. She wanted to say goodby and to offer thanks for the little kindnesses of the old days.

Made Nursery of Station.

One day not long ago a 14-year old girl brought in a dirty little baby and said the child was lost. The baby spent the afternoon peaceably sleeping on the big quilt the matrons keep for the purpose, and about five o'clock a man came in and asked the matron: "Have you got for me a baby?"

The matron assured him that she hoped it was for him; as she was anxious to turn the infant over to somebody. The baby was properly identified and the man started off with it, complacently, when the matron asked where his wife was that she had left the child uncalled for all afternoon. She had gone out, the man answered, and she had telephoned to him at his place of work over in Manhattan to call at the police station on his way home to get the babe. The man was told very plainly that the next time his wife wanted to go shopping she was not to send her baby to the police stations as a nursery.

"Shoplifter" a Puzzle.

The shoplifter is often the puzzle to the matron of the Adams street station. They come in great numbers from the poor, shabby woman, who has stolen a few pairs of socks, or a little frock for her baby, whom she longs to have dressed like the babies of her well-to-do neighbors, to the woman of apparent wealth, who has secreted some seemingly useless trifle. One woman, faultlessly gowned and of undoubted culture and good breeding, who offered $500 not to be made to sleep in a cell had been arrested for taking three pairs of 69-cent gloves. She was indignant at her arrest, but she didn't deny the theft, merely offered to pay for the gloves. That was a case out of many such that Mrs. Boylan recalls from her experiences at the Adams street station, one of the things no one can explain. They call it kleptomania with the rich and thievery with the poor, who, at least, have the prick of necessity to lend palliation to their guilt.

These are the ordinary happenings in the life of the police matron. Their days and nights are a ceaseless round of watching the intoxicated, of standing by to keep the suicide from her intention, of dressing the woman with delirium tremens, who tears her clothes to shreds in the night, of hearing over and over the stories of wretchedness and misery and depravity.

AROUND THE BASES

Veteran Pitcher Talks of Old-Time Playing.

A most interested spectator of the Pittsburg-Philadelphia game recently was Charles Esper, a famous left handed pitcher of ten years or more ago.

Esper was so speedless that he was called "Slow Go Charley." Even if Esper didn't have swift pitches he was successful. He floated the oval up to scores of batsmen who in their eagerness to drive it over the fence often made feeble hits.

Esper was most successful against sluggers. Jacob Pulvermacher Beckley, the big first baseman, admitted his inability to fathom the "slows" of Esper. When Esper was with the Baltimore club he made such a show of "Eagle Eye" that the Pittsburg management traded Beckley to New York while a game was going on. Beckley heard of the swap in the third inning and at once left the field.

Esper was much interested in the slab work of Albert Leifield, Pittsburg's big boy.

"Do you know," said he, "that in my day I had more speed than Leifield."

WILLIAM J. BRADLEY
THIRD BASEMAN-CLEVELAND (A.L.) CLUB.

An up to date baseball man heard his remark, and responded:

"Yes, but the bunting game was not so strong in your time. If it had been you would have been driven to cover day after day. The modern sluggers have done away with slow pitching nowadays."

Baseball as Played in the Bush Leagues.

This is the way a Britt (Iowa) Tribune sporting writer expresses himself concerning the American national game:

The Humboldt aggregation of globe bunters came up on Tuesday, and on account of the fact that some of our boys were still convalscent from a severe attack of spring fever that has left them emaciated and lacking in knee action, beat our nine, 3 to 1. The Humbugs had good advantage, as they were very limber jawed and their nerve centers were set high above possible jar.

The thing opened up by a superlative lambaste on the outer surface of the spherical projectile, coming into juxtaposition at a slight curvature to its center of gravity at a critical moment, lifted this object in a "curved plane," describing a parabola in the atmosphere contrary to the laws of gravitation, far out in center field, and removed a very dense wad of six-ply lethargy from the point in our boys where the nerves of energy and the cords of inertia had become crossed.

It was very beneficial through the next six innings that this swat was made early, as the return to somnambulance could be made later in case the outcome would warrant, and it wouldn't. Britt got in a run along in the middle of the game that looked quite large at the time, and does yet, as it removes the possibility of being charged up with the nest containing the oval of a goose.

By quiet jugglery and an almost indescribable tintinnabulation of his pedal extremities forming a double bowknot of his legs and doubling himself through the aperture in the loop of the knot with lightning rapidity, one of our Britt boys succeeded in grasping a large piece of atmosphere and holding to it firmly until a couple of scores were tallied a little later on, but he let go in time for the gentleman from Hamburg with the elongated facial aperture to emit enough fresh warm atmosphere to amply replace what our man had so deftly secured, so it was a standoff on wind, but a loss on score in that inning.

By hard and scientific playing our boys succeeded in getting nothing in the later innings, so that the score was not run up on the visitors as it might have been had there been heavier field work and less scientific contortion. It was a good game, barring errors and temporary aberration throughout.

Umpire Charged with Making Bets on Game.

Formal charges that Umpire Owens, of the American association placed bets on the Minneapolis-Columbus games, the latter to win, for the benefit of a gambling combine in which he was interested, have been preferred by Secretary Lidiard, of the Minneapolis Baseball association. This is the result of the decisions which provoked riotous demonstrations at American association games at Minneapolis recently.

The Minneapolis management has been working on the case ever since, and has now secured affidavits from three well-known gamblers that they had an understanding with the umpire whereby they advisedly bet on Columbus. One affidavit states that on the occasion of the game of July 18 he put up money and paid a commission of 25 per cent. to the empire. Two other affiants swear they put up $200 of Owens' money, who gave them a commission of 25 per cent. for placing it.

Duplicate copies of the charges and affidavits have been mailed to President J. D. O'Brien, of the American association, but the matter has been placed for action in the hands of August Herrmann, of Cincinnati, chairman of the national baseball commission. By appealing directly to the highest authority in the sport the Minneapolis association expects prompt and decisive action.

Umpire Owens has denied the charge preferred against him. He says the charge is false in every particular; that he did not bet on the games and he denies that he has any connection whatever with a gambling combine.

Directors of the American association at Chicago cleared Umpire Owens of betting on ball games and then turned its batteries on the Minneapolis baseball club. The censure of the persons back of the charges against Owens were veiled in legal phraseology, but contained enough of covert threats to make the franchise of the present owners of the Minneapolis club insecure. In a resolution unanimously adopted President O'Brien, of the association, was directed to proceed immediately to determine who are the guilty party or parties, and to report to the board. Umpire Owens asserted after the meeting that he would sue the Minneapolis club and officials for $100,000 damages.

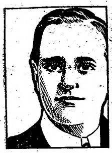
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. VI. SUNBEAM, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, AUG. 24, 1906. NO. 21.

From Nation's Capital

Interesting Gossip of Men and Events at Washington—Promotion for President's Faithful Assistant—Social Revolt Planned by White House Bride—Other Happenings.



WASHINGTON.—The first Oklahoma man to receive a federal appointment since the admission of the new state into the union is Maurice C. Latta, the president's favorite stenographer, who has been made assistant private secretary to succeed B. F. Barnes, the new postmaster of this city. Mr. Latta has been an assistant of Private Secretary Loeb for about five years, so the appointment does not mean much to him aside from an official title and an increase in salary of $1,200 a year. Util his elevation to the postmastership Barnes drew the $3,000 salary, while Latta did most of the work.

The new assistant secretary is a modest retiring chap. He is over six feet in height, smooth shaven, has strong features and a good eye. Latta was a clerk in the general land office in Oklahoma when John Addison Porter, private secretary for President McKinley, called on Secretary of the Interior Bliss for one of the latter's expert men to help out with the heavy White House mail. Latta was summoned to fill the gap, and his work so pleased the White House officers that he was kept there.

President Roosevelt began dictating his speeches to Latta, and he liked the tall, silent man so well that he began using him as his regular amanuensis. When the president had to read and study at night, in the preparation of a speech, he would have Latta at his side taking notes.

Latta always accompanies the president on the latter's trips about the country. Whenever Mr. Roosevelt delivers an address of a public character Latta will be found within a few feet of him, taking notes of the speech. These speeches, of course, are always prepared in advance. Latta holds one copy in his hand, with a notebook and ink, ready to record interpolated remarks or changes in the original text. Latta's copy becomes the official report of the speech, which is preserved at the White House.

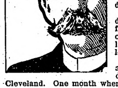
ALICE WILL TRY TO RETAIN RANK.

According to Dame Gossip the coming winter will see changes in the time-bound etiquette of social life in the capital that will cause consternation among the old-timers. It seems that Mrs. Alice Longworth has already declared herself, and her social campaign as a matron is already mapped out. Needless to say, absolute independence characterizes her attitude. One fruit of her trip abroad is her new-born conviction that a married woman should retain her "rank" as her father's daughter, and not fall to her husband's level.

As the case now stands, Mrs. Longworth is one of a throng, a mere ant in the social hill, and she ranks not as the daughter of the head of the nation but as the wife of a minor representative in congress. She must be subservient to tradition, and her duties are mapped out by social laws rigid as those of the Medes and Persians.

When Mrs. Longworth returned from her honeymoon she calmly declined to make or to receive calls, alleging that the season was practically over, and that she dates her new position from the beginning of the next congressional term.

HE PAID THE PRESIDENT.



There died at the Georgetown University hospital the other day a man who for some time has enjoyed a unique distinction. This man was William R. Padgett and on the last day for many months, up to the time of his fatal illness, he was a regular caller at the White House with the warrant for the president's salary. Padgett was an employe of the treasurer's office.

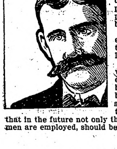
President Roosevelt gets his salary the last day of each month in the shape of a check.

The president's salary of $50,000 a year is divided into eight checks of $4,166.67 each and four checks of $4,166.66 each. Two months out of every three the president gets a check for the larger sum and the other month he gets one cent less on his check.

This has been the custom for many years and a mistake was never made but once. That was during the second administration of President Cleveland. One month when his check should have been $4,166.67, the bookkeeper made it out for only $4,166.66. When the books were balanced at the end of the fiscal year it was found that the president was due one cent by the government. The officials, with great solemnity, made out a check on the United States treasurer for this amount and forwarded it to Mr. Cleveland.

Because it was the smallest sum a warrant was ever drawn for upon the government it was kept as a souvenir and was never presented. If the former president desires to do so at any time it will be promptly cashed.

PRINTING OFFICE OFFICIAL OUSTED.

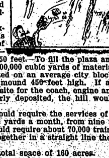


The man who was the immediate cause of the issuance by the president of the order declaring the government printing office and all places where workmen are employed by the government to be "open shops," has been discharged from the public service. He is W. A. Miller, and for the past six years has been assistant foreman of the bindery in the government printery.

While the charge against Miller was insolence and insubordination, it is generally believed that he was ousted through the efforts of the labor organization which he defied.

Miller first came into public notice in 1903 when the employes of the printing office demanded his discharge for alleged arrogance in conduct, but primarily because he had abandoned membership in the bookbinders' union. Miller was suspended at the time, but the president directed that he be reinstated, and subsequently ordered that in the future not only the printing office, but all departments where workmen are employed, should be "open shops."

NEW DEPOT NEARING COMPLETION.



The new union station, which when completed, will be the finest in the country, is fast nearing completion. The engineers in charge of the extensive operations have attacked the difficult problems that confronted them from three different points, and are working on the terminal depot, the north approach and the south approach at the same time. The extensive tunneling, bridging and filling necessary for the approaches is well under way. The concrete foundations for the building, which are about 45 feet deep, have been placed, and the material for filling in between them has been delivered. The granite and brick work of the east end of the building is almost finished.

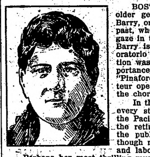
The amount of material and the extensive excavation necessary in the work of construction is extraordinary. The filling within the limits of the terminal amounts to 900,000 cubic yards—[illegible] enough to cover an acre lot to a depth of over 550 feet. To fill the plaza and raise adjacent streets to the new grade, about 1,000,000 cubic yards of material will be required. If all this filling were deposited on an average city block, the sides beink kept vertical, it would form a mound 450 feet high. If all the material which will be moved to prepare the site for the coach, engine and shop yards—about 2,500,000 yards—were similarly deposited, the hill would be as high as the Washington monument.

To excavate this vast amount of material would require the services of a steam shovel, moving an average of 25,000 cubic yards a month, from nine to ten years. To move it to the place of deposit would require about 70,000 trains of 12 cars each. Should these cars be coupled together in a straight line they would cover a distance of over 600 miles.

The terminal improvements will occupy a total space of 160 acres.

Idle Tales from Boston

Noted Oratorio Singer Who Is Living in Retirement in This City—Winthrop Circus Declared a Success—Millionaire Silk Manufacturer Teaching a Sunday School at Holyoke.



BOSTON.—Probably many readers of the older generation will remember Mrs. Flora E. Barry, one of the greatest oratorio singers of the past, who is living in retirement from the public gaze in this city. Among American singers Mrs. Barry is the repository of the true tradition of oratorio singing. In her prime a choral association was to be found in almost every city of importance in the country. The popularity of "Pinafore" had not yet started the craze for amateur opera, and local singers practiced and sang the chorus parts of the great oratorios.

In the bygone days Mrs. Barry sang in nearly every state in the union, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Old Mexico. In the retirement from the strenuous existence of the public singer she finds great enjoyment, though many interests demand from her thought and labor.

Perhaps her most thrilling musical experience was just after the close of the war, when she sang in Baltimore five times in a single evening the ballad in 12 verses, "The Flag's Come Back to Tennessee." Veterans were moved to tears by the pathos of her singing.

In Boston she sang in the two great jubilees to celebrate the return of peace to a reunited country.

In the course of one jubilee she sang with the great Parepa-Rosa. This famous singer was a woman of gigantic frame. Afterward Mme. Rosa sang in the opera of "Martha," appearing in short skirts. Mrs. Barry is still amused at the memory of the picture presented by this enormous woman, weighing 250 pounds or thereabout, in the short skirts of "Martha."

Mrs. Barry believes there has been a decline in vocal art in America, caused in some measure by the strain placed upon the voice by the gradual heightening of pitch. The piano manufacturer, in the effort to obtain brilliancy of tone, has pushed the pitch up and up, until to-day pitch is a tone higher than it was when Handel wrote his oratorios.

In recent years America has adopted French pitch—a half tone lower than that previously in use, but a tone higher than Handel's.

Another reason for our decline in vocal music, says Mrs. Barry, is the unwillingness of the American student to devote sufficient time to study and practice.

AMATEUR CIRCUS IS A SUCCESS.

The big amateur circus which recently came to a close at Winthrop has been voted a great success. The circus was presented under the direction of the Winthrop yacht club and was well attended by the colony of actors who are resting for the summer in that locality.

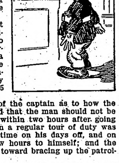
Richard Golden was ring master for the concluding performance and was met with a shower of applause as he entered the ring, that spoke well of his popularity with the residents of the town. Although the weather was disagreeable, as real circus weather generally is, the tent was filled to its utmost, many standing in the opening of the entrance.

The Tenth band artillery corps played the opening overture and were loudly applauded. The Marvelous Melville came next in a sensational aerial act and was also the recipient of an ovation.

The real fun, however, began when Charles G. Bird, the popular secretary of the club, came on with his centaurs, or hobby horses. It appeared that the quadrupeds tired of having to follow the bidding of the man with the whip and turned on their master. When he ordered them to sit up they jumped on him instead and fairly mobbed him. They rolled him in the sawdust and showed him that they were real romping, fiery, thoroughbreds as they reared about him. He finally managed to escape from his educated equines.

The Happy Hooligans also came in for a good share of real fun among themselves, and buckets of water were plentifully used. They drenched each other whenever the fire alarm was sounded by one of the clowns yelling "Fire!"

MORE WORK FOR NAUGHTY COPS.



36 HOURS FOR YOU!

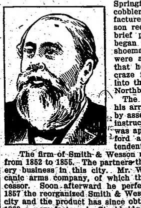
A new system of punishment for delinquent policemen is on trial here. Police Commissioner O'Meara, when he took office on June 1, let it be known that he proposed to see that all policemen performed their full duty and that such of them as failed to do so would be punished, but that he would try to punish the men instead of making their families suffer, as would be the case if he fined them.

He gave the policemen fair notice that if it became necessary to punish any of them for failure to patrol their posts properly, he intended to do it by making them do extra duty for a certain number of hours, the amount of the extra duty being regulated by the seriousness of the offense. The policemen took notice of this warning, especially after a patrolman was found guilty of not properly patrolling and sentenced to do 35 hours extra duty as a penalty.

The commissioner left it to the discretion of the captain as to how the patrolman should work out the fine, but provided that the man should not be required to do any part of the extra patrolling within two hours after going off duty, nor within two hours of the time when a regular tour of duty was to begin. The policeman had to work out his time on his days off, and on days when he otherwise would have had a few hours to himself; and the example which was made of him has done much toward bracing up the patrolmen.

The city has had the benefit of 35 hours extra patrolling, and, most important of all, next to the impression the new system has made on the department, the delinquent has had to undergo a penalty which got to him as the loss of even a month's pay would not have done. It is understood now by every member of the department that if he shirks work it means that he will have to do a good many extra hours of duty. The consequence is that Boston never had more faithful patrolling than it is getting now

FROM COBBLER'S SON TO MILLIONAIRE.



The rise of Daniel Wesson, who died at Springfield the other day, from the son of a poor cobbler to that of a multi-millionaire pistol manufacturer, is interesting. As a boy young Wesson received but a scanty education and after a brief period of work on his father's farm, he began at 17 years of age to learn the trade of a shoemaker. His brothers, Rufus and Marlin, were already in the business. Daniel resolved that he would not become a shoemaker. His craze for firearms resulted finally in his going into the gunshop of his elder brother, Edwin, at Northboro.

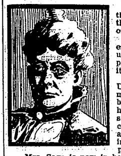
The story is told that within a few hours after his arrival, he proved his right to be a gunsmith by assembling all the parts of a new gun without instruction from his older brother, to whom he was apprenticed. In 1848, Edwin moved to Hartford and Daniel accompanied him as superintendent.

The firm of Smith & Wesson manufactured revolvers in Norwich, Conn., from 1852 to 1855. The partners then separated, Mr. Smith going into the livery business in this city. Mr. Wesson was soon connected with the Volcanic arms company, of which the Winchester Arms company is the successor. Soon afterward he perfected the Smith & Wesson cartridge. In 1857 the reorganized Smith & Wesson started a factory with 25 hands in this city and the product has since obtained world-wide fame for the makers. In 1860 a new factory in Stockbridge street was built, and from 1870 to 1874 the firm supplied the Russian army with 200,000 revolvers. In 1874 Mr. Wesson bought out Horace Smith, but the firm name has remained the same.

Since 1860 the capacity of the factory has trebled and 60,000 revolvers are now made each year. An important invention by Mr. Wesson was a safety device on the handle of his revolvers.

Latest Gossip of Gotham

What Will Mrs. Russell Sage Do with Her Immense Fortune?—Heavy Sacrifice of a Society Woman for a Husband—Thaw's New Counsel a Bridge Whist Expert.



NEW YORK.—There is considerable speculation as to what Mrs. Russell Sage will do with the fortune left her by the famous money lender of Wall street.

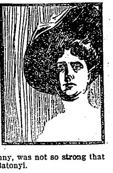
It has long been known that she is interested in philanthrophy, higher education and the uplifting of the poverty-stricken. She has taken part, unknown to the world, in many of the charitable projects of Miss Helen Gould.

Russell Sage was afraid of her generosity. Until the old millionaire became physically and mentally unable to give personal attention to his business he was the sole arbiter of expenses in his household. He audited and paid the bills of servants, of the grocer and of the butcher, because he feared to trust his wife with an allowance for household expenses lest any call appealing to her charitable instincts might empty his purse.

Mrs. Sage is now in her seventy-seventh year. She was born Olivia Slocum, at Syracuse, N. Y., and reared in comfort. She was popular at school and was a successful school-teacher. She taught during the war in Philadelphia. In 1869, at the age of 40, she married Russell Sage, whose first wife had been one of her dearest friends.

Mrs. Sage is very fond of animals and loves to feed the birds and squirrels in the park, having succeeded in saving them from the bitter cold upon more than one occasion. She took very good care of her husband and could persuade him to do things that no one else could. Her maids and men have been in her service for terms of 20 and 30 years, which shows how considerately she treats them, and every one with whom she is in any way associated loves and admires her

MRS. BURKE-ROCHE DISOWNED BY FATHER.

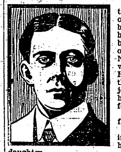


If the rumors recently heard in society circles are correct Mrs. Fanny Burke-Roche made a heavy financial sacrifice when she married Aurel Batonyi, the professional whip and manager of her Middletown farm. It is said that her father, Frank Work, has cut off her monthly allowance which has never been less than $5,000, and that he has denied his daughter the use of his estate at Newport. Heretofore this has been his daughter's home during the season.

Mr. Work's displeasure with his daughter has been evident ever since her marriage with Batonyi was announced. He did not know of the wedding until nearly a year after it occurred, friends of the daughter say. She told him of it, and then only a few hours before taking ship with her husband.

Mr. Work always had insisted that no foreigners were to be admitted into the family. Even his love and affection for his favorite daughter, Fanny, was not so strong that she dared tell him of her approaching marriage to Batonyi.

OLD CHUM TO DEFEND THAW.



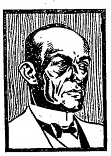
The last batch of documents and reports obtained by Ex-Gov. Black's law firm, who were originally employed to defend young Thaw, have been turned over to Clifford Hartredge, and he has taken complete charge of the young Pittsburg millionaire's case. "Clif" Hartredge is an old boon companion of Thaw. He appeared in New York direct from Yale in the fall of 1887, with a fine record as an oarsman at "Old Eli." He was a member of two of the famous crews that bore the "dark blue" to victory. When he joined the D. K. E. club, on Fifth avenue, Manhattan, the older members developed a sincere fondness for the tall young Georgian.

He hailed from Savannah, originally, and his family is one of the best known in their state.

He entered the office of Judge Russell, son-in-law of Henry Hilton, and several years after his admission to the bar married the judge's daughter.

Counselor Hartredge is one of the best bridge players in the metropolis and was distinguished for his expertness in whist prior to the advent of the more modern game. In his bachelor days he spent much time at the D. K. E. club, and was a stanch fraternity man. At that time Calvin S. Brice was a frequent visitor at the club, and Theodore Roosevelt, after his defeat for mayor, looked in occasionally. Roosevelt was a "Dickey" man at Harvard.

"PAT" M'CARREN IN TROUBLE.



"Pat" McCarren, Democratic "boss" of Brooklyn, state senator and reputed representative of the oil trust, is used to vilification by the press and campaign orators and doesn't mind it.

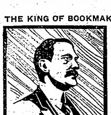
But he has real troubles now. A woman is after him.

The tall, lanky, taciturn man known as "Long Pat" is to be assailed by two suits brought before Justice Cochran in Brooklyn. These suits have been withheld from the public because the complainant, a woman, who says she supposed she was McCarren's common law wife, has hoped for a settlement. She is said to make the charge of cruelty and neglect. One of the "exhibits" is a baby, whom the woman has christened "Patrick H. McCarren, Jr."

In the first suit the woman alleges she was induced to live with McCarren without going through the ceremony of marriage on the ground that a verbal agreement constituted a common law marriage. She asks for $200,000 damages. In the second suit she charges McCarren with having attacked her, and she asks for $3,000 and a weekly payment of $500 and nurse expenses, which she says McCarren offered her in settlement.

McCarren has not deigned even to answer the charge. His friends refuse to believe the woman's story.

THE KING OF BOOKMAKERS.



George Rose, of Brooklyn, is known throughout the horse racing world as the king of bookmakers. "Gentleman George," as he is called by the regulars at the race tracks, handles from $75,000 to $120,000 a day. This money passes through his hands and those of his two cashiers during the two and a half hours devoted each racing afternoon to speculation.

Rose has made a fortune as a bookmaker and is known to be worth $600,000. This money did not come to him suddenly, but by long years of hard work. In 12 years he has had only one vacation—last season, when he took a three months' trip abroad with his wife. During every other racing day he was hard at work at the various race tracks of the country.

Rose never visited a race track until he was past man's estate. A friend took him to the old Brighton Beach track, and he was so fascinated by the sport that in quick succession he became a mild plunger and a horse owner. He soon tired of both ends of the game, and shortly after he had received $15,000, his share of his father's estate, he branched out as a bookmaker.

Fortune was not kind to him at first, and he lost every dollar he had. He worked hard as a clerk, saved up $1,000, and again tried his luck. This time he met with success, and ten years ago he began to accumulate his present fortune.

The fever to own racehorses again came over him about eight years ago, and he bought and leased a number, the best known of which were Tea Rose, Torsina, Geyser, Nephew, Tiger and Geraldine. While he had some of these horses at the old Bay District track in San Francisco, he recognized that "Tod" Sloan was a great rider, and long before that jockey gained an international reputation, Rose gave him mounts when other owners refused to do so.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

EARTHQUAKE RUINS CAPITAL OF CHILI

VALPARAISO LAID WASTE, MANY PEOPLE BEING KILLED BY FALLING WALLS.

Meager Details Indicate Horror of San Francisco Has Been Repeated, Flames Breaking Out Immediately After the Shock.

New York, Aug. 18.—An earthquake is reported to have laid waste the City of Valparaiso, Chili, and the reports received here make it appear that the disaster will prove to be second only to that which visited San Francisco in destruction of life and property.

Information comes in fragments. One report that has gained credence has it that following the first shock fire started in the city and that hundreds of the inhabitants already have perished in the flames.

Fire in Several Places.

It is asserted in one dispatch that prior to the spreading of the flames many persons lost their lives under the falling ruins of buildings shaken from their foundations by the first shock of earthquake.

The earthquake interrupted cable facilities to lower South American points, and communication early in the day was restricted to the route via Lisbon.

Telegraph Is Working.

At noon Friday the Central and South American Telegraph company reestablished its main office in Valparaiso, and it is working with that city now. This would seem to show that conditions are not as serious as at first reported.

Valparaiso is in a marked earthquake belt. The city was partly destroyed in 1855 by a seimic shock, and many people lost their lives. In 1880 another earthquake visited the city and caused considerable damage, though the loss of life was insignificant.

Poor Building Construction.

There have been shocks of less violent nature in other years. The recurring disturbances have caused some of the residents of the city to build with a view to earthquake resistance, but in the main the town's structures outside of the business center are frail. In one densely populated section the streets are tortuous and narrow and the dwellings are so built as to offer weak resistance to an earth disturbance.

City Resembles Frisco.

In view of the visit of the earthquake so closely following the San Francisco disaster it is interesting to note that the formation of the land and the surroundings of Valparaiso are similar to those of San Francisco. The climate also is almost identical with that of the California city.

In addition to the fear of earthquakes the Valparaiso people are in constant dread of storms, which sweep in suddenly and frequently from the sea. Some of the most violent storms have been coincident with earthquake shocks, and the possibility that the two disturbances are allied in origin is a matter in which science is interested.

Business Is Suspended.

A private cable dispatch to W. R. Grace & Co., from Valparaiso, received by way of Lima, Peru, says that the earthquake in Valparaiso was severe and that business in the city has been totally suspended.

Many Houses Destroyed.

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 18.—The newspapers publish telegrams from Mendoza (which is an trepot for the trade between Buenos Ayres and Chili, with which it communicated by the mountain passes of Uspalata and Portillo) to the effect that many houses in Los Andes district were destroyed by the earthquake, and that there have been a large number of casualties.

LABOR FAMINE IN NORTHWEST

Agriculture and Industrial Sections Loudly Call for Help.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 18.—Scarcity of labor is the cry all over the northwest from the head of the lakes to the wheat fields of the Dakotas, where the demand has reached a critical stage.

In many cases the farmers are offering from $2.50 to $3 per day and board and have not more than 50 per cent. of the labor they require. The same conditions are being experienced in all lines of industry, including the railroads, contractors and miners both on the range and in the copper country.

BUFFALO TREASURER SET FREE

Charge of Grand Larceny in "Graveyard" Scandal Does Not Hold.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Fred O. Murray, collector of customs, and former deputy county treasurer, was acquitted Thursday of the charge of grand larceny in connection with the "graveyard" scandal, by which the county was mulcted out of many thousands of dollars. When the state closed its case against Murray the court directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the ground that no evidence had been introduced to sustain the indictment.

Lowden for Congress.

Freeport, Ill., Aug. 17.—Col. Frank O. Lowden was nominated for congress Thursday by Republicans of this district to succeed Congressman Robert Hitt, who was not a candidate for reelection.

SCORES KILLED IN WARSAW

TERRORISTS ARE DEFYING POLICE AND TROOPS.

Bombs Exploded in and Near City—Government Forced to Repressive Measures.

Warsaw, Aug. 18.—Scores are dead in this city as the result of ceaseless activity on the part of the terrorists. Bomb-throwing continues in spite of police and the thousands of troops stationed here.

The police admit 150 persons have been wounded by bombs and bullets, and that 31 police and soldiers have been slain and 18 wounded in recent fighting. Fifteen citizens have been killed, 70 severely wounded and 95 slightly wounded.

Bands of armed terrorists made bold attacks and appeared to have an unlimited supply of bombs. They threw them at processions, soldiers, police and into police stations and vodka shops.

The people are keeping within doors and the streets are almost deserted by civilians.

The prevalence of agrarian strikes and disorders has impelled Premier Stolypin to send another circular to the provincial authorities, directing them to spare no efforts to suppress them and prevent their repetition. M. Stolypin demands increased vigilance on the part of the administrative officials and police and rural guards. He recommends especially the adoption of measures to ascertain the identity of the trouble-makers who are to be arrested and dealt with administratively.

MISSIONARY WORK NEGLECTED

Church Followers Said to Waste Money on Dress and Tobacco.

London, Aug. 16.—The Rev. Dr. Robert Forman Horton created a sensation at the Free church convention at Harrowgate Wednesday by declaring that missionary work was making the smallest headway owing to the indifference of the church at home, thousands of Christians and many ministers spending more on tobacco and dress than on missions. Yet, he said, some work had been accomplished abroad that was finer than anything recorded in the Acts of the Apostles. The Chinese martyrs, he declared, were as great as any who perished in the Diocletian persecutions.

LAUNCH BOOM FOR UNCLE JOE

Danville Convention Urges Nomination for President.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 17.—Speaker Cannon's boom for the presidency was launched here Thursday when the speaker was renominated for congress by acclamation by the Republican congressional convention of the Eighteenth district.

In accepting the nomination for congress, Mr. Cannon made a long speech, which sounded the party slogan for the coming campaign. The speaker extolled the record of the Republican party and pointed to the nation's prosperity as a justification of its continuance in office.

DYNAMITE BLOW-UP IN MEXICO

Laborers and Bystanders Blown to Atoms in Explosion.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 16.—It is reported here that 30 to 50 Mexican laborers and bystanders were killed Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 at Chihuahua, Mex., by the explosion of a carload of dynamite on the Mexican Central railroad. The car was being transferred for the Robinson mine at Santa Eulalia. Bodies and pieces of human flesh were hurled into the air and picked up a mile distant. Windows were broken at almost every house in town and many walls were cracked. Several American foremen are reported killed.

EARTHQUAKES CAUSE ANXIETY

Fifty-One Distinct Shocks on St. Lucia in Eight Hours.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, Aug. 17.—An earthquake was experienced here the night of August 14 and several shocks and tremors were felt on the Island of St. Lucia. There were four shocks here the night of August 2 and on the Island of St. Lucia, within the space of eight hours there were 51 distinct shocks. The continuous nature of the earth tremors since the severe shock of last February, chiefly in St. Lucia, is causing considerabel anxiety.

MAKE DEMAND ON ROOSEVELT

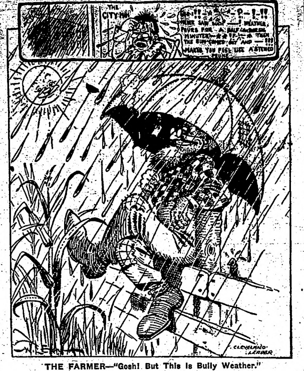
Tennessee Republicans Declare President Must Be Candidate in 1908.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 15.—The Republican congressional convention of the Tenth district unanimously nominated Harry B. Anderson for congress Tuesday.

It went on record with a demand upon Theodore Roosevelt to become the Republican candidate for president again in 1908, declaring him to be the prophet of the party and incidentally severely criticized the policy of the Democratic party in Tennessee.

Well Known Broker Dies.

Cincinnati, Aug. 17.—Pitts H. Burt, a broker and brother of Gen. S. Burt, U. S. A., retired, died at his home in this city, aged 69 years. He was manager for Dominick & Dominick, held the first certificate in the Cincinnati Stock exchange, and was widely known.



THE CITY MAN
GEE!!—&—?—!—!! NEVER SAW SUCH ——! WEATHER, POURS FOR A HALF AN HOUR, MINUTES——!!——* THEN THE SUN COMES OUT AND ——!!! MAKES YOU FEEL LIKE A STEWED PRUNE
CLEVELAND LEADER

THE FARMER—"Gosh! But This Is Bully Weather."

FILL NEGRO'S BODY WITH LEAD PELLETS

SOUTH CAROLINA MOB AVENGES BRUTAL ATTACK WITH KNIFE ON WHITE GIRL.

Governor Appeals to Mob to Spare Life of Black Who Had Been Identified by His Victim, But Effort Proves in Vain.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 17.—Within the shadow of the home of his victim, Miss Jennie Brooks, after having been identified by her, and after Gov. D. C. Heyward, who went to the scene of the trouble, had addressed the mob in vain, "Bob" Davis the negro who on Tuesday murderously attacked Miss Brooks with intent to commit assault, and who afterwards outraged a negro girl 14 years old, was lynched at Greenwood about 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

Cheers for Governor.

Gov. Heyward reached the scene shortly after the negro had been captured. A platform was erected in a fence corner on the premises of the victim's father, from which platform Gov. Heyward addressed the mob in an effort to prevent the lynching. The governor beseeched the mob not to lynch Davis, but in vain. At the conclusion of his speech the governor was vociferously cheered.

Riddle Negro's Body.

The mob then removed the prisoner from the view of the governor and within a short distance of the home of his victim the negro was riddle with bullets.

It is impossible to estimate the crowd, as citizens from several counties had gathered at the scene and for two days had been in pursuit of the negro, but it is certain that hundreds of bullets were sent through his body.

Story of the Crime.

The assault by Davis on Miss Brooks was made Tuesday in her father's store, where she was temporarily in charge. After making some purchases the negro grasped a meat knife, shouting, "You are what I want," and sprang toward the girl. Miss Brooks attenpted to defend herself with an iron bar, but the negro slashed her across the throat, making a gash four inches long, and almost severed two of her fingers.

Assaults Negro Girl.

Afterward he went three miles to another farm and outraged a 14-year-old negress. A posse of a thousand men started in pursuit of the negro soon after the outrage at the Brooks store, and finally captured him Thursday afternoon, near Ninety-Six, a town nine miles from Greenwood.

KEEP HANDS OFF THE CANTEEN

Grand Army Declines to Take Action in the Matter.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—The Grand Army of the Republic completed its fortieth encampment late Friday and adjourned to meet in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1907.

The encampment, after an exciting debate, decided that a protest against the erection of a statue to Henry Wirz should be sent to Gen. S. D. Lee, the commander of the Southern Veterans' association.

The proposition to deprecate the action of congress in abolishing the canteen from the Old Soldiers' homes was laid on the table without debate.

Another Chicago Bank Closed.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—As an echo of the crash of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank, the Garfield Park bank closed its doors Thursday at noon. Deposits approximating $100,000 indicate the extent of the failure to the community on the West Side.

Fireworks Explosion Kills Score.

New York, Aug. 17.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from Rio Janeiro says: A Bahia fireworks factory exploded here and 21 men were killed.

TRADE STILL ON UP GRADE

NEW HIGH MARK MADE IN SOME LINE EACH WEEK.

Bright Outlook Is Enhanced by Abundant Crops, Demand for Steel and Plenty of Work for All.

New York, Aug. 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, says:

Abundant crops and an oversold steel industry engender sentiments of confidence that make the outlook bright for a continuance of present prosperous business conditions. Each week brings a new high water mark in some department and the net result is uniformly better than for the corresponding week in any previous year. The weather has favored both crops and the distribution of merchandise, while the latter is increased by seasonable bargain sales. Despite unprecedented preparations for business by liberal purchase of rolling stock, the railways are facing a serious blockade that cannot be avoided when the crops begin to move freely. Earnings thus far reported for August were 11.7 per cent. larger than last year.

Some damage by storms was reported, but of local effect only, and a more significant factor was the further voluntary advance in wages at textile mills. No relief appears as to the supply of labor, production being reduced in some cases where consumers are most urgent.

Fall dry goods jobbing trade broadens, clothing manufacturers make heavy shipments and the leading industries are usually supplied with orders assuring active machinery well into next year.

July foreign commerce for the whole country far surpassed the same month in any previous year, especially as to imports, which were close to the largest in any previous month, and at this port alone for the last week there were gains of $5,891,468 in imports and $1,519,833 in exports as compared with the same week in 1905.

Failures this week unmbered 176 in the United States, against 218 last year, and 16 in Canada, compared with 28 a year ago.

DOWIE AND VOLIVA TO END WAR

Rumors of Compromise Follow Conference at Shiloh House.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Rumors are rife in Zion City. It is hinted on all sides that a visit made by Voliva to Dr. Dowie Thursday afternoon may have as its object the compromise of the warring interests in the city and their union for the benefit of the city's interests.

There was a secret conference between Voliva and Dowie at Shiloh house, but neither of the parties to the meeting will discuss the matter. As a result of this reticence the people, not knowing where they stand, are distracted.

NEGRO CONVICTS KILL GUARD

Cut White Man's Throat with Knife and Escape from Stockade.

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 17.—Feigning illness, three negroes, Alonzo Goodwin, Hammond Wilson and George Kenny, convicts serving long terms on the chain gang near Ashley Junction, remained in the stockade Thursday. Having asked for water they seized and overpowered H. C. Stello, the white guard, and cut his throat with a butcher knife. Two trusties at the stockade were locked in by the men, who donned civilian clothing and escaped into the nearby swamps.

Sultan Pardons Prisoners.

Constantinople, Aug. 17.—The sultan has ordered the release of all the prisoners in the empire who have completed two-thirds of their sentences, as a mark of gratification for the recovery of his health.

Negro Murderer Hanged.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 18.—Joseph Johnston, a negro, who murdered his wife, was hanged here Friday.

ELECT OHIO EDITOR G. A. R. COMMANDER

R. B. BROWN, OF ZANESVILLE, SUCCEEDS TANNER AS HEAD OF VETERANS.

Senior Vice Comes from Indiana, While Junior Halls from Michigan, with Archbishop Ireland Elected Chaplain-in-Chief.

Commander-in-Chief—R. B. Brown, Zanesville, O.
Senior Vice Commander—William H. Armstrong, Indianapolis.
Junior Vice Commander—E. B. Fenton, Detroit.
Chaplain-in-Chief—Archbishop John Ireland, St. Paul.
Surgeon General—W. H. Johnson, Lincoln, Neb.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 17.—The above officers were elected Thursday at the annual meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The new commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, R. B. Brown, was born in 1845 and has always lived in Ohio. He enlisted in the Fifteenth Ohio infantry at the age of 16 years and served in the Fourteenth army corps in the Army of the Cumberland until he was mustered out in 1864. He then reenlisted as a veteran soldier and served as such until the end of the war. He was a private throughout the first three years of his service and then became a non-commissioned officer. He has always been active and prominent in the work of the Grand Army. Mr. Brown is now editor of the Zanesville Courier.

Tanner Analyzes Bad Citizens.

The report of Commander-in-Chief Tanner covered all features of the work during the last year. No mention was made of the canteen question, but recommendation was made that the Grand Army enter a dignified protest against the erection of the Wirz monument.

Commander Tanner declared the G. A. R. has attained "a position of commanding influence, which has been beneficial, not only to our own comrades, but to the nation which we served in the hour of its peril."

The commander bitterly arraigned those who, posing as the "most eminent men of the nation," had proven false to their trust in various ways, but declared that among all such the name of no civil war veteran could be found.

Secretary's Report.

The total membership is declared in the report of Adjt. Gen. Tweedle to be 235,825, an increase of 3,368 during the last six months. The losses by death for the year ended December 31, 1905, were 9,205, or 3.90 per cent. In the preceding year the loss by death reached exactly the same percentage.

The receipts from the per capita tax are declared insufficient. The suggestion is made that the tax be increased from three and one-half cents to five cents per annum.

HALF HUNDRED ARE ENTOMBED

Desperate Efforts to Rescue Men Caught by Cave-in in Tunnel.

Bristol, Va., Aug. 18.—Fifty men are entombed alive in the Clinch mountain tunnel at Clinchport, Va., as a result of a cave-in which occurred Friday.

It is not known whether the men are dead or alive, but the work of rescue is being rushed as fast as possible. Air is being pumped in the tunnel by several pumps for a distance of 700 feet and a large force of men are working in an effort to rescue the unfortunates before they perish, if they are not already dead.

The cave-in occurred unexpectedly and it is not known who is responsible.

The men entombed are chiefly natives of that mountainous section of southwest Virginia and the excitement and anxiety is intense. Men, women and children were at the mouth of the tunnel awaiting news of those dear to them inside, and pitiful scenes were enacted. Women screamed and wrung their hands and cried hysterically for fathers, brothers and loved ones who are imprisoned in the black hole.

CONTRACT LABORERS BARRED

Unskilled Mexicans Cannot Work on American Roads.

Washington, Aug. 18.—An important question respecting the importation of labor from Mexico into the United States for work on railroad construction in Texas has been determined by the department of justice at the instance of the department of commerce and labor. The question was whether men employed as laborers on ordinary railroad construction were "skilled" or "unskilled," in the meaning of the law. The department of justice, through an opinion rendered by Acting Attorney General Charles H. Robb, has decided that the men are "unskilled" laborers and that, therefore, cannot under the law be admitted into the country under contract.

Death of a Pioneer Packer.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 18.—James T. McMillan, aged 70 years, a pioneer resident as well as a pioneer in the meat packing industry of St. Paul, died at his home here early Friday, after a long illness from liver trouble.

Count de Castellane Dead.

Paris, Aug. 18.—Count Roger de Castellane, son of the late Marquis de Castellane, is dead.

MISS LEOPOLD, SEC'Y LIEDERKRANZ,

Writes: "Three Years Ago My System Was In a Run-Down Condition. I Owe to Pe-ru-na My Restoration to Health and Strength."

MISS RICKA LEOPOLD

MISS RICKA LEOPOLD, 137 Main street, Menasha, Wis., Sec'y Liederkranz, writes:

"Three years ago my system was in a terrible run-down condition and I was broken out all over my body. I began to be worried about my condition and I was glad to try anything which would relieve me.

"Peruna was recommended to me as a fine blood remedy and tonic, and I soon found that it was worthy of praise.

"A few bottles changed my condition materially and in a short time I was all over my trouble.

"I owe to Peruna my restoration to health and strength. I am glad to endorse it."

Pe-ru-na Restores Strength.

Mrs. Hettie Green, R. R. 6, Iuka, Ill., writes: "I had catarrh and felt miserable. I began the use of Peruna and began to improve in every way. My head does not hurt me so much, my appetite is good and I am gaining in flesh and strength."

"PEN AND INK" BET WAS EASY.

Colonel "Ike" Hill Quite Ready to Increase the Amount.

Col. "Ike" Hill, assistant sergeant-at-arms for the Democrats in the house of representatives, has violent political prejudices and at election time is wont to back them with money.

He got into a political discussion in the lobby of the Hoffman house in New York a short time ago and made an assertion that was disputed by a man in the gathering.

Col. "Ike" reached down into his pocket, pulled out a roll of money and peeled off five $100 bills.

"I will just bet you $500 I am right," he said.

"I'll take you," said the other. "Wait until I get a pen and ink."

A cold look came into Col. "Ike's" eyes.

"What do you want a pen and ink for?" he asked.

"Why, I want to write a check for $500 to cover your bet."

Col. "Ike" put his money back in his pocket.

"Bring me a pen and ink, too," he said, "for if this is going to be a check bet I'll make it $5,000."—Saturday Evening Post.

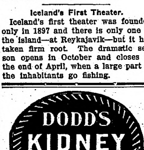
GAS USED UNDER LIME KILNS.

Innovation by Connecticut Company Is a Success.

The New England Lime company, of Winstead, Conn., asserts that it is the first to introduce gas as fuel for lime burning. The method is pronounced an entire success. The growing scarcity of wood fuel led to the discovery of gas as a substitute for wood, and the company no longer considers the gas method an experiment. The efficacy and reliability of gas have been demonstrated beyond a doubt. Had it been impossible to find a substitute for wood, said a member of the company, it would have meant the restriction and perhaps the total abandonment of the business. Gas fires are absolutely clean at all times—no clinkers and no cinders—and the lime produced is much whiter than that burned by wood. Gas also produces a more intense heat, and consequently increases the capacity of the kilns. The daily output at the company's kilns is increased from 80 barrels per kiln to 100 barrels, or a total of 700 barrels daily.

Iceland's First Theater.

Iceland's first theater was founded only in 1897 and there is only one in the island—at Reykajavik—but it has taken firm root. The dramatic season opens in October and closes at the end of April, when a large part of the inhabitants go fishing.



Gossip From Scandinavia.

Principal Events That Have Occurred in the Old Countries Within a Week or So.

A sort of medieval pirate story is told from the Baltic sea. The Danish schooner "Peter" left Lubeck many weeks ago. Nothing was heard from the craft for a long while. But the other day it returned to Copenhagen, where its commander, Captain Allertsen, offered the following explanation: He took his vessel to Lubeck, where he was to receive a cargo of boxes said to contain copper and iron, bound for Lulea, Sweden. Some new men were hired, and the crew consisted of four men when he departed. July 8 he reached the Kvarken narrows, between Sweden and Finland. At this place the captain was suddenly surrounded by his men, who pointed their revolvers at him and give him the choice between imprisonment and death. It did not take him long to choose the former, and he was closed up in the fore cabin. He was kept their for six days and nights, and meanwhile he had no idea where he was going. He soon realized, however, that his vessel was carrying arms to Finland. He heard that the boxes were opened, and a target practice was started on the deck. He was also under the impression that all of the cargo was unloaded on the coast of Finland. But he was not over anxious, for he was treated fairly well. When the six days were past his prison was opened. But he met an entirely new crew, who explained to him that now he was again commander of his schooner. The mutineers had left as soon as they had unloaded the cargo. By means of bribes and threats they had induced three Finnish fishermen to board the vessel and assist the captain in taking the vessel back to Copenhagen. This is the end of the story—for the time being; but this mysterious matter will no doubt be carefully sifted by somebody.

FINLAND.

Thanks to the recent ukase of Czar Nicholas, the women of Finland will be able to cast their votes at the next election this fall the same as their husbands and brothers. There is little doubt that this was a very wise move on the part of the Czar, who has become exceedingly popular with the women of the grand duchy.

DENMARK.

Iceland has exported large quantities of salted mutton to England since the Chicago packing houses got into trouble.

The members of the althing, or legislature, of Iceland, who have been visiting in Denmark, were entertained almost uninterruptedly so that they hardly found time for a conference with the rigsdag committee. The conference was of a purely political nature. It was supposed to be a secret affair. But it is known that the Icelanders firmly demanded greater independence for Iceland. Mr. Skuli Thoroddsen, who has aired his views in the Danish press, was the spokesman of the Icelanders, and as none of the others objected to what he said they were supposed to agree with him.

The British army council, which is eagerly endeavoring to give the British army instruction and training in Swedish gymnastics, has engaged a foreign officer to superintend this branch of the work. The Swedes were somewhat surprised when it was announced that a Danish officer had been selected to teach Swedish gymnastics in the British army.

A part of Lyngby was destroyed by fire. A valuable race horse was burnt to death. The insurance on the property was $25,000.

It is reported that King Frederick will visit Kaiser Wilhelm at the beginning of October and subsequently go to London to see King Edward.

NORWAY.

A tussle between a badger and a dog is reported from Sem. The dog found a badger in the woods and after a little skirmishing the dog got a good hold with his teeth at the top of the neck of the badger. But he could not kill the badger that way. Nor would he let go of his hold. So he led the badger down to a lake and waded out to drown the badger. In his eagerness the dog pushed his own head so far down that he had to drop the badger and take a breath. But by this time the badger was so far gone that those who witnessed the struggle easily dispatched him.

Colonel Stang, who, as a former member of the cabinet, has a right to run for the storting in any district, is taking advantage of this right in one district after another. He makes a speech and is generously applauded, and when that part of the program is finished his hearers go to work and nominate another man. The people do not want him because he was largely responsible for the expenditure of millions of dollars for forts along the Swedish frontier. War houses are far from popular in Norway this year. The defiant anti-military attitude of the Socialists seems to react more or less upon all parties.

Trondhjem has exported 125 tons of salmon to England this summer.

Verdens Gang, which is printed in Gothic types, asked its subscribers whether they wanted English types instead of the old Gothic. The result was, that 1,300 wanted English types, and 500 Gothic types. The paper seems to think that the minority is so strong that it would be unwise to make a change.

The royal couple has returned to the capital after a "strenuous" trip through a large part of old Norway. They are pleased with the treatment accorded them, and theirs is a glorious country when seen in its inimitable midsummer beauty. The people, on the other hand, are also slowly and cautiously making up their mind that the new rulers are good, well-meaning folk.

Anti-military literature has been distributed at the Gardermoen drill grounds, near Kristiania, and the commanding general is going to find out whether he can make it hot for the author.

Mr. Due, an old man who was formerly a custom house officer, has contributed a newspaper article to the controversy about Ibsen's "Terje Vigen." Mr. Due was a personal friend of Ibsen in the forties, and Ibsen read his "Catilina" and other early productions to him. But Ibsen never said anything to indicate that he had an epic like "Terje Vigen" on his mind. Nor did Mr. Due ever hear of any real man corresponding to the hero of the immortal poem. Upon the whole, Mr. Due seems to think that no such person as "Terje Vigen" ever lived. The "authorities" are pretty evenly divided on this subject.

It is claimed on good authority that many a poor Norwegian farmer is bound to keep a dog to protect himself and his property from the gypsies and their dogs.

SWEDEN.

It is proposed to incorporate the following suburbs into the city of Stockholm: Solma, Sundbyberg, Brannkyrka, Lidingo and Bromma. These places have a combined population of 31,000.

King Oscar intended to veto the election of Prof. Schuck to a seat in the Swedish academy because the professor had written something unfavorable about the very king which established the academy. But the press turned such a shower of criticism upon the intended veto that it seems as if the king has changed his mind.

The duke and duchess of Skane have gone to England, where they propose to stay until the latter part of September.

A wooden dwelling house was torn down the other day in Nyland village, Ramsele, and the date 1498 was found carved on the gable, close to the ridge.

The hazel bushes are loaded with nuts in southern Sweden.

More peat for fuel as well as for litter has been cured in southern Sweden this summer than ever before.

Pr Jonsson, of Oviken, Jeutland, is dead. He was the great nimrod of that part of Sweden, having killed 19 bears and almost innumerable smaller game.

The government of Italy has ordered freight cars for $200,000 from the car and machine factory at Falun.

The Swedes are building a church at Hamburg, Germany. Its location is very favorable, and its tower can be seen from all parts of the harbor. The main auditorium will seat 400 persons, and there is a club room, a reading room and even a smoking room. It is called the Gustaf Adolf church and will be ready for use in a short while. This church is also going to be the religious headquarters of the Finnish colony.

Premier Lindman made a political address at Delsbo, advocating proportional representation in both chambers of the riksdag. His address was a lengthy one. Still he gave only the merest outline of the new franchise bill which the cabinet is framing for presentation to the riksdag. The bill which was defeated last winter provided for a division of the country into as many districts as there are members in the riksdag, and extended the voting franchise to all male citizens of good civil standing. According to that bill the candidate receiving the largest number of votes in a certain district would be elected. The opponents of the bill argued that this system is unfair because it shuts out the minority parties entirely. Suppose there are 5,000 voters in a certain district, and that one candidate receives 3,000 and another 2,000 of them. The latter will have no voice in the riksdag because the candidate of the 3,000 is the only one elected. The present cabinet claims that it will draw up a bill which will give the 2,000 a voice in the riksdag. To make the new thing clear let us suppose that three such districts are located close together, and that their political complexion is practically the same. According to the theory of the new cabinet of Sweden the three districts may be united into one. The new district would have three times 5,000 voters, or 15,000 in all, and be entitled to three members of the riksdag. The new cabinet would also make another very important change. In a "one-man" district each voter has a right to cast only one vote for one candidate for member of the riksdag. According to the system of proportional representation a voter in the enlarged distict will have a right to cast three votes. He may "scatter" these votes by casting one vote for each one of three different candidates. But here comes the pith and quintessence of the whole system of proportional representation: the voter may cast his three votes for one single candidate, giving one candidate three votes from one voter. A moment's reflection will show what this means. Let us go back to our enlarged district. There are 15,000 voters. We assumed that there were two parties, represented by 3,000 and 2,000 voters in each of the three small districts, making 9,000 and 6,000 in the new, enlarged district. Suppose the weaker party put up only one candidate, which they would be very apt to do. By uniting on him the 6,000 voters could give him 3 votes each, or 18,000 votes in all. That would insure his election no matter what the majority party did. If the majority party put up 2 candidates those two could get only 27,000 votes between them, and at least one of them would be bound to receive a smaller number of votes than the candidate of the minority party, so that only one candidate could receive more votes than the minority candidate. This example is made more plain than any concrete case, but it is absolutely correct as an illustration of the workings of the suffrage system on which the life of the Lindman cabinet is staked. The system is making rapid progress in many free countries.

Swarms of flying ants have been seen at Gothenburg, Lysekil and Lulea.

Emil Hultmark, a native of Linkoping, receive the degree of doctor of philosophy from the university of Bern, Switzerland. He passed examinations in the history of art and the English and French languages and literature with the highest honors.

The low water in the Brakne river, Blekinge, has made it easy to pick mussels, and quite a few pearl-bearing ones have been found. An ordinary pearl found in this river is worth about $2.50.

Swedish steamers carrying cargoes to South Africa have recently gone to Australia to obtain loads for the return trip to Sweden.

BRIEF MINNESOTA ITEMS

Interesting Bits of News Gathered From All Portions of the State.

Minneapolis—Mrs. Rose Bertha Leo jumps into Lake Como and is drowned.

St. Paul—Three men are stabbed during a street row and one of them may die.

St. Paul—Conference committee urges aldermen to accept auditorium at once.

St. Paul—The Druids celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their order in Minnesota.

St. Paul—The vestry of St. Paul's church decides to move to St. Anthony Hill.

St. Paul—Rue M. Riegel is drowned while swimming near the Marshall avenue bridge.

Minneapolis—Three veterans are stricken by death, one in St. Paul and two in Minneapolis.

St. Paul—The proposition of three Northern roads to reduce freight rate on grain is rejected.

St. Paul—One man is killed and one is injured by a cave-in in a trench at Seventh and Sibley.

Marshall—Virgil B. Seward filed his affidavit as a candidate for the state senate from the Seventeenth district.

Minneapolis—Joseph Ellis, twelve years old, 199 West Central avenue, has his left leg torn off by the wheel of a furniture van.

Minneapolis—Mistaking a fire alarm box for a messenger's call in the Nicollet hotel, a guest called six engine companies to the building.

Pelican Rapids—A mad dog scare has resulted from the appearance of a strange canine which came to town yesterday apparently with a mission to whip every dog in town.

St. Peter—Rev. George C. Dunlop, rector of the Church of Holy Communion, has received a call from the Episcopal church at Greenville, Ohio. It is not likely he will accept.

Biwabik—Several large forest fires are burning fiercely west and south of this place. Hundreds of acres of second growth and thicket have been burned over and still the flames sweep on.

Crookston—Word has been received from Port Arthur that Sheldon W. Vance, one of Crookston's most influential citizens, has been stricken with apoplexy and is in a very critical condition.

Biwabik—A. J. Shea, a contractor engaged in making repairs on the trunk road and camping near the White Face river, has sent word to the police here that a peculiar attempt was made to take his life.

Mankato—H. H. Bennett and L. A. Hurst, the soil experts sent out by the secretary of agriculture to make a study of the soils of Blue Earth county, have spent the week in the county, making their headquarters at Mapleton.

Crookston—Jolf Anderson pleaded guilty to a charge of raising a check from $10 to $50 at East Grand Forks. He was detected by the fact that he carefully spelled the word "Fifti." He was sentenced to Stillwater for seven months.

Eveleth—It is evident that there is to be hot times in Eveleth politics relative to the declaration of Mayor Jessmore that he would no sign an ordinance granting a franchise to the Mesaba Traction company for an interurban railway.

Detroit—While riding on a construction gravel train yesterday afternoon Fay Connell, 11-year-old son of Mrs. W. H. Connell, stepped off a flat car of sand and was cut in several pieces by the car wheels. Two boys with him saw the accident.

St. Paul—Ground has been broken at University and Pillsbury avenues, St. Anthony Park, for the construction of a piano factory by S. W. Raudenbush & Co., which will have the biggest capacity of any similar plant west of Milwaukee and Chicago.

Crookston—The board of equalization finished the Polk county assessments some time ago and County Auditor Hoffard has finished making out his report of the assessments. The report shows more than $9,000,000 in real estate and personal property assessments, of which $2,149,028 is for personal property and $7,569,360 is for real estate.

Crookston—Another drowning accident occurred here at the foot of Hunter street, when the eleven-year-old son of John Laramie, an engineer on the Great Northern railroad, was drowned in the river. The young boy was in bathing and it is supposed that he was seized with cramps, as he was drowned before help could be obtained. The body was recovered.

St. Paul—Mrs. M. Schultz, living in the Walsh block, West Side, caused considerable excitement in the neighborhood by going about the streets with a lighted lamp in her hand. Women who had seen the moving light became frightened and soon the streets were filled with people and police officers. Mrs. Schultz was taken to the county jail, as it is feared her mind is affected.

Mankato—The two-year-old daughter of Attorney Evan Hughes, president of the school board, got hold of a tablet of bichlorate of mercury, while playing in a drawer at his residence, and ate part of it. Although medical attendance was secured in thirty minutes the child lies in a critical condition, with slender hopes of recovery. The family had not known that there was such a tablet in the house, and the box containing it was not labeled as containing poison.

White Bear—The yachtsmen of White Bear and Gopher will represent the White Bear Yacht club in the inland lakes regatta at Oshkosh.

Euclid—The two-year-old child of Charles Boardwell, residing one mile from here, was probably fatally poisoned by eating paris green.

Duluth—Congressman J. Adam Bede, the famous "humorist of the house," will not have it all his own way this fall. He will have an opponent in the person of E. L. Miller of Duluth, who filed late yesterday with the secretary of state for the nomination as congressman from the Eighth congressional district.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The anti-Greek movement in Bulgaria is growing and involving the Balkan situation.

United States trade with its noncontiguous territories for the fiscal year amounted to $119,304,511.

The wife of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, of Sea of Japan fame, is seriously ill in St. Petersburg.

Union and nonunion miners fought at Butler Junction, Pa., and Stef Reaway, nonunion man, was killed.

Frank E. Gavin, of Indianapolis, was nominated for congress by the Democrats of the Seventh district.

Dr. Archibald Links, of Michigan, was drowned by the overturning of his canoe in the rapids of Moon river, Ontario.

Hugh Leonard, frequenter of a low saloon in New York, was frightened to death by a bulldog set on him by the bartender.

The election in Alaska for delegates to congress resulted in a victory for Cale and Waskey, the miners' candidates.

Charles E. Hughes, of insurance-investigation fame, is being boomed for the Republican nomination for governor of New York.

Ex-Gov. Odell defeated Gov. Higgins in reorganizing the New York state committee. Odell men will rule in the state convention.

The steamer F. A. Meyer cleared Duluth with a cargo of 1,500,000 feet of lumber, beating the cargo record of the Jesse Spalding.

Mrs. John Knapp, of St. Louis, mother of Manager Charles W. Knapp of the St. Louis Republic, died at Watch Hill, R. I., aged 82.

William B. Cahill, a former well-known actor, died in New York city. He was born in Ireland and in the '50s he toured the United States.

Six persons who were taken seriously ill in Salisbury Beach, Mass., as the result of eating ice cream which had been poisoned by unclean cans.

Felton Landrum, 22 years old, lately of Georgia, dropped out of sight in New York, and thorough search has failed to reveal his whereabouts.

Permits have been issued in San Francisco for the reconstruction of the Merchants' Exchange building and a large brewery for an English syndicate.

Lady Hesketh, daughter of the late Senator Sharon, has changed her mind, and will join with other Sharon heirs in rebuilding the Palace hotel in Frisco, at a cost of $4,000,000.

Disquieting news comes from Santo Domingo and that Jiminiez is en route to New York to get revolutionary funds. Officials of the state department in Washington are watchful of developments.

Spalding Coleman, member of the board of public works, and largely interested in coal mines in Kentucky and Tennessee, died suddenly in Louisville, Ky. His family is in Wequetonsing, Mich.

Alfred J. Klein, of the Museum of Natural History, New York, will pass three months on the Island of Kerguelem, in the Indian ocean, where he will study rare things in animal and plant life. The island is not inhabited by human beings.

HARLAN FOR INTERSTATE BOARD

President Selects Chicago Man to Complete Commission.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 18.—President Roosevelt Friday appointed James S. Harlan, of Chicago, a member of the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Harlan is a son of John M. Harlan, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. He is a lawyer and held for some time the position of attorney general of Porto Rico. The appointment of Mr. Harlan completes the membership of the commission as provided for under the new railroad rate law.

Children's Author Dies.

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 18.—Rebecca S. Clark, better known as "Sophia May," writer of many books for children, died at Norridgewock at the age of 73 years.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Aug. 18.

LIVE STOCK—Steers	$5 00 @ 5 75
Hogs, State	6 90 @ 7 00
Sheep	4 00 @ 6 00
FLOUR—Minn. Patents	4 25 @ 4 50
WHEAT—September	78¼@ 78⅜
December	81⅛@ 81¼
CORN—December	56⅝@ 56¾
RYE—No. 2 Western	67½@ 68
BUTTER	19 @ 19½
CHEESE	11¼@ 11¾
EGGS	24 @ 25

CHICAGO.

CATTLE—Choice Steers	$5 75 @ 6 75
Common to Good Steers	4 60 @ 5 75
Yearlings	4 50 @ 6 00
Bulls, Common to Choice	2 25 @ 4 10
Calves	3 00 @ 7 00
HOGS—Light Mixed	6 05 @ 6 20
Heavy Packing	5 70 @ 6 00
Heavy Mixed	6 10 @ 6 20
BUTTER—Creamery	15½@ 22
Dairy	17 @ 20
EGGS	14 @ 16
LIVE POULTRY	11 @ 13
POTATOES (bu.)	40 @ 52
WHEAT—September	70⅝@ 70⅞
May	73¼@ 73⅞
Corn, September	48 @ 48⅛
Oats, September	[illegible]
Rye, September	[illegible]

MILWAUKEE.

GRAIN—Wheat, No. 1 Nor'n	$ 77 @ 78
September	[illegible]
Corn, September	[illegible]
Oats, Standard	[illegible]
Rye, No. 1	[illegible]

KANSAS CITY.

GRAIN—Wheat, September	[illegible]
December	[illegible]
Corn, September	[illegible]
Oats, No. 2 White	[illegible]

ST. LOUIS.

CATTLE—Beef Steers	[illegible]
Texas Steers	[illegible]
HOGS—Packers	[illegible]
Butchers	[illegible]
SHEEP—Natives	[illegible]

OMAHA.

CATTLE—Native Steers	[illegible]
Stockers and Feeders	[illegible]
Cows and Heifers	[illegible]
HOGS—Heavy	[illegible]
SHEEP—Wethers	[illegible]

FARMERS OUT MILLIONS

THE SOUTHERN ROADS BLOCK REDUCTION IN GRAIN RATES.

Northern Roads, Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo, Offer a 10 Per Cent Reduction in Grain Rates—Offer Is Rejected.

The proposition of the three northern railroads, the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and the Soo, to make a reduction of 10 per cent in the grain freight rates, was rejected by the state railroad and warehouse commission, because the reduction was opposed by the railroads operating in Southern Minnesota.

The reduction would have saved the farmers of Minnesota alone $1,000,000 a year in freight on grain. The 10 per cent reduction in coal rates, which was proposed by the commission, would have meant a saving of $200,000 more to the people of the state, making a total of $1,200,000 a year that would have been put into the pockets of the people of Minnesota had the new schedules gone into effect. The Minnesota reductions in Minnesota grain rates would have resulted in reductions in neighboring states, and the total saving to the farmers of the Northwest would have been between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 a year.

The Better Plan.

The proposition was made by the three northern roads as a compromise in the pending proceedings looking to a reduction in merchandise rates. The roads could not afford to make both reductions. The merchandise reductions would have benefited no one but the merchants, while the grain reductions, by cutting the cost of getting grain to market, would have benefited the farmers directly. The three roads therefore proposed to reduce the grain rates instead of the merchandise rates.

The members of the state railroad and warehouse commission seemed inclined to accept the compromise, apparently believing that the reduction in grain rates would be a much greater benefit to the people of the state. They asked, however, that a 10 per cent reduction be made also in coal rates.

But the Southern Minnesota roads objected. The proposed reduction in merchandise rates would have affected them only to a trifling extent, while the proposed grain rate reduction would have meant a material benefit to the people at the expense of the railroads. In the face of the opposition of the southern roads, the state railroad and warehouse commission rejected the proposed grain rate reduction.

The proposition of the three northern roads, the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Soo, and their position in the matter, is explained in their letter to the state commission. The letter says:

The Proposition.

"1. The merchandise rates under discussion so far as they relate to the tariffs now in force on said three lines of railway, shall be continued in force, and the proceedings with reference to the same shall be dismissed. This because, in the opinion of the railway companies, the evidence that has been so far developed in the case proves conclusively that merchandise traffic is being handled in the state of Minnesota at just and reasonable rates, and at rates that compare favorably with those in effect in other states; that the present merchandise rates do not more than pay the actual cost of the transportation furnished, and that a reduction in said rates would be an injustice to the railway companies and impracticable for them to accept.

"2. It is the opinion of the railway companies that the prosperity of the portion of the state served by the said three lines is dependent upon the well being of the agricultural communities along those lines. A reduction in the rates on merchandise would be of no benefit to the farmers and producers in Northern Minnesota. This has been clearly brought out in the testimony taken, it having been shown beyond question that the only persons to be benefited by the proposed reduction would be the merchants.

Direct Benefit.

"A reduction in the rates on grain is a direct benefit to every farmer raising a bushel of grain for sale, as the price paid the farmer for his grain in the country is fixed by the price at the terminal markets less the cost of transporting the grain to those markets. Farmers desiring to do so may ship their grain and sell it themselves at terminal markets without the interposition of middlemen. If the farmers are prosperous the communities in which they live are prosperous. The country merchants sell more goods, consequently buy more, and the manufacturer and the jobber in the city enjoy an enlarged trade. If, at any time, it is possible for the railway companies to reduce their rates, the highest public policy and the interests not only of the railways themselves but of all classes of citizens in this state demand that the policy that has heretofore been followed by these railway companies should be continued and that reductions in rates should be made in such a way as to enable the farmer to get his product to the market with the least expense.

How It Works Out.

"The increased benefit to the producer from reductions in grain rates over reductions in merchandise rates is easily computed. For instance: A farmer with 160 acres of land, raising, say 20 bushels per acre, or 3 200 bushels averaging, on different kinds of grain, 50 pounds per bushel, would furnish 80 tons of freight. Should the farmer purchase of the storekeeper once a week 25 pounds of merchandise (an amount much in excess of that ordinarily consumed by a family) he would purchase 1,320 pounds of merchandise during the year, on which the freight charges, at an average of 40 cents per hundred weight, would amount to $5.20. The reduction in merchandise rates proposed by the commission, is about 20 per cent, which would mean a reduction of a little over $1 in the freight charges on the merchandise a farmer's family would purchase during a year. If the railway company were able to reduce their rates on grain 1¼ cents per hundred pounds, or 25 cents per ton, it would mean a reduction to the farmer, or an increase in the amount received by him for his grain of $20, or over twenty times the amount of the reduction in the freight charges on merchandise, provided that the farmer received the benefit of that reduction. But, as a matter of fact, none of this dollar would find its way into the pockets of the farmer, as the dollar would have to be distributed over so many different articles during the course of the year that it would be impracticable for the storekeeper to make any reduction in the prices charged by him for the merchandise sold.

New Schedule.

"3. For the above reasons, and in pursuance of the policy which they have long followed, the three railway companies presenting this statement propose that if the present merchandise rates under discussion are continued in force, and while so continued, they will reduce the rates on wheat and coarse grains shipped from all points in the state of Minnesota in excess of 100 miles from the terminals of their respective systems, 10 per cent from the tariffs now in force. The rates from stations within 100 miles of the terminals are now so low that a further reduction is impracticable. The present rates from such stations are now lower than those charged in any other Western state, as a comparison and the evidence submitted to the commission in this case will show.

"The aggregate reduction in the revenue of the railway companies from the proposed reduction in grain rates will be very large, and one that the railway companies cannot afford to make if their present merchandise rates are also to be disturbed. It is only by reason of the large interstate business over which the commission has no control that the railway companies are able to offer any reduction whatever. If the railway companies, parties to this proposal, were solely dependent upon state traffic, they could neither afford to make the proposed reduction nor provide one-half of the service which they now give the state.

Immediate Benefit.

"4. Under conditions that have arisen in the course of this hearing it is apparent that considerable time must elapse before the matter can be finally determined by the commission, leaving out of the question the possibility of consideration of the matter elsewhere. The railway companies making this proposal have been holding back an intended reduction in grain rates awaiting the result of the present hearing. While a reduction in grain rates has been contemplated, it was impossible to grant it, and also submit to a reduction in merchandise rates. A large crop is about to be harvested, and it is important to the farming communities to know at once what rates they will be compelled to pay; and if the farmer is to receive the benefit of a reduction in the grain rates on his crop this year it is time now to act, and an immediate decision of the matter is necessary. If the proposed compromise is promptly agreed to, the present crop will get the benefit of the reduction.

"The railway companies cannot afford to reduce both the merchandise and grain rates, and one or the other must remain where it now is. A reduction made now in grain rates and followed later on by a reduction in merchandise rates would mean simply the restoration of the present grain rates."

GOVERNOR ISSUES ORDER TO LOWER FREIGHT RATES

Gov. Johnson has ordered the railroad and warehouse commission to compel the three northern roads to put into effect the grain rate which they proposed as a compromise early this week.

The governor is of the opinion that if these roads were willing to make a reduction of 10 per cent on grain, which they can afford to do by their own statement, they should be compelled to do so. A letter sent by the governor to the commission is as follows:

"If the statement concerning the recent transactions before your honorable body in the matter of the rate hearing are correctly reported, I think an opportunity is afforded you of securing immediate and considerable benefit to a large portion of the people of this state.

"It appears that on the 12th inst. a creditor representative of the three railway companies appeared before you and proposed to 'reduce the rates on wheat and coarse grain shipped from all parts of the state of Minnesota in excess of 100 miles from the terminal of their respective distance, 10 per cent from the tariff now in force.'

"The proposal was, however, coupled with the condition that the merchandise rates under discussion, so far as they relate to the tariff now in force, on said lines of railway, shall be continued in force and the proceedings with reference to the same shall be dismissed.

"It further appears that representatives of other roads objected to the acceptance of this proposal by the commission upon the ground that the effect would be to disturb the rate on their roads. I think every one must agree that you were clearly right in refusing to entertain the proposal of the three companies, but the fact having been made and the manner in which it was presented suggests to my mind that we should be able to secure reduced rates on grain before the present crop is moved without in any manner interfering with the general investigation of rates now being made by your board.

"By their own statement the three companies can afford to make a material reduction in grain rates and they should be compelled to do it without delay.

"The demand that the present inquiry into rates be suspended could not, of course, be entertained, inasmuch as that proceeding is in accordance with instructions given you by the last legislature in a joint resolution.

"There is no reason for presuming that the inquiry being conducted before you will result in any injustice to the railway companies concerned. If it should, the courts are open to them for the purpose of having the same corrected, and they should be willing to abide by the decision of the same tribunal which passes not only upon every possible conceivable right of the individual citizen, but upon questions of life and death. It is a startling and audacious proposal that your board should forbear continuing an inquiry which you have commenced pursuant to legislative instructions, and a suggestion made on behalf of the railroads other than the three making the proposal, that such a reduction would disturb their rates, is equally preposterous.

"The people of one portion of the state should not continue to pay excessive rates in order that the symmetry of the rates enforced upon some other portion of the state or in other states should be maintained. I request, therefore, that you take steps that may be available and as the attorney of this state may advise you are sufficient, for the purpose of securing to the people of this state a reduction in rates upon coarse grains by the three roads I have mentioned.

"Pending the decision of the board upon the question of merchandise rates, nor should such reduction be limited to shipments originated from one hundred miles from the terminals or if you should be advised that such action is not feasible that the scope of the present inquiry be so enlarged as to include not only the propriety of the present rates on merchandise, but also commodity rates in this state generally.

"In conclusion I desire to assure you of my hearty co-operation in any effort you may make to secure more equal and just railway rates to the people of this state. Very respectfully,

(Signed) JOHN A. JOHNSON,
"Governor."

Girl Jockeys in Japan.

Women jockeys, or rather girl jockeys, have made their appearance in Japan. During the last Tokio races three favorites were ridden by girls. One, the daughter of a riding master, came in first, while the other two, both geishas, were "placed."

Adonis Gives Warning.

Adonis had just been introduced to Venus. "I don't want to butt in or anything like that," he said, warningly, "but I'm serving notice that if I ever catch you running around shopping in white shoes I'll cut you out."

Pet Snake Pines for Mate.

Veterans at the Soldiers' Home here have two pet pine snakes. One of the snakes disappeared a week ago, but was so lonesome for its mate that it came back and was found trying to get back into the reptile cage.—Vineland Correspondence, Philadelphia Bulletin.

Not the Limit of Trouble.

Job was taking his breakfast off the mantelpiece. "These boils are pretty tough," he said, "and I'm having plenty of trouble, all right, but anyway, Tom Johnson isn't born yet."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Red Lake County Minnesota.

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Entered as Second-class matter August 30, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Gum shoe campaigning seems to be the style of several of the candidates for office this year.

There was some complaint made two years ago about our "digging in" in this legislative district. We expect the same complaint will be made this year, about our interest in the 62 district, but we can't help it as we always take an interest in our subscribers nomatter where they are located.

There will be no oppositian to the nomination of Hon. H. Steenerson in the republican party this year, which is very satisfactory to his friends. Not thatthey were afraid to go into a fight, but because they are pleased that the opposition has realized that they were right four years ago.

There is two candidates for senator filed from Norman County. One or both of them must be very friendly to Simons, as that movement dispeses with the nessity of him making any campaign which is undoubtly the reason he started a new bank this fall, before waiting for the legislature to ajourn next spring.

Our Deer Park corespondent, introduces some of the prospective candidates for county office this fall, although his artiele is rather in advance of the times, as the candidates mentioned have got to go through the primarie election mill, yet it seems to be about time the new voters on the eleven towns got aquainted with some of them candidates, if it was no more than finding out their names.

It is not probable that the Japanese will steal any more of our seals. But they will continue to swipe our ideas and mechanical inventions. About the only thing a Jap will not appropriate as his own is what is chained down and protected by a carefully aimed gun.—The Duluth News Tribune.

Now, all America owes Japan is an appolegy for killing criminals, but the American Press says they have no appolegy coming. You had better look out you slant eye, or you will get showed a trick with a hole in it. Minnesota is ready as usual!

We always place the name of an applicant to make final proof, on our subscription list, if we publish his notice, and we quite often get notice from the post master after his proof as follows your paper remains dead in this office. Reasons, removed. Then we know, that empty stands the little tar paper shanty on the hill "Boby has gone".

There is to much of this business going on for the good of this part of the country, and we hope to see the officials of the land office make diligent inquiry and try to separate the speculator from the settler, in the future.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota, Carter of Montana, and Hale of Maine, are the ones that LaFollette intends particulary to go after. If he comes into Minnesota to air his grievences against Senator Nelson, he will find that he has undertaken a pretty big contract.—Morris Tribune.

Republican State Ticket.

United States Senator—
Knute Nelson,
Douglas County.

Governor—
A. L. Cole,
Cass County.

Lieutenant Governor—
A. O. Eberhart.
Blue Earth County.

Chief Justice—
Charles M. Start,
Olmsted County.

State Treasurer—
Clarence Dinehart,
Murray County.

Secretary of State—
Julius Schmahl,
Redwood County.

Attorney General—
E. T. Young,
Swift County.

State Auditor—
S. G. Iverson,
Fillmore County.

Clerk of Supreme Court—
C. A. Pidgeon,
Wright County.

Railroad Commissioner—
C. F. Staples,
Dakota County.

CALL AND SEE US.

Did you ever visit the Golden Rule Dept. store at Thief River Falls? Everything from head to foot at the Golden Rule dept. store. Do you need a suit, a pair of shoes? underwear, a hat or a shirt? you will find the largest dept. store of either at the Golden Rule, Thief River Falls, you will find, a complete clothing store, a complete Dry Goods store, Shoe Store, Grocery Store all under one roof.

Women And The Primaries.

To the several County Auditors:

The right of the woman to vote at the primaries for the nomination of School Superintendents has been the subject of much recent controversy. There never was any question but that the right ought to be given by law.

A prominent attorney prudently suggests that, if the votes of women should be refused at the coming primary and the courts should ultimately decide that they had the right to vote, very serious wrong would result. On the contrary, if the votes of women should be received and kept separate, so that the exact number of votes cast by women, and for whom cast, could be readily ascertained, in case of contest, no serious harm could result, as such votes could, in such case be rejected if judicially determined to be illegal, and the result of the primaries still be ascertainable.

I have therefore concluded, under the circumstances, for the reasons stated, to recommend, that the votes of women be received at the coming primary, using separate ballot, and separate boxes, so that if, after the election, any interested party desires to take the question into the courts it can be conveniently done.

Dated: August 15th, 1906.
E. T. Young,
Attorney General.

There is a great developement in the line of dairying in the northern part of the state at the present time and the healthy groth of this industry depends on the way the new croonerion are established. If organized on the wrong basis, they may be a hindrance for the right progress of the dairy business. The State Dairy and Food Department has experienced men that will go to any place where a creamery is desired and give the farmers the benefit of their years of experience in this line of work and got the creamery started on the most up-to-date and successful plan. Anyone may write to the State Dairy and Food Commissioners and ask for a man or any special man to come and help in the organization, or you may write direct to the undersigned. There is no expence connected with any such help and you will get assistanc that means money in your pocket.

Joel G. Winkjer,
Creamery Inspector,
Crookston,
Minn

Eyeglasses and Romance.

It is curious to observe that even the greatest realists do not venture to bestow eyeglasses on their heroines. It is rather odd, too, seeing how many charming women do in real life wear them and are not debarred by them from the most dramatic careers and the most poignant emotions, but while the modern novelist has bestowed eyeglasses on everybody else he has not yet had the hardihood to put them on the nose of his heroine. Why?—Mrs. John Lane in London Outlook.

THE APACHES.

This Tribe Holds the Record as Bad Indians.

Scarcely a tribe of our American Indians but what have engraved their record of crime and infamy high up on history's wall, yet above them all is the Apaches.

From 1640 to 1853 New Spain and Mexico carried on a so called warfare with these people. The Apaches were vastly outnumbered by the Mexican soldiery, but what they lacked in numbers was more than made up in courage and craftiness. The Apache ever had a thorough contempt for the Mexican soldier, and in later years, when they were fighting with firearms as well as arrows, they would not waste cartridges on the Mexicans, but would kill them with arrows, spears and stones, saving their cartridges for other and more worthy foes.

When this southwest region became a part of the United States the Apaches were a serious problem with which we had to contend. Our government vacillated between a simpering peace policy and the other extreme, their extermination.

Their zone of wandering being intersected by the international boundary line further complicated matters. They would raid down into Mexico and then push back with the plunder to our side of the line, out of reach of the pursuing soldiers. Next it would be a raid on the Arizona side and a flight into the wild mountains of Sonora. The Mexican government attempted to assist their miserable army by giving a scalp bounty, and for years they paid out their gold coin for Apache scalps. Scalp hunting became a recognized industry. The horror of this was that to the Mexican official all scalps looked alike, whether from the head of a hostile or a friendly Indian. The price was $100 for a man, $50 for a woman and $25 for a child. It is small wonder that the tribe sank deeper into savagery than ever when we stop to think that the men knew there was a price set on the scalps of their wives and children, and there was a horde of human fiends, white in color, but more savage than the savage himself, who were hunting them as they would a cougar of the mountains.—E. S. Curtis in Scribner's.

QUICKER THAN LIGHTNING.

Action of the Human Body Outstrips Everything In Motion.

"As quick as lightning" is a phrase colloquially used to express the maximum of rapidity, but, according to a well known scientist, electricity itself is outstripped by that old fashioned machine, the human body, by which it appears powers can, so to speak, be generated in the brain, transmitted through the nerves and developed in the muscles in an infinitesimal fraction of a second.

It is stated that a pianist in playing a presto of Mendelssohn played 5,595 notes in four minutes and three seconds. The striking of each of these, it has been estimated, involved two movements of the finger and possibly more.

Again, the movements of the wrist, elbows and arms can scarcely be less than one movement for each note. As twenty-four notes were played each second and each involves three movements we would have seventy-two voluntary movements per second.

Again, the place, the force, the time and the duration of each of these movements were controlled. All these motor reactions were conditioned upon a knowledge of the position of each finger of each hand before it was moved, while moving it, as well as of the auditory effect to force and pitch, all of which involves equally rapid sensory transmissions.

If we add to this the work of the memory in placing the notes in their proper position as well as the fact that the performer at the same time participates in the emotion the selection describes and feels the strength and weaknesses of the performance, we arrive at a truly bewildering network of impulses coursing along at inconceivably rapid rates.

Such estimates show, too, that we are capable of doing many things at once. The mind is not a unit, but is composed of higher and lower centers, the available fund of attention being distributed among them.—Pearson's Weekly.

Legend and Reality.

Legend tells how Napoleon, while Moscow was in flames, found time to draw up a decree organizing the Theatre Francais. Alas, the story is not true. Napoleon was in Poland when he received the decree ready to be signed. He there signed it and sent it back to Paris, but in the margin wrote the following: "To be forwarded when the army will be at Moscow. It is his majesty's intention that the decree should be dated from that town."

In Praise of Cockneys.

Cockneys are the best natured people under the sun. It is notorious that a big London crowd is of all crowds in the world the most harmless and the easiest to manage. But see them also in their ordinary collections, outside the gallery door of a popular theater or crowding in the carriages of an excursion train—what fun and kindness and wholesome give and take! A deliberately rude or offensive cockney is hardly to be met.—G. S. Street in Pall Mall Gazette.

The Mortality List.

Manager (of great exposition)—What alarms me is our mortality list. Assistant—Mortality list? Why, it's next to nothing at all! "I know better than that. More than one-third of the people that come through the turnstiles are deadheads!"

Summons.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } S. S.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA,

To Warlenty Wajnaroski and Mrs. Warlenty Wajnaroski, Defendant's,

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the 30th day of August 1906, at 10 o'clock A. M., at my office in the Town of Highlanding in said County to answer to the complaint of Edward Singer Plaintiff, in a civil action, wherein the Plaintiff claim the sum of seventeen dollars and seventy two cents ($17.72), with intrest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 8th day of November 1905. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid judgement will be rendered against you up on the evidence adduced by said Plaintiff for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand and dated this 1st day of August 1906.

W. G. Hunt,
Justice of the Peace.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 13th 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before the Register and receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on September 25th 1906 viz:

Ole O. Vattendahl.

H. E. No. 713 Red Lake Series, for Lot 2, Sec. 27, Lots 7, 8, 10, 11, Sec. 28, Lot 1, Sec. 34, Twp. 153 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Torkel T. Lande, Sjur Staiai, Torger S. Dale, Andrew Ellingson all of Radny Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam August 17, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land Office at Crookston Minn. August 11, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention tomake final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Reciver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on September 26 1906, viz:

Signe J. Sen.

H. E. No. 8856, Chippewa Series, for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 35, Twp. 152 N. R. 40 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz:

Sam Gunderson, Rasmus Nilsen Fore, Aasa Fore, John G. Lintvedt all of Lillo Minn.

R. J. Montague, Register.

Probate Notice.

ESTATE OF ANTON W. SHOSTEN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF RED LAKE IN PROBATE COURT.

In the Matter of the Estate of Anton W. Shosten, Decedent.

Letters of adminestiation this day having been granted to Eva Shosten.

IT IS ORDERED, that the time within which all creditors of the above named decedent may present claims against his estate in this court, be, and the same hereby is, limited to six months from and after the date hereof; and that Friday the 11th day of January 1907, at 9 o'clock A. M., in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House at Red Lake Falls in said County, be, and the same hereby is, fixed and appointed as the time and place for hearing upon and the examination, adjustment and allowance of such claims as shall be presented within the time aforesaid.

Let notice hereof be given by the publication of this order in THE SUNBEAM a weekly newspaper printed and published in said County as provided by law.

Dated August 11th 1906.
N. W. Tarrant,
[Seal] Judge of Probate.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. July 20th, 1906.

Department of the Interior. Land office at Crookston Minn. July 11th, 1906

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register and receiver, of the U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on August 30th, 1906 viz:

Berit Martha Valstad.

H. E. no. 761 Red Lake Series for the N. W. ¼ Sec. 23 Tp. 153 N. R. 41 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:

Erick Gallingsrud, Joseph Kilen, Halvor Walla of Kratka Minn., Knut K. Austin of Crookston Minn.

R. J. Montague Register

Ideas From Nature.

Walking on the outskirts of Bolton one autumn evening, a clever young man became interested in watching the seeds falling from a sycamore tree. He observed that they acquired a rotary motion before reaching the ground, and, inquiring into the cause, he found that the two wings were slightly turned in opposite directions, which caused them to revolve in falling. The idea of making a screw propeller on this principle at once occurred to him.

Galvani, a natural philosopher of Italy, was dissecting a dead frog one day while a pupil was making experiments in electricity by his side. He observed that the muscles of the frog, being exposed, gave signs of motion whenever the nerves came in contact with the scopel. Galvani discovered the existence of a new principle in this phenomenon and originated the fertile branch of physics known by the name of galvanism.

Sweeping.

"I was just telling my daughter," said Mrs. Nexdore, "that it's a shame of her to play the piano on Sunday."

"Huh!" exclaimed Mrs. Pepprey. "Why Sunday especially?"

H. & B. MILLING CO.
BEST
VIVO
PATENT
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.
VIVO

VIVO

HANDLED BY ALL THE LEADING MERCHANTS OF THE ELEVEN TOWNS.

(ALWAYS CALL FOR VIVO).

We pay the highest market price for all grain, at our mill in Thief River Falls, or at our elevator at Plummer, and always have on hand a complete line of flour & feed at both points.

Prompt shipments made by boat to all points along the Red Lake river.

We solicit your orders.

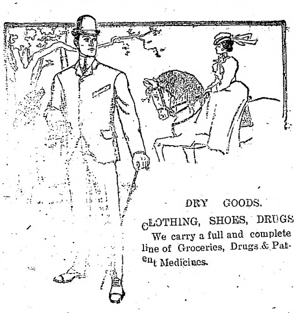
Hanson & Barzen Milling Company.

THE MERCHANTS

State Bank,

OF RED LAKE FALLS MINN., WILL FURNISH Money to prove up at lowest rates, on privilege payments. Also furnish money to build School Houses, on District Bonds, Long time and low rates. Call on, or WRITE US. J. A. Duffy, Cashier.

NORSK HANDEL.



DRY GOODS.
CLOTHING, SHOES, DRUGS
We carry a full and complete line of Groceries, Drugs & Patent Medicines.

LOOK AT THIS. We pay the highest market price for, Hides, Wool, Seneka Root, Furs & All Farm Products

H. H. Finrow, Mg.

PLUMMER, MINN.

The Radny Store;

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE RADNY STORE.

John has, Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes.

A full and complete line of groceries.

Best brands of flour, at lowest market price

.00

Call and see me for bargains, at Raday post office and store.

John Radneskie.

The Fall of the Hennins.

The hennins or headdresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever. At last a strolling evangelist at Paris promised absolution to all who would destroy the hennins, and the mob went to work and wrecked the headdresses whenever they appeared in public. The hennins were trampled under foot and their wearers insulted all over Paris. Scores of lives were lost in the efforts of the cavaliers to defend the hennins from the rabble, but in vain, and the enormous headdresses disappeared, some other feminine absurdity taking their place.

Hearses After Night.

There is one kind of vehicle that neither the oldest nor the youngest inhabitant has seen on the street at night, or, if he has seen it at all, only infrequently. That is a hearse. Every other kind of conveyance used by modern man is driven about the streets freely after nightfall—the hearse alone comes under the curfew law. Early hours seem to be imposed upon that somber carriage by common consent. The public doesn't like to see it after dark, and coachmen don't like to drive it. No doubt there are hearses that are compelled by the exigencies of funeral arrangements to come home at unseasonable hours, but when forced to an infringement of the unwritten law they proceed through quiet streets where they will be least likely to wound the sensibilities of the superstitious.—New York Herald.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Do your Notary Public business at the SUNBEAM office.

VIVO flour is the best. Ask your dealer for vivo.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Oluf Snoback will leave Monday for the Town of Kratka to again commence ditching operations.

A. Eve went down to Thief River Falls on a hurry up business trip Tuesday, returning yesterday.

Mrs. A. Eve went down to Thief River Falls on Saturdays Flyer on a visit to friends, returning Monday.

There has been quite a steady streak of bad weather this week which has slightly interrupted haying operations.

Several of our summer vacation girls will return to Thief River Falls to begin their fall term of school next week.

Mrs. Nels Brewen was a passenger down the river on yesterdays Dan Patch on her way to the Thief River hospital.

Captain Houg of the Dan Patch boat has so far recovered from his illness as to be able to make his regular run this week.

We publish in an other colum the official notice of an extension of the time of payment on these lands, for one year, of course this was known to SUNBEAM readers last May and we may as well tell the other fellows now.

A man that comes here with the intention of proving up as soon as possible and mortgageing for all he can get, can consider himself lucky that he got into a country where all the people were not like him, for if they were he could not get much of a loan on his farm.

James Colman, who has been staying with Mr. Eves the past two weeks left for the Dakota harvest fields Wednesday. Will Arndt and him went out together with a team and the Dakota farmer that secures their services during harvest and threshing will get two first class hands.

August J. Wentzel has commenced the erection of a large stock barn on his farm north from Highlanding. August is one of the class of farmers that came here to make his home and is well satisfied with the country and prospects. He is one of the class of people that are needed in a new country and we have quite a number of them in this township.

Mr and Mrs. Walt McAndrees eight months old baby boy was taken so seriously ill with cholery infantum, this week that Mrs. McAndrees took him down to Thief River Falls for treatment on Wednesday. Last evening Mr. McAndrees recieved a message from Mrs. McAndrees, that the Doctor had pronounced the babys sickness very dangerous and recovery doubtful, and he left for Thief River by team this morning. It is to be hoped that the little one will recover not withstanding his serious condition.

A man that makes application to make final proof with no intentions of going to the land office on the date set, but does it for the purpose of anncying people is liable to find it rather expensive fun before he gets through with it, if he is finacialy liable, and if not he must understand he has to make proof on that homestead, some time and he must do it through the land offices in this country, as he can't go to Canada to do it. The officials of the land office at Crookston are working hard enough and overtime enough, without having their time taken up to play with fools.

J. K. WOOD,
COUNTY SURVEYOR, &
CIVIL ENGINEER.

Will give all orders for Surveying prompt attention.

Office at Thief River Falls
Minnesota.

Wanted: Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000.00 capital. Salary $1,072 00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, Sunbeam, Minn.

If you are intending to buy a cream separator this spring, be sure and look over the "National" for sale by Singer Bros.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 8. 30 a. m. on Tuesday's Thurday's and Saturday's. & Ar-rives on the same day's, at 3. p.m.

Wm. G. HUNT, P.M.

LAND OFFICE BUSINESS.

U.S. Commissioner L. G. Browning with office located at Thief River Falls, is prepared to take homestead entries final proof etc., within the Crookston U. S. Land District.

office in News building, three doors south of the post office.

MONEY TO LOAN.

I have money to loan on real-estate at 7½ per cent. Payments at the land office made for you when you make final proof.

Special attention given to Notary Public work.

Applications to make final proof written free.

Stephen Singer,
Rhoda Minn.

Subscribe for The Sunbeam.

WHO SHALL WE VOTE FOR?

Rhoda, Minn,
August 21st 1906.

Editor Sunbeam;

Now and again we chance to see the mention of new candidates for office, together with some of the old ones which have already duly declared themselves for re election. As the Primary election is not far distant, the question will naturally arise, and especially so with the prospective voters of the Eleven Towns. Who shall we suppose, and who shall we vote for? We do not know any of these fellows! will be the answer they will give. As we have been a resident and a voter in this county since its existance, we deem it our duty to try and undertake to answer this question, and will do so impartially, we consider the man and not the party, that he belongs to. We base the foundation of our answer upon the services these gentlemen have rendered the county in the past, which has been satisfaction to our best interest. For this reason we do not hesitate to highly recommend to the prospective voters of the Eleven Towns, and others, these gentleman. For auditor James E. Ford, for county Attorney Thomas Germo, for Register Deeds Frank Jeffers, for Sheriff Dan Lunhan, for clerk of Court Harry Ives. These are all good men and are entitled to your support, as they will. all of them will render the best of satisfaction, and they ought to be pushed right in with a good big majority vote.

Yours for success,
Reservation Homesteader.

A Wonderful Theory.

Gladys—I don't like this egg, auntie, it's not good. Auntie—Nonsense, dear! it was only laid yesterday. Gladys—Well, then, it must have been laid by a bad hen.

Still in the Future.

Cashier (coughing)—Pardon me, I did not catch your last name. Ethel (blushing)—I haven't caught it yet myself.—Cleveland Leader.

HARRY E. IVES, ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.,

Respectfully solicits your support and vote for the Republican nomination for Clerk of the District Court for Red Lake County at the Primaries, Sept 18. If nominated and elected will pledge a square deal to all parties and all men.

Extension Of Time.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
General Land Office,
Washington, D.C., July 31, 1906.

Registers and Receivers,
Cass Lake, Crookston, and Duluth, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:

The Indian appropriation act of June 21, 1906, Public—No. 258, contains the following provision:

"That the homestead settlers on all ceded Indian reservations in Minnesota who purchased the lands occupied by them as homesteads be, and they hereby are, granted an extension of one year's time in which to make the payments now provided by law.

This law applies to homestead settlers on ceded Chippewa lands opened under the act of January 14, 1889 (25 Stat., 642), and the Red Lake lands opened under the act of February 20, 1904 (33 Stat., 46)' except that it does not apply to ceded Chippewa lands opened by circulars of March 27, 1896, and August 12, 1898, as the lands described in said circulars were affected by the free homestead act of May 17, 1900, and payments are not "now provided by law" as to said lands. Inasmuch as proof and payment must be made at the same time, the extension of time for making payment involves a corresponding time within which to make final proof.

Very respectfully,
G. F. POLLOCK,—Acting Commissioner.

Approved;
THOS RYAN,
Acting Secretary.

Honors Easy.

People who were present smiled at the little passage of arms which took place between two young ladies at a luncheon recently. One of them, a bride, shaking hands in her characteristically cordial way, said to the other: "I'm so glad to meet you! You have afforded me so very much amusement just lately."

"Amusement?" said the other.

"Oh, yes," went on the bride. "I've been through my husband's desk and have read all his old love letters. I found several very affectionate letters from you, and I enjoyed reading them really ever so much."

"I'm so glad you enjoyed them," replied the other. "But do come and see me very soon. Here is my card. I have the answers to all those letters, and you might like to read them as well. Mr. X.'s letters are so much more affectionate than those I wrote to him. I know you'll enjoy reading them ever so much more than you did mine."

Mutual.

Mrs. Kratchett—Bridget, I don't like the looks of that man who called to see you last night. Bridget—Well, well ain't it funny, ma'am? He said the same about you.—Philadelphia Ledger.

His Aim.

"What will be your chief aim now you are in congress?" asked the interviewer.

"To stay here," answered the laconic young statesman.—Exchange.

Not Either as Yet.

"Er—I want some sort of a present for a young lady."

"Sweetheart or sister?"

"Er—why, she hasn't said which she will be yet."

Couldn't Lose Her.

Hewitt—I hear that your servant was blown up by kerosene. Jewett—She'll be back. I owed her a week's wages.—New York Press.

Nemesis.

Nemesis is lame, but she is of colossal stature, and sometimes, while her sword is not yet unsheathed, she stretches out her huge left arm and grasps her victim. The mighty hand is invisible, but the victim totters under the dire clutch.—George Eliot.

Thrust Upon Him.

"How did stupid old Boresome ever get a reputation for wit?"

"He was once interviewed by a brilliant young reporter."—Minneapolis Journal.

ancient Armenian king, who lived about 1750 B. C. He fell in a bloody battle with the Babylonians, and the scene of his death was thenceforth known as Arai-Arat, or the Fall of Arai. Josephus refers to the mountain as Nazuapa and declares that the remains of the ark were there to be seen carefully preserved.

